TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

The regular meeting of the Twentieth Century club will be held on Saturday March 3, at the Auditorium theatre instead of at the club rooms as usual. The reason for the change is that a health film will be presented as part of the program.

The program for the afternoon will begin at the usual time, 2:30 and will be in charge of Marie B. Wolf, the county Red Cross nurse. It will be an open meeting and every woman, especially the mothers of Tawas City is invited and urged to be present. You will find a great deal of value to yourself and your family in the program to be given.

Following is an outline of the program:

1. Roll call. Name one thing to avoid if you want good health, i. e. closed windows, fried foods, etc.
2. Introduction of today's subject. M. B. Wolf, R. N.
3. How you may think about health without worrying. From the Health Builder Mrs. Braddock Be kind to your feet. By M. V. Simko, Chiroprapist Mrs. Braddock Inhale air—Exhale your troubles. By C. Richmond, D. O.

Mrs. Braddock

4. The sword and your health. By Scott O'Connor Mrs. Pringle Clothes and your courage. By Walter Camp Mrs. Pringle

5. How to keep in touch with your growing boys and girls. By Louis E. Fisch, M. D., Ph. D.

Mrs. Ballard

The root of all physical evil—Constipation. By John B. Huber, A. M., M. D. Mrs. Ballard

6. The best insurance for health and life—at your own price. By L. I. Harris, M. D., D. P. H. New York City. Miss Bradley

7. When you need a graduate nurse. By Clara D. Noyes, R. N.

M. B. Wolf, R. N.

8. Film—"Every Woman's Problem" This program will be entertaining as well as instructive and it is hoped that it will be largely attended.

MUST REPORT COMMUNICABLE DISEASES

Attention is called to the following diseases now prevalent in the state which MUST be reported:

TAWAS CITY SCHOOLS

The local oratorical and declamation contest will be given at the high school, Thursday evening, March 8. Several musical numbers will make up a part of the program.

An interesting debate is to be given Wednesday in the physiology class on the following question: "That the youth of school age in the city is stronger and healthier than the youth of the country." This follows a study of physical education in the schools.

The algebra class enjoyed a party last Friday evening as a result of a contest conducted in the class during the week. The losing side furnished the eats.

Absent marks are quite numerous on account of illness.

Henry and Melvin Groff returned to school after three weeks absence.

The sixth grade are planning to study "The Golden Fleece."

A study of current events proved to be of interest to the eighth grade history people. They have made some splendid maps of Tawas township.

The fourth grade are taking up letter writing.

Paul Miller entered the fourth grade Tuesday morning.

AN OPEN LETTER

To the Editor of the Tawas Herald.

Dear Sir:—My attention has been directed to a question in your local columns asking "Why Sunday schools and children's gatherings of the church were prohibited and picture shows and other amusements allowed to run wide open."

In reply to this statement I desire to say that the manager of the local picture show was personally requested to deny admittance to any one of school age during the period of quarantine of the public schools. And all our students were requested to go home and remain there until fully recovered.

Every precaution taken to prevent the spreading of influenza, pneumonia and other communicable diseases in Tawas City should receive hearty co-operation instead of criticism from every citizen in order to keep up the noted healthy condition of our city.

Mrs. John Baguley, Health Officer.

M. E. CHURCH

Sunday, March 4.

Morning service, 10:00. Dr. Harris of Lebanon, Ill., who is in Michigan in the interests of our educational advance drive, will deliver the sermon.

Sunday school, 11:15. Good interest was manifested in our school last Sunday. Our offering far exceeded our quota for our Asbury monument in Washington.

Evening service, 7:00. Dr. Harris will be the preacher in the evening also.

Townline service, 3:00 p. m. Special music at all services. Enjoy the day with us.

S. S. Cross, Pastor.

DO YOU WANT A KINDERGARTEN?

Is your child privileged to attend a kindergarten? If so, wouldn't you like to help other little children to enjoy this advantage? If not, wouldn't you like to obtain this educational experience for your child?

In our state an effort is being made to secure the enactment of a law which provides for the establishment of kindergartens upon petition of parents.

It is a local option bill. It does not force kindergartens upon any community, but makes it easier for parents to obtain them for their children when they desire to do so.

In no state where this law is in force has the extension of the kindergarten been so rapid as to become a hardship to any community. The law has resulted in an orderly increase in the number of classes provided for children during the years of the greatest educational value, when however, their services are of no economic value to their families. Utilizing the years between four and six is the most logical means of providing additional schooling for those children who are forced to become bread winners at an early age.

California has had such a law since 1913 and it has given satisfaction to both parents and educators. Similar laws have been enacted in eight states and in this legislation is being undertaken in a number of other states this winter.

The kindergarten is an investment which brings large returns preventing retardation, and reducing the enormous sums now being spent upon our criminal classes.

For information as to how you can help to secure this law for our state, write to the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City.

MANY RARE FOREIGN BIRDS IMPORTED DURING PAST YEAR

The importation of birds from Europe, Australia, and South America for exhibition purposes especially in zoological parks and private aviaries has shown unusual variety during the past year. Many rare species not often seen in this country have been received, according to the record of the Biological Survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, which inspects entries consigned to importers and exhibitors and endeavors to prevent the introduction of species dangerous to agriculture.

