GIVES REPORT ON 1929 ROAD CONSTRUCTION

A large portion of the new road projects completed by the Board of County Road Commissioners this year were built under a co-operative plan with the various townships, states County Road Engineer J. Sloan in a report to the Tawas Herald.

The roads graded and graveled this year were:

The Britt road, 1.5 miles.

Keystone road, 1/2 mile graded and 0.8 mile graveled. This road is 1.25 miles in length. A portion of this road was graded and graveled in 1928.

The Rodman road, in Wilber township, 0.56 miles.

The Wilson Creek road, 1.5 miles has been graded and gravel placed.

One mile of Londo Lake road in Plainfield township has been graded, but it is doubtful if this can be graveled this fall.

Two-thirds of a mile of road in Grant township between sections 27 and 28, has been graded.

The grade has been started on a mile of the Townline between Tawas and Alabaster, but will not be completed this fall.

In addition to the above mentioned roads, 0.3 mile has been graded and graveled on the Schneider road in Sherman township and a short piece was graded and graveled at the fair grounds.

On all grades built by the townships, plan and survey were furnished by the county.

During the year the following was added to the equipment of the construction and maintenance department: Large Adams grader, caterpillar tractor and tractor snow plow.

SCHOOL OFFICERS

OF COUNTY MEET

Officers of the school districts of the county met Wednesday at the city hall, Tawas City. Superintendents of the various schools and the members of the Isosco County Normal were also in attendance.

The meeting was conducted by G. N. Ottwell, assistant superintendent of public instruction, with discussions on school law, school administration and other topics.

EAST TAWAS ELEVATOR

MANAGER RETIRES

On account of advanced age, John Sullivan has decided to retire as manager of the East Tawas division of the Isosco Elevator company. He has passed his eighty-second birthday and has run the elevator for eight years without missing a day at the plant. For the present time, the elevator will be taken care of by H. VanPatten. They have on hand a full line of stock feed and poultry feed and will sell coal as soon as the new scales are installed.

AAA CLUB MEMBERS

ENJOY FINE MEETING

The Tawas Auto Club met at the Holland Hotel Tuesday evening and were served with a splendid chicken dinner, which was much enjoyed by about 50 persons. After singing a few lively songs led by Rev. Edinger, the business of the evening was taken up and the following board of directors selected: M. H. Barnes and G. A. Prescott of Tawas City, W. E. McDonald of Oscoda, Elmer Sheldon, H. N. Butler, C. A. Pinkerton, and J. G. Dimmick of East Tawas. The directors will meet and elect officers and appoint a road committee. The main project at present is the Tawas-Oscoda road.

E. H. Knoop of Saginaw presented the objects and work of the AAA organization and J. George O'Brien, manager of the Northern Michigan Auto Club, entertained the company in his usual brilliant and witty manner. Everyone present voted his talk one of the most witty and entertaining that has ever been heard here.

ALABASTER SCHOOL NOTES

The high school served a chicken supper Tuesday evening to about 90 people. The proceeds, $38.00, went for the benefit of the athletic association. A fast basketball game took place after the supper.

Alabaster will play its first basketball game of the season with Oscoda on Friday, November 22. The contest will take place on the local floor.

LUTHERAN TEACHERS HAVE INTERESTING CONFERENCE

A very beneficial and interesting teachers' conference was held in the Immanuel's Lutheran school of this city November 6, 7 and 8. Lutheran teachers from all parts of Michigan and Ohio were present, the aggregate numbering about thirty.

During the forenoon practical teaching lessons were given by the teachers in different subjects, in which various methods and teaching principles could be observed.

The following were some of the very interesting lessons presented: A Bible Story, The Prodigal Son; A Catechism on the Fourth Commandment; Hygiene, The Skull; History, Causes of the War of 1812; Reading Lesson for Third Grade; Introduction of Fractions for Fourth and Fifth Grades; Introduction of the Adverbs in Grammar; Child Life in China. These lessons were discussed each afternoon. Several interesting theoretical papers were also delivered.

The conference adjourned Friday noon and the teachers returned to their respective homes. They accepted an invitation to convene at Flint in November, 1930.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

IN SHERMAN TOWNSHIP

Fire destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kohn in Sherman township at about noon Saturday. A spark from the chimney was given as the cause, and before the fire was discovered, it had gained considerable headway. When help from neighbors arrived conditions were such that very little furniture could be saved. The loss was covered by a small insurance. Mr. Kohn was visiting in Flint and Bay City at the time of the disaster.

The family is living across the road in the house recently vacated by Naamon Bessie.

OBJECT OF "THE LOVE

TRAP" IS ENTERTAINMENT

Laura LaPlante's gorgeous personality literally scintillates throughout the dramatic unfolding of "The Love Trap," her latest Universal starring vehicle which shows at the State Theatre Friday (tonight) and Saturday—and that in itself would be enough for any photoplay.

But in addition to the radiant star, "The Love-Trap" presents a story as unique as it is absorbing. This, in conjunction with beautiful sets, excellent direction, sound effects and dialogue, superb photography and an outstanding cast, make it completely satisfactory as entertainment.

"The Love-Trap" is the outstanding epoch in the life of a chorus girl who rises from the "pony" ranks into the marble halls of the aristocracy. This she does through her marriage to the scion of a rich family, and her impromptu romance with Neil Hamilton who plays the leading man, is not only beautiful in itself, but distinctly refreshing in the newness of its treatment.

Later, when the aristocratic family arrives on the scene en masse and complications ensue, Miss LaPlante is afforded full opportunity to again display her tremendous dramatic ability. The public, which previously had envisioned her more or less as a comedienne, was amazed at Miss LaPlante's performance as "Magnolia" in "Show Boat." In "The Love-Trap," she once more gives indisputable proof of her versatility.

Neil Hamilton, one of the most popular of the screen's heroes, gives a thoroughly pleasing performance as Peter Cadwallader, and Norman Trevor and Robert Ellis as the judge and "heavy" respectively, lend outstanding distinction to their roles. Clarissa Selwynne, Jocelyn Lee and Rita LaRoy, the feminine support, were expertly chosen for their parts.

