HOW TO LIVE LONGER

A. M., Sc. D.

Director of Public Health Education. State of Pennsylvania.

Anger!

THERE are many other ways of exhausting one's nervous and physical energy than through hard work or a habitual disregard for the fundamental living habits. And anger is very prominently one of them.

For example, the other day a petty argument arose on a golf course. One of the participants in the controversy permitted his feelings to get the better of him. He consequently fussed and fumed-and then dropped dead.

An extreme instance, of course. However, one has but to look among his own acquaintances to realize that the man or woman who is constantly fretting or easily angered is burning up precious nervous energy. Moreover, many of them cannot afford to burn it up this way.

Temperaments differ, certainly. And It must be admitted that some people are more naturally given to emotional upsets than are others. For them the problem is doubly bard. But as a general proposition, the person who is enjoying a maximum of physical health is less likely to become the victim of habitually unrestrained emotions of any kind than is the person who through excesses or improper habits of living is the possessor of a sick or half-sick body.

It is a well-established fact that the mind and the body are so closely related that their effects act reciprocally. And if the body is in first-class condition, is maintained there and is not subjected to any unnatural stimulants, stress or strains, the likelihood of serious habitual emotional outbursts can be very much reduced, barring actual mental crises.

It follows that if you are constantly giving way to anger you are unfortunate and may even make yourself ill. It can kill you eventually.

Fortified with healthy recreations, proper amounts and kinds of food, sufficient sleep and plenty of fresh air, one cannot but help live more rationally. And in this manner, explosive anger, which is enemy to health and happiness, may lose its power to hurt you and others. Kill habitual anger by being one hundred per cent alive.

The Hot Weather Complex

ONLY a limited number of people are in a position to evade the summer's excessive heat. But that fact presents no excuse to become all worked up about it. Blustering complainingly about hot weather does not make it or the blusterer one bit cooler. It may have the opposite effect.

A bot weather complex which involves an actively antagonistic attitude toward the heated spell, frequent trips to the thermometer, vigorous fanning and vain desires for cooler climes, is the poorest possible way to fight heat.

It will surprise those who sincerely make the effort to discover that a proper mental attitude toward the super-heated season will go a fong ways in reducing actual or imagined misery. A daily bath, spare eating of red meats, starchy foods and sweets. the use of cooling drinks, a main diet of vegetables and fruits, and limiting physical activity to the minimum necessity, will also decidedly help the situation. But after all, the most important point is to develop a more tolerant attitude regarding the inev-Itable.

Torridity is not pleasant. But why make it worse by burning up mentally in the bargain? Kill the heat complex, and see the temperature drop! (C. 1929. Western Newspaper Union.)

Wild Creatures Thrive, Protected From Hunter

Sweden has the largest stock of bisons, or European buffaloes, in the world, and it is expected that this rare animal will continue to increase in number, although it was previously threatened with extinction. The bisons were originally imported to Sweden and have since been carefully kept and tended in a special preserve at Engelaberg, in the province of Westmanland.

Similar work is being carried on with the beavers, which, owing to indiscriminate shooting had practically disappeared in Sweden not so long ago. For years attempts have been made to increase the beaver stock, and there are now about twenty prosperous beaver colonies. The number of these animals is constantly growing, thanks to strict protection and care. German hares and pheasants have also been imported and are thriving excellently in Sweden. Similar protection is being given through rigid game laws and supervision to other big game of Swedish origin, especially to the moose and the bear. The first mentioned is protected from hunters throughout the entire year with the exception of a couple of weeks in the early autumn, and is therefore multiplying rapidly. The bear, "the king of the northern forests," is also safe from killers, and reports from the government domains in the North show that there is a fair number of bears roaming the "Swedish Alps." This animal is quite popular, as it is ordinarily not dangerous but has the reputation for being rath er harmless and good humored, un less it is attacked or wounded.

SPRING CLOTHES FOR CHILDREN

A S TO "what's what" in smart washable silks for spring and summer 1930, fashion places emphasis on spun silk fabrics--especially shantung and kindred types in a range of enchanting colors among which are such dainty feminine shades as haze pink, "baby blue," delicate green and violet tones, also the new "pie crust" tint, not forgetting navy blue.

