STAGE PLAY IS NOW A FINE ALL TALKER One of the most entertaining, best directed and best enacted talking pictures which has yet come from the Fox Movietone studios, "Harmony at Home," an all talker, will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday at the State Theatre. The production was directed by Hamilton McFadden, former brilliant stage director in New York, and has an all star cast including William Collier, Sr., Marquerite Churchill, Elizabeth Patterson, Rex Bell, Chas. Eaton, Charlotte Henry, Dot Farley and Dixie Lee.

Adapted from Harry Delf's stage play, "The Family Upstairs," it is a frank story of an average American family, its moods and Merriment, especially the efforts of the head of the household to be the boss.

COMING Dr. A. S. Allard, optometrist, of 241 Shearer Building, Bay City, will be at Whittemore Hotel Wednesday morning, March 26, from 8:30 to 12:00, and Tawas City at Isoco Hotel, from 1:00 p. m. to 5:00 p. m. (evening by appointment only). Remember the eyes have a direct bearing on the nervous system. Correct glasses often improve your general health. Let me prove what right glass will do. Remember the date and place, Whittemore Wednesday morning, March 26, and Tawas City, Isoco Hotel, Wednesday afternoon, March 26.

Dr. A. S. ALLARD, Optometrist.

Good-by!

MRS. AUGUST FREEL Mrs. August Freel, age 43 years, nine months and 11 days, died on Wednesday, March 12, at her home in National City.

Jennie Lavina Trafzer was born June 1, 1886, at Columbus, Ohio. She came to Gaylord, Michigan at the age of nine years. On October 27, 1903, she was united in marriage to August A. Freel, and came to National City in 1906, where she has lived most of the time since. Five children were born to this union, two preceding her in death, Viola on June 25, 1913, and Gladys on September 18, 1928.

Left to mourn her loss are: her husband, August Freel; three sons, Millard, Glen and Adelbert; two grandchildren, Evelyn and George; and three sisters, Mrs. Guest Biles of Akron, Mich., Mrs. Grover Smith and Mrs. Henry McNeil of Detroit. She was a kind and loving mother and a good friend to all. She will be sadly missed in the community where she lived.

NOTICE I am now taking orders for monuments and markers for spring delivery. JOHN SULLIVAN, East Tawas

Lessening Grief Grief is so far from retrieving a loss that it makes it greater; but the way to lessen it is by comparison with others' losses.—William Wycherly.

TEACHERS HAVE INSPIRING MEET AT EAST TAWAS

The teachers' institute held March 13 at the Community Building, East Tawas, was one of the most inspirational and successful ever held in Isoco County. Of the 84 teachers in the county only three were absent and two of those were very ill. The County Normal class and some school officers and other visitors placed the attendance over 100.

Many teachers said they received more help than they did from the district meeting last fall in Flint. Our County School Commissioner deserves much credit for arranging such a fine program. A splendid spirit prevailed after the community singing led by Supt. Hugo Swanson of East Tawas and the invocation by Rev. W. L. Jones.

The special music by the Oscoda high school girls' Glee Club was worthy of high commendation and reflected much credit upon its director, Mr. Gorsche. Music by the East Tawas high school orchestra, directed by Miss Helmie Huhtala, was very much appreciated and the songs by the young ladies of Tawas City high school were heartily enjoyed. Edward Martin of St. Joseph high school rendered two pleasing violin solos. Edward has a wonderful start for so young a lad.

The first speaker was Dr. David Trout, head of the psychology department of Hillsdale College, who gave the "Characteristics of a Good Teacher," and asked each one to rate himself on a scale—Best, 1, to Worst, 5. It was like looking into a mirror. He said, mark yourself on your GRETA GARBO SUPERB AS "ANNA CHRISTIE" Greta Garbo makes her talking picture debut in "Anna Christie," her new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer starring vehicle, which will be presented at the State Theatre Sunday and Monday.

In this picture Garbo scores the triumph of her career, her voice recording splendidly, adding power to her dramatic instinct and bringing fascination in multiple quantities to her personality. As the heroine of Eugene O'Neill's play of generation, Garbo contributes a performance of great poignancy and effectiveness. Never before has she reached such heights of emotionalism.

Clarence Brown, who directed the picture from Frances Marion's adaptation of the play in which Pauline Lord originally starred, may be credited with having produced the most artistic and compelling talking picture yet to reach the screen. He has not allowed the mechanics of the microphone to stilt his action or hamper the pictorial scope of the camera. The timing of the dialogue is capably done, every spoken word or sound exactly in its most effective place.

Charles Bickford, hero of "Dynamite," plays opposite Garbo. George Marion, who created the father role on the stage, repeats this performance and Marie Dressler, as the old hag, gives the first dramatic role of her career an excellent characterization.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS RECEIVE MONEY FROM STATE

The following school districts received checks last Thursday for money from the state under the Turner act:

LOCAL P. T. A. HAS RECORD ATTENDANCE FOR SEASON

The record crowd of the season turned out for the regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association last Thursday evening. While we made no exact count of the number, there evidently were about one hundred and fifty individuals present.

The business meeting was particularly interesting this month, due to some important questions that arose. One of these was the problem of a music teacher in the school for the ensuing year. It quite evidently was the consensus of opinion that an additional member of the faculty to teach formal music in the grades and the high school, and to develop choruses and an orchestra, would be an excellent addition. The other side of the proposition, of course, is that of the added expense.

The program consisted of community singing, led by Miss Smith; a paper, "The Pre-School Child," by Mrs. Bing; "The Dance of the Paper Dolls," by the Misses Patricia Braddock, Isabelle Dease, Effie Prescott and Phyllis Bigelow; piano solo by Mina Heath, Arlene Leslie, and Arnold McLean; a talk, "Five Peas in a Pod," by Dr. Bennett of the Iowa University. The chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Will Leslie, is certainly to be congratulated for the quality of numbers which she succeeded in securing.

Dr. Bennett was an unexpected attraction, as he was one of the speakers of the County Institute which was held at the Community House of East Tawas that day, and so happened to be in our city that evening. He proved to have a pleasing delivery, and gave some excellent food for thought.

The grammar room again easily won the gold fish for the ensuing month. The April meeting will take place Thursday evening on the tenth of the month. Professor Frank E. Robinson, head of the Commercial Department of the Central State Teachers College, will be the main speaker. Remember the date and come.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH (Whittemore Circuit) We are progressing very nicely with our series of Lenten sermons, which will continue until Easter. Very encouraging crowds attended the services last Sunday. We again invite you to come and bring your friends with you. The subject for next Sunday will be "Forgive us our debts, etc."

SEEKS PERMISSION TO BUILD UNION STATION

On Monday of this week the Detroit & Mackinac Railway company made application to the Michigan Public Utilities Commission for permission to abandon the passenger and freight stations at Tawas City and East Tawas and erect a new station midway between the two present stations.

In a communication received by the railroad company Wednesday the Public Utilities Commission said that the proposal would meet with their approval and that probably no difficulties would be met in making such a change of stations.

In anticipation of such a proposal by the Detroit & Mackinac Railway company, the business men of Tawas City met recently in an informal gathering to discuss the proposition. It was the consensus of opinion of those present that such a move on the part of the railroad company would not be objectionable.

The following is the text of the application filed by the Detroit & Mackinac Railroad company with the utilities commission: Michigan Public Utilities Commission Lansing, Michigan

Will you please consider this letter as a formal request on behalf of the Detroit and Mackinac Railway Company for authority to abandon its present passenger and freight stations located in Tawas City and East Tawas; and, in lieu thereof, to construct one concrete block, or brick passenger and freight station midway between the two present stations, to be called "Tawas."

If the authority requested is granted, suitable team tracks will be maintained at Tawas City for unloading and loading of carload freight, and the present team tracks in East Tawas will be continued in service.

The request contained herein is made in order to co-operate with the State Highway Department in the construction of what is to be known as the "Shore Route Trunk (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

SCHOOL NOTES

High School Irwin Schlechte, Irvin Burtzloff, Dorothy Bigelow, Alvera Goedeck and Elvera Kasischke sent gorhand specimens to the O. G. A. contest put on by the Gregg Writer.

Members of the ninth grade General Science class met last Thursday evening to learn the location and names of some of the best known stars and constellations. This is Friday, March 21—the Carnival will be held tonight—doors open at 7:00 o'clock. Be there and bring your friends.

We are pleased to learn that the money due the district from the Turner Bill are now safe in the hands of our district treasurer, Martin C. Musolf. The old saying, "A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," is certainly applicable in regard to this five thousand dollars.

Seventh and Eighth Grades Our room won the gold fish again for this month. Luther Lickfelt has been absent several days. His absence was due to sickness.

Arrol McLean is spending a few days in Detroit this week. Third and Fourth Grades We are building a "Health House" which was described in the book we earned by selling Christmas seals. We caught a rat in school Wednesday morning.

Primary Mrs. Anschuetz from the Ward School visited us Tuesday afternoon.

