The personal property of the Lakeside bakery was sold at sheriff's sale under an attachment on Tuesday of this week. The property was purchased by Charles Moeller, one of the heaviest creditors of W. S. Eisenbrandt, the former owner who de-camped some weeks ago and whose whereabouts are unknown.

The photoplay, "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," which was shown at the Auditorium Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of this week, was one of the best films ever shown here. It was comedy from start to finish, but comedy that was well in keeping with the satirical story by the same name written by Mark Twain, from which the idea of the film was taken.

Last Friday evening, Feb. 2, about 25 friends of Mrs. G. A. Pringle walked into her home unannounced, stating that they had come to see a real live ground-hog, that being Mrs. Pringle's birthday. After satisfying their curiosity, music and games were indulged in and a delicious lunch was served. A very fine token of remembrance was presented to Mrs. Pringle and at a late hour they departed, wishing their hosts many more happy birthdays.

FARMERS COULD CUT FERTILIZER BILLS

That Michigan farmers who purchase fertilizers could effect an annual saving of $300,000 by purchasing only the high grade or Michigan standard fertilizers instead of low grade or low analysis materials, is the statement of Dr. M. M. McCool.

"Lack of standardization and the use of low analysis fertilizers have resulted not only in an unnecessarily high cost of plant food to the farmers but also in less efficient use, says Dr. McCool. 'The cost of manufacturing and handling a given amount of plant food in high analysis fertilizers is less than it is for those of low analysis.'

"The Michigan farmer should purchase fertilizers on the basis of their plant food content, rather than on a cost per ton basis. A standard fertilizer is conceded to be one which contains fourteen or more per cent total available plant food.

"Last season one fertilizer company placed on the market more than 100 brands, which did not vary greatly in their analysis or plant food content. As a matter of fact, the brands were of only 23 different analyses. The lack of information on the part of the farmer was made use of in selling these goods.

"If the farmer would make a study of the composition of fertilizers, which is easily done through the county agents or the college authorities, there would doubtless be only a relatively few fertilizer brands sold in the state."

A list of fertilizers which have been adopted as standard together with information concerning their use under different soil conditions for all crops has been published by the soils department of the Michigan Agricultural college experiment station, and is known as circular bulletin No. 53. It may be had on request.

A COLORFUL OLD SPORT

Chiefly in Maryland and Virginia has the fine old English sport of fox hunting survived in America in anything like its ancient form, and while in Virginia it is rather on the wane, in this state it seems to be more popular than for years past, says the Baltimore Sun. Three hunt meets were held on Thanksgiving day—one by the Harford club, one in the Green Spring valley and one at Elkridge—with something like 150 riders, all told, following the hounds. The dry weather greatly hampered the dogs in finding and following a scent and but one fox was run to earth. But, after all, catching a fox is only a small part of the sport, which consists chiefly in the joy of cross-country riding. The hunters in their red coats and the huntresses in their bright colors, following a pack of hounds in full cry over hill and dale, make a colorful and romantic picture. To those who can afford it, fox hunting is a fine, virile, healthful pastime.

Henri Bergson, as president of a commission to study international cooperation among intellectual workers, organized under the auspices of the League of Nations last year, has reported that one of the most urgent needs its labors have revealed is that of alleviating the distress of brain workers resulting from the war, especially in Germany and Poland. The commission believes our intellectual life to be menaced by the upsetting of the balance between brain work and manual work. The proposal to remedy this presents difficulties. Brain work does not lend itself to quantitative and qualitative measurements as readily as manual work, and its compensation is by no means exclusively material. Undoubtedly the community takes advantage of a man's love of his work to withhold from him reasonable payment, and for this reason educators, scientists and artists are not remunerated on the scale to which their service to society entitles them.

Some day, let us hope, there will be a more general appreciation of the value of courtesy. It requires no more effort to be polite over the telephone or across the counter than it does to affect the tone and mannerism of the much maligned bear with a sore head. Business executives can hold no one but themselves responsible for lack of courtesy among their subordinates, says the Thrift Magazine. Whenever the policy is definitely fixed that courtesy will be rewarded, just as other types of merit, and that discourtesy will bring the same fate as incompetency, we shall begin to have more politeness in business. The executive who allows the good will of his company to be kicked into the middle of next week by the gruffness of employees who come in contact with the general public is a round peg in a square hole.

