TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

The regular meeting of the Twentieth Century club was held in the lobby of the Masonic building on Saturday, Nov. 12.

It was a meeting of unusual interest as Mrs. Robinson, our delegate to the State Federation of Women's Clubs, gave her report. Contrary to the oft made remark that reports are dry things, this was full of the vital interests of the day, interspersed with many amusing incidents of the trip.

The disarmament question, which is occupying the minds of all thinking people at this time, arose for discussion, and if the Big Five could have the opinions that were expressed we feel that their task of deciding this great issue would be much easier.

A vocal solo by Mrs. Frank Dease, accompanied by Mrs. Ray Smith, concluded the program.

The program committee asks that the members be prepared for a quiz on national government at the next meeting.

NOTES FROM COUNTY SCHOOL COMMISSIONER

The following schools have enrolled in the Junior Red Cross during the week: Hale, primary and intermediate rooms; East Tawas, second and third grade room, fifth grade, sixth grade, junior high; Baldwin, No. 3; Alabaster, primary, intermediate and grammar rooms.

The National Education Association conjointly with the American Legion, have requested that the week of Dec. 4-10 be designated as "American Education Week," and that it be so observed in all the states of the Union. The purpose of this week is to inform the public of the accomplishments and the needs of the public schools and to secure the cooperation and support of the public in meeting these needs.

It is expected that the President of the United States, the governors of all states and the mayors of all cities will issue proclamations designating the week as "American Education Week."

John J. Tigert, U. S. commissioner of education, states: "I am heartily in favor of this and I want to urge all school superintendents and teachers to unite in the observance of the week."

"At no time in American history has it been so necessary as now that the people be informed as to what the public schools have accomplished and are accomplishing for American education and what they now need to make them effective. It is a task in which all American educators can join and I bespeak their hearty cooperation in making American Education Week a success."

AT CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY
If I knew you and you knew me, How little trouble there would be. We pass each other on the street, But just come out and let us meet
At church next Sunday.

Each one intends to do what's fair, And treat his neighbor on the square, But he may not quite understand, Why don't you take him by the hand
At church next Sunday.

This world is sure a busy place, And we must hustle in the race. For social hours some are not free The six week days, but all should be
At church next Sunday.

We have an interest in our town, The dear old place must not go down. We want to push good things along, And we can help some if we're strong
At church next Sunday.

Don't knock and kick and slam and slap
At everybody on the map, But push and pull and boost and boom And use up all the standing room
At church next Sunday.

MICHIGAN GETS BIG SOIL SURVEY MEET

Soil survey experts from all parts of the country will gather at the Michigan Agricultural college on Nov. 18 and 19 for the annual conference of the American Association of Soil Survey Workers. Vital questions in connection with survey operations will be taken up at this time, with Michigan problems coming in for a major portion of attention.

Recognition of the work being done in Michigan in the soil survey field led to the scheduling of this year's meeting at East Lansing by the Survey association. For two years the soils department at the college cooperating with the bureau of soils of the U. S. department of agriculture, has been engaged in soil survey work in the state, with the result that an important start toward a state-wide survey has already been made.

THANKSGIVING DAY PROCLAMATION

By the Governor
"Oh, that man would praise the Lord for His goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men."

In accordance with the custom long ago established by our fathers, it is entirely fitting that, at this season of the year, we should set apart a day of thanksgiving to Almighty God, the source of all good, for the manifold mercies and blessings that are ours.

There is an old legend which says that there are two angels whose duty it is to bear from earth the prayers of men. One is the angel of Requests and the other the angel of Thanksgiving. Each carries a large basket as he flies from place to place, listening at the doors of prayer-closets. The angel of Requests soon has his basket filled and heaped up with the supplications of men, but the angel of Thanksgiving, after going all his rounds, has only a few little hymns of gratitude in the bottom of his basket.

Perhaps this fancy is truer than we suppose. People murmur and find fault much oftener than they rejoice and give thanks; but as we look back over the past year, we have abundant reason for Thanksgiving in our individual lives, as a State and as a Nation. A sufficient harvest has been gathered and we are assured of sustenance for man and beast. Our people, as a rule have been sober and steadfast, honest and industrious. No other land has been so highly favored as our own. We have still grave problems to solve, but, gaining courage from the experience of the past, we may go forward in hope and confidence, guided and blessed by the Providence of God.

