THE ELECTION

The bi-ennial election held on Tuesday, Nov. 7, passed off very quietly in Iosco county, not over 60 per cent of the voters going to the polls to register their choice.

With the exception of United States senator and a few minor offices throughout the state, the entire republican ticket was elected. In the contest for senator, Woodbridge N. Ferris appeared at last reports to have a majority over Senator Charles E. Townsend of about 16,000. The result of this contest was a surprise to most people, but the former governor's personal popularity together with the light vote, pulled him through a winner.

The prospects are that in both the senate and house the republicans will have a safe majority.

In a few of the legislative districts of the state the contest was close and the 1923 legislature may contain one or two democrats in the lower house. Otherwise the entire state and legislative ticket went overwhelmingly republican.

In Iosco county there was but one contest, that for the office of sheriff. In this contest the present sheriff, Willard J. Robinson, was re-elected by about a four to one vote over his democratic opponent, Thos H. Hill.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

The regular federation meeting of the Twentieth Century club was held in the club rooms on Saturday, November 4.

After roll call of members who responded with Michigan current events, and the regular business, Miss Jessie Robinson, our delegate to the State Federation of Women's Clubs held at Flint, gave her report. The report was full of interesting things and she also gave a fine description of the vocational work carried on in the schools and institutions of Flint. Miss Robinson said that if possible, every member should attend the Federation as the ideas and enthusiasm gained while there would be a big help in our club work.

A piano solo by Mrs. Musolf and the singing of "Michigan, My Michigan" by the club concluded the program.

N. E. MICHIGAN LEADS STATE IN POTATO RAISING

Two years ago the Northeastern Michigan development bureau made the statement that the potato growing section of its territory was destined to become the "potato center" of the United States. The prediction is coming true. In 1921 Gaylord, for the first time, took first place in the state as a shipping point for potatoes, leading Greenville, which had held that distinction, by several carloads. Michigan according to the United States census bureau, will be the third state in the union in potato production this year. Wisconsin and Minnesota only slightly exceed it in production, and the rapid increase in the use of scientific methods in growing potatoes in Michigan is adding to the yield per acre.

Through the work of the publicity department of the Development bureau, Gaylord potato quotations are the only ones now being carried regularly on the Associated Press wire in Michigan.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

The world is a wheel, and it will come around all right.

Covetousness and love of quarrelling are dangerous dispositions even in children, and deadly dispositions in men and nations.

Never let your mirth, jubilation or pleasures dull your sympathy for the sorrow, suffering, sickness or indigence of other people.

You find yourself refreshed by the presence of cheerful people. Why not make an earnest effort to confer that pleasure on other people?

Some people are so much occupied in going about doing good to others that they have no time to become good themselves.

RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Saturday, November 11, will open the sixth annual roll call of the American Red Cross, and Sunday, November 12, has been set aside as Red Cross Sunday.

America owes a big debt to this splendid organization whose operations extend from coast to coast and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. The value of its ministrations to our people cannot be stated; they are priceless. The war is over but many of the brave lads who fought our battles for us are disabled, and the Red Cross ministers largely to their necessities.

I therefore urgently request the people of Michigan to respond in generous fashion to the appeal that will be made to them in behalf of this fine American society.

Alex. J. Groesbeck, Governor.

Michigan is ready and waiting for next Sunday, Nov. 12, to arrive for this has been selected as nation wide Red Cross Sunday. From Saginaw to Saugatuck, from the copper country to the dunes, from every nook and corner of the state, comes word that "our minister will speak on Red Cross as a national ideal." Beginning back in year times this custom has grown by each year's observation until communities look forward to it because it marks in many communities the second step in the membership campaign.

The sixth Red Cross Roll Call opens November 11th, Armistice Day, and closes Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 30.

With very few exceptions all Michigan counties have county Roll Call directors appointed and committees selected to do the work. The quota for the state has been set at 205878. Michigan last year increased her membership in the Red Cross more than any other central state.

WORK OF A MICROSCOPE

One of the newest of astronomical instruments is the blink microscope. The principal involved is similar to that of the moving picture machine.

