HOW TO SAVE MONEY WHEN SHOPPING

By MRS. HARLAND H. ALLEN (©, 1922, Harland H. Allen.) CHOOSING LAUNDRY TUBS

Every laundress should, if possiple, have three tubs, as this makes for the greatest economy of time. Where you cannot have stationary tubs installed, portable galvanized iron tubs are excellent to use, as they give long service, are light to handle, and do not rust. That is, they will hospital at Battle Creek is now at not rust as long as you are careful the very peak of its usefulness. Nearfitted with wooden cleats and clamped to the washbench. The practice usually is to keep wooden tubs stored in a cellar where moisture is more or less constant; or even to keep a wet sponge in the tub to prevent drying. And then you have to remember that constant moisture is apt to attract roaches.

Fiber tubs are very light, easy to handle and to keep clean, but if you get a good quality they are more expensive than the other kinds. Fiber tubs are made out of wood pulp, molded into shape and finished with a high luster, and as they are made in one piece, there is no danger of their leaking or falling apart.

Of course tubs come in many sizes. The ordinary family laundry tub should hold from 12 to 15 gallons, as it will then be large enough to work without splashing.

The height at which tubs are placed 30 acres. is most important. The top of the tub should come just to the end of the hip. feet six inches is to place the tubs inches from the floor. A good rule 28,000 quarts of home canned fruit.

Hospital Is Home-like,

The men in the hospital feel that the world at large, chanting in a highthey are at home. The treatment is the accepted one of fresh air, rest and nourishment. The hospital is located on a lofty ridge of hills-one of the highest spots in southern Michigan. The scenery and views are among the most beautiful in the state. This of course has a highly favorable effect on the patients' morale. Dr. Robert B. Harkness, state commander of the Legion, keeps in close touch with the institution. From his professional viewpoint, he regards the hospital as a wonderfully efficient enterprise, and his interest-as well as that of other Legion officials-is to keep it at tip-top usefulness.

During war days, the present hospital was the splendid Community House which cared for the social interests of the men at Camp Custer. It has been enlarged and rebuilt, and the site increased by the purchase of