EMANUEL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH During the season of Lent two services are being conducted each Wednesday evening, one in the German language beginning at 7:00 o'clock, the other in the English language beginning at 8 o'clock, Central Standard time. The topics for these Lenten services consist in a biographical series dealing with individual characters who play a part in the Passion of our Lord and will be in their order as follows: Judas, Caiaphas, Peter, Pilate, Herod, Barabbas, Testas and Jesus.

May these services be a blessing to members of Emanuel's Lutheran and to all who may come out of interest in a discussion of the main events in the suffering of the Saviour of mankind. "Christ died for All." You are welcome!

BAPTIST CHURCH 10:00 a. m.—Morning Worship. 11:15 a. m.—Bible school. Theme—"Jesus' Teaching and Healing." 6:45 p. m.—B. Y. P. U. meets. Leader—Miss J. Metcalf. 7:30 p. m.—Gospel Service. Hemlock Road. 2:00 p. m.—Bible School. 3:00 p. m.—Preaching Service. Frank Metcalf, Pastor.

We Select a National Flower

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

LAST we are to have a national floral emblem. At least, we shall have one if the wishes of the people, made known as the result of a nationwide referendum, are translated into legislative action by congress. For, by a big majority, the American people have chosen the wild rose as the national flower in a voting contest, conducted by the American Nature association, which closed recently. When the ballots were counted it was found that out of a total of 1,067,676 the wild rose had polled 492,811 votes, almost twice as many as those received by the columbine, the nearest contender. So there seems to be no doubt as to the wild rose's pre-eminence in popular favor.

The columbine received 261,451 votes, which in turn was more than twice as many as those received by the runner-up—the violet, which had 66,408. Fourth place went to the goldenrod with 84,112 votes. The "big four" in this contest simply ran away from the other candidates. For the phlox, which early in the campaign was listed with the goldenrod as a strong contender, received only 30,942 votes. The American Beauty rose received 30,482, the daisy 16,860, the mountain laurel 13,082, and the dogwood 9,024. A total of 32,500 votes are listed as "scattering" since they were cast for various other flowers not named by the American Nature association in announcing the result of the election.

The wild rose won in every state except Colorado, Florida, Minnesota and Washington. Without any group actively working for it, with no "campaign committee" in any state, and with a number of organizations actively trying to defeat it, it withstood every assault upon the lead gained early in the campaign. The columbine, supported vigorously by the newly organized Columbine society during the last days of the referendum, had 261,451 backers, who threatened, during early December, to sweep under the rose in a flood of votes. When the contest closed, however, the leader was still gaining.

"How decisive was the choice of the people," says Arthur Newton Pack, editor of Nature Magazine, the official publication of the American Nature association, "is indicated by the standing of the seven other leading candidates. More than 65 per cent of the vote was divided between the two leaders and there is no question of these being the national favorites. The violet, goldenrod, American Beauty rose, phlox, daisy, dogwood and mountain laurel, which finished in the order listed, never had a chance of victory. All the other flowers, grouped under "scattering," received but 3 1/2 per cent of the total.

"The National Flower campaign was begun late in 1928, first to engender an interest and love for wild flowers; secondly, to promote their conservation, and thirdly, to direct attention to nature generally."

Mr. Pack also points out the fact that this referendum accurately reflects the sentiment of the nation in the matter of choosing a national flower since the million votes cast probably represent as large a proportion of nature lovers as do the totals in a Presidential election in representing the grand total of eligible voters. He regards it as significant that the proportionate vote cast for the leading candidates varied little after the 100,000 ballot mark had been passed, except in the last days of the campaign.

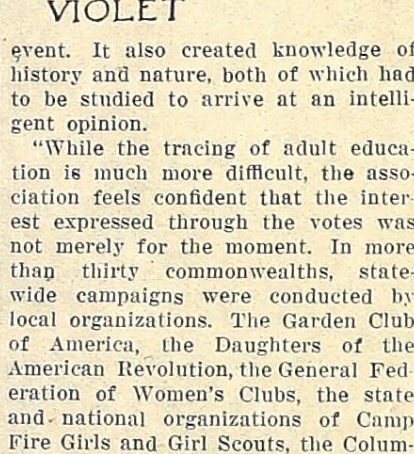

In addition to crystallizing sentiment in favor of a national flower, the referendum had other beneficial results, he believes. Concerning these, he says:

"The referendum has been eminently successful. A large proportion of school children voted, along citizenship lines suggested by the association. In such a manner that there is no question of the benefit they derived. A typical campaign is the one conducted by the Franklin Junior high school of Green Bay, Wis., where all the state flowers and candidates were illustrated on the school bulletin board, and discussion preceded the actual voting by a month.

"Educators, who assisted the voting in more than a dozen states, have asserted that the campaign has fostered citizenship, by giving the school children opportunity to vote in a national

WILD ROSE

COLUMBINE

It also created knowledge of history and nature, both of which had to be studied to arrive at an intelligent opinion. "While the tracing of adult education is much more difficult, the association feels confident that the interest expressed through the votes was not merely for the moment. In more than thirty commonwealths, state-wide campaigns were conducted by local organizations. The Garden Club of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the state and national organizations of Camp Fire Girls and Girl Scouts, the Columbine society, nature clubs and conservation groups scattered over the entire nation took a significant part in achieving the result."

In choosing the wild rose as our national symbol, new honor has been paid to a flower which has always been a favorite of mankind. Two thousand years ago in Athens the rose was crowned "queen of the flowers," but even before that the romantic songs and legends of the Babylonians, Persians and the Chinese testified to the fact that it was cultivated in the earliest days. It became the national emblem of England and in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries it gave its name to a long series of civil wars the War of the Roses, between the adherents of the House of York, who wore the white rose, and those of the House of Lancaster, who wore the red rose.

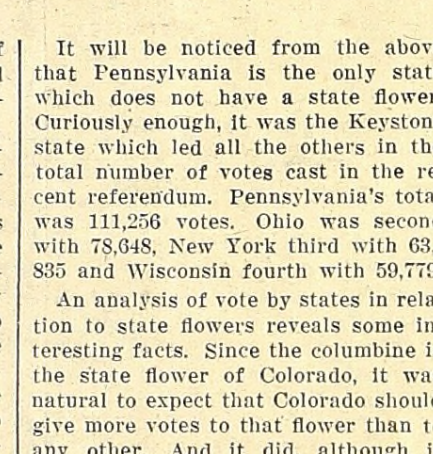

Early in the recent campaign, opponents of the rose used as an argument against it that it was the English flower. But this was refuted by the statement that that emblem is the cultivated rose, whereas the one for which votes were being sought was the wild rose which grows in different varieties in every state in the Union. The campaign did not designate one particular variety of wild rose, but left it possible for each community to feel that its local representative of the genus was the choice of the country.

For this reason the states of Georgia, Iowa, New York and North Dakota can take pride in the fact that their state emblem has been chosen as the national flower. The list of state flowers is as follows:

- Alabama.....Goldenrod
- Arizona.....Saguaro cactus
- Arkansas.....Apple blossom

GOLDENROD

COLUMBINE

It will be noticed from the above that Pennsylvania is the only state which does not have a state flower. Curiously enough, it was the Keystone state which led all the others in the total number of votes cast in the recent referendum. Pennsylvania's total was 111,256 votes. Ohio was second with 78,648, New York third with 63,835 and Wisconsin fourth with 59,779.

An analysis of vote by states in relation to state flowers reveals some interesting facts. Since the columbine is the state flower of Colorado, it was natural to expect that Colorado should give more votes to that flower than to any other. And it did, although it gave only 707 more votes to the columbine than to the wild rose. Fourteen other states gave more votes to the Colorado state flower than did that state itself, Washington supporting it more vigorously than any other, with 35,066 votes.

The votes by states for the rose, the winner, and the three leading contenders was as follows:

State	Wild Rose	Columbine	Violet	Goldenrod
Alabama	10,814	827	1,918	3,496

The violet is the state flower of Illinois, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Wisconsin. Yet both Illinois and New Jersey gave more votes to both the wild rose and the columbine than they did to their own state flower. Both Rhode Island and Wisconsin gave more votes to the wild rose than to the violet, but both placed the columbine third in the running. A similar situation is shown in Nebraska and North Carolina where the goldenrod is the state flower. Both states voted for the wild rose over their state flower. In Nebraska the goldenrod was second with the columbine third and the violet fourth. But in North Carolina the state flower was placed third, beating out only the violet.

Another interesting development was the failure of the phlox, a leading contender early in the campaign, to make a good race for the honors, especially when it apparently had so many points in its favor, one of its strongest supporters was Dr. Edgar T. Wherry, a well-known government botanist and chemist.

"Long Termer" May Be Innocent

Marquette, Mich.—Whether Stanley Ridler of Detroit is serving 12½ to 25 years in the Michigan state prison at Jackson for a crime he did not commit is a question to which Arthur D. Wood, pardon and parole commissioner, is seeking the answer.

