The athletic club of the Tawas City high school, at a meeting held on Tuesday of this week, passed a resolution asking reduced rates on the railroads of the state for athletic meetings and other school gatherings.

The schools of the state probably furnish as much passenger business to the railroads as any organization, yet they are not given the benefit of reduced rates except on rare occasions. It would be well if every high school in the state would adopt similar resolutions to those adopted here.

The first number on the Tawas City lyceum course, the Sterling Male Quartet, appeared Tuesday evening as advertised. The young gentlemen comprising the quartet are talented singers and gave a splendid program of songs and readings which were very pleasing to their audience. The season ticket sale for the course has been very good thus far, but it is hoped that many more tickets will be sold. The price of season tickets for the remainder of the course has been reduced to $1.75 for adults and $1.15 for children. At these prices the entertainment offered is much cheaper than it could otherwise be obtained.

Fire insurance, Fred Swartz, adv-tf Henry Oetjens of Hale was a business visitor in the city Monday.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

Our Community Hallowe'en party has grown by leaps and bounds since it was announced in the Herald last week. So interested in making the evening a success have the boosters become, that not only has a hand been secured, but some really handsome cash prizes have been offered which should make competition very keen. The street will be well lighted and the merchants have agreed to decorate their windows, which will add to the festive appearance of the town. It has been decided to make this occasion a celebration in honor of the opening of our new concrete road. The two affairs can be handled very nicely together and if everyone will do their share towards the success of the evening we will have one of the best street celebrations that has yet been given.

The parade will start at 7:30 from Taylor's store corner, headed by the band, and pass in review before the judges' stand in front of the Auditorium. In order to facilitate the awarding of prizes the judges have requested that all those taking part have a tag attached stating what character they are representing. Numbers will be assigned to each one the same as last year. These numbers may be obtained at the Prescott office at seven o'clock. Do not forget your number. This is very important.

In the lobby of the Auditorium, the three witches who made the beach so attractive last year with their big bonfire and great iron caldron, will again be in evidence and this year the ladies of the Twentieth Century club have prepared a little surprise package for each boy and girl. Some games and stunts are being planned under the direction of Mr. Jas. Mark, Mr. Ousterhout and Miss Isabelle Trainor, all masters in the art of community entertaining.

The children's frolic will cease with the awarding of the prizes, and from then on those who care to are invited to make merry until midnight in the Auditorium, an orchestra having been provided for the occasion. There is, however, one important stipulation. No one except those in costume will be permitted on the floor. Do not miss this, as it will be a real party.

The list of prizes will be found elsewhere in this paper.

CHILDREN TO HELP BUILD TWO FRENCH SCHOOLS

The following letter, which is self-explanatory, has been sent by Supt. of Public Instruction T. E. Johnson, to the county school commissioners throughout the state:

My dear Co-worker: Marshal Foch, the commanding officer under whose command victory in the great World War came to the allied forces, is soon to be a visitor to our country. On that occasion he is to be presented with a beautiful gold medal, the gift of the school children of this country. At the same time a fund is to be raised to present to France the replicas of two of our finest high school buildings. They are to be known as the Washington-Lafayette High School and the Foch-Pershing High School.

If the school children of this country contribute the equivalent of one cent each we shall be able to raise the amount necessary. That means that Michigan's quota is $7,000.00. Ordinarily I am opposed to calling upon children for money and I am very anxious that this be presented in a manner that none will be called upon to make sacrifices but I am very desirous that every child in Michigan have the opportunity to contribute.

The plan to be followed will be this: The commissioner of schools will collect all the money from the county and forward it to the state treasurer Frank E. Gorman, and the amount each county contributes will be published in the Moderator-Topsks.

In order to secure interest in this I am, with the approval of the governor, offering a small replica of the medal in gold to the child below the tenth grade who will write the best letter to Mr. Foch to accompany the presentation of the medal. This medal will be of eighteen carat solid gold and will be a very beautiful thing for a child to receive. I am going to ask each county commissioner to appoint a committee of three to determine the best letter from his or her county. These eighty-three letters will be submitted to a committee which I will appoint to make the final award. Major Rolph Duff, secretary to the governor, will act as chairman of this committee.

BROWNELL ADVOCATES ABOLITION OF HOUSE AND SENATE

Charles A. Brownell, vice-president of the Wildman Rubber Co. of Bay City, speaking before the Rotary Club of Cincinnati, Ohio, told the members of the club that it was time for them to consider new ideas in regard to business and government.

