Something to Think About
 By F. A. WALKER

THE OLD CIRCLE

THE natural inclination in man, when he is lost in the woods, or is floundering around in business for which he is not qualified, is to move in a circle.

The carrier pigeon flies straight to his destination; the horse goes unguided through the darkest night to his stable.

A man may have genius or merely ordinary talent, but if he cannot move straight ahead, think clearly and keep his mind upon his work, he is plodding around and around, arriving at the end of the year at about the same spot from which he started, still befuddled, and decidedly less courageous.

Such a man, and there are thousands of them, is not built for success. He is apt to take no reckoning of his progress until some one beside him who has been thinking effectively in straight lines moves up to where opportunity is greater and reward is richer.

This rude awakening causes but a temporary shock to his numb sensibilities, lasting perhaps a day or two, but producing in him no material change for the better.

If any serious doubt as to his ability should come to him at such a time as this, it is instantly banished as too burdensome, and he continues his aimless trot in the old circle.

He doesn't ask himself whether he is dependable, whether he thinks constructively or whether he thinks at all.

He doesn't ask whether he is given to watching the clock and stealing away frequently from his work to inhale the aroma of his favorite cigarette.

He doesn't ask whether he in all his time in his present position has made a single suggestion of value to his employer.

Ah, no! He has the faculty of avoiding dubious obligations, especially those that would be likely to impose upon him an additional stroke of work, or interfere with his plans for pleasure among his night associates.

Such a man is not qualified for straight thinking or straight going. He is not capable of handling things with intelligence and in the depths of his heart he knows it.

He is a failure, and for no other reason in the world than his own perverseness in moving in the old circle—wandering about the best part of his life in the wilderness.

VISIT FORD EXHIBITS WHILE AT STATE FAIR

Visitors to the Michigan State Fair at Detroit will receive something of a surprise when they take in the exhibits of the Ford Motor Co.

Henry Kane, Ford dealer here, has just received word from the Detroit branch office saying that the display of the company this year will be on a more elaborate and extensive scale than ever before and of an entirely new and unique feature.

Three acres of ground space have been secured for staging the exhibit.
 On this there will be two great tents, 240x60 feet, which will house the large-er exhibits and they will be so arranged that visitors will pass along inside from one to the other in such order that they may fully enjoy and understand the nature of the display and its significance.

In addition to these tents there will be an especially interesting display at the company's pavilion where the Ford band will appear in daily concerts.
 Another tent will provide rest room facilities and a special tent will be devoted exclusively to the showing of motion pictures. The Ford Hospital and Trade School will be represented in still another exhibit and the Ford railroad, the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton, will have one of its big engines on a specially constructed track.

All together the Ford Motor Company's display this year will be well worth seeing and residents of Isoco county who plan to visit the Fair are especially invited by Mr. Kane, local Ford dealer, to include in their tour of the grounds the Ford exhibit, assuring them of an enjoyable time. adv

Frothing Glass.
 Dissolve as much epsom salts as water will take up and apply to the glass; or dab the glass over with flour paste, using a brush. More permanent methods are to dab on thin white paint, using a brush. Better than this is the use of putty tied tightly into a bit of muslin. Put this over the glass and the putty will exude sufficiently through the muslin to make the stain opaque. Let dry hard, then varnish.—Housewife.

POWER BEHIND THE "BLUFF"

Diplomatic Captain of American Warship "Put One Over" on the High Chinese Authorities

The government spends a good deal of money each year on the education of several hundred young men at Annapolis destined to become naval officers in the course of four years.
Every once in a while there comes specific evidence that the money is not wasted.

Capt. Frank H. Schofield, U. S. N., member of the general board, tells this year to illustrate the point, according to the Philadelphia Ledger:

"In the days of wooden ships, one of ours in the Chinese station received orders to proceed to a certain Chinese port to demand redress from the local governor for the harsh treatment of some American missionaries. A small indemnity was to be collected and a salute to the American flag required.

"The ship arrived at the port, and the captain delivered (with undue ceremony) the demands of our government. He told the governor that he would expect a prompt and favorable reply. Next morning, having received no reply, the captain sent his aid to the governor to say that he had now carried out the first part of his orders and that should the governor fail to comply with his demands before 12 o'clock of that day he would be under the painful necessity of executing the second part of his orders.

"The aid had no more than returned to the ship after delivering his message when the American flag was run up on shore near the governor's palace and saluted with twenty-one guns.
Immediately afterward the governor's barge with the crew pulling the well-known official goosestep stroke came alongside with the governor and the indemnity.

"Needless to say the governor was well received and that his visit was the first of a pleasant exchange of courtesies that occupied the succeeding days.

