CORINNE GRIFFITH IN LATEST PARIS GOWNS

Corinne Griffith, generally considered the best-dressed woman on the screen, has an opportunity to wear some magnificent street and evening gowns as well as morning matinees and afternoon tea gowns in "Lilies of the Field," her latest First National picture, which is the featured production Sunday and Monday at the Family Theatre, East Tawas. These exquisite gowns are original Far's models, especially created for Miss Griffith by Worth, Poiret, Patou and Lenief, during her recent trip to France, and are the latest word in advanced styles for 1930.

The story presents Miss Griffith in the role of a society woman unjustly divorced by her husband who is forced to earn her living as a show girl in a Broadway cabaret, where she mingles with a group of gold-diggers who attempt to draw her into their easy-going manners and morals. Although there are several tense dramatic situations which give the star ample opportunity for emotional acting, there are also many comedy sequences of back-stage life.

The youngest of all beauty contest winners to be featured on the screen is little Patsy Paige, the Sunshine Radio Baby, who plays Corinne Griffith's daughter in "Lilies of the Field." Ralph Forbes is Miss Griffith's leading man and John Leder has the role of her husband.

This theatre is now being wired for talkies. Watch for the real voice of the movies soon.

For eight years he has lived at Flint and Detroit. He is survived by his father, E. W. Thornton of Lambertville, Mich., two sisters, Mrs. Edna Stark of Flint and Mrs. Amy Farrand of Detroit, and three brothers, Percy Thornton of Tawas City and Clarence and Bert Thornton of Hale. Interment was made at Holly, Mich.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB

An open meeting of the Twentieth Century Club was held in the high school room on Thursday evening, April 17th. The meeting was presided over by Miss Worden, who introduced Dr. Davis, dentist of the State Health Department, the speaker of the evening.

All present listened with much interest and profit to Dr. Davis, who is a very convincing speaker. He showed the value of extreme care and attention to the dental needs of children, especially stressing the need of proper food for the growth and stability of teeth, and of regular examination to prevent neglect.

Miss Worden has had charge of all the programs for the year, except the music program arranged by Mrs. Giddings on "American Compositors." Each day's topic has had an appeal and distinction of its own, whether prepared by the club members or given by outside speakers, and the meetings have been well attended.

Andy explains it to Amos as follows:

Amos: "What does the white woman do in her club, Andy? Talk?"

Andy: "Hush up! You don't know nothing! Listen! Some days the white woman talk and some days they don't feel like talking—much, so they gets in a Universality man to talk to 'em and talk to 'em all about 'Chile Wel-Flare' or about 'Consternation,' or how to brush their teeth!"

Amos: "Does they have music, Andy?"

Andy: "Oh, yes! They has music—those woman can go to the club and hear just as good music as if they'd stayed at home!"

Doug Ferguson of this city is the manager of the Oscoda theatre, and also of the Tawas City theatre, which has been entertaining the community with talkies since June 16th of last year.

Oscoda is believed to be the smallest town in Michigan to have talkies. Many towns two and three times as large have not installed them. Talkies will be heard for the first time at Oscoda on Saturday, May 10th.

GERALDINE NIELSON WINS VALEDICTIONSHIP OF E. T. GRADUATING CLASS

A list of the ten students highest in standing in the Senior class of East Tawas high school for 1929-1930, arranged in order of their ranking, with the highest first, is as follows: Geraldine Nielson, Eunice Anschuetz, Dorothy Merschel, Ida Carter, Esther Osgerby, Grace Hill, Deloise Durant, Elsie Ahonen, Lloyd Bowman and Myrton Curry. The above people have attended East Tawas high school for two and one-half years, on which the ranking is based.

Those who have been in this school less than two and one-half years and have high averages are: Frederick Lincoln, Janie Fowler, Josie Adams, Lillie Adams, and Inez Larson.

Geraldine Nielson and Eunice Anschuetz had all "A's" records for four years, but the former took one subject more than the latter, thus Miss Nielson became Valedictorian and Miss Anschuetz Salutatorian. It is a remarkable and very unusual feat to finish a high school course with all "A's." The record these girls have established is highly commendable.

TUNEFUL TALKIE COMING TO STATE THEATRE

When Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer purchased the screen rights to "Lord Byron of Broadway," some time ago, individuals interested in Hollywood activities wondered which of the company's stars would be given the featured part which demanded a definite ability for both singing and dancing.

Now comes the announcement that the two leading roles will not be filled by any of the recognized M-G-M stars, but that the picture will serve as the introduction to the screen of two Broadway musical-comedy celebrities, namely, Charles Kaley of "Earl Carroll's Vanities" and Ethelind Terry, star of "Rio Rita," "Kid Boots" and other successes.

With the intention of keeping the production on a par with such of its earlier musical picture hits as "The Broadway Melody" and "Hollywood Revue," Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, composers of "Singin' in the Rain," "Wedding of the Painted Doll" and other numbers of big sale caliber, were engaged to write music and lyrics.

