Mrs. Ronald Curry entertained eight guests last Friday night at a lovely six o'clock dinner and linen shower in honor of Miss Neva Butler, bride elect. First prize was won by Miss Butler, second, Mildred Barkman. Miss Butler received some very pretty linens.

Friends of Phillip Grise will be sorry to learn of his death on November 12 at Chicago. He was born in Montreal in 1865, and came with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Odell Grise, to Tawas in 1868. He has been employed with the Western Union Telegraph company 48 years, the past 46 years stationed in Chicago. He is survived by Mrs. Ida Grise and two sons, Gilbert of Chicago and Harold Grise of Detroit, five brothers, Wilfred, Charles, Edward, Eli and Adolphus, and one sister, Miss Elizabeth Grise of this city. The funeral was held at the St. Edwards church in Chicago on Saturday.

WRITES FROM SOVIETLAND

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. McCormick received an interesting letter from T. A. Hoffmeyer, who is located at Kuznetskstroy, Siberia. Mr. Hoffmeyer engineered the construction of the U. S. Gypsum company dock at Alabaster and is well known here. The following is the text of the letter:

Kuznetsk, Siberia, Oct. 5, 1930 Dear Clark and Capitola:

Little do we know of our future and where Providence may take us. Who could have ever guessed that I would be in far away Siberia when I last bid you good-bye and left Tawas for Breckenridge?

You perhaps remember my telling about Mr. McIvor at Chicago asking me about taking a job in Russia. It did in no way appeal to me then and the folks at home thought it terrible to even think of such a thing. When I received a telegram from Mr. Baer saying he would like me to go to Russia with him to put up a steel mill, it put a different light on the subject.

Ge, folks! but I was terribly sorry I didn't get to see you before I left, but the time was so short. It kept me stepping to get my clothes all bought and trunks packed with sufficient equipment to last for three years. Rarely a day passes but I think of you and of the many good times we have had together.

Kuznetsk is located in the south central part of Siberia, about 2200 miles inland from Vladivostok, which is on the Japan Sea. It is about 150 miles northeast of the Chinese Mongol border line in the foothills of the Altai Mountains on the Tomi river and in what is known as the Great Kuznetsk basin.

The scenery is exceptionally beautiful. On clear days we can see a whole range of snow-capped mountains. The pastures and meadows of the peasant farmers are of rich, green color, and still abound with flowers in all colors.

Our living quarters are very comfortable and truly modern in every respect. The food has been of the best. Of course, I don't mean to compare it with what we ate at your place, but it is all equal to the food and living quarters we had at Mikado.

TAWAS CITY SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council

High School

Wm. Neumann, a former student of this high school, visited us Wednesday afternoon.

The Thanksgiving vacation resulted in general exodus of the teachers to their respective homes about the state.

The Christmas seal sale of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association is conducted this year in Tawas City by the local public school children. The headquarters at Lansing informs us that seals can be obtained from no other source. This sale is the only means by which this worthy organization obtains money. The room obtaining the most sales will be awarded a prize. Encourage the children and assist the worthy cause by purchasing a few seals.

Report cards were given out in all departments this week. Those who have received no grade lower than a B and are therefore placed on the Honor Roll are as follows: Seniors, Irwin Schlechte, Marcella Low, Delta Leslie, Alvera Goedeck; Sophomores, Nathan Lincoln; Freshmen, Ernest Wegner, Arnold McLean, Arlene Leslie.

The students who have a perfect attendance record for the first three months are: Viola Burtzloff, Beatrice Carroll, Iva Carroll, Ruth Cholger, Herbert Cholger, Rose DePotty, Victor Farwell, Evelyn Frank, Robert Hamilton, Lowell Hatfield, Arnold Hoshbach, Martin Kasichke, Sylvia Koskie, Mary Krumm, Delta Leslie, William Leslie, Jr., Arnold McLean, Elsie Mueller, Jean Myles, Lulu Robinson, Irwin Schlechte, Clair Thompson, Dorothy Ulman, Rose Watts, Vance Webb, Ernest Wegner, Irvin Wegner, Arthur Wendt, and Herbert Zollweg.

CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

East Tawas

Next Sunday, November 30th, is St. Andrews Day. For years the Brotherhood of St. Andrew has invited all the men and boys of the Episcopal church to a corporate communion on this day, requesting them to bring the rest of the family with them.

This year, this day marks the climax of the "Faith and Youth" program. There are to be many regional services. For example, in Michigan there is to be one in Detroit at the Cathedral with Dean O'Farrell as preacher. One thousand and older boys and men are expected there, besides the rest of the congregation. At Jackson there will be another regional service, with Bishop Page as preacher. Another regional service is to be held in Christ Church, East Tawas, with Archdeacon Haggren as preacher. Representatives in this region are expected to be present at the great corporate communion service next Sunday morning at 10:30. Following the service, dinner will be served in the Guild hall.

TAWAS CITY HOME ECONOMIC GROUP MEETS

The third meeting of Tawas City home economics series was held at the home of Mrs. Mae Dease. The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. Dease, and the business session taken up. Members were asked to decide at this meeting what course they would take up for next year.

The meeting was then in charge of Mrs. Grace Murray, project leader, who brought to us an interesting lesson on calories. Each member present was asked to figure how many calories her body consumed each day and how many she ate at each meal. Balanced meals were arranged with cut-outs from textbook. A true and false statement test was given from McCallum.

The last meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, December 16.

BUILD GIANT ZEPPELIN FOR WRECK IN "MADAM SATAN"

Thrills, color, clever dancing, tuneful songs, and an absorbing story of an affectionate husband and a too-perfect wife make Cecil B. De Mille's "Madam Satan," which opens at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, Sunday and Monday, an attraction of great entertainment merit.

It is De Mille's second MGM picture, and his first with music. The story concerns the marital differences of Bob and Angela Brooks, a masked ball aboard a Zeppelin at which an exotic and mysterious "Madam Satan" appears, the mid-air crash-up of the airship, the descent of the hundreds of guests via parachute—all linked together with songs by Herbert Stothart and Cliff Ford Gray; Jack O'Connell, Roy Janis; and the dance creations of Leroy Prinz, borrowed from Earl Carroll's "Vanities."

The principals are Reginald Deney, who sings with power and force; Kay Johnston, a perfect "Madam Satan"; Roland Young as Denny's blundering friend; and "Trixie," ex of the vaudeville stage, the modern and gold-digging "other woman." It has all the exotic feel of a typical Cecil B. De Mille production.

Don't miss "Madam Satan."

CIVIL WAR VETERAN DIES

The community was saddened by the loss of one of its most highly respected and greatly loved residents, Silas Ross, who passed away early Tuesday morning, November 25, after a lingering illness of several years. He was 82 years, seven months and seven days old at the time of his death.

Mr. Ross was born April 18, 1848 in Auglaize county, Ohio. He received his education in the public schools in Ohio. At the early age of fifteen he enlisted for service in the Civil War, becoming a member at Lima, Ohio, in 1863 of Company D, 54 Ohio Volunteer Infantry, Colonel Moore's regiment and Captain Carlisle's Company. He was first under fire at Larkinsville, Alabama, was with Sherman in his march to the sea, and participated in the battles of Resaca, Big Stony, Brunt, Hickory, the siege of Atlanta, Savannah, Raleigh, and on to Washington, D. C. where he took part in the Grand Review. He was mustered out of service at Little Rock, Arkansas, and honorably discharged on the 24th of August, 1865, at Cincinnati, Ohio, having for twenty months defended the stary banner upon the southern battlefields. During his entire military career he was never absent from his regiment one day.

In 1873 Mr. Ross went to Indiana, making his home in LaPorte, Stark and St. Joseph counties. At Walkerton, Indiana, on April 4th, 1878, he was united in marriage to Martha E. Woodburne. To this union were born four children, Lewis Ross of Whittemore, Michigan, Mrs. Walter Plumbeck, Mrs. Elmer Whitesell, Mrs. Roy Peterson, all of South Bend, Indiana.

