She Could See the Man. When Grandmother Burch was beyond her three-score and ten, with uncertain eyesight, she amazed and perplexed her married daughter, with whom she lived, by declaring that she intended to marry an old man living nearby, who had been coming to see

"But, mother," said her daughter in protest, "you are not very well, and your eyesight is failing so fast you cannot see 50 rods away.

The old lady protested that she could see "real good," and her daughter said:

"We will put it to the test. If that old man comes around today I will have him stand near the barn and see if you can really see him. Be honest about it."

The old lady agreed to this, and the aged sultor appeared a few hours later. He was asked to stand at one corner of the barn, and the old lady came out to be put to the test. Standing in the door of the kitchen she shaded her eyes with one hand and finally said:

"Well, I can't somehow or other see the barn, but I do see the man!"-Judge.

RED CROSS WINNING IN FIGHT FOR HEALTH

Better, Stronger Citizenry Now Emerging Out of Work in United States.

The American Red Cross as an evangelist of better health has looked its problem square in the face. How 't accepted the task revealed to it in the nation's physical condition as brought out during the World War, and conscientiously applied its activities to correction forms a vivid chapter in the forthcoming annual report. Historically and practically, nursing is a basic work for the Red Cross. In its public health nursing service, in instruction in home hygiene and care of the sick, nutrition classes, first aid and life saving courses and health centers, the American Red Cross is applying effectually the lessons learned during the war and making for a healthier, stronger and better nourished citizenry.

The task of the Red Cross Public Health nurse in the 1,240 nursing services now operating throughout the country instructing their communities in health essentials and disease prevention is demonstrating the possibilities of human betterment and the great benefits of enlightenment.

During the last year 313 new public health nursing services were established by Red Cross Chapters, and several hundred services so convincingly proved their effectiveness that they were taken over by public authorities. In order to promote this work $30,000 was allotted to provide women to prepare themselves for public nursing. The home visits made by the 1,240 nurses aggregated nearly 1,500,000, visits to schools numbered 140,000, and in six months 1,250,000 school children were of portable typewriter. BEFORE JEFFERSON HAD A SAN

(Names of places and persons, for obvious reasons, have been changed in this story; but the incident happened as narrated.)

Dr. Merrit, fresh from the U and new to Jeffersonville, answered his telephone promptly. It was Burroughs, the hotel-keeper, a vast, jovial fellow whom the doctor saw on the hotel porch daily, who was calling.

"Gosh, doc," said Burroughs, "I wish you'd come over. Fellow from lief. twenty miles out in the jack-pines just drove in here and left his boy on the steps, and asked me to send for the doctor, and before I could say 'Boo,' he hit the horse a crack and he was gone. And the boy-he ain't much more'n a kid-looks as if he was dying now."

Dr. Merrit's patient was still waiting for him on the hotel porch when the young doctor ran up the steps: a good-looking lad, if he had not been so wasted with fever. He was in the most advanced stage of tuberculosis, dying, as Burroughs had said; but since TB. kills its victims by tortured inches, Dr. Merrit foresaw that it might be weeks before death came.

"Edgar Robinson," the young man whispered in reply to the doctor's inquiry as to his name.

"How long have you been sick Robinson?" inquired the doctor, cheerfully as he could.

"Why, I've been in the house since January; but Dad can't pay doctor's bills, and 'twasn't much but a bad cold, I thought, anyhow. So I just stayed in and kept warm; haven't had much appetite, you know, but I haven't been really sick. There's eight of us in the family, though, and Dad couldn't keep a loafer, any longer, I didn't think, and so I told him if he'd bring me into town may be had by writing the County Clerk enclosing the he'd bring me into town may be had by writing the County Clerk enclosing a deposit of $5.00 which will be Burroughs beckoned the doctor to the end of the porch: "Gosh, I wish I could keep him," he rumbled regretfully. "But I got a duty to the public." "If there was a hospital—" began the doctor.