Among the unusual birds received may be mentioned a number of kagus from New Caledonia, of which seven came in with one large shipment. The kagu is so rare that a few years ago there was no specimen in the United States National Museum or in Philadelphia. There are four of these birds at present living in the National Zoological Park in Washington, D. C. In this same shipment were included 6,000 love birds, the brilliant little green grass parakeets used for fortune telling.

Other rare birds imported in the same consignment were a Ducorps cockatoo from the Solomon Island, entering this country for the first time, a Bourke parakeet, a black cockatoo, a Fiji shining parakeet, a New Guinea bower bird, and a New Guinea manucode. Less rare, but interesting, were 4,000 zebra finches, which have apparently fared better than the lovebirds that entered with them.

Among other unusual birds now to be seen in some of the zoological gardens may be noted the Cassin macaw and two Bolivian parrots, a black guan from Venezuela, Philippine pectoral rails, New Guinea pink headed pigeons, the semipalmated goose, Morton Bay rosella parrot, and green lory, and the Princess Alexandra parakeet.

DEATH OF MRS ALBERT STEALY

The entire community was shocked and grieved on Monday evening when a telegram from Detroit announced the death of Mrs. Albert Stealy at the Ford hospital at five o'clock that afternoon.

Mrs. Stealy underwent an operation about ten days ago and it was thought at first that she might recover, but last Friday Dr. Stealy was summoned to Detroit by the news that his wife was failing very fast. Miss Thelma Stealy, who was attending the U. of M. was also summoned to the bedside of her mother.

Mrs. Stealy was of a kindly disposition and will be sadly missed by all who knew her. She was a member of the Eastern Star and the Ladies' Literary club of which she was secretary for a number of years. She was also a member of the M. E. church, where she sang in the choir.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Dr. Albert Stealy, one son, John Walker of Bay City, one daughter, Miss Thelma Stealy of East Tawas, one sister, Mrs. Steer of Detroit, and a large circle of friends.

The entire community extends sympathy to Dr. Stealy and family in their hour of sorrow.

The remains were placed in a vault in Detroit until spring, when they will be taken to Alma for burial.

DEATH OF JOHN FURST

John Furst died at 3:00 a. m. on Thursday, Feb. 22, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harry Haight, in East Tawas.

John Furst was born in Finland. He came to this country about 25 years ago, and with his wife and family lived in Sherman township for a short time, then moving to Alabaster, where they lived for nearly 25 years. A year ago they moved to East Tawas and bought a home here.

Mr. Furst died suddenly, as he had not been very ill and his death came as a shock to his family. He had been troubled with heart disease and asthma for some years. He was born Nov. 18, 1854, and was 71 years old at the time of his death.

Those left to mourn a kind husband and father are his wife, Mary Furst, two daughters, Mrs. Harry Haight and Mrs. Marie Cooley of Alabaster, and one son, John Furst of Alabaster. One daughter, Anna, died in Alabaster.

The funeral was held from the home on Monday at one o'clock p. m. Rev. George Engdahl of Bay City Zion Lutheran church officiated. Duets were sung at the funeral by Mrs. John Anderson and Miss Blanche Richards. Interment was made in the Alabaster cemetery.

THIS AND THAT

The rapid moving younger generation is convinced that Pop should show more pep.

Many young men nowadays are studying to be bankers and manufacturers, and the first thing to learn is how to sweep out the office floor.

The crowd got out in the football games all last fall in any kinds of weather, but there are any signs of a storm now—they might get cold if they went to church.

HERD MILK FOR BABY

"If milk is obtained in bulk quite fresh from the cow," says Dr. L. Emmett Holt in the Delinctor, "that to be used for infant feeding should be strained through absorbent cotton, or clean linen or cotton cloth which has been boiled, or two thicknesses of surgeon's gauze, into quart or pint bottles. These bottles should be placed in cold spring water or ice water up to their necks and allowed to stand for at least half an hour. This first cooling is very important. The baby's food for the day can be made up later when convenient. The milk chosen for the baby should preferably be herd milk, the mixed milk of several cows. There is no objection to using the milk from one cow, except that it is likely to vary more from day to day. Milk from grade cows is to be preferred to the rich milk of highly-bred Jerseys or Guernseys. The richest milk is by no means the best for the average baby."

Following the complaint of the London tailors that the painters do not know how to put upon the canvas a well-dressed man comes the news that in that city well-dressed men are becoming more and more scarce. Those who were once most scrupulous break the sartorial laws without compunction. They discard the silk hat and the frock coat; they go to the theater in business garb; they disregard at will the conventions which save civilization from barbarism. Here is a sad declension from ancient standards. Is the war responsible? That is the easiest explanation, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. But it may be doubted if the war did more than accelerate a tendency long visible. Look at our ancestors in their wigs, their ruffles, their knee breeches, their swallow-tail coats and all the rest. Have they not long shamed their sartorially degenerate descendants?

The first thing an enlightened administration sets out to do is to care for health. This is a truth that may be verified in medieval history, says the Egyptian Mail: A public benefactor left his money for hospitals; the same thing has been done in China and Japan. In India and Egypt bequests have been lavished in the shape of wakfs for some form or other of care of the poor. But the difficulty has been in their administration. Until Western science came along the endowments were often ill-spent, or not spent at all. In Egypt it has remained for the British occupation to enlarge ideas and set in motion by means of the Lady Cromer dispensaries, maternity schools and modern hospitals, a movement that is one of the deepest and most far-reaching of any that owed their origin to the founder of Christianity.