The American people spend annually $750,000,000 for face powder, cosmetics and perfumeries and $1,000,000,000 for education. It is interesting to note that the amount America spends annually for face powder and its accessories is almost as much as she spends for her entire educational system. Looks as if America thought about as much of the outside of her head as of the inside. And as a matter of astonishing fact, the amount actually spent by America for face paint annually exceeds all she pays for the salaries of the teachers in all the high schools who are trying to get something into the heads of pupils in between times while they are applying the paint on the surface.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION

The republican county convention will be held at the court house in the city of Tawas City on Wednesday, Feb. 14, 1923, at 10:00 o'clock in the forenoon for the purpose of electing five delegates to the republican state convention to be held at Flint on February 21, 1923, and the transaction of such other business as may come properly before the convention. The several townships and wards are entitled to delegates as follows: Alabaster township, 2; Ausable township, 2; Ausable City, 1st ward, 2; 2nd ward, 2; 3rd ward, 2; Baldwin township, 2; Burleigh township, 2; City of East Tawas, 1st ward, 4; 2nd ward, 5; 3rd ward, 2; Grant township, 3; Oscoda township, 3; Plainfield township, 4; Reno township, 2; Sherman township, 2; Tawas township, 3; Tawas City, 1st ward, 3; 2nd ward, 3; 3rd ward, 2; City of Whittemore, 1st ward, 2; 2nd ward, 2; Wilber township, 2.

Dated East Tawas, Jan. 25, 1923.
J. G. Dimmick, Chairman,
Republican County Committee.

MILLS STATION

Marie Hansen called on Ella Ross on Sunday.
Mrs. S. A. Ross is suffering from a very bad cold.

Josie Crego was a week end visitor with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Crego.
Mr. and Mrs. George Partlo, who have been on the sick list, are better at this writing.
Mrs. C. E. Burtless and son, Billy, are spending the winter months in California and report fine weather out there.
Last Saturday the Grange met at the home of the Ross family. There were twenty people present. All report a good time.
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Uptegrove drove to Omer on Wednesday for medical treatment. Mrs. Uptegrove is much better at this writing.
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Fenton returned to their home here one day last week after spending several weeks in Flint with their son and daughter.
Bert Marshall and C. E. Burtless were business callers at the ranch on Thursday. On Saturday they shipped out three double decked cars of lambs.
On Sunday the town of Whittemore was visited by a very disastrous fire, which burned the only creamery in operation to the ground. The cause of the fire is unknown.
Howard Gregg reports seeing a large bear on the river hill in our community one day last week. Several others in the neighborhood tried to locate Mr. Bear, but he was too wise for them.
Mr. Grumbley, a former resident here, passed away at his home at Caro, Mich., on Tuesday morning at about 4:00 o'clock. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife, son and two daughters. The community extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

CORRIGAN SCHOOL NOTES

Our readings on McKinley's birthday were very good.
Mrs. Walters was a visitor at our school this week. We appreciate it very much. Come again. Who will be the next parent to visit us?
Elwood was at the head of the spelling class this week.
Mr. Black repaired our stove pipe and it makes a lot of difference as to the heat of the room. We appreciate it very much.
The eighth grade are taking up two geography classes a day now.
Daisy Foghins has been absent from school this week.
Grammar is getting more interesting especially with Charles. Mr. Gregg gave the sentence "The apples tasted sour." What is sour? The apples are. What should he have said?
Those having good attendance this week were: Ella, Vida, Vera, Melvin, Beatrice, Eldon, Elwood and John.
Martin and Charles Foghins were absent Thursday and Friday.
We are becoming more and more interested in the book "Wait and Hope," which Mr. Gregg reads for morning exercises.
We like to play organ builder and charades.
Our motto this week was "It is wise to be honest and never tell a lie."
The second grade are becoming more accurate in adding numbers now.
Melvin is doing fine work in reading and arithmetic.
The eighth grade are working interest by the six per cent method.
We have lots of fun coasting down hill now when it isn't cold.
We wonder what is the matter with Eva. She don't come to school.
The fifth grade are nearly through their personal hygiene. They are working in divisions of measure now in arithmetic.
Beatrice Webster stood at the head of the spelling class the largest number of days this week.
The eighth grade are diagramming and analyzing sentences now.
The basement is nearly full of wood now.
We have a thermometer in our room now.
A big storm seems to be coming up today. It will interfere with our sleighride tonight.
We are getting selections for Lincoln's birthday, also making valentines.