In the latter the film used consists of a series of pictures, each a little different from its predecessor. If these are presented in rapid succession the series is fused into one picture in which the succeeding differences appear as motion. The blink microscope enables one to compare a photograph of a portion of the heavens with another of the same region taken several years later. An ingenious contrivance brings first one then the other plate into view in rapid succession. If in the interval between two exposures a star in the region has changed its position appreciably it will appear to move and can be detected at once. Formerly it was necessary to measure carefully the position of all the stars on both plates in order to detect those with large proper motion. Such stars are sometimes called "runaway" stars.

ON THE ROAD

Common sense should prevail at all times on the part of the auto driver. The greater danger on the road is in passing another, either when meeting one or overtaking one on the highway. It is here that special attention should be given in driving. One auto driver whose experience covers several years said a few days ago, in speaking on this subject:

"It's not only a serious breach of motoring etiquette but also violation of the laws of a majority of the states to speed up and attempt to race a car which has signalled its intention of passing on the left of you. Too many drivers appear to consider this a challenge to a test of speed; that they must uphold the honor of their machine by stepping on the gas and tearing along at 10 or 15 miles an hour faster than they had been going. This is responsible for a number of accidents, usually to the car on the outside which is prevented from getting back on its own side of the road and is liable to a collision with a machine coming from the opposite direction.

"The moment a horn is sounded behind you, drive as far as possible to the right without endangering your own car, and let the other fellow drive past. He may have a good reason for his haste. But, even if he hasn't, he isn't issuing a challenge to race. He is merely giving one of the signals of the road that is recognized by law. And he is entitled to have his wishes complied with."—Pigeon Progress.

CLEAR THE SLATE

In earlier days it was common for a buyer to say to the store keeper "Put it on the slate," which happened to be the usual ledger for keeping accounts. When the customer got hold of some money he would come in and say, more or less cheerfully, "Clear the slate," and the account was wiped out with cash in hand.

"Clear the slate" is the slogan of immense practical worth. Men who walk the streets with the consciousness that they owe no man anything show it in their walk. Their knees don't sag. Their chin don't drop. Their shoulders are up, their heads up, and they look the world in the face without a notion of dodging any body. A nation made up of citizens who made it a business to keep the slate clear could quickly lead the world in the business of being free men.

ABOUT THE NEWSPAPERS

Speaking of what a newspaper does in a community the late United States Senator Davis of Illinois, made an address in which he said:

"Every year each local paper gives from $200 to $1800 in free lines to the city or town in which it is located, in boosting, praising, and for lodges, churches, schools, societies, etc. The editor in proportion to his means, does more than other man in it, and he ought to be supported, not because you like or dislike him and his style because a local paper is one of the town's best features. Today the local papers are doing more for less pay than anything on earth, and it's a fact in many cases of free notices."

Ideals Must Be Put to Use.

It's a fine thing to produce an ideal. It's worse than folly to develop it mentally and let it die there. Ideals to be known must be made tangible. If they remain creatures of our own brains they may help us some, but not much. To be of worth they must become inspirations to others.—Grit.

UNCLE HANK

One of the drawbacks to being famous is, you're apt to have a bum cigar named after you.

Did You Ever Stop To Think---

THAT it is the get-together, stay-together and boost-together citizens that build a city.

THAT a city that has built a reputation with industry and commerce should be a proud city.

THAT all citizens should boost with real enthusiasm.

THAT their city is worthy of their best endeavors.

THAT the stay-backs and the pull-backs among their citizens often harm themselves more than they do their city.

THAT city builders have enthusiasm.

THAT enthusiasm is what starts things.

THAT the city knocker lacks enthusiasm. His narrow mind never goes beyond his own pocketbook.

THAT making trouble is his great pastime.

THAT trouble of that kind is very timid in the presence of optimism.

THAT there should be an "Open Season" on city knockers.

THAT city boosters should occasionally give a little of their careful and undivided attention to these pests.

To Preserve Sandstone.

To preserve sandstone against decay, two methods have been suggested that have proved effective. If a piece of rotten sandstone is treated with certain chemical compounds of alcohol and silica and then exposed to moist air, the silica is deposited and forms a protective cement coating. Lime wash has also been found very effective for the same purpose.—Popular Science Magazine.