"When the visit was over and the ship was sailing away, the captain's aid ventured to inquire what the second part of the captain's orders had been. The old man, with a broad smile and satisfied grin, pulled the orders out of his pocket and read:
'Failing to obtain satisfaction within twenty-four hours of your arrival, you will quit the port and take no further action in the premises.'

Five Steps Forward, Three Back.

Five steps forward and three steps backward—five steps forward and three steps backward—that is the strange dance of the Whitsun Tuesday dancing procession of the natives of Echternach, in the little principality of Luxembourg, in Europe. Old men and women, fathers and mothers, boys and girls, and little ones hardly able to keep up, fall in line by the thousands on the morning of the festival.
At 8 a. m., the great church bell peals and the procession starts, led by solemn priests, who chant a service.
Through twisting streets to the banks of the Moselle river they go, dancing this strangest of dances, and to the tomb of St. Willibrod, who is supposed to be buried in the vicinity. This dance is a yearly custom of centuries standing. It is said that in the Eighth century an epidemic broke out among the cattle, killing many. The people prayed at the tomb of the saint. The epidemic gradually disappeared, and the people said the saint did it. So every year they dance their way to his tomb to give him reverence.

Shortage in Pencil Wood.

Manufacturers of lead pencils are having trouble in finding wood for their factories. The lowly lead pencil requires a special kind of wood and the source of it is becoming remote and limited, according to the New York state college of forestry at Syracuse university.

A light, strong, smooth, soft-grained wood free from knots, a wood pliable to the knife and patent sharpener is necessary. The red cedar of the South Atlantic states has supplied pencil wood for half a century. It was so plentiful at one time that farmers built their fences of it. Today this supply is exhausted and the old fences are sold for pencil wood at a premium.
Most of the wood from which pencils today are made is obtainable from the Pacific coast.

The California incense cedar is in great demand. Western Juniper is also utilized for this purpose, but is knotty and a large portion of the tree has to be made into fence posts and cordwood.

The importance of the supply of wood for lead pencils is better understood when it is known that about 1, 000,000,000 pencils are manufactured from American woods every year.

Minerals in British Columbia.

Mineral production in the province of British Columbia for the year 1922 is estimated to be worth $32,167,463, as compared with $28,066,641 in the previous year, according to a government report. The feature of last year's production is the increase in gold and silver values, the former amounting to $4,116,816, which is $1,070,462 better than in 1921, and the latter totalling $4,034,154, which is $2,442,953 in excess of the previous year.

Storage of Elevators.

Recent official records show that the three thousand seven hundred licensed grain elevators in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta have a total storage capacity of over 100,000,000 bushels. Ontario, Quebec and Maritime provinces have storage elevators with capacity up to 33,180, 000 bushels.

A very appropriate and impressive program was conducted by Rev. Roberts of Tawas City. A duet was rendered by Misses Ruby Love and Fern Yawger of Hale. Rev. Davis gave an address using for the main part of his message, God's call to Isaiah, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, send me." A short talk by Miss Florence Latter was concluded by the following poem:

What Christ Said

I said, "Let me walk in the field;" He said, "No, walk in the town."

I said, "There are no flowers there;" He said, "No flowers, but a crown."

I said, "But the skies are black. There is nothing but noise and din." And he wept as he sent me back, "There is more," He said, "There is sin."

I said, "I shall miss the light, And friends will miss me, they say." He answered, "Chose tonight, If I am to miss you or they."

I pleaded for time to be given; He said, "Is it hard to decide; It will not seem hard in Heaven, To have followed the steps of your Guide."

Then into His hand went mine, And into my heart came He, And I walk in the light divine, The path I feared to see.

Congratulations to Miss Latter were given by Mrs. O'Connor of Philadelphia. Mrs. Roberts gave a short talk concerning of the Women's Home Missionary board. Closing prayer by Mrs. Davis.

THE THOMPSON REUNION

This is the fourth annual reunion of the Thompson family which originated at the farm home of Abner and Rilla at Sheppard the second Sunday in August, 1920.

We found this meeting so enjoyable. It was there we met relatives we had never seen or heard of before, besides many we had not seen in years. It is to Abner and Rilla we can show our gratitude for uniting us in one big family again.

We regret these reunions have so long been delayed, as we feel we have lost the opportunity of many happy meetings as the years have slipped by.

The second Sunday in August, 1921, we met with Uncle Cassius and Aunt Libby at their village home in Breckenridge. A day never to be forgotten, Uncle Cassius, the oldest member of the family royally entertained us with music on the violin and tambourine, and despite his 72 years, can tip the light fantastic yet. His faithful wife left nothing undone to fulfill her share in the days entertainment.

