The Christmas Dream That Came True

CHRISTMAS DAY A HOLIDAY FOR RURAL CARRIERS

The Postmaster General has approved an amendment of the Postal Laws and Regulations, as the result of which rural carriers will be granted Christmas Day as a holiday. He did this in following out his generous policy of consideration for the welfare and happiness of the postal employees. We confidently expect that carriers will put forth the fullest effort to effect the delivery of every piece of mail, parcels included, reaching their offices before Christmas so that there may be no disappointment and no just ground for complaint on the part of the patrons. Failure on the part of any individual carrier to do this will subject him to severe criticism and be a cause of deep regret to the department. Postmasters and carriers are requested to notify patrons of rural delivery as generally as possible, without incurring expense to the department, that there will be no delivery on rural routes on Christmas Day so that they may arrange for the early mailing of Christmas packages.

NEW TITLE TO CAR NECESSARY

The Secretary of State announces that there are thousands of motor car owners in the state holding assigned titles to motor cars who expect to get 1924 license by presenting them and paying for a new title the same as was done in 1923. No 1924 licenses will be issued on assigned titles. The title must be in the owners name. If you have an assigned title, send it at once to Secretary of State with $1.00 for new title so there will be no difficulty in getting your 1924 license.

JUDGE WIDDIS EXPLAINS SEARCH WARRANT LAW

Many cases of alleged liquor law violations are dismissed when they reach the circuit courts of this state because of defective affidavits in support of search warrants. The law relative to searches and seizures is simplicity itself. The constitution of the States provides that there shall not be any unreasonable search of one's premises and that there shall not be any unreasonable seizure of one's property. It does not provide that there shall not be any searches and seizures, but it does provide that there shall be no unreasonable searches or seizures. To authorize the issuance of a search warrant, by a justice of the peace, someone, who has actually seen, or tasted the liquor, or smelled it, or saw it purchased, someone, who has thus had the evidence of one or more of his physical senses, indicating the violation of the liquor law, may, and should, go before a justice and tell what he actually knows about the matter, and where and when he obtained his information. A search or seizure based upon evidence of this kind is a reasonable search or seizure. But a search or seizure based upon one's opinion or belief, or upon hearsay that some one has violated the law, is always an unreasonable search or seizure. The justice should prepare the affidavit setting forth what the witness knows about the matter and when and where the information was obtained. Then he can determine whether or not there are sufficient grounds for believing that the law was violated at a certain place and whether or not a search or seizure would be reasonable.

A circuit judge must follow the law, no matter how many guilty persons escape. He does not make the law. He is bound to follow it. If he does otherwise, he becomes a law-breaker. It is regrettable that so many guilty (Continued on last page)

A MOUNTAIN MUSIC TEACHER

Dear folks—I am partly organized now, and can tell you more about my work, though it changes constantly. We eat in a large dining hall called "Hunger Din" and have mostly corn bread and beans with fairly good coffee. Then the youngsters line up and salute the flag, after which they march to school about a quarter of a mile up the creek. The high school is here at the center. I have boys and girls' Glee Clubs, a piano class and some vocal pupils besides my school music. There are 15 boys and 18 girls boarding in the school. Rad Martin, who is an educated mountain boy is the manager. I've had the offer of a beautiful thoroughbred horse to ride at any time and I hope I will be able to stick on. There is a tennis court here. Please send my racket as I play evenings, after school and have been using Catherine's. The cottages are named as follows, "If" is the executive office, "Radcliffe," the general office, Wellesly Recreation Hall" is the library, "Gloria" is the girls' dorm, "Plank-sides" and "Sir Galahad" the boys' dorms, "Hamilton Lodge," Inspiration Nook," "Sycamore," "Star" etc. are teachers cottages. There is a store here where you get candy, calico and shoes. The school works on the community plan. The children do the work, govern themselves through a council and senate and help to teach each other. The main idea seems to be to train them for citizenship. This is very necessary as they do not feel that the Government has any control over them. They look on the States as a foreign country, people from "out in the United States" are "furriners" to them. They have always considered taxes and government supervision as oppressive and impertinent. Some of the names in this locality are "Martin," "Stone," "Hall," "Fairchild," one little boys' is "Hale Messenger" another is "Town Hall." The children are the handsomest I have ever seen—Scotch blond, or the perfect Kentucky brunettes, they grow up into lean, lank mountaineers. I was sent to Maytown last week ten miles by "holt wagon" to Wayland and then ten miles by rail road part of the states. (Continued on last page)