"Gentlemen of the Guard."

The original function of the household cavalry was to protect the king's person, and Charles II saw to it that his life guards were recruited from old Cavalier families. Even the privates were men of very good families, and were well paid. Their fine uniforms and finer swagger were an essential part of the splendor of Whitehall. They were called "Gentlemen of the Guard."

The Dangerous Age.

"She thought that fifty years of age is nothing nowadays—if you are not an old maid and if you decorate yourself properly. Some women of fifty are still dangerously attractive—they act leading parts on the stage, they appear in divorce cases, they marry their third husbands."—From "The Splinter of the Parish," by W. B. Maxwell.

Thoughts After Forty.

My mind is like an old horse. It will go if it knows it is going to get a flogging, but it will loaf if it gets a chance.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bird Builds Fancy Bungalow.

The bower bird of Australia builds a very elaborate nest which resembles a bungalow. When this is finished the bird proceeds to decorate it with flowers and other objects of bright colors. Any other bird which undertakes to interfere with the decorations is in for a good thrashing, for the bower bird objects to any criticism of its work.

Proper Definition of Valor.

Fear to do base, unworthy things is valor; if they be done to us, to suffer them is valor, too.—Ben Jonson.

MODERN DAY MIRACLES

Famous Scientists Declare that Tremendous Advancements of the Future Will Come From the Chemical Laboratory

(Told in Eight Sketches) By JOHN RAYMOND

No. VIII

LOOKING FORWARD

Mankind, after passing through the stone age, the bronze age and the varying phases of civilization now faces the dawn of a new era. Thomas Edison, in a recent interview, declared that we have entered into the Age of Chemistry and the remarkable achievements of laboratory workers serve to substantiate this statement.

It is difficult to prophesy how great will be the contribution of chemistry to our present civilization, but so much has been accomplished and so great is the expectancy that it is evident why thoughtful men are insisting that the public should be awakened to a full knowledge of the significance of the science of its national life.

The synthetic chemist has been able to produce practically all necessary war materials and thousands of articles invaluable in peace times, mostly from coal tar, but it has only touched the fringe of its ultimate development. Synthetic foods and substances so deadly as to make war impossible may be expected from the researchers.

Edwin E. Slosson, in his splendid book, "Creative Chemistry," quotes one of the greatest French chemists, Berthelot, as follows:

"The problem of food is a chemical problem. The day will come when each person will carry for his nourishment his little nitrogenous, his pat of fatty butter, his package of starch or sugar, his vial of aromatic spices, suited to his personal taste; all manufactured economically and in unlimited quantities; all independent of irregular seasons and all free from pathogenic microbes, the origin of epidemics and the enemies of human life. On that day chemistry will have accomplished world-wide revolution that cannot be estimated. There will no longer be hills covered with vineyards and fields with cattle. Man will gain in gentleness and morality because he will cease to live by carnage and destruction of living creatures. The earth will be covered with grass, flowers and woods and in it the human race will dwell in the abundance and joy of the legendary age of gold."

So much for peace. Now consider the prophecy of General Debeney, of the French army:

"Colorless, odorless gases will be discovered that can be condensed into infinitely small compass and solidified into tablets and pills. Already we know something of what the effect of these things will be. Scatter the contents of a few small boxes on the ground and a dense, smoky mist will arise, a deadly fog fatal to everything living within its area. Broad belts of territory may be poisoned for weeks at a time by a few drops of gases poured out here and there a few drops at a time. Against the attacks of airships barrages of gases which will bring instant death to the pilot will be launched. The air will be filled with ambushes and snares. On land air-tight gas tanks will be used in front of the infantry detecting hidden gases and deluging the ground with an antagonistic liquid."

Organic chemical factories, dye plants and others, are truly arsenals in disguise. The will of man can silently convert these peaceful factories, where research is constantly going on, into gigantic bulwarks of national defense because of the deadly instruments of war they are able to produce.