THE COMMON RUN

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I CANNOT hope to shake your hand, Friend Reader here and there, And yet I think we understand Each other pretty fair: You're just the common kind like me, And I am just like you— We have our troubles two or three, And have our work to do.

We look on life's old-fashioned ways, Although we are not old, And think the truth of early days Good truth to which to hold: There's nothing right on earth but right, And wrong is always wrong, And black is black and white is white, The same as all along.

We haven't read the latest proof There isn't any God— We, narrow-minded, keep aloof And stay on old sod. We're ignorant of cults and creeds, And credent that knock them flat; We judge of people by their deeds, And let it go at that.

We think that laughter beats a tear, That honesty's the test; We live the day, and thus the year, And try to do our best. We've had some grief, a hurt or so, But had a lot of fun— I guess, if we could really know, We're just the common run.

Something to Think About
By F. A. WALKER

YOUR WORST ENEMY

IF YOU will make a searching and an impartial investigation of the matter, you will discover that your worst enemy is right at your elbow, seeking at crucial moments of your life to oppose your good efforts and circumvent your cherished plans.

He is beside you in the morning when the gray light of dawn heralds the coming sun, bidding an opportunity to strike you in a vital spot; he puts his arm in yours as you hurry down to the breakfast table, seeking to win your confidence; he passes with you through the street doorway as you hie away to your daily vocation, and if something has gone amiss in the dining room, he snuggles up closely and begins to whisper in your always willing ear especially chosen words of sympathy, telling you how you are imposed upon by others, to whom you should resentfully reply.

By the time you reach your desk, your place behind the counter, your chair before the typewriter, your bench, or whatever estate you may occupy in the tower of toil, you are in a decidedly uncomfortable mood.

And you have only to look around you to become irritable, quarrelsome and obdurate at another nudge from your pestering enemy, who seems reasonably sure that before the day is over you will hurl out a volley of fiery volubles, scowl at the manager, which is becoming a habit, and return to your home at night with anger, disgusted with your intimates and with yourself as well.

Nothing seems right. You are sure that nobody can be trusted. You are suspicious of manifest kindness and unselfish intentions.

You are positive that those who proffer them are scheming for some terrible purpose, trying by friendly overtures in pleasant words and offers of assistance, to take some mean advantage of you.

And this is the madness that generally leads to your undoing—the madness that your worst enemy, if permitted to work upon your sensibilities without restraint, invariably produces.

If you will sit yourself down composedly, at the end of a trying day, and reflect seriously, you may wish but little difficulty guess who this enemy is. If guessing should be too irksome, in the mood you are, raise your eyes to the mirror across the room and you will see in the polished glass your own perturbed self—your worst enemy!

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because —

You are self-confident? You're pretty tired aren't you of being called conceited? Of course there's a risk of being conceited here. Yet self-confidence pure and simple is a great thing to have—it means that you have courage to put things through, that you don't "fall down" when you're up against it hard, that you aren't afraid to tackle a new situation and, too, that people about you can "catch" courage. People may think you are conceited, but you need not be.

SO

Your Get-away Here Is:
To be sure you do not think you're the great "I Am" but that you are enough of a person to get your goal with the love of others rather than with their dislike.