BOY SCOUTS

Seventeen boy scouts were present at their meeting last Tuesday evening. Jack Mark and Kenneth Frank passed their tenderfoot tests and were awarded the tenderfoot pin.

Eleven Boy Scouts enjoyed a hike to Alabaster last Saturday.

Leland Harris was the first to report getting a deer this morning. Leland was out one-half hour.

Protect that picture by having it framed at the W. A. Evans Furniture Co.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School

The first and second year sewing classes are planning a hike and weiner roast. The chief difficulty seems to be to find an evening when all can go.

Some of the members of the class in World History are being allowed to demonstrate their ability as teachers.

Miss Worden is kindly filling in as teacher of the fifth and sixth grades until another teacher is secured for this room.

The botany class has recently studied the common barberry from material forwarded by the United States Department of Agriculture. This is certainly an interesting plant to study.

The grammar department and the high school united Monday to observe Armistice Day. The program consisted of the following numbers: Song by the assembly; Reading, "In Flanders Fields," Bessie Rouiller; Recitation, "The Answer," Delta Leslie; Address, H. Read Smith; Song by the assembly. Mr. Forsten also gave an interesting account of the Michigan-Harvard football game of last Saturday.

PRODUCES A VERY

CLEVER SONG HIT

Charles H. Hinman, of Hastings, formerly of Alabaster, has written a song entitled "Sweet Elaine" that promises to become very popular with all lovers of music. Words and music have been prepared by Mr. Hinman, and put out in attractive sheet form. The song was sung at the Barry County fair by George Kart of Lake Odessa and was later broadcast by radio from Grand Rapids. It has been sung by the Hastings Rotary Club and other Hastings organizations and has struck a popular chord wherever and whenever it has been heard. Mr. Hinman evidently possesses unusual talent in this line, and is to be congratulated on his production, which seems to be making a decided hit.

HOWARD M. BELKNAP DIES SATURDAY

The people of Isosco county were saddened Saturday afternoon by the sudden death of Howard M. Belknap of this city. The deceased had been a resident of this county for the past 50 years, coming here with his parents from New York state when nineteen years of age. For seventeen years Mr. Belknap was connected with the State Land Department, was county surveyor thirty years and was engineer five years with the county road commission. He served twelve years as supervisor and was chairman of the board for one year. For many years he had been actively interested in the construction of roads. A large portion of the excellent highway system in this county was constructed under his supervision and is a monument to his memory as a practical road builder. Mr. Belknap has resided in this city for the past seven years. Prior to that he lived at Whittemore for many years.

Howard M. Belknap was born at West Turin, N. Y., September 3, 1860. In 1879 he came to Isosco county with his parents and the family settled in Reno township. September 1, 1884, he was united in marriage to Elmira H. Backer, who, with the three sons, Lyle E. of St. Johns, Leslie H. of East Lansing and Leon V. of Pontiac, and two sisters, Mrs. Elmira Chase of Whittemore and Mrs. Lizzie Baker of Dayton, Ohio, survive him.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. Charles E. Edinger of East Tawas officiated, assisted by Rev. W. L. Jones. Interment was made in the Tawas City cemetery.

Besides the many friends from various parts of the county, those from out of the city who attended the funeral were the three sons and their families, Mrs. Lizzie Baker of Dayton, Ohio, Mrs. Lulu Boice of Hudson, N. Y.; members of the Oakland county road commission, Luther D. Allen, Isaac Bond and Howard Hillman; engineers with the Oakland county road commission, C. F. Glasgow, E. J. Vaughan, E. H. O'Dell, E. T. McNeil and A. M. Comb; Floyd Koonz, estimate engineer with the state highway commission; John Spitzler, county road commissioner of Clinton county; M. C. Robinson of Lansing and Floyd Robinson of St. Johns.

The bereaved wife and sons have the deep sympathy of the many friends.

L. D. S. MEETINGS WILL ## CONTINUE NEXT WEEK

The series of L. D. S. meetings which have been held here during the past week will be continued next week under the guidance of Missionary F. C. Bevan of Ottumwa, Iowa. He says he will present an old message in a new light and promises to talk in terms of today. The local organization presents the following relative to the history and teachings of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints:

"The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints is the same organization as that established by Joseph Smith in 1830, and in all points of doctrine and practice it has remained true to its original teachings. Due to an unfortunate similarity of names the Reorganized Church has suffered much in reputation for the sins of Utah Mormonism, but the courts, both state and federal, have affirmed its orthodoxy, and a discerning public has come to recognize its just claim to fellowship in all Christian endeavor.

"In many ways this organization is unique among modern churches, but like the others it predicated all its claims on the Bible. In matters of organization it claims to pattern exactly after the New Testament church, and it has a prophet, apostles, bishops, elders, priests, teachers and deacons as of old; in practice it follows the Scriptural customs and anoints with oil for healing, has its children blessed by the elders, baptizes in water for the remission of sins, and invokes the gift of the Holy Spirit by the laying on of hands. It believes in the spiritual gifts, and its meetings frequently experience prophecies, tongues, and visions as at Pentecost. Revelation as a means of guidance is believed in by these Latter Day Saints as by the Former Day Saints.

"The Reorganized Latter Day Saints believe that the Book of Mormon contains a true account of the Indian's progenitors, and that it was brought forth and translated by the power of God. They do not use it as a Bible, but point out that its teachings in all features agree with the Scriptures and constitute an additional witness for Christ.

"In matters of education, of social service, of philanthropy, of economic cooperation, no people is more progressive. Their system aims at the amelioration of present-day conditions quite as much as it looks to future salvation and one of the main purposes of their gathering together in large groups is that they may work out their mutual problems on a cooperative basis."

"Talkies" of Crime Suspects Help the Police

Movietone talkies of suspects and criminals were made for the first time in Philadelphia. It is the idea of Director of Public Safety Lemuel Schofield to have talkies made of suspects so that when the trial comes up the talkies can be shown and the confessions of the criminal also recorded by themselves, so that no prisoner can say he was tricked into a confession. Photograph shows a general view of the interior of the detective bureau where the talkies were made.