Therefore, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Governor of the state of Michigan, I hereby join the President of the United States in designating Thursday, November 24, 1921, as a day of Thanksgiving and prayer.

Given under my hand and the Great Seal of the State, this tenth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one, and of the Commonwealth the eighty-fifth.

Alex J. Groesbeck, Governor.
By the Governor;
Charles J. DeLand,
Secretary of State.

GEORGE THOMAS DEMPSEY

On Sunday, Nov. 2nd, George Thomas Dempsey passed away at the Samaritan hospital in Bay City. He had been ill for some time at the home of his father in Tawas City, later was taken to the home of James Chambers, and in a few days to the hospital. His condition was not considered critical, but in the hospital Dr. Jones decided an operation was necessary, which located a very serious condition of the bowels for which nothing could be done.

George Thomas Dempsey was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas and was born at the farm home in Tawas township Sept. 9, 1903. When an infant of four months his mother died and he was then taken into the loving care of his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Dempsey, where he was cared for as their own child in a most devoted manner.

He went to school in Grant until graduated from the 9th grade and then attended school in Tawas for a short time. His entire life was spent here except a short time that he made his home in Milwaukee, Wis., with his sister, Mrs. John B. Allen. He was a member of the C. E. for a number of years. His pleasant manner and kindly disposition made him a favorite with his companions.

He leaves to mourn his loss his father, John Thomas of Tawas City, his foster-father, John Dempsey, three sisters, Mrs. Matt Pfeiffer of Tawas City, Mrs. John B. Allen of Milwaukee, Minn., three brothers, Arthur Thomas of Tawas, Henry Dempsey of Grant and Frank Dempsey of Hibbing, Minn. Also many other relatives and a host of friends who mourn his early demise.

The funeral was held from the Hemlock road Baptist church Saturday afternoon at one o'clock. Rev. Cross of the Tawas City M. E. church officiating, and the remains were laid to rest in the Tawas City cemetery beside those of his foster-mother, Mrs. John Dempsey.

The entire community extends sincerest sympathy to the families in their sad bereavement.

PICRIC ACID CLEARS 30,000 MICHIGAN ACRES

Thirty thousand acres of cleared land will be added to Michigan's total as a result of land clearing operations being carried on this fall with picric acid, according to estimates of land clearing specialists at the Michigan Agricultural college. In addition, it is said that farmers of the state have saved $65,000 in the purchase of war salvaged explosive, which has been distributed at about 11 cents a pound lower than the cost of dynamite used in land clearing work.

"We received orders for nearly a million pounds of picric acid" says A. J. McAdams, assistant land clearing specialist at M. A. C. "although Michigan's allotment was only 624,000 pounds. The different state allotments were based on their acreage of cut-over lands and the Michigan total proved insufficient to meet the demand."

"Picric acid is not ordinarily a competitor of dynamite for land clearing purposes, as it actually costs more to manufacture than dynamite. This allotment was turned over by the government at merely the cost of carting, freight and distribution, which made the price unusually low. It was intended originally for military purposes."

Twenty-seven carloads of the explosive were placed in Michigan, 13 in the upper peninsula and fourteen in the northern counties of the lower peninsula.

A SHOW WITHOUT PARALLEL

All previous entries have been exceeded this season by aspirants for honors at the 1921 International Live Stock Exposition to be held at Chicago November 28th to December 3rd. At a period of depression and discouragement in this, as other industries, such a response by the western breeders and feeders of cattle, swine and sheep is distinctly and gratifyingly encouraging, demonstrating not only confidence in the stability of the industry, but that progress has not been interrupted even by the most discouraging set of conditions that has ever involved the industry.

Not only are the entries larger in a numerical sense, but the galaxy of exhibitors has increased. Such mediocrity as was inseparable from early expositions has now been eliminated, the 1921 display in every department, including the grain and hay exhibit, having the assurance of quality and merit in the superlative degree.

The 1921 International Live Stock Exposition will be the most comprehensive and meritorious aggregation of products of the soil ever gathered in a display arena.

ARMISTICE DAY PARTY A BIG SUCCESS

The Armistice day celebration held at the Community house by the American Legion, Audie Johnson Post of this city, last Friday evening was a great success. Several hundred people attended, coming from all parts of the county. Many enjoyed the dancing with the excellent music furnished by the Tunesters orchestra from West Branch with A. Lorenzo, pianist. The vaudeville feature given by a company from Detroit was also much enjoyed.