"CHRISTMAS ALL THE YEAR"
Scriptural reference John 8-12. "Then spake Jesus unto them, saying, 'I am the light of the world; he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.'"

Christmas comes but once a year. Such a general piece of knowledge hardly deserves quotation marks. Every toddling child whose hands hold fast his Christmas stocking, is aware of the fact, and very likely his one thought of regret is that so many other days must pass before Christmas comes again.

Yes, Christmas comes but once a year, and sometimes we seem to think that the things which give Christmas its real beauty are just as infrequent. "We mustn't quarrel today," a little girl warned her brother one Christmas morning and for that day there was peace in the nursery.

Most of us agree that we "mustn't quarrel on Christmas." We put our old grudges, our little jealousies and spites out of sight, and we fill the day with kindness and good will. But to often, as the holly and ever-green lose their freshness and are removed from the house, so the love which made our Christmas so beautiful loses its beautiful quality and dies from the heart. Though Christmas comes but once a year its peace and joy were meant for the entire year.

May the Christ of Christmas help us to carry the Christmas Spirit the whole year through.

"And they who do their souls wrong, But keep at eve the faith of man, Shall daily hear the angels song, Today the Prince of Peace is born."

S. S. Cross, Pastor M. E. Church.

Dumb Animals and Color.
Scientists differ in their opinions as to whether dumb animals see color. Experiments have been performed with monkeys, chickens, rabbits and rats. In some instances, where the animals apparently responded more readily to one color than to another, it was thought possible that they were affected more by the differences in the intensity of the colors than by the different colors. Latest results indicate that animals do not readily detect color differences.

Tell Me Again

TELL me again the story
That you told when we both were young!
You were my prince in glory,
A prince with a golden tongue,
And the touch of your hand was thrilling,
The fact that you loved me joy—
But I was only a girl then, dear,
And you were only a boy.
Tell me, the way you told me
When our love was the song of spring!
Hold me, as you would hold me
When our love was a sacred thing!
Let the silver that's in your hair, love,
Be set, as it used to be,
When I was so new to carousels
And you were so great to me!
Here by the fireside sitting,
As the pictures in flames run by,
Sweet be the moments fleeting,
And children, just you and I!
For the love of our age is richer,
And yet—I would feel the joy
Of the love that was only a girl's, dear,
For her prince, who was only a boy.

Your Christmas Room

By MARTHA B. THOMAS
(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

THERE is always a place to which one may flee in time of need. That place is the inside of our own heads! Provided, of course, that the inside of our own heads is properly furnished with imagination and that the key is not rusted in the lock from long disuse. If you are a little lonely on Christmas eve, or a little unhappy, or a little anything that tends to tarnish the glow of the season, why not climb up to that place inside your head, rattle the lock, be quite firm with the key no matter how stubborn it is, then enter into what joy you may summon by your thoughts?

Glad wishes for friends are the green wreaths we may hang in the windows of our Christmas room. Hopes for another year are the candles we light on the table.

New plans are the fruit to deck the board, and very likely there will be a guest or so to share them.

Think of the Fire of Purpose you may light on your hearth!

Think of the glow and warmth it will cast over you!

Think of the castles and dreams you crowded out of your heart because you were too busy; the fine, adventurous ones; the funny ones you have laughed over all to yourself; the shy ones you would not reveal to a soul at any price. Call them all back and see what a splendid set of inspirations they are. You'll feel like a new person.