In 1914 he moved to Whittemore, Michigan, where he has since resided. He was an active church worker in the Whittemore M. E. church and made glad all who knew him by his pleasant words and cheery smile.

A short service was held at the Ross home early Wednesday morning. Rev. Smith, pastor of the Whittemore M. E. church, officiating. He was then taken to South Bend for burial.

He leaves to mourn, his wife, Martha E. Ross, four children, fourteen grandchildren, besides many other relatives and a host of friends.

The entire community extends its sympathy to the bereaved family.

WILL HOLD ANNUAL MEETING IN EVENING

The annual meeting of the Iosco County Agricultural Society will be held at the Court House, December 8th, at 8:00 p. m. All members interested should attend.

Fred C. Lattier, Secretary.

FAMILY WILL SECURE "GRANDEUR" PICTURES

The Family Theatre, East Tawas, will be closed Thursday and Friday, December 4 and 5. Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Berube are leaving for Detroit and Windsor to make arrangements for forthcoming "Grandeur" pictures, which are the coming new motion picture craze, for the Family Theatre. Our patrons for something big, see a drunk, brings the usual laughs. Norman Foster is good as the ambitious newspaper sports writer who has hopes to do big things but fails to do so until he realizes past mistakes.

Katherine Brush wrote this story about a feminine columnist on a newspaper and her husband who is a sports writer. They get into difficulties and part, after which the girl drinks some of the liquor her husband has left, and she is blinded. This brings the sports writer to his senses and he completes the book he has been trying to write; it's a success and the two are reunited.

To the Citizens and Taxpayers of Tawas City:

In last week's issue of the Tawas Herald, John Myles, secretary of the Board of Education of Tawas City, had an article published which he said was not a personal attack on anyone but which to me seemed rather personal.

He stated that he had interviewed the City Council to see about getting some fire protection at the high school building, and that certain promises were given him which have never been done. Myles states that a pipe was promised to be laid from the river and that $1000 was appropriated for this purpose. I fail to recall of Myles' interviewing the council on any such subject, and as for the appropriation of $1000 for this purpose, this amount was added to the contingent fund and there has been spent about $265 of it on the intake pipe at the foot of Second street and at the school house.

The need for fire protection at this place has been felt by the council for some time, and a small dam was built in Dead creek near the school a year ago and which has been improved this year by placing a suction pipe to the bank so water could be gotten easily. The laying of a pipe from the river toward the school has been talked of and considered by the council, but as the project is quite an undertaking and would cost around $2000 we have felt that the matter should be gone into more thoroughly before a start was made.

Myles says the sewer from the bay north on Oak street is wholly unnecessary as the railroad company put one in on that street this summer. This statement is false, as the railroad company's drain is all on their own land and was not intended for the benefit of the street.

Myles also said that I used the argument at our last meeting, at which he was not present, that I have been on the council for nine years and had never received anything. Myles was misinformed. I stated that I have been on the council for nine years and never had and was not now asking for anything for my personal benefit; that if the council deemed a drain on this street was not necessary, it was all O. K. with me. He also said Alderman Musolf was the only Alderman to stand for fire protection. I defy Myles or anyone to show when or where I stood against fire protection or where I have tried to use public money for my private benefit. Myles asks, What should a man on the council expect besides his salary? I ask, ought not a man on the council have the right to expect as much as any other taxpayer?

In the nine years I have been on the city council I can recall but three times when Myles interviewed the council on any city affairs. The first time he asked to have a drain laid on his street so that he could drain his basement, and this was done. The last time he asked to have his street graded. This also was done.

The city records show that Myles was mayor for the years 1919, 1920 and 1921. In 1919 a fire engine was purchased at a cost of $4,189.20. In 1920 it was sold for $1,500, at a loss of $2,689. The same year another pumper was purchased at a cost of $9,750, and at that time there were about four places in the city where water was available in case of fire. During the three years he was mayor, I fail to find where he improved this condition. There were some of us taxpayers who thought this squandering of public money was wholly unnecessary for if the council had gone into the matter more thoroughly at first they might have saved the city between $2500 and $3000, which would have helped to get adequate water supply at the school or some other place where it was so badly needed. Still we respected Myles and the council by keeping our mouths shut and felt they were acting to the best of their ability, which is all any one can do.

And now I am going to ask the good people of this city to pray, not for an open winter, because Myles has already asked you to do that, but to pray for men, strong men who dare to speak the truth.

Ernest B. Schreiber, Alderman, First Ward Tawas City, Michigan.

JESSE C. HODDER POST WILL HOLD ITS ANNUAL VENISON DINNER MONDAY

The annual venison dinner of Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion, will be held next Monday evening at seven o'clock. The venison is being furnished by Junior Keiser, 12 year old hunter, who was fortunate in getting a fine buck.

All ex-service men are invited to be present. After the dinner a bill which will be introduced by Congressman Clarence J. McLeod when congress meets December 1 will be discussed. This bill would authorize the payment of the Veterans Compensation Certificates.

SCHANBECK—BOOMER

Miss Sybil Schanbeck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Schanbeck of East Tawas, and Jas. Boomer were quietly married at 12 o'clock Thanksgiving Day at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frank Metcalf.

The bride was attired in white crepe and carried white and yellow chrysanthemums. The young couple were attended by the bride's brother and sister, Edward and Miss Phyllis Schanbeck.

A wedding dinner was served to the guests at 2 o'clock. They left Friday morning for a week's motor trip to Jackson, Pontiac and Detroit. They will make their home in Michigan Center, where Mr. Boomer has recently built a home. Congratulations and best wishes.

IOSCO CHURCH SCHOOLS

The following young men are attending the Older Boys' Conference at Bay City this week: From Alabaster, Wm. Roiter; from Hemlock Road, Ralph Burt; from Tawas City, Irwin Schlechte, Junior Mark, Charles and Harold Colby; from East Tawas, Blaine Christensen, Lloyd McKay, Jr., Walter Klump, Delois Durant, Stanley Rescoe, Alfred Gurdley; also three boys from Oscoda. Rev. Metcalf accompanies the young men.

Seven new students have entered the High School Bible Study class of East Tawas. The enrollment is now fifty.

The sacred drama, "The Challenge of the Cross," is to be presented at the Hemlock Road Baptist church in the near future.

Arrangements are being made for a class in Leadership Training to study the subject, "Pageantry and Dramatics in Religious Education." The first class session will meet on the first Saturday afternoon of January. Mrs. C. E. Edinger will act as instructor.

"YOUNG MAN OF MANHATTAN"

"Young Man of Manhattan," which comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, December 2 and 3, is a highly entertaining sophisticated drama in which all the players are given an opportunity to display their true talents. Claudette Colbert, so charming in "The Lady Ruggles," again displays her ability. Ruggles, again as a drunk, brings the usual laughs. Norman Foster is good as the ambitious newspaper sports writer who has hopes to do big things but fails to do so until he realizes past mistakes.

Katherine Brush wrote this story about a feminine columnist on a newspaper and her husband who is a sports writer. They get into difficulties and part, after which the girl drinks some of the liquor her husband has left, and she is blinded. This brings the sports writer to his senses and he completes the book he has been trying to write; it's a success and the two are reunited.

HISTORY'S MYSTERIES

Unsolved Riddles That Still Puzzle Authorities Here and Abroad

What Became of Nana Sahib?

THE cloud of mystery which surrounds this strange personage, leader of one of the bloodiest mutinies of history, is connected not only with his fate, but even with his origin, for the moving spirit of the Sepoy mutiny was said to have been the son of a Brahman whose real name was Dhundu Pant. But nothing authentic has ever been learned of his birth or of his early life before he was adopted by Kaji Roa, the childless ex-peshwa of Poona, whose estates, amounting to more than a million dollars, he inherited when he became a native prince at the death of his adopted father in 1851.

A half century ago the name of "Nana Sahib" was one known all over the civilized world—one that was generally regarded with terror and loathing. To the British nation and to the world in general he was a fiend incarnate, instigator of the murder of unarmed men and helpless women, torturer of the weak and instigator of countless outrages. But to several million East Indians he was a deliverer and a true patriot.