Talking on the subject, "Something to Think About," Mr. Brownell first made a plea for the business men to consider the value of education. He asked that university and college trained men and women be given a start higher in business life and that boys and girls be educated in good government.

Mr. Brownell created a gasp of astonishment when he advocated that it would be better for the country if the senate and house of representatives were done away with and a working organization of one representative from each state, with a salary of $25,000 a year or more, be instituted.

"Why not have but forty-eight congressmen, one from each state?" asked Mr. Brownell. "Why not have the supreme court take the place of the senate and pass upon laws that are created by the working body? Then it would be found whether they are legal and workable before they are placed on the statute books."—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

SOIL SURVEY IN U. P. SHOWS FARMING LAND

That agricultural development is justified in 80 per cent or more of the area of Ontonagon county, Mich., is the belief expressed by Dr. M. M. McCool, head of the soils department at the Michigan Agricultural college.

A soil survey of this Upper Peninsula county is being made at the present time through the college and the U. S. bureau of soils, classifying and mapping the principal soils of the area and collecting information of value in the agricultural development of the region. The field work, which will be completed this fall, is being handled under the direction of J. O. Veatch of the M. A. C. soils department.

L. D. S. CHURCH

Biblical faith is faith in an imminent God. Note his statement:

Without faith it is impossible to please him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.—Hebrews 11:6. We must believe in God's existence and in his divine justice and in his approachability. True faith presupposes a God that is. The great I am who in the midst of most primitive surroundings spoke to Moses from the burning bush is still at work in the world among the complex and artificial conditions of modern life. He is able and willing to "reward" those who now "diligently seek him" as anciently. He has never drawn a line through any day or year in all the calendar of time and said "This cannot be a day of revelation and miracles." This faith is associated with good works, character building, complete obedience to the principles and ordinances of the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is a living faith in a living God.

Services next Sunday: Sunday school, 10:00 a. m. Preaching service, 11:00 a. m. Evening service, 7:30 p. m. Prayer service Wednesday 7:30 p. m. M. A. Sommerfield, Pastor.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

A business meeting of the Twentieth Century club was held on Saturday, October 22, in the lobby of the new Masonic building. The club members feel that they are indeed fortunate in being able to rent this splendid room. It will be very near to the ideal club home of which the members have felt the need for a long time.

The club members thank Mr. Dimmick for his services and the use of his tent for the work of the Public Health department at the fair. They also extend their thanks to Mr. Jas. Mark for his part in making the community sing at the school house the great success that it was; to Mr. Ousterhout for his help at the same program, and also to Mr. Johnson for furnishing a Victrola.

Mrs. John A. Mark, parliamentary for the club, gave an outline of the duties of officers and committees. The suggestions given in this outline will prove very helpful during the coming year.

The club is very fortunate in having the use of a piano for the year. The members appreciate the services of Mr. Wilson in moving it for them.

Roll call was responded to by current events. A short program followed. Community singing.

Reading, Miss Bradley. Solo, Mrs. Jas. Mark. Reading, Mrs. Ousterhout. Community singing.

From Wasp to Sugar.

When man attempts to remake nature he finds himself on a devious path. In Hawaii they have sent abroad for a wasp because the sugar plantations need it, but the route from wasp to sugar is not a straight one. The first need was assured supplies of water for the plantations. Most of it came from three large watersheds and it was desirable to reforest them. For this purpose the most suitable tree was the large banyan, which will flourish in Hawaii, but is sterile for lack of a wasp, which fertilizes the fig of which the banyan is a species.

So the experiment station of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association sent out two missionaries to seek the proper wasp to pollinate the trees. One went to the Philippines, one to the Fiji Islands, while a third, dispatched by the territorial government, set out for India.

The wasp ambassador to the Fiji Islands has already shipped cases of wasps to his homeland. Now the planters hope that the banyan will grow naturally, the watersheds be protected and the sugar cane flourish.—The Nation's Business.

Teach Flat Life in Schools.

On the assumption that most girl pupils some day will marry and make their homes in small city apartments, New York public schools are being equipped to teach them how to keep house economically and efficiently under those conditions.

Part of the equipment of the domestic science department of each of the new standard school buildings opened this year is a model flat, filling the space of one ordinary school-room and including a kitchen, living room, dining room, hall, bedroom and bath.

Adjoining the model flat is a large cooking room and three small kitchens, separated by railings, the entire unit providing for the instruction of forty pupils at once.

Canada's Memorials.