And don't forget to put a present on the Tree of Faith for yourself; something you've wanted all your life.

If you can't have it this year, waiting will make it more precious; and if you can (oh, think of that!) you'll be all the better prepared.

Do spend a little time in your Christmas room!

ASK FOR CHRISTMAS PEACE

Let All Pray to God for Perfect Rest and Perfect Power and Perfect Love.

CHRISTMAS peace is God's and he must give it himself, with his own hand, or we shall never get it. Go then to God himself. Thou art his child, as Christmas Day declares: Be not afraid to go unto the Father. Pray to Him; tell Him what thou wantest; say, "Father, I am not moderate, reasonable, forbearing, I fear I cannot keep Christmas right for I have not a peaceful Christmas spirit in me; and I know that I shall never get it by thinking, and reading, and understanding, for it passes all that, and lies far away beyond it, does peace, in the very essence of thine undivided, unmoved, absolute, eternal Godhead, which no change nor decay of this created world, nor sin or folly of men or devils, can ever alter; but which abideth forever what it is in perfect rest, and perfect power and perfect love. O, Father, give me Thy Christmas peace."—From Town and Country Sermons.

What Do You Want?

By Christopher G. Hazard

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

WHEN the boy passed the baker's shop on his way to school, he used to look with longing upon the display of pies and cakes and resolve in his heart that if fortune should ever bless him with means he would have enough of a feast for once. But when, in after years, he passed the same old shop and looked upon the new treasures of the old window, now with a pocketful of money, he had ceased to care for the goodies, and went on, jingling his useless coins.

What do we want now? Not what we used to want. Not more pie, not more candy, not more toys, not even more money. The old ambitions have been realized, the old goals have been reached, we have the power of which we dreamed, there doesn't seem to be anything in sight worth running after, we look out upon a splendid world with a falling desire for it, we go on by an acquired momentum rather than with zest. Still, we are unsatisfied. Yet we want something. What is it? What do we want? What could the Christmas time bring us of satisfaction?

How would you like to recover that lost art of imagination? How would a large investment in hope pay you? What would that strange power of beholding the reality and the loveliness of a spiritual world, that mysterious power that some have, mean to you? If you could be a child again, just for Christmas Eve, perhaps, you would see the meaning of the stars that ride so gloriously upon the billows of space. You might feel called up and out by the supreme and satisfying joy that Christmas signifies.

After all, we may have gained the world and lost faith, an immeasurable loss. Only he who keeps his childlike-ness—not his childishness—knows the eternal worth of time, the satisfaction of that everlasting love that faith grasps.

What a Christmas gift that would be! Was not the old colored preacher right when he sang, "All I want, all I want; all I want is a little more faith in Jesus?"

Raisin Pie.

One-half cupful sugar, 2 cupfuls seeded raisins, 1½ cupfuls boiling water, ½ teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful grated orange rind, 3 tablespoonfuls orange juice, 2 tablespoonfuls lemon juice, 1 tablespoonful grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoonfuls cornstarch, ½ cupful walnuts.

Cook raisins in boiling water for five minutes; pour into sugar and cornstarch which have been mixed. Cook until thick, about five minutes. Remove from fire and add other ingredients. Bake between two crusts. Walnuts may be omitted if desired.

Lotion for the Skin.

The finest lotion for preventing rough, red hands and chapped lips in winter is equal parts of glycerin, bay rum and arnica.

Apaches of Paris were so named by newspaper men about 1903.

Two men named Manda and Leant loved the same woman who was named Casque d'Or. She bestowed her affections upon Manda. When upon a quarrel arose between the two men, Manda was shot and killed by Leant. The quarrel was taken up by Manda's friends and followers. Soon two large bands were organized on either side. The quarrel became so violent that the name "apache" was given them.

A Millionaire.

To be a millionaire in the United States a man must have $1,000,000; in England, £1,000,000; in France, 1,000,000 francs. In his own country a man must possess a million in the currency of his country to be termed a millionaire.