Anthony Machus, serving life in Marquette branch prison, has told Mr. Wood that he and an unnamed companion, now dead, carried out the hold-up for which Ridler was sentenced. Machus said he had kept silent because he did not wish to implicate his companion, but the death of the latter recently, he said, had removed this motive.

Mr. Wood said he had gone over the Ridler case recently and was inclined to believe that Machus was telling the truth. Ridler has insisted all the time that he is innocent. Mr. Wood intimated he would recommend a pardon for Ridler if his investigation bore out the story told by Machus.

Ridler was found guilty October 25, 1924, of holding up John A. Dietrich, superintendent, and Frank G. Welbon, auditor of the Detroit Twist Drill company, February 10, 1923, as they were transporting an $8,300 pay roll. Ridler was convicted on his third trial, the first two juries disagreeing. His defense was an alibi.

Mr. Wood said his inquiries showed that at the time of the pay roll robbery Ridler owned a five-chair barber shop and was in a comfortable financial condition. At his first trial the jury stood 9 to 3 for acquittal and at the second trial the vote was 11 to 1 for a verdict of not guilty.

Between his second and third trials Ridler disappeared and his bond was forfeited. He was arrested later at the home of a relative. Ridler also was arrested in the slaying of Malcolm McGregor at the Halfway house, owned jointly by Ridler and Harry (Kid) Harris, but was discharged later when the chief witnesses were unable to positively identify him in court. Machus, a Chicago gangster, was one of four men who killed Patrolman Casimir Kaliszewski while fleeing after taking $27,000 from the Chene street and Harper avenue branch of the Central Savings bank, now the First National bank.

His companions were Stanley (Big Stack) Podulski, his cousin, John Podulski, and Walter Filipkowski. Machus, John Podulski, and Filipkowski were given life for killing Kaliszewski, while Stanley Podulski, convicted of another robbery, was given 20 to 40 years.

"Love" Criminals Fear the Lash

Paris.—The French press hailed as an admirable solution to prevalent "love crimes" the recent lashing in Temesvar, Rumania, of a woman sentenced to six years of forced labor for having killed her rival.

Madame Borusch, convicted of having murdered Mlle. Anna Lowinal last October, was given 60 blows of the lash on her naked back a few days ago. Various newspapers of central Europe voiced an indignant protest that a woman should be so badly flogged that her back resembled raw beefsteak after the ordeal.

Not so the Paris journals; echoing the satisfaction manifested by the Temeswar Hirlap at the added punishment inflicted on the murderess, Parisian editors are pointing out the excellence of this phase of Rumanian criminal procedure.

Despite the spectacle of a woman's back being slowly beaten into a bloody pulp, French critics are inclined to attach more importance to another angle of the affair. They find exceedingly significant the statement by the Temeswar Hirlap that since the flogging law went into effect the so-called love crimes have almost been exterminated in Rumania. Such crimes committed by women numbered 164 in 1920; this formidable figure was reduced to 38 in 1922, to 26 in 1923, to 22 in 1924, and dropped to 8 last year, thanks to the rigid application of the law of the knout.

Madame Dora Borusch has had her back pounded into a jelly, say the French journalists and the Temeswar Hirlap, but 156 persons who would normally be rotting in the cemeteries are now sleeping tranquilly in their beds. The Temeswar Hirlap looks favorably on the result, and so does the French press.

Enough of sloppy sentimentality, say the French; "love crimes" are committed not for love or love despised but by assassins enraged by the poison of self-love. Who will then have the courage, demands one Parisian editor, to propose in the chamber of deputies a similar law designed to save 156 lives?

Find Ancient Village in Yucatan

Washington.—An occupied Indian village, surrounded by a high stone wall, has been discovered in Yucatan by Capt. Robert R. Bennett of this city, who is conducting an important expedition in that land of ancient civilization, under auspices of the Museum of the American Indian, New York city.

"This village," said a statement from the museum, "is not on any map that is known and its discovery is of the greatest importance, particularly as it is one of the few walled villages known to be in existence in Yucatan." No description of the occupants was given.

"The ruins are about 2,000 years old, according to one stela dated A. D. 260," said a statement based on a letter from Captain Bennett. "They cover a vast area of ground, but nothing was found in the way of art.

"The mounds are very high, with small temples on top, and ranges of buildings between them. The grand level plaza is reached by two terraces with steps varying from 150 to 200 feet in width.

"After climbing one of the highest pyramids Captain Bennett saw unnumbered mounds and buildings, with another extremely high mound some miles directly to the east. Other explorers have noted the two lakes at Coba, but from this high pyramid the expedition noted four of them in a line, running northwest to southwest; the largest is about one-half mile wide and three-fourths of a mile long. This is the one which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh tried to alight on during his recent aerial explorations to Yucatan, but he found it too small for this purpose and could only skim over it and rise again."

THE WORDS OF MY MOUTH

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

David was certainly temperamental, as most musicians are. He was impulsive and hot-headed as one may easily conclude from reading his history. Tradition says he had red hair, and this fact may account for some of his erratic acts. Shepherd boy or king, he knew his weaknesses, and his strength, and he realized the need of self control. "Let the words of my mouth . . . be acceptable," was his prayer. We can conceive then, that hot words, profane words, it may be, not infrequently rushed to his lips, but he knew that such expressions were unworthy of him, and he wanted to be right.

A young girl was walking past my office door not long ago, engaged in conversation with a boy of her own age. She was a very pretty girl, well dressed and carefully groomed, and her external appearance gave one the impression of her having come from a home of comfort if not of refinement. She was talking about an examination which she had just taken in which, to use her own words, she had had a "h—l-of-a-time." There were other descriptive phrases couched in words which are best not written

WOMAN'S HIGH PLACE

Mrs. Cairne Mackay Wilson, wife of Norman F. Wilson of Ottawa, has become Canada's first woman senator following the ruling of the privy council last fall that women are "eligible persons." Mrs. Wilson, who is the mother of eight children, is a daughter of the late Senator Robert Mackay of Montreal. She is honorary president of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, past president of the Ottawa Women's Canadian club, and founder of the Ottawa Women's Liberal association.

down—profane words, but not spoken with any heat but rather coolly as if such expressions were the regular part of ordinary conversation, as I suspect no doubt they were with her. "She must have had a very crude illiterate background," you say. But you're quite mistaken. She hails from one of the most erudite centers of the state; she is a member of one of the "best families" of a rich Chicago suburb; her parents are both educated, and her own secondary school preparation was in one of the highest grade schools for girls in the country. She thinks that one could hardly be quite up to date if one did not swear. It is an indication of freedom from the shackles of convention, of independent thought, of fuller self expression, if one emphasizes one's statements with an oath. Other girls are doing it—prominent ones, too—and she is herself a campus leader. She is president of something or other; she must set a forceful example. She does not realize how cheap and common and vulgar she is, what a low estimate she puts upon her own character—an estimate which those who know her only casually are sure to accept. It would not be so bad if it were only girls, but the men are worse, perhaps.

"Do all young fellows swear these days?" a young boy asked me not long ago. "I was entertained at dinner by a group of young men only a few nights ago," he went on. "They said grace at table, and then after the meal was over, they swore like pirates."

Well, does every one swear these days? "Where did you learn to be so profane?" I asked a senior in college not long ago. "Oh at home, I suppose," she replied. "Father swears, mother does, too. I guess I just picked it up." And what a disgustingly vulgar habit it is, for even a pirate!

Children's stomachs sour, and need an anti-acid. Keep their systems sweet with Phillips Milk of Magnesia! When tongue or breath tells of acid condition—correct it with a spoonful of Phillips. Most men and women have been comforted by this universal sweetener—more mothers should invoke its aid for their children. It is a pleasant thing to take, yet neutralizes more acid than the harsher things too often employed for the purpose. No household should be without it. Phillips is the genuine, prescription product physicians endorse for general use; the name is important. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. registered trade mark of the Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours. Working like the trained hands of a masseur, this famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes. To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Friendship is a great consoling boon, but the links must be forged on the anvil of time.

Many Weddings in Sight

When some girls are already thinking of the wedding ring, their health fails, they become nervous, high-strung, irritable, and through this loss of control many a young woman loses her future happiness. As a tonic at this time, and in motherhood or in middle life, there is nothing to equal Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

One woman says: "My nerves were so upset I could not sleep, was so weak I could hardly put one foot ahead of the other, but three bottles of the Favorite Prescription made me feel like a new woman, my nerves quieted down and I gained wonderfully in strength and vitality."—Mrs. Gladys Stiles, 400 Burr St., Jackson, Mich. HEMLOCK

Mrs. Rose Somerville of Tawas is spending a few days at her home here.

Robert Short and Mrs. Ed Wakefield of Reno were callers here on Tuesday.

The many friends and former neighbors were shocked to hear of the death of G. H. Curry at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mose Brown, in Pigeon.

Charles Brown and Russell Binder went to Bay City Sunday and brought home Mrs. Brown and Leona from Samaritan hospital. Miss Leona is doing nicely following her operation and wishes to thank the neighbors for the many letters, cards and flowers, also the Bible class for the beautiful flowers.