As mysterious as the birth of Nana Sahib was his withdrawal from the scene of European politics, in which he played such a conspicuous part during the years immediately preceding the Sepoy mutiny. The reason for the part he assumed in the Sepoy affair is to be found in the refusal of the British government to pay him the $450,000 which his adopted father had been receiving as a yearly pension. Angered at what he considered an invasion of his just rights and privileges, Nana Sahib dispatched a representative to London to present his claims, but all that this emissary was able to obtain for him was permission to retain the title of "prince" and to rule over the fortress town of Bithoor, near Cawnpore.

Then he began his game of treachery. Instead of sulking under the insult, he suddenly showed signs of having become thoroughly Anglicized. He missed no opportunity to air his knowledge of the English language and mingled as much as possible among the English society in the Indian garrison towns, carrying out his plans so cleverly that he completely deceived the British authorities, entirely quieting any suspicions which they may have had as to his loyalty.

Finally, however, the Sepoy mutiny broke in all its fury. Still Nana Sahib appeared to be loyal, keeping his leadership of the mutineers in Cawnpore a complete secret for the time being. Most of England's white regiments had been forced to leave India to participate in the Crimean war, leaving the country garrisoned chiefly by Sepoy or native troops. The religious fanaticism of these soldiers was so cleverly worked upon by Nana and other secret agents that they rose in a body against the British.

The women and children had been herded together in a house in Cawnpore, but when General Havelock, who had advanced from Allahabad, defeated the native troops in two engagements, the second of which was within eight miles of the city, Nana Sahib directed that the British non-combatants should be cast into a well, now marked with a monument in their memory. Battle after battle was fought with the white troops during the next few months, Nana's men being almost invariably defeated in open battle, but triumphant in the guerrilla style of warfare to which they were accustomed, while the crafty brain and heartless cruelty of the Indian leader made him a scourge to the British until the mutiny was finally stamped out.

England wreaked a terrible vengeance upon her Sepoy foes after they had been crushed, the native leaders being tied to the mouths of cannon and blown to bits, but Nana Sahib, the most treacherous of all, escaped, no one knew whither. Ultimately, he was driven beyond the British frontier into Nepal, where he may have perished in the jungle, though to this day his fate is unknown and it is possible that he lived for many years after the Sepoy mutiny in luxurious safety in some oriental kingdom which had little sympathy with British ideas or British dominion.

North Sea May Be Drained

Plans for the drainage of the North sea to add more land to Germany and to obtain deposits of coal and other minerals, have been made by German engineers. While the idea is considered technically correct, it would have to be approved by all the nations involved and would cost an enormous sum. Dams would have to be constructed across the straits of Dover and from Denmark to Scotland. Rivers now emptying into the North sea would have to be diverted.

Modern Minstrel Shows

Minstrel is a name introduced into England by the Normans, and which comprehended singers and performers of instrumental music, together with jugglers, dancers and other persons. The negro minstrel is a species of musical entertainment of a quaint and simple kind, which originated among the negroes of the South, United States, and was first made popular at public entertainments by E. P. Christy, the originator of the troupes of imitation negro musicians.

SLEEVELESS JACKET IN VOGUE; VELVET WRAPS FOR EVENING

FROM the practical standpoint, and from that of good style as well, one of the most welcome modes which makes its appearance among fall and winter fashion is the costume which tops a one-piece dress of smart bengberg and silk mixture with a sleeveless jacket of matching material.

A two-piece of this description is pictured herewith. The material of which it is made is one of its chief attractions. It is a gay deceiver, is this fabric of the new dull-luster bengberg interworked with spun silk in a brown and white jasper weave. And by that we mean that to look at this material one would never suspect that it was other than high-priced. In reality it is anything but expensive—just the sort that appeals to the home dressmaker or amateur seamstress who hesitates to "cut in to" costly fabric, lacking the confidence of a professional. Yet withal when the garment is finished your admiring neighbor will be wanting a sample of this good-looking material of which it is made so as to go and buy likewise.

Well, as we were saying, this sleeveless-jacket frock is practical in more ways than one. Its chief claim to service and utility is the fact that it tunes so readily to the rise and fall in temperature. Here's two ways in which it can be worn: Firstly, in the house without the jacket for perfect comfort. Secondly, slipping the jacket on, it becomes an ideal costume during the shopping tour or for strolls in the open, ere sun-laden autumn days shall have given way to wintry cold.

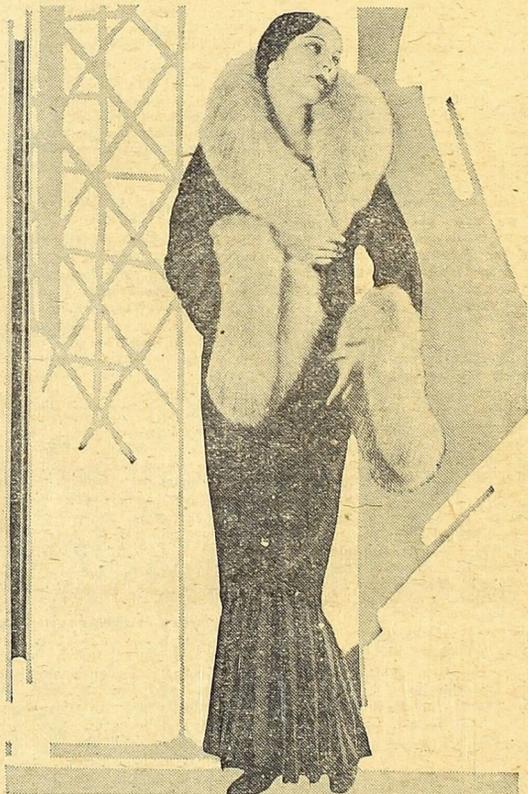

Another point in favor of this trig little costume is, that with the jacket fashion than at this immediate moment. Ever the most sophisticated thrilled at the sight of the magnificent white furred black velvet wraps which swept across the foyer in continuous procession at the premiere presentation of grand opera both in New York and Chicago. The elegance and dignity of these fur-laden velvet wraps is sensed in the luxurious model pictured.

This coat, which is fashioned of exquisite black transparent velvet, is draped in straight lines, its hemline sloping longer toward the back. It is a style which is particularly becoming to the tall slender woman. It is resplendently furred in white fox. Each graceful flowing sleeve boasts of a fox, while two skins comprise the collar.

When it comes to ermine which is easily the outstanding favorite in the evening mode, there is so much of the novel and the unusual in its manipu-on, as it is worn in the picture, it has every appearance of a smartly tailored suit such as any business woman would find wearable or that the school girl might covet going to and fro.

We would again call attention to the fact that this costume seen in the original is in brown and white—a very significant fact since latest reports from Paris are to the effect that the couture there are making feature of this color combination. The brown felt hat worn with a tweed like mixture is a "last word" message.

Evening Wraps. Wherever sumptuous wraps are wont to congregate during the formal evening hours, one sees black velvet and white fur playing a role which is nothing less than spectacular. Never has the time honored theme of black-and-white been more eloquently interpreted in the world of tion mere words fail of conveying its endless fascinations. To be seen in such arresting modes as a coat of shimmering, glistening black velvet cut in long princess lines topped with a capelet of snowy ermine which reaches to the waist at the back, with rounded corners at the front a graceful collar completing the picture.

Another fur fantasy, and one which youth especially adores, is the little bolero jacket of white ermine worn with the princess coat or gown of sheer velvet, the slim silhouette of which defines unbroken lines, thus accenting the elegance of the fabric.

Frequently the velvet coat of intricate seaming and beautifully modeled lines, with generously large flowing or softly shirred sleeves and a whimsical hemline of variable length, is superbly collared with lovely ermine.

TEMPTING TAPIOCA DISHES

In many dishes where cornstarch is used for thickening, tapioca may be substituted. Many object to cornstarch largely because it is not well cooked. Any starchy substance needs cooking to burst the starch cells and make it digestible.

