Record Breaking Reports

DEATH OF MRS. OSCAR FAHSELT

Mrs. Oscar Fahsel died at her home in this city on Tuesday, August 14, 1923, after an illness of three days. The cause of death was paralysis, she having suffered a stroke at the time of the fire Sunday morning, when, from the direction of the fire she surmised that it was the home of her daughter that was burning.

Bertha Pridohl was born in Germany, July 1, 1862. At the age of nineteen years she came to America and direct to Tawas City, where she has since made her home. Her age was 60 years, one month and 14 days. On September 22, 1885, she was united in marriage to Oscar Fahsel. To this union nine children were born, five sons and four daughters, eight of whom with the bereaved husband survive here. They are Herman Fahsel of this city, Mrs. Wm Gottleber of Bay City, Mrs. Edw. Burtzloff of Tawas City, Anton, Martin and Albert of Flint, Herman and Christina at home.

For a number of years the family lived on a farm in Laidlawville, moving to Tawas City about three years ago. Wherever they lived Mrs. Fahsel's kindly and helpful disposition made her many warm friends and she will be sadly missed by her large circle of friends.

The funeral services will be held this Friday afternoon at two o'clock from the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. Sievert officiating, and interment will be made in the Zion Lutheran cemetery on the Plank road.

The entire community join with the bereaved family in mourning the loss of a faithful and loving wife and mother and a true and loyal friend.

A RARE MUSICAL TREAT

The Augustana Harmony Four of Augustana college, Rock Island, Ill., will give a concert at the Community building, East Tawas, on Wednesday evening, August 29, for the benefit of the Swedish Luther League of East Tawas. The company is composed of Minnie Nelson, soprano, Regina Holmen, organist and pianist, Clifford Anderson, cornetist, and Palmer Nestander, piano-accompanist. They have all been students in the Augustana conservatory of music and two of them have been instructors therein. Their repertoire is exceedingly large and includes both sacred and secular classics.

NOTICE TO THE TAXPAYERS

Beginning Tuesday, July 10, the undersigned will be at the city clerk's office in the Kelly building, every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon for the collection of city taxes.

Effie Graham,
Deputy City Treasurer.

ANOTHER DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Last Sunday morning at about three o'clock the city was aroused by the fire alarm siren and it was found that the store of the Iosco Mercantile Company was on fire. The volunteer fire department was soon on the scene, but the fire had gained good headway and in spite of their efforts the building was practically destroyed and most of the stock was damaged by fire and water.

The origin of the fire is unknown, as there had been no fire in the stove in the store, but it is thought that defective electric wiring was to blame. The loss on building and contents is estimated at from $15,000 to $18,000, with $9,000 insurance.

As soon as the loss is adjusted by the insurance companies, the Iosco Mercantile Company expects to either start to rebuild on the old location, or secure another building and resume business. The loss is especially hard on the company as they have only just begun to build up a good business.

ALSIKE YIELD IS LESS BUT QUALITY BETTER

With clover hulling nicely under way, prospects are that Michigan's alsike seed production will be about 75 to 80 per cent of last year's total, according to Mr. Nicolson, manager of the State Farm Bureau Department, who recently spent several days making a personal investigation of the clover seed situation in the alsike producing sections of the state.

Mr. Nicolson found that the quality of the seed produced this year was better than last, due somewhat to economic conditions which rendered it unprofitable to harvest the lower grades of seed. The operation of the Farm Bureau Seed Department has impressed the farmers with the fact that quality seed now brings the best price. The old system of uniform price, which penalized the grower of good seed and pensioned the producer of poor seed, is being displaced in Michigan by a more just system wherein each farmer's lot of seed sells upon its individual merit.

CARD OF THANKS

The Iosco Mercantile Company wishes to extend their sincere thanks and appreciation to the firemen, citizens and everyone who so loyally assisted them at their recent fire. The offers of kindness and aid from those with whom we have been associated for such a short time make a silver lining for the dark cloud.

James Leslie, Manager.

The bride was attended by her sister, Ella, and the groom by his brother, Michael. The bride wore a blue suit and carried pink roses. The bridesmaid also wore blue suit and carried roses.