Sculptors of Canada's memorials to Canadian soldiers, to be erected in France and Belgium, will be chosen by the special committee some time this month. Each memorial will be from 80 to 100 feet high, and cost about $150,000. While the sculptors will be Canadians, the selection committee will be international, being composed of a Canadian, a Frenchman and an Englishman, in order to ensure the best choice. Eight artists will be selected.

"Good work, but why so extraordinary?"
"He refrained from giving out an interview to the press until after he had caught his man."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Personal Matter.

"Senator Shortworthy seems discouraged over the party's prospects."
"That's only temporary."
"Yes?"
"He was scheduled to address a discourse of sovereign voters yesterday, and only three sovereign voters showed up, including the chairman."

Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and restoring normal conditions. Circulars free. All Druggists. E. J. ## 850 DISASTER DEATH TOLL FOR ONE YEAR

Red Cross Gives $1,871,000 Relief When 65,000 Families Are Made Homeless.

Forty-three disasters, resulting in the death in the United States of 850 persons and the injury of 2,500 called for emergency relief measures and the expenditure of $1,871,000 by the American Red Cross during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921, says an announcement based upon the forthcoming annual report of the Red Cross. These disasters caused property damage estimated at $30,000,000, affected sixty-seven communities and rendered 65,000 families homeless.

The year's disasters were of varying types, including several which previously had never been thought of as falling within that classification. The Red Cross furnished relief in seventeen fires of magnitude, five floods, seven tornadoes or cyclones, one devastating storm, three explosions, including the one in Wall street; one building accident, two typhoid epidemics, the most serious being that at Salem, Ohio, which affected 9 per cent of the population; one smallpox epidemic, in the republic of Haiti; one train wreck, the race riot at Tulsa, Okla.; the famine in China, emergency relief in famine among the Indians of Alaska, the grasshopper plague in North Dakota and an earthquake in Italy.

Pueblo Most Serious
By far the most severe of the disasters in the United States during the period covered by the Red Cross report was the Pueblo flood early in June, 1921. The rehabilitation problem confronting the Red Cross in Pueblo was one of the most difficult in recent years. When the first news of the horror was flashed throughout the country, the American Red Cross National Headquarters responded with a grant of $105,000 for relief work. Governor Shoup of Colorado, appreciating the long and successful experience of the Red Cross in organizing disaster relief work, placed the entire responsibility for the administration of relief in its hands.

In response to appeals from President Harding, Governor Shoup and other governors of western states and through local chapters of the Red Cross and other community organizations, public-spirited citizens brought the total contributed for Pueblo's rehabilitation to more than $325,000.

The terrible havoc wrought by the flood waters is a matter of record. More than 2,300 homes were affected and 7,351 persons were left homeless. Estimates of $500,000 as an absolute minimum for rehabilitation were made by Red Cross officials in charge of the relief work.

Fast Work in Wall Street
The Wall street explosion was notable in that relief workers of the Red Cross were on the scene twenty minutes after the disaster occurred. The race riot at Tulsa also was unique in disaster relief annals in that outside of a small emergency relief fund contributed by the Red Cross, the only relief measures outside the city consisted of the service of social workers, nurses and a trained executive whose object was to assist local forces in directing their own efforts.

In decided contrast with the previous year, only one tornado assumed the proportions of a major disaster. This occurred on April 15, in the border sections of Texas and Arkansas with the city of Texarkana as the center. The significant feature of this disaster relief work was the fact that it covered so much rural territory as to make necessary a large number of relief workers.

The famine in China, necessitating relief expenditures totalling more than $1,000,000 by the American Red Cross was by far the most serious of the foreign disasters in which the Red Cross gave aid.

Builds Up its Machinery
In connection with the administration of disaster relief measures, an increasing effectiveness on the part of the Red Cross to deal with emergencies was manifested during the past year. In 328 Chapters of the American Red Cross there have been formed special committees to survey the resources of their respective communities and to be prepared in case of disaster. In others of the 3,402 active Chapters, a network of communication has been formed through which instantaneous relief may be dispatched to any part of the United States.

That its work in this field may be continued with ever greater effectiveness, the American Red Cross is appealing for widespread renewal of membership during its Annual Roll Call, to be conducted this year from November 11 to 24.

LIFE SAVING CORPS ENROLLMENT 10,000

Growth of Red Cross Life Saving Corps throughout the country continued unabated during the last fiscal year, a summary of the year's achievements by that Red Cross Service shows. There are now 160 Corps with a total membership of more than 10,000 members, of which 1,276 are sufficiently skilled in the work to act as examiners. Among the outstanding achievements of the Red Cross in this field during the last year was the organization at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, of what is perhaps the largest life saving corps in the world.