Beliefs Concerning Lightning.
Continental Europe had, and has, its superstitions regarding lightning. In some parts it is believed that the bird called cross-bill, kept in the house as a pet, is a sure preventive of destruction of the house by lightning or fire. It is said that this power is granted to the bird because it used its peculiarly shaped bill, with the two mandibles curved and crossed over each other, to extract the nails from the wounds of Christ impaled on the cross.

Land of Stone Trees.
Rock impressions of palm leaves have been uncovered, near Florissant, Col., the stem of an enormous tree mined in a chunk of coal at Leyden, and petrified stumps of trees found in the streets of Denver.

$1,441,486 A YEAR'S DISASTER RELIEF COST

Red Cross Aided 145,000 Victims in United States—Losses Total $30,000,000.

Seventy-two disasters, with hundreds reported killed and injured, and more than 145,000 either homeless or requiring assistance, called for emergency relief measures and the expenditure of $1,441,486.36 by the American Red Cross during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, according to a statement based on the forthcoming annual report of the Red Cross. The greatest toll of life was taken by hurricane and tornado, while the overflowing of rivers, the breaking of dams and torrential rains drove the greatest number of people from their homes. The property loss was estimated at more than $30,000,000.

The year's disasters reported included twenty-six floods, nineteen tornadoes, fifteen fires, four epidemics, two theatre collapses, two shipwrecks (one an airship), and a bridge collapse, mine explosion, railway collision, and a drought. Of the floods in the United States that at San Antonio, Texas, caused the greatest property loss, $6,000,000 and the high mark of fatalities, 100, while the flood in the vicinity of Vicksburg and Natchez, Miss., forced 31,000 persons from their homes.

A National Calamity
In the Red Cross disaster relief records there will probably remain for many years one calamity which touched nearly every state with a sense of horror and of loss. This was the distressing collapse of the roof of the Knickerbocker Theatre in Washington, D. C., resulting in ninety-six deaths and 125 persons injured. Situated in the center of the beautiful Northwest residential section, this motion picture theatre was patronized by many persons of prominence both in the official and civil life of the National Capital, whose family and personal connections radiated out over the entire country. The horror was intensified by a terrific snowstorm which, though it retarded, did not block Red Cross relief.

Airship Crash Finds Aid at Hand
The crash and destruction of the U. S. Army's large airship Roma in Virginia last February with the loss of 34 officers and men and 11 injured was the first disaster of its kind to call for Red Cross relief in this country. The suddenness of the accident tested the preparedness of the organization and of the Chapter at Hampton, Va., but the response was immediate and relief furnished the survivors, also funds for the expenses of relatives of the dead, who came from long distances to claim their own.

In the year's overseas record for aid rendered by the Red Cross are two fires in the Philippines, one in Manila, which destroyed 1,000 homes, with a loss of $1,500,000 and 5,000 persons made homeless, the other at Tonio, which drove 3,000 from their dwellings. In medical relief that was quick and effective the smallpox epidemic in San Domingo, which had a total of 22,000 cases with 225 deaths in a single day, tested the readiness of the Red Cross for action, and the same can be said of the San Domingo hurricane, which killed 12 persons and reduced the homes of 182 persons to wreckage. A flood in San Salvador, with a death toll of 50 and 2,000 refugees, was also effectually handled by the local Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Relief Machinery Perfected
The year has seen the further perfection of disaster relief administrative measures in every field of American Red Cross activity, and that the work may be carried on to still greater accomplishments the American Red Cross is appealing for widespread renewal of membership during the annual Roll Call, to be conducted this year from Armistice Day (November 11) to, and including, Thanksgiving Day (November 30).

Red Cross Roll Call Heard World Around

The Annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross for registration of the membership for 1923 will begin on Armistice Day, November 11, and close on Thanksgiving Day, November 30. The ground work for this stupendous task of re-enrolling the membership throughout the world has been laid in a plan for the first complete and comprehensive system of registration of the Red Cross membership in all its 3,800 active Chapters at home and abroad.