One of the victims of fashion on this continent is the egret—our own American bird of beautiful white plumage, called the "algrette" in the trade. Purveyors of fashion and their woman patrons have rolled up a long ill-ability for fairly unspeakable cruelties that have been practiced on the egret in getting the "algrette" into the society column. But that is all over now, thanks to Uncle Sam and the various sovereign states. The egret has been saved from actual extinction by a happy accident. A man who bought a shooting preserve in South Carolina fortunately found a small colony of egrets, or snowy cranes, on the estate. He protected them jealously, and now the tribe has "come back."

Are we going forward or backward? Wherein does "progress" really consist? Is it, for example, a question of the means of locomotion and transport? Did railroads mark an advance upon stage coaches? Is mankind any the better, morally, physically or intellectually, by reason of the fact that he can travel through the air instead of by sea or land; or because the wars of the future are likely to be decided by competition under the waters or in the air instead of by big battalions, or by navies that rule the waves? Or again: Is "progress" dependent rather on the transmission of hereditary qualities or upon environment?

Candlepower. "One candlepower" means a light equivalent to that from a sperm-oil candle seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, weighing six to the pound, and burning 120 grains of wax an hour. This is a standard for testing brilliance of light.

Uncommon Sense By JOHN BLAKE

YOUR AMUSEMENTS

AMUSEMENT is useful and necessary. Without it the world would not only be a dull place but an impossible place.

Games, theaters, novels, everything that helps you enjoy your leisure, are just as necessary as the faculties that help you do your work.

Expensive amusements, however, are only for the rich. The man who has his way to make needs amusement, but he cannot afford to contribute to it very heavily.

And unless he can make his amusement pay for itself he will never get half as much as he needs.

Fortunately it is very easy to make amusement return enough profit so that it is practically free.

Outdoor amusements, from the costly golf to the inexpensive walking, can all be made to pay if they return in health what they cost in money.

All of them will do so if they are indulged in wisely.

Many a man gets out of golf or tennis a physical condition which could not be had at any price save that of money and time spent in exercise.

The man who can enjoy no exercise but golf had better play golf. If he plays regularly he will keep his blood in circulation, digest his food and supply his lungs with the oxygen that his body needs for its complicated processes.

If tennis is the only thing he likes, he had better play tennis than let his body run to seed for want of care.

He can get as much out of walking as he can out of golf or tennis. But most men will not walk and they will play games. So the games earn their keep in health and are not an extravagance.

If you read the right kind of novels and go to the right kind of plays they will stimulate thought and may pay for themselves many times over.

Trash between covers or on the stage does nobody any good, and is consequently too expensive to indulge in.

Don't be afraid of spending money on recreation if it is intelligent recreation. The money will be returned in the end. It is not an extravagance, it is merely a necessity of life, coated pleasantly with the sugar of enjoyment.

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a galoot like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: Rather oldish... gray. Seems past the flirtatious age. But at some odd moment you find that he is still a chipper bit. Dresses stylishly as he would become a youth and he always makes you realize that a man is as young as he feels and that a woman has to make up to be anywhere.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY WHEN SHOPPING

By MRS. HARLAND H. ALLEN

(© 1922, Harland H. Allen.)

PROBLEM OF SHRINKAGE

The question of shrinkage is an important one to the shopper. It is no little thing to lose 100 square inches out of a square yard, as sometimes happens when a flannel or other wool material returns from the tubs.

Wool materials especially present grave dangers from this source. They should always be shrunk before making up, otherwise they will not only felt and harden if laundered, but they will shrink the first time the garment is worn on a damp day, and will spot from rain.

The reason wool shrinks so badly is something like this: The fibers of wool, when seen under the microscope, are composed of many little overlapping segments that are toothed and notched at the edges. When wet, these little notches open and expand, and then catch in one another and become tangled, thus causing felting and matting of the cloth. Often, even when the laundering is done as carefully as possible, the best wool garments will still shrink in daily wear just from the warmth, moisture and friction of the body. You notice this especially under the arms where sweaters and woolen garments are pretty sure to mat and thicken.

The average wool material shrinks from three-quarters to one inch to the yard. You can judge something about goods by outside appearances. For instance, those fabrics seem to shrink most which contain curly, rather than hairlike, wool fibers; that have a carded rather than a combed yarn; and in which the yarns lie close together in the weave. Colored wools are less apt to shrink, because of the thorough washing which precedes the dyeing, especially when they have been dyed in the cloth, instead of dyed in the wool.

Cotton goods will average one or two inches shrinkage to the yard. Some women shrink all cotton goods before making; but as this takes away some of the attractive "new look," many prefer to make their gowns larger than necessary just at first to allow for shrinkage. Linen cloth shrinks very little, though coarsely woven linen will stretch.

It is sometimes very convenient to be able to find out just how much the goods you contemplate buying will shrink. This can be computed by measuring the length and width of a sample, and then washing it with hot water and soap. First overcast the raw edges so there will be no loss of threads. Dry and iron without stretching. Measure again, and the loss gives the shrinkage.

One million dollars a day is what ice costs the American people. The national ice bill for 70 years is as big as the present national debt. Paying for ice until 1992 is not going to start an economic earthquake. Why worry, then, about the national debt? Somehow, a dollar handled by Uncle Sam looks ten times as big as a dollar handled by the individual American.