BRINGS "SANDMAN" IN HURRY

As Sleep-Inducer, Amateur Psychologist Has a Scheme Far Superior to Counting Sheep.

"Counting sheep" used to be the great recipe for going to sleep. You simply closed your eyes, imagined a rail fence with a gap in it and white, woolly sheep jumping through, one at a time. You counted them carefully as they came, and about the time you got to about 296, why, off you dropped to slumberland.

But the amateur psychologist says counting sheep is old-fashioned and impractical now. The trouble was, he explains, the people used their imaginations too much. Instead of confining themselves solely to the sheep, they would imagine a whole pasture, with trees and hills and a sky full of clouds beyond, and their attention was so diffused keeping track of the landscape that they couldn't keep their minds concentrated on the sheep. Presently they lost interest and then old man Insomnia camped on their trail for several hours.

The newer and more scientific method for hypnotizing yourself to sleep, says the amateur psychologist, is to find out your particular drowsy obsession and concentrate.

"Whenever I feel a nervous, wakeful night coming on," he says, "I imagine myself in the interior of a vast, dim cathedral. Only a single ray of light filters in and it falls on the crossing aisle. An endless procession of hooded monks is moving slowly down this aisle, and I count them as they pass through the ray of light, one at a time. My mind is wholly engrossed with this slowly moving procession, and the interior of the cathedral is so obscure and dim that it does not distract me at all. Sometimes I fancy I hear far off strains of a pipe organ. The suggestion of music speeds the sleep-inducing process.

"I never have to count more than a hundred monks before the sandman gets me."

Chinese Fossil Teeth.
An European investigator has made a singular collection of fossil teeth from drug stores in various parts of China, where they are sold under the name of dragons' teeth and are valued for their supposed curative powers.

Upon examining them it was found by this investigator that they are the remains of many species of extinct animals, such as the ancestral forms of camels, saber-toothed tigers, three-toed horses and other creatures of ancient times, some of which, like the ancestral forms of camels and antelopes, were supposed to have had their original home in America and in Africa. Judging from the quantities of these teeth sold, the investigator thinks they must exist in enormous numbers in some parts of China.

Doom Century-Old Bridge.
The picturesque covered wooden bridge, near Chester, Orange county, New York, known for nearly a century as Brook's bridge, has been condemned by state highway engineers and will be torn down to make way for a steel and stone structure.

According to tradition, the "Stour-bridge Lion," first locomotive built in America, passed over Brook's bridge before it was assembled. The Stour-bridge made its trial trip 91 years ago. The first run was at Honesdale, a mile from the bridge.

The structure has not a nail or metal bolt in it. All the timbers are hand hewn and pinned together with wooden pegs, which have held tightly throughout the years. It is said to have been completed in 1820.

Wood-Carving by Sand-Blast.
A process of carving wood by special application of the sand-blast, reported in the Compressed Air Magazine (New York), is said to be giving highly satisfactory results in California, especially when applied to the redwood of that state. We read: "Portions of the surface are covered by protective stencils which leave figures in relief and a uniform background. Very rich effects are produced in paneling the walls of a dining room, hall or den. While much of the work is done in the natural color of the rich, reddish brown wood, striking effects are brought out by the use of paints, deep blues, reds, browns and gilt."

Marine Spectacle.
A captain of an Atlantic liner was bothered by a woman passenger who was always inquiring about the possibility of seeing a whale. A dozen times a day she besought him to have her called if one were in sight. "But, madam," the captain asked her rather impatiently, after long suffering in silence, "why are you so eager to see a whale?" "Captain," she answered, "my desire in life is to see a whale blubber. It must be very impressive to watch such an enormous creature cry."

Very Much Affrayed.
"Goin' in that house over there?" said the first tramp. "I tried that house last week. I ain't goin' there any more," replied tramp No. 2. "Fraid on account of the dog?" "My trousers are." "Trousers are what?" "Frayed on account of the dog."

Try Mr. Edison's marvelous MOOD MUSIC

YOU already know that music has the power to pull you out of your "mean" spells. But do you know how to apply this power in your everyday life? Do you know which selections soothe you, which brace you up, which selections inspire you, which bring you peace of mind?

These are age-old problems. Mr. Edison has finally solved both. First, he perfected an instrumentality (The New Edison) which puts at the command of every home, the full benefits of music. Now he has developed a way of using these benefits.

Two years ago a corps of world-famous psychologists undertook for Mr. Edison a research into the effects of music. The research has just been completed. Out of it has come Mood Music.