"Where There's a Will, There's a Way"

YITA
STANLEY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
Drawing by Ray Walters.

IT SEEMS that the American people are becoming "will-conscious," for it is a curious fact that more people than ever before, who have anything to leave after their deaths and anyone to whom to leave it, are making wills. Just why this is true is not easy to determine. It may be due to the psychological factor involved in the statement that "A will is the only permanent expression of himself that the average man leaves to posterity." Or it may be caused by the fact that the increasing number of cases of litigation in our courts, resulting from persons dying intestate, has impressed upon us the value of a will in guarding against the happiness of families, although it must be admitted that not even a will can always prevent that. Then again it may be due to the fact that bankers and lawyers are constantly urging their clients to "Make a will. Do it now. Don't put it off, for 'tomorrow' may never come."

If, in urging upon us the necessity for performing this important task before we lay down our life's task, the bankers and lawyers needed a good object lesson, what better could be found than that offered in the following news stories which appeared in the newspapers within recent months:

Cedar Rapids, Iowa.—Three hours after he had driven to Luzerne to settle his mother's estate, and make his own will, Patrick Farrell, fifty-nine, wealthy farmer of Blairtown, was found dead.

He had been in ill health for several months and his friends are wondering whether he had a premonition of death which caused him to make his will so hurriedly.

Harrison, Ark.—On the way home with a printed form for his will, William Walden, seventy, was struck by a car driven by Ralph Taylor, a neighbor. He died a few hours later.

Although a will is usually regarded as one of the symbols of death, it often reflects some of the most interesting facts of a man's life. In no other document which he writes is there recorded so much which reveals his true character. It may show him at his best and at his worst. For the old saying that "where there's a will, there's a way" can be the addition of a few words, be extended to cover the whole range of human psychology.

"Where there's a will, there's a way—to show the nobler qualities of mankind." The mother of George M. Cohan, famous actor, who left him the bulk of her estate, wrote in her will: "In making this bequest to my son, I desire to state that whatever property my beloved husband and I have had, seized and possessed of, has come from the unselfish generosity of my beloved son, who has earned and enjoyed our everlasting gratitude and affection." Fifteen years before the death of Edward Lancaster, his friend, Richard O'Neill, fought with a hold-up man on top of a speeding freight train to save the hard-earned money of Lancaster. When Lancaster died he left his entire estate of $21,000 to O'Neill and directed in his will that a five-year search be made for the beneficiary, whose whereabouts were unknown. Not so long ago there died a merchant whose belief in the observance of the Golden Rule was revealed in the terms of his will. Twenty pages in length, it contained legacies, some large and some small, to every one who had ever been polite to him or showed kindness to others in his presence. They included bequests to a conductor who had paid an old lady's fare; to a clerk who carried home a sick dog; to a policeman who helped a blind man across the street. Bellhops were remembered for acts of courtesy; stage comedians for having made people laugh, and editors and judges for having sponsored humanitarian campaigns.

"Where there's a will, there's a way—to reveal the depths of human meanness." Unfortunately it is, but true, and will reveal more than one unlovely example of carrying matrimonial differences to the other side of the grave. Some interesting examples of these come from England where lawmakers are seeking to make vindictive will-making illegal.

Not long ago a wealthy commercial magnate, after deliberately leading his wife to believe herself his sole legatee, left her one shilling, and bequeathed $300,000 to others, including a servant she disliked. Another man left all his money to his wife, but on condition that she should forfeit $1,000 every time she appeared in public without a veil, while on remembrance she was to forfeit all.

A Nottingham man who two years ago bequeathed a halfpenny to each of his family just missed the record in testamentary meanness, which belongs to the testator who left his wife a farthing, with instructions that the coin should be forwarded to her in an unstamped envelope.

Then there was William Darley of Herts, England, who never forgave his wife for having once taken some money from his trousers' pocket. He will be cut her off with a shilling "for picking my pocket of 60 guineas." When Charles Parker of England died, the principal bequest in his will was "To Elizabeth Parker the sum of £50 whom, through my foolish fondness I made my wife, without regard to family, fame or fortune; and who, in return, has not spared, most unjustly, to accuse me of every crime regarding human nature save highway robbery."

But England is not the only place where post-mortem spite has been shown. There was the citizen of Boston who left his wife penniless "unless she married again within five years," because he "wanted somebody else to find out how hard it was to live with her." Contrast with that the meekness of the Englishman who left all his estate to his wife "trusting, yea, I may say, as I think assuring myself that she will marry no man, for fear to meet with so evil a husband as I have been to her." Contrast also the consideration shown by Gouverneur Morris, the New York statesman, who left his wife a fortune and further provided that in case of her remarriage, the income should be doubled. Quite different was the attitude of John Conkling of Southold, Long Island, toward his wife, Abigail, to whom he bequeathed "the use of one-third my lands and meadows and a sufficiency of firewood and the liberty of dwelling in which of my houses she pleaseth to live during her widowhood and no longer." That was many years ago. If John were living now he might not find it so easy to take out his spite on Abigail, for during the last year the New York legislature, recognizing the evil which men may do in the wills they leave behind them, enacted further limitations than those already existing upon a testator's right to disinherit.

"Where there's a will, there's a way—to display many oddities of temperament and reveal queer quirks in the human mind." When Edward K. Chapman, a Civil war veteran who became "Christmas Tree King" of Maine, died, he left $1,000 in trust to the Portland Y. M. C. A., the income from which is to be spent to interest young men in checkers, buy new boards and men and also to keep the boards and game "clean and sanitary."

William Kreter of New York, an Irishman and a devoted fisherman, played a bit of a joke on his fellow-countrymen in his will. He left $300 to his friend, Charles Whistler, "to be spent on a fishing trip after my death," and gave him also $50 for the expenses of carrying his ashes out to sea after his body had been cremated. To the New York Times he left a fund of $200 "to be utilized to Americanize the Irish, in particular those of American birth."