As a final guarantee of the superb song and dance qualifications of the production, Harry Beaumont, director of "The Broadway Melody," was assigned supervision of the singing end of the picture, while Sammy Lee, former Ziegfeld dance coach, was engaged to execute the Technicolor revue scenes, and Mme. Albertine Rasch the huge ballet sequences.

In order that the musical end of the picture would not overpower the plot, William Nich, director of a long string of Lon Chaney productions, took over the megaphone while responsibility for continuity and dialogue was entrusted to Crane Wilbur and Willard Mack, erstwhile actors and playwrights.

With Kaley and Miss Terry supported by such screen favorites as Marion Shilling, recently of "Wide Girls," Cliff Edwards, better known as "Ukelele Ike," Gwen Lee, Benny Rubin and a number of others, "Lord Byron of Broadway" which is the attraction at the State Theatre Sunday and Monday, will delight you with its singing and dancing, and scenes in Technicolor.

GIRLS OF THE TAWASES ORGANIZE CLUB

A new club, named "Pi Alpha Epsilon," has been formed by a number of girls of East Tawas and Tawas City. At the present time the membership is approximately thirty, and many more are expected to join.

The purpose of the club is to promote interest in good, clean entertainments and to cultivate a spirit of enthusiasm toward social affairs in both towns. The rooms above Christenson's store have been chosen as the club rooms, and they are now being redecorated for that purpose. The club expects to occupy them shortly. Donations of any furniture of little personal value which would be suitable for use in the club rooms will be greatly appreciated.

The first two meetings were held at the Holland Hotel. On Monday evening of this week a meeting was held at the home of Miss Regina Barkman at which the following officers were elected: President, Miss Ellen Kane, Tawas City; Vice-President, Miss Una Evensen, East Tawas; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Regina Barkman, East Tawas. ### Governor Kohler Is "Air Wise"

Walter J. Kohler, Wisconsin's "flying governor," is a strong advocate of airports for all cities and towns. Foreseeing the growth of travel through the air he promptly signed Wisconsin's new aviation code when it came from the state legislature. Governor Kohler is "air wise." Last year he flew more than ten thousand miles. Frequently he commutes by plane from his home in Kohler village to the executive offices in Madison.

NEED WARM HANGARS FOR U. S. A. PLANES

Major Royce Cites Requirements for Long Hops.

Detroit.—With the knowledge gained on the recent mid-winter flight to Spokane, Wash., and return, the First Pursuit Group, if it repeats the trip next winter, should complete it on schedule, weather permitting. Maj. Ralph Royce, commander of the flight, predicted in an address before the Detroit Flying club. Major Royce said that, in view of the inadequate ground organization for the recent flight, the planes were fortunate to get through in 19 days. He mentioned, as necessities for efficient military Arctic flying: Preliminary ground organization at each stopping point, closed cabin pursuit planes, and light, fast planes for mechanics that will enable them to keep up with the pursuit planes.

Need Heated Hangars. "Our big trouble on the recent flight was not having heated hangars for our planes," Major Royce said. "We were encountering temperatures as low as 53 degrees below zero at 13,000 feet over the mountain divides. The mail planes, which had warm hangars, were flying regularly, but we could not get warmed up for starting without hours and sometimes days of labor.

"Our planes functioned well once aloft, but our boots were not waterproof, our leather suits grew stiff as boards in the cold, our goggles fogged, our helmets made our heads itch, our gloves were too tight, our inertia starters wouldn't function in the cold, snow drifted into our cockpits, thawed and froze into several pounds of ice. "We found that loose slippers, worn under waterproof boots, suits with high collars, green-lensed goggles, and loose gloves lined with camel hair make the best winter flying clothing."

More Gas Consumption. Major Royce said that the cold increased the pursuit planes gasoline consumption from about 19 gallons to from 26 to 30 gallons an hour. He said that after looking at snow and sky it was almost impossible to read the instruments in the cockpit.

"Over long stretches in Montana where there are no trees or buildings we could not distinguish snow from clouds to find the horizon and hence could not maintain straight, level flight," he said. "As things turned out we could have made the flight as easily on wheels as on skis."

Alaska Derives Great Benefits From Aviation

Fairbanks, Alaska.—Governor Parks, one of the foremost aviation enthusiasts in Alaska, announces that there are 57 airports in the territory now, representing an expenditure of $150,000.

Realizing the commercial advantages of airplane transportation and communication in this "land of distances," the public has encouraged the construction of the landing fields wholesale, he said. "Districts that formerly were weeks away from here and Nome are now brought within a few hours of flying," Governor Parks said. "Business has boomed in outlying towns and villages. All phases of activity have benefited even the courts. Jurists are transported to places to settle suits and try criminal cases that were before neglected."

Connections of the large cities in Alaska with those in Canada and the United States by airways will be the next scheme exploited by air-lines, the governor intimated. The growth of aviation in Alaska now that the pioneering work is done, will be gradual, he expects.

Flying conditions in Alaska during the summer are ideal, air officials contend, pointing out that they compare favorably with weather conditions in California and the Pacific coast.

