Mrs. Milo Stevens advertised some geese for sale in last week's Herald and for the sale column. She writes: "The very first the paper came out we had three calls and the geese are sold, so you need not insert the adv again." Moral: If you have anything for sale, advertise it in the Herald.

The Herald was in error last week in stating that a civil service examination would be held at Whittemore on March 11. The examination will be held in Bay City on that date, as well as in several other cities. Candidates for the Whittemore postmastership will probably take the examination at Bay City.

The fourth number on the Tawas City lyceum course was fairly well attended Thursday evening, considering the weather and condition of the roads and walks. J. Lani Pa and his Hawaiian musicians gave a very pleasing program and earned the hearty applause which they received. After the entertainment the company furnished music for a dance and as they had an open date at this time they were persuaded to remain and furnish the music for a dancing party on Friday evening also.

Fourteen of the girl friends of Mabel Myles gave her a surprise party at her home on Tuesday evening, the occasion being her 14th birthday. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games and a fine lunch was served, including a big birthday cake. Mabel received some very nice remembrances of the day from her guests.

On Feb. 22 of this year the date might be written with a combination of figures which cannot be used again for 100 years. The combination of five twos, 2-22-22, will not occur again until Feb. 22, 2022. In fact, no combination of five figures of the same denomination can be used until Jan. 11, 2011, when the figures 1-11-11 can be used.

Are you a subscriber to the Herald, or are you reading the one you borrowed from your neighbor? There are a few people who are so small and stingy that they borrow their neighbor's paper week after week and never even offer to go 50-50 with him on the subscription. They may save a couple dollars a year, but they lose more than that in the respect of their friends.

ELECTION PRIMARIES WILL BE LATER THIS YEAR

Due largely to complaints that a large number of people are away on their vacations during August, the last legislature changed the date for holding the primary election from August to September. The department of state, taking time by the forelock, has issued the following set of instructions for candidates, those who are thinking of becoming candidates and those who may wish to induce friends to become candidates for office at the general primaries which will be held Tuesday, September 12.

The last day for filing nominating petitions is Saturday, Aug. 12. Candidates for the office of United States senator, governor, lieutenant governor or congressman at large must file with secretary of state nominating petitions signed by a number of registered voters equal to not less than two per cent nor more than four per cent of the number of votes cast for secretary of state at the last election.

Candidates for district offices must file petitions bearing not less than 2 nor more than 4 per cent of the number of votes cast by their party for secretary of state in the district.

Candidates for county offices must file petitions containing not less than 2 nor more than 4 per cent of the number of votes cast for secretary of state by their party in the county.

The residence, street number and date of signing of each elector must be shown on the petition.

It is unlawful to sign more than one petition for the same office.

No affidavit of party affiliation is required with nominating petitions. To avoid confusion and insure the placing of candidate's name upon the ballots petitions should be filed early.

Devastating Storm Does Untold Damage

Electric Light, Telegraph and Telephone Service Stopped, and Thousands of Trees Ruined by Disastrous Weight of Ice and Sleet

The most devastating storm in the history of this section of the state began Tuesday evening with snow, sleet and rain, and continued through Wednesday and Thursday. The sleet and rain froze to the trees and wires as it fell and Thursday morning the streets and yards containing shade trees were a tangle of broken limbs, telephone and electric wires.

All during Wednesday and Wednesday night the crash of falling limbs could be heard constantly, and hardly a tree of any description escaped damage from the heavy coating of ice. Shade trees which have been the pride of the community for years were completely denuded of branches or so badly damaged that they will have to be cut down, as their beauty is irremediably gone. The largest and most beautiful trees were the first to go, their age and the brittleness of their limbs making them ready victims of the enormous weight imposed on them.

The damage to electric light, telephone and telegraph wires and poles is immeasurable.

Along the line of the railroad and Western Union wires and poles are down for miles at a stretch and it will take a great deal of time and thousands of dollars in money to replace them in their former efficient condition.

