Start of Smoking.
Smoking was practiced by the most primitive peoples. Tobacco, opium, and hemp were the herbs most used. The invention of the pipe, while obscure as to time, comes from the frequent use of herbs burnt in containers as a sacrifice or for healing purposes. The person to be cured inhaled the smoke. A portable container with a tube for the smoke was a logical development of this practice.

Peculiar "Crop" Rotation.
An unusual rotation of crops, consisting of fish two years and oats one year, is reported by a recent writer in the Scottish Journal of Agriculture. This occurs in some localities in the reclaimed regions along the coast of England and the continent. The fish are raised in shallow pools, which are drained and cultivated every third year.

Some Good in All Humanity.
It is only when we trust people a little that they are able to deceive us; a man must be very bad before he deceives anyone who implicitly believes in him; and a woman, however bad she may be, is incapable of doing it at all.—Exchange.

VARIETIES OF HUMAN FOOD

Decidedly Odd Material Sometimes Employed for the Purpose of Providing Nourishment

It is interesting to consider some of the more or less odd material which man has been led to choose for the purpose of food. Environment, of course, must be a factor in regard to this choice, and necessity also. It is hard to imagine that earth would be used as food, and yet such has been the case in many countries during famine. The Laplanders mix earth with their bread, the Russian uses a "rock flour" and the poorer classes in Hungary (where now nearly every one is poor) are driven occasionally to eat an earth which contains only a trifling proportion of nourishing principles.

The use of seaweed as food is an example of the determining factors of both necessity and environment. It is not a little astonishing to find that a number of seaweeds are really edible and nourishing. Perhaps the best known example is laver, which is a kind of stew made from a weed, an algae. The laver made on the Devonshire coast of England, and to be found in some London shops, is said to be excellent. The sea algae, indeed, prove on analysis to contain a considerable proportion of nitrogenous matter, and as they are usually tender, they are digestible. There are also several sea mosses which are esteemed for their excellent properties. Agar sugar is another example of a sea yielding a nutrient jelly. It is supposed that the edible birds' nest so highly esteemed when prepared in the form of soup by the Chinese has its origin in the birds feeding on agar sugar. On the other hand, it is said that the substance of which the nest is composed is secreted from certain glands which are developed during the nest-building season, but which lose this function afterward.

The Oldest Man in the World

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone! Pieced together they made—what? One of the most perplexing mysteries in the study of human history. Were these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago? Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the conditions of his life. How he killed his food and tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clubbed his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.

H. G. WELLS' "Outline of History"

Now Offered You at One-Third the Original Price

A history that goes back 100,000,000 years—that traces man's rude beginnings 500,000 years ago—that follows him down through the ages to the Babylon of Nebuchadnezzar, the Egypt of Cleopatra, the France of Napoleon, the America of today, through the Great War and on into the future United States of the World—that gives ALL history as one story—that is Wells'.

Not only the history of the world, but the science of the world; the outstanding literature of the world; the philosophy of the world—a vast panorama unveiled before your eyes by the most graphic and painter of modern times.

And The Review of Reviews Too

Wells begins with the dawn of time; before there were men; before there were even reptiles. In great, marvellous strokes he paints the picture, bringing you straight down to 1920. Alexander passes on the screen; and Nero; and Charlemagne and Napoleon; Pericles and Genghis Khan; Constantine and Akbar; Galileo and Marco Polo. Never a dull moment. Never a paragraph that is not crystal clear.

And where Wells stops the Review of Reviews takes up the story. It is the history of the past; the Review of Reviews records and interprets the history of the world today. It is fitting that these two should be yoked together. By making them we are able to offer you an educational course such as you get at no school in the land.

BEST THAT LAWYER CAN DO

Discovery of the Preponderance of Doubt is About All That He Can Hope For.

A member of the bar tells of a young man from the West who, some years ago, was so fortunate as to be enabled to enter the law offices of a well-known New York firm of lawyers. Very soon he was intrusted with a case, although a very simple one. He was asked by the head of the firm, a distinguished jurist known throughout the land, to give an opinion in writing.

It was observed when this opinion was submitted that, with the touching confidence of the novice, the young man had begun with the expression: "I am clearly of opinion."

The head of the firm smiled as his eye caught this and he said: "My son, never state that you are clearly of opinion on a law point. The most you can hope to discover is the preponderance of the doubt."—Exchange.

How many apples did Adam and Eve eat?
Some say Eve eight and Adam two—a total of ten only.
Now we figure the thing out far differently: Eve eight and Adam eight also—total 16.
We think the above figures are entirely wrong.
If Eve eight and Adam 82, certainly the total will be 90.
Scientific men, however, on the strength of the theory that the antediluvians were giants, reason something like this: Eve 81 and Adam 82—total 163.
Wrong again. What could be clearer than if Eve 81 and Adam 812 the total was 893?
I believe the following to be the true solution: Eve 814 Adam and Adam 8124 Eve—8938.