The party at the town hall on Saturday night for Alton and Hazen Durant was largely attended and a good time reported. The boys were presented with a carrom table.

Old English Railroad
Electrification of the Swansea & Mumbles railway, the oldest line in the world, has been completed. The Swansea & Mumbles was opened in 1807, and for the first 70 years was operated by horses. Steam locomotives began to run in 1877.—London Times.

Penalty of Vanity
People who are very vain are usually equally susceptible; and they who feel one thing acutely, will so feel another.—Bulwer-Lytton.

LOWER HEMLOCK

Edgar Bradford and family have moved here from Detroit.

Mrs. Louise McArdle is spending the week in Flint.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McCarthy of Flint spent the week end at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Louise McArdle.

On Wednesday evening friends gathered at the home of Frank Long and surprised their son, Russell, the occasion being his birthday. A delicious lunch was served. Guests departed at a late hour, reporting a very good time.

On Tuesday the Nutrition class met at the home of Mrs. Henry Fahselt. A delicious dinner was served at noon. The class presented Mrs. Fahselt with a lovely gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Allen and Mrs. C. A. Curry left Thursday morning for Pigeon, where they will attend the funeral of G. H. Curry.

Friends in this community were sorry to hear of the death of G. H. Curry at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Moses Brown, in Pigeon, where he spent the winter. Mr. Curry has been a resident of this community nearly forty years, and has many friends here who sympathize with the bereaved ones in their loss.

Thursday afternoon nine girls met at the home of Dora Coates and organized a Campfire group, named Natsihi, with Lucy Allen as guardian and Lois Chambers as assistant guardian. The following officers were elected: Celia Smith, president; Genevieve Paul, vice-president; Dora Coates secretary and treasurer. After the meeting a lunch was served. Next meeting will be at the home of Lois Chambers on April 3rd. The Campfire group sponsored a pie social on Thursday night, March 20th.

RENO

The announcement has been received that a baby girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elzie McDonald at Lansing. She has been named Joyce Eileen.

John Wreden and Carl Lanz of Toledo were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bueschen and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wolf from Tuesday until Saturday of last week.

Grant Murray of Flint came on Friday for an indefinite stay.

Callers at the home of Thomas Frockins Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Atkinson, Thos. Frockins, Jr., J. A. White, Earl Daugharty, Miss Marion Latta, Mrs. Will White and daughter, Vernita.

J. A. White of Flint is spending a week at the home of his son, Will White.

CHEVROLET

Chevrolet announces

A NEW

SERVICE POLICY

The Chevrolet Motor Company and its dealers are pleased to announce a new service policy—one of the most liberal ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

Put into force as a written agreement given to the purchaser by the Chevrolet dealer when the car is delivered—it offers the following provisions:

- 1 Every Chevrolet owner receives his car from the dealer in perfect condition—thoroughly lubricated, properly adjusted, and ready to operate efficiently from the first mile of ownership.
- 2 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection and adjustment of his car at the end of the first 500 miles of usage.
- 3 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free inspection of his car every 1000 miles thereafter, so long as the car is in operation.
- 4 Every Chevrolet owner is entitled to free replacement of any part which may prove defective in workmanship or material, within the terms of Chevrolet's standard warranty. This includes both parts and labor.
- 5 Provision number 4 will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States. As a result, the Chevrolet owner may travel to any part of the country, with assurance that the guarantee on materials and workmanship will remain in force.

This new policy constitutes proof of Chevrolet's high quality—for such liberal provisions could only be made in connection with a car built of fine materials to exacting standards of workmanship.

Back of this policy, and assuring its successful operation, is one of the most complete and efficient service organizations in the world.

There are more than 10,000 Authorized Chevrolet Dealer Service Stations in the United States alone. Each employs skilled mechanics thoroughly trained at Chevrolet Service Schools. Each has specially designed tools and machinery developed exclusively for Chevrolet service work. And each has on hand, at all times, an adequate stock of genuine Chevrolet replacement parts.

Chevrolet's flat-rate charges, including both parts and labor, are the lowest in the industry on many service operations!

In considering the purchase of a low-priced automobile, think what this service means—in terms of lasting satisfaction, as well as in increased economy.

Chevrolet cars range in price from $495 up, f. o. b. factory, Flint, Michigan

Published in the interest of the people of Iosco County

Just received a shipment of Gold Medal chick starter.

Lump coal, $8.50 per ton; egg coal, $8.00 per ton. Delivered in either town.

If you want a beautiful lawn, use Vigoro. It will make grass grow where no other kind of fertilizer will. 25 lb. sacks and 5 lb. cans.

A Negro was a regular visitor to the public library, where it was noticed he took the same book, and laughed heartily.

The attendant, being curious, looked over the visitor's shoulder, and noticed the picture of a small boy being chased by a bull.

The attendant was about to ask what there was to laugh at when the Negro chuckled: "Golly! 'e ain't caught him yet!"

Now is the time to feed your cows Hexite or some other good grain that will keep them in condition and give a good flow of milk.

Wheat, $2.40 per 100 lbs.; No. 1 screenings at $2.10 per 100 lbs.; corn and oat chop, $2.20 per 100 lbs.; cracked corn for $2.40 per 100 lbs.; coarse corn meal, $2.40 per 100 lbs.; oyster shells by the 100 lbs., $1.50.

We are grinding Tuesdays and Fridays until further notice.

We are still selling scratch feed at $2.40 per 100 lbs. 60c for 25 lbs.

We have on hand Huron Portland cement and Mason's lime for building purposes.

HALE

The annual party when members of the Dorcas Society entertain their husbands and a homecoming for members living away from town was held at the town hall on Tuesday evening and was well attended. A program had been arranged as part of the evening's festivities. Solos were rendered by Mrs. Ha Feck and Mrs. Charles Bills. Instrumental numbers were given by Mrs. Fern Streeter and Mrs. Mortenson. The Kitchen Cabinet Band and a monologue by Mrs. Mortenson in costume were numerous numbers and brought forth a great deal of laughter. Ice cream and cake was served.

The local chapter, O. E. S., sponsored another of their enjoyable card parties last Thursday evening. The committee in charge had the tables prettily decorated with artificial flowers in little pots and served delicious refreshments. First prizes for the progressive pedro games were awarded Mrs. I. Dorcey and George Wilson; consolation, Bob Greve and Mrs. Pearl Streeter. The committee in charge was Mesdames Olive Pearsall and Mary Bernard.

Miss Faye Yawger, who has been ill for some time, went to Saginaw Wednesday to enter a hospital for medical treatment.

Two caucuses were held in Plainfield township. The nominees for the township offices are as follows: Progressive—Supervisor, Roy Curtis; Clerk, John J. Love; Treasurer, Charles Koehner; Highway Commissioner, Leo Webb. Republican—Supervisor, Lewis Nunn; Clerk, S. J. E. Lucas; Treasurer, A. E. Greve; Highway Commissioner, James Slosser.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rehil have moved here from Flint.

Mrs. William Gordon, who lives in Logan township, Hale R. 1, passed away on Saturday, March 15. She had been in poor health for some time. The funeral services were held on Monday, Rev. Smith of the M. E. church officiating, with the sacred anthems being rendered by his church choir. Herbert Gordon of Hale is a son of the deceased.

Mrs. George Olmstead, who has been visiting in Detroit during the winter months, returned home last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Labian and Guy Smith of Flint spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nunn.

Mrs. Blanche Syze of Flint spent the week end with friends in Hale.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wright of Kenosha, Wis., are spending a few weeks with Hale relatives. Mrs. Wright was formerly Miss Connie Nunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Nunn.

The Sunshine Club met with Mrs. A. Hobart on Thursday of last week. Pot luck dinner and a pleasant day.

TOWNLIN

Mrs. Paul Rutterbush came home last week after spending a couple of months with her daughter at Rogers City.

Our community was saddened by the death of one of our old neighbors, Paul Marks, at Carrollton last week.

Little Vivian Koepke is spending a few weeks with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Ulman.

CHAPTER III

Black Sheep's Gold

THE STORY

On a pleasure trip in eastern waters, Philip Amory, English World War veteran, now a trader on the island of Papua, New Guinea, plunges overboard to save the life of a musical comedy actress, known as "Gin-Sling." Amory becomes interested in Pia Laurier, member of a wealthy New South Wales family. He tells her of his knowledge of a wonderful gold field on the island, though he does not disclose the name of the place. "Gin-Sling" tells him Pia is engaged to Sir Richard Fanshew.

Three times, then—by my poverty, by her position, and by the significance of that ring—Pia was not for me.

I believed what Jinny had said; I was very sure she was no liar. It was merely a determination to leave no stone unturned, that made me decide I would see Pia once more—only once—before I left the ship, and ask her to her face if what I heard was true.