Airport Survey Planned

A nationwide survey of municipal and commercial airports has been undertaken by the aeronautics branch of the Department of Commerce to determine the amount of the country's present investment in airports and anticipated expenditures in 1930 and 1931.

HUGE DIRIGIBLE TO BE READY IN JUNE

Will Be Largest Semi-Rigid Airship in the World.

Philadelphia.—The world's largest semi-rigid dirigible, parts for which are being built at the naval aircraft factories here and at Akron, Ohio, will be completed in June. The airship, to be known as the K-1, will be used by the navy in training personnel to man the two huge dirigibles, ZRS-4 and ZRS-5, that are being built for the navy under contract.

The bag of the K-1 will be 220 feet long and 54 feet in maximum diameter with a gas capacity of 30,000 cubic feet. It will be the first dirigible in this country to use blau gas for fuel.

The bag will be filled with helium, entirely surrounded by the ballochettes arranged in groups of three forward and three aft. The central ballochette of each group will hold blau gas and the outside ones air. Two fabric partitions will separate the groups of ballochettes and the control car will be hung from these.

250 Questions Compiled for Government Pilots

Washington.—Two hundred and fifty questions which indicate the general scope of the required examinations for the various grades of Department of Commerce pilots' licenses have been compiled by the aeronautics branch. It is announced by Gilbert G. Ludwig, director of air regulation.

"The questions," Ludwig said, "clearly show that the requirements for a Department of Commerce pilots' license call for a broad knowledge of the subject of civil aeronautics, including the air commerce regulations, the air traffic rules, airplanes, airplane engines, meteorology and navigation. In addition to the written examination applicants are required to pass the necessary physical and practical flying tests.

"If an applicant cannot pass the written examination, even though he has learned to fly under an unlicensed status, he is indeed working under a great handicap which may result disastrously."

Examples of the type of questions which applicants are required to answer to the satisfaction of the examining Department of Commerce inspectors include: May an unlicensed pilot in an unlicensed ship carry pay passengers from one state to another? Is it necessary for an airplane bearing an advertisement to be licensed if flown between states?

What is the minimum altitude in flying over a football game? May acrobatics be performed with passengers for hire? How do you recover from a tailspin and how do you tell when a ship is about to spin?

Capacity Loads Would Permit of Low Charges

Los Angeles.—If Western Air Express could depend on capacity loads in its new 32-passenger Fokkers, the first of which will arrive soon, a passenger tariff only 3 1/2 cents a mile could be charged, according to Harris M. Hanslue, president. "However, we are not expecting capacity loads," Mr. Hanslue said, "as a 60 per cent load is the maximum expected in any transportation industry and a 40 per cent load prevails in airplane travel. We are hoping for about 50 per cent loads, which would make a 7-cent rate possible. The cost of airplane travel in the future will be determined by public patronage."

SUMMER MINERALS NEEDED BY COWS

Calcium, Phosphorus Store Up Energy for Winter.

To insure healthy, robust animals, able to produce the milk needed this coming winter, Dr. L. A. Maynard of the Cornell University agricultural experiment station says that cows must have plenty of calcium and phosphorus during the summer. The usual summer ration of pasture and grain, he says, does not contain enough of these elements. Further, experiments show that cows will make better use of mineral supplements during the pasture season than at other times. The liberal feeding of minerals now will not only provide for current needs but will also enable the animal to store up reserves for the period when their assimilation of food is more difficult.

A mixture of equal parts of steam bone meal, finely ground limestone and salt, or a mixture of two parts of the bone meal and one part of salt makes a good mineral supplement. The simplest way is to place one of these mixtures in a box in the barnyard where the cows can eat it at will. Some sort of a cover should be built over the box to protect it from rain. It is a good thing to give the cows access to one of these mixtures even when the grain mixture contains minerals, because the grain fed during the summer may not contain enough. A better way to feed the minerals, but one that takes more time, is to mix three to four ounces of the mixture with one of the grain feedings each day. All animals, whether dry or milking, should be fed the extra minerals.

Aside from common salt, calcium and phosphorus are the only minerals that are needed as a mineral supplement. The purchase of a complex mineral mixture containing laxatives and tonics is a waste of money, says Doctor Maynard.

Water Materially Helps Maintain Flow of Milk

Water is as necessary to life as food, but how rarely is it given adequate attention, particularly in the summer. To maintain the summer milk flow at the highest pitch a liberal supply of pure water is needed. No matter how good the pastures, the cows cannot produce well if they are deprived of water. For both digestion and assimilation of food, water is necessary. It regulates the temperature of the body, and provides for the water content of the milk, which is more than 80 per cent by weight of its volume. Experience has proved that cows in milk need approximately three pounds of water for every pound of milk produced. Very heavy producers then may need from ten to fifteen gallons in 24 hours. During summer many herds are not supplied with enough water to meet this need. If the water is not before the cows all the time, they should have access to it at least twice a day, preferably three times during the hot weather. If this is done there will not be a falling off in the milk supply.