In the basement was a carnival scene, with booths lining both walls, attended by the American Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, Audie Johnson Post. The booths were appropriately decorated. In the entry of the Community building was reverently suspended a picture of Audie Johnson, draped with flags. It was he after whom the Legion Post of this city is named as a hero from this city who died in action in France.

Altogether the Armistice party was a success and this annual event will be looked forward to each year with pleasure by the general public.

The Tale of a Dog

By MARTHA MACWILLIAMS.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"Wish I had a dollar," from Amos disconsolately.

"Wish I had er little fyce dawg," from Bert plaintively.

"Wish I had a dollar—and a little fyce dawg too," from Jack greedily.

"Woot nobody never git none of 'em," Amos, the pessimist pronounced.

"Why you reckon not?" Bert demanded.

"I know—cause we-all and we-all's folks are poor as Job's turkey, that had to walk twict to throw a shadder," cried Jack the greedy.

"Suppose your wishes came true—what would you do about it?" a voice from above their heads inquired.

Scared into uprightiness, the boys looked about them—they had been lying face down, in the Merton old field, after gorging themselves with blackberries and wild plums. On beyond were gnarled old apple trees, round-headed and opaque with fine netted, half-dead lower branches.

Starveling fruit dotted and blotched the round heads—the turf-circles beneath them, greener and more alive than the main earth surface, told that now for a generation cattle running out had lain there through midday chewing the cud, and bedded there at night.

When the apples "hit," that is to say over-burdened the living branches, orchardless folk came and made them into cider. A big trough dug from the trunk of a poplar lay upside down under the tree nearest the spring, with a rude slatted press, a pen of blocks, and a lever, piled helter skelter beside it.

Apparently the question had been shot from this tree's depths.

Apprehensively the boys sidled toward it, each keeping himself narrow—that is to say, shoulder lapped on the shoulder in front, and lapped in turn by that in the rear. Thus they made a blotchy line—so blotchy the scowl he was singularly handsome, black-browed, olive-skinned with red showing in cheek and lip, and fine night-black hair. Lean, almost lathy, too—no wonder Ellen Martin appealed to him, aside from her pot of money. His pursuit of her, object matrimony, had lasted two full years without ever winning a positive yes or no.

"I felt sure you were lost. Now that I've found you, I mean to take you home," he said masterfully.

"But you won't," Ellen retorted. "My guides here found me first. And they are engaged to take me—by the longest way round."

"I'll save them the trouble, but not let them lose the profit," Gifford answered, thrusting his hand in his pocket.

Ellen's eyes stayed him. "Understand—this is my affair. I keep my word—always," she said. "Now, off with you, while the offing is good."

Cross-examination of the guides after he had swung away proved easy and fruitful. Amos's dollar was translated into circus, coming next week, and heretofore beyond hope.

Bert wanted a little dog playmate to cuddle down outside the blankets and sleep with his head on the pillow—something not to be thought of with the grown-up dogs of grown-up people. Jack said glibly, "Dawg and dollar? Why I—I want 'em—jest 'cause I do." But gentle inquisition brought out that cash would realize his dream of red fire and Roman candles for the Fourth, but over the dog he got red, twisting upon his bare feet until Amos said giggling, "I know—that's ter give Miss Loreeny, our teacher—she says she's so awful lonesome up in her bunjerlo, now her man's done gone."

"Fine. Can we get one right away?" Ellen asked. The guides nodded like a Mandarin chorus. Ole Man Swack, it appeared, had a litter of cockers, fine fat, curly fellows, just weaned. No—he didn't live so fur outen the way—no mor'n er mille—but he was tight as the bark of a tree. Three dollars—think of it!—for a pup you could high put in yer pocket. Yet, he never give Anne a cent of the money for all her trouble feeding and brushing and keeping the kennels clean.

And she was better lookin' 'n his best dawg—nice every way—never mouthed nor muttered—and always ready to slip you apples or peaches—such a God's plenty they had always—and Ole Man wanted five cents a peck for all you took away.

Ole Man, lean, grizzled, stooped, doddering on the surface, brier-sharp below, deserved all his critics had said of him. Talk of a trade made him all but human. Yes—he had fine pups—"plague the luck—that gal Anne had 'em all out walkin'—the rascals were gittin' so fat they near lost breath playing. She couldn't be gone much longer—which way had she gone? Oh, down the medder-road—she was foolish about the creek and posies, and sech. Mought be you could find her ef you traipsed along that way." Ellen smiled, paid the agreed price, and walked off, calling over her shoulder: "Remember I'm to take my pick—and you not quarrel!"