The following is something new and worth trying. Cook one-third of a cupful of quick cooking tapioca with one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper and two cupfuls of scalded milk in a double boiler until the tapioca is clear. Pour into small deep pan and chill thoroughly. Unmold and cut into one-third inch slices. Fry thinly sliced bacon until crisp. Remove from the pan, dip the tapioca slices in flour and fry until a golden brown. This is served with the bacon.

Cranberry Relish.—Cook one-half cupful of tapioca with one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth cupful of raisins and one quart of cranberry juice and pulp strained and heated, for fifteen minutes in a double boiler or until the tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add one cupful of sugar, one-fourth cupful of walnut meats and four oranges peeled and quartered. Chill and serve as a sweet relish with fowl or meat.

Lemon Sauce.—Cook three tablespoonfuls of tapioca in two cupfuls of boiling water in a double boiler until clear, stirring frequently. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, two teaspoonfuls of grated lemon rind and eight marshmallows cut into small pieces. Serve poured over cake for pudding.

Cheese Souffle.—Cook three tablespoonfuls of tapioca in one cupful of milk until the tapioca is clear, stirring often. Add one cupful of grated cheese, stir until melted. Cool, add three beaten egg yolks, one teaspoonful of salt and three well beaten egg whites folded in at the last. Bake in a well greased baking dish, set into a pan of water. Bake until the souffle is brown and shrinks a trifle. Serve hot.

"Shieling of My Sorrow" Typical Highland Legend

The following legend is associated with Aueda No Dhubbach, the sloping ground lying to the east of Loch Drom, on the way from Garve to Ullapool, in the highlands of Scotland. Three young men from Strathmore were returning home from the low country where they had been working all summer and autumn. They reached Loch Drom in the evening, and as the night was stormy, they decided to stay in a shieling that was near. One of the men was a piper, and had his pipes with him, and to pass the time away he struck up a tune on the pipes, while his two companions danced to the music. One of the lads said it would be fine if they had some lassies to dance with. He had hardly spoken when three women entered the shieling, and joined the dancing. The dancing and playing went on for a long time, and at last the two men sat down on the seat, and the women seated themselves beside them. The piper, feeling all was not right, looked at his two companions, and was horrified to see them dead. Slipping out, leaving his plaid with the women, he ran for his life as fast as he could. The women followed, and continued to pursue the poor, exhausted piper until dawn, when he came in sight of Fasgriach, and escaped from his evil pursuers. When the mothers of the dead men arrived at the shieling the next day they bewailed their loss, repeating the words "Aueda No Dhubbach"—"Shieling of my sorrow."—Montreal Family Herald.

Nothing New

The young son of an Indianapolis physician is intensely interested in moths. He reads everything that comes to hand concerning them. One day when his father saw him poring over a big volume in the library, he said:

"What are you reading, son?"

The son replied: "Oh, about moths, but they don't tell me anything I don't already know about them."

The interested parent asked: "Well, what is the name of your book," when son answered:

"What All Mothers Should Know."

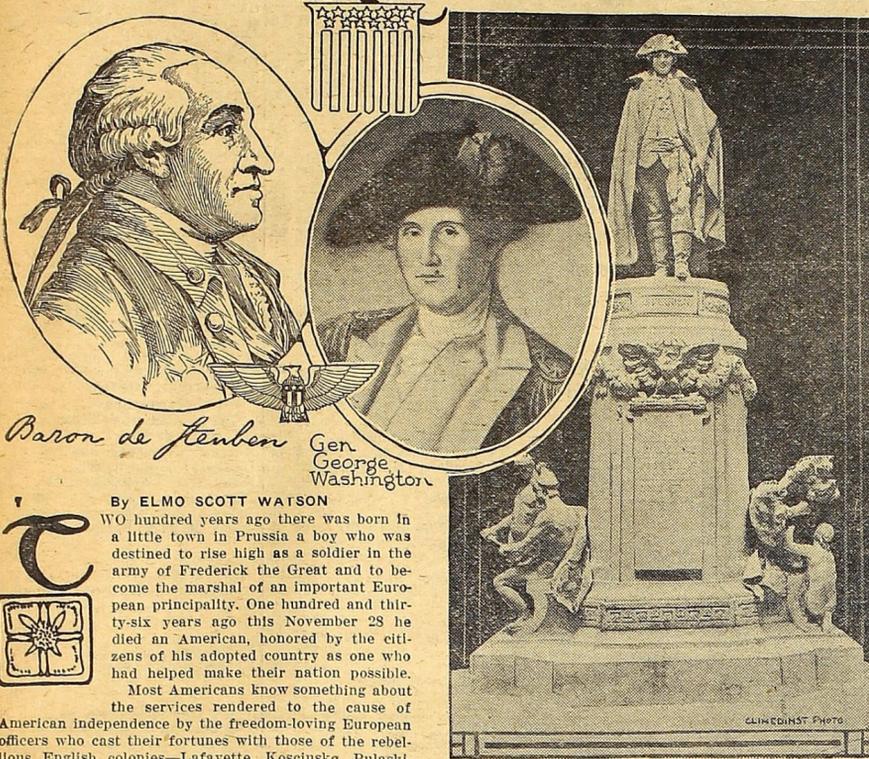

Woman's Vanity

The late begum of Bhopal, India, was the only woman potentate in Asia. When her son was born, she said: "The greatest depth of mercy and benevolence lies in a woman's heart. It has been a singular blessing of Allah that for three generations no son was born to take the throne."—Woman's Home Companion.

THE DRILLMASTER OF THE REVOLUTION

Steuben Statue in Washington, D.C.

Baron de Steuben Gen. George Washington

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
 TWO hundred years ago there was born in a little town in Prussia a boy who was destined to rise high as a soldier in the army of Frederick the Great and to become the marshal of an important European principality. One hundred and thirty-six years ago this November 28 he died an American, honored by the citizens of his adopted country as one who had helped make their nation possible.

Most Americans know something about the services rendered to the cause of American independence by the freedom-loving European officers who cast their fortunes with the rebellious English colonies—Lafayette, Kosciuszko, Pulaski, De Kalb and Steuben. But the romantic figure of the young Frenchman, Lafayette, the special friend of Washington, has somewhat overshadowed those of the others and there are few of us who realize how much we owe to Friedrich Wilhelm Rudolph Gerhard Augustin Steuben, the Prussian. It is not too much to say that without this "drillmaster of the Revolution" the struggle for American independence might not have succeeded or at least have delayed its triumphal conclusion several years.

Born on September 17, 1730, (most histories give his birthday as November 15, but a long lost baptismal record, recently brought to light, established the earlier date) at Magdeburg in Prussia, Steuben entered the Prussian army under his father, also a soldier of great ability, at the age of fourteen. At the siege of Prague during the Seven Years war young Steuben received his baptism of fire and in course of time he rose to the rank of captain and became adjutant general to Frederick the Great. He fought at Rossbach and Kundersdorf, where Frederick was so disastrously defeated and where Steuben himself was seriously wounded and carried off as a prisoner by the Russians. However he was very soon set free by Czar Peter III, who was a great admirer of the Prussian military leader.

After the war Steuben was made grand marshal of the principality of Hohenzollern-Hechingen, with the title of baron, a position which he held for ten years and during which he was an outstanding figure in the social and diplomatic life of the time. But he seems to have had a longing to return to the life of a soldier and the American Revolution offered him his chance. Benjamin Franklin and Silas Deane were in Paris as American commissioners seeking European aid for the colonies and St. Germain, the French minister of war and an old friend of Steuben's, induced the Prussian to come there where he introduced him to the American commissioners and to Beaumarchais, a French friend of the American cause, and Vergennes, French minister of foreign affairs.

Vergennes was anxious to restore the prestige of France, which had been lost by the weak King Louis XV, and to strike a blow at France's ancient enemy, England, by appearing before the world as a champion of American liberty. So he represented Steuben to the Americans as lieutenant general, (which he wasn't and never had been), and as a great soldier (which he most decidedly was). The crafty Ben Franklin, however, was not given to "buying a pig in a poke," so he refused to pay Steuben's expenses across the Atlantic. Beaumarchais came to the rescue, however, with 1,000 louis d'or and in the fall of 1777 Steuben set sail for America from Marseilles on the warship L'Heureux—renamed the Flamarck for safety's sake in view of English privateers and the presumed neutrality of France—which was laden with a cargo of munitions for Washington's army.