For the assurance of those not versed in silk lore be it said that spun ingeniously stitched. The low-placed fullness of the skirt accents an outstanding silhouette. White kid shoes and a white felt hat complete this attractive costume.

Clothes for the Children.

Juvenile fashions are not exempt from the influences of a new style "complex" such as besets the adult world. Even "simple" little dresses for youngsters abound in such "dressmaker" intricacies as scarf necklines, silk is not an artificial fiber. Like raw | boleros, capes, cap sleeves or short silk it is 100 per cent pure product of puffs, flares, plaits, godets, circular the silk worm. Its difference from raw silk lies in the manner with which it is drawn from the cocoon. Briefly told its fibers are short, and unlike raw silk which emerges in a continuous strand, spun silk as its name implies is spun into the lengthened threads.

Paris is all enthusiasm when it comes to washable spun silks as media for frocks, ensembles and blouses for sports, travel, country club and town wear. Oh, yes, indeed, the new spun silks are pre-eminently fashion-correct for most any daytime event.

The jacket costume to the left in the picture is a "last word" in chic. It is made of an interesting spun silk and wool novelty. Note the peplum effect of this jacket. Its godet fullness, which repeats in the skirt is unmistakably smart. The felt hat is matched to the suit in color. As to the shoes worn with this costume, they are "nifty" kid oxfords in that newly highlighted shade, known as beige clair. This color is destined to play a stellar role as the season advances. Which reminds, the new style program

There is, however, one instance where styles for children do not follow in the trend of their elders. When it comes to hemlines, here their pathways diverge, for as one goes down. the other goes up. Short, shorter to most abbreviated describes skirt lengths for wee tots.

Referring to the cunning frock in the picture, it carries several significant style details. Attention is called to the unique arrangement of the scarf. which seems to take its start from within the depths of the tiny pocket at the left. From thence it travels in an upward direction about the neck descending into a deccrative single streamer at the right side.

There is also a lesson to be learned as to that which makes for chic, in the tiny cap sleeves which stylize this diminutive dress as here shown. Frocks for both adults and the very young are sleeved this season with short puffs and caps. Elbow sleeves are also in fashion once more. As to plaited skirts they have taken a new lease

Drink Water to Help Wash Out Kidney Poison

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active. Drink lots of good water-you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morn-Ing for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and

Other pensioners last year were 178,-804 soldiers, 414 nurses and 28,643 widows placed on the rolls by the Spanish-American war; 5,574 soldiers and 4,000 widows by the Indian wars; 45 soldiers and 15 widows by the World war and 14,758 soldiers and 3,699 widows by the regular army. These, with the pensioners previously mentioned, made a total of 477,915 persons who received a total of $229,-890,189 from Uncle Sam. There were 13,279 fewer persons drawing pensions in 1929 than in 1928 but the total paid the last year was $924,517 greater because the level of expenditure was raised by new legislation which increased pensions to Civil war widows more than seventy-five years

The history of pensions for veterans of American wars goes back to the earliest days of the republic. On June 20, 1776, even before the Declaration of Independence had been adopted, the Continental congress appointed a committee to "Consider what provision ought to be made for such as are wounded or disabled in the land or sea service."

This committee made a prompt report, and on August 26, 1776, the first national pension act in America was passed by the Continental congress. That part of the law fixing the amount was as follows: "That every commissioned officer, non-commissioned officer, and private soldier who shall lose a limb in any engagement, or be so disabled in the service of the United States of America as to render him incapable afterwards of getting a livelihood, shall receive, during his life or the continuance of such disability, the one-half of his monthly pay from and after the time that his pay as an officer or soldier ceases."

After the Constitution had been adopted and the new government had been organized, it continued for a time the pensions which had been previously granted and assumed their payment. Soon, however, a strong demand arose for a new pension law, and on March 23, 1792, the first pension law passed by the new government went into effect.