All communication with the outside world was cut off and it may be some time before service is resumed, as the local lines are also badly damaged and it will take a small army to replace poles and wires and get them in working order. Employees of the Consumers Power Co. and of the Michigan State Telephone Co. got onto the job early Thursday morning to repair the damage and resume service as soon as possible, but with the limited means at their command were handicapped in their work, especially as wires were continually breaking, and as fast as they were repaired in one place they would let go somewhere else.

Naturally all trains were delayed, and with telegraph service out of commission the trains were compelled to run entirely by time card. Under these conditions a train was compelled to wait at its meeting point for the train from the opposite direction, no matter how late that train might be. All other service on the rail road was practically at a standstill, much of the work at the shops being held up for lack of electric power.

The public schools were closed on Thursday on account of the darkness and lack of electricity.

Had it not been for the great and irreparable damage done, people might have reveled in the beauty of the trees and bushes encased in their glittering coat of ice. The smallest twigs on the trees and even weeds and grass were coated with ice until nearly a dozen times their ordinary size, and made a picture that would have been worthy of the greatest painters. But their beauty was their destruction, as the heavy weight of the ice caused damage that is said by boys that fought in the late war to fairly represent the havoc wrought on the trees in France by the Boche shells. It will take many years to replace the trees destroyed in a couple of days by the recent storm.

OF COURSE WE'RE LATE

In common with all other users of electric current, the Herald has been handicapped by the cutting off of the current due to breaking of wires by the storm.

As our linotype is both heated and driven by electricity, we were unable to use this machine after Wednesday, and were forced to revert to the old method of setting type by hand. Being somewhat out of practice it has been a slow process and we have been forced to omit some matter for which the copy arrived late.

There is no assurance as to how soon electric service will be resumed and we would request that copy be sent in early for next week. We like to get the Herald out on our publication date and not have to say, or have anyone else say, "Of course we're late."

FARMERS' INSTITUTE PROGRAM

The Iosco County Farmers' Institute will be held at Whittemore on March 1 and 2 and at Hale on March 3.

The program on Wednesday will begin at 10 a. m., when G. W. Putnam will speak on "Standardization of field crops for economic production." At 2 o'clock p. m. Mr. Putnam will talk on "The place of legumes in economic crop production." At 8 p. m. there will be music by local talent and an address by Rev. Fields on the subject "The four square home."

On Thursday at 10 a. m. D. Williams, state speaker, will talk on "Michigan's possibilities with live stock" and again at 2 p. m. on "Silage and the dairy cow." At the Hale town hall on Friday at 2 p. m. G. W. Putnam will speak on "Standardization of farm crops for economic production," and at 8 p. m. D. Williams will give his address on "Michigan's possibilities with live stock."

The scalp was cut open for about six inches and needed several stitches to close the wound. The wound was dressed and the boy is resting easily, and his parents are thankful that he escaped without a fractured skull.

SUDDEN DEATH OF JOHN ANSCHUETZ

East Tawas was shocked and grieved Tuesday morning to learn of the death of John Anschuetz, an old and respected resident of this city. Mr. Anschuetz went to work Tuesday morning apparently as well as ever, and shortly after was taken with a paralytic stroke. He was taken to his home, but lived only about thirty minutes after the stroke.

Mr. Anschuetz has been in the employ of the D. & M. Ry. for many years and for several years has been freight agent at the D. & M. depot here.

Funeral services will be held from the family residence Friday afternoon at 1:30 and later from the Zion Lutheran church in Tawas City. A full obituary will appear in next week's issue.

DEATH OF WHITMAN BABY

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. Alson Whitman of this city passed away last Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. The cause of death being pneumonia and the little fellow was ill but three days before death came. The baby was born March 20, 1921, and was eleven months old. He was named Alson Algoris but was known to relatives as little Jimmie.

Funeral services were held from the home last Sunday afternoon, Rev. Edinger of Christ church officiating. Besides the mother and father there are three brothers and five sisters, all of whom were present for the funeral. Five aunts of the baby, viz., Mesdames Louis LaBerge, Short, Bortle, Laurer and Thayer, all of Long Lake, were also present.