MAKE AN INSECT FESTIVAL

Ivy Flowers Have Been Known to Provide Feast for Dissipated but Most Useful Little Creatures.
Entomologists have found that Ivy flowers provide a veritable bacchanalian festival for a number of insects, says London Tit-Bits. When the willow is in bloom they fling a similar scene of dissipation around its yellow catkins.
There is a fly so addicted to wine that Linnaeus named it the "cellar fly," which appellation Kirby changed to the more appropriate one of the "cellar wine drinker." Kirby states that the larvae of this little fly, whose diet he could attest from his own observations, disdain to feed on anything but wine or beer.
There are bees and flowers whose random meetings result in the same curious phenomenon. On the single dahlias and gallerias of the garden bees are often to be seen in the same maudlin state, and these bees are more frequently of the black and yellow banded kind.
If you take such a bee off the galleria the insect will remain in your hand, indulging in quaint antics or simply trembling in every member.
Presently, however, it will recover and fly off straight to another galleria flower and in a very short time is again in its former state of imbecility.

CHANCE FOR MODERN ARTIST

Almost Any Painter Would Make a Hit by the Depiction of Flock of Glyptodons.
Artists have painted every kind of picture except one. They have always preferred a flock of sheep to a flock of glyptodons. We are at one with the artists in their admiration of the lights and shadows of a westering sun on the backs of sheep making their way home along a wooded road. Nothing, perhaps, so much breathes the atmosphere of bucolic peace.
But let us fancy for a moment, the effect of sunlight on the backs of a coterie of glyptodons. These were prehistoric animals with a bony back like our tortoises, though they were monsters in size. In any light, they must have made a glittering company, and in any gallery an oil painting of them would create a greater sensation than all the sheep pictures collected there. Visitors would pass up the sheep at once for the glyptodons.
What artist now inclined to be conventional will break away in his choice of subjects?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Old Lawyer Tom Lee
By ELLA SAUNDERS
(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lawyer Lee left Mrs. Ransom's house with a sense of futility. For the fifth time in their almost lifetime of friendship he had asked her to marry him, and she had refused. Now, as he stopped one moment with his hand upon the door he knew that it was all useless; she would never have him.
He was fifty-five and Nell Ransom forty-seven. Too old for love? Old people would smile. Love is not a perquisite of boys and girls. And Tom Lee had loved Nell since they were children.
In fact Tom and Dick Ransom had been rivals for pretty Nell's hand in the long ago. Handsome, ne'er-do-well Dick had won her.
"Tom, dear," she said to him that evening, "I'm going to marry Dick, but I'll be your friend, really your friend, for life. You can always trust to that."
Friendship is a cold draft after love, and for many years Tom Lee saw little of Nell Ransom. They lived in a fine house, for Dick was prospering as representative of a metropolitan company. Then came the evening when Dick came to Tom.
"I'm ruined," he said.
The story filtered out. He had been speculating; he had made away with $12,000 of his company's money. It had to be replaced within two days.
Tom thought of Nell and of her faith in Dick Ransom, and he drew all he had out of the bank, borrowed what he needed to make up the deficit, and lent it to Dick. It crippled him for years. But he felt that he was serving Nell.
Dick never attempted to repay him, and the subject was tacitly allowed to drop.
Five years passed. Then slowly rumor began to creep through the town touching on Dick Ransom's relations with a Mrs. Cleeves, a widow who had come to live there. Tom was one of the first to hear of them. Of course he said nothing—what was there to say? But his heart was filled with sorrow for Nell, who worshipped her husband in all the candor of her nature.
Then came a day when Tom found a letter waiting for him at his office. It was from Dick, telling him that he and Mrs. Cleeves had left for New York on their way south together; it asked him to look after his affairs and to break the news to Nell.
Tom went to Nell. He learned that her husband had gone to New York on a business trip.
He went to New York, studied the visitors' books at all the hotels, and found the couple. He walked straight up to their suite.
The hour that followed was the most terrible in Tom Lee's life. Stubbornly, refusing to be beaten, he put the situation before Mrs. Cleeves and Dick. And at the end of the hour it was the woman who sent Dick Ransom away.
Tom Lee exacted her promise that she would never see him again. He brought Dick back, broken. He housed him for a day, spruced him up, and sent him home to Nell. She never learned anything, and after a while the gossip died away.
Then Dick Ransom died of typhoid fever, his wife at his side, believing him the best man upon earth. Five years passed before Tom told Nell Ransom of his love for her.
He remembered—as he stood in the doorway—how she put her hand on his shoulder.
"Tom, dear, there isn't another man in the world I'm so fond of as of you," she said. "But there was Dick, and we were everything to each other. No shadow ever came between our love. I—I feel it would not be faithful to Dick, Tom."
And she had refused him five times, and that night was the last.
And temptation to let her know—not directly, of course, but indirectly—had been fierce in him. All the hopes of his life, his lifelong love blasted by her fatuous belief in Dick.
None knew better than Tom Lee that there had been a dozen other women in Dick's life, though none of them had reached the mastery that Mrs. Cleeves had acquired over him.
Oh, Dick had been very discreet and Nell had worshipped him and trusted him.
Well, there was nothing more to be done. It was his loyalty to Nell, not to Dick, that must keep his mouth closed for ever.
As he was closing the door a light footstep sounded in the hall.
"Tom! Just a moment, Tom!"
He turned, his heart beating. She was looking at him so kindly.
"Tom, I—I've been thinking I—oh, yes, I will, Tom."