Later there grew a demand for a pension law not based upon disability incurred in the service and in his annual message to congress on December 2, 1817, President Monroe recommended such a law. A bill was passed by the house on December 24, as a sort of a Christmas present to the veterans of the Revolution, passed by the senate immediately afterwards and approved by President Monroe on March 18, 1818.

The loose wording of this law, however, made frauds easy and the grant of pensions became a public scandal. A law passed in 1820 required all pensioners already on the rolls and future applicants to file a statement of property as proof of their alleged dependence upon government bounty for a livelihood. As a result, the names of many pensioners were stricken from

In 1832 a law was passed which granted full pay for life to all who had served at least two years in the Revolution and proportional payments to those who had served less than two years but more than six months. In 1836 there began the enactment of a long series of pension acts in favor of the widows of soldiers of the Revolution, restricted at first to those who had married before the close of the Revolution. These grew more liberal later until pensions were granted to all widows, regardless of the date of marriage. Out of these pensions, and similar ones for widows of veterans of later wars, grew many abuses of the pension system, for it became a practice for young women to marry aged veterans in order to benefit by a government pension after the death of their husbands.

The pension rolls of the Revolution had scarcely grown to their peak when the United States became engaged in another war-the War of 1812-to add to its list of veterans and dependents drawing pensions. And the same thing was repeated later at intervals of two decades with the Mexican war and the Civil war. The first law pensioning soldiers of the Civil war was a disability pension act of July 14, 1862, which provided for the disabled survivors, for the widows, orphan children and dependent members of the service of the United States and | goal. in line of duty. Rates for total disability ranged from $8 to $30 a month, according to rank, and these same the soldiers. Successive laws, beginthe recent act which increased the pensions of Civil war widows more than seventy-five years old, have increased the rates, setting fixed rates for various kinds of disability.

The passage of the arrears act in 1879 added greatly to the burden of debt which Uncle Sam bears because of the wars in which he has engaged. This act provided that all pensions which had been granted or might the time of disability, provided application were made before January 1, 1880. The effect of that law is shown by the fact that the total sum paid for pensions jumped from $32,000,000 in 1879 to $56,000,000 in 1880, the greatest increase in any one year in the history of our pension system.

A bill to establish service pensions for persons in dependent circumstances was vetoed by President Cleveland in '1886. A similar bill was passed June 27, 1890, providing that all persons who had served 90 days in the war and who were suffering from any mental or physical disability of a permanent character which incapacitated them from performing manual labor might receive pensions cording to the degree of disability. Widows of soldiers who served 90 daily labor for support could receive $8 a month

In addition to the pensions granted under the generals laws, many claims | ican government. for pensions, some of them rejected by the pension bureau, have been consideration of pension bills forms a as will be seen by an inspection of almost any issue of the Congressional Sirius low-wing monoplane. FLYING WING TESTS ARE SATISFACTORY

Northrop Model Flies at Rate of 100 Miles.

Burbank, Calif .- Test flights, conducted in secret over a period of several months, have at last proved the feasibility of the "flying wing" idea for heavier-than-air machines, a universal objective of aircraft designing, it was learned here recently.

The principle of the flying wing design, long recognized as a need in aviation, is to inclose as many of the factors of flight as possible, pilot, crew, power plant and fuel and all of the pay load-passengers, mail or express-in the wing formation, so that only the flying and control surfaces are exposed to the air. The earliest recorded conceptions of this idea go back more than twenty years.

Craft Tested Secretly.

The design for which success is now claimed is the work of John K. Northrop. The secret tests with the "flying wing" were made at the United airport here and at Dry Lake in the Mojave Desert. In the tests the allwing plane attained speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour with a 60-horsepower engine.

The plane with which this remarkable feat has been achieved is simply a working model. As a result of these experiments, Northrop engineers predict passenger transports cruising at 160 miles an hour and mail and express planes with speeds in excess of 200 miles an hour. The "flying wing" for such practical work is not yet perfected, but the success which has come in flying the new type is regardthose who died because of wounds ed as of the utmost importance in received or disease contracted while in eventual achievement of the desired

CANADA AIR CLUBS LARGE AND ACTIVE

Their Men Flew 1,232,000 so. Miles During 1929.