A TERRIBLE STORM

The storm on Wednesday did serious damage to the beautiful trees of East Tawas. A heavy rain fell all day Wednesday and during the night, and before evening the trees were covered with a coating of ice, the weight of the ice bending the branches to the ground. A slight wind in the afternoon caused great limbs and branches of trees to fall, strewn the sidewalks and the streets. The wind became stronger in the evening and large trees could be heard crashing to the ground all evening.

Walking way very dangerous. In places people coming home in the afternoon had to wade in deep water and slush. The trees along some streets were ruined and the telephone wires were broken down in places. In the evening most of the city lights were put out of commission, the electric light wires having broken down on account of the storm.

The trees presented a beautiful appearance, however, and those who thought of taking views during Wednesday afternoon and Thursday were fortunate enough to get some beautiful pictures. Thursday morning the people of East Tawas looked out upon a world of ice which reminded one of the glacial period of long ago.

HARD TO CREDIT THIS STORY
If True, However, It Shows the Remarkable Subtlety of the Mind of the Oriental.

One ingenious if dishonest native of India turned his dark skin to excellent account. One of the European examiners of Calcutta university, says Lord Frederic Hamilton in his book "Days Before Yesterday," told me that there had been a great deal of trouble about the examination papers; by some means or other the native students always managed to obtain what we may term "advance" copies of the papers. My informant had accordingly devised a scheme to stop the leakage. Instead of having the papers printed in the usual fashion he called in the services of a single white printer on whom he could rely. The white printer received the papers early on the morning of the day designated for the examination and duly set them up on a hand press inside the building. He had one assistant, a coolie who was clad only in loin cloth and turban; by no possibility could he conceal any papers about his person.

In spite of these precautions, however, it soon became clear at the examination that some of the students had a previous knowledge of the questions. How had they managed it? Eventually it appeared that the coolie, taking advantage of the momentary absence of the white printer, had whipped off his loin cloth, sat down on the "form" and then replaced his solitary garment. When he was obliged to strip on going out the printing ink did not show on his dark skin; and all that he had to do was to sit down on a large sheet of white paper for the questions to be printed off on it. Then, with the aid of a mirror, the students could easily read them. The oriental mind is subtle.

CHINESE BUY OFF BRIGANDS
Bandit Chieftains, When They Get Too Powerful, Are Dealt With in Peculiar Fashion.

Custom has prescribed a conventional solution of the problem of brigandage in China. When a brigand has gone beyond the orthodox limits in the terrorization of the region in which he operates, the government sets out to "suppress" him. It does so, in the usual way, by bargaining. Troops are moved, though not too close, and negotiations are opened with the bandit leader. He offers to go the way of good citizenship in exchange for an appointment as governor of a province. The governor offers to make him a general. They compromise on his appointment as brigade commander with a station rich and ripe for the plucking. When negotiations have been satisfactorily consummated, the government troops are brought up. They launch an attack upon the bandits, fire into the air for a few minutes and then withdraw. Official proclamation is made; the bandits have been dispersed and order restored. And the former bandit chieftain finds that "squeeze" is far more profitable than robbery—and much less hazardous.

Such is the history of not a few of the outstanding notables in contemporary Chinese public life.

His Ailment Diagnosed.
"Water!" yelled the fervent orator. "Aqua, aqua!" he shouted, lapsing into Latin, his mother tongue. "Aqua pura! The greatest gift of Nature to thirsty man! What would the ocean be without water? Answer me that? What?"

That question had never struck his audience before. They pondered in silence. "Water!" cried the orator again. "What would Niagara falls be without water?"

Another stupendous question. His audience stirred restlessly; his arguments were too much for them. "Of what use," screamed the speaker, "would our bathtubs be without clean, beautiful water?"

As one man the audience turned and left the hall, perhaps to consider outside the orator's brainy conundrums. But one ignorant fellow said to another: "That 'n has water on the brain!" —Houston Post.