LOWER HEMLOCK

Miss Delia Lorenz and Edson Holloway visited with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lorenz on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Look and family visited with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lietz Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Clark McCormick of Tawas City visited with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Look Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Chancy Brown and daughter, Mable, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Holloway and Edward Krumm motored up from Bay City last Saturday to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Krumm. The returned on Monday.

Vine School Notes

Anna Fisher was absent Monday and Violetta Bradford was absent Thursday of last week.

James Chambers has returned to school after a number of days absence.

The children had a coasting party on Siem's hill Friday night. It was much enjoyed by all present.

Lillian Curry visited our school Wednesday, Jan. 31.

In history class we were studying about the civil war. It said they hammered against the forts six days and nights. Esther Kobs believed they were hammering with hammers.

The other day we had to learn some definitions. As Mr. Curry walked down the aisle, Maurice Lorenz asked, "Do we have to learn all in the black print?" Mr. Curry answered, "It's all in black print."

The following have had perfect in spelling the past week: Floren Miller, Helen Fisher, Belle Frank, Lois Chambers, Esther Kobs, Warren Colby, Rosella Fisher, Edward Lorenz, Mable Frank, Sophia Fisher, Sophia Birkenbach.

The eighth grade have finished studying "The Lady of Shalott."

The fifth grade are reading "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

Under the supervision of Miss Lietz, the cooks for the first week were Lois Chambers and Belle Frank. The second week were Floren Miller and Helen Fisher, and the third week were Floren Miller and Gertrude Lorenz. All have proven to be excellent cooks.

Those who were neither absent nor tardy during the month of January were Harold Ross, Warren Colby and Floren Miller.

Whittemore School Notes

Ethel and Sanford Richardson are absent from school on account of sickness.

We have lost one of our scholars. Mabel Earhart has moved away.

Friday afternoon the Cedar Valley school came here to visit us.

Monday evening the school children had a coasting party on the hill.

Next week the seventh grade are going to take up 8th grade reading.

A number of the eighth graders were absent Monday.

The tenth grade have received their book-keeping books and have started work in them.

Harold McLean and Norman Schuster are absent on account of illness.

The tenth grade are taking up business arithmetic.

The seventh grade are busy now on their subjects for the eighth grade.

The fifth grade have begun reading in the sixth grade books.

Thought for the Day.

If you want the honey you've got to take a chance on getting stung.

WILBER

Will Sugden of Reno is now staying with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Syme.

Mrs. William Greene has gone to Flint for a visit with relatives.

Chas. Kruger is in East Tawas, where he is receiving medical treatment.

Mrs. James Syme, who has been ill during the past week, is somewhat better.