John Quinn, seventy-two, of San Francisco, veteran street car conductor, left a $60,000 estate and provided in his will that his debtors need repay only 75 per cent of their debts to his estate.

J. J. Holloway of St. Clairsville, Ohio, left a $4-word will in which he bequeathed his $1,600,000 estate to his wife.

John Payne of Australia left a fortune of over $2,500,000 and requested that his magnificent home be destroyed by fire as soon as practicable.

Twenty-two persons gathered at the grave of William P. Herrman of Paterson, Pa., to receive bequests ranging from $500 to $2,000. His will specified that his heirs should be at his mausoleum on the first Decoration day after his death to receive the money. It rained hard that day but they were all there.

Politics Beyond Grave

Darling Gardiner, although a Southerner, was a Republican and carried his political fanaticism beyond the grave. He left $4,000 to his two brothers and two nephews provided "none of them has ever been known as a Democrat, or suspected of voting for or supporting the nominees of that party." In case all of them were Democrats or had ever leaned toward that side of the fence, Gardiner directed that his money should be used to endow a Republican newspaper.

HOW TO LIVE LONGER

By JOHN CLARENCE FUNK
A. M., Sc. D.

Director of Public Health Education,
State of Pennsylvania.

Co-Operate

THESE days one hears so much about the word co-operate that it has almost lost its significance. Nevertheless, when it is applied to matters of health it is not only an apt term but an absolutely necessary one as well.

The present-day emphasis on health in magazines, newspapers, moving pictures and over the radio is unprecedented. In addition, a continual flow of information and official supervision can be traced to the private, municipal, state and federal health agencies; not to mention the valuable work which is constantly being accomplished by the insurance companies. It is unmistakably a sign of the times, and a most gratifying one.

Unfortunately, however, there is a tendency on the part of thousands of people to conclude that with so many people interested in the other fellow's welfare that little, if anything, need be done toward that end by the fellow himself.

Even after the establishment of adequate water and milk control, the development of proper sewage facilities and efficient communicable disease regulation, the biggest job in health remains for the individual himself to do.

Health departments and officials can eloquently and even vigorously suggest that one needs sufficient sleep, all the fresh air he can get, a proper amount of wholesome food and daily exercise. But then they have gone as far as they can go. As for the individual, it is strictly a "take it or leave it" proposition.

"Take it" and live long! "Leave it" and live less! Which seems to indicate that co-operation pays. It's up to you!

The Wayside Camp

EVERY possible precaution has been thrown around the automobile tourist. Federal and state officials are extremely solicitous for the man and his family on the road. Well do these authorities appreciate that no matter how fine the weather, how inspiring the scenery, or how good the road, these things will amount to little if, as a result of the trip, illness follows in its wake.

It is therefore not enough that caution signs and signals are to be found at every crossroad and curve. Health departments have gone farther by attempting to regulate the sanitation of the wayside camp. It is plain, however, that even with regular inspections on the part of the official personnel, the real key to the proper observance of the law, so far as these establishments are concerned, is held by the tourist himself.

Many jurisdictions in this country require that safe water be supplied at these places, that the grounds be maintained at all times in a sanitary condition, that a prompt disposition of the garbage be made, and that comfort facilities are properly kept. It will pay the traveler to be finicky on this camp question. If the place does not meet the fundamental requirements, then move on. Far better that a few more miles be added to the trip than to run the risk of typhoid fever, which at its very best is an exceedingly risky malady.

And in this connection, do not forget that the tourist also has a duty to perform which can be summarized under three "don'ts." 1. Don't throw garbage into streams. 2. Don't pollute running water in any manner. 3. Don't drink from creeks or rivers no matter how poetical their setting or how clear and cool the water may be.

With the camp proprietor doing his best to comply with regulations and with the patron, by his conduct and choiceness, assisting and inspiring him, a combination is set up that will be hard for old typhoid to beat. Now then, all aboard for a safe and pleasant journey!

Lucky Day for Clerk

When He Answered Ad

Young Randall, a clerk in a big office in the Grand Central district, had felt for a couple of years that his work was not receiving the reward it merited, and that he would never be given a chance to ascend the ladder of success in that particular place. He was sure that his immediate superior was to blame and eventually he gave up all hope of receiving a promotion.

The next day he answered a keyed advertisement in a newspaper, penning a note that he himself agreed was a good one. It evinced confidence, ambition and vision, and he was sure that it would receive a favorable answer.

And it did—from the president of his own company! He was requested to call for an interview, and he shuddered at the thought of the mess into which he had gotten himself. Eventually he got up nerve, marched into the president's office and told his story. The president was impressed to such an extent that he gave the youth the bigger job—and bawled out the department head who had failed to take cognizance of the ambition of the youth.—New York Sun.

Needless Pain!

The man who wouldn't drive his motorcar half a mile when it's out of order, will often drive his brain all day with a head that's throbbing.

Such punishment isn't very good for one's nerves! It's unwise, and it's unnecessary. A tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin will relieve a headache every time. So, remember this accepted antidote for pain, and spare yourself a lot of needless suffering. Read the proven directions and you'll discover many valuable uses for these tablets. For headaches; to check colds. To ease a sore throat and reduce the infection. For relieving neuralgia, neuritic, rheumatic pain.

People used to wonder if Bayer Aspirin was harmful. The doctors answered that question years ago. It is not. Some folks still wonder if it really does relieve pain. That's settled! For millions of men and women have found it does. To cure the cause of any pain you must consult your doctor; but you may always turn to Bayer Aspirin for immediate relief.

BAYER ASPIRIN

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Needed but Unwanted

Another thing the world needs is an alarm clock which will come right back and ring again after you shut it off in the morning.—Omaha Evening World-Herald.

Plan Study of Gorilla

Scientists from Yale university plan to make a year's study of gorillas in the Belgian Congo to learn if there is any similarity between the conduct of ape and man.—Providence Journal.

Children Cry for it

Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups. Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.