If your own car has a flat tire, think of the owner of the one that was stolen and figured in a pistol fight between police and the thieves. The news item says it was "punctured in 52 places."

"Riding in autos will be safer when drivers stop racing trains for the railroad crossings." There also will be fewer suicides when fewer people jump from bridges, shoot themselves with pistols and take gas.

DATE HAS HIGH FOOD VALUE

Fruit Not Properly Appreciated, According to Experts of the Department of Agriculture.

According to the Atwater bulletin on food composition issued by the United States Department of Agriculture, the dried date is composed as follows: Carbohydrates, 70.6 per cent; protein, 1.9 per cent; fat, 2.5 per cent; water, 13.8 per cent; ash (mineral salts) 1.2 per cent; refuse (fiber), 10 per cent.

"The protein and fat content, though small, is in a readily available form, the protein as a builder and the fat as a fuel," writes Dr. Charles L. Bennett. "A man who includes two pounds of dates as the bulk of a day's ration will not require much additional protein. In fact, a pure date dietary meets the requirements of many Arabs in every-day activities for long periods at a time, without the addition of other foods."

"The value of the date as a food is not half appreciated by the American public," writes another authority, Dr. John Harvey Kellogg. "The date not only furnishes a variety of sugar which is readily assimilated and which is much more wholesome than cane sugar, but it also supplies a fine quality of food iron, which is entirely lacking in cane sugar. An ounce of dates, in fact, supplies one-third more food iron than an ordinary beefsteak and iron of much finer quality."

MANY OLD SCORES EVENED

Stenographer Improved Glorious Opportunity to Administer a Gentle Rap to Her Fellow Workers.

The stenographer in a business office in a southern Indiana town had endured many jests based on her single state and the number of her birthdays. Chief among her tormentors had been the "boss," whose own birthdays had passed the half-hundred mark, but whose appearance belied this. He took great pride in this latter fact.

One morning the stenographer answered the telephone, to hear her brother's voice inquiring for "the old man," meaning their father, also employed in the office. She did not approve of this mentioning her father, and she saw, too, a way opened to repay some of the jests of which she had been the object.

"Old man?" she inquired. "Well, there are several old men around here; just to which one do you have reference?" she asked in a tone that was audible all over the office.

Absolute silence for several minutes was followed by the voice of the "boss," repeating, "Several old men around here."—Indianapolis News.

University Radio Courses.

Forecasting millions of listeners, the bulk of them of college age, the national radio chamber of commerce is developing a plan to establish radio extension courses in American colleges and universities.

England and Germany, it is said, are planning to broadcast university extension courses. Several prominent institutions of learning in the United States have made a beginning in this direction, the announcement continued, and their reports of the encouraging success attending their efforts show us that the possibilities of the new method are not underestimated.

Sixty other educational institutions are broadcasting educational and musical programs, forty-seven of them being colleges and universities. The combined area nominally covered by these institutions has been estimated to be seven or eight times the total area of the United States.

Ragman Put in Stocks.

In England the punishment of the stocks has been inflicted within the memory of men now living. In the Manchester Guardian of June 14, 1872, there is an account of a rag and bone dealer of intemperate habits being fixed in the stocks for drunkenness and disorderly conduct.

"Twenty-six years had elapsed since the stocks were last used," states this account, "and their reappearance created no little sensation and amusement, several hundreds of persons being attracted to the spot where they were fixed."

"The 'amusement' does not appear to have been shared by the prisoner, who was released after four hours and 'seemed anything but pleased with the laughter and derision of the crowd.'"

Colorado Town's Claim to Fame.

Meeker, Colo., lays claim to being the third largest inland city in the United States, and is county seat of Rio Blanco county, the last remaining undeveloped empire in the Union, and the last stamping ground of the Ute. Rio Blanco county claims the greatest oil domes in the country; enough unmined coal to supply the nation for 50 years and the largest and greatest length of outcroppings of uranium and vanadium ores in the world, an extensive natural gas field, carbon black plant and extensive asphaltum beds. Meeker was the scene of one of the greatest Indian massacres the country has ever known.

How Leadville Aided Denver.

Leadville has been called the cradle for the rebirth of Denver. This is because this great camp produced the great fortunes for men who later removed to Denver and really built the city. Of their number was H. A. W. Tabor. A half-billion dollars' worth of precious metals have been taken from Leadville mines and mining still is not only active, but on the increase in the district.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 23RD JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

I desire to announce to the voters of the 23rd Judicial Circuit, that after due consideration I have decided to be a candidate for the nomination for Circuit Judge on the republican ticket at the primary election to be held on March 7th next. I have served six years as prosecuting attorney of Alcona county, three years as city attorney of the city of East Tawas and am now serving my third term as prosecuting attorney for Iosco county. I will appreciate your support and promise you that if I should be nominated and elected that I will treat all persons with fairness and perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability.

Ivory Carving in Far North.
One of the most widely followed professions in the Far North is that of the ivory carver, and it is not only an industry, but a pastime as well, filling many of the long evenings of the long arctic winter. The Eskimos have never attained the perfection of the Chinese artisans, due partly to the greater crudity of their methods and partly to the fact that they use the ivory of the walrus instead of that of the elephant.—New York Sun

Hali's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions. MOELLER BROTHERS

The Poison Was Switched

By MORRIS SCHULTZ

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I hope this new lot of tea won't taste so bitter," said Adeline Leeman. "I never noticed it," replied her husband, Frank. "How are you feeling today, dear?"