A large number attended the wedding at the church, but only the immediate family were at the wedding breakfast.

EAST TAWAS WINS FROM ALABASTER

East Tawas strengthened their hold on second place by beating Alabaster at the Tawas Beach diamond on Sunday by a score of 5 to 3. Alabaster scored the first run on some loose playing by the East Tawas team, but the locals came right back and tied it up. Alabaster again took the lead but could not hold it and in the last half of the eighth inning with the score tied at three all, East Tawas scored two runs with no one out. With runners left on second and third Ben son then struck out the next two batsmen and retired the third on an easy out to first. Zink pitched a steady game for East Tawas and was given good support when needed.

SPECIAL ELECTION

At the special election held on Wednesday, Aug. 15, 328 votes were cast on the waterworks proposition. On proposition No. 1 of raising the money to repair and reconstruct the water plant a two-thirds vote was necessary to carry the election and it was lost by 13 votes, the vote being 203 for and 121 against. On proposition No. 2 regarding the erection of a new building, the vote needed only a majority, but as the proposition to raise funds was lost this idea cannot be carried out though the proposition carried 177 to 150 in the city.

VICTIMS OF EGYPTOLOGY

Lord Carnarvon, whose recent fate has given Sir Oliver Lodge and disciples as well as the superstitious everywhere something to think about, has been in truth cut off in his prime, says the Christian Science Monitor. The noble Egyptologist would have been fifty-seven in June. Lord Carnarvon, whose death is scientifically attributable to the bite of an insect resulting in blood poisoning, is not the first victim of Egyptology. Claudius James Rich, the Eighteenth-century antiquarian; Niebuhr, one of the greatest of archaeologists; Olivier, who worked among the tombs at Aquaruf, and the more recent Major Russell all died suddenly in the midst of their Egyptian researches. However, the superstition is to be put to the proof this time, as science has vowed to find the actual cause of Carnarvon's death in chemical and physiological terms.

Amicable intercourse among athletes of different parts of the world indicates the existence of cordial international relations. It seems, therefore, unfortunate that the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States has refused to sanction any European trip by American athletes for the current season, says the Christian Science Monitor. On the other hand, the fact that competitors from Germany, Austria and Russia will take part in a tournament at Gothenburg, Sweden, in June and July, is of more than ordinary interest to followers of track and field sports, for it is the first time since the war that these countries have been invited to participate to any appreciable extent in a meet outside their own respective borders. Friendly rivalry such as this might do much to abolish that of the sterner sort.

To be well dressed for all "ordinary occasions," a man must spend $4,062 a year on clothes. Hats alone require $347, boots and shoes $593. This is announced by the Custom Cutters' club. Its members are leading tailors and stylenmakers all over the country. The budget total, $4,062, provides a well-dressed man with 12 different outfits. These do not include raiment for fancy social gatherings that cannot be classified under "ordinary occasions." There are more idlers than you'd imagine, spending this much on clothes. By the time a sport dresses and undresses 12 times a day, he hasn't much time left for anything else. Especially if his collar button slips and rolls under the bed. So much for vanity.

There is no greater nuisance than the automobile driver who unnecessarily sounds his horn," remarked the man with nerves. "Whenever there is a traffic jam the horn tooter gets in his fine work and he blows long and loudly as if that would make any difference. In residence streets he is a particular pest. When he calls to take his girl driving he puts his car in front of the house and blows away on the horn to the unrest of everyone in the block. He is the worst maker of unnecessary noise in the world, and the police ought to do something about it. If people were just a bit considerate of their neighbors this would be a much nicer world in which to live."

"Blue Hen" State.

Blue Hen, state is a nickname for Delaware. During the Civil war a certain popular officer of Delaware, named Captain Caldwell, asserted that a game cock to be unconquerable must be "a blue hen's chicken." This name was at once applied to his regiment and later to the state and its people.