Shows Evolution of Horse

The history of the horse family, showing the evolution of the horse from a four-toed animal the size of a cat to the present large one-toed or hoofed type, is illustrated by an exhibit in the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

Train Makes Record Run

What is claimed to be the longest non-stop railway run ever made was recently accomplished in South America. A Beardmore-Diesel electric engine hauled a special train from Buenos Aires to Cipolletti, a distance of 775 miles, in 20 hours 37 minutes.

Night Life Gets You if You Don't Watch Out!

War Vet almost takes count, but pals help.

HOW would you like it if every two weeks you had to give up your good night's sleep, and work all night instead? This is what happened to W. H. Huggins of 90 Savannah Street, Rochester, New York. When he came back from the War, he took a night "shift" job.

"It certainly shot me all to pieces," said Mr. Huggins. "I was licked before I started. My pals noticed that the night shift got me, so during a 'lunch' period in the middle of one night one of them said to me, 'Hug, I bet I know what's the matter with you. This irregular life gets us all unless we watch out. Why don't you try Nujol? Most of the boys are onto this little health trick. Try it!'"

"Well, that very night on the way home I got a bottle and within a week I felt like a different person. I wouldn't know myself. You can lick any job, even a night one, if you get the poisons out of your system regularly. Nujol sure did it for me!"

That's the great thing about

This kind of man wins no matter where you put him

Nujol. It absorbs the poisons in your system (we all have them) and cleans them out regularly. It cannot hurt you no matter how long you take it, and it forms no habit.

Nujol contains no medicines or drugs. It is simply the world's most famous method of bodily lubrication.

You can get a bottle at any good drug store, in a sealed package, for less than the cost of a couple of good cigars. Begin today to prove to yourself how Nujol can help you to lick the toughest job and feel bully!

Grateful to U. S.

A story of gratitude, as shown in a will, is revealed in the following story: Lancaster, Ohio.—Mr. and Mrs. Dorrah Snider of Oakthorpe, near here, are thankful to the United States congress for their little 40-acre farm.

How the decision of disposing of this Fairfield county tract was placed in the hands of the government is an unusual story, going back several years. When Wesley Jordan, the village blacksmith of Oakthorpe died, he left the most extraordinary will ever filed here. He left his small farm to the United States government because he felt he owed his greatest debt of gratitude to his government for the privilege of life, liberty, property and pursuit of happiness.

The will authorized the United States Treasury department to use the property as it deemed best. There was a widespread feeling in the county that the farm should go to his half-sister, Mrs. Snider, and her husband with whom Jordan had lived. Congressman Mel G. Underwood of the Eleventh district took the matter up and introduced a joint resolution, declining the gift. It was adopted at the last session of congress.

Railways and The Telephone

A freight train puffs quietly on the siding—waiting—the outlines of the cars showing dimly through the darkness. A minute passes—two—three. Then over the night air floats a muffled whistle. Far down the track a light appears. The rails begin to hum, the light grows bright, and a passenger train roars past, windows gleaming. Then the freight comes to life and the long, shadowy outline moves away.

Four million persons in Michigan are served by this steam transport system—four million persons rely upon it, and upon its worthy partner, the electric railway lines. Michigan desires the prosperity of these efficient and progressive railways, for only as they prosper can they serve.

Over hill, across valley—paralleling the rails or following the highways—go the telephone wires, freighted with the spoken commands of industry, agriculture, finance and business.

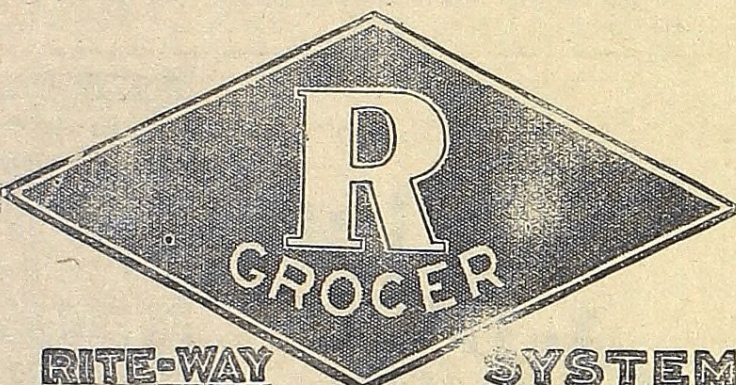

Railways and wireways traverse the land as partners in progress. Upon the one you depend for the transportation of yourself, your family and your goods. To the other you give your voice to be flashed immediately, one mile or thousands, from your home or your office.

The great rail transportation systems and the universal service of the telephone are vital factors in this country's development and prosperity.

Our policy—"To continue to furnish the best possible telephone service at the lowest cost consistent with financial safety".

MODEL AIR CODE IS URGED UPON STATES

Uniform Rules to Be Placed Before Legislatures.

Washington.—A model aeronautics code, which will provide uniform regulations governing the flying of planes throughout the country if it is universally adopted, has been drawn up and will be submitted to state legislatures according to the Department of Commerce.

A set of suggested field rules for airports also has been completed and its adoption is urged by the department, as it would eliminate a confusing situation like that which has grown up in automobilizing through the variety of regulations enforced upon motorists.

Governs Planes and Pilots.

The standard law suggested by the department to the states covers airworthiness requirements for aircraft, regulations as to the ability of the pilots who are to fly them, equipment of airports and conformity with standard air traffic laws. The requirements suggested are those enforced by the Department of Commerce with regard to licensing and operation of planes and flying of pilots.

The suggested air traffic rules cover every contingency that might arise at an airport in normal air traffic and it is believed that all unusual conditions also are covered. The right of way of one plane over another is clearly defined according to relative flying positions. This applies to planes in the air, landing or taking off.

Earlier Code Revised.

The new code, which is a revision of one previously worked out by the department, were drawn up with the aid of the army air corps, the bureau of aeronautics of the Navy department and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce. Through the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce air transport operators, airport engineers and managers and others were invited to submit suggestions to the department, and many responded.

A uniform or municipal or county ordinance also has been suggested, which, if adopted, would require that aircraft and pilots operating within the jurisdiction of the city or county conform to the rules of the Department of Commerce.