THINK UNCLE SAM SOLOMON

Government Bureaus Are Pestered With Never-Ending Flood of Absurd Questions.

Many persons place no limit upon the things they believe Uncle Sam can accomplish for them. Two letters recently broke into the comparatively uneventful business existence of a correspondence clerk in the bureau of mines to illustrate this very thing, says the Mining Congress Journal. One of these missives bore the postmark of a little western mining town. The letter was written in a draggy, uncertain scrawl, with a name of plainly foreign origin tacked on the end at a rakish angle. The writer sought information, lots of it. Leading off with a simple query as to when the bureau's 1921 reports on everything from silk neckties to onyx cameos, would be ready, he stepped into a veritable flood of question marks.

"Could you drop me a line when some expedition starts off to the Cocos Islands or any other places?" he asks with nonchalance.

"What is radium worth a pound?" "Where are the most birds of paradise found, and how big are their eggs?"

"Can you give me the names of all the foreign and domestic companies handling eyeglasses, telegraph instruments, water gauges, periscopes, ore finders, hearing horns, electric churns, curling irons and aluminum cooking tools?"

And so on and on through three pages. The other gem par excellence which the mail man brought told of the ambitions of an Italian mushroom grower of New York city. It told such a tale as might easily have furnished O. Henry with inspiration for one of his wonder yarns of the great metropolises. Not high ambitions were these of the mushroom grower, as they appeared between the lines of the letter. Lower than a fallen instep were they. Down deep in the murky, gloomy depths of deserted mines is where this man's dreams of fortune led his mind. To quote his letter:

"I am a mushroom grower, and I am looking for some empty mines in New Jersey in which to plant my mushrooms. Would be much obliged if you would send me a list of same, especially the ones that are good and damp."

With what masses of mushrooms is this fair land of ours due to be swamped if this man's dreams of numberless caverns jammed from side to side and to their roofs with monster bits of toothsome ever become realized.

Hard Names, All Right. They were cousins, lived close to each other, and so were inseparable. But that didn't prevent "spats." They were just toddlers and quite too young to be versed in profane language. One day in the course of their play they became furiously angry with each other and John came running in with tears of rage rolling down his cheeks.

Airplane Has Odd Effect on Denizens of Jungle. Many Animals Fled From Strange Sight but Others Showed Neither Fear Nor Curiosity.

Jason Humphreys, the twelve-year-old English boy who flew with his father, the pilot, a camera man and a scientist from Cairo to Cape Town, enjoyed a more novel experience than most boys of his age will ever know.

The sudden change from bush to civilization as represented by clearings for small villages and farms and back again impressed young Humphreys very much. He was more interested, however, in the behavior of the wild beasts and birds over which he was flying.

Wild beasts showed individual temperaments. Lions and leopards could be seen stalking along, oblivious to the giant purring overhead. If the machine came so low that the noise of the engine could not help reaching them, they sidled under protecting underbrush, but they never looked up. The naturalist has offered no explanation for this. It is a new phenomenon and must be studied.

Usually lions and leopards are in terror of strange noises, and know from infancy, by instinct, that gunfire bodes them no good. During the late war there was a general exodus of wild beasts from every quarter of Africa where any fighting was going on.

Apes and monkeys made wild efforts to reach the topmost branches of the highest trees in order to get a better view, and they could be sometimes heard screaming to one another above the noise of the engine, more in excitement and curiosity, presumably, than in fear.

Hippopotami were indifferent, neither hastening their lumbering steps nor glancing up; they did not seek ambush, as did the cats. But rhinoceros were panic-stricken. They rushed off headlong to cover. Crocodiles sprang from the banks of streams and hid beneath the surface of the water until the flying machine had passed.

Prophecy in a Fake Story. It is hard to know when to laugh. What was obviously a hoax yesterday, because of its utter impossibility, becomes a commonplace reality of today. It was a glorious hoax in 1844, when a New York daily announced: "Astounding News by Express From Norfolk!

"The Atlantic Crossed in Three Days!!

"Signal Triumph of Mr. Monek Mason's Flying Machine!!"

Breathless New Yorkers were informed that eight men had accomplished a transatlantic flight and were given full particulars of the machinery and the voyage, all imaginary. But did anyone dream of a hoax when the airplanes of the United States navy crossed the ocean a little while ago?

Bernard Shaw Aged 254. "I am fairly familiar with Mr. Shaw's plays and prefaces," writes Gilbert Seldes in The Dial, "but I recall no emphatic acknowledgment anywhere of his debt to Gulliver's Travels, and if it mattered very much I should accuse Mr. Shaw of flinging Samuel Butler and the mysterious Captain Wilson like pepper in our eyes for fear of seeing the great dean too clearly. On a hundred topics, from doctors to diet, they have similar ideas."