"A little better. It's strange that I should have been so ill when Doctor Willis can't find any reason for it."

"Oh, well, I think you've turned the corner," replied her husband solicitously.

He watched her covertly as she made the tea and poured out the cups. Just then a ring came at the bell. Adeline got up and went to open the door. That was Frank's opportunity to empty the package of arsenic into her cup.

He had been dosing her for three weeks. Arsenic was a good, standard poison. He had gone to another city to buy it. Nobody looked for arsenic unless suspicion were aroused, and Frank Leeman had been very careful. When Adeline was dead he meant to marry Pauline Amhurst, who was much younger and prettier.

And then there was their neighbor, Tom Harrison. Harrison and Adeline had been getting far too friendly. That, in his mind, justified him. He would be heartily glad when Adeline was out of the way.

He had given her enough arsenic to kill three men, but Adeline's system had been strangely resistant, and at last he had become impatient. Into his wife's cup of tea he had poured enough arsenic to kill a dozen giants.

A few hours of pain, the attendance of the unsuspecting old doctor—then he would be free. Harrison had diagnosed the case as gastric ulcer, and there would be no inquest.

His wife was a long time at the door. Frank Leeman went out to see who it was. It was Harrison. A sudden rage assailed him. He looked at their smiling faces.

He was going to end all that. "See here, Harrison," he shouted, "I've had about enough of your company!"

Harrison looked at him in blank amazement. He had never had any trouble with Leeman. He could not imagine what it was all about.

"Why—why, Leeman!" he stammered. "I won't have you hanging around my wife. Get that? Well, put it in your pipe and smoke it," Leeman returned.

Adeline, with a reproachful look, had gone into the dining room. Harrison expostulated, stammered, and went away. Leeman went back. He glanced at his wife's face. Adeline was flushed, indignant, but she said nothing at all.

A few hours more and he would have seen the last of her forever. He stirred some sugar into his tea and drank it.

"Did the tea taste bitter?" he asked. "No, this seems a better lot," Adeline answered. "Frank, why did you insult Mr. Harrison just now?"

"Because you're getting too friendly with him," he answered. "Well, dear, if you feel that way I'll never have anything more to do with him as long as—"

Why was she looking at him like that? Why didn't the arsenic begin to work? A dose as large as he had given her ought to have struck her down by now. Had anything gone wrong?

"Why, Frank, dear, why are you looking at me like that? As I was saying, I'll never have anything more to do with him as long as—"

What was that strange, metallic taste in his mouth? And why was he afraid?

An awful suspicion ran through him. He leaped to his feet, stood staring at her, clapped his hand to his heart.

"Don't you feel well, dear?" Was that a smile of triumph on her face? "What—did you do with the tea-cups?"

"The tea-cups, dear. Why, nothing. I—I emptied some tea out of the saucers and put them back again."

"Which saucers? Which saucers?" And now he knew. And it was too late. Nothing could save him. He reeled, groaning, to the sofa, and lay down.

"Frank, dear, what is the matter?" "You changed the tea-cups."

"So—you tried to kill me, Frank. did you? Well, the tables are turned. You aren't going to marry that woman, you know. And I'm not going to marry Mr. Harrison either—at least, not as long as you live."

And Leeman, relapsing fast into unconsciousness, saw only the triumphant face of the woman whom he had tried to murder.

Thought He Could Hold Him. It was generally conceded that the presence of Napoleon on a battlefield was worth 40,000 men. Tradition has handed this down to us and history has accepted it.

"Nevertheless," old Marshal Cheeswitz used to say, "put him on the field with one aide, or not to be captious about it, let him have two. Then give me 40,000 men. I'll undertake to hold my own against him."

Almost Alone. "There is the happy pair." "I saw them at Niagara Falls." "They wanted to be alone, I suppose?"

"Well, they were alone with the exception of about 200 chauffeurs and guides who wanted to show them around."

BOTH MASTERS OF RHETORIC

Scholarly Consideration of the Literary Styles of Abraham Lincoln and Thomas Jefferson.

In American letters we fix on Abraham Lincoln, as our type of natural expression; the legend of his humble beginnings and the plainness of his manner deceive us into a conviction that he was less indebted to art than Thomas Jefferson, and we therefore talk of the rhetorical extravagances of the Declaration and contrast them with the Attic simplicities of the Gettysburg address. John Erskine writes in the North American Review. Perhaps we see a final proof of our sound taste in the story that Matthew Arnold gave up the address for lost when he got to the colloquial "proposition"; "dedicated to the proposition," we say, was more than his artificial spirit could bear. Whether Arnold expressed such an opinion, or whether he would have been right in so doing, is of less consequence than our emotional readiness, if we cultivate the natural, to accept the Lincoln speech as an illustration of our ideal, and to set it over against the artificial of Jefferson's great document—to detect a literary manner in such a phrase as "When in the course of human events," and nothing but naturalness in "Fourscore and seven years ago"—or to find an empty and sounding rhetoric in "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," but only the democratic syllables of common sense in "government of the people, by the people, for the people." Both documents are as rich as they can well be in rhetoric, as all great oratory is, and of the two Lincoln's, as a matter of fact, is rather more artful in the progress of its ideas.

NOT LONG HELD IN MEMORY

Cleveland Man's Experience Is Very Much What Would Come to Most of Us.