Toronto.-Members of Canada's 23 ight airplane clubs flew 15,400 hours during 1929, figures released by the civil aviation branch of the department of national defense show. This flying time is equivalent to 1,232,000 miles, and is nearly twice that flown in 1928.

Total membership of the club is 5,092. At the end of the year there were 396 ab initio solo flyers, while 165 private pilots and 58 commercial pilots had graduated from the student anks of the clubs.

Comparative figures of 1928 show there were 15 clubs which flew 8,124 hours producing 209 solo flyers, 111 pilots and 28 commercial pilots.

During 1929 there were 11 fatal accidents and seven accidents involving injury to pilots or passengers. In 1928 there were three fatal accidents and two in which passengers were

Interest in the flying club movement seemed centered in the West last year. Calgary had the largest membership with a total of 1,060. Saskatoon was second with 745. Regina came third with 357. Toronto and Hamilton folowed with 271 and 198, respectively.

Winnipeg led the pack in flying time with a total for the year of 1,458 hours. The Calgary club flew 1,224 hours; Regina, 1,157; Saskatoon, 1,137, and Edmonton, 1.048.

At the end of the year there were 47 aircraft on loan to clubs by the government, and 13 owned by the clubs themselves.

Tremendous increases in the use of the Ontario provincial air service are noted in the annual report of Director Capt. Roy Maxwell.

Haven in the Azores for Atlantic Flyers

For the convenience of around-the-world and transatlantic flyers, the Portuguese government is to construct a modern airdome on the Island of Terceira, one of the Azores group, at a cost of approximately $5,000,000. Unlike the other islands of the Azores group, Terceira is level and is covered with firm grass. It is 3,250 miles from New York and 2,500 miles from LeBourget.

French Aviator Has a New Type of Plane

Paris .- A young French aviator, who was nearly killed during the war when the motors of his plane suddenly stopped during an air battle, has secretly invented a bird airplane which is propelled by a low powered engine and which can remain in 🕻 the air with the motor switched

M. Henri le Maout, the incentor, has completed the preliminary tests of his machine and is so confident of success that he is soon going to give a public demonstration.

While the Spanish airman De Cierva's autogyro utilizes a windmill propeller to sustain it, M. Maout has devised a light, easily manipulated wing which lessens he air resistance and allows the plane to float for a long period . without motor power.

The wings are very small and underslung, and sensitive to the slightest changes. The plane, because of its lightness and lack of air resistance, can be propelled by a four horse power motor, according to the inventor.

The entire machine does not measure more than 17 feet and $ is approximately 12 feet in height.

HAS THE LAXATIVE IN YOUR HOME A DOCTOR'S APPROVAL?

Some things people do to help the bowels whenever any bad breath, feverishness, biliousness, or a lack of appetite warn of constipation, really weaken these organs. Only a doctor knows what will cleanse the system without harm. That is why the laxative in your home should have the approval of a family doctor.

The wonderful product, known to millions as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a family doctor's prescription for sluggish bowels. It never varies from the original prescription which Dr. Caldwell wrote thousands of times in many years of practice, and proved safe and reliable for men, women and children. It is made from herbs and other pure ingredients, so it is pleasant-tasting, and can form no habit. You can buy this popular laxative from all drugstores.

Consider a few of the basic facts that make the new Chevrolet Six such a thoroughly sound investment.

It offers a great six-cylinder valve-in-head engine, with its capacity increased to 50 horsepower . . . assuring the smooth, quiet, resilient performance which is so essential in a modern automobile.

It offers the all-weather braking efficiency of internal-expanding, completely enclosed 4-wheel brakes-big, powerful, quiet and easy to apply. It offers the modern riding comfort of four long semi-elliptic, chrome-vanadium steel springsunder the cushioned control of Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers.