Perhaps Mr. Shaw is like one of those characters in his new play who live to be 300 years old, under various names. If Bernard Shaw is Dead Swift, he is 254 years old.

How People Die in India.

A return of the number of inquests held by the coroner of Bombay during 1919 gives us some very interesting particulars. Among the "suicide" we find that six cut their throats, 28 drowned themselves, four hanged themselves, 15 jumped out of windows, 20 took opium, arsenic or some other poison, four shot themselves and eight burned themselves. Drowning, therefore, took pride of place last year, whereas self-poisoning was the favorite method of quitting life in 1918, there being 21 cases reported. Other suicidal practices mentioned in the report are stabbing and the act of knocking one's head against a wall. No one has favored either of these methods during the past two years, however.

Beggars in Constantinople. And then the beggars! They are at every turn in Constantinople. For the most part, they are Armenians. They follow a person for great distances, whining and crying. Some of them carry deformed babies, probably rented, as it seems unlikely that every beggar could have a deformed child. Many make their children lie in the street on wet pavements and pretend to be asleep to excite the pity of the passerby and thus secure baksheesh!

Censure. We are apt to be very pert at censoring others, where we will not endure advice ourselves. And nothing shows our weakness more, than to be so sharp-sighted at spying other men's faults, and so purblind about our own.

IS BARREN LAND

Correze About the Poorest Section of France.

Has, However, a Wealth of Chestnuts Which the Inhabitants Turn to Good Account.

Correze, another "place where the nuts come from," is the subject of a National Geographic society bulletin in connection with the reported anxiety of that department of France because a schedule in the new tariff doubles the duty on chestnuts.

A region of chestnuts, walnuts and cider apples may suggest a land of perpetual Halloween," continues the bulletin. "But, in reality, the department of Correze, in south central France, is a place where the struggle for existence has developed a serious, sturdy, grim type of peasantry.

"The infrequent visitor to the basin of the Garonne will find families whose diet, in winter, consists largely of chestnuts and potatoes and goat cheese—who eat their simple repast of tables with depressions hollowed from the wood to serve as plates, and have gravel floors in their tiny cottages. He may encounter inns, with their invariable menus of veal, buckwheat cakes and potatoes, where he is supposed to furnish his own knife, a custom surviving from not more than a century ago when the guest of a province hostelry was expected to carry his own cutlery.

"But if this visitor thinks primitive conditions connote a backward people he will be as much surprised as many a city-bred recruit in the American expeditionary forces who took the literacy of a southern mountaineer to be a measure of his intelligence.

"Correze has an area nearly equal to that of our own state of Delaware. It lies along the western edge of the great central plateau of France. It is corrugated with valleys, ravines and gorges. 'Moors, heaths and bracken' are words most needed in descriptions of its landscapes. Groves of chestnut trees, white birches and walnut trees often give a suggestion of a gaunt New England scene. Only in an occasional valley is the soil fertile. Scattered over this department are about as many people as live in Indianapolis.

"The sons of Correze who rubbed elbows with allied soldiers on the western front may have brought back news of the trade opportunities which lurked in the outside world. Perhaps that is why Correze farmers awoke to the fact that chestnuts they formerly gathered against the lean winter might have a higher value in exchange. Anyway, they found their way to the channels of American exports and Correze citizens now are reported to be greatly disturbed at the proposed tariff barrier.

"Chestnut gathering, rather than a savings account, represents the starting point of many a home in Correze. Communes usually owned the land about them, and gave citizens legal title to tracts they cleared and cultivated. But it takes three or four years to produce a crop, and in the meantime many a young man has found his economic salvation in nut gathering. Mushrooms, which abound under the chestnut trees, afford another edible.

"Not only is this land hard to clear and till, but the remoter sections know only the simplest tools. A plow is made of two poles, joined at an angle, with the ground end of the pole held by the man constituting the plowshare. Every hamlet has its church. To the pedestrian who would tramp through these parts, and thus get the full flavor of a most interesting environment, the angelus is a bell buoy for his inland travels from village to village and the frequent creator of such scenes of simple devotion as that immortalized by Millet.

"Tulle, with a population of fewer than 15,000, is the capital and principal city of Correze. Quaint houses line the streets of steps which ascend the slopes along the valley of the River Correze, on which Tulle is situated. Near the city are the beautiful Gimmel falls. In it is a firearms factory."