It isn't the Rip Van Winkles only who come back to find themselves forgotten. That sort of thing occurs with painful frequency in everyday life. Nor is it necessary for the victim to stay away 20 years. Much less time will efface him.

Some time ago a man came back from the West, where he had made his home for ten years, and set out to renew old acquaintances. He had been a prominent man in the business life of the city and a member of a leading firm. It was to the habitation of this firm that he directed his footsteps.

As he passed down the salesroom one of his old partners came to him with outstretched hand.

"Why, hullo, how are you? How are things going, and how long do you stay? Sorry I'm so busy. See you later." But he never came back.

Then the senior partner saw him and came forward.

"Well, well, this is a surprise!" he cried. "How are things coming, and how long do you stay in the city? Drop in whenever you can find time. Sorry I'm so busy. Good-day."

This visitor went away, feeling hurt and ignored, but after all there's little sentiment in business, and this Cleveland man's experience has been duplicated countless times, no doubt.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Bird's Curious Modification.

There is in New Zealand a form of crow (Hura) in which the female has undergone a very curious modification. It is probably the only case in which the bill is differently shaped in the two sexes. The bird has taken on the habits of the woodpecker, and the stout crow-like bill of the cock-bird is admirably adapted to tap trees, and if they sound hollow, to dig down to the burrow of the insect within.

But it lacks the horny-pointed tip of the tongue, which in the true woodpecker is provided with recurved hairs, thus enabling that bird to pierce the grub and draw it out. In the hura the bill of the hen-bird has become much elongated and slightly curved, and when the cock has dug down to the burrow, the hen inserts her long bill and draws out the grub, which they then divide between them.

Siamese Fashions.

To be really in the fashion in Siam it is not enough to have clothes of the latest cut and a knowledge of what, when and where to wear these garments. Good taste does not help much, either. There is a rigid rule for every day of the week, which is followed by those who have the inclination and the price. On a Sunday the things to wear are red robes and rubies. On a Monday nobody is in style without moonstones and white regalia. Tuesday pink and corals should be worn, with stripes and catseye ornaments kept for Wednesday. No one can look smart on a Thursday without going out in green with emeralds. Light blue and diamonds are the thing for Friday, and on a Saturday one wears dark blue and sapphires.—New York Sun.

Slightly Mixed.

When Paderewski made his first appearance in Boston many years ago, one of the 'cellists in the orchestra became very much excited and springing to his feet made a little speech. Shouts of "order" and "sit down" had no effect on the perpetrator of this breach of orchestral etiquette. The orating 'cellist was a Pole, and he ended his ex tempore speech, glowing with patriotic pride, thus: "You see there Paderewski, my countryman, a Pole (rescendo). He is like Caesar (fortissimo). He came, he saw, he conquered!"

Almost Alone.

"There is the happy pair." "I saw them at Niagara Falls." "They wanted to be alone, I suppose?"

"Well, they were alone with the exception of about 200 chauffeurs and guides who wanted to show them around."

ANIMAL HEROES

"I have heard lately of so many animal heroes," said Daddy, "that I think this evening I will tell you about a few."

"I know how much you both love and admire animals, and I know you will want to hear of these."

"Oh, yes, Daddy," said Nancy, "please tell me about them. Animals are wonderful."

"They are. There's no mistake about that," said Nick. "Nancy's right when she says animals are wonderful."

"Then I'll begin with the small pet building, whose name was Pete."

"And before I go any further," Daddy said, "I want to tell you that all these animals had little pieces written about them in the newspapers."

"That, of course, was only right, but you can imagine how proud their masters and mistresses were to have their dear brave pets receive the praise they deserved in the papers. It was very wonderful for them, and they cut out the clippings about their pets. For it was splendid to think that their animals had been so brave that it was news important enough and thrilling enough to go in the newspapers."

"It was right on the first page, too, of every paper—these true stories of the animal heroes I'm going to tell you about."

"As I said, there was Pete. "Pete saved two grown-up people and two children."

"A blaze started in the basement of the house. It was a dreadful blaze, and came when the people were sleeping."

"Pete was awakened by the smell of smoke, and before he knew it the firemen arrived, as he had not realized how he had barked."

"He only knew he was trying to do the best and wisest thing and that he must do it quickly."

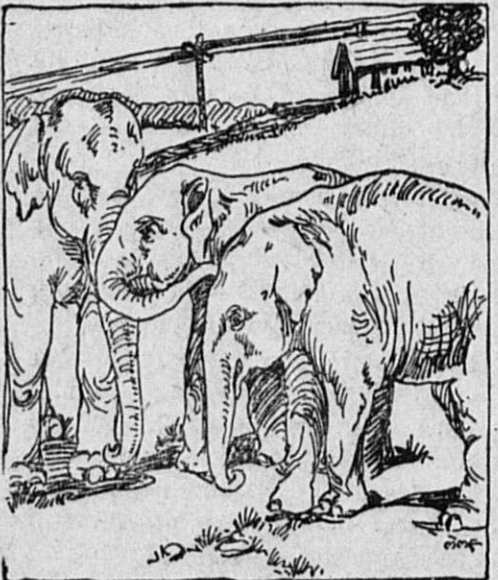

"Well, after the firemen came, Pete still seemed very much excited. People had rushed from the house, and the firemen were trying to keep the blaze down as much as they could so as not to injure the house any more than need be."

"The firemen spoke of how excellent a thing it was that the people had been able to get out before the fire became so bad."