August 1922, we journeyed to Sigma to meet with Mrs. Lancaster in her pleasant village home. She has been deprived the pleasure of our reunions because of poor health. The day spent there was as pleasant and enjoyable as pen can describe. The visit, the dance the younger ones enjoyed, the bountiful dinner, all tend to leave with us pleasant memories of the day. Her sons, Claude and Will, and wives assisted in every way to make the day a round of pleasure.

Today, August 12, 1923, we meet at the farm home of Charley and Hattie in Reno, who are toiling alone in a family since their sons, Seth and John, have branched out into business for themselves, and all should come and be welcome and make merry, and that this day shall long be remembered for the pleasant hospitality and for another privilege of renewing our relationship which grows more precious year by year, as each reunion makes our tree more strong and vigorous.

I will not take up the time to write about the numerous individuals of our family, but there is one, Perry, I wish to mention, who has always taken an active part. While he is terribly opposed to veal pie, he is always ready to assist in making our meetings pleasant with his humor and good fellowship.

Today, as we enjoy the hospitality of Charles and Hattie, I am sure you will all join with me in the best wishes for their health and happiness in the future.

We realize as the years roll by there will be some of us that are here today that, perhaps, will not be here for the next meeting. This is not partial to the older ones, sometimes the younger ones go first. So today let us weld our affection for one another.

Today let us bind ourselves more closely together that the family tree may grow and continue to bloom and bring forth good fruit that may be enjoyed by those who come after us.

HIS FIRST USE OF THE RAZOR

Time When Parents, and Everybody Else, Should Carefully Refrain From Making Any Comment.

When young men enter the period of learning how to shave, some mothers and fathers make the mistake of trying to help them along, of trying to ease their suffering a little here and there. But that is time wasted. Young men in that period of life cannot be reached with kind words or soft ministrations.

Johnny MacFarland was told one day by his older sister—eleven months older in years, and therefore about eight years older in her own opinion—that if he did not start shaving immediately she would run away from home or something. Johnny replied that if he thought anything he did would have any such pleasant effect he would promptly do it, then went upstairs and began to look at his chin in the looking glass and finally locked the bathroom door, lathered himself up with his father's shaving soap, took his father's old-fashioned razor and carved off a piece of his face that would have satisfied Shylock and perhaps even made him reckon that he had turned over a bit on the deal on the side.

That was Tuesday, says the New York Sun.

On Wednesday he came home from school at noon and picked a fight with his sister over nothing and talked her right down into a crying spell, while his father stood right there beside him and kept saying, "See here, now! See here, now! See here, now!"—a unique and remarkable achievement, taking it all in all.

Thursday he came home in the middle of the afternoon with a safety razor. He started right in shaving and he shaved off and on until six o'clock. He shaved off most of his profile and left on most of his hair. At the table his sister chaffed him gently about landscape gardening and ditch digging and one thing and another, but instead of his rising up and doing something awful, as his father expected him to do under the circumstances, he just sat there in his chair and did nothing save eat a piece of celery and gaze up over his sister's head, through the wall, and on into the middle of next week, as if he were foolish.

Friday he—

But he went on like this for a week. No need to dwell on the morbid details. He got over it after that and his mind cleared up, and so far as his folks could see was not weakened any to speak of. But if he had fallen in love right after learning how to shave he would have been a gonner—his mind would certainly never have got through that, too.

Art, as far as it is able, follows nature, as a pupil imitates its master thus your art must be as a mere God's grandchild.—Dante.

HARSH OLD DAYS

Cruel Statutes Under Which Our Forefathers Lived.

Punishment by Burning Alive Too Common a Thing to Cause Comment a Few Centuries Ago.

Along about the second day after a judge has pronounced sentence in some sensational case in the British court of justice, people begin to speculate just what would have happened to the prisoner had he or she lived a hundred years ago. Enterprising editors detailed reporters to dig up parallel cases, and as British justice of the Eighteenth century was a primitive affair these make enlightening reading.

In one recent week sentence was pronounced in three murder cases, each ending with the judge donning his black cap, and in each case a woman was in the dock. In the case which has aroused the most comment Mrs. Thompson, who was found guilty of helping to murder her husband, would have been burned at the stake had she lived a hundred and forty years ago.

In those days the murder of a husband by a wife, of an employer by a servant or a bishop by a clergyman, was called petty treason; that is, the murder of a superior to whom the offender owed special fidelity or from whom he received special benefits.

If a man killed his wife that was not petty treason, it was merely murder. High treason, of course, was and is an offense against the king, or even at one time against his coinage, makers of "bad" money being accused under this head.