Once, across the saloon that night, I saw the clear profile, the beautifully shaped black head. Once, on deck, the rose-geranium perfume that Pia Laurier used, came floating across a little space of dark, and I saw a pale dress pass—hesitate—go on again. I did not move; I said no word. If I am angry, I am angry. That night, I had liefer taken the velvet neck of Pia in my hands, and twisted it back till it gave way, cracking, in my hands, (as I have twisted the neck of a German, rolling together in trench mud) than held her and kissed her as I had not yet done; as, I knew now, I never should.

It was very early when the engines came to rest next morning, and the ship, her way stopped, lay still upon the celadon-blue waters that surround Goode island.

Here the tender from Thursday was to meet us, and here my false splendors were to end. Phil Amory, bit of war wastage, trader from the back end of nowhere, was "to be taken to the place from whence he came." And if, once arrived there, he chose to hang himself by the neck till he was dead, it would be nobody's business but his own.

My suitcases were on deck, my steward tipped, the tender rising and falling below the ladder, on which I was just about to set foot, when the sound of my name, clearly and almost precisely spoken, made me look round.

Pia was there, at the head of the accommodation ladder, holding out her hand, the hand that did not bear the emerald ring.

I could not refuse to take it. I felt her cool fingers in mine, for one everlasting moment; and it was as if she came, in that moment, home, where they had always belonged. I don't know which of us first let go. I know that in one moment, with the tender dancing below and the luggage gone, and the passengers who were to join coming up the ladder, I realized that I had been an incredible fool, and that it was too late to do anything at all about it. If she was engaged—if she wasn't—she liked me. Me. She had not been flirting. Her eyes were dark with sleeplessness, and the shadow that comes of love denied. She looked at me, and made the little movement with her lips that means— . . . you know. And I would have given five years of my life for the chance—impossible now—of taking her in my arms and kissing her very breath away.

All round us there were deckhands scrubbing, stewards carrying things, the fourth officer was posted at the head of the ladder, a stewardess, armored in white starch—God knows what she wanted there—was gazing in the nearest doorway. Passengers, new arrivals, began to shove past Pia and myself, coming between us. "Sir," said some cursed person, "if you want to go ashore, you'd better not keep the tender; captain's anxious to get away."

I don't know what I'd have done—missed my passage, maybe, and trusted to luck to see me back from the East when I had spent every coin I owned, getting there—if, at that minute, a very tall, thin man had not come up the ladder, pushed determinedly between Pia and myself, and taken her by both hands. He kept pumping her wrists up and down, and staring at her as if he could never have enough of it. He was extremely handsome—sharp regular features, somewhat marred by a brief George V beard, chestnut hair clipped close to keep it from waving, large, brown, hard eyes, figure of an athlete. I could have cheerfully split his skull with an ax. I knew who he was without asking; but if confirmation was needed, I had it when an obsequious steward rushed forward, treading on my toes as he went, and bleated—"What cabin, Sir Richard? Shall I take your luggage, Sir Richard?"

Instantly the whole weight of the social system by and in which the clan of Lauriers lived, seemed to press down upon me like a giant hand, pushing, relentlessly, Pia and myself apart. I saw in one thousand-faceted vision, the world my people had owned and lost; its myriad reserves, defences, shibboleths, its fierce prides and pitiless scorns; its solid pedestal of property, lifting all who belonged to it far, very far above the mud and dust in which we others must go.

The tense moment passed. Sir Richard had let go Pia's hand; was busying himself with the traveler's eternal preoccupation of baggage. I had seen what I had seen, and I knew, as well as if I had had an hour to think it all out, instead of a couple of seconds, that what was—for Pia—was best. I could wreck her engagement if I chose—of this I was sure—but I was equally sure that if I could, I would not. I would drop out of her world as I had dropped in. The male Cinderella's pumpkin coach was ready; his hour had struck; back to the ashes! and let the fairy princess stay in her palace, undisturbed.

If I was sick at heart, as I went down that endless stair, I was doubtless no worse than many millions elsewhere who were sick at heart that day, and of the same disease. So I tried to tell myself, when the tender was reached, and I had found a seat on the roof of the cabin, and the engine was beginning to turn over with loud spitting and drumming noises. So I tried to believe, when I saw the face of Pia looking down at me from the rail, a long, long way above, and felt her eyes fall on me like the light of a star, strange, sad, remotely fair. I, who was merry enough by nature, had no laughter left in me that day, else I think I must have been amused at the sudden sight of Mrs. Laurier, arrived too late, shooting her celebrated death-ray at me "with intent," as she stood, kimono-clad, in the alleyway door. Or at the other, fairer vision on the ship's sacred bridge—I knew at once that only Jinny could thus profane the high altar—holding an imaginary glass to its lips, waving an arm at me, and shouting what I guessed at, but could not hear—"Drink hearty, we'll soon be dead!"

Then the tender champed and fussed away, and the ship receded faster and faster, and that chapter of my life was done.

Temper Shortens When Age of 40 Is Reached

Are you approaching forty? Beware! Between the ages of forty and sixty ones "pet peeves" are "at peak." Savants of the International congress of psychology announce that the child, and the young man and woman, are fairly broad-minded about annoyances. Having survived such trivialities until forty, one is inclined to let go, and it is from that time until one is sixty that you should guard against becoming slave to your dislikes.

A better plan would be to remove one's self from the scenes of temptation. If one dislikes mosquitoes, he should try to find a place where there aren't any. If a man, and it irks you to dance with stout ladies, crash the high school dances and sub-leb parties. If, now in the thirties, you develop murderous tendencies when the saxophone player next door tunes up, move away before forty, unless you wish to

I came back to Daru, off western Papua, on a brimming tide, that masked the mud-flats with acres of reflected island, miles of bright mirrored sky. The dream that I had dreamed on the great liner clung about me still, but only as the aftermath of an opium carouse may cling about a man who has left behind him, days and miles away, the place where he drank, and dreamed.

I reached the Daru roadstead, anchored, slung my dinghy out (for I had made the hundred-and-twenty-mile run across from Australia, alone) got pratique from the thin, young government official who rowed out to meet me, and changed with him the news of the islands.

By and by I stung my gear together, looked to the cable of the cutter, rowed myself ashore and pulled the dinghy upon the stones. I walked up the endless stretch of Daru Jetty. The tide, now, was running fast away to sea, and the coming sunset was reflected in sheets of muddy flame upon the flats left bare. I had slipped through the magic door, got myself into the Fourth Dimensional world that lies beyond the world that most men know.

If the thought of Pia Laurier came back to me, in my trading store, behind the beach of Daru, I think it came as a chime of bells comes, from some distant clock tower, sounding often, scarcely heard; part of one's life, yet scarcely remembered, unless, for any reason, its music is withdrawn. Possibly I would have told anyone who asked, that I did not think of her.

She had gone through my life—it seemed—as a sudden gust of wind goes through a house, scattering the common things of hourly use, breaking the mirrors, slamming windows and doors, and making the place look as if nothing would ever be the same again.

But winds pass by, and household goods are gathered and set up once more. The wind that was Pia had blown, and passed—I thought.

One trace it had left. I could not keep from thinking of Sir Richard Fanshew. He troubled me. Not so much because he was going to marry Pia, though that was a spot of raw pain, never unnecessarily to be touched—but because of a certain, odd, floating resemblance in his face to something, some one undetermined, that had struck me, in those few moments upon the ladder of the ship. It worried me as a name, half forgotten, worries; and that is like a loose tooth in the mouth.

It troubled me at the oddest moments. My store—I think I have not told you—was almost on the beach. It stood perched upon high piles, with a flight of rough steps leading up and in. The interior was one large dusky cave, with light that fell from doors set at each end. At first, you didn't see much; in a minute or two, the shining clusters of tin billycans and pannikins in the roof, and the piled strata of cottons, red, yellow, pink and green, and the loin cloths and the yard-long knives, and the strings of beads, like strange little fruits, and the plates and the lanterns and the sacks of rice and the towers of tinned meats and fish, became dimly visible, each in its place.

There was always a wind blowing through, from door to door, and there was a mossy and fishy smell from the reef, not unpleasant, and a warm whiff of frangipanni flowers; for Daru is full of these. . . . Daru, Daru by the western boundary of Papua, where civilization stops, ships come seldom, and time is marked by rise and set of sun—Daru, an island, filled with the spirit of the islands, holds in its heart, though it is Western Pacific, the secret of the true South Seas.

All very well, and I felt it, as I moved about among my cottons and tins, bargaining with wild fellows from the Fly for a canoe load of coconuts, selling tinned meat for turtle-shell, rice for a catch of trocas. I felt it, and liked it, for I had tasted the honey of the South Sea world, and its flavor was pleasant to recall, though in truth the strong liquor of the Western Islands suited me best. But why—why was the store, and the blaze of green bush and dazzle of seawater, seen through its open doorway, and the smells of reef and shell and frangipanni flower—ay, and the very winds that blew unendingly from door to door—why was all this connected in my mind with Richard Fanshew, airman, company promoter, wealthy man and future custodian of Pia Laurier's life?