Poor Market for Dairy Products Is Advantage

It is generally conceded that a poor market for dairy products works to the advantage of the efficient dairy farmer because many of those producing at a margin are bound to go under in the crash of butterfat prices. Therefore the efficiency with which a farmer feeds determines whether he will remain among those producing at a profit. Herein lies the one great hope of the producer of dairy products, for in the narrowing of his field of competition, low prices at the same time provide for under-production and a subsequent rise in prices.

Dairy Hints

A good pasture increases the "content" in contented cows.

Soy beans are an excellent feed for dairy cows. They take the place of linseed meal or cottonseed meal.

So long as the heifer is on excellent white clover and blue grass pasture it will not be necessary to feed her grain.

About 87 per cent of milk is water. For plenty of milk, don't forget to give the cow all the water she cares to drink.

Cows should be kept in well lighted, well ventilated, clean barns. Flies can be kept out by hanging burlap over the windows and doors.

Feed which would taint the milk should not be given immediately before or during the process of milking.

The partly covered top pail, in some forms, is preferable to the open top. Pails and other dairy utensils should be of the seamless type, or flushed with tin to cover up the seams.

THE STORY

On a pleasure trip in eastern waters, Philip Amory, English World War veteran, now a trader on the island of Papua, New Guinea, plunges overboard to save the life of a musical comedy actress, known as "Gin-Sling."

CHAPTER IV—Continued

The more I thought of it all, the surer I was that Mrs. Brownrigg, before her death, had told somebody about Tatata; and in order to do that, she must have got it out of Grace. Lord knows, it was sensational enough.

Well then! what then! I knew what then. The chain of logic was too clear to miss. It looked as if fortune had delivered Richard Fanshaw into my hands; as if opportunity were there, ready and waiting, for very satisfying revenge.

Minds are illogical; they make small trouble about swallowing camels. Then talk at something less than a sparrow. I don't know why I, Phil Amory, black sheep, who had just been listening to a private telegram, and planning to act on knowledge thus discreetly acquired, should have decided, suddenly and irrevocably, that I would not do the thing I had been tempted to do, in the matter of Jinny and her lover.

"It's a dirty trick," I said to myself, and shook the thought away. Jinny was not to be seen when I got back to the hotel. I knew she would be looking for me, later on. I knew I should find her at my corner of the veranda, when the great moon of Torres began to sail like a golden galleon among the palm tree tops, and the straits and islands were veiled in faty blue.

I cannot tell how tiresome, maddening, I found the resultant confinement and delay. It was worst towards the end of the third wretched week, for then, I had calculated a reply by letter might reach me, from Laurier Downs. None did, nor was there any telegram. The silence remained unbroken.

CHAPTER V

I have never had a harder task in any life, than the framing of that telegram. To say enough, and not too much—to influence Pia's unknown father, by a dozen words wired across a continent, so that he should exert himself to break, or postpone, his daughter's marriage—to show authority for what I counseled, and at the same time conceal the vivid personal interest that had prompted the sending of the message—this I found, in its entirety, more than I could manage. There was no doing the thing well; to do it somehow, anyhow, was all that I could expect.

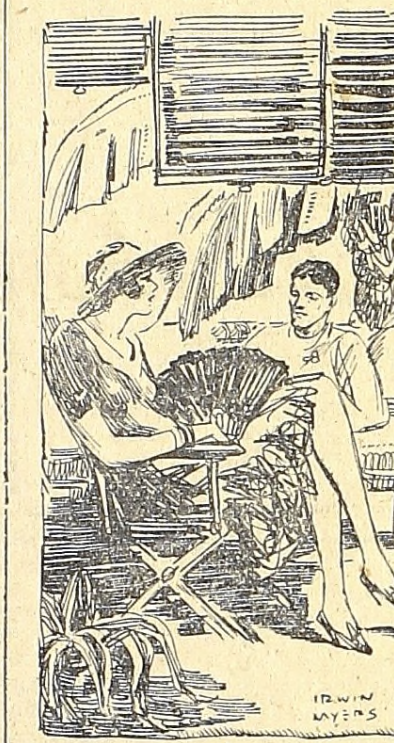

This was what I produced, in the end:

"Joseph Laurier, "Laurier Downs Station, "New South Wales:

"Serious reasons existing against Farshaw marriage most strongly advise awaiting mail for necessary inquiries cannot sufficiently emphasize necessity delay."

And I signed my name, my insignificant, unknown name, in full—"Philip Cosgrove Amory." Laurier would not know Philip Cosgrove Amory from Adam, but that was perhaps something to the good—all things considered. He would be bound in common prudence to wait the arrival of my letter before giving judgment on the matter. I had done the best I could with the letter; it contained a plain statement of the occurrences on Lota Island, mentioned the fact of my secretary had used what he was pleased to call his judgment, and decided apparently, that he was less likely to risk losing his billet by sending my extraordinary and unconvincing wire under cover, than by hanging the Lauriers' dirty linen out over the cable lines of the world.

That She Had Not Come for the Sole Purpose of Looking at Black Sheep, I Knew as Well as If She Had Told Me.

level, if only I might be sure that no one else would take my place. I pictured her remaining an eternal maiden, never of course, developing into an old maid, for my sake, and was quite well pleased.