The Shapes of Eggs.
An expert recently entertained the Zoological society of London with a mathematical discussion of the differences in the shape of eggs. A few eggs, like those of the owl and the tortoise, are spherical or nearly so; a few, like the grebe's or the cormorant's are elliptical, with symmetrical ends; the great majority, like the hen's, are ovoid, or blunter at one end than at the other.

CAN DO WONDERS IN CANOE
Eskimos Are Literally Part of the Frail Craft Which They Have Named a "Kayak."

Built of sealskin, with the fur inside, stretched over a framework of wood, the Eskimo canoe—called a "kayak"—is only about ten feet long, and often not two feet wide at its widest part, tapering "to nothing" at both ends. The greatest width of the kayak is at the middle. Here there is a combing which slightly rises above the deck. The rest of the deck, save this hole just large enough to admit of the passage of the body of a man, is covered with sealskin.

When the Eskimo goes out in a kayak, he puts on a special sealskin, waterproof shirt over his regular clothing. With very great care he steps into the kayak, sliding his feet over the tender bottom until he is seated on the wooden seat which is only the thickness of the wood above the bottom. Then he draws over the combing the end of his shirt, which tightly fits the combing part of the kayak. Experts of Greenland learn to turn a somersault in a canoe and come up again on even keel, an exchange states. But the best of the Eskimos of Greenland are not content with merely being able to right the kayak when it overturns. They practice until they are able to paddle the kayak in such a way that they shoot ahead on their course even as they turn that dangerous somersault in the sea.

POOR PLACE TO HIDE MONEY
French Peasant Now Convinced That Shotgun Is Unreliable as a Bank of Deposit.

The ingenuity of French peasants in hiding money has surpassed itself in the case of a man near Lorien who received a 1,000 franc note and a 500 franc note in payment for produce. He hid them in the muzzles of his double-barreled shotgun, believing that would be the last place thieves would search for money.

He made a mistake, however, in not taking his wife into the secret. A neighbor called a few days later, in the absence of the man of the house, and asked for the loan of the gun to get a hare. The hare escaped and when the peasant came in that evening his wife remarked that the neighbor must be a very bad shot.

"Why?" the peasant asked. "Because he used both charges of your gun on a hare without hitting it." "My shotgun?" inquired the peasant with a gasp, at the same time making for the corner where the weapon hung. The civil court of the department of Morbihan will have to decide the delicate point of law whether the neighbor is responsible for the loss of the 1,500 francs.

Few Slang Phrases Last.
The leniency with which some school teachers look on the use of slang, as reported in various interviews, may shock those of an age to have secured their idea of correct English from the McGuffey series of readers. It is true that the selections composing those readers were of an era wherein the language was at variance with what is heard today. It may have been stilted, but it did not corrupt the mind of the pupil. In fact, many persons got from the old-fifth and sixth readers their knowledge of good literature. There was not a word resembling slang in the books.

It is true that slang is expressive. That is why it is used. Yet much of it quickly passes out of use because it is overworked. Few words suffer a like fate, though occasionally under stress of circumstances a word of creditable origin is repeated to the point where it becomes necessary to discard it because it is "shopworn." —Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

Express Dragon Flies.
When we come to birds, we find many very high speeds. Swifts have been known to overtake an airplane in flight. Their speed has been calculated to exceed one hundred miles an hour sometimes. The racing pigeon has on several occasions done short journeys at sixty miles an hour. The golden plover is very speedy, but his turning, twisting flight makes it difficult to time him accurately over any distance. The pheasant, though he does not look a very rapid flier, can do 45 miles an hour.

Among insects, the most rapid is probably the dragon-fly, who does as much as 80 miles an hour in his swift dashes from place to place. The bee is capable of traveling at a speed of 20 miles an hour, and he achieves it by beating his wings more than 600 times a second—sixty beats for every yard he travels.

