DRUGGISTS, OLD AND NEW

Vast Changes Have Taken Place in the Business of the Apothecary, Through the Years.

Thousands of Americans who love the study of old London were interested in the news story that the "Worshipful Company of Apothecaries," which for 200 years has had its shop, had let the property pass into new hands. It was stated that "almost next door to Water lane was the Blackfriar's theater, where Shakespeare and Burbage played." The assumption of a head writer that "Shakespeare may have patronized the place" was inaccurate. Shakespeare died in 1616. The land on which the shop was built was not acquired till 1633. The building then erected was destroyed in the great fire and rebuilt in 1786. But it is possible that Shakespeare did have the services of the Apothecarles somewhere, for they were incorporated by James I, in 1606, ten years before his death, observes the Brooklyn Eagle.

Clashes between the Apotheearies and the College of Physicians, incorporated in 1518, and the Barber Surgeons, incorporated in 1540, led to the final decision of the house of lords in favor of the Apothecaries in the case of Rose vs. the College of Physicians. It was held that "the duty of the apothecary consists not merely of compounding and dispensing, but also in directing and ordering the remedies employed in the treatment of diseases." Later laws have somewhat modified this principle. But the apothecary's shop, commonly known as a "chemist's" shop in London, is today very different from what was known in the time of James I. It sells a lot of things that are not drugs.

And here in America, where in most of our states a druggist who advises a given remedy is technically guilty of "practicing medicine without a license," the demoralization of the trade has gone much farther. Two-thirds of the profits from the average retail stand come from candies, cigars, soaps, cosmetics, soda water, camera supplies, a hundred and one little luxuries. Drug as drugs pay a fine profit when they are sold, but the sales are small. Of course patent medicines still have a considerable following. It would be hard to find from Maine to California a single drug store that deals exclusively in drugs. Also there is some reason for the optimistic reflection that the bathtub and sanitary living have made fewer drugs essential to human comfort.

Sign of Opulence.

Different individuals have different ambitions. Probably one of the most unique is that of a wife of a friend of mine who has been an earnest helpmate of her husband for a number of years. She has helped him climb the ladder of fame and moderate fortune. In talking about her pet desire the other day, he said: "What do you think Molly wants to do when the bank account amounts to a certain figure? She wants to have money enough to have a town house, so that she can board it up during the summer. I have often noticed, when in up their houses during the summer. This is her idea of letting the rest of the world know you are opulent."-Washington Star.

Lucky Junk Dealer Tumbled Into Small Fortune.

Negligence of Authorities of Great Copper Mine Gave Him His Opportunity, and He Took It.

The letters you have been printing about gold seekers in the Far West recall the following incident of copper mining in Montana, writes a correspondent of the New York Herald.

Day after day about 20 years ago a rickety old open wagon, drawn by a has-been horse, used to venture out from Anaconda and garner rags, bottles, sacks and old iron. One day, on its return to town, a hind wheel | Herald. wabbled off as the vehicle was crossing a culvert, and wheel and load slid down into a greenish-looking little rivulet that passed under the culvert. The junk dealer recovered the wheel and drove on sadly into Anaconda. But, being thrifty, he went back one day to salvage the old iron, perhaps a whole dollar's worth. This he fished out of the little stream. He found that every horseshoe, every stove lid, every old broken tool that he clawed out of the shallow water was thickly coated with copper.

He kept his mouth shut and in town he melted off that pure copper, for the greenish stream was an outflow of waste water from the great Anaconda smelter, where copper was melted out of the rocky ore of that re-

Regularly, long after nightfall, the junk dealer used to go out on that road with a load of old iron and dump it into the greenish stream on this or that side of the culvert and fish out a load earlier deposited.

The copper company detectives began reporting mysterious high-grade shipments of pure copper from Anaconda, but no direct thefts could be discovered. Not an employee could be caught red-handed. Finally the junk dealer's nocturnal trips came under suspicion and he was watched and his secret discovered, but not before he had realized a total of about iron. The company sought to enjoin personal sacrifice. him, sought to recover the values he had secured, but the court held that it was waste water in a public highway, and the lucky junk dealer was

These five wrecks were the result of accidents occurring in two or three days and on but two of the many main highways.

One Suggestion.

One suggestion which has been made to the commissioner has food for thought in it, although it would probably be impossible of adoption without long preparation, and that is that the color of the tail-light be changed from red to some other color which is not in such general use for other purposes.

Several cases have been reported to Colonel Vandercook where drivers, seeing a red light ahead, have taken the light for the receding tail-light of another machine, only to find when too late to stop that the red gleam was from a danger signal on an obstructed road.

There would undoubtedly be serious complications attending any effort to change the color of the tail-light at least without general co-operation with other states and with the manufacturers of automobiles. Michigan could not prescribe one color of taillight while surrounding states specified another, because too many automobiles are used in interstate travel and endless confusion would result. and the matter may be taken up with tle is to be waged soon between mankind and the insect army. There is nothing which has a greater potentiality for destruction than insects. There are 5,000,000 different kinds of insects and nearly all of them are bent in the line of destroying food and other materials of value to man. They cause ten times more damage than fire, and according to the Department of Agriculture, the annual tax imposed by insects is greater than prewar expenditures of the United States. The Hessian fly destroys from 10 to 50 per cent of the grain sowings amounting to $75,000,-000. The Mexican chinch bug eats up $3,000,000 worth of corn in this country and some worms are responsible for damage to corn amounting to three times that sum. The annual cotton loss is $85,000,000 and the damage to live stock is considerable. The peculiar feature of this is that although man has for years been studying the insects with the thought of preventing their ravages, their inroads are constantly increasing.