In the 1700s men convicted of high or petty treason were hanged, drawn and quartered, while women convicted of either offense were burned at the stake. This difference in sentence was thought to be a great privilege to women. The law said "As the decency due to the sex forbids the exposure and public mangling of their bodies, the sentence is to be drawn to the gallows and there to be burned alive."

In later years the cruelty of this punishment was mitigated by strangling the criminal before the flames reached her. A stake about ten feet high was planted in the ground and the culprit suspended from an iron ring so that the faggots were kindled under her feet.

Parish registers in various parts of the country contain records of cases of burning of wives as late as 1782, that is 140 years ago. The parish register of a Somerset village contains this entry under "Marriages": "5 March, 1753, John Bruford, of West Monkton, to Susannah Davis, of Huntsville. An unfortunate marriage. She poisoned him and was burned for so doing at Wells the ensuing autumn."

An Essex register contains the following: "2 August, 1753, Thomas Ockendon, of this parish, was buried at Canevdon after he had been barbarously murdered by his own wife the Tuesday before. She was burned at Chelmsford for the said murder."

It was not until 1790 that the punishment of burning for either petty or high treason was abolished and hanging substituted. Forty years later the offense of petty treason was merged in that of willful murder, and from 1830 to this day there has been no legal difference between the murder of a wife by a husband and that of a husband by a wife.

Alliteration Record.

Miss Lora Whitmore, register of deeds, comes of a family of nine children. And the names in the family are all very similar. When the first three children arrived they were named in succession, Dora, Cora and Nora. This caused some comment in the neighborhood and a friend of the parents said: "That works all right for three children, but you are liable to run out of names that sound similar, if you have any more." Apparently this put the parents on their mettle, because they solved the problem nicely. The next addition to the family was a pair of twins, a boy and a girl. So they were named Flora and Mora. After this there were four other girls born and they were promptly named Ora, Zora, Lora and Clora. If any family can beat this record for alliteration, step up and prove it!—Columbus (Kan.) Advocate.

Few Livonians Left.

There is a movement in Finland and Estonia for the preservation of the tiny group of Livs, numbering about 2,000, and living in 14 villages at the extreme northern end of the Courland peninsula in Esthonia, who represent all that is left of the semi-Asiatic people who gave their name to the old Russian province of Livonia. These folk speak a language closely allied to Finnish and Magyar, and ethnologists and philologists are anxious to have them saved from extinction.

For 196 years Livonia was a part of the Russian empire until it was overrun by the Germans in 1917. In 1918 Livonia, Esthonia and Courland formed a joint Baltic state.

Less "Boarding Round" Now

As far back as 1894 Hall county, Nebraska, built a cottage as a dwelling for its district-school teacher. Lately a canvass of the whole country has shown that there are now about three thousand dwellings owned by school districts or townships, and that the schools that have them seem to get the best teachers. "Boarding round" has its drawbacks.—Youth's Companion.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The East Tawas High School and the Isoco County Normal School Open Tuesday, September 4th

New opportunities offered to students in High School. New Law requiring professional training by all teachers may be fully met here in one year, and at a great saving in expense. This is your chance, there is still room, come and take it.

Within two weeks the East Tawas Public Schools and the Isoco County Normal will be in full operation, under conditions the most favorable ever. Tuesday, Sept. 4th is the opening day, though any student desiring to enroll and classify may do so at the high school room on the Saturday or the Monday next before the 4th of Sept.

The High School courses have been enriched by the addition of a Commercial Department, in which Accounting, Bookkeeping, Commercial Law, Shorthand and Typewriting are offered by an expert in this line.

Mechanical and Manual Arts will also be taught; the use and care of tools, the making and reading of blueprints make a strong appeal to many boys who find in these things education and self mastery. These courses do not displace or minimize the regular courses in Language, History, Mathematics, Science, etc. which still remain permanent parts of the high school work.

In the sciences our boys and girls have opportunities to study the newest developments in radio construction and operation; our class work is given new interest and enthusiasm through the use of moving pictures and slides by which we use the great mine of information for visual instruction available to the well equipped school.

The facilities here offered warrant a much higher rate for tuition than we make. The old rate of $40.00 a year is all that is required in the High School, while there is no tuition fee required of students in the County Normal classes.

There is still room for more in the County Normal class. One year in this Normal not only satisfies the requirements of the new law in professional training, it also gives to the teacher who completes the course, a three year certificate, capable of two renewals; it also counts for ten units at any of the state normals. It is possible, and has been done by our graduates, to earn two additional credits during the year and then in one year at Ypsilanti, or other state normals finish the two year course and get a life certificate.

Board and rooms may be had at reasonable rates. For further information apply to the undersigned.

J. K. Osgerby, Superintendent.
G. A. Pollard, Secretary Board of Education.