In deciding to offer his sword to the Americans, Steuben is entitled to all the more credit because he had little to gain and much to lose by the venture. He had to give up a secure and ample income and a high position in his own country, since before he left for America he conferred his canonry at Havelburg with his yearly revenue of 4,600 livres upon his nephew, the Baron von Canitz. It is true that he asked from the American commissioners compensation for these, yet in view of his characteristic generosity and unselfishness and of the precarious situation of the American cause at that time, he cannot be accused of self-seeking. What he desired most was action and an opportunity to gain diers the full benefit of the latter! of him Duponceau, who was his secretary.

"His fits of passion never offended the soldiers. When some movement or maneuver was not performed to his mind, he began to swear in German and then in French, and then in both languages together. When he had exhausted his artillery of foreign oaths he would call to his aids, 'My dear Walker, (or my dear Duponceau) come and swear for me in English—these fellows will not do what I bid them.' A good natured smile then went through the ranks, and at last the maneuver or the movement was perfectly performed."

What they appreciated most perhaps was his quick understanding of their democratic spirit. This is all the more remarkable when one realizes that he had been trained in the rigid school of Frederick the Great, the strictest of disciplinarians. But Steuben realized from the start that he could not make Prussian grenadiers out of these bush-fighters and irregulars and he did not try to do it. Instead he saw a chance to make something better out of them. In a letter to an old friend he wrote: "In the first place the genius of this nation is not in the least to be compared with that of the Prussians, Austrians or French. You say to your soldier 'Do this,' and he doeth it. But I am obliged to say: 'This is the reason why you ought to do that,' and then he does it."

The results of his work were so apparent for the men he trained soon had a chance to prove their worth at the Battle of Monmouth in June, 1778. The British had broken the American left wing. Steuben rallied his forces under fire and saved the army from a rout. Of that fact Alexander Hamilton, then a young captain on Washington's staff, said "I never knew or conceived the value of military discipline till that day."

Like every other foreigner in the Continental army, Steuben suffered from the jealousy of the native-born officers and from the neglect and suspicion of congress. Once he threatened to resign. But under Washington's influence he refrained from doing so, and in due time received the rank to which he was more than entitled.

At Yorktown Steuben had a chance to prove that he was a genius at siege work as well as at drilling. There he was actually in the trenches with his troops when Lord Cornwallis sent a flag of truce with an offer of surrender, so that he ended his military career in a blaze of glory.

A committee of congress reported to that body that Steuben had "rendered very important and substantial services" and "on all occasions conducted himself like a brave and experienced officer." In 1787 congress authorized the presentation to him, in recognition of these services, of a gold-hilted sword. But it was not until 1790, seven years after Yorktown, that the nation kept its promise by giving him a pension of $2,500 a year, the equivalent of what he had surrendered to enter the American service.

Virginia, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York all made him grants of land—the cheapest thing there was in those days. He chose to settle in New York, spending his summers in the primitive environment of his frontier estate and his winters in the congenial society of Manhattan. He died suddenly, at the age of sixty-four, on November 28, 1794, at his home near Utica, N. Y., which is still preserved as a memorial to this "foreigner" who did so much to make the American nation possible.

PUMPING SYSTEM GOOD FOR WATER

Windmill Utilizes Cheapest Source of Power.

Demand for greater quantities of water for dairy and live stock uses calls for a pumping system which requires but little attention and utilizes the cheapest source of power available. Although the windmill has been a common sight on farms for a good many years, an increasing number of farmers are finding it possible to extend its usefulness beyond the single stock tank in the barnyard.

Dairy farmers have found that by placing a storage tank in the mow of the barn, drinking cups may be installed which greatly add to the profit from their herds. If the barn is well constructed, the heat from the stock will keep the water from freezing, particularly if the precaution is taken to remove the flooring from below the tank.

One farmer does not worry about getting a good pack in his silo, even in the face of an early frost. A light breeze provides the windmill on this Iowa farm with sufficient power to pump water directly into the silo, while a large under-ground storage tank holds plenty of water in reserve for his live stock. For household use, a windmill may be installed in connection with an air pressure system, using a gasoline engine if necessary for supplementary power. This will provide running water for all conveniences in the home and may also be piped to the chicken house or to other outlying buildings if not too great a quantity is desired.

The adaption of anti-friction bearings and automatic oiling systems which require less attention have greatly increased the amount of power available for useful work. With lessened resistance they begin pumping in lighter winds which make them useful over longer periods of time and increase the quantity of water that can be pumped.

The capacity of the windmill varies according to the velocity of the wind, the diameter of the pump cylinder, the diameter of the wheel, and the lift required. By doubling the diameter of the cylinder, the capacity of the pump is increased by four times. However, many make the mistake of using too large a cylinder which limits the usefulness of the mill to a strong wind.

Bacteria Can't Thrive in Cold Temperature

Milk is the most perishable of any of the common foods, because it is an ideal place for bacteria to grow, says Prof. J. D. Brev of Cornell University. The number of bacteria in the milk may vary from a few thousand to more than a million in a cubic centimeter, which is about 25 drops, and the more bacteria present the quicker the milk sours. Science has found three ways to stop this growth but only one is practical for farm use and that is to cool the milk to a point where the growth takes place slowly.

As crop growth is best at warm temperatures, and may be retarded by cool weather, and stopped by colder temperatures, so bacteria that will multiply rapidly in milk at 70 degrees Fahrenheit slacken growth at 60 degrees and at 50 degrees the bacteria crop outlook is poor.

Professor Hammer of Iowa found that a high grade of milk with a low bacteria count soured in 53 hours when kept at 60 degrees, the same milk kept sweet 86 hours at 50 degrees, and at 32 degrees it took more than a month to sour.

Salt Quite Essential to Dairy Cows Daily

Salt is essential to dairy cows and they should have access to it daily. The average requirement is about three-fourths of an ounce daily per 1,000 pounds of live weight with an additional three-fourths of an ounce required for each 20 pounds of milk produced. Cows may be allowed free access to salt or it may be mixed with the grain feed. One of the most practical and satisfactory plans is to mix it with the grain in the proportion of one pound for each 100 pounds of the grain mixture.

Ice Cream Production Continues to Increase

Ice cream production continued to increase last year and reached a grand total of 305,448,000 gallons as compared with 348,046,000 gallons in 1928, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Inasmuch as imports and exports of ice cream are negligible, all of the production is assumed to have been consumed. On this basis, the consumption per person last year was three gallons. Ten years ago, the per capita consumption was a little more than two gallons.

Profitable Cow

Dairy farmers know from experience that the profitable cow is the one producing a large record. The profitable meat-producing animal is the one that is grown quickly. All tests and experiments have proven the importance of obtaining volume in production. To keep animals in profit-making condition requires a liberal supply of succulent and nourishing feed, and the silo can furnish the carbohydrate supply better and cheaper than any other method.

Things That Are Nice for Christmas Gifts

"To Baby," Highchair Cushion

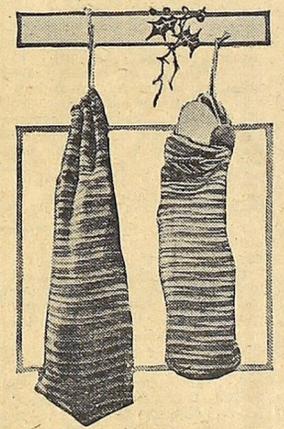

Did you ever see anything so "cunning" as this "bunny cushion" for baby's highchair? You can buy the material all stamped and ready to work, either dainty pink or pale blue, and you may choose between bunnies, bow-ties, pussycats and sundry other "pet" subjects. Then all to do is to embroider their painted features, pad the material with downy cotton or wool batting, then knot here and there same as if making a comforter. There's no doubt Mr. Santa Claus will be having to work overtime to get enough cushions ready before Christmas for babies north, south, east and west, who will be wanting this "booful" present.