The department's object in suggesting this legislation to states, counties and cities is to establish a uniform practice throughout the country.

"The range of the airplane is even greater than that of the automobile," it was explained, "and unless a standard code is adopted the stranger flying across the country will be confronted with a bewildering variety of rules and requirements, differing at each airport he visits."

Record for Ruth

Ruth Nichols recently completed the longest solo airplane tour ever made by a woman. She covered 12,000 miles over 100 cities in 46 states. Not one mishap marred her trip, which was made in the interest of the newly organized chain of aviation clubs. She organized ten new clubs during the flight.

Admiral Moffett in Favor of Airships

Washington.—Results of the successful experiments conducted by the navy dirigible, Los Angeles, to determine the feasibility of air ships launching and recovering airplanes in mid-air, will be reflected in the navy dirigibles now under construction, according to Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics.

"New possibilities of the airship are becoming apparent," he said. "From a military standpoint there is the possibility of maintaining an airplane guard around an airship. We can imagine airships serving as refueling bases for airplanes, and airplanes delivering and discharging mail and passengers from the larger ships."

"As an aircraft carrier, the dirigible cannot be compared with a vessel, however. The number of airplanes that can be carried without handicapping the ship always will be small," he said.

A great deal of experimental work with the problem remains to be done, he indicated.

Flying Boat Logical for Inland Waters

The huge flying boat plying along the routes of an earlier mode of transportation—the steamboat—is seen by William P. MacCracken, former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, as a logical step in air transportation in the United States.

The thousands of miles of navigable streams and lakes are potential flying boat routes where space for alighting and taking off is unrestricted and where emergency landing places always are at hand.

MacCracken, who recently returned from a three months' trip abroad, said he was much impressed by the use of large flying boats on various air lines in Europe.

"Europe is far ahead in the development of flying boats," the former air secretary said, "and there should be more development along that line in this country."

With unlimited space in which to take off and land, huge flying boats could carry heavy cargoes between the waterway cities, which formerly relied on the steamboat as the principal means of transportation.

They could carry heavier loads than land planes, aeronautics experts point out, because their runways for taking off and landing would not be restricted as it is on land.

ROCKET PLANE HAS OPENED NEW FIELD

Fritz von Opel's Startling Flight in Germany.

New York.—With the successful flight of his rocket plane by Fritz von Opel in Germany another whole new avenue of possibilities opens to aviation, writes Reginald M. Cleveland in the New York Times. The diminutive gliding plane, shot off into space and sent hurtling ever higher and further by successive explosions controlled by this daring young experimenter, was but the crude forerunner, of course, of what is promised from this means of propulsion. It traveled about a mile and a quarter in seventy-five breathless seconds and was pretty badly cracked up at the landing because it lacked gliding height and the special "brake" rockets did not function, but it certainly proved to the hilt the contention of Herr Opel and Professor Sander that a force other than the conventional motor could operate a plane and free it of the handicaps of long take-off run and engine weight. The plane used for the successful trial weighed only 250 pounds.

Much remains to be done to bring rocket flight into the realms of practical, everyday application. The explosive powder rocket will be superseded, Professor Sander predicts, by the gas rocket. Herr Opel says that full use of the gases would enable a plane to circle the earth in five hours! While this is hardly likely to be found in the lap of the immediate future—since major difficulties of protecting the pilot from the air stream and still affording him means to see and steer his course are to be reckoned with, in addition to the technical perfecting of the new propulsive method itself—at least the flight at Frankfurt was convincing enough to give much food for thought.

"The range of the airplane is even greater than that of the automobile," it was explained, "and unless a standard code is adopted the stranger flying across the country will be confronted with a bewildering variety of rules and requirements, differing at each airport he visits."

Flying Insurance Is Now Being Studied

Washington.—Thorough study of all phases of aeronautical insurance has been undertaken by the Daniel Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics under the direction of Capt. Ray A. Dunn, army air corps, appointed as consultant to the fund by Harry F. Guggenheim, president.

"Aviation insurance is one of the outstanding problems not only of the commercial aviator, but of all those engaged in flying," Mr. Guggenheim stated in announcing the appointment and its approval by the War department.

"At present, rates for insurance of this kind are almost prohibitive and this is very largely due to the almost complete lack of correlated information on the subject. The attempts made by American insurance companies to solve this problem have been hampered by the inadequate scope of the statistics available."

"The results of the studies made by insurance actuaries have all differed with respect to the hazards of different classes of flying, and these differences have resulted in the varying and extremely high premium rates established by the underwriting companies for aviation risks. In the face of this confused situation it has been difficult, if not impossible, for the public as well as for military and naval officers of the United States engaged in aviation to obtain the amount of insurance coverage which has been desired."

