The first program of the Chautauqua this year will be presented in the evening, the attraction being Langdon McCormick's great dramatic success, "The Storm," a thrilling spectacle in which is reproduced on the platform in the tent a great blizzard and snow storm, followed in one of the latter acts by a great forest fire, both of which are most realistically reproduced by means of special inventions co-operated with the Chautauqua management in adapting these effects for use in the tent.

A great lecture of adventure and exploration by George W. BANKER CAN AID FARMER

How the banker can help bring about a new agriculture, a diversified agriculture and one profitable to those who practice it, was explained by President W. M. Jardine of Kansas State Agricultural college to the agricultural commission of the American Bankers' association. "The banker can help bring about this new agriculture through his loans," said President Jardine. "He can loan his money only to those who are willing to grow live stock and good live stock only. Then he can help standardize production in his community or territory, that is, one kind of wheat, one kind of oats, one kind of beef animal, one kind of dairy cow, one kind of poultry, so that the products may be marketed in quantity lots, can be trademarked, and be put up in an attractive manner. He can aid by helping the farmer to market in quantity lots. By so doing, farmers can afford to advertise their products. Campaigns to increase the per capita consumption of the community products should be carried on. The opportunity is present. The banker can aid by giving proper advice to his patrons. The banker's advice is more generally sought than that of any other man in the community."

It has gravely been announced that, as the result of replies received from women subject to an extensive questionnaire, bobbed hair is not an approved style for the fair sex. It may be "all right for pretty girls and little sisters," according to the women themselves, but there is "no dignity in it," and it is "incongruous for older women." Very well, let it go at that. There is one question settled. Now we propose a questionnaire for men as to the status of derby hats and cream-colored spats. Until these momentous questions are settled we confess a hesitation to criticizing the ever-changing styles of the fair sex and their susceptibility to the zephyrs of fashion.

It took those ancient Egyptians about 70 days to make a mummy, undertakers estimate. The most expensive method was pickling the body in plain baking soda solution. Herodotus, about 2,373 years ago, recorded that the Egyptian embalmers, "when a body is brought to them, show the bearers various models of corpses, made in wood and painted so as to resemble nature." That was one ancient form of scientific salesmanship.

Scientists are deeply interested in the important announcement that the Einstein theory of relativity has stood the test of computations based on photographs of a solar eclipse. Meanwhile the ordinary citizen gets a thrill out of the report that the strawberry crop this year gives promise of exceeding even the record-breaking crop of last year.

"Home, Sweet Home," dear friends, is a matter of actual living, rather than of singing. As Payne wrote the lyric and as Bishop interpreted its melody, the song touched the deepest chords of life. If you can't live both the words and music you cannot get their meaning.

Certain insurance companies now suspect that woman smokers have largely increased the country's fire losses. That is ungalant of them. However, they have not yet proposed that woman smokers use only fireproof matches to light their cigarettes.

Some fellers get just enough mileage out of a gallon of whisky to carry them to the police station.

Pola Negri

Apollonia Chalupcz, better known to the lovers of motion pictures as Pola Negri, the "movie" star, was born in Bromberg, Poland. Her father had a good fabric business. He died in 1905, leaving her at the age of six with her mother, who later sent her to school in Warsaw. At the age of ten she decided she wanted to be an actress. At sixteen she made her professional debut in a Warsaw theater. Later she received many offers to enter the "movies" and finally yielded.

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

BREAKFAST

And to breakfast with what appetite you have.—Shakespeare.

SOME of the men back from France are full of enthusiasm over the French way of solving the breakfast problem. They like the habit of taking a light breakfast of coffee and rolls on rising and not assembling for a hearty breakfast until the middle of the day. That second breakfast, which is more like our luncheon, is a leisurely meal and quite often it is the first occasion of the day when the entire family gathers together.

There is not much likelihood that we will adopt the continental breakfast, but it is easy to see that we Americans are finding the convenience of having a breakfast that is a moveable feast. That is, we no longer regard it as essential for every one to appear around the breakfast board at once. The time for breakfast should be arranged to suit the convenience of the one who breakfasts and this is quite possible to manage, whether you have many servants or none. If there are guests in your house they will quite likely ask you before retiring for the first night what time you have breakfast in the morning. If they do not ask, you should tell them your breakfast arrangements. A very good thing to do is to tell them that breakfast is served up to a certain time in the morning.

If there are some members of your household who arise from necessity or choice at a very early hour, that is no reason why a guest within your walls, who may not be used to so early a rising hour or who perhaps needs more sleep after a journey, should rise at the same time. Moreover, we no longer eat the kind of breakfasts that must be served promptly, as soon as they are ready. Fruit will keep all the morning and covered on the stove, does not deteriorate. Eggs can be boiled as they are needed and coffee can be left in the percolator for an hour or so without becoming unpalatable, or it is an easy matter to make a fresh brew when the late breakfasters need it.