How Shot Are Made.

Shot are made by running molten lead combined with a little arsenic through a sieve or by pouring it from a ladle with a serrated edge from a high tower into water at the bottom. The stream of metal breaks into strips which become spherical.

No Rice Paper.

The "rice paper" of which cigarettes are made is not rice paper at all and the "rice paper" on which the Chinese make such exquisite color sketches is made of the pith of a tree.

Key to Situation.

Sometimes the key to the situation may be a club. It frequently takes a deadly epidemic to make a community realize the value and importance of adequate public health service.

BY AUTO TO FLORIDA

In my last letter we were camped near Goodlettsville.

On this night of October 10th the Green's and ourselves were in our tent looking over our maps, and as we were on a detour, we saw we could strike the "Dixie" again at Nashville, about 10 miles away, when I noticed in fine print the one word, "Hermitage" across the Cumberland river. Simultaneously with that name came to my mind, "Jackson's home." We looked and found we could cross the river at Edenwood, a few miles from where we were camped instead of crossing at Nashville, and visit the "Hermitage" and go on from there to Nashville and enter that city on the south side of the river. The Green's were a little doubtful and asked me if I was sure the Hermitage was Jackson's home and not a small town.

We started at 9:30 o'clock a. m., October 11th and soon reached Edenwood and the Cumberland river, where we found a high narrow bridge unlike anything we ever saw or hope to see again.

It is a government bridge and takes us directly into one of the great powder plants used during the war, there was a guard here to pass us over the bridge, but at the first sight of it, courage almost failed us and we waited for the "Green's" to come up, to see if they wanted to attempt it, they were "game" so on we went, they taking the lead.

It was rather risky as there is a sign posted, saying, "This bridge is dangerous; cross it at your own risk." One went up a rather steep incline with a turn at the top, you were then 78 feet high and the bridge was one-half of a mile long and too narrow for two cars to pass. They had phone connections across so that there was no danger of meeting another car.

I can't tell how the Cumberland river looked, I was too busy to look down, I think just about that time I was examining the railing to see if it looked safe.

Well we stopped when we safely landed on the other side and took some pictures from different angles but our camera was too small to get it all in one picture.

We passed another guard, who asked us some questions, and allowed us to drive into what had been a city during the war, one of the largest powder plants in the world. The buildings and streets are still there, and mostly all empty, although there is some business still being transacted there. We were in one store that was doing business but there are hundreds and hundreds of empty buildings. We were some time driving through. There were at least two miles of buildings and I do not know how far they extended on each side of us.

The place is well guarded still and we were stopped and questioned as to our destination before we were allowed to pass out.

From there on to Andrew Jackson's home, down a beautiful road of cement with beech and hickory trees on each side. There are some very fine southern homes here, and finally we came to the "Hermitage."

The grounds are spacious, the house set well back from the road in true southern style. In front are great red cedars, and a winding driveway up to the main entrance, great white pillars support the porch. There is an upper balcony and it is built in true colonial style.

Everything in the building is just as it was in President Jackson's lifetime, even to the pictures on the wall. You enter the wide hallway and register, then you are given a pamphlet telling about every article of furniture in the house and a corresponding number is upon each article.

We examined the hall first, the walls are painted to represent scenes in Greek history, it somewhat defaced but the coloring is still bright and the work must have been done by a master hand. The hall furniture is still in a good state of preservation, several stands, a marble bust of Jackson and an upholstered couch in solid mahogany, a winding stairway from one end of the hall leads up stairs but we were not allowed to go up this stairway, as the same carpet is upon the stairs that was used by the Jackson family so many years ago.

To the left of the hall way are the parlors front and back, you may look into them and see each article of furniture but you may not step inside.

There are the family portraits all done by famous artists. The wood work is white. You gaze on the old fashioned fire-place, with its wire screen, the mirror above the mantle, the latter with its costly vases and the American flag draped over all. There are many pieces of solid mahogany furniture and portraits of his adopted son and wife. The carpets were imported and of the best of that time. There was a rose wood table and old fashioned piano.