CHIC BORDERED PRINT SILKS; PIN-DOT FABRICS FOR SPRING

CUNNING short jackets of entirely different material from the print frocks over which they are worn, or if of the same weave then contrasted in color, are in fashion.

These little separate jackets in solid colors, either pastel tints, bright hues or in black or navy, are especially good looking with frocks of vivacious print. The material for these monotone coats depends largely on the character of the dress. As for instance, bright colored flannel jackets are ever so smart worn over sports frocks of printed challis or figured shantung or silk pique, while with the filmy chiffon afternoon dresses, womenly touches upon the importance of pin-dot patterns.

Whole swarms of pin-dots have descended upon the new spring materials, making no exception either of woollens, silks or cottons. Everywhere one turns whether in the realm of coats, dresses or in the blouse sections myriads of tiniest of tiny dots now greet the eye. Judging from the way these fascinating little dotted effects are "going" there will be a veritable stampede of dots before the new season is far progressed.

Dresses of lightweight woollens in navy or black with white pin dots are quite the rage even now, competing en will be wearing this summer adorable jackets of transparent velvet in colorings tuned to the flower motifs of the print.

A swanky jacket of black satin tops the rose and black printed crepe satin dress in the picture. Note that the print is handsomely bordered. The latest call of the printed mode is for bordered silks. In this instance the dress print lines the satin jacket. However, this rule is not adhered to in every instance, for many a velvet or satin jacket is lined with white or a neutral color so that it can be worn with different dresses and frequently the colorful flannel, likewise velvet, coats have no lining at all.

The jacket theme promises further development in the way of fancy all-over lace coats to be worn with summer chiffons. Very new, too, are quaintly styled jackets of taffeta which indulge in picturesque bell-shaped sleeves, "pinked" rose-plaited ruchings finishing all edges, for you see, old fashions have this season become new fashions.

The sleeveless bolero is another guise in which modish separate jackets appear. And then there are capes!

Ensemble of Dotted Navy Silk.

If not a jacket, then a cape is the verdict of the mode, for with every costume there must be a complementary wrap.

Not only are daytime silk prints enhanced with jackets, for the separate wrap idea extends to costumes of washable materials. Solid colored linen jackets are worn with dresses of cretonne and of sheer printed voile as well as with frocks of gay patterned hand-blocked self linen.

Pin-Dots in Favor. Now what is next? Pin-dotted fabrics if you please. Which being said, will be much worn this summer, not only by adults but in the children's realm dotted swisses are already being displayed in goodly number.

While on the subject of dots it might be well to call attention to the smartness of polka dots, a theme which is being played in varied moods.

Materials which are starred instead of polka-dotted are very new and smart. That is, instead of dots, five-pointed stars pattern the print, silk or woolen, as the case may be.

Finds Youth's Fountain!

One Happy Woman Tells Where She Discovered It

"JUST one thing has contributed more than anything else in my life toward making me the radiantly happy woman I am today," writes Mrs. Walter Ruel, of Glenbrook, Conn. "If this was selling at ten dollars a bottle instead of the few cents it costs, I would scrape the money together, and I don't mean maybe!"

"I guess a good many others feel the same way, judging by the number of people I know who swear by this 'Fountain of Youth.'"

Millions of people all over the world have discovered this simple secret, which is nothing but giving our bodies the internal lubrication that they need, as much as any machine. After you have taken Nujol for a few days, and have proved to yourself how it brightens your whole life, you will wonder how so simple a treatment can make such a great change in your health and your happiness. The reason is this:

Regularly as clock work, Nujol clears out of our bodies those poisons (we all have them) which slow us up, make us headachy, low in our minds.

Colorless and tasteless as pure water, Nujol cannot hurt you, no matter how long you take it. It is not a medicine. It contains no drugs. It forms no habit. It is non-fattening.

Try Nujol yourself and see how much better you feel. Get a bottle in its sealed package at any drug store and be sure it's trademarked "Nujol." It costs but a few cents—and it makes you feel like a million dollars! Start taking Nujol this very night!

Wickedness is a kind of voluntary frenzy, and a chosen distraction.—Til- lotson. Women always had intuition; but it was the men who gave it that name.

Children CRY for it

It may be the little stomach; it may be the bowels are sluggish. No matter what coats a child's tongue, its a safe and sensible precaution to give a few drops of Castoria. This gentle regulation of the little system soon sets things to rights. A pure vegetable preparation that can't harm a wee infant, but brings quick comfort—even when it is colic, diarrhea, or similar disturbance.

And don't forsake Castoria as the child grows older. If you want to raise boys and girls with strong systems that will ward off constipation, stick to good old Castoria; and give nothing stronger when there's any irregularity except on the advice of a doctor. Castoria is sold in every drugstore, and the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

AUNTIE ENDED THE LOVER'S QUARREL

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

WHEN Mary Leesmith announced to her family that she was thinking of running up to New York, Jerrod Leesmith, her husband, put his cup down so hard that the contents splashed out on the tablecloth. Not so Eddie, the son.

"Why, mom!" he exclaimed, reaching out to fling his arm about her. "Won't that be scrumptious? New York's only fifty miles away from Fairview and I reckon you ain't been that far away from home this long time. What got you into the notion all of a sudden?"

Mrs. Leesmith flashed a grateful glance at her big son and drew a letter from her apron pocket. "I've been thinkin' I'd accept one o' Margie Newton's bids to visit her. She's that girl that spent all last summer at Compton's. Member how she liked to run over here for some o' my doughnuts? Well, we got real friendly like an' we been correspondin' all winter. The invite this mornin' seemed toll'ble earnest like so I thought I'd run along up there for a week or so."

In spite of the glowering displeasure of her husband, urged on by her devoted son, Mary Leesmith left the little farming village of Fairview a day or two later, bound for the great metropolis.

"Don't forget to feed the settin' hen in Dobbin's stall," she called back to her husband, as Eddie put the car in gear.

Settling herself in the train, a little feeling of panic swept over Mary Leesmith. She wished she hadn't been quite so daring. The city was an awful big place. Suppose Margie should not meet her? But all her anxiety was for nothing. Margie did meet her and she was whizzed along the crowded streets in one of the most luxurious motor cars she had ever seen.

"My!" she sighed, leaning back comfortably. "This sure is fine. I never will be able to stand the fiver again, to say nothin' 'bout the old buckboard. Now Margie, you begin to the beginnin' and tell me all 'bout the fuss with your beau. I was that upset when I got your letter tellin' how broke up you was that I 'lowed I'd come right up to town so's we could talk it over."

"Oh, it's terrible, Auntie Leesmith!" the girl answered, trying to check the quivering of her lips. "I—I've broken my engagement and I've broken my heart doing it!"

"What come twist you, Margie, and him, such a likely chap—if it's the one that was out to see you last summer?"

"It's the same one. We—we quarreled over a mere trifle and I got furiously mad. I told him not only that I didn't love him any more but that I never had. I threw his ring on the floor. I ran out of the room but not before I heard him call after me. 'In a case like that, I've no choice. Good night and goodby.'"

"You do love him though—you know you do, child. You couldn't have stopped off sudden like that!"

"Of course I do, but it's too late to talk about that now. My horrid old temper has gone and killed all my chances for happiness. Oh, Auntie Leesmith! I'm so glad you could come! I never wanted my mother so badly as I did the night after the quarrel."

Mrs. Leesmith folded the suffering girl to her motherly bosom and let her cry there undisturbed until the car stopped before the door of her handsome home where Margie lived with her widowed father. Then she helped her dry her tear-wet eyes and assured her that she, Fairview's beloved Auntie Leesmith, who had helped adjust more than one rural misunderstanding between lovers, was sure she could act as efficiently in the city.

That night, alone in the room assigned for her use, Mary Leesmith gave a great deal of consideration to the trouble Margie Newton had brought upon herself. Along toward morning she had mapped out a plan and early the next day she set the wheels of her plan into motion. She learned the name and business address of Margie's young man and fate played nicely into her hand when Margie ordered the chauffeur to take Mrs. Leesmith for a nice long tour about the city, while she nursed a sickening headache.

The first thing Mrs. Leesmith did was to give the chauffeur Crane Wilnot's business address, which she had carefully written down upon a piece of paper. She found her way into the tall building without any trouble and to Crane's office.

"You don't know me," she began without previous introduction, "but I'm a friend of yours and I want you to do something. Your girl's in trouble and she needs help. Will you forget your pride and come with me?"

"Is it serious?" he asked, breathlessly, jumping up.

"It may be. You can go in the car with me."

Tense and white-faced, he followed her out of the building and into the limousine. Not a word was exchanged on the way home. Hurrying up the front steps, Mrs. Leesmith bade him wait in the drawing room for a moment or two. She returned almost immediately with Margie's hand in hers. When the erstwhile lovers saw each other they all but collapsed.

"I thought you said there was something the matter with her," Wilnot said, trying to gain his composure.

"There is," answered Mrs. Leesmith, holding fast to the squirming Margie. "She told you a fib and it's killing her. She said she didn't love you now and never had and she's owned up to me that that ain't so."

