PLANT TREE FOR NEW BABY

Japanese Have Pretty Custom That Insures Shade and Timber for the Coming Generations.

In the inland sections of Japan, where the rice fields and the fishing villages of the coast and the inland sea have given place to the forms of farming which the average man of that country best knows, there are some few stretches of forests and tree-covered plains and hills that are impressive as well as picturesque.

But in most of Japan the tree is a painstakingly planted, carefully tended and artistically trimmed creation, sometimes giving the impression of being more man-created than "happening by accident."

One of the reasons there are almost invariably fine trees surrounding the homes of the well-to-do of Japan is because when a baby is born a tree is planted in honor of the new-born child. The tree is called "the baby's tree," often is given the name of the child, and both tree and child grow up together.

During the years when the baby is growing up the child's tree is watched over both by the parents and their gardener, as well as the child. Many a Japanese mother would fear that her child was about to die if the child's tree were to become sick and die. And they take it as the best possible omen when the tree flourishes better than any other tree in the neighborhood.

Nothing is permitted to harm this tree until the day comes when the child is to be married. Then the tree is cut down and its wood is made into an article of furniture for the new home. This furniture is treasured, and is given the place of honor in the house it grew all these years to dec-

A Letter From the President

OF THE MOTOR CLUB

Bay City, Mich., October 2, 1921

The Wildman Rubber Company, 314 Phoenix Block, Bay City, Mich.

Gentlemen:---

A few days ago I had the occasion to make a trip to the west side and I stopped off at the Motor club and picked up Jack Sheflin, manager of the club, who suggested that we go over to the Wildman property and give the place the once over.

It would have done your heart good to have heard Sheflin enthuse about the work you have under way. He stood there and pictured to me the future of the plant and in my mind's eye I could almost see the smoke pouring out of the finished chimneys, see the freight cars on the sidings and being loaded, as well as the trucks carrying away loads of tires and the selfsealing tubes.

What struck us most was the immensity of the work you have under way. The height of the tower and the great length of the foundation shows that you are going to do business in a great way. Bay City needs a few big enterprises such as yours.

When, a year ago, I was approached to become a stockholder, I subscribed for a nominal sum---five hundred dollars' worth---and I decided to wait until you began to show signs of real activity before purchasing more. Now, however, I'm convinced. I intend to go the limit of my available resources in investing with you and am ready to sign up for more stock at once.

I'm not going to be one of those fellows who will say: "I had a chance to get some of that stock," I am going to get mine now and I'll appreciate an early call from you so that I'll have a block of substantial size reserved for me.

Don't let outsiders get all of this stock, give the home boys a chance, and you can go on through the years to come, in the full knowledge that you've done them the greatest favor that could be bestowed.

In all sincerity, I am very truly yours, J. P. GREENWALD, President Bay City Motor Club.

No man who has not mastered the last subtleties of bushcraft should penetrate alone the western dry lands Wm. V. Freel left Monday for San- of Australia. A Canadian woodsman enlighten him. A North American Indian would perish of ignorance. A Bedouin of the sandy Arabian deserts would die helpless. Australian bushcraft is peculiar to itself. It concerns itself less with killing the crawling desert life for food than with divining the whereabouts of water in a land

In the midcontinental deserts, when from deep in the ground and all the world runs dry, the aboriginals draw water from the roots of small desert | and that number is increasing at a trees by cutting them into short lengths and letting them drain, drop by drop, into a wooden bowl. But there may be no water trees or the roots may shrivel

"Ah, well," said the bushman, "they do with what they have."

"What have they?" I asked him. "They lick the dew from the leaves and grass!" It is related by a celebrated Australian traveler, Baldwin the procedure necessary to gain for Spencer, that, having come in a dry him that which is provided him by season to a dry clay pan, bordered with withered shrubs, his company was Notice—I will give $10.00 to any amazed by an exhibition of aboriginal ture within miles, and the clay was baked so hard that to be penetrated at all it must be broken with a hatchet. Handsome sum- ocean was 4,600 feet high to the base inches in diameter, in which lay a dirty yellow frog. It was a waterholding frog and it was distended with a supply sufficient, perhaps, to enable it to survive a drought for a year and a half. And the water was pure and fresh. Being heartily squeezed, these frogs may yield a saving draft to lost and perishing travelers.

> "Find a black fellow," said our bushman, "and you'll get water."

"What if the aboriginal is obdurate?" "Ah, well, if he won't tell," the bushman explained, "you rope him by the neck to your saddle. When he gets thirsty he'll go to the water right enough."