The light in those days were candles and there were some very fine fixtures for them.

The library to the left of this hall had many fine book cases filled with books, but we could not read the titles to the books so we do not know what he read. There was a candle on the table in a large glass globe, this was one way they had in producing more light.

The walls are plastered with a hard finish, every room had its walls painted in delicate tints, which harmonized with the furniture, carpets and draperies.

Upstairs were the bed rooms, the room where Jackson died, looking on his wife's picture which hung on the wall near. She had died years before.

The Letter to Santa Claus

The bed had high posts and a canopy top and it is so high that there are movable steps to step up to get into bed. The white spread is hand made, also the linen is all hand woven.

General Jackson's lounging robe lies carelessly over a chair as if he had thrown it there but yesterday.

Across the hall is the son's room, similar in many respects, and we go from this hall into the large main hall. We walked out on the balcony and looked over the railing into the old-fashioned garden on one side and the wide lawn in front with its great cedar trees.

We came back into the hall and noticed the letter file with the old old papers and we looked into the guests chamber. There is a large fire place and high post bedstead. Here Lafayette slept. This was his room many years ago when he was a guest there.

We then went down stairs to the dining room, with its fire place, costly and beautiful silver ware, solid mahogany furniture and the table at which at least six presidents had eaten.

There is a museum also in one of the rooms where are kept many old relics too numerous to mention. In this room is kept his sword used in the war of 1812 as well as other implements of war, books and articles of an age almost forgotten by now.

From the dining room we passed out to the back of the house, where stands the kitchen with its flag stone floor and great fire place where the negro women cooked the meals eaten in the Jackson home.

Plain indeed is this kitchen and we wondered how the wonderful meals of which we read were prepared in such place, for this kitchen is typical of other southern kitchens of that day and age.

We left the kitchen and looked into the old smoke house and the words of the old song kept running in my mind, "And massa's locked in the smoke house, cellar and the keys 'trown in the well.'"

This smoke house cellar was built of red brick and not in the ground at all and we could see where the hams and bacon had been smoked years ago.

The state coach of General Jackson was there, the very one he rode in to be inaugurated president of the United States. The old coach is a big lumbering affair, enclosed with doors that swing on hinges and close. There are steps on the side that fold up, without these you could hardly climb into it. A seat in front for the coachman or driver and a seat behind for the footman.

We went from there to the back porch, similar to the porch in front, talked with the care taker and were given the freedom of the grounds.

First we visited the flower garden, walks were laid out between the beds of flowers but we were too late

His Luck

"WELL, I'll be getting lots of presents soon," he said. He had just met some pleasant new friends.

"Yes," he continued, "Christmas is a good time for me. You see I'm popular with wives. I get notes from hundreds of them; there are any number who write to me, and when Christmas comes they knit ties for me or buy a handsome silk handkerchief or two, or a fine muffler—a little thought of me at any rate. And I've never been in a divorce case yet," he ended.

"You must be a diplomat or luckier than you deserve," someone remarked. "Neither," he answered. "I'm a milkman and a milkman's Christmas is apt to be full of cheer and the good-hearted wishes of the ladies!"

The Gape Disease.

Recent investigation indicates that chickens contract the gape disease by eating earthworms infected with the larvae of the gapeworm, a parasitic nematode.

The Lighted Candle

By Christopher G. Hazard

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I'M SORRY for anyone who has to be out tonight," said Mrs. Gentle, as she drew down the window shades and stirred the hearth fire, shutting the light in and the darkness out and sending a host of sparks up the chimney to scare away the storm. The disappointed wind howled in its rage and shook the house, the snow whirled about and heaped itself up, the cold tried to get in at every crack and crevice, but Nelly and her mother were as snug and safe as any Christmas eve could wish to find them. The Christmas tree looked all ready for the youngsters who were fast asleep upstairs and dreaming about it, with its bundles and gilded balls lit fairly twinkled in the firelight, like the star of hope that guided those wise people that brought their gifts to the Christ Child long ago.