"Well, I sailed back to Thursday Island, very late, and all in the dark. And I suppose I was tired, after the long day and its many emotions. I had a theory that I never was tired; it seemed to me a disgraceful condition, fit only for dotards of forty, so I never allowed that it had touched, or could touch, myself. But the laws of nature took no heed of my feelings, and that night, they had their revenge, I fell half asleep at the tiller, rammed the jetty, and was tumbled down into the hold, before my boy could catch me. He picked me up instantly, but the careless moment had done its work. I had a badly cut head and concussion of the brain; and it was my unlucky fate, in consequence, to spend the next three weeks in Thursday Island hospital.

I cannot tell how tiresome, maddening, I found the resultant confinement and delay. It was worst towards the end of the third wretched week, for then, I had calculated a reply by letter might reach me, from Laurier Downs. None did, nor was there any telegram. The silence remained unbroken.

Afterward I heard what had happened, and—as one always does—wondered why I couldn't have guessed it at the time. Nobody had died, as I frantically assumed. Nobody had treated me with silent contempt. Nothing had fallen into the hands of Fanshaw, or Spicer—though I had guessed at all these solutions of the mystery. It was simply that Joseph Laurier was in England, not at home; and that my letter, marked "Private," and carefully sealed, had of course been sent on after him, instead of being opened by his secretary. The telegram had also been posted on; over that, the

Proves Authenticity of Map Drawn by Columbus

A recent lecture at the Seville exhibition by the French expert, Charles de la Ronciere, gave the result of modern investigations regarding some ancient cartographers. St. Louis, sailing on the crusade to Tunis in 1270, studied a marine chart made by Genoese. But the Majorcan mapmakers were the more famous.

On Angelino Dulcert's planisphere, made in 1375, is correctly marked the desert town of Ouatana, in Morocco, where the French troops were the first Europeans to enter in 910. Timbuctoo, first visited by a white man in 1293, is correctly sited on a Catalan map made in the fourteenth century. The Genoese, Majorcan and Catalan geographers were in touch with Henry

THE MONOPOLIZER OF THEIR TIME

WHEN Gladys Harmon Cameron wrote that she couldn't stand being buried alive any longer, but was coming home for the summer, there was something like an outburst on the part of her younger sister, Elsie.

"I never could see why she wanted to marry Ranny Cameron, anyhow, if she couldn't be contented with him in his wilderness. I'll bet if she keeps up that mournful tune all the time the wilderness isn't much of a paradise to Ranny, either."

"Home Friday or Saturday. Love to all," ended Gladys' letter. "There's Gladys for you," went on Elsie. "Now we'll have to meet all the city trains on both those days, and keep meals hot and everybody stirred up."

"Why, Elsie," reproved Mrs. Harmon gently. "Anyone would think that you weren't happy to have Gladys home for a visit."

"Of course she will want to visit with her old friends. And you must remember that Richard was one of them."

"By the end of the next day everybody in town knew that Mrs. Ranny Cameron was coming home to spend the summer."

At last Friday arrived. Mr. Harmon, having crammed an early breakfast, met the morning train. The rest of the family, delaying to eat with the traveler awaited his telephone message. The train was a half hour late, but Gladys was not on it.

"I know all about it. I know," I said getting angry, "a d—n sight more than Fanshaw knows."

"Sir Richard's off, anyhow," she remarked. "He won't be more than a week or two getting things together and starting. That's the name of the place, what I told you. And whisper—I'll tell you what he's after—"

He has swung on the clothesline until he broke it and fallen and scratched his face. He has taken a hoe and shovel from the back of the place and left them by the side of the front door.

He has removed the back wheels and one pedal from his tricycle and lost the clinch pins. He has ransacked the garret looking for things to dress up in. He has played with the ink, which he has been warned never to do, and splattered it over his blouse and the blotting pad.

He has tried to shave with one of father's old safety razor blades and cut his lip. He has gone into the closet where the box of candy was hidden and eaten six pieces, which will ruin his appetite for supper. He has wandered off once during the afternoon to the main road, where he was in jeopardy of life and limb, and has been rescued by a neighbor.

He has run about outside without his coat and left his sweater on in the house, so that he is sniffing. He has explored the coal bin in the cellar with disastrous effect to his pants. He has rummaged through mother's bureau drawer looking for a handkerchief and left things in a terrible state. He has licked the mucilage off a half dozen stamps. He has raided little Mary's room and broken her bottle of perfume on the carpet.

He has played with soap and water in the bathroom and soaked the front of his blouse. He has pulled a window shade down so far that it has stayed down. He has broken one of the long candles on the dining room sideboard. He has been impudent to the cook and refused to mind her.

What can be done with such a boy? Where is his mother? Oh, she will be back before long, and she will know exactly what to do! For she has been spending the afternoon in attendance upon a child psychology class.—Baltimore Sun.