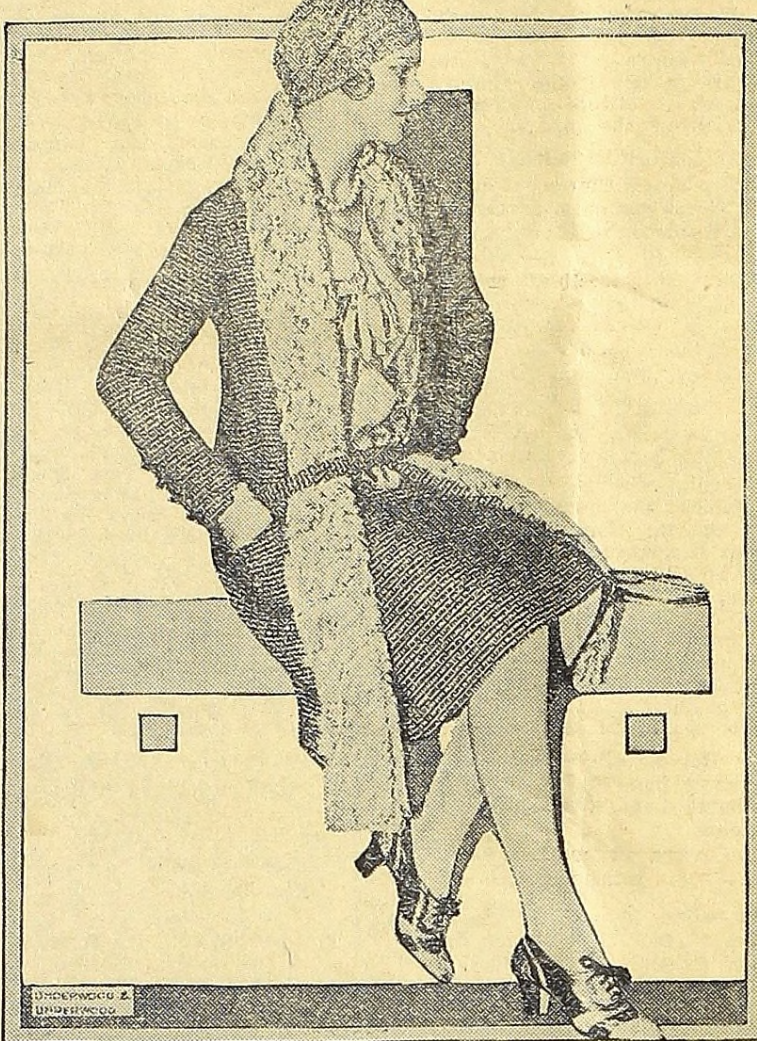

"Because of the importance of life insurance to aviation, the fund has asked Captain Dunn to conduct a survey which will compile accurate and official data in regard to aviation mortality and in so doing make available to the insurance underwriters those statistics which are necessary for the satisfactory stabilization of this unsettled question."

IDEAL SUIT FOR LATE AUTUMN; FUR-EMBELLISHED CLOTH COATS

THIS is indeed a "suit season," and the program is a fascinating one, such that leads not only to the heart strings but to the purse strings as well. Of the model pictured it is not too much to say that it is the suit ideal according to standards set for smart outdoor wear.

Everything about this costume is chic, down to the slightest detail. Analyzing it step by step the first item of note is the tweed itself, which is of the loose-woven type, for the loose soft weaves are the "last word." It's coloring is perfect, being brown with of satiny sheen, trimmed with glossy luxurious black lynx, for Paris proclaims the vogue of the all-black coat. However, the original of the model pictured happens to be in one of the new radiant browns, for brown in all its variations is perhaps the most widely acclaimed color of the season, although rich, beautiful greens are running a close second. One of fashion's whims is to dye the fur to match the cloth it trims, which decree has been carried out to a nicety in the lavish fox borderings on this coat. It is interesting to note that the cream white mixture. Since the mode sets such esthetic value on matching furs, one expects the astrakhan tuxedo collar to carry brown and cream tones, which it does most harmoniously. And there's the satin blouse! It's exquisite eggshell tint tunes in with the color scheme. Furthermore this satin blouse indulges in a jabot of self-material and a flock of little bows, which it should be fashionable.

The little chenille-crocheted toque done in tweedlike effect crowns milady with chic. It is just such millinery as fashion prescribes for the tweed-clad, who would be smartly hatted. Coming down to earth, cunning oxford greet the eye. They "tell the world" that oxfords are "in" again. This particular pair is done in brown kid and lizard, repeating the tone colorings of the tweed suit.

This costume if developed in black and white, or rather black, white and gray, would be equally as successful. In which event the order of procedure would be black and white for the loose-weave tweed, gray for the as flare of the sleeves and the flare of the hemline correspond. One of the pleasures of the new coats is to assume relaxed lines, thus achieving a unified silhouette. Flares and flares are involved in modern coat construction, some cut a la princess as the picture defines, others achieved through cunningly devised circular fullness or cleverly devised inset godets.

And have you noticed how very slenderizing is the diagonal wrap around effect of the coat illustrated? It's the latest! According to certain style enthusiasts, whose mission it is to create coats, the thing to do is to omit the usual single button and loop fastening and to casually hold the coat in place. It is an art, to be sure, but the young woman in the picture seems to have mastered it.

Fur is used not only lavishly on autumn and winter cloth coats, but it is manipulated in ways so extraordinary, as to create a new and fascinating interest in all colorology, from the least expensive types to the most traskan, footwear and headwear being carried out in black and white tones.

In the styling of the fur-trimmed tweed suit, such details are observed as normal waist lines, the tuck-in blouse, skirts with yokes, length of coats from the standpoint of three-quarter, seven-eighth, or jacket types, also widened hemlines achieved with plaits, flares, or circular cuts.

Masterpieces are they, the wondrous fur-embellished cloth coats which are at this time being flaunted before the admiring eyes of fashion's clientele.

The coat in the lower picture might have been of kitten's ear broadcloth exclusive. It matters not whether furs be of the flatter variety or the sumptuous long-haired type, they are handled with infinite cunning.

Just a word about correct foot-wear: it is significant that the youthful fashionable in this picture is wearing the simplest kind of pumps. In this instance, milady's coat being brown, she is wearing brown pumps with dusky brown hose. With the all-black costume to be chic, one should wear black suede pumps and sheer metal gray stockings.

AID QUALITY BY PROPER PRUNING

Treatment at Regular Intervals Helps All Crops.

(By L. C. WILLIAMS, Extension Horticulturist, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

General thinning out of the fruit wood should be practiced each year to increase the size and quality of fruit. Trees that are given a moderate amount of pruning at regular intervals will usually produce more profitable crops than those that are pruned heavily and then neglected.

The best tools to use for thorough pruning are a pruning saw of the swivel, replaceable blade type and a pair of hand shears. Extreme care should be taken in making all cuts close and smooth. Stubs should not be left as they delay healing and cause decay. All wounds more than one inch in diameter should be covered with paint or other noninjurious substance that will protect the tree against decay. White lead and raw linseed oil combined make one of the best paints.