Gauges Food by Cans.
Dingley, who hails from the West and is merely a sojourner in the big city, sees all sorts of things to make him wonder. "Out where I come from when you ask a waiter about the slowness of the service he always tells you 'It's on the fire.' But it's different here. A few evenings ago I ordered pork and apple sauce. The pork came in due time, but the apple sauce was missing. I inquired about it and the waiter replied: 'I'll have it for you in a minute. Just opening a fresh can.' 'If there's anything that doesn't come in a can, the New Yorker thinks it isn't fresh, apparently. I'm afraid to order eggs for fear I'll learn they come in a can, too.' —New York Sun.

Painting Coffee Beans.
One of the flourishing industries in Rio de Janeiro is that of coffee painting and polishing the raw coffee beans being shipped preparatory to shipment to South America where they will be roasted. The beans are first washed and then polished with a fine emery and graphite, ochre and other materials and are disposed of when the beans are polished. —Brooklyn Eagle.

Love.
Into our work for others we can take nothing greater than love, for love is a wonderful guide and teacher. Skill and experience are worth little without it, and toil and sacrifice never could make up for its lack. There is courage and healing, strength and inspiration in the mere fact that someone loves us and cares for what we are doing.

Ballroom Dancing.
The earliest form of ballroom dancing was the quadrille started about 1815. This was followed by the lancers, invented in 1836. The polka was adopted in 1835. The waltz, which came from Germany, in 1735 did not become popular as a ballroom dance till later. The two-step is an American invention.

Medical authorities assert that home brew is causing many cases of gastritis, but it isn't gastritis that makes a man spin around like a top and then try to climb a telephone pole.

Tawas City, Mich., February 24, 1922

This great willingness to welcome immigrants who are ready to go to the farm makes us wonder why the native Americans do not go after the best jobs in the country themselves.

Sombody is proposing road work to aid unemployment. That may help in some cases, but most of our unemployed are demanding roller-top desk jobs, with red-headed stenographers and free gum.

A small boy returning from a visit to the movies was run over by an automobile and killed, which regrettable incident will no doubt be seized upon as another argument for suppression of the movies.

Buy a Million Squirrel Skins. One merchant in Siberia has been known to purchase as many as a million squirrel skins in a single season.

FROM a silver-spoon and soft-mattress existence, Stanford Broughton suddenly is confronted with the alternative of looking for a job or, another kind of quest, try and locate a mysterious legacy left him by an eccentric grandfather.

He does not know the character of the property, but the grandfather's directions say that it is somewhere between the 105th and 110th degrees of longitude west from Greenwich, and the 35th and 40th degrees north latitude.

When he finds it he will be able to identify it by the presence of a girl with brown hair and blue eyes, a small mole on her left shoulder, a piebald horse and a dog with a split face—half black and half white. He is game and he starts to look for the combination. The troubles he has in locating it and the adventures and dangers through which he passes in securing possession of the property, also the romantic incidents in which the girl is a figure, make up this very fascinating narrative.

It is Mr. Lynde's habit to tell stories like this, and there are readers in multitudes who would be sorry to have him depart from the custom.

DAY OF GAYETY IN SICILY

At Festival Time the People Give Themselves Up to All Forms of Amusement.

Booths and barrows lined the streets selling fireworks and drinks, torrone made of new almonds and honey, knives and ribbons; and alternating with the merchandise and drinks were the gambling stands. There were a dozen roulette tables, silver horses whirling around over the numbered courses where you put your soldo, and bright arrows with painted feathers that stopped whirling sooner or later and left a light tip resting on the lucky number. Crowds of people were putting their money down, mostly little boys, it seemed, writes Stark Young in the North American Review. The rockets were firing from every direction, with reports like bombs, unbelievably loud, to appease the Sicilian liking for mere noise. Now and then firecrackers in bunches were thrown from the roofs of the churches into the little stone streets, with a rattling and detonation like a bombardment. Beside the Duomo the band from Syracuse was playing airs from the operas. Meantime the deep blue of the early night had fallen over the walls and over the country dropping down toward the sea and rising on the other hand toward the Saracen castle above the town. A few pale stars were out and a slender moon, almost past, was shining. The whole piazza was sweet with the perfume of the jessamine that ran along the front of the house next the church, incredible sweetness in that soft, blue air. And everywhere were the voices, deep and bright.