"Mother," said Nelly, "this is as comfy as it can be with father away on the wild sea, but I don't quite like to have the outside of the house all dark; I like to think of friendly lighthouses when it storms and of our house as a kindly guide in the darkness."

"Well," answered her mother, "suppose we do as they did in that lovely story we read the other day, and put a candle in the window to guide the Christ Child through the storm, and you can hang up another stocking, in case he should come."

So the four stockings by the chimney corner became five, a shade was lifted, a little to give a glimpse of the pleasant room, and the lighted candle sent its beams out into the stormy night, looking for any little wanderer who might be astray. The cheering rays, played with the snowflakes and they seemed to feel invited in as they pressed upon the window panes.

While they sat there listening and looking, there came a step on the stair and there was Tommy, in his nightgown and peeking through the partly opened door. Falling to see Santa Claus, he was about to flee up to his room again, but Nelly caught him and said that he must sing them a song first, as a punishment for his curiosity. Tommy had just learned a new song, so he was willing enough, and this was it:

Five little brothers set out together
To journey the lifelong day;
In a curious carriage, all made of leather,
They hurried away, away.
One big brother and three quite small,
One wee fellow, no size at all.

The carriage was dark and not too roony,
They could not move about;
The five little brothers grew quite gloomy,
The wee one began to pout,
Till the biggest one whispered,
"What do you say?"
"Let's leave the carriage and run away."

So off they scampered, the five together,
Far away they sped;
When somebody found the carriage of leather,
Oh, my! How she shook her head!
"Twas her little boy's shoe; as everyone knows,
The five little brothers were five little toes."

Then, with a bow, Tommy was off to his dreams again.

The fire was burning low and so was the candle, so it was time to go upstairs and get out of Santa's way, but just as Nelly and her mother were about to do so there came a little face up against the window pane and they heard a small voice, so faint that they could not know what it was saying. It took Nelly but a moment to throw open the door and bring the little stranger in, but it was longer than that before they could cuddle him up into comfort and warm his cold little toes. It was not until Christmas morning that the searchers found out where the little boy had wandered to, and when they came to Mrs. Gentle's house he was happily busy in opening his stocking, and did not want to go home. After he had gone away, with his stocking under his arm and candy marks all over his face, Nelly said, "Mother, I think there is a good deal of truth in that story about guiding the Christ Child to your house with a lighted candle."

Several Species of Rattlesnakes.

The most common and well known rattlesnakes are abundant in the East, from the White mountains in New Hampshire, and Lake Superior, to the borders of the dry plains. The diamond rattler is found mainly in the southern states along the coast from North Carolina to Texas, and a variety ranges westward to Lower California. Several other species occur in the Rocky mountain region and northern Mexico. The ground rattler is also found in southern states, and the black rattler is common in the Allegheny mountains.

Coal Tar.

Until about the middle of the Nineteenth century coal tar was regarded as a waste product and thrown away or burned under the retorts, but beginning in 1846 its value was discovered and it was first used in Germany for making roofing felt.

Narcotics Do Not Cure.

Taking narcotics to relieve headache and other pains of the body is like cutting the wire to stop the burglar alarm. The cause of the pain goes merrily along its mischievous way in the one case while the thief continues happily to pillage in the other.

The Periscope.

The earliest record of the use of the periscope was on the federal monitor Osage during the Red river expedition in 1804. The instrument was devised by Thomas Daughy, acting chief of engineers of the United States navy.

Gravel.

Gravel is the name given to aggregations of water-worn and rounded fragments of rock, varying from the size of a pea to that of a walnut. When the fragments are smaller than this the deposit is sand; when larger, it is called shingle. Gravel deposits are formed by the action of running water, and are usually limited in size, occurring with more extensive strata of sand.

Woolen Cloak 3,000 Years Old.