It offers the greater beauty, comfort and safety of bodies by Fisher-built of selected hardwood and steel . . . and providing thousands upon thousands of miles of quiet, care-free service.

In fact, every important engine advancement has been incorporated in the new Chevrolet Six. With all these important advancements—coupled with greatly reduced prices for the entire Chevrolet line-it is only logical that thousands are saying every day-"The New Chevrolet Six is a wise motor car investment!"

Glass Eye Keeps Jail Peace

glass eye has restored peace in the neighborhood of Seneca county's jail. The eye has proved a time and trouble saver for Sheriff George Burkett. And the same glass eye does not exist as far as Seneca county's prisoners are aware. Therein lies the story of an ingenious sheriff and the gullibility of unsuspecting prisoners.

Sheriff Burkett's county charges wouldn't behave. Meek as lambs and docile in his presence, they resorted to boisterous frolic as soon as his watchful eye was turned.

The sheriff knew this. From his residence across the jail yard, he could hear the inmates creating turmoil which declined to a meek and innocent tranquility as soon as he stalked wrathfully through the outer iron door. His peace was disturbed. The neighbors complained. What was needed was an omnipresent eye.

To the amusement of the inmates, the sheriff drilled a long line of small holes completely across an outer wall

The sheriff was first at one hole, then at another-always with that same malvolent stare. Inmates chafed under the almost constant surveillance.

Radium Used to Treat Defects of the Eye

Baltimore.-Dr. William Holland Wilmer, head of the Wilmer Eye Institute of Johns Hopkins hospital, has found a new use for radium in treating physical defects of the eye.

The radium, used in very small quantities, has been found effective in treatment of obscured vision blurred through formation of scar tissue in he corner.

"This use of radium," a preliminary report says, "is in the pioneer stages, but it has been found to basten the absorption of scar tissue and to restore a high degree of clarity to the sight of many patients."

Some of the instruments used are so delicate and sensitive to vibration that engineering experts were employed to design the bases for them. To reduce this vibration to a minimum, solid concrete piers, such as might be required for a skyscraper or a bridge abutment, have been sunk just to support instruments of comparatively little weight.

ForCOLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

If they feel full of pep, healthy, they can try anything -nothing frightens them. Their nerve is unshaken: their skil keen; their flying is machine-like in its perfection.

It is an entirely different story however, if they wake up in the morning feeling sick, down in the mouth. Then fly-

CHAPTER II

I awoke next morning with a name upon my lips; a name I had heard the night before, "Pia Laurier." It seemed to me-as it does still-the sweetest, daintiest girl's name in the world. I kerew all about it, too, how Miss Pia Laurier, of the blue eyes and the black shingle, had had an Italian grandmother; how the grandmother had bequeathed her a profile and a pretty fortune and a prettier name; how, in consequence, Miss Pia was of more importance in her family-one of the New South Wales squatter families-than elder brothers and sisters; how much her parents thought of her, and how very, very carefully they had brought her up.

She was-one felt it in one's bones -a very reincarnation of that graclous, titled dame from historic Verona who had set her mark upon the Lauriers fifty years ago. Pia, like her would be a house-mistress; she would be a mother; she would be, above and beyond all, the supreme, rare lover, pure as springwater, and passionate as a red Verona rose from the balcony of Verona's deathless girl. . .

It didn't come as a shock-quite the contrary, because I am Twentieth century, almost all-to remember that this modern Juliet could round up cattle with the best of her brothers, and owned a diamond bracelet won on the public race course of Randwick. It made me all the more in love with her. Because, of course, that minute when I met her eyes as I came up the gangway, and knew that my foolish feat had won me Pia's heart.

I suppose one is a little mad, when one is seleep, to judge by the general craziness of dreams. I suppose, therefore, that one is half a little mad, when half awake. It was the arrival of early morning coffee that spoiled half-waking dreams, for me. Once I had drunk it, the clear cold light of reason seemed to mingle, in that cabin, with the red of growing day; to tell me that I had better get up and bathe and dress, and remember, of all things, that I was leaving the ship tomorrow.