Was a Victim of Fear.
At Jurancon, France, in the Bases Pyrenees, a man was bitten by a dog and sent to the Pasteur Institute at Bordeaux.

He was sent home in a few days, but declared he was not cured and returned. He was again sent home, but after manifesting all the symptoms of the disease he was crying out to be muzzled, he was.

It has been demonstrated that the dog was entirely free from rabies, and the specialists declare that the man, who was of neurasthenic disposition and suffered severely from shell shock as a legacy of the war, really died a victim to his own fear.

The Voice of Authority.
"Hain't you better give Josh some advice before he goes away to school?" said Mrs. Cornloss.

"I s'pose so," replied her husband. "By the time he comes home again he'll be so smart he'll want to give all the advice himself. I'd better take my turn right now."

Keeping Time.
"I'll trouble you for the time, mister," said the footpad.

"It's just striking one," replied the man accented, punching him between the eyes.

"Don't hit me with your second hand," said the footpad, skipping off.

ROMANCE NOT QUITE GONE

Of All Places, the Assertion is Made That It is to Be Found in New York!

Anyone who thinks that romance and romantic atmosphere is lost in this great cold city is all wrong! While there may not be the general picturesqueness of the smaller town's romantic episodes and spots, we still have a sufficient amount of romantic color to keep the hearts and pulses of the most sentimental beating happily. A bit of Spanish suggestion can be seen on Morningside heights, and around Columbia university. There are at least a dozen places within a block of the college, where youths serenade fair maidens from balconies, armed with guitars, ukeleles and even violins.

Vocal efforts are also apparent during the earlier hours of the summer and fall evenings when the boys of the summer school sessions and the returning "regulars" of the college year serenade their fair friends across the street.

On one of the streets leading from the university grounds to the Drive are several fraternity houses. On the same street are two girls' clubs, and at one end of the street the girls' dormitory, connected with the university. There is hardly an evening which passes when this particular street doesn't resound to the strains of a popular song or to some of the older college favorites. Sometimes a piano in the girls' club will reply in a subtle manner. It isn't exactly a case of flirtation, for most of the boys are in classes with some of the girls and a sort of camaraderie has sprung up between the members of "fraternity row" and the maids across the way.

Yet to see three or four youths with banjos and guitars sitting on a window sill or the balcony of a fraternity house, and the heads of three or four girls poked from the windows across the street, carries with it the feeling that romantic settings are not a thing of the past in New York.—New York Sun.

Butterflies.
Why don't we call them "Flutterflies?" That would mean something. At any rate, they are thick right now, perhaps because they haven't had as many enemies this year as usual. The enemies of the butterfly are little wasplike stinging things that lay their eggs within the body of the caterpillar. Then when these eggs hatch—sometimes it is after the caterpillar has rolled himself up for his development into a butterfly—these eggs hatch and eat everything within reach, so, of course, there is no butterfly.

It isn't as hard to study the butterflies as it is to know the birds or even the wild flowers. Some species are common and have very distinct markings. There is the monarch butterfly with its brick-red color veined and margined with black, and with hind wings lined with yellow. There is a copy of the monarch, too, flying about with rounded wings, almost like the monarch, except that it is smaller and has a half-circle line across the middle of its hind wings. This is the disippus.

Royal Club Put to Good Use.
The Big People's House in Ghent was once a royal club. Today it is a recreation and social center of the Belgian co-operative societies. It is well patronized in the evening and on Sunday, when mother, father and children enjoy dancing, movies, music and lectures in surroundings designed for the convenience and comfort of nobility and royalty. They may take part in debates, or read in the big library, or go to the theatre in the building. On hot nights they listen to a band concert while sipping cool drinks in the garden.

The club itself is like the park-set palace of a nobleman, says Genevieve M. Fox, of Community Service, who traces in a recent service publication the development of the people's houses—the recreation and social centers of the Belgian co-operative societies—from their small beginnings—a modest little co-operative bakery business started in 1880.

Paradise for Hunters.
Louisiana has set aside the Pass-a-l'Ouvre public shooting ground for the enjoyment of the wild fowl hunter of moderate means. The tract of 80,000 acres is at the mouth of the Mississippi and gives the everyday sportsman the same opportunities formerly enjoyed only by members of the exclusive hunting clubs in the vicinity. The open season will be from November 1 to January 31, and each hunter is permitted a bag of 25 ducks a day. About 100 hunters will be admitted to the grounds at a time.

Sounded Dubious.
"Was her father encouraging when you went to ask him for his daughter's hand?" the friend asked.

"W-e-e-l, that depends," replied the suitor gloomily.