Still another calculation is as follows: If Eve 814 Adam, Adam 81242 oblige Eve, total 82056.—Exchange.

Explaining Lunar Bands.

Puiseux, the distinguished selenographer of the Paris observatory, some time ago reached the conclusion that the curious rays or bands extending in straight lines away from many lunar craters, such as the celebrated tycho, are produced by the deposition of volcanic ashes carried to great distances by the winds that happened to prevail when the eruption occurred. He accounts for the relative narrowness of these bands which are never more than 30 miles broad, although their length is sometimes many hundred miles, by supposing that only the central axis of the deposit has remained, the less dense borders having been destroyed by the denuding forces of the air when the moon had a considerable atmosphere.—Washington Star.

Concerning the Brain.

Whether a person's brain becomes larger after intellectual development is still a disputed question. Smith Ely Jelliffe, an authority on the subject, says: "Weight of brain, however, has no direct relationship with intelligence, as idiots' brains are known to have weighed just as much as those of the ablest men. Intellectual capacity consists in the great multiplicity of nerve cell connections. While it is true that a number of celebrated men of recognized brain power have had large brains, there are many more of equal capacity whose brain weights have not been remarkable."

Obituary

The death angel visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Berry early last Saturday morning and claimed little Ada Aclista, their youngest daughter. She had been suffering with whooping cough for the past two weeks, the other children in the home having been also afflicted. Dr. Smith of Whittemore was called before any real danger was apparent and the conditions seemed to improve rapidly, so much so that she became playful, then suddenly changed for the worse and she expired without a moment's warning, sleeping peacefully away. Short services were held at the home Monday morning and a number of their friends accompanied the parents and remains to Taft, where they were met by relatives and left on the train for South Branch, where funeral services were conducted by Rev. Grabil of Reno. Interment was made in the South Branch cemetery. The bereaved family have the sympathy of many friends in their sad loss. Ada Aclista, second daughter of Charles and Martha Berry, was born in Reno township, Isoco county, Mich., Oct. 20, 1920, and died Feb. 4, 1922, aged one year, three months and 15 days. Frail and delicate from her birth she seemed ill fitted to battle with the storms of his lower world. She appeared more angelic than human and soon went to be with the angels, leaving besides her parents three brothers and one sister to mourn her loss. Dear little Ada Aclista, We miss thee, darling; But the celestial angels are with thee; Sweet peace is thine. Those few short days we watched you fade And gently pass away; Yet often in our hearts we prayed That you could with us stay. Oh, baby dear, how we will miss you, In the home a vacant chair; But there's one great thought consoling We will meet you over there. 'Tis hard indeed to give you up But we must be resigned, To Him who is too wise to err, Too good to be unkind.

Card of Thanke

We wish to tender our heartfelt thanks to our friends for their kind assistance during our bereavement in the loss of our darling. To the pastor for his comforting words, for the floral offerings and also to those who assisted with their teams. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Berry.

The Christian Endeavor held a very interesting meeting last Sunday evening, the leaders being the young men of the society. The different phases of the lesson study were presented with illustrations by John Follett and T. Barnard, and with special musical numbers by Lloyd Murray, Kenneth Barnard and T. White the meeting was an exceptionally good one. The little three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Graves was called home last Thursday to the beautiful land where pain and disease enter not. The little one had suffered since birth with an incurable malady and although the young parents had consulted specialists, hoping for a cure, nothing could be done. The funeral services were held at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon, Rev. Wickstrom officiating. The beautiful floral offerings expressed the sympathy of friends and neighbors in their sorrow.

Death of Mrs. John D. Webb

The deepest sorrow prevailed in the community last Sunday when it was known that Mrs. John Webb had passed away at 6 o'clock a. m. Lobar pneumonia had developed in a few hours Saturday night and in spite of all that loving hands could do death came swiftly. Mrs. Webb—Luella as we all knew her—has lived in this community nearly all her life. She was a graduate of our school and of the county normal and taught school three terms, two near Mason, Mich., and the third in the Londo school in our township. She was married in June, 1920, to John D. Webb, who with a 12 day old son, her father, mother, three sisters and four brothers, with a host of other relatives and friends are left to mourn the passing of this beautiful soul from our midst. Her sweet, gentle ways and true Christian character had endeared her to all who knew her. She was a member of the M. E. church and a teacher in the Sunday school. The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, Rev. E. L. Hughes officiating. The beautiful floral offerings, the church filled to overflowing with loved ones, fellow teachers, pupils and sorrowing friends, offered mute testimony of the love and sympathy of the sorrowing community. The remains were laid to rest in Evergreen cemetery.