Leading European archeologists are of the opinion that a woolen garment, resembling a cloak, discovered by peat cutters in Gerum Fen, near Skara, Sweden, is one of the oldest ever found in Europe. It lay only a few feet under the surface of the peat, but the preserving qualities of the fen water kept it intact, scientists believe, for about 3,000 years. Although it is said to be the first complete garment ever found, the British museum possesses several fragments of cloth dating from even earlier periods.

The ermine, or white weasel, is the smallest of the fur-bearers found in North America. The finest ermine fur comes from Russia and Siberia. JUDGE WIDDIS EXPLAINS SEARCH WARRANT LAW

Continued from first page) persons escape punishment because of the carelessness or ignorance of those who are entrusted with the power of bringing guilty persons to justice. Likewise, it is regrettable that so many escape because of the cowardice of those who, knowing the facts, will not get "mixed up" with the matter in the courts. Until these latter conditions are corrected, the liquor law will be violated.

Under Act 196 of the Laws of 1917, any person can, without danger to himself, start the machinery of the law in motion. He need only make a complaint upon information and belief that some law was violated and file it with a justice of the peace. This complaint will authorize the justice to bring before him, for questioning all persons who know anything about the violation, or violations, complained of. In this way all the facts can be brought to light. The officers of the law are by no means "up against it," in so far as the enforcement of the liquor law, or any other law, is concerned. For, by virtue of this statute, the whole situation may be revealed to the justice and he can proceed in the light of the knowledge thus gained.

More knowledge of the law, more determination to enforce the law upon the part of the officers, together with more courage upon the part of persons who know of the violation of the law, would work a wonderful transformation in this respect.

Circuit Judge.

MOUNTAIN MUSIC TEACHER

to Maytown. There is a milldam in Maytown 134 years old. I hope to get a picture of it. Coming back in the "jolt wagon" I fell asleep and nearly fell out but the driver very obligingly caught me in time.

One of the teachers at "Sycamore" was putting her pencil away under the window the other night when she touched something soft. It was a big black snake taking a nap. Some boys from the Dormitory Hall came and killed it for her. These snakes are harmless but I'll try to abstain from touching them.

A man's car stalled down on the bottom between here and the school yesterday. He looked in the engine and there was a big snake curled around it, it was about four feet long. I saw that one, you don't need moonshine to "see 'em" here.

Our cottage is nestled right against the mountain. We sit on our back porch, put our backs against the house and our feet up the mountain.

You should see the sleds the mules pull, little boxes on runners, drawn by one mule. Our highways are the creek beds and when the creeks are swollen by rains, a "tide" is what the mountain people call it. This tide interferes considerably with traffic.

I called on a family a little more progressive than the average mountain people today. The father is a more traveled man than many here, having been west to Kansas in the grasshopper year.

They are very sad about their son, who served in the World War. It seems he is in the "pen" in Michigan. They say he was such a good boy until he went in the army. After he came back he stayed home just one night, then he went to Cleveland and Detroit. Later he got into a poker game and killed two men. His parents hope to get him paroled, but of course I don't know how much provocation he had. They shoot easy down here.

I rode alone one day to Wayland, on a horse that was a very nightmare at cantering. When there were not too many rocks we went like the wind. I met a man with a jug of something in one hand and a rifle in the other. An old be-whiskered mountaineer helped me across the "quicks" at Beaver, worse because of a heavy rain. My horse wandered up the mountain at Wayland and I might have had to walk home but a kind stranger captured him for me. I had a good dinner, real bread, butter, ice cream and ice.

We went for an auto ride down a creek. It was beautiful under the willows, but it seemed so queer to splash along in the water.

My boys brought me a little baby snake today. I hope father and mother copperhead are not very near.

When the boys play ball they call the bases corners and they have a knock instead of a bat at the ball. They have some brought on bases which they sometimes use instead of rocks for corners.

The men at the sawmill had a strike for higher wages and the foreman went up and down the creek after new men, but the old ones are back today.