Uncommon Sense BY JOHN BLAKE

YOUR TIME AND MONEY

In a very little book, Arnold Bennett, the novelist, points out that money spent can be replaced, but time spent is gone forever. Mr. Bennett, we believe, is a little too liberal in his ideas about money spending. He, of course, being highly talented can get more money easily enough. Most of us can't. Money, once we have got it, should be spent wisely and carefully. Independence is the goal of us all, and without money we can never have independence. Thrift in money matters is highly important. But thrift in time is still more important. An hour wasted is an hour lost. Decide as early in life as you can just how much time you can afford to waste, and never waste another hour beyond that limit. Do not count time spent in play or in recreation or in a few weeks of absolute idleness as waste. Rest is necessary, and play is the best form of rest. A little idleness is necessary when the machine gets run down. But let not an hour be altogether wasted. The time you spend riding from the house to the office or shop can be spent in reading the news, or in profitable conversation with somebody who can give you information or ideas. The time you sit about waiting for meals can be spent with a good book, and you ought always to keep one on hand for that purpose. If you find you cannot go to sleep immediately on going to bed, keep a book handy and read it till you get sleepy. Allot a certain part of your leisure hours to thinking about the work of the next day or in going over the day that is past to find why you made mistakes, and how to avoid them tomorrow. Put in part of your time remembering books and conversations and things you have seen. That is the best memory exercise, and memory will wither without use as a muscle will. Divide your time systematically. Spend it wisely. You have only a certain amount of it, which comprises your whole life. A waste of time is a waste of part of your life, and nobody can afford that. Has a man like this proposed to you?
Symptoms: Awfully precise, just tall enough for the army, no more. Did a few weeks military training just before armistice was signed and can't forget it. Turns a corner on his heel. Always talks of how he did this and that in the army, goes to bed on schedule, calls it taps, arises on schedule, calls it reveille, eats on schedule, calls it mess. On schedule on 4th of July he unfurls his little flag, on schedule he calls on you and stays "just so long." He walks a certain way to work and a certain way when he returns. . . . IS THRILL IN HUNT

Malaysian Buffalo Worthy of Pursuer's Skill.

Saladang Absolutely Without Fear, and One of the Most Fierocious Beasts of the Jungle.

The saladang, or Malaysian buffalo, is the most dangerous animal on earth. So, at least, thinks Mr. Charles Mayer, the animal collector, who, writing in Asia, describes a thrilling experience that he once had in the jungle with one of the fierce brutes. He adds significantly that not one full-grown saladang has ever been captured alive.

At sundown, he says, we were approaching an opening where we intended to make camp when we heard a crashing ahead. "Saladangs!" screamed my Malay trackers and, dropping everything, jumped for the bushes as two of the brutes came charging down on us. I jumped backward and made for a tree, and as I pulled myself up I saw the bull saladang catch my gun bearer Ali on his horns and toss him. I slipped to the ground to get my rifle, which Ali had been carrying; but I had forgotten the other animal, which instantly charged. I dodged behind a tree just in time and as the beast rushed past slashed at her with my parang, and she plunged following into the jungle. Then the bull turned on me, but I swung up among the branches out of his reach.

I fired down at him repeatedly with my revolver, but the little bullets had no effect, and my rifle with its dynamite cartridges was on the ground. Night came on, but the saladang did not cease his watchful waiting. Meanwhile my thirst became terrible, and ants and mosquitoes swarmed over me. Morning came and we were away to noon, and still the beast made no move to depart.

Finally I called to my men, who were scattered through the trees near me, to join me, and they swung from limb to limb until we were together, with the saladang beneath us bellowing and pawing. Besides our parangs we had four spears and three knives. We cut some stout, straight branches from the trees and to them with strips torn from our sarongs bound the spears, which happily were poisoned in the Malay fashion. I knew that they would kill a man in a few minutes, but I was not sure what the effect would be on the large and powerful saladang.

We next dangled a bunch of leaves in front of the bull, provoking him to charge upon it, and whenever he came within reach we lunged at him with our knives and spears. After an hour the poison had seemingly not affected the bull in the least, and we were not situated so that we could give him a death wound.

Evening came on, and I was beginning to fear that we should have to spend another night in the tree, when I observed that the great beast was showing less fury. He began to sway upon his legs. After a little while he started to totter away. But his strength was going fast; his head drooped; then he went down on his knees, bellowing weakly. Presently his hindquarters slumped and blood began to flow from his mouth.