Harry Brooks has gone to Flint, where he expects to have employment during the remainder of the winter.

Mrs. Harry Latter and son of Reno visited for a few days recently with the former's mother, Mrs. James Syme.

Allen Simmons has been visiting in East Tawas for a few days this week. While there he attended several of the special services at the M. E. church.

We wish to correct a statement made in last week's issue. Jas. Syme, whose birthday anniversary was mentioned, was 80 years old instead of 79 as stated.

SHERMAN

Matt Smith spent a couple of days last week with relatives at Alabaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schneider spent Wednesday with relatives in Grand.

Don't forget the L. D. S. oyster supper, Masonic temple, Tawas City, February 15.

Truant Officer Chas. Curry of Tawas City was in town on business last Wednesday.

Mrs. Peck Figley left last week for Jackson, where she was called by the illness of her daughter.

William Norris, who is working in the camp back of Tawas City, spent Sunday at his home here.

A. H. Crawford was at Tawas City one day last week having sale bills printed for the sale to be held at his farm here on Feb. 14.

Pete Sokola, while hauling wood at Saturday with a team hitched to a set of sleighs, had a runaway. The team became frightened and ran, damaging the outfit considerably.

TOWNLIN

Wedding bells are still ringing.

Mrs. Joseph Ulman is on the sick list.

Miss Amy Abbott spent Sunday with her parents in Wilber.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Hughes of Alabaster were Townline callers last Saturday.

Don't forget the L. D. S. oyster supper, Masonic temple, Tawas City, February 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Londo, jr. spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Freel.

Earl Rutterbush had the misfortune to give his foot a bad cut with an ax and at present is unable to step on it.

Mrs. Paul Rutterbush was called to Bay City by the death of Mrs. Herman Rutterbush. She returned home Wednesday, accompanied by her son, Truman, who has been away for some time.

The young people of this community are making good use of the good sleighing. About twenty of them went for a fine sleighride to Tawas and spent a good time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fowler.

HALE AND VICINITY

Mrs. William Slosser of Saginaw is visiting Hale relatives.

Mrs. John Morrison was called to Pinconning Monday by the death of her brother, Thomas Hunt.

Mrs. Stella Pierce and children of Rising Sun, Ohio, are the guests of her sister, Mrs. Charles Morgan.

S. R. Scofield returned last week Tuesday from Detroit, where he had been called by the death of his mother.

Rev. Hughes was in Bay City Wednesday and Thursday in attendance at the meeting of the Albion Educational Advance, called by Bishop Henderson.

Annabel McLean and Mrs. W. E. Glendon were week end visitors at East Tawas and in attendance at the Golden Jubilee meeting and banquet of the M. E. church.

Miss Vivian LaBerge of Long Lake was ill and unable to attend to her duties as teacher at the North school during the past week. Mrs. Iva French taught during her absence.

"Inside the Cup" is the title for the photo play at the M. E. church Friday evening. Miss Vina Morrison's pupils of the Taft school will contribute several numbers to the program.

Miss Forgash of Bay City, the nurse who has been in attendance at the bedside of little Ila VanWormer for several weeks, was called home by the serious illness of her father. Mrs. Ross Webb will assist in the care of the little patient, who is slightly improved at this writing and hope is entertained for her recovery.

We wish to call attention to the "Home Nursing" classes conducted by Miss Wolff, the county nurse, on the third Tuesdays of each month. The date of the next one is Feb. 20, and the following is an outline of the afternoon study:

1. How to get ready for the doctor.
2. Suggested equipment for the family medicine chest.
3. Health in the home. Regulation of humidity.

2. Talk.

The Nostrum Evil.

You are cordially invited to attend and benefit by these meetings. Do not say you are not interested. Come and see and spend a pleasant hour with friends.

M. E. Church Notes

The union prayer meetings are becoming a source of blessing to both our churches. Will you make it in your way to join us on Wednesday evenings.

We received two members into our church last Sunday. Please do not omit to state your desire to join us if it is in your heart.