Mount Vernon "Guest Chambers" Gone

Washington.—Never again will the bedroom where George Washington slept be occupied by an ordinary individual. The Mount Vernon Ladies' association, a group of women from the 48 states who control and manage the Washington mansion, 18 miles south of the National Capital, have just finished an improvement at this historic place which means that the home of George Washington henceforth will be sacred from modern occupancy.

WATER CHAMPION

A. Schwartz, captain of the Northwestern university swimmers, who won the 50, 100 and 220-yard free style events at the National Collegiate Athletic association swimming championships at the Harvard pool recently. He is the first to win three individual events in a single title meet since the events were inaugurated seven years ago.

ished an improvement at this historic place which means that the home of George Washington henceforth will be sacred from modern occupancy.

Since it was taken over by this group of women, restored and opened to the public, it has been occupied only three days of each year. That was when the Mount Vernon ladies came in May for their annual inspection visit. Then the mansion was closed to the public and at night the ladies slept in the historic Washington bedrooms. Now this will be a thing of the past.

Workers are putting finishing touches on a handsome new building within the limits of Mount Vernon, which will be occupied by members of the Mount Vernon staff who live there, and has sufficient space so that when the ladies make their annual inspection visit they can sleep in the new building instead of in the mansion itself.

The new building is a low, rambling structure, copying the original architecture as closely as possible. It has strictly up to date modern features, however, including a three car garage and all necessary plumbing and bathroom equipment. It will fit into the landscape so that the average tourist visiting Mount Vernon will hardly be able to distinguish it from the original buildings.

The number of tourists visiting

Mount Vernon is increasing in number from year to year, until now the historic estate nets an income from admission fees of more than $150,000 annually. No other historic spot in or near the Capital has an equal drawing power. Last year the total number of visitors was more than 600,000.

Twenty-five cents is the price of admission, and the mansion is open six days a week. A bill providing for its being taken over by the government is now pending in congress, and though this legislation will meet considerable opposition, there is a possibility of passage.

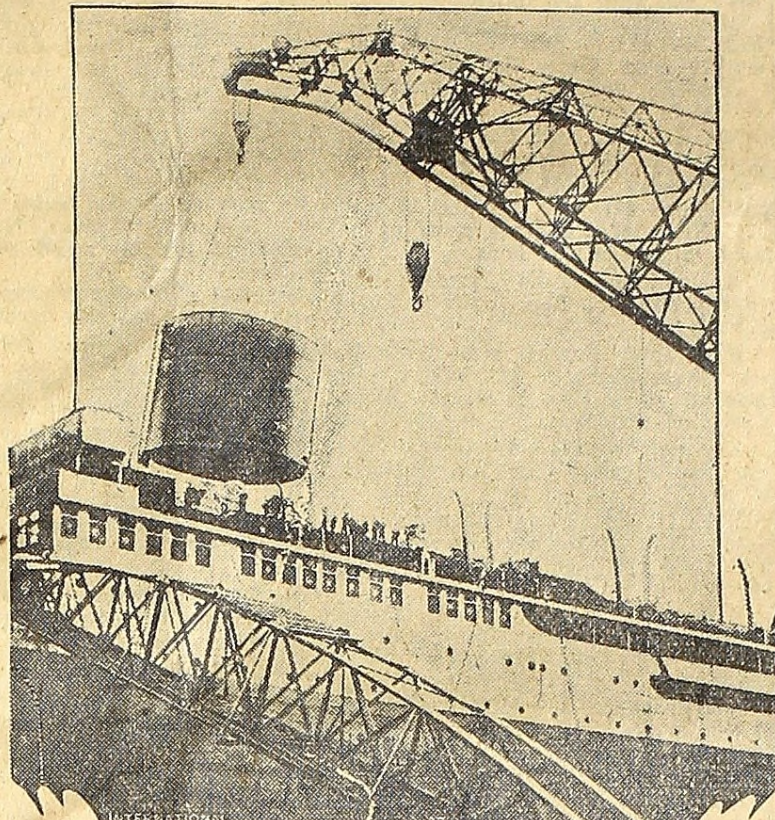

Operated by the government, the admission charge undoubtedly would be abolished. Only one government building in Washington has such a charge—the Lincoln museum, which is housed in the dwelling where Lincoln died.

The admission fee there is necessary because the house is not government owned.

Plimssol's Good Work

"Plimssol's mark" is a line painted on the side of British ships to prevent overloading, the limit of submergence being indicated by the line. Legislation providing for the mark was secured by Samuel Plimssol, called the "sailor's friend."

Three Superlatives Combined

This photograph, taken at Belfast, shows the largest steamship funnel being swung aboard the largest British ship by the largest floating crane. The vessel is the motor ship Britannic, 27,000 tons register, which will enter the New York-Boston-Liverpool service in June.

Fifth Pair of Twins Welcomed

Council Bluffs, Iowa.—To most fathers the arrival of a pair of twins comes as a shock, but Andrew Koger has become inured and only slightly when informed his wife had given birth to their fifth pair.

Pride shone from his glance as he announced: "They told us before there were several families with four sets of twins. Now it's a cinch we've got them beat."