I dropped from my perch and, stepping quickly to where my rifle was lying, raised it and put him out of his misery. Even though he had roared so completely, had kept us treed and had killed my good friend and assistant Ali, I felt sorry for him. He had been victorious almost to the very last.—Youth's Companion.

Biographical Lore Neglected.

A book has been published containing the reminiscences of nearly everybody who knew Robert L. Stevenson very well. Such a work about Theodore Roosevelt would fill a bookcase.

We should like to see the personal recollections of all the friends and acquaintances who knew O. Henry in Texas, where his first literary work was done. This is a field of his endeavor which has been singularly overlooked.

There are other bright lights in literature of whose personality a readable and instructive record might be made before they have receded too far into the past—William Dean Howells for one.

Note how assiduously every shred of information about Edgar Allan Poe is still sought and published and the last remnants that pertain to Walt Whitman, even his scattering contributions to New York journalism.

Everywhere, and so often, the chroniclers wait until too long after the passing of distinguished literary men before beginning their researches. While their contemporaries are still alive is the time for the harvest.—Exchange.

Memorial to Campus Love.

More than half a century ago a young co-ed and a young bachelor graduate at Indiana university in Bloomington discussed matrimony during a walk on the campus, during which time the young co-ed took two small maple saplings, twisted them together and left them. She remembered the occurrence long after she had married another, told her son of it and he went to Bloomington, hunted over the campus, found the saplings still entwined, grown into a great solid tree trunk, but with the spiral lines showing plainly they had been lashed together long ago and had become one. The son, now a college professor, carried away a picture of the tree.—Ohio State Journal.

Concrete for the Tornado.

If we were building a house in the country or in a small rural community in those regions where tornadoes sweep with the greatest frequency and errancy, we should like to experiment in erecting a structure composed entirely of concrete.

We have a notion that those whirling tempests peculiar to the Mississippi valley would find difficulty in yanking a concrete house loose and scattering it over the face of the country.

Perhaps we have too much confidence in the poured house, and an able-bodied tornado could turn it completely over if it could not tear it to pieces, but we should like to see the building experiment tried.

It is known, well enough, that a tornado makes no task at all of picking up a structure of timber and shaking it into fragments as a bulldog might do with a chicken. And the havoc once done in St. Louis and other towns and cities proves masonry is no great obstacle to this demon of the air. A solid concrete building might be the tornado's Waterloo.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Something Missing.

Having completed another Sahara picture in good old Hollywood, the producer invited a famous critic to have a private view, figuring that any favorable comment would make valuable advertising. As vast stretches of sand were reeled off the critic sat silent and the producer inferred that his friend was tremendously impressed. When the last exposure faded out, the producer, fishing for a compliment, ventured to suggest: "Plenty of sand, hey?"

"Yes," replied the critic, "and I was surprised to see so much sand without any bathing girls."

"Planting" Pearls.

The finest fresh water pearls are found in the shells of mussels gathered in the Mississippi river and its tributaries. Upwards of 500 varieties of mussels are found in these waters. Plans are being carried out by the United States bureau of fisheries to assure a supply of pearls in years to come. A large crop planted this year will be available about 1928. The extent of the industry is surprising. A special study of the subject is being carried on in a laboratory at Fairview, Ia., which is serving to develop the industry.—Turist Magazine.

CHURCHES OF PRESIDENTS

Various Denominations to Which the Heads of the American Nation Have Belonged.

Warren G. Harding is the first member of the Baptist church to be President. Episcopalians have a plurality in White House residents. Eight Episcopalians have been President as against six Unitarians, six Presbyterians, four Methodists, two Reformers and one member of the Disciples of Christ.

In chronological order, Washington was an Episcopalian and John Adams a Unitarian. Jefferson is vaguely classified as a "liberal." While he attended the Episcopal church in the neighborhood of his home, sometimes joining in its communion, he was, nevertheless, intellectually a pronounced Unitarian.