There are exceptions to all pruning rules, but in general all dead or badly diseased branches, no longer fruitful, should be removed. Branches which crowd or rub other more desirable branches should be taken out. Severe heading back should not be practiced except with very young trees or in the case of old peach trees which may respond to "topping back" or "dehorning" as it is sometimes called.

There seems to be a general impression that cherry trees should not be pruned. In spite of that belief, by far the best cherries produced are grown on trees which are given a good thinning each year. Pruned trees will live longer, for they may be sprayed to better advantage in controlling the cherry leaf spot. Cherries may be pruned in about the same manner as apples except that the cherry tree should not be headed back.

Grape vines should be pruned before growth starts in the spring. As a general rule, four canes of new wood should be left for each vine. These canes should be 10 to 12 buds long. This "long cane" system as it is called will yield at least a third more grapes than the short cane or spur system.

Mulch for Strawberries Applied in December

Most of the strawberry beds are mulched, of course, by this time, but I have noticed in past years even well into December that some beds receive no mulching whatever, says a writer in an exchange.

This is a mistake if the maximum of fruit production is to be expected from the strawberry beds, and even though it may be December and it looks like mulching at so late a date would be nonsense, still in the majority of cases a considerable benefit may be derived from late mulching.

For mulching, straw, old hay or the like may be employed very satisfactorily, provided it is free from weeds. In fact, where you will likely plow up a strawberry bed next summer after it produces its crop anyhow, the matter of weed seed in the straw or hay may be discounted considerably. For even though the weeds make a pretty vigorous start, usually the fruit will be picked and out of the way before the weeds amount to a great deal, and weeds and berry plants and all will be plowed under during the early summer.

Horticultural Facts

At this season of the year the chief attention of the orchardist is devoted to pruning.

"Safety first" practices demand the spraying of peach trees to prevent destruction by leaf curl.

Early planting is always advantageous for orchard trees, and usually so for cool weather garden vegetables.

In pruning young orchards it is seldom necessary to use a disinfectant to sterilize the small wounds made by the removal of branches.

If pruning work is to be performed properly, interestingly, and with the least amount of effort to the laborer, good pruning tools are necessary.

Use pruning shears and saws to train the young tree to the desired type of framework and to maintain the framework of the older tree in condition to produce the maximum amount of good quality fruit.

The work of pruning and shaving cankers should be done every year, because some may be overlooked and new ones may develop each year.

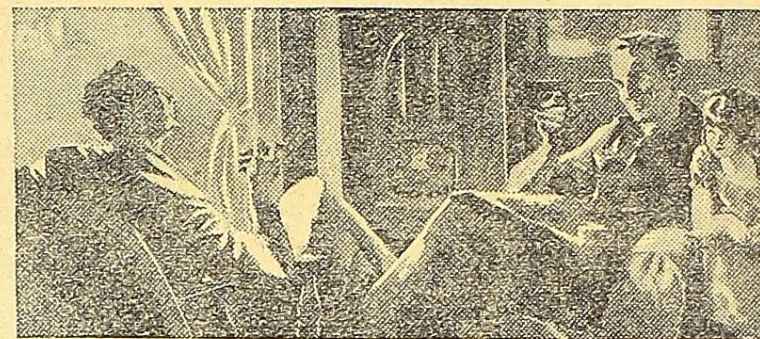

Mounding earth around the trees in the fall, before hard freezing weather, to a height of 4 to 6 inches helps, especially in winters of light snowfall.

Reports that mice nests are abundant near fruit trees this year strengthen the need for clearing away rubbish from near the trunks of fruit trees to prevent injury.

Melted Granite Saves Labor

To save the tedious labor of chiseling away granite foundation blocks on which rests the county morgue at Pittsburgh, Pa., contractors planning to move the structure melted the granite rocks, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The chiseling operation would have required two months, but the granite was transformed into molten lava in less than one month. An oxygen welder first was applied to the granite, eating out a small hole, after which a steel pipe attached to an oxygen tank was inserted in the hole and oxygen released into it. When the pipe started to melt, chemical reaction also served to melt the granite.

Fine Botanical Gardens

The University of Kentucky is rapidly bringing its new botanic gardens into final shape. The gardens are nine acres in extent and it is the aim of the university department of botany eventually to include in the collections specimens of every type of plant that will grow under Kentucky climatic conditions. A feature of the gardens is the collection of hybrid rhododendrons, the most comprehensive in the state. These shrubs require a special soil, which has been prepared for them by the use of peat, moss and aluminum sulphate.

says that the one room district school belongs with the scythe and hand rake, and is of the days when corn was planted by hand. The remedy is the consolidated district. Reliable data shows that there has been consolidation and transportation of pupils in Massachusetts since 1869. Massachusetts was the first state to abandon the district school.

Utah operates all of its schools under the consolidated plan. Indiana has over twelve hundred schools which have consolidated; Ohio 913; North Dakota 526; Mississippi 430; Iowa 380; Minnesota 302; Oklahoma 200; West Virginia 171; Missouri 150; Kansas 240; South Dakota 140; Colorado 114; Kentucky 80; Nebraska 61. #### Rupture Shield Expert

Coming to Tawas City

Thursday, November 26

At the Hotel Iosco

Rupture shield expert will be at the Iosco Hotel, Tawas City, on Tuesday, November 26, from 10:00 a. m. to 4:00 p. m. Evening by telephone appointment only. One day only. No charge for consultation.

Mr. C. F. Redlich, the successful expert, says:

The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief, contract the opening in a remarkably short time and strengthen the weak tissues (the real cause of rupture) so that they frequently recover their previous natural retaining power, needing no further outside support. Stomach trouble, backache and constipation often caused by Rupture promptly disappear.

Truly remarkable and prompt results have been obtained not only with recent and not fully developed ruptures but also with old, long neglected ones.

Ingenious, recently perfected devices are now holding ruptures firmly which heretofore never had been retained.

No elastic belts nor filthy leg-straps are used.

I guarantee the durability of my absolutely sweat and moisture proof sanitary appliances.

75% of ruptured children recover completely through expert mechanical treatment according to statistics. Do not waste your money on widely advertised mail order contraptions. You cannot fit yourself.