Married in 1905, Mr. and Mrs. Koger half expected twins when they learned their first baby was coming, for there were twins in both branches of the family.

They were disappointed the first time, however, when Orren, now twenty-four, appeared. High hopes faded three years later when Ellery was born and almost disappeared two years later, when Bessie made her appearance.

Then hope flared again and was rewarded with the appearance of Clyde and Claude in 1913. Abbie and Addie followed in 1915, and Floyd and Lloyd came in 1920.

Said Andrew to his wife, as she fed the latest arrivals:

"I told you so. There's twins and twins on both sides. There'll be more. You wait and see."

Two years passed before Jean and Jeannette showed up, and the parents named them and sought more alliterative names for use in case Andrew's prediction was fulfilled in greater portion.

Jack, now five, interrupted their search, and they began to believe the twins had ended, but last year hope was renewed.

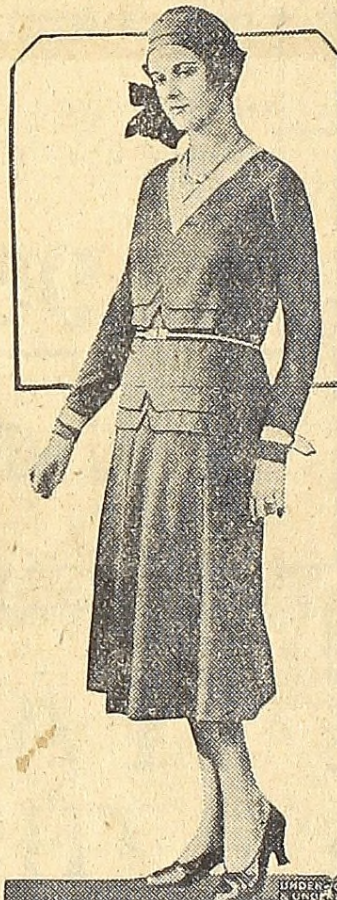

Came 1930, and with it Norma Jean and Donald Dean.

Now Koger, who is forty-eight, rummages as he works for the Union Pacific transfer in Council Bluffs, and his wife, forty-two, wonders as she works about the house, for more alliterative names may be needed.

"You never can tell; it may be the will of God; if more come, they will be taken care of and they will be welcome," Koger explained.

And little Jack, who, his father says, "by right should have been a twin," wonders and asks why people say "he's a single," as though that was something of which he should be ashamed.

West Still Has Cattle Rustlers to Bother It

Phoenix, Ariz.—The "wild and woolly West" of the cowboy movies is not decadent.

Arizona cattle rustlers stole 30,000 head of cattle, valued at $1,500,000, last year, according to an estimate by Hoyt Medler, secretary of the live stock sanitary board.

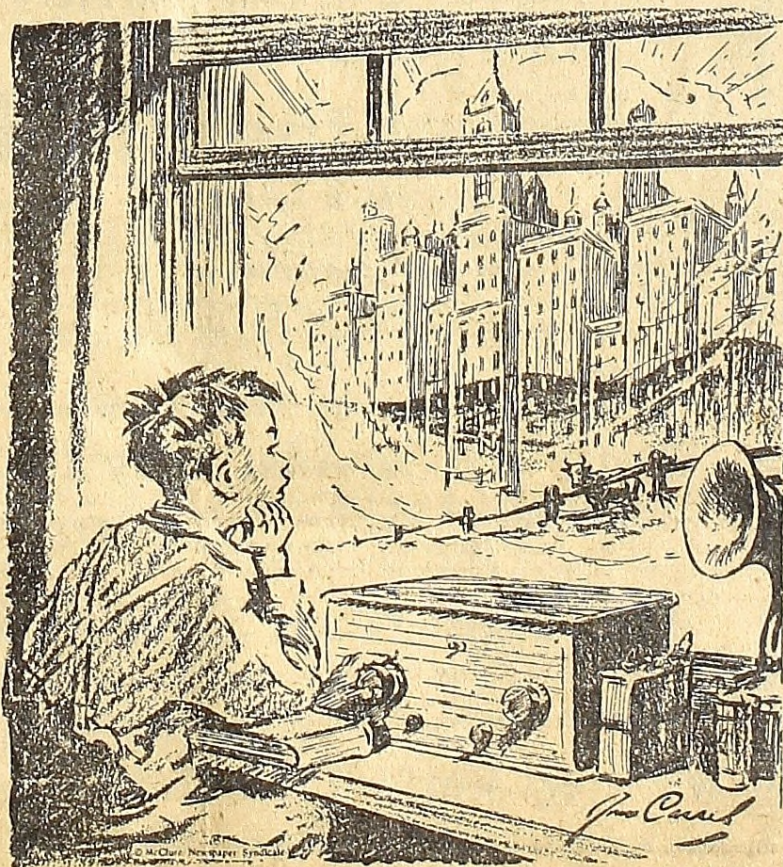

"There is more rustling going on in this state now than at any time in history," Medler declared, explaining that many Arizona bootleggers rustle cattle as a side line.

readings, however, and Jacques took the initiative to learn more. Mrs. Rietze cannot explain her son's unusual acumen and is fearful that he may become "not enough like other boys."