Following Jefferson came two Episcopals, Madison and Monroe; then John Quincy Adams, a Unitarian, and after him the first of the six Presbyterians, Jackson. In order, there followed Van Buren, Reformed; William Henry Harrison and Tyler, Episcopals; Polk, Presbyterian; Taylor, Episcopalian; Fillmore, Unitarian. Pierce, Episcopalian, and Buchanan, Presbyterian.

Lincoln is assigned by some authorities to the Presbyterians, while others believe the Unitarians have a greater claim on him. He occasionally attended the Presbyterian church, although he was not a member.

Andrew Johnson is included among the Methodists, apparently being among those who are now described as "having their religion in their wives' names." Grant and Hayes were Methodists, and Garfield a member of the Disciples of Christ. Arthur was an Episcopalian, the last of a long line. The Presbyterians then had Cleveland, Benjamin Harrison and Cleveland again. McKinley was a Methodist.

Then came Roosevelt, the second of the Reformed presidents, who was, however, a pillar in the Episcopal church in Oyster Bay. Taft was a Unitarian and Wilson a Presbyterian.—Kansas City Star.

Distance Devouring Doctors.

A committee of doctors, appointed by the governor, has reported adversely to subsidizing rural physicians so that farming communities may be sure of prompt medical attendance.

Time was when some such measure was desirable, observes the New York Herald. Too often the country doctor lost a race with death or with the stork because the ancient steed could not founder further through rutty roads or drifted snowbanks. The automobile has made a difference. Not only does it far outstrip the old buckboard in speed, but its introduction has brought good roads in its wake. Few country districts in the state now are more than 15 minutes from the nearest. From the time that his telephone tinkles the emergency call until his hand is on the pulse of the patient he is doing 30 or 40 miles an hour, which the green cross on his car excites in the eyes of the traffic policeman. A heroic and interesting figure in American life was the old, gray-whiskered family doctor urging Dobbin through miry ways at the call of duty. But he has gone, never to return.

Shakespeare's Vocabulary Rivalled.

Probably no living poet has a more extensive vocabulary than Gabriele d'Annunzio, who is to visit Paris in the spring of this year. "Most people," he once said, "use only 800 words. I employ 15,000, which I call from different volumes, some taken from an old book on agriculture, some from an old translation of Ovid, others from Machiavelli's works. Old Italian authors are my daily bread."

NEW LAW WOULD PROTECT BUYERS OF FARMING LAND

Considerable interest was developed in the recent session of the Michigan State Legislature by the proposal for the certification by the State Department of Agriculture of all improved and unimproved land sold in Michigan. As finally passed, the provision of the act are made entirely optional. The evident purpose of this type of legislation is to protect buyers of Michigan land from misrepresentation of unscrupulous sharks, and to restore the confidence of the buying public in Michigan real estate.
Administration of this new statute, which will become effective August 31, is placed in the hands of a three-man commission, composed of L. Whitney Watkins, state commissioner of agriculture, R. S. Shaw, dean of Agriculture at M. A. C. and R. A. Smith, the state geologist.
The new commission will examine and license the inspectors who will conduct the certification surveys. Any farmer or land owner may secure the services of these approved inspectors, who will examine his land, study the agricultural conditions of the community, and issue a report in which a recommendation is made regarding the agricultural adaptabilities of the land studied, its market conditions, climate, and recreational and tourists possibilities.
This preliminary survey which is paid for directly by the land-owner, is then checked up and verified by an inspector maintained by the state for this purpose. If he approves the report of the first inspectors an inspection certificate is issued, which becomes a legal document and accompanies the deed to the land. The commission is also empowered to create a list of accredited dealers who agree to confine their selling of unimproved Michigan lands to lands which have been certified and who agree to conform to the provisions of the act.

M. Dearth. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Davis. Miss Olive McCardell played the wedding march and little Rose, sister of the bride, acted as ring bearer.
The bride was attired in a gown of white and carried a shower bouquet of white and sweet peas. Harold Watts, brother of the bride, acted as best man.
The house was decorated in the bride's colors, pink and white.
After the ceremony a delicious three course dinner was served to the immediate relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Dearth left by auto for El Paso, Ill., and other points, after which they will make their home at Tawas City.
Their many friends join in wishing them happiness.

Health the First Requisite.