SAFER THAN ANY STEEL VAULT

Bank of England Lowers Its Bullion Into Well at Close of Business Each Day.

In one sense the Bank of England is the safest bank in the world. Its unique protection is due to an artesian well in the bank. This well supplies the bank with its water independently of the rest of the city; it is 400 feet deep and supplies 7,000 cubic feet of water an hour.

The bullion department, which holds the ingots of precious metal, is nightly submerged in several feet of water by the action of special machinery. Anyone attempting to rob the bank, then, must be an expert swimmer and diver. In the morning the water is pumped away and the ingots are readily accessible again.

However, the water still protects the other departments of the bank. Its supply is almost unlimited, the bank knows, and its protection is practically absolute when it is used. The bank has very delicate machinery arranged so that even the lifting of a coin from a pile will release a catch which, in turn, releases a supply of water.—Detroit News.

Pithy Paragraphs.

Whatever Broadway may have been in its day, it is a thoroughfare of aliens now, and it has no day, comparatively speaking, but only the night, when the Dr. Kennicotts of the inland towns walk with their more or less restless women folk, and try to believe they have struck oil in an emotional sense, and that they are having the time of their lives.—Louis Dodge.

Disraeli said that every one likes flattery, but with royalty you lay it on with a trowel; and nations are like royalty, only more so; they will swallow anything about themselves while wondering at the credulity of other nations.—A. Clutton-Brock.

That is just the way in this world; an enemy can partly ruin a man, but it takes a good natured invidious friend to complete the thing and make it perfect.—Samuel L. Clemens.

Many things pass in handwriting, which print "shows up." Print is so impertinent—flinging open the door of a little room, where, perhaps, two lovers are communing, and saying to the public: "Have a look at them—these great people in love! You see they are just as silly as little people."—Ellen Terry.

Stamp Profitearing Slow.

The lowest Lilliputians in the whole hierarchy of international finance are probably the stamp peddlers. There is hardly a person who was born on the other side who is not dabbling in some angle of foreign exchange, but the stamp men seem willing to operate on the most fractional margin of profit. Up and down the market streets of the Italian sections they go every Saturday night, displaying stamps that were made in Italy. They offer them to shoppers, generally following a boy who sells writing paper. No doubt they are to encourage early replies to letters in which they are inclosed. Occasionally a transaction involving a half-sheet or so of stamps may be seen, so that small amounts of money may also be sent in this way to friends on the other side.—New York Sun.

MICKIE, THE PRINTER'S DEVIL

SUNG HIS OWN COMPOSITIONS

Thomas Moore, Famous Irish Poet, Was Surely Exceptionally Endowed by Nature.

Thomas Moore, Ireland's favorite minstrel poet, was born in rooms over a Dublin corner grocery in 1779, and died a baronet, the "pote of all circles and the darlin' of his own," the idol of two continents, in 1852.

For the last thirty years of his life he lived in a cottage at Sloperston, near Devizes, Wiltshire, where he devoted himself to all manner of literary efforts. His works include not only delightful short poems of "The Last Rose of Summer" type, but also poems to form a quarto volume, such as "Lalla Rookh," for which Moore received 3,000 guineas ($15,000), and they include prose of all kinds, a series of humorous letters, biographies and even a "History of Ireland."

Moore himself was a beautiful singer and rendered his own compositions often in public, it is related. After the tragic death of his daughter he refused to sing publicly again. His daughter, the darling of his heart, was leaning over the balustrade one night to throw a kiss to her father as he was going out to dine, when she lost her balance, fell and was killed.

"The Last Rose of Summer" was one of Moore's most exquisite creations. It appears in a collection of "Irish Melodies," written for Power, a London music publisher, on a contract to supply a considerable number of songs for a volume entitled as above. The work was started in 1807 and was not completed till 1834. "The Last Rose of Summer," however, was among the early productions, and is therefore easily more than 100 years old.