There is not the slightest discourtesy, then, in taking your breakfast when you find it most convenient, without waiting for others in your family, though of course one should try to make the luncheon hour or dinner hour one that will make it possible for the entire family to sit down at once.

Now, here is another question: "What is considered the fashionable time to have breakfast?"

Well, whether it is "fashionable" or not to get to one's work on time in the morning, it certainly is something that every one strives to do. If there are children in your family who go to school and those children have breakfast with you, then it is hard to arrange breakfast later than half-past seven or eight. The man or woman who is given to late hours, either in the pursuit of pleasure or because his business begins and ends late in the day, obviously has a later breakfast. Really, there is no "fashionable" time for this first meal of the day. The only thing that can be said is that farmers and farmers' families always have to rise earlier than most city folk, and the latter are regarded as being more fashionable than those of the country. And it may be that they are, but they surely are not a bit more well bred, and that, after all, is the important thing.

HE WON A PRINCESS

ONCE upon a time there was a princess so beautiful that dozens of suitors came to her father's court to seek her hand. The king was rich and powerful, but he loved his daughter so much that he let her have her own way in everything. Jem was an orphan lad who cleaned the pots and pans in the kitchen. His post was a humble one, but Jem was strong, brave and determined to make himself something in the world. That evening the palace was full of music, light and gaily dressed lords and ladies. All the princes who came courting wore gorgeous suits, and so many were there that their horses stood four deep in the stables. Behind a big palm Jem hid himself and looked in wonder at the scene of magnificence. As midnight sounded

there was a blast heard from without, a noise as of tramping feet grew loud, the doors of the big ballroom flew apart and there on the threshold stood a great brown dwarf. His eyes were green, his face wrinkled, and his long, black hair hung in curls around his huge head.

"I have come for my bride!" he shouted in a loud voice. "I am the king of the Thousand Isles and no human dare brave my power. Let the princess come with me and make no resistance, lest I destroy this whole castle at once with my men."

The king was shaking with rage. "Arrest and cast into prison that impudent clown," he cried to the guards.

"Put out the lights," screamed the dwarf. "Seize the princess and bear her off to my car."

Women Compared With Clocks. Women are like clocks. Some of them are fairly reliable but little attention, while others need almost constant care, and it is not always the high-priced, jeweled ones that are most dependable. They may have pretty hands, pretty faces and pretty movements, but they are liable to get out of order, and when they do they are all very hard to regulate.—Oregon Lemon Punch.

AFTER THE FOREST FIRE—SCENE FROM "THE STORM"

THESE four people having survived a severe winter and having come through a great forest fire by narrow and thrilling escapes, are, at the tense moment pictured above, eager to know whether one of their number will regain his sight, which they fear he has lost as a result of his heroic rescue of another member of the party. When the bandage is removed applied by the Indian trapper have been effective, or will his eyes remain sightless? You will share this tense moment of their anxiety after you have experienced the realism of a great blizzard and snow storm with the wind howling through the great forest trees and about the cabin and have, in your emotions, fought with them against the great

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL
Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

AMY

AMY, signifying beloved, is derived from the Latin "amo," to love. There is an adjective amabilis, meaning lovable, which gave rise to the feminine proper name Aimable, much used in early times, probably through some complimentary allusion to the quality which is an admirable if sometimes rare feminine possession.

The first Aimable known to history was the Norman heiress of Gloucester who so strongly protested against accepting even a king's son without a name. On English lips, her name became Amabel, which has been handed down practically unchanged in English families. France adopted the name, after placing the stamp of her language upon it, and long honored a Saint Amata or Almee. She had many namesakes, so there can be little doubt that Norman families are responsible for pretty simple Amy.

England liked the name and adopted that spelling, but France has always clung to Almee. About the end of the Seventh century, the masculine counterpart was given a religious significance by Saint Alme, or Amatus, a hermit of Valais, and later bishop of Sion, who was persecuted by Merovingian kings.

Amicia was evoked by the English from Almee and served as an affected form of Amy, just as Edythe and Alys are used by ultra-smart young ladies today for Edith and Alice. The most notable instance of the adoption of Amicia was the daughter of the earl of Leicester, who brought her county to the fierce old persecutor, Simon de Montfort, and left it to the warlike earl who imprisoned Henry III. Her sister carried Amicie into the Flemish family of De Roye where straightway it became Almee.

Amy's lucky gem is the carnelian, which gives courage and confidence to its wearer, and preserves her from injury or accident. Singers are especially fortunate in possessing a carnelian since it is said to have great potency in promoting strength and clarity of voice. Friday is Amy's lucky day and 6 her mystic number.