Logging is a spasmodic affair occurring about every two weeks. They chop down half a dozen trees, roll them to the foot of the hill, hitch a mule to one log and take it down the creek to the mill. When that is sawed, they go get another log.

The Center has four cows. For the four cows they have four milkers. The milkers follow the cows around the yard with a tin cup in one hand and milk with the other.

We walked three miles one day to Uncle Henry Watson's. His father came from Scott County, Virginia. "He reckoned most of the people came from old Virginia. He reckoned that was the first place settled after the flood."

They live on Trace Branch, in a hollow at the head of it. "Trace" means the same as our trail. The walk leads through a ravine and is very beautiful. Uncle Henry has a large house with the white pine floors, doors and walls, scrubbed perfectly white with sand and a home made hickory broom.

We had fried chicken and dozen of other things for dinner. Then Aunt Martha showed us her mittens knit in gorgeous patterns, homespun blankets and dresses and some intricate quilts. "Virginia Beauty", "Lone Star", "Rising Sun", "Snow Ball" and other patterns.

Uncle Henry is about the only Republican in the whole county, he has Collidge's and Harding's, Taft's and Roosevelt's pictures on the wall.

After the heavy rains I spoke of, two of my boys climbed up under the roof of the school to punch holes in the beaver board ceiling to let the water through so the ceiling would not come down on our heads. We caught the water in a bucket. They found a snake up there and asked if they should let that down. I decided I'd rather have it come announced than unannounced so I said, "Let 'er come!" Down dropped a grey snake about two feet long. It had diamond shaped spots on it but it was not a rattler. The boys called it a house snake. They said, "They stay around the house and kill rats." I think I will keep a cat or even a rat in preference.

Friday we took the Center to Hindman to the county fair. Teachers in charge of girls had two or three each. But Miss Kinne had thirteen boys and I had fifteen in my charge. I brought mine all back safely.

The truck took us to Reynold's Fork just across the mountain, between Caney and Troublesome, then it went back for another load and we walked on. We being boy's, walked all but about two miles going; but coming back we were more lucky, riding fifteen in a Ford truck all but two miles.

The walk was through the most charming scenery and I was kept well supplied with chestnuts, thorn apples, haws, persimmons and paw paws.

Troublesome has a beautiful valley and the Hindman settlement school is located in a wonderful setting of hills and valleys. The buildings are of the same type as Caney Creek's.

We had song and yell contests. We paraded, marching four abreast, and yelled. The Hindman paraded and yelled. Then I stood on the curb and conducted a chorus. We won on "dress," "conduct," "song," and yell. Hindman won on "best school song," "best school yell." Everyone, even the Hindman teachers said my children sang splendidly.

This is sure a hectic life, the next two Saturdays I will have to ride all day, alone, along the creek, to advertise our coming fair among the people.

Even the week ends back in the old Michigan Union days couldn't compete with this for crowded moments. I expect to see some wonderful quilts and coverlids on my travels. The snakes may remain quietly snoozing in their respective nooks and spare me the sight of any more. I'll let you know how I fare.

With love,
Grace Lucille

Hemlock Baptist Church
Sunday, 1:30 p. m.—Church school. 2:15—Preaching service. Please remember the time.

The church school has entered the race for a bigger and better school, and a fine program has been adopted.

Last Sunday there was started a Young Peoples Bible Class which is promising in its prospects. Mrs. I. Z. Davis was elected their teacher.

There will be no Christmas program at the church; but in its place there will be a watch night meeting New Years eve, at which there will be a program and refreshments.

Meaning of "Stone Age."
The term "Stone age" is commonly used to denote the earliest recognized stage in the development of human culture as defined by the materials used by man for weapons, utensils, etc. The phrase is somewhat misleading, since it is probable that primitive man made use of wood and other perishable materials to a far greater extent than of stone, and consequently the stage is defined by the prevailing material of the relics which have survived, not by that of actual implements in common use.

Men will fight for their rights, but when they fight to take away the rights of others, they are the first to get out of breath.