Stage Coach Book-Ends

From all indications Santa is going to make a specialty of giving stagecoach book-ends this Christmas. They are too clever for words, these book-ends, which stand a decorative little coach at each end of a row of books, for the stagecoach, be it of royal lineage like the one pictured or of thoroughly American pioneer descent, is taking the place of the at-one-time favorite ship as a decorative feature in the home.

Convenient for Travelers

Scuffed shoes, slippers and "mules" are one of the problems of light traveling. No one likes to carry too much luggage, so the knitted "shoe case" of soft, lustrous duren cotton, as pictured, makes a most attractive Christmas present.

Cute Pillows for Youngsters

Here is a Christmas gift-ideal for youngsters—pillows made of saten or percale, appliqued with animal or birds cut out of gingham as pictured. Being washable, mothers will welcome them in the nursery. Santa Claus specially recommends this type for "pillow fights."

Would you call this a hint?

BEFORE secret suffering breaks out in open revolt—before the little home is irrevocably shattered by a husband's strong pipe—can't something be done? Certainly. A new pipe will help, or even an old pipe cleaned and filled with Sir Walter Raleigh's favorite smoking mixture. It really is milder, with no sacrifice of richness and fragrance. It really is as popular with the smoked-at as it is with the smoker.

THE NEW CHEVROLET SIX HAS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

The introduction of the new Chevrolet Six marks the most impressive forward step in Chevrolet's twenty-year record of constant progress and improvement.

For this Bigger and Better Six offers new beauty of line and color, new luxury, new completeness and new quality—yet it sells at lower prices!

In every curve and sweep of Chevrolet's modern lines—in every detail of its smart new Fisher bodies, you will see the fine hand of the master designer and the skillful craftsman. And the more closely you inspect it, the more deeply impressed you will be.

The improvements in the new Chevrolet Six begin at the smart new chrome-plated headlamps and extend throughout the entire car. The radiator is deeper and unusually efficient. Due to the increased wheelbase, the lines are longer and lower, giving an air of exceptional fleetness and grace. And the new Fisher bodies combine with this more attractive exterior appearance, a new degree of interior luxury.

The upholstery is of fine quality mohair or broadcloth, carefully tailored and fitted. The number of individual springs in the rear seat cushions has been increased by 25%. The windshield and windows have been redesigned to provide wider vision. And all interior fittings have been made more pleasing to the eye.

The chassis of the new Chevrolet Six has also been refined and advanced in a number of different ways. The frame is heavier, deeper and stronger than before. There is a smoother operating, long lived clutch; a sturdier front axle; an entirely new steering mechanism of the worm and sector type; an easier shifting transmission. In fact, every vital feature of the new car has been made better and more satisfactory to the owner.

Obviously, these many improvements are responsible for a higher standard of quality than before. And they become doubly significant when you consider that they are offered in a car which provides the smooth, quiet, flexible performance of a 50-horsepower, six-cylinder motor—the comfort of four long semi-elliptic springs and four hydraulic shock absorbers—the safety of a gasoline tank at the rear of the car—and an economy of operation not surpassed by any automobile.

» AT NEW LOW PRICES «

Fine as it is, the new Chevrolet Six now sells at lower prices—making the economy and satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership even more outstanding. We urge you to come in and see the Bigger and Better Chevrolet. Its modern design reflects the spirit of the times—and it represents a value which will command the interest of every buyer in the low-price field.

Asbestos Known to Ancients
The name "asbestos" is derived from the ancient Greek word meaning a fabulous stone, about which it was said that once set on fire the fire could not be quenched. The noncombustible character and spinning quality of asbestos fiber were undoubtedly known to the ancient world. Plutarch mentions "perpetual" lamp wicks used by the Vestal Virgins.

Parents and "Contract Baby"

One of America's most famous babies, Owen "Sunny" Moyer, ten weeks old, with his parents, William Kenneth Moyer, Chicago poet, and Mrs. Moyer, the former Miss Ethel Olyette Owen, University of Wisconsin coed, who started a wide controversy when they married by contract. They agreed to a divorce after two years if in that time they were still childless. The doctors have pronounced the "contract baby" perfect.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney is a rather quiet man, but, when he is in the mood, one of the most interesting talkers I know. He has a keen, observing mind, a thorough understanding of police problems and the relation between the force and the public, a tremendous knowledge of human nature, and a grand sense of humor. Why shouldn't he have with a name such as Mulrooney? The policing of a city such as New York calls for a commissioner with strength and judgment, and Mulrooney has both. I imagine he can be pretty firm and cold on occasion; but you can't talk to the man long without hearing the beat of the warm Irish heart in him. You may suspect that I like Mulrooney, and I do. Maybe it is because we both are old-fashioned enough to like big league baseball better than midget golf and agree that the big Frenchman, Larry Lajoie, was the most graceful player we ever saw.

"Who would have supposed," says Commissioner Mulrooney, "that you ever would see a Tom Thumb golf course on Fiftieth street? It makes you think that Manhattan real estate may not be so valuable after all. But they are keeping these courses open a little late. I think an ordinance will be passed to close them at 1 a. m. That's late enough for anybody to get home. These places are getting to need a little regulation."

I said that Mulrooney had a sense of humor. He also has a sense of drama. He can tell you stories that would keep you listening for hours, and he always holds his suspense and drops his curtain on the big thrills. I asked him whether good detective work—he once was head of the detective bureau—was not mainly perseverance, courage and common sense. He said a fine detective must have more than that, one of his greatest qualifications being the ability to put himself in the other man's place and, from that angle, figure his line of thought. He illustrated his point.

"We got word," said Mulrooney, "that an embezzler, who was badly wanted, was heading for New York on a railroad with his terminal in New Jersey. That meant he would have to come in on a train ferry, so we covered them all. Those were the days of horses; it was before taxicabs had come in. We had received such short notice that by the time the detective who went to the Twenty-third street ferry got there, the boat he wanted to meet was in and the passengers gone. He knew all the hackmen, but that wasn't going to get him anything. They were a tough lot and it was not in their code to help a cop. Still he asked them if they had driven anywhere a man such as he described. No, they had seen no such man. What with handling bags and the confusion of a boat crowd, they had not time to take note of people they drove.

"It was then," continued Mulrooney, "that the man showed real qualities as a detective.

"I'm sorry!" he exclaimed. "I certainly did want to get that fellow. It's a shame he got away."

"What did he do?" asked one of the hackmen.

"The detective knew that if he explained the man made off with a lot of dough the hackmen would wish him all the luck in the world, so he used a bit of imagination.

"The dirty skunk!" said the hackman. "Now that I come to think of it,

Father Sage Says: A girl may refuse a man because she feels sure he will propose again; but a widow never takes such chances. She's through gambling.

I do remember a man like that one you describe. The driver who took him isn't back yet, but he'll be back in a minute and we'll find out where he went. You wait.

"So the detective waited. Sure enough, the driver returned and all the hackmen gathered around him, as eager as the detective for news of his fare. When he heard the details, he took the detective in his hack and made good time to a hotel. There was the man, who soon was on his way to the police station. The hackman certainly had done their bit in the capture, but they had acted under a slightly mistaken impression. "You see," concluded Mulrooney, "the detective hadn't mentioned embezzlement. He told them that the man had murdered his old mother and cut off her head with a razor."

CEREMONIAL BEAUTY

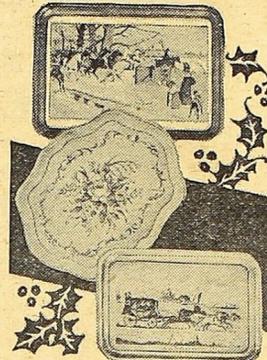

The soft texture of velvet serves to set off the regal beauty of this evening ensemble. The gown of royal blue velvet follows the princess silhouette, and the jacket is elaborately embroidered in silver metallic thread and appliqued with silver leaves. The wide cuffs and shawl collar are of platinum fox.

Boxing Is New "Study" Aberdeen, S. D.—Boxing has been added to the curriculum of the Northern State Teachers' college.