She felt unaccountably tender toward this unseen Anne, visting her as rustic, round and rosy, happy comrade to the puppies, as to the Black-Eyed Susans and hedge roses. It took her all back to come suddenly at a sharp bend of the way upon a blessed damoiselle, fair, golden, lily-slender, clothed in grass green—and held fast in the arms of Mr. Gifford Pennington.

"Tell! Everybody!" Ellen said low and imperatively. The guides, half sensing her motive, obeyed with a will. So when presently she sauntered forward there was only Anne to receive her, help her choose, and thank her courteously for patronage.

"Take the dog to Miss Loreeny—right off," she ordered. Away went boys and dog with a whoop. Then after a brief talk with Anne, Ellen went toward Tree Top. There she walked into the living room, saying evenly to the assembled family: "Let me announce an engagement. Anne, granddaughter of Mr. James Swack, to Gifford Pennington, Esq."

"Formation of Veins of Gold. One of the most interesting of nature's processes is that by which cracks in volcanic rocks are filled in with materials brought up in hot solutions from the bowels of the earth. It is by this means that 'veins' and 'lodes' of gold and silver are formed.

In the eastern part of Iceland there is a locality where such cracks in rocks have been filled in with a pure carbonate of lime which forms clear and beautiful crystals. These crystals called 'Iceland spar,' have a peculiar property of 'polarizing' light, which makes them valuable for use in connection with microscopes and other optical instruments.

Within the last few years deposits of Iceland spar have been discovered in Sweetgrass county, Mont. and in the Warner range near Cedarville, Cal. Efforts are being made to develop them.

Newfoundland. Newfoundland has an area of 42,734 square miles, which is not quite six thousand square miles less than the area of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick or it is just twice the area of Nova Scotia alone. Across the straits of Belle Isle and up the north coast of the mainland is Labrador, which is a dependency of Newfoundland. The exact boundary between Labrador and the province of Quebec has not yet been definitely fixed, but Newfoundland claims, at least, 120,000 square miles on the mainland, which added to the island area makes a total of 162,734, which is almost one-half the area of British Columbia.

"Where is home?" Bert demanded. "Tree Top—the Penningtons live there. I came day before yesterday," she answered.

"Wish I knewed what you been a-huntin'—and what with," Amos ventured.

The girl laughed softly, touched her case and said: "Daren't show you now—they might fly away. But they are butterflies and wasps and things—and they were caught this way," shaking out the net upon the end of the pole and with it imprisoning a vagrant grasshopper. The trio fell upon it, whooping triumph, almost breaking the net and mashing flat its latest captive. Before the boys could untangle themselves they were snatched suddenly upright while a man asked angrily: "What are you ragamuffins doing?" Then, in a different key: "Say, Ellen, have they been bothering you?"

"No—they left that for you," Ellen said ungratefully, making a feint of catching Jack in the recovered net. "Run away, spollsport," she continued. "I never have luck while you stay. Butterflies must feel how you hate them—and keep out of sight."

"I'm bound to hate rivals I am ashamed of," the newcomer, Gifford Pennington, said scowling. In spite of it raised a laugh from whoever was in the tree. Followed the cry: "So you think I'm a witch! Come see your mistake! I'm all alive—and bigger, I do believe, than all three of you put together.

With that dropped into sight a plumpish girl, in knickers, Norfolk jacket and stout walking shoes. A flat, square case was slung across her breast. She carried a long, light pole with a flimsy wisp at the end. "I hunted so hard I slept the minute I got fixed right up there," she said, nodding toward the apple tree. "And I don't know just where I am, now I'm awake. Tell me, please—is this Possum Paradise?"

"No'm, no'm! Hit's t'urrer way! Over ter yan side, a far piece!" three voices shrilled in varying chorus. "Then I must be somewhere else; but where?" she asked with a whimsical smile. "Also lost. Find me and take me home—then we'll see about the wishes."

"Where is home?" Bert demanded. "Tree Top—the Penningtons live there. I came day before yesterday," she answered.

"Wish I knewed what you been a-huntin'—and what with," Amos ventured.