CHAUTAQUA ORATOR

HON. W. C. McCULLOUGH

"THE Challenge to Democracy," in which both political and industrial problems which America is facing are discussed in an able manner, is a lecture which will win the commendation of every thinking man and woman of our community. The logic of the discourse, the earnestness of its presentation and the sincerity of the man delivering it, will make this lecture one of the best of the entire Chautauqua program. Mr. McCullough, a prominent attorney at Cleveland, Ohio, has always been interested in and made a study of the relationship of employer and employee and of the fundamentals underlying popular government. Great employers of labor have enthusiastically endorsed Mr. McCullough's address when he has delivered it to large industrial gatherings. Hear him on the third afternoon of the Chautauqua.

Formidable Weapon.

The bolo is the national weapon of the Filipinos. The blade is about 18 inches in length by nearly 3 inches in width at its broadest dimension. It tapers from the middle towards the shaft as well as toward the point, making it strongly resemble the ancient short sword. It is not double edged, however, but tapers from a thick back to an extremely keen edge. The scabbard of the bolo is made of native wood with rough outlined designs carved upon it. The whole weapon is much more beautiful in outline and more formidable than the Cuban machete.

Bird Population on Increase.

Census made by the bureau of biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, show that birds in the agricultural districts in the northeastern part of the country average slightly more than a pair to the acre, though in parts of the arid West and on the treeless plains this number dwindles to an average of half a pair, or less, to the acre.

Great Fireworks Exhibition Ready For State Fair

"India," a stupendous feature characterized by costly exhibitions of fireworks both day and night will be one of the big entertainment features of the $5,000,000 Michigan State Fair which will be held this year at Detroit from August 31 to September 9.

The daylight fireworks will be a special attraction for the benefit of the children who are at the fair in large numbers before nightfall.

Real elephants, ridden through the streets of the fair grounds by native Hindus, are part of this attraction.

The fireworks exhibition will be held each night for nine nights. Each show will last 45 minutes.

HALF A MILLION TO SEE BIG FAIR

$1,000,000 BEING SPENT TO CARE FOR GROWING ATTENDANCE

"Half a Million."

That is the slogan of the 1923 Michigan State Fair which will be held in Detroit August 31 to September 9.

"Our annual attendance has just about reached the 400,000 figure already," said Secretary-Manager George W. Dickinson. "But with an additional $1,000,000 being spent this year for extensive improvements we expect fully half a million persons to visit the fair during the ten days."

"This is the nation's greatest exposition. It is a $5,000,000 show given by the state of Michigan for the education and entertainment of the people. It is the state's great playground as well as an agricultural school so there is every reason to believe that the hosts that come from near and far each year will become an army of half a million this fall."

"Already we have arranged for stupendous attractions and many more are being planned that will be a most pleasant surprise to the people of cities and farms."

"Our agricultural and live stock exhibits this year will surpass by far anything of the kind ever seen, everything seems to indicate. And our races and other sports, our great spectacular stunts and our lively midway where the carnival spirit reigns will be without parallel."

"Every man should try to spend at least a few days at this great exposition, bringing his family along to enjoy an educational vacation in the finest weather of the year."

ALL GOVERNORS INVITED TO FAIR

BIG RECEPTION PLANNED AT STATE EXPOSITION IN DETROIT

The governors of every state in the Union will be invited to be the guests of the state of Michigan at the Michigan state fair on Governors' Day, in Detroit, Friday, September 7, Secretary-Manager Geo. W. Dickinson announces.

"Because of the general interest in state fairs throughout the nation, and because of the remarkable success of the Michigan State Fair, it is likely that our invitation to the governors will meet with general acceptance," Mr. Dickinson said.

"Here the governors will have an opportunity to observe the nation's most successful fair and to study the methods that have resulted in its growth," he added.

It is planned to have a great reception for the governors. First, they probably will be driven in automobiles throughout the downtown streets, the automobiles bearing banners of the state from which the governors come.

Then a great public reception will be held for the executives in the big new Coliseum in the state fair grounds, where about 18,000 persons will have an opportunity to see and hear the governors.

"An automobile trip through Detroit, an inspection of the fair, luncheons and other affairs are being tentatively arranged."

During the governor's visit the downtown streets of Detroit will be profusely decorated with banners to give the whole city a gala appearance. Bands will parade the streets in busses and the metropolis will take on the atmosphere of a great holiday.

A plan that will be of great interest to farmers is the contemplated erection in the state fair grounds of a $200,000 pavilion for the exhibition of sheep and swine. The Michigan State Fair is progressing so rapidly that in a year from now still larger quarters for the exhibits will be imperative. It is the policy of the management to try to accommodate every possible exhibit, not only for the satisfaction of the individual farmer, but for the benefit of all other farmers who find valuable lessons in the observance of the neighbors' products.