"And it was the dog who made this possible. He barked so that some one passing noticed and sent in the alarm."

"He's behaving very strangely now," said another fireman.

"And Pete was behaving very strangely. Pete's home was in a boarding house and he had remembered that the people on the top floor had not come downstairs and that they were doubtless sound asleep.

"So he barked and barked, and at last the firemen said to each other: "Let's see what he wants to do."

"So several of them followed Pete as he led them through the dense smoke to the top of the house. In the rooms they found four people sleeping soundly. And just in time they rescued them. For the flames in another few minutes would have been too powerful."

"Pete remembered better than anyone else. I think Pete was a hero, and a very cool-headed, wise, splendid dog. He did more than any person, too!"

"Then there was a collie dog who saved thirty people in a fire."

"They would all have been burned if it had not been for the collie barking his alarm and dragging out those who had already been overcome by smoke."

"He was the second dog hero I had to tell you about and the third case of heroism I wanted to speak to you about was this:

"Three elephants, Queenie, Babe and Albert, all belonging to a circus, kept several trains of cars from being destroyed by fire."

"They were all in their winter quarters and a fire started but these splendid, noble elephants pushed almost all of the cars to safety and did not think anything of their bravery and of their splendid work."

"Animal heroes!" said Daddy. "Oh, there are so many of them and of dear animal heroes, too!"

HALE AND VICINITY

Mrs. W. E. Glendon has been on the sick list during the past week. Rev. and Mrs. Hughes went to Bay City Monday to assist in the work of the Albion Educational advance during the next ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Graves went to Bay City on Monday, where Mrs. G., who has been ill for several months, will receive medical treatment.

Mrs. Emma Wilson went to Flint last Friday to visit at the homes of her son, James Wilson, and her daughter, Mrs. Clinton Montney. Both families have been sick with the flu.

Friends of Bert Cogswell will be sorry to hear that he is very low at his home in AuGres with complications following a severe case of pneumonia. Very little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Miss Lottie VanWormer is at home for an extended visit. Miss VanWormer, who has a position in the office of the Buick, has been granted a leave of absence because of ill health, and is at home to recuperate.

Mrs. Benj. Corbett was called to Sterling on Saturday of last week by the death of her son-in-law, Matt Stanley. Mr. Stanley had been ill for some time. Mrs. Stanley and children are with Hale relatives for a season.

The barn and contents, a winter's supply of hay and grain, on the farm of Harley Fairchilds was destroyed by fire of unknown origin on Tuesday afternoon. It was thought at first that the loss was partially covered by insurance, but later advice was that the policy had lapsed.

Little Audrey Syze entertained about twenty-five of her friends on Thursday evening of last week. The evening was thoroughly enjoyed. A special feature was little Wayne Syze, Doris Syze, Dorothy Frost, Beatrice Carroll and Belle Greve, who becomingly decorated with crepe paper aprons and caps served the delicious refreshments provided.

Election time is drawing near and we hear the merits of the candidates for the different offices being discussed. A Peoples caucus has been called for Tuesday, March 6, at 2:00 o'clock p. m. and a Progressive Republican caucus on Thursday, March 8, at 2:00 p. m. It doesn't say so on the notice, but we assume that all voters are invited—which includes the ladies, who have heretofore not been in evidence.

Obituary—Mrs. Will Glendenin
Nettie Westervelt was born in Cortland township, Kent county, Michigan, February 21, 1872, and came to Iosco county with her parents at the age of four years. Her girlhood was spent in Wilber, where she was a student in District No. 1, later attending East Tawas high school to fit herself for the teaching profession, which she followed for about three years. While teaching in the Love school in Plainfield she became converted and joined the Baptist church.

On March 23, 1892 she was united in marriage to Will Glendenin, formerly of Port Huron, and to this union eight children were born, three dying in infancy. They have been residents of Hale until two years ago, when the family moved to Flint.

Mrs. Glendenin was a true and faithful wife, a devoted mother and a sincere friend. For several years past she has been sorely afflicted with asthma which greatly weakened her endurance, and her last illness was short. Her death came as a great shock to her family and friends. It occurred at Flint on Sunday, Feb. 18.

The funeral was held from the Hale Baptist church on Tuesday, Feb. 20, and despite the severity of the weather was largely attended. Rev. Joshua Roberts preached the funeral sermon, taking his text from the last chapter in the book of Daniel. The husband, daughter and two sons were present, also her father, two sisters and two brothers, besides other relatives. The children are: Miss Pearl of Cincinnati, Elgin of Five Channels and Ellsworth, Norman and Donald of Flint.

The flowers that covered the casket were very beautiful and the hymns, "Asleep in Jesus," "Gates Ajar," and "It is Well With My Soul" were beautiful and appropriate. Burial was made in the Hale cemetery. Her many friends extend sympathy to the bereaved ones.

Obituary—Eugene Furister

George Eugene Furister was born at Bridgeport, Mich., Dec. 26, 1871. He came to Iosco county with his parents and settled near Tawas when he was about a year old. He came to this county when the country was new and when settlements dotted the plains. He and his brother and sisters attended school in the plains in those early days, and also the first Sunday school started in Plainfield township.

He was married to Ida Brandal in 1896. To this union were born seven children, Elwin, Hazel, Sydney, Blanche, Elroy, Preston and Austin. Sydney preceded him in death two years ago.

