Mother's Cook Book

We shall advance when we have learned humility, when we have learned to seek truth, to reveal it, and publish it; when we care more for that than for the privilege of arguing about ideas in a fog of uncertainty.—Walter Lippmann.

FOODS WE LIKE

CABBAGE in the early fall is crisp, solid and good flavored. There are many ways of serving it out of the ordinary.

Stuffed Cabbage.

Select a hard head, cut away the outside leaves, then soak in salted water to dislodge any insects that may be lurking within. Drain, scoop out the center, being careful not to destroy the shape and fill with a forcement prepared of a quarter of a pound each of chopped ham and veal, then pound to a pulp, season with salt, pepper, a little minced parsley and a grating of nutmeg, a tablespoonful of chopped green pepper and bind with one-half cupful of bread crumbs and the yolks of two eggs. Tie in a cloth, cover with boiling water and cook until the cabbage is very tender. Place on a hot chop plate, serve cut into wedge-shaped pieces. A sauce may be served with this dish if it is liked especially rich.

Apple Salad.

Apples have such good flavor in a salad that they should be served in various combinations. Take two cupfuls of diced apple, a slice of Spanish onion finely diced, one-half cupful of finely diced dates and season well with good, rich, boiled dressing. Serve on lettuce.

His Wealth of Learning

Willie was just back from the circus. He bounded into the room with a hop, skip and a jump. "It was great!" he cried. "But what did you learn?" asked his grandmother. "What did I learn?" he echoed. "Just let me tell you. I learned to eat peanuts with both hands. That's what I learned!"

TAWAS CITY SCHOOL NOTES

class was asked to write on the subject "Why I Hate to Write a Theme." Reginald Boulder produced the following:

When, in the inconsistency of the routine of the literature class, it becomes coercively necessary to develop a theme upon a topic that we may choose as most suited to our individual ideas, we, after having chosen and discarded several topics in their turn find ourselves still groping in a formidable darkness. The path to the building of our theme is however lighted somewhat by an ignition of the literature teacher's candle of knowledge along that line.

Still, as we pass along, many things are dim, but we conquer these hindrances at length by persisting patience in correcting, re-creating and re-writing. When it is arranged to the best of our ability and satisfaction, we present it to the teacher for criticism, which, we feel quite certain, will be little. Yet as it is read before the class and the mistakes, which to our dismay are many are emphasized, something inside of us seems to sink irremediably. And so we pass from class with a crushed paper in our hand and a crushed spirit in our being.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

We find from the report cards that there are some of us who must work harder in order to get better marks.

This room won from the fifth and sixth grade room in the attendance contest for this month. The score was 96.87 per cent to 96.88 per cent.

Last week was good book week and we find that some pupils are reading very good books while others could find much better reading material.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Report cards were given out this week. Some pupils had better marks and some showed no improvement.

All of the pupils were asked to keep their writing work at the first of the year. We have been comparing our work now with that done the first of the year. Quite a number were very much surprised at the marked improvement shown in their last papers.

The fifth grade geography class is making a large map of S. America. The sixth grade geography class is making a large map of the United States. The states and regions will be developed as we complete the study of each.

The attendance records for the seventh and eighth grades and the fifth and sixth grades were reported the first of the week. The seventh and eighth grades showed a record of 96.88 per cent and we gave ours as 96.87 per cent.

Third and Fourth Grades

We were glad to have several visitors this week. Among them were Albert Zollweg, Mary Krumm, Martin Kasischeke, Dorothy Anderson and Beatrice Ulman.

The fourth grade is working on health and good food posters. We are also making health booklets.

Ward Holloway, Norma Kasischeke and Mildred Quick were the winners of the third grade spelling contest.

We are very sorry about the accident that happened to little Laurie Frank. We are going to be very careful on the playground after this.

We were very pleased to have Mrs. Alfred Boomer visit us one day last week.

Primary Room

The first grade is reading in their Winston Companion readers.

The beginners are making posters of Thanksgiving Goodies.

Isabelle Dease, Harvey Rempert, Phyllis Bigelow, Walter Zollweg, Gordon Myles and Rita Koepke have been neither absent nor tardy since school started.

Two new pupils entered our room, Monday from West Branch, James Belback in the beginners class and Maeland Belback in the second grade.

Our report shows fourteen tardy marks. We hope not to have so many this month.

The children are very sorry that Laurie Frank was hurt so badly on Tuesday while playing. We hope he will be back with us soon.

THANKSGIVING DAY

tom of our devout forefathers, who were wont to praise God from whom all blessings flow, and to make public demonstration of their profound gratitude. In former days to a greater extent than in our own day, the American people recognized the hand of God in the affairs of mankind. They attributed their victories, their successes and their happiness to the favor of a supernatural power. Their cup of Thanksgiving was full.

Then with the return of Thanksgiving Day our lives should become more and more channels of praise to Him who is the author of every good and perfect gift and from whom all our blessings flow. Therefore, "In everything give thanks, for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."