Margie wriggled, trying to escape, and then turned to bury her face on Auntie Leesmith's ample shoulder. Auntie Leesmith beckoned to the man standing like one frozen in the middle of the floor. A flush overspread his face as he shook his head. Mrs. Leesmith gave him the look she was in the habit of using on Eddie when he was minded to disobey her, and in another second she was slowly pushing Margie into her lover's arms.

"You're two of the headiest children I ever saw and I've a mind to spank you both!" she said as she left the room. Two hours later they came in search of her.

"I see now it was—all my fault," Margie admitted. "I can hardly believe I was willing to allow such a little thing to destroy my whole life's happiness."

"It's always the little thing, honey," Mrs. Leesmith said sagely. "And now, that I've tended to the business that fetched me, I reckon I'd better gettin' back to pa and Eddie and the settin' hens. 'Spect that place is no end of a sight."

"But you'll be sure to come back for the wedding, won't you?" they chorused. "We couldn't get married without you."

"If that's the how of it," she answered, putting an arm about each, "I just reckon I'll have to."

Pretty Cactus "Gardens" Caught Popular Fancy

From the heart of the desert country of Arizona comes a story of a woman's success in a singular industry, one indigenous with those thirsting deserts. Confronted with the necessity of earning a living for herself and three children, Mrs. May Pitts of Florence, Ariz., turned to the making of miniature cactus gardens as a possible source of income. Her resource and ingenuity met with financial reward.

Her story told in her own words has the ring of sincerity and the stamp of experience. It is in part: "I was left a widow with three small children, and almost penniless. I tried everything from jelly making to mending clothes and could make only enough money to exist.

"One day I was walking down the street and looked into a florist's window. The florist had a dozen or more small cactus gardens in the window, the kind that have been a fad lately. I bought a few dozen cactus plants of all varieties. They were very beautiful. I added those I could find from the country about.

"Then I bought a quantity of gaudy dishes and bowls, mostly Chinese in spirit. I advertised my little gardens when they were complete and in less than a month I had sold 20 of them and had orders for more. All the gardens were small and sold from $3 to $5 each with the dishes, and without the dishes I sold them at $1 each.

"Before I advertised the second time I made some more elaborate ones. This time I bought small Japanese pagodas and bridges and little Japanese figures in gay clothes and placed them under the little green plants. I had one little Jap lady with a red parasol flirting with an officer on a bridge. Many of my customers fell in love with the garden with the little Japanese lady and wanted one like it. I used moss for the grass, and have made some really picturesque gardens.

"I am now making a good living out of the cactus business. I am thinking of making more elaborate rock gardens and cactus borders for some of the big estates that fringe the suburbs. It is pleasant work and I enjoy it. And, best of all, it has banished want from my door."

Evolution of "Stateroom"

Doctor Vitezelli says that the evolution of the word "stateroom" on a boat may be cited as follows: Cabin, state cabin, stateroom. The term "stateroom" was taken over from the British navy. There is a note in Pepys' Diary which gives a clew to this (April 24, 1690): "Very pleasant we were on board the London, which hath a stateroom much bigger than the Nazeby, but not so rich." Another evidence of this use is to be found in the London Gazette for 1690, No. 2, 982: "The yacht having lost in this encounter but three men, who were killed by one great shot in the stateroom." By the time the Hanoverian kings were on the throne of England the term "stateroom" was thoroughly established in the language, for Smollett used it in "Roderick Random," which was published in 1748: "A cabin was made for him contiguous to the stateroom where Whiffle slept."

Concealed Diamond Source

In ancient and medieval times the most important source of diamonds was the great Golconda mines of India. The Hindus showed excellent business judgment by never revealing to foreigners just how they obtained the precious stones. Far Eastern travelers were told that the diamonds floated in from the sea. Until it became known that the Hindus were toying with the truth, thousands of people sat up night after night to scoop hopefully at the phosphorescence.

DAIRY

GERMS INACTIVE IN FRESH MILK

Bacteria Do Not Become Active for Five Hours Later.

Bacteria are not active in milk freshly drawn from the cow and may not become active until three to five hours later even if the temperature is at 70 degrees, says Prof. J. D. Brew of Cornell university.

The period of readjustment, or germicidal period, varies according to conditions. Milk with a low bacteria count will stand longer without increasing the number of bacteria than will milk with a higher count. The addition of large numbers of bacteria from utensils or from dirt will shorten the period.

It is safest to cool the milk to 50 degrees at once and remove all doubt, but this period of inactivity explains why many dairymen can deliver warm morning's milk to grade A plants and still have a low count. Most of this morning's milk is about two hours old.

Stirring the milk in the can is good practice, but there is no reason to stir it more than once and that not until after the can has stood in the vat at least a half hour. In an un-stirred can the center will remain warmer than the outside layer. But, if the water in the vat is sufficiently cold, this warm core in the center of the can need cause no worry, because the germicidal action of the milk will retard growth and any cooling lengthens the period of that protection.

Whatever the length of the germicidal period, when it disappears it is gone permanently. If one should warm milk to 70 degrees for separation it should be cooled quickly for bacteria growth may start at once.

Increased Production by Proper Management

In selecting a dairy bull on the basis of the records of his ancestors consideration should be given to the conditions under which the records were made. An investigation by the bureau of dairy industry at Beltsville, Md., showed that when cows were milked and fed three times a day instead of twice, confined in box stalls instead of in stanchions, fed enough to make them fat instead of keeping them in ordinary flesh, and bred to freshen at intervals of 15 months instead of 12 the production was increased 50 per cent.

A herd improvement association record of 400 pounds of butter fat, if made under ordinary farm conditions, is equal to an advanced registry or register of merit record of 600 pounds. This statement is backed by government tests and may be considered reasonably accurate.

Liberal Calf Feeding During Winter Is Best

It pays to feed calves liberally and to market them in the early summer rather than to feed them late in the fall when they have to meet competition of larger and thinner cattle. This is the conclusion of an experiment as a result of feeding six lots of calves weighing 400 pounds at the beginning of the experiment at the University of Missouri.

The one lot was fed enough through the winter to gain one and a half pounds daily; the other lot was fed to gain one pound daily. The calves that were fed more liberally were ready to go to market after 60 days of summer feeding and the thinner calves required 140 to 160 days to get a comparable amount of finish.

The cattle fed less liberally through the winter made more economical gains on grass and made more rapid gains than those fed more liberally.

Proper Care of Cream in Spring and Summer

With the approach of warm weather many cream producers have difficulty in getting their cream to the creamery in good condition. Practices in caring for the cream during the cold weather of winter are not always satisfactory for use during the summer season. Cream kept in a cellar filled with odors of vegetables is certain to absorb those odors and become unsuitable for the manufacture of high-class butter. In view of the approach of hot weather the following suggestions may be of value to some of our readers:

Wash and scald the separator, cans and pails and all utensils immediately after using and keep them dry while not in use. Sunshine is a cheap and effective drying agency.

Feeding Less Grain

There usually are a few instances in each herd where cattle getting toward the end of the lactation period can do very well on grass alone. This little rest from heavy grain feeding is doubtless desirable in those cases. However, on the whole, the dairy farmer cannot afford not to feed grain while cattle are on pasture. If the grass is good and plentiful, he may feed less grain than when the cattle are in the barn; in fact, this is often desirable.

Northrop Flying Wing a Success

The revolutionary "Northrop Flying Wing" is shown cruising over its plant at the United airport, Burbank, Calif. The plane, an all-metal all-wing monoplane designed by John K. Northrop, carries passengers, motor and structural members entirely inside the wing, thus eliminating "parasitic resistance" and saving nearly one-half its power for speed and lift.

NEW DEVICE TO AID IN "BLIND" FLYING

Sperry Horizon Is Tested at Chicago Airport.

Chicago.—Another step toward solving the air mail pilots' problem of flying "blind" has been taken at the Chicago municipal airport, where tests are being made of an "artificial horizon," a device mounted on the instrument board of an airplane. The new instrument tells the pilot at a glance if his ship is not in a proper flying position and enables him to correct it, even if he is flying in weather so thick that he can see nothing outside the cockpit.

The instrument, which is being tested on a N. A. T. Douglas mail and express transport, is one of four in existence and was perfected by Elmer T. Sperry, noted inventor. It is known as the Sperry "Horizon" and is the same as was used by Lieut. James Doolittle in his recent series of blind flying tests in which he took off and landed an airplane while completely enclosed in a hooded cockpit.

May Revolutionize Flying.

The Sperry device may revolutionize the art of instrument flying and will be a big factor in overcoming bad weather and eliminating delays in air transportation. When the weather becomes so thick that the pilot loses sight of the ground and the horizon fades from view the pilot is forced to resort to his instruments to keep his ship level. Although airplane instruments have been greatly improved during the last year and pilots have become adept in using them, the artificial horizon is hailed as an invaluable contribution to air transport because of its accuracy and simplicity.