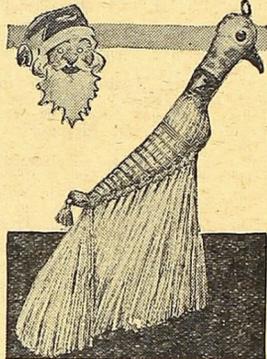

Christmas Things to Buy or Make at Home

Trays for Yuletide Gifts

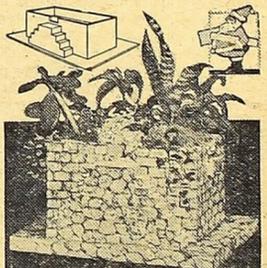

Trays are registering as especially "smart" Yuletide gifts in current holiday displays. Of the making of attractive trays, there seems to be no end this season. Like everything else in interior decoration trays have gone English to a great extent, depicting quaint stage-coach themes, and colorful hunting scenes. Contrasting these are exquisite effects which are French in their dainty rococo design and antique-lacquered flower colorings.

Amusing Hearthstone Brushes

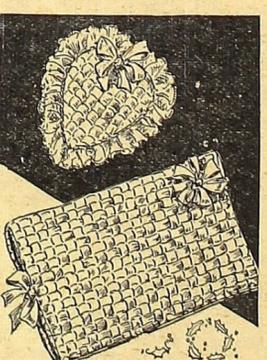

Perhaps it is a hint on Santa's part to keep the hearthstone spic and span for his coming. Anyway, his pack contains an unusual variety of amusing fireplace brushes this year. They are extremely decorative, too, for the spirit of the times is for the humblest utilitarian article to be ornamental to the nth degree as well as useful.

Fern Garden for Christmas

For Christmas-giving miniature fern (actually growing) gardens are the "big idea" this year. The thought was inspired by the lilliputian Japanese gardens which have ever been an object of admiration. The one pictured is only about 14 inches long. You can buy the wooden framework (outline sketch in upper corner). Removable zinc flower box or pan fits in the top. You can have the fun of painting it yourself to give it the appearance of a terraced rockery, using for the purpose sealing wax dissolved in alcohol which gives a handsome lacquered effect. Tiny plants and ferns are planted in the galvanized box in mossy soil. A gayly painted toy bridge and doll-like figures add to the landscape.

Made-of-Ribbon Gifts

Basket-woven ribbon fancywork is again in fashion. There's going to be many a "Merry Christmas" card tied to everything from sachets to handkerchief and glove cases, pillows, dresser mats, and even large cases to hold the "nightie" made of ribbon, as the picture shows. Nothing so expresses heart-to-heart sentiment as the "I-made-it-myself" gift.

Eclipse Furnishes New Moon Data

Niuafon Island.—The discovery of a new wave length in the spectra of the sun's corona and further information on the movements of the moon were announced recently by American scientists as the fruits of their observation of the solar eclipse here. Spectrographs obtained by Dr. S. A. Mitchell, scientific head of the American naval observatory expedition, caught manifestations of the heretofore unknown wave length, which showed itself at 6.770 angstrom units. An angstrom unit is one-hundred-millionth of a centimeter. The data is expected to be useful in computing movement of the moon and in forecasting future eclipses. Coronal disturbances on both the east and west edges of the sun were recorded. These appeared to have had their origin in eruptive prominences. The detail shown in the spectrographic lines of the coronium (chief constituent gas of the corona) did not resemble that exhibited by the prominences. Changes in coronal forms shown by the successive spectra indicated violent motions in the inner corona. These disturbances could be traced to as far as 100,000 miles beyond the sun's surface, and, as far as is known, never have been observed before. Development of photographic plates today indicated the expedition had been successful beyond expectations. A shortage of fresh water delayed developing. This became a difficult job when fresh water had to be brought ashore from the U. S. S. Tanager and protected from lava dust blown in by trade winds. Photographs of exceptional beauty and detail were obtained, especially nine plates from the sixty-three-foot tower camera and three from the sixty-five-foot horizontal camera, constructed as an afterthought from scrap material and a spare lens. Beautiful coronal streamers, with especially interesting strawberry-shaped domes, were conspicuous on plates of all cameras. The data indicates the totality was of 93.9 seconds' duration. Successful photographs of the flash spectrum were obtained both at the beginning and end of totality.

HAVING YOUR FORTUNE TOLD

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Very few of us are satisfied with the present. We should like to see ahead, to know what is going to happen to us next week or next year, or ten years from now. Are we going to be rich, or prominent, or influential? Are love and romance and beauty to be our lot, or is failure and insignificance and poverty and disgrace waiting for us just at the turn of the road? It is our keen interest in these things which makes us eager to know what the cards or the clairvoyant-or tea grounds have to tell of our coming fortune. Now I have no faith in phrenology or palmistry or the physiognomist who pretends that by looking you over he can predict just when you will marry and whom and tell whether you'll make good as a machinist or a manicurist. My better judgment tells me that these people are all fakes, who know no more about the future than I do, and not so much about my own past, at least—but to me they are nevertheless interesting. I like to hear what they have to say and to try to discover why, they say it. I don't believe it; I don't bank on it, but it gives me a pleasant sensation to be told about the delightful things I may expect in the near future.

STAR HOCKEY PLAYER

Frank "King" Clancy, former star hockey player of the Ottawa Senators and who was purchased by the Toronto Maple Leafs for $40,000. This is said to be the highest price ever paid for a National league stick-wielder. Clancy is shown wearing the uniform of the Maple Leafs for the first time.

There was a phrenologist came to town when I was a small boy. For twenty-five cents he agreed to tell me what nature had in mind for me when I was created. He looked me over, ran his hand over the irregularities of my cranium and proceeded to picture a great future for me. Law, as I now recall, was the profession in which I was destined to shine because he detected in me great powers of speech. Oratory, spell-binding, holding an audience breathless was to be my forte. I knew, and I have no doubt he did also, that I had no particular talent as a public speaker and that if I ever learned at all it would be with much agony of mind and body, but nevertheless I enjoyed the words he uttered. There is nothing that dispels depression so quickly as to have some one look you over, or hold your hand and from the scars and callouses, and wrinkles which decorate its surface, discover the fact that there is really something to you, that fortune, and success, and a great and glorious future are waiting for you if you will only hitch up your belt or suspenders, if you are wearing suspenders at the time, and push right ahead to what you are entitled to. These tellers are wonderful encouragers; they pat you on the back; they picture for you a successful future, and a little patting on the back seldom does a man any harm.

As I said before, I know it is all a fake, that any man with an iota of sense will give no credence to what the fortune teller says, but just the same whenever I see a sign announcing, "Your future foretold," I can scarcely resist the temptation to go in and see what the faker will say.

Mohicans Take "Warpath" of Whites

Norwich, Conn.—The last of the Mohicans are on the warpath. They have fared forth to fight what they term encroachment of the white man on their hallowed precincts and they have armed themselves with the legal weapons of their pale faced brethren instead of with the more destructive instruments of their aboriginal forebears.

The Mohicans, or rather their descendants, have brought suit in Superior court against the state of Connecticut, its attorney general, the city and town of Norwich and others, demanding $1,000,000 for the alleged desecration of a small Indian burial ground near here, in which the body of the great sachem, Chief Uncas, supposedly is buried.

Edyth B. Gray and others, who describe themselves as heirs of the great Uncas, charge the defendants with preventing them from continuing to use the burial ground as a cemetery, that monuments there have been destroyed or removed, and that the so-called reservation has been cut up into building lots.

All told there are not more than 100 descendants of the tribe about which James Fenimore Cooper wove such fantastic and romantic tales. None of these are full blooded, virtually all being white mixed. They live on what they call "the reservation," a small plot of land at Mohegan, on the west bank of the Thames river four miles from here. In reality, it is not a reservation, for it is not under federal or state supervision.