However, when attempts are made to divert his mind to other subjects his day is spoiled, his mother declares.

A month ago Jacques was ill. Noticing the distress of his mother, he calmly assured her, "Don't worry, mother. Christ will cure me."

Getting Distance

Small Boy Keen Biblical Student

Cincinnati.—If some person were to approach five-year-old Jacques D. Rietze and maternally hiss, "It's 'itty boy 'appy?' she'd probably receive some such amazing reply:

"Exceedingly, madam. Playing with a miniature locomotive affords me great pleasure."

If the minister should walk into the Rietze home and query of Jacques, "What was the greatest factor contributing to the defeat of the Ephraimites at the Jordan?" the boy likely would reply in his serious way: "They did not know their pronunciation." Since he was four Jacques has been studying the Bible. He has learned more of its contents in that time, perhaps, than the average individual learns in a lifetime.

He knows and can furnish identities of Nebuchadnezzar, Belshazzar, not to mention the more public characters of Moses, Noah, and Abraham. He can deliver a sermon, quote scripture, and define "metaphysics," as well as "ecclesiastic."

His one handicap is speech. So zealous is he to impart his knowledge of religious subjects to listeners that the words fairly tumble out of his mouth. Consequently, he is rather difficult to understand in speech, as well as subject.

Like normal boys of his age, he delights with his toys, but even at play he mumbles Biblical quotations to himself. Once a passage is read him he never forgets and can repeat it verbatim.

His mother first acquainted him with the Bible. A few preliminary as often and as regularly as we do, and over so long a period, we have not developed any more skill and fitness than we have done. When an intelligent person practices any process three times a day—not to speak of the extra meals thrown in between—over a period of fifteen or forty or a hundred years or so, one might reasonably expect that the thing would be done with some nicety and artistic finish. Considering the practice we have had, most of us eat pretty crudely; we have not gotten far removed from the animals which eat merely to satisfy hunger.

THE ART OF EATING

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

If I had my way I should eliminate eating entirely. It seems to me a pure waste of time to spend a half hour or more filling oneself with food, only to repeat the process twice again before the day is ended. Not that I do not enjoy eating; quite the contrary, but there are so many other things I should better enjoy if it were merely a matter of choice with me.

Perhaps before long some ingenious chemist will devise a serum or a capsule small enough to carry in the vest pocket to give one the necessary concentrated nourishment, and all we shall need to do is to swallow one of these and be fixed for the day.

But as things are now, eating is, of course, a necessary evil. We must eat in order to live and to be able to do the other things we enjoy doing, so that we might as well make the best of it. The thing that has always surprised me is the fact that eating merely a matter of choice with me. Perhaps before long some ingenious chemist will devise a serum or a capsule small enough to carry in the vest pocket to give one the necessary concentrated nourishment, and all we shall need to do is to swallow one of these and be fixed for the day.

When BABIES are upset

Baby ill and ailments seem twice as serious at night. A sudden cry may mean colic. Or a sudden attack of diarrhea—a condition it is always important to check quickly. How would you meet this emergency—tonight? Have you a bottle of Castoria ready? There is nothing that can take the place of this harmless but effective remedy for children; nothing that acts quite the same, or has quite the same comforting effect on them.

For the protection of your wee one—for your own peace of mind—keep this old, reliable preparation always on hand. But don't keep it just for emergencies; let it be an everyday aid. Its gentle influence will ease and soothe the infant who cannot sleep. Its mild regulation will help an older child whose tongue is coated because of sluggish bowels. All druggists have Castoria; the genuine bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

There are almost 600 different kinds of parrots. Water-spouts are tornadoes that occur at sea or over big lakes.

Old and young can take this family laxative; free trial bottle!

The next time you or the children need a laxative, try this famous doctor's prescription which aids the bowels without doing any harm. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, containing pure senna and laxative herbs, is effective in a gentle and helpful way. Its action is thorough, but it never weakens the bowels. It stimulates muscular action and is thus actually good for the system. So remember Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin when coated tongue, fetid breath, headaches, nausea, jaded appetite or biliousness tells the need of a thorough cleansing. Druggists keep it in big bottles, or write Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, Monticello, Ill., for a free trial bottle.

Defining Boundaries

To beat the bounds means to trace out by scambulation the bounds of a parish by sticking with a rod certain points in passing by way of calling to witness. This is an old custom still kept up in many English parishes by going around the boundaries on Holy Thursday, or Ascension day. In Scotland beating the bounds is called riding the marches.

THE TIME to eat a popover is when it has just popped over. When it has reached its climax, and is puffed and crisp. Listen to it crackle when you break it apart for butter.

And the time to eat vegetables is when they've just been picked. They will never be so fresh again. The peas will never be so firm, knuckled tight in their pods... nor the corn so glistening and sweet under its silk. Shell the peas, husk the corn, hustle them into the pot.