When Pilot Paul Kaniut was forced to use his parachute while flying the mail from Kansas City to Chicago last spring he told afterward of how he was caught in a dense fog which closed behind and forced him to fly "blind." Suddenly his air speed indicator showed 170 miles an hour and he knew his plane was falling out of control, but he could not correct it because he could see nothing in the dense fog and his instruments were so disturbed by the exceptionally rough air of the storm area that they were useless. The artificial horizon would not have been affected under such conditions, experts say, and would make it possible for a pilot to keep his ship under control.

Simple in Appearance.

The "Horizon" is simple in appearance, consisting of a dial tinted to represent a line which at all times is parallel to the true horizon, in reference to the position of the airplane. On the face of the dial is painted the likeness of a small airplane.

When the pilot is forced to resort to instrument flying he can keep his ship in the proper attitude by correcting it with his controls so that the line across the dial of the instrument is in correct relation to the tiny airplane on the face of the dial. The mechanism of the device is actuated by a gyroscope.

Minneapolis Turning From Auto to Plane

Minneapolis, Minn.—Dreams of promoters who spent nearly $1,000,000 to make Minneapolis "the center of automobile racing" are being subjected to final and very literal blasts as aviation rebuilds its nest here.

Dynamite has now crumbled the curved concrete race track, more than two miles long, to permit expansion of the Wold-Chamberlain flying field which has been limited to several years. The auto races were financial failures and the property was sold by the sheriff for $250,000.

Then came the rise of aviation, and from a few planes the field soon became the home of many. Now it is the terminus for the air mail route, of several air lines and a training center for the Thirty-fourth Division Air Service.

Improvement is being undertaken by the city, which acquired the field under a bond issue of $243,000. The concrete track, forming a saucer, must be entirely removed because it is a hazard and destroys valuable space.

More than 500,000 yards of earth are being moved to bring the field to grade. Concrete taxiways will supplement grass runways and complete equipment for night flying installed. Two hundred and forty acres adjoining are to be added.

CROSSING RAYS TO GUIDE THE PILOT

French Inventor Uses the Herzian Wave Signals.

Paris, France.—To mark out an unmistakable track for air pilots by means of Herzian wave signals is the object of a striking invention of William Loth, which was recently brought to the attention of the French air ministry. It is not a device for sending occasional messages of guidance. The inventor contends that it enables an aviator making for an airport to observe instantly, and at any time he likes, whether he is on the right course.

The pilot has no need to call up the aerodrome or to wait until he is called up. The signals are constantly in the air about him and all he has to do is to put on the headpiece of his listening apparatus and hear them. At his experimental station at Vaux, on the Seine, M. Loth gives practical demonstrations of the simple principle on which the invention is based. In clear weather and over moderate distances ordinary searchlight signals may be employed instead of Herzian waves, and M. Loth shows both.

Two "lighthouses," with powerful projectors, are placed one on each side of the route which the arriving airplane should follow. The projectors revolve and their beams sweep round in circles. As they are synchronized the pencils of light wheel round at exactly identical speeds. It follows that whenever the beams cross each other they do so at a point equidistant from the two lighthouses. An observer placed at such a point of intersection sees the flashes of the two lights precisely at the same moment, and not one after the other.

Prussian Schools Add Aviation to Courses

Berlin, Germany.—School children in Prussia are to be initiated into the mysteries of aviation. The Prussian minister of education has ordered that classes dealing with aeronautic problems be added to the curriculum of all public schools.

In schools with workshops the pupils, in addition, are to be advised and assisted in the construction of models of all kinds of aircraft.

No Congestion Yet

There will not be air traffic congestion until more than 69,608 airplanes try to crowd their way into the sky over one square mile of ground, in the opinion of Earl J. Smith of Detroit.

Round Europe Flight Open to U. S. Aviators

Berlin.—American participation in the 1930 international "round Europe flight" is requested by the Aero Club of Germany to give the contest a true international character.

The organizers of the competition are eager to have the flight assume the same international importance for sport planes as the Schneider Cup races have for seaplanes. Aero club officials said that American participation was possible even if the National Aeronautical association is not officially represented.

Airplane companies, clubs or individual flyers are eligible, but must be entered through some European club. In this connection the organization invited American flyers to enter through their clubs.

Entries will be received until March 3. The countries participating are Germany, France, England, Switzerland, Spain, Poland and Czechoslovakia. The distance to be covered is 7,533 kilometers (4,720 1/2 miles). The contest will take place from July 20 to July 31. The prizes are 350,000 French francs, of which the first award will be 100,000 francs.

Have Kidneys Examined By Your Doctor

Take Salts to Wash Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Here Is the Final Word

"Father, why is victory always pictured as a woman?"

"Wait, my son, until you get married; then you will find out."

MOTHER, LOOK AT THIS SNOWY WASH! AND I DIDN'T SCRUB OR BOIL IT

Tells mother secret of easy washdays—and whiter clothes

"THIS was the easiest washday I've had since I've been married. How Rinsos' thick suds soaked out the dirt! I didn't need to do a bit of scrubbing or boiling. And look how white the clothes are!"

"No more washboards for me. I'm changing to Rinsos for good."

A real thrift-soap

Rinsos is all you need—even in hardest water. No bar soaps, chips, powders, softeners. Rinsos gives twice as much suds, cup for cup, as puffed-up soaps. Rich, lasting suds.

And Rinsos is safe for your finest linens. Clothes last longer, for they don't need to be scrubbed threadbare.

The makers of 38 washers recommend Rinsos. Marvelous for dishes, too. Get the BIG package today.

Line," through Tawas City and East Tawas, and the State Park Commission in the enlargement of the Park at East Tawas.
 As I have been advised by representatives of the State Highway Department, that this work is contemplated during the present summer, it is urgently requested that this matter be given as prompt attention as possible in order that if the request is approved, steps may be taken at once towards the construction of the new station.
 Copies of this letter are being forwarded to the Mayors of East Tawas and Tawas City, respectively, as well as the Highway Department, in order that they may be conversant with the steps contemplated by this Company.
 It is not believed serious objection will be raised to the proposed plan in either city, but it is urged that if a hearing in the matter is necessary, it be set for the earliest practicable date.

 In his afternoon address, Dr. Trout ably presented "Methods in Measurements."
 Dr. Bennett, Dean of the University of Iowa, gave a very practical picture of "The Teacher in the School" and from his wealth of experience, drew many pictures of the complicated process of polishing these "diamonds in the rough" so that our "finished product" might be "cultured, educated and loyal American citizens."
 His second address concerned the technique of "Helping the Child to Think," and presented the psychology of his natural growth by means of training his instincts and mental capacities.

Good Advice to Smokers
 The English magazine Punch is credited with the origin of the phrase, "Learn to smoke slow. The other grace is to keep your smoke from people's faces."

Ancient Saying
 "Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep," writes Shakespeare, and he got that from the proverb, "Still waters run deep." Other versions are, "God defend me from the still water and I'll defend myself from the rough," and "Silent men, like still waters, are deep and dangerous." The German said: "Dumb dogs and still waters are dangerous."

Pussy's "Whiskers"
 The large hairs on either side of a cat's nose are feelers. Technically they are known as "visbrissae." Their roots are provided delicate nerve endings of touch, thus enabling the animal to find its way with ease through dark, narrow passages.

Beef and Brawn
 Many years ago, when brawn was prized above brains, the men composing the bodyguard of the kings of England were selected for their great size. In order to keep them in physical trim, each was given an allowance of two pounds of beef daily.

Real Joy of Life
 Satisfaction, real satisfaction, always comes from within. It is of the heart, not of the world. One of life's keenest joys is the anticipation of each day's problems; its greatest contentment is the knowledge of some work well done.—Grit.

A Candle in the Window
 For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did.—Hebrews, 7:19.

One on Shakespeare
 The word "dollars" occurs once in Shakespeare's plays: Macbeth, Act I, Scene 2. This is an anachronism of 500 years, as the first European silver pieces called "thalers" were not coined until 1518.

European Pawnshops
 The government pawnshops of France and Belgium are known as Monts-de-Piete, originally "Monts de Pitié" or Banks of Charity. They are colloquially known as one's "aunt."

World's Forests
 Russia has the most extensive forests. Next comes the British empire; third, Brazil, and fourth, the United States, says the American Tree association. These countries together have within their borders nearly two-thirds of the forest land of the world. The remaining third is divided among more than fifty nations.

Popular Adage
 The adage about the pot calling the kettle black is found in many tongues. A Spanish adaptation is: "Said the Jackdaw to the crow: Get away, nigger," while in Italy one hears: "The pan says to the kettle: Get away lest you stain me." "The shovel scoffs at the poker," is the way the French put it. Hindus quote: "The colander said to the needle: 'Get away, you have a hole in you!'"

Language Changes
 "Ye olde" this or that was never said in any century; the y in "ye" is simply the old-English "th" in its single form called the thorn, which lost its original outline.—Exchange.

Penalties of Genius
 Temperament is a sort of thermometer by which we register the boiling point of genius.—Los Angeles Times