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder" is an old saying, but is it really true? Does absence from church prove love of God's house? According to that some people are very much in love with the church. Surely our love of God's house, God's book, God's music, is proved by our constant use of them.

Remember next Sunday morning, 10:00 standard. Subject "The Visibility of Faith. Evening 7:30 standard. Subject "The Indestructibility of the Faith."

Baptist Church Notes

Union prayer meeting this week Wednesday in the Baptist church. All who attended the prayer meeting last Wednesday evening at our sister church will agree that it was an hour well spent in prayer and praise.

Dorcas Thursday at the home of Mrs. S. B. Yawger.

The W. W. G. at the home of Ruby Love last Thursday evening was well attended. Two new members were taken in, making a total membership of twenty-five. The forepart of the evening was spent in sewing and mission study. The regular business meeting was held, after which the hostess served a dainty luncheon. Each Guild has been notified of the convention to be held in Detroit this week.

All present enjoyed Rev. Arthur Glenn's sermon Sunday evening. A splendid Christian Endeavor meeting preceded the sermon. Topic for the evening was taken from the 145th Psalm. The psalm of testimony. Special music by Lyman McGirr and Melvin Dorsey delighted the congregation. We are proud of our Live Wire class and hope to hear more singing from that quarter.

Watch next week's notes for announcement of preaching services Feb. 18.

Braving the piercing cold of Sunday morning a goodly number came to the Sunday school. Surely this testimony of loyalty strengthens our faith that the Sunday school means much to the boys and girls.

Auntie's Temperature.

Joan, listening to Aunt Emma talking loud and fast, and being unable to follow the conversation, thought she was scolding, whereupon she remarked to her mother, "My, but Aunt Emma is high temperatured today."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BAD BUTCHER BIRD

"There are very few birds I don't like," said Daddy. "and I think you've both told me that there were very few that you two children didn't care for."

"We don't like the Goshawk family," said Nancy.

"Nor the butcher birds," said Nick.

"I think I've forgotten about the butcher birds," said Nancy. "or perhaps I don't remember them for the moment."

"Tell us a story about them, Daddy please," said Nick. "I'd like to know more about them. A boy was asking me about them only the other day and I told the little I knew. I'd like to be able to tell more."

"Do tell us about the butcher birds," urged Nancy. "Won't you please, Daddy?"

"Of course I will," said Daddy.

"Well, the butcher bird, Daddy commenced, "is one of the very few birds, as I've said, that I do not like."

"In the first place they hunt and kill for the fun of hunting and killing and not only because they must eat."

"They kill more than they can eat, which is the most dreadful thing about them."

"You can always tell the butcher bird by its white and black and gray feathers."

"The butcher bird is a cousin of the dear vireo family but they are as different as different can be."

"The vireo family eat insects and do all the good they can, while the butcher bird does all the harm possible."

"The butcher bird hunts in the fashion of a bully and a scoundrel and a scamp!"

"You see I do not like the butcher bird."

"We see that," said Nick and Nancy. "We don't blame you, though, Daddy," added Nick.

"I have no use for creatures who hunt for the sake of hunting," Daddy continued, "and who kill for the sake of killing."

"Well, the butcher bird is more cruel in his ways than the hawk."

"The butcher bird will capture mice and small birds and hang them upon twigs in his cold larder and for this reason he has been given the name of butcher bird. For where he lives it looks like a butcher shop with many pieces of food hanging up. And his name is really not one that half describes him."

"For in a real butcher shop there is only the food that is to be eaten by those who come to buy, whereas the butcher bird gets so much more than can be used that it just hangs up until the wind blows it away."

"Yes, that is where he is so dreadful. He doesn't get what he needs to eat. He simply kills for the sake of killing!"

"The butcher bird cannot hold his prey between his feet, so that is another reason why he puts it on twigs or on thorns, and then he can cut it up with his hooked beak."

"The butcher bird makes a noise something like a catbird and he often tries to imitate the voice of a catbird."

"Their nests are of twigs and weeds and they build them so that they look quite rough and unattractive and place them where they find a thorny tree."