"When you are about it," added that chill monitor, "you might as well recollect that you haven't two hundred pounds in the world, no people, now, who matter; no position, and no prospects. Put that in your pipe and smoke it."

I had managed an Introduction (no easy ship-made friendships for the daughter of the Lauriers !--) and enjoyed just about five glorious minutes of Pia's company, before the doctor, curse him, came along apologizing and grinning and reminding Pia that it was concert night, and that she was down for Number Two. So we had to break off and hurry into the staring, glittering music saloon, in company with everybody else.

There had been no more talk with Pia Laurier that night; for the concert lasted the usual long time, and when it was over, Pia's relations, somehow, seemed to be everywhere, monopolizing her-maybe by accident, maybe not. And I should have gone very hungry to bed, had it not been for the crust I took with me. That crust was Pia's song. She sang part of Liza Lehmann's exquisite birdsong cycle; sending me to my cabin with the sound in my ears of my lady's lovely little soprano telling the tale of the wood-dove and his mate who had nothing at all on which to start a home, but joyously, they put a few sticks together, and sang-"it'll doit'll do!"

I suppose I was vain. I suppose all men of a certain youth and vitality are. At any rate, I thought that Pia meant the song for me.

So, next morning, I was agog to get hold of Mrs. Kipple, good-natured newsmonger, and learn from her anything that might help me in making way with Pia. For I recognized, now, that the stars in their courses were fighting against me. I had only one day, a night, and half a day left; if I was, in that brief time, to forge a chain that should in some measure link our lives, I needed every possible advantage I could make or steal. By Wednesday noon, the play would he over; the male Cinderella would have lost his pumpkin coach and gone home to sit in the ashes again; and there would be no fairy godmother to find him a second chance.

Mrs. Kipple could talk. She did not confine herself to Laurier biography; she stooped to a lower range, and gave me also biography (gingered up till !

one might almost carl it biology) of the actress troupe that had fairly dynamited the peace of the ship.

"My dear boy," she said, knitting till you could hardly see needles or fingers, "everybody thinks you did the bravest- No, I won't if you don't want me to. But it WAS. We all have the highest opinion. . But you see, Miss Gin-Sling-I think her proper name-if there's anything proper in the question, which is doubtful-I mean, her name on the bills is Genevieve Treacher-well, Gin-Sling, or Jinny, or Genevieve, and her two friends, have simply captured all the eligible men; and what, I ask you, what does a respectable parent bring her daughters away from the Sidney winter and up to China for, unlessyou know? Do you remember that too charming joke in an old Punch, about the child looking at a picture of the arena in Rome, and telling its mother that there was-'one poor lion that hadn't got a Christian'? My dear boy, there are quite a lot of those poor lions, or lionesses. on the ship, ever since Brisbane, when these-ladiesgo on. They haven't had a look-in with them. The ship's officers, who a chance! Jinny Treacher and her girls have the lot. How can any of the Laurier crowd compete against sea-horse races? And they don't stop at sea-horse racing; I could tell you a tale-" She proceeded to tell it; I can only say that the biology came in at that point, and made me feel rather fidgety.

But Genevieve, or Gin-Sling, whatever one chose to call her-was not business. I wanted to hear about some one else.

"Are the Lauriers going far?" I asked.

"China and Japan; getting away from the Sydney cold weather. They go somewhere every winter, and always take a daughter with them. It's Pia's turn this time. They married off a daughter last year and I daresay they'll get rid of Pia this time.'

"Is she engaged?" I asked, looking the kindly gossip fair in the face.

Get rid of Pia!

"Pia? I suppose more or less; a girl of her sort has always some one on a string. There was some talk of Sir Richard Fanshaw, the flying man, but I imagine the mother was against it. Not enough title. He's fairly rich -promoted a few successful companies in New Guinea, and so onbut he is only a war knight, without much family behind him. Pia ought to be at least a countess. You know, a girl like that simply must marry into the very best set; she would be a fish out of water anywhere else.