Mr. Furister was taken sick at his home in Fiber in the upper peninsula early last spring and later went to the home of his brother Ray, in Ocoela, Ohio, for medical treatment, where he died Feb. 19, 1923, aged 51 years, one month and 26 days.

He died trusting in Jesus, was fully conscious that the end was near, selected the hymns he wished sung at his funeral and prayed as his loved ones were gathered around his bed. Then he requested that his remains be taken to Hale for burial and that services be held from the Baptist church.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, the six children before mentioned, two sisters, Mrs. Benj. Corbett of Hill township and Mrs. Fred Humphrey of Hale, and three brothers, Edwin of Agness, Ore., Ray of Ocoela, Ohio, and Vernon of Detroit, as well as a host of other relatives and friends.

He was a kind and loving husband, father and brother and will be greatly missed by those who knew and loved him.

HEMLOCK BAPTIST CHURCH

Bible school, 2:00 p. m. Topic, "Jesus answering his opposers."

Note change in the time of services. Preaching service, 3:00. Theme, "Jesus' terms for answer of prayer."

We were glad to welcome M. S. Pfahl back to our services and see her look so well after her serious operation.

Philosophical Youngster.
Mother was entertaining a former schoolmate at a luncheon when Bobby entered the room, with dirty face, stockings torn and cap all mud. Mother was angry. Margaret Ann said "Don't worry, mother. That happens in the best regulated families."

Boone Tree Named.
The "Daniel Boone Judgment tree," an elm, at Fenue Osage, 55 miles west of St. Louis, has been nominated for a place in the Hall of Fame for trees. The tree stands upon a farm tilled by Boone in 1820.

Advantage in Secrecy.
Secrecy has many advantages, for when you tell a man at once and straightforwardly the purpose of any object, he fancies there is nothing in it.—Goethe.

An epidemic of heavy colds or grippe is prevalent in Reno. Nearly all in some families are afflicted with it at the same time.

Mr. Glendenin's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith of Standish, were in attendance at the funeral at Hale on Tuesday.

The weather was very severe last week, so much so that one of our friends reports his teeth to be frozen up in a cup of water one morning.

A dancing party was held at the Gleaner hall on Monday evening of this week for Henry Steihl and family, who will soon be moving to Flint.

The milder turn of weather last Saturday was a welcome change for all and the snow banks are now settling some. Looks like the season for "rubber boots" was near.

Cecil Westervelt was called home from Rose City by telephone in time to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Will Glendenin. He returned to his place of employment on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Westervelt returned to Flint on Thursday last week, having been called here by the death of Charlie's sister, Nettie Glendenin. They accompanied the family up from Flint.

There were about twenty gathered at the town hall last Thursday for a donation party for Rev. Grabill and a birthday celebration. Those whose birthdays came in February or March had special invitations. After the inner man was satisfied with a sumptuous dinner, Rev. Grabill fed the spiritual being with a very interesting sermon on "Service." As the day was well spent, the merry-makers hastened to their respective homes.

Corrigan School Notes

Our motto this week was: "If one does all he can, though he does not succeed, blame him not that did it."

Some awfully sharp mornings last week. Children came with healthy looking faces and cold hands.

Examinations this week. Ask the fifth grade about their exam. in arithmetic.

The eighth grade did fine work on the exams. Martin is not able to attend school yet. We feel very sorry for him.

Mr. Gregg said that the flag would have another star added in April. One of the fifth graders wished to know if they would have to add another stripe also.

Marie said a strait is a piece of land. We spent our morning exercises Thursday in honor of Washington. Everyone had something to say about it, even the chart class. The readings and saying were as follows:

A sketch of Washington's life
Chas. Foghins
A story of his life
Ella Ross
The flag in battle and some of Washington's rules
Beatrice Webster
Washington as a sailor
Marie Hansen

Washington as a surveyor
Elwood McMurray
A few of his sayings
Vida Black
Washington and the colt
Vera Black
Washington and the cherry tree
Eldon McMurray

One of the little beginners certainly deserves credit for the way he expressed himself: "Washington was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of the people." Melvin Black.

We are now getting selections for Longfellow's birthday.

Melvin Black, a little beginner, has only missed one day since he started school after vacation.

Ella Ross took the head speller-down Monday night, so she is at the head of the spelling class this week.

Those receiving certificates this month were Ella, Elwood, and Eldon. Ella and Elwood have perfect attendance.

Eldon has missed only two days. Bad roads this month. This has been our poorest attendance month this year.

The third grade are improving fast in multiplication.

The fifth grade have completed their personal hygiene and are now reviewing.

Mr. Gregg said that the fifth grade have to review denominate numbers again. Please don't ask us why.

Opportunities Ever Present.

Men can be as original now as ever if they had but the courage, even the insight. Heroic souls in old times had no more opportunities than we have but they used them. There were daring deeds to be done then—are there none now? Wrong to be redressed—are there none now?—Charles Kingsley.

Salt in the Oceans.

If a box six feet deep were filled with sea water and allowed to evaporate there would be two inches of salt left on the bottom of the box. Taking the average depth of the oceans of the world to be three miles, there would be a layer of salt 230 feet thick over the entire bed should the water evaporate.

Call for Assistance

Bobbie, amusing himself on the sidewalk in front of the house, stopped Uncle Albert, who was on his way downtown to attend the movies. "Uncle Albert, come in and help me ask mother to coax me to go!" he cried.