Bret Harte, American poet and novelist, was born at Albany, N. Y., August 25, 1839. While a youth he went to California, where, several years later he founded the Overland Monthly in San Francisco. In 1870 he was made professor of recent literature in the University of California, but resigned and returned to New York the following year. He was United States consul at Creford, Germany, 1878-80, and at Glasgow, 1880-85, and afterward lived in England. Among his many works are "The Luck of Roaring Camp," "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," "Condensed Novels," etc., "The Heathen Chinee," "Poems," "Stories of the Sierras," "Tales of the Argonauts," "Gabriel Conroy," "Thankful Blossom," "Two Men of Sandy Bar," "California Stories," "A Millionaire of Rough and Ready," "A Drift From Redwood Camp" and "A Phyllis of the Sierras."

Her Daddy Was All Right.

When I was twelve years old I called upon Mary (aged eleven) one Sunday evening. I was all dressed up and had pilfered an armful of mother's cherished lilacs from the garden. I stole out the alley gate, traversed Mary's back yard and she met me at the kitchen door. We sat on the back steps. I restrained a strong impulse to see when Mary said, "Father is coming, I think." He was a gruff, bad man. When he saw us I was terror-stricken. What he said was, "How's the boy tonight?" and he took us both in the house and sent little brother after ice cream and Mary's mother cut a cake. So I wasn't kicked out by an irate father, after all; in fact, he still likes me and often jokes about the lilacs and the kitchen steps, although another young man walked up the aisle with Mary.—Chicago Journal.

Doubtful Ending.

"Has your story a happy ending?" "Well, that depends on the view-point."

"What do you mean?" "Some might call it a happy ending and some might not. The lovers got married in the last chapter."

Man With Horns.

"A native with horns like those of a springbok, has been brought here from the Rand," writes a Johannesburg correspondent of London Tit-Bits. "The horns began to develop when he was nine years of age, and, despite frequent cutting, continue to grow. In every other respect the man is normal. It is highly probable, in view of the medical interest in the case, that he will be sent to Europe."

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

Synthetic Chemistry, After Learning the Secret of Making Royal Purple, Succeeds in Producing All the Colors of the Rainbow

(Told in Eight Sketches) By JOHN RAYMOND

No. V COLOR

In the dim ages of history when man first felt the desire for beauty, traders searched the world for dyestuffs, jewels, perfumes, spices and precious woods. The risk of these voyages was great and only princes or nobles could afford the fruits of ventures to the far corners of the world. No man of humble origin could aspire to the rich crimsoned lines, the Royal Purple of ancient Tyre, retailing at $600 a pound. Royal Purple is an age-old insignia of aristocracy. This dye was secreted by a small shellfish on the Eastern coast of the Mediterranean and here the enterprising merchants of Tyre formed a dye monopoly equaled only by the German Cartel.

A bit of the whitish liquid secreted by this mollusk, if spread upon a cloth and exposed to the air and sunlight turns first green, next blue and then purple. If washed with an alkali soap it becomes the magnificent crimson of the Cardinals and Princes of the Catholic Church. Tyrian purple vanished from the marts of the world with the fall of Tyre.

Synthetic chemistry learned the secret of making Royal Purple as, indeed, it learned to manufacture indigo, the same deep blue that may be seen today in museums, the winding sheets of Egyptian mummies. It was an achievement to snatch its distinctive color from royalty and to rival the best vegetable indigo of the ancients but modern chemistry has gone far beyond that. Today any kind of dye found in nature can be made in the laboratory. Indeed, among the 900 shades and colors being manufactured there are tints that it would be difficult to discern in the rainbow.

These colors all come from coal tar but after it is understood that coal tar is the quintessence of the forests of untold ages the feat does not appear to be so marvellous.

And still for centuries this country has been wasting vast quantities of the precious material. In fact, the Royalty Asks Favors. Royalty is not averse to asking favors of great men, and when the prince consort of Holland learned that Sir Charles Macara, the "cotton king," was a friend of Mr. Carnegie, he asked if he would use his influence with the millionaire toward getting an endowment fund established for the upkeep of the great palace of peace.