"There's the second bell," said Mrs. Kipple, and got up. "If you don't hurry," she added warningly, "you don't get the best of the fruit." But I did not hurry. I didn't care if I never saw fruit again. Pia Laurier and her mother were coming up the promenade deck.

I thought the elder lady looked at me coldly. She was not a scrap like Pia, save in those small resemblances of carriage, shape of head and poise of limbs that run through families. Jinny Treacher had called me "the bravest man in the world," but, under that look of Mrs. Laurier's I felt my courage crumble, and my heart turn against it. It pierces. Mrs. Laurier pierced me. But a man may fight when wounded. I answered her look by getting up from my seat, and making a step forward. What I meant was to join the morning walk of herself and her daughter. I knew Pia now; I had a right to speak. . And, gods of youth and beauty, but she was ensnaring, that pale-blue morning on the sea! She was dragging her step; holding, a little, back. I would have been beside her in another moment-

"Good morning, Mr. Amory! Is it possible you don't know me, after saving me from a watery and fishy death no more than yesterday afternoon!"

It was "Gin-Sling." She had gone to her cabin, exhausted, after we reached the ship, and no one had seen her again that evening. Now she appeared, bright as a penny at a show, with her wonderful red hair teased out into a kind of halo, her thin body cased in some painted, vivid rag; eyes and teeth sparkling, glass bracelets clinking, an anklet and a bell on it jingling, feet-dancer's feet they were, small, but too muscular and spread —pointing and springing, as if they moved to invisible music. I think, so did Jinny Treacher through her life; she danced, marched, moved, to music of her own; ruled her days-so far as they were ruled-by laws not made of man. I have my reasons for handling her tenderly; I know what you do not, yet of Jinny.

Naturally, I had to answer her. And naturally, too, the mother and daughter moved on, and I wan left alone with Jinny Treacher.

She did not sit down. She put both feet together, and jumped high into the air, two or three times, with incredible vivacity. "That's how I feel," she said. "I always feel like that when the sun shines. Can't live in the dark. I was born in Sydney, where it's daylight when it is daylight, and I've got the sun in me bones. Singapore's where we're bound for; I and my friends. 'The Chinese Butterfly,' company number three. One of their girls has married and one died, and another wants to leave. So little me and mine come in. because the managing director of the company's a friend of ours." I was not interested; I was raging over the loss of my chance of speaking with Pia-but you never knew Gin-Sling, if you think one could stand beside her, see her look into your eyes, and remain indifferent. She went to the head of any man, as swiftly as the drink after which she had, most appropriately been named. She went to mine. But I didn't care. I knew I should be sober again. There was that in the blue eyes of Pla to sober me after a dozen of Jinny's

And it came into my mind there and then-I who had never wanted to marry before-that this was what true marriage might mean. Something that could hold a man in spite of himself, in spite of a world of Jinny Treachers. Certainly. Rest.

Gin-Sling, however, had no mind to be neglected. "Take me for a walk," she said, half shutting her eyes and shooting fire at me from under heavily-blacked lashes. She had beautiful sensuous eyelids, round and deep as white shells; they flickered constantly as she looked at you. She was one flicker from head to foot; a human flame. . I marched with her round the decks, and if anything could have made me forget Pia and her mother down below, that progress would have done it. It was like walking with royalty, to walk with Genevieve Treacher. Men shot looks of black envy, women glanced Jealously aside. And I realized, what perhaps I had not understood before, that yesterday's incident had made me something of a celebrity; something worth the throw of a handkerchief. . .

strolled and talked, I don't know what about. I didn't realize how long we had been walking, till I saw Mrs. Laurier come up from breakfast again. Valuable Discovery in Tuning Church Bells bell metal may give forth a harsh, unpleasant sound, due to the fact that it is out of tune with itself. The stroke of a single bell sounds to us like one note, and until very recently even the most expert bell makers have not realized that the sound is really made up of five separate notes. The five notes must be in tune with one another in order that the bell may give forth a harmonious sound. What we then hear is a combination of what is known as the strike note; the nominal, which is an octave above the strike note; the hum, which is an octave below, and the third and fifth. This recent discovery regarding the pockets.