An important feature of the round-the-world Roll Call campaign will be a universal effort to re-enlist the service of war-time Red Cross workers in the peace program by their participation in the Roll Call. In this way the vast army of volunteers will once more affiliate with the work of the Red Cross in its manifold phases. Cooperation also has been assured by Government and private maritime interests in a deep-sea Roll Call that is designed to reach every member or potential member in every part of the world who may be en voyage or temporarily in any port.

Thousands of Chapters will adopt the home canvass plan of enrollment which originated in Pittsburgh, where last year it resulted in a membership increase of 50 per cent. All records in this year's campaign will be kept on standard size cards to be filed by each Chapter for future use.

John Finds Contentment

By JOHN PALMER
(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I declare, John Smith, you look as if you don't know what to do with yourself!" exclaimed his wife, Samantha, as John Smith, looking the picture of desolation, lolled in his chair in front of the seaside hotel.

"Oh, I dunno, Samantha," answered her husband. "I've been in two rolling chairs, and I've been in the wheel twice, and I won a doll at the shooting gallery."

"Yes, and I'd like to know what a man of your age is going to do with a doll!" declared his wife, angrily.

"That's easily answered, my dear. I gave it back to the man for another round of shots," replied her husband. The fact was, however, that John Smith was horribly bored. For thirty years the Smiths had lived a blameless and uneventful existence as proprietors of a corner grocery store in Hoboken.

Those had been the days—those early days, the days of struggle and excitement, when the rent was falling due, and customers were few and far between; when a bad debt of a few dollars was a serious matter.

They had stuck to it and, by sheer grit, John Smith had built up his business. Then he had opened a branch store, and then another. Now, at fifty-five, the couple found themselves affluent. They had carried out their life design of retiring before they were too old to enjoy themselves. But it seemed almost impossible to derive any pleasure out of life.

In fact, they had forgotten how to have a good time. "I tell you what it is," said John. "We're homely folks and these big hotels ain't for us. And what do we want with amusement parks? What we need is a little cottage in the country."

Samantha was excited immediately. "The dear little place I've always dreamed of," she said, "where we can grow flowers and keep chickens, and have neighbors like ourselves. John Smith, for once you've said it!"

The cottage of their dreams materialized in the shape of a small house not far from the outskirts of Hoboken. And a happy month went by. "Samantha," said her husband, one day, "I've got an idea what's wrong with us. You ain't used to having a man about the house all day, and it kinder gets on your nerves. I guess I'll run down to the club every morning and have lunch there, and come back early in the afternoon. A man must have something to keep him busy."

John Smith belonged to an institute in the town where he had been in the habit of meeting his friends. What they did there—well, Samantha supposed they did what precisely all men do when they get together, which is nothing of the smallest value whatever.

"It might be a good idea," Samantha agreed. But, as the days went by and her husband came home chuckling and looking happier than she had seen him since their retirement, horrible suspicions began to beset her.

Fifty-five—that wasn't old for a man. Some fool of a woman had turned his head! That could be the only explanation! After that she began to listen when he muttered in his sleep; but she never found out anything. John seemed to be living over the old days in the shop. And what good does it do a jealous woman to hear her sleeping spouse repeating: "Five pounds of tea at 30 cents—yes, ma'am? Anything else? Try our navel oranges?"

John Smith's returning hour grew later. Samantha grew more wifely—that is to say, she hid her griefs beneath smiles that positively beamed appreciation. But one day, when John Smith caught the trolley, there was a little, determined woman waiting for the next trolley. And when John Smith got out the little, lynx-eyed woman, who had been observing the sidewalk, spotted him immediately, and got out not very far away.

And a gasp came from her lips as, following her husband, she saw him pass the club and direct his way toward a mean quarter of the town. Some low creature—Oh, she would give her a tongue-lashing. Samantha followed, fury and despair in her heart.

John Smith turned into a low doorway. Samantha saw that it was a grocery shop. Over the door she read, with gasping lips: "JOHN SMITH, GROCER."

She—I'm so awfully glad you like them. I had them done permanently just before I came away.

The Advantages of Matrimony.
"I'm a believer in women getting married. It doesn't matter so much for men, but for women it's the correct thing. Does 'em good and improves their characters. Unless they've a man to be unselfish to and coddle a bit they grow selfish themselves."