"How's that?"
"He told me to put my proposition in writing so that I couldn't back out as all the other fellows had done."—American Legion Weekly.

Purgatory.
Rub—The telephone is the greatest invention of the age.
Dub—The telephone's no invention; it's a punishment.—Judge.

India Land of Mystery.
India is said to be "the burning heart of Asia." That is to say, it has a genius for religion that is unsurpassed. Of the four great faiths which had their genesis in Asia, three were born in India. It is a land of 147 languages. Some of them are spoken by only a few people, but there are ten of these languages, each of which is spoken by 10,000,000 or more. Of every 100 people in the world, eighteen live in India. The latest census of India gives the population as 318,132,537.

"Perpetual Calendar."
The Rev. Francesco Scatigna of Locorotondo, in the province of Bari, Italy, claims to have discovered a "perpetual calendar," which has baffled science for centuries. His calendar consists of two discs, one superimposed upon the other, by the turning of which the correct day, week and month may be obtained. The great astronomer Herschel declared that a perpetual calendar never could be devised.—From the Argonaut.

Had Lost the Name.
Little Edward, aged three years, was busy playing with Milworth, who was an afternoon guest. After partaking of some lunch they were about to resume their play, when I overheard Edward say to Milworth: "Say, kid, what's your name again, I lost it!"

Sand Shoes Are Invented.
Shoes with wide wooden soles having projecting points are an English invention for persons who walk on sand that would engulf ordinary shoes.

Sincerely,
adv Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Crawford.

The Tactful Arthur.
An Englishman diplomat was talking in Bar Harbor about A. J. Balfour. "Mr. Balfour's tact is wonderful," he said. "It was never more wonderful than during the Paris peace negotiations."
"One day Marshal Foch was called in for consultation by the Big Four on a military matter, and then, when the Big Four were about to resume their private conference on the Rhine boundaries, Foch wouldn't take Premier Clemenceau's hint to go."
"Clemenceau sat looking puzzled for a while, then he crossed over to Lloyd George and President Wilson and Mr. Balfour, who was there as a diplomatic adviser."
"What am I to do?" said Clemenceau. "Foch won't go?"
"Give him another hint," said Mr. Wilson.
"Clemenceau did so, but still the marshal held his ground."
"The conclave was in a quandary. The Big Four consulted in whispers. What to do? And there Foch sat immovable, like granite, in his chair."
"What to do? The afternoon was growing late. At this juncture Mr. Balfour displayed his tact."
"I suggest," he said blandly, "that we have tea and call it a day."

School for Manners.
The wife of the vicar of a fashionable London suburb tells the story of a new parlormaid who was a great success. One day, however, she went out wearing clothes very much "above her station," and got into a motor car which was waiting near the vicarage gate.
When she returned, the vicar's wife, more in sorrow than in anger, suggested that domestic servants who dressed fashionably and drove off in motor cars were hardly suitable for the ecclesiastical atmosphere.
Then the girl confessed, "Oh," she said, "don't be alarmed. The man with the motor car is my father. He made a lot of money during the war, and now we live in a large house. But we didn't know quite how things were done by well-bred people, and so I took this job to find out."

Safer in the Air.
"Well, my young friend," said the old gentleman who was hobbling along with a cane, "we both seem to have physical disabilities. I was struck by a motor car the other day. The way people drive nowadays is a menace to human life."
"You are quite right," said the young man who limped slightly. "I never cross a street that I don't feel that I'm taking my life in my hands."
"By the way, how did you get hurt?"
"I sprained a ligament while hanging on one foot from an airplane."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Food for England.
From January 1 to July 15, 1921, imports of Danish butter into the United Kingdom totaled 33,000 tons out of an aggregate of 48,100 tons exported from Denmark; 3,400 tons went to the United States. Of 30,000,000 dozen eggs exported from the same source, 25,833,333 dozen were imported into Great Britain; and 42,000 tons of bacon, practically the whole quantity exported, went to the same destination.

FORMING GOOD READING HABITS

If parents wish their children to form good reading habits they must first form such habits themselves. And there is no better way to do this than to bring into the household a periodical that will be of interest to every member of it; that will supply the best reading for young and old. Among the periodicals of this description the Youth's Companion is unique. Not only does it aim to entertain and inform boys and girls in their teens, as its name suggests, but there is not a page in it that parents can pass over with indifference.

The 52 issues of 1922 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorials, poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1922.
2. All the remaining issues of 1921.
3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1922.

All for $2.50.

4. Or include McCall's Magazine, the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $3.00.