A church bell made from the finest | harmonics of bells has made possible the new art of bell tuning, a revival of what for two centuries was considered a lost art. The large bells are inverted on a huge turntable and revolved while the metal is pared away from the inside until it is correctly shaped to produce the harmonious tones.-Kansas City Star's Science Service.

STIR CREAM FOR UNIFORM SAMPLE

Creamery Man Must Dip Into Middle of Milk Can.

Have you been dissatisfied with cream test? Did you ever imagine it might be your fault as well as the creamery's? During the cold weather your cream is very thick and full of lumps and chunks. Every creamery receives several such cans daily. in order to give an honest test a uniform sample must be taken from each can. The only way the creamery man can get a uniform sample to make an accurate test is to stir this cream to a smooth consistency. It would take longer to stir this cold cream than to churn it. He, therefore, dives down in the middle of the can and takes his sample for testing. If he took his sample out of the bottom of the can it wouldn't be fair to you, and at the top it wouldn't be fair to the creamery. Now, had you sent this cream to the creamery a smooth velvety consistency without lumps, there would have been no difficulty getting an accurate sample, which means dollars in your pocket.

As soon as the cream is cooled, it is poured into the shipping can or a vessel that holds that amount and the whole stirred, not with a spoon or ladle, as this only stirs the cream around and around in the can without mixing the first cream with the last. But stir with a regular cream stirrer, the kind that creameries use, with a broad lifting surface that will actually bring the bottom cream up and mix it with the top.

Regularity in Milking

Dairy Herd Is Essential

Regularity has a dollars-and cents value in handling the dairy herd. We sometimes wonder if farmers as a class are forgetting this. In the neighborhood with which we are best acquainted it was once the custom on almost all farms to start milking at five in the morning in summer and six in winter. The hour was seldom varied and plans were always laid to be on hand at the proper time for chores, says a writer in the Montreal Family Herald. Now, on these same farms, the cows are milked all the way from six to eight o'clock, depending on how late the men were out the night before. If there is something on in the evening the cows that were milked at eight may be milked again at five. This is not a universal condition but it is a true statement of what happens on too many farms. These men are also frank to admit that they are not getting the milk that they did years ago before life became so hectic. We believe that farmers are entitled to a good time as well as any other class. Said good times, however, should not be allowed to interfere too seriously with regularity in attention to the dairy cows. Nor is it necessary. The men around who are still practicing old-time regularity seem to have their good times as well as their more careless neighbors.

Watch Cow's Diet Prior to Her Freshening Date Cows about ready to freshen should be kept handy to the barn where they may be watched and cared for. Equal parts ground oats and bran or two parts bran to one part corn meal are good grain feeds for the last two weeks. Cows should freshen in good flesh. The grain should be cut down just before calving.

Cows after calving should get plenty of water and green feed with the laxative grain ration. If no pasture or green feed is available, use beet pulp soaked in three or four times its weight in water. The main swept Jinny Treacher with a glance grain mixture should be increased that should have turned the girl to a gradually, but grain should be fed pillar of ice. I think Jinny felt it; sparingly until the cow is completely on Wisconsin Farms A study of the cost of milk production on 48 Wisconsin farms, made by know to this day what happened; I United States Department of Agrionly know that as I hurried down the culture, and the University of Wisconsin, showed that the amount of man labor averaged 171 hours per cow annually, or 28 minutes a day. This labor included milking, feeding, caring for utensils, and cleaning the barn, but not hauling manure from the barn, delivering milk, or caring for young stock. Some farmers spent as little as 20 minutes a day per cow, and others as much as 45.

Feed for Calves

Small calves have a limited capacity for feeds. Up to six months of age the calf should have milk as the principal ingredient of its ration. Supplementing the milk one may feed alfalfa or clover hay and grain mix ture. This makes for normal growth and development, furnishing the necessary food in the best condition. At the time the calf is weaned or slightly before, silage may be introduced into the ration as there is little of the

Children Cry for it

Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups.

Castoria is sold in every drug store; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.