LIFE AND LOOKS

Much Truth in Adage, "My Face Is My Fortune."

Big Thing Is to Take Care of Expression; Good Looks Will Generally Care for Themselves.

In the old nursery rhyme the milk-maid announces that her face is her fortune. So far, so good. Facial beauty, however, is not permanent, a writer in London Answers reminds its readers.

Sometimes its life is extremely short. Apart from the toll that Father Time takes, it has many other enemies. Late hours, neglect, bad temper, overeating, overworking and worry are perhaps the most deadly of beauty destroyers. These, however, can be tackled and rendered harmless. Late hours can be cut out.

It is quite right that we should enjoy life, but not at the cost of ruined health and lost beauty. And, as it is very true that beauty is but skin deep, we must not neglect that fragile covering. It is fresh air, exercise, soft water, a good soap and the like, that keep the skin soft and supple, and with the bloom on it.

Bad temper soon makes a naturally pretty face unnaturally ugly. If we would not lose our beauty we must not, however great the provocation, lose our temper. Overeating, of course, makes a face puff, and the delicate contours are lost in fat. Overworking, quite apart from the fact that in the end it leads to underworking, and that therefore nothing is gained, puts its imprint on the face.

Worry brings the same lines. You may have trials and troubles, but it is far better to face them and overcome them, or—if it must be so—accept them in the same sense that one has to accept a rainy day, than to worry over them. Worry is absolute waste of mental effort. It alters nothing, retrieves nothing, effects nothing. But it destroys beauty.

There is something else which has a great effect on good looks. Absent, it takes nearly all the beauty from a face. Present, it doubles, trebles, quadruples ordinary prettiness, and will make an ordinary face—yes, even the plainest of faces—attractive. The "something else" is expression.

If Providence has denied you beauty you can, of your own will, substitute expression, and let that be your "fortune."

We wonder sometimes why men make such queer matrimonial choices. Pretty Doris is passed over, and preference given to plain Dora. Yes, but Dora has a pleasant expression, and Doris has not. What Dora really is is expressed in her face, and men are attracted to her. Take her features one by one, and each is imperfect. But that nice, pleasant expression transforms everything. It reveals a beautiful character.

Doris, as the years roll on, will lose her beauty. Dora will gain beauty through her expression. It will mold her face to attractive lines. What is the gain in possessing facial beauty if we ruin it with, say, a discontented expression? What is the use of beauty with no expression?

The moral is surely obvious. If you are plain of face, put a pleasant expression on it, and the plainness is not so noticeable. If you have beauty don't destroy it, but add to it by a beautiful expression. All vices and all virtues inevitably find their expression in our faces. So the moral is obvious: Watch your character. It makes or mars your looks.

Glad to Get Away.

I was in the music department of a department store. People were playing records on the small phonographs which were placed in various parts of the room. I decided to try some. I was not familiar with the piece, but now know from my experience that it contains harsh and loud tones representing thunder. I soon realized why every one was staring at me. My music was so loud it drowned out all the rest.

A kind clerk came to my assistance and asked if I wished to buy the record.

I meekly answered "Yes," paid him, and hurriedly left the place.—Exchange.

Unemployed Ride Free.

The ministry of social welfare in Czechoslovakia has concluded an agreement with the ministry of railways whereby workers for whom work in another district has been found through the medium of a public employment exchange will have their fare paid to the place where they are to work. The return journey will also be paid if the unemployed person in question is not accepted by the employer. The cost of transport will be defrayed by the ministry of social welfare, according to information received by the International Labor Office.—International Labor Office News Service.

Queer Experience.

Last Sunday my mother put two eggs in boiling water on the stove to hard boil. About fifteen minutes later, having gone upstairs and forgotten all about the eggs, she heard a terrible noise—almost like a shot from a gun. When she came down-stairs she found that the water had boiled away and that the eggs had exploded. One went up and hit the ceiling, the other went up and hit the ceiling, the other went up and hit the ceiling of the pan, making a large hole in it.—Exchange.

NOTICE

AMERICAN LEGION CHILDREN'S BILLET

The home life at the American Legion Children's Billet is as near that as it is possible to make it. Of course, in a large family there are always duties to be performed and lessons to be learned, as well as pleasures to be enjoyed. And that is true in the American Legion family also. The institutional features are eliminated insofar as possible. The children rise in the morning and retire at night at a fixed time, and meals, rest and recreation are also carried out a general schedule, without being so rigid as to be uncomfortable, or to require the thought of discipline to be constantly in the minds of the children.

One of the pleasant features of the days work is an hour devoted to nature study at first hand. These studies are supplemented by hikes into the fields and woods where the particular bird or plant being studied is seen in its natural state.

Every child committed to the care of the Legion will be developed in all that goes to make ideal citizens.