All Along the Line. No doubt the millionaires also believe that they are oppressed by the multi-millionaires.

One difference between the speaker of the English house of commons and the lord chancellor, who occupies a similar position in the house of lords, is that while the speaker cannot take part in debates and can vote only when there is a tie, the lord chancellor is entitled to speak and vote on all occasions.

CHRISTMAS TREES WILL LAST

Little Danger That in Years to Come the Children Will Be Deprived of Joy.

Don't join any gloom group that may be trying to form a society for the prevention of cruelty to Christmas trees, advises a writer in the Kansas City Star.

The forests are there to be used, and if, as we utilize the trees, we make it possible by replanting for our children and our children's children to have trees, there is no reason for not having Christmas trees as well as all the lumber we need.

That is the way the scientific forester, the man who grows trees like the farmer grows wheat, looks at this matter of Christmas trees.

While there is still some regrettable ruthless cutting of spruce and fir for the Christmas tree market in northern states, many Christmas trees are now a by-product of the forests. There are small trees in every properly managed woodlot that must be sacrificed so that the others may have room to grow. These make fine Christmas trees.

Christmas trees are also being raised in nurseries. Baby spruce and fir trees are planted by man so that the babies and children of man can have Christmas trees in their nurseries. And a Christmas tree is usually between the ages of five and ten years, just about the age of the child who enjoys Christmas most. In the future years, it is expected that nearly all of our Christmas trees will be raised by nurserymen from the forests.

DON'T SWALLOW THEIR YOUNG

Popular Idea Concerning Snakes Is Not Borne Out by the Observations of Scientists.

Snakes don't swallow their young. The ventral scales on a female snake are controlled by a muscle just behind the head. Ordinarily they are horizontal, but when the mother snake scents danger she contracts the muscle on the back of her neck, which immediately brings the scales to a vertical position. This opens a slit under the bottom jaw, and at the same time loosens the abdominal skin, thus forming a pouch. The younger ones dart through the slit and into the pouch, and this is what has led people to think they take refuge in the mother snake's stomach.

It requires careful and skilled dissection to detect the pouch, because the skin shrinks when a snake is killed. When the poison gland is removed it tightens the skin under the neck, and the youngsters can't get into the pouch. In the female snake, between the pharynx and the gullet, there is a peculiar, lid-like valve, and anything passing this valve can't possibly return.

Cat Took Nap in Limousine.

The cat that looked at a king was only slightly more ambitious than a Hyde Park tabby that took possession of a limousine standing by the curb, remarks the Chicago Post. The cat, a bedraggled stray, was pussyfooting through the rain of one of the recent cold days, evidently in search of a comfortable place for a nap. It passed by doorways and fliters as not up to its aristocratic demands, then spied the limousine standing at the curb and promptly decided to move in.

Unfortunately for the cat, the doors of the car were closed. Tabby found this out after a thorough inspection that started at the left side running board, included the top and then the right side running board. Finally the cat tried the front, but the windshield was closed, too. Then tabby picked out a spot on the hood that still retained some heat from the engine, curled up and went to sleep.

Tabby held possession until the owner appeared.

Weeds.

What hidden virtue is in these things that it is granted them to sow themselves with the wind, and to grapple the earth with this unmitigable stubbornness, and to flourish in spite of obstacles, and never to suffer blight beneath any sun or shade, but always to mock their enemies with the same wicked luxuriance? It is truly a mystery and also a symbol. There is a sort of sacredness about them. Perhaps, if we could penetrate nature's secrets, we should find what we call weeds are more essential to the well being of the world than the most precious fruit or grain. This may be doubted, however, for there is an unmistakable analogy between these wicked weeds and the bad habits and sinful propensities which have overrun the moral world; and we may as well imagine that there is good in one as in the other.—Hawthorne.

Domestic Stuff.

"Oh, goodness gracious mercy, I'm most distracted! I've looked for it everywhere and I simply can't find it!" wailed Mrs. Worrylotte.

"Why don'tcha look where you're sure yuh didn't put it?" inquired Worrylotte, who knew his woman.