"They lay four or five grayish-whitish eggs with brown spots, and they go rather far north in the summer time."

"They are about a great deal in the winter time, too, though some of the family are not."

"They can strike down upon their prey from the air in much the way a hawk can do."

"But I think that is enough about the butcher bird. His real name is Northern Shrike."

"But let us be thankful there are so few birds like him and that almost all of our birds are so gentle and sweet, so pretty and so musical, so friendly and so helpful and so free from greed and cruelty."

"I think the butcher bird stands out as a bad bird because a bad bird is so unusual."

"A Bad Bird."

Meal Lost to Him Forever.

The Philosopher was grumbling about the poor breakfast he had in the dining car. The grapefruit was pithy, the ham was tough, the potatoes were cold, the bread was underdone, and even the coffee—well, it was not worth the 15 cents he had paid for it.

"Cheer up," said the Optimist, always to be found in the smoking compartment if three men are there. "It will be all the same in a hundred years."

"It will not," asserted the Philosopher with emphasis. "It will never be the same. I am behind one meal and I will never catch up. When I pay twice as much for a meal as it is worth, as I usually do these days, I can get even by working harder and making more money that day. But when I skip a meal or when I eat a poor one I am that much behind and I stay behind because I can't eat two meals the next time."

"I feel that I am entitled to two good meals a day at my age and a fair luncheon, and if I do not get them I am a loser to that extent."—New York Sun.

Bird's Beautiful Wooling.

Louise Jordan Mill, in "Woolings and Weddings in Many Lands," tells of a rarely beautiful bird of the paradise family in Mexico which builds a dainty little cone-shaped hut to shield the privacy of his wooing and wedding. It is a lovely little sanctuary, and is so well built that it lasts for several years. About this tiny temple of feathered love he contrives a marvelous little landscape garden. He makes a sward of green moss, and beds and parterres of crimson berries, tiny, bright flowers, and gold and silver sand and grains. Here and there he puts a pearly pebble or a pale pink shell. And so long as his lovelorn mate lasts he drags away and replaces each flower as it fades, keeping the little Eden tidy, gay and sweet for the bright eyes of his tiny love.

The author assures the reader that this is not fiction, but a scientific fact.

Bird Loyal to Its Home.

The phoebe, of the family of fly catchers, builds its nest close to the haunts of man. The same pair of phoebes will return year after year to their former nesting place, often building the new nest on top of the old one.

Everything Points to the Greatest Spring Demand for Ford Products in Company's History

1,202,517 Ford Cars and Trucks were delivered to retail purchasers in the United States alone during 1922

Actual deliveries for the month of December, 1922, greatly exceeded any December in the history of the Ford Motor Co.

It was the ninth consecutive month in which more than 100,000 Ford Cars and Trucks were retailed--keeping the Ford Plants working at capacity to meet dealers' requirements

In many parts of the country dealers are already finding it necessary to specify later delivery dates on certain types because there are no reserve stocks to draw from

Commercial users, business houses and farmers, anticipating their future requirements, are placing orders and taking delivery of Ford Cars, Trucks and Fordson Tractors to insure against delay

Everything points to the biggest shortage of Ford Products this spring that has ever existed

The only way you can be sure of obtaining a Ford Car, Truck or Fordson Tractor is to list your order immediately

We have given you these facts as they actually exist so that if you are planning to purchase a Ford Car, Truck or Tractor for use this spring or summer, you can list your order with our dealer now and be sure of delivery when you need it.

Evil in Suspicion.
He that lives in perpetual suspicion lives the life of a sentinel never relieved, whose business is to look out for and expect an enemy, which is an evil not very far short of perishing by him.—Young.

How Freezing Affects Canned Stuff.
The United States bureau of chemistry says "Most canned goods will stand a little freezing without appreciable change. Repeated freezing and thawing causes the foods to become flabby and gives a flat taste. Such a change, however, does not alter the wholesomeness or food value of the material, but it may change the texture, appearance and palatability. The actual damage varies with the different kinds of canned foods and in general is somewhat similar to damage done by freezing the same food in the fresh condition."