The burial ground involved in the suit is a 16 acre plot. It is studded with several gravestones, one of which marks the supposed last resting place of Uncas. The noted chieftain's grave is marked by an obelisk monument about seven feet high. Across the face of one side is the inscription "Uncas." The obelisk has an interesting history. Its base was laid in 1833 in the presence of President Andrew Jackson and a few members of his cabinet, who journeyed by stage coach to Norwich especially for the occasion. Then, it seemed, the Norwichites forgot about finishing the memorial until the fall of 1840, when the money to complete it was collected at a Harrison-Tyler campaign meeting. Finally, on July 4, 1842, the obelisk was raised over the base. Sheep were first brought to America by the Spaniards under Coronado.

SUCH IS LIFE--What a Difference!

(The) Alabaster hotel. Boy! How I would like to put my feet under your table for dinner tonight. It sure would be heaven on earth. "Bumsky."

We have been here now two months. We arrived August 2. While our time has been fully occupied and our work has been interesting and absorbing, we have not lacked recreation. Have been taking sight-seeing trips to famous places of rather ancient vintage, trips up the Tomi river in a tug boat, fishing and hunting. I don't think much of the hunting. Have been out several times and haven't got a thing. We hear fellows talk about the big game in the forests—deer, bear, elk, etc., but I haven't seen any of them yet. Have been duck hunting, too, and only saw one duck, and he was too far away to shoot at. However, the time has been going by very quickly for me. Each day has been crammed full of new and rare experiences, interesting and fascinating, so I feel as though the Lord has been very generous with me—more so than my wildest dreams.

The ocean trip across the Atlantic in the Bremen could not have been improved. The weather and all was so marvelous. The trip up through the English Channel was sure keen. Wonder if they had as many airplanes flying when you were there, Clark? Gee! Airships of all sizes and shapes were flying as thick as birds back and forth across the Channel. As I remember, we went through the Straits of Dover about 4 P. M. and entered the North Sea. It was rather rough but not enough to bother the Bremen. The next morning we docked at Bremerhaven, where we took the train for Bremen.

en. Stayed there one-half day, then went on to Berlin. I sure liked the looks of Germany. It has seemed more like the U. S. than any other country we have been in. We stayed at Berlin four days. While there I met a great uncle, a Hoffmeyer. I don't know really what relation he was to me, but he was a cousin to my grandfather.

It was a two-days' ride from Berlin to Moscow. We passed through Poland and another little country in there somewhere. I forgot the name. Stopped at Warsaw a couple hours. We traveled first class and we thought the coaches were swell—better and more comfortable than most of the American Pullmans.

We were met at Moscow station by a couple "Novostal" men with taxis who drove us to the Hotel Europa. Boy! I thought our American taxi drivers were devils to drive, but you should ride in Moscow with a Russian driver, 60 to 65 per, right down through traffic. Each time we went out for a drive I was scared stiff for fear we would bust up. We were royally entertained by the Novostal men for a couple of days, then left for Kuznetsk.

The construction job is now well under way, and believe me, it is a job! The magnitude of the program is itself epochal, to say nothing of undertaking it way out in the heart of Siberia, 3,000 miles from any industrial center or source of supplies. We now have better than 18,000 workers on the job.

Have made acquaintance with several Russian engineers and find them dandy chaps and good, square shooters. The people here dress very similar to Americans, except that the workers' clothes are more plain, but the women fix up just like the American girls.

Tomorrow morning I leave with two Russian engineers on a five day trip to the ore mines which are about 30 kilos out of Tablic. We will go about 100 kilos by auto, then finish the trip on horseback and pack horses. We expect to be in the country of big game so are taking rifles and shotguns along with us. Two weeks ago we sent four caterpillar tractors ahead with loads of machinery, air compressors, boilers, head shafting, hoisting engines, etc. There is no railroad in there as yet, but we want to get started opening the mine so it will be ready when the railroad gets in there next summer. We intend to have one or two blast furnaces in operation by next August. Clark, I wish you could be here to take the trip with me. We sure would have a wonderful time.

Mr. Baer is getting along just fine. I have learned to know him much better than ever before since we have started this job; or I mean since we left the States, because we have had many hours together. We shared rooms at the hotels and compartments on the trains, and so forth. He is quite pleased with it all and sure is doing his stuff on the construction job. You know, steel mills is his old game.

It is about dinner time. We always have a swell feed Sunday noon and I'm all set for it today. Give my regards to the lodge brothers and tell them to send my fee slip to dad. Also send my best wishes to Joe and Mat., and the old Tawas gang. Wishing you all the luck and happiness that life has in store for you. Ever your friend, Ted.

TOWNLIN

Miss Phyllis Ulman spent a few days at Grayling last week. Mrs. Judson Freel and daughter, Betty, spent the week end visiting her sister, Mrs. Glenn Hughes, at East Tawas. Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Shepherd and granddaughter, Beatrice Freel, left this week to visit relatives at Flint and other points. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Timreck and little son visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Ulman, this week. Edward Londo, T. Thompson, E. Cook and Jack Vancourt, all of Detroit, spent last week here deer hunting. Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Shepherd visited Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller last Sunday. On Monday evening about forty friends and relatives gathered at the home of William Freel to celebrate his 59th birthday. Music and games were played and a fine lunch served. A good time was enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Davidson, Mrs. William Leslie, Mrs. Charles Quick and Miss Worden have been chosen as the members of the advisory board of our Sewing Clubs.

The first year typing class averaged 18.7 net words per minute for fifteen minutes with the average of 6.9 errors on the test Wednesday morning. The Art class is beginning work on block printing.

Seventh and Eighth Grades The following are placed on the Honor Roll for the month of November: Vernon Davis, Nelda Mueller, Agnes Roach, Thomas Thompson, Patricia Braddock, Albertina Herman, Robert Mark, Jean Robinson, Walter Wegner and Arthur Ziehl.

The eighth grade girls have joined a sewing club sponsored by Miss Opal Coon.

Miss Sage taught us a Thanksgiving song. We have been making verse posters this month in art class.

A number from our room are patronizing the milk counter in Mrs. Quick's room.

The seventh grade history class is studying the opening events of the Revolutionary War. Reports were given about the first two battles, and some of the patriot leaders.

Allan Rouiller is drawing a picture of "The Three Wise Men" on our board.

Attendance percentage for November for the eighth grade is 97.9%, for the seventh grade, 95%. Harold Moeller colored our this month's health poster. All agreed that he did a fine job.

Fifth and Sixth Grades The following people were on the Honor Roll for the month of November: Fifth grade—Lucille DePott, Thelma Herman, Grace Hill, Myrton Leslie, William Sims, Joy Smith, Kenneth Smith and Richard Ziehl; Sixth grade—Phyllis Bigelow, Madelle Brugger, Isabelle Dease Elizabeth Holland, Thomas Metcalf, Billy Mallon.

The fifth grade has been studying about the Pilgrims and the First Thanksgiving. They have made a log cabin and furnished it.

We all have been making Thanksgiving posters.

Primary Janette Koepke has been sick all week. We are still selling milk. We sell twenty-five bottles every recess. It is very nice for the children who eat their lunches at school.

We are making booklets telling about our trip to Timreck's Dairy. We learned a great deal and enjoyed it very much.

MORTGAGE SALE DEFAULT having been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by Carl Woyahn and Minnie Woyahn, his wife, of Tawas township, Isoco county, Michigan, to August Luedtke of Tawas City, Michigan, dated the 6th day of December, A. Wen Fame as Aviator The aviator known as the Flying Parson was Belvin W. Maynard. He was born September 28, 1892. He served with the A. E. F., was discharged from the army May 3, 1920, was appointed a reserve officer June 5, 1921. In 1924 he was killed at Rutland, Vt., in an airplane accident.

What Is Home Without a Dollar?

Experience shows that unprotected estates left to widows who lack business training often disappear within a few years. Then the "home without a dollar" becomes a chill reality. Why expose your wife to that danger? Why not make a moderate payment each year on the Metropolitan plan, and build up a fund that will yield her an adequate monthly income? Let us tell you how it can be done.

To The General Public

As we are through lumbering, we have about 80 acres of land with timber on that is suitable for stove wood, near the East Tawas cemetery. The wood on this land is hardwood and softwood. We decided to sell this land in 5 to 10 acre lots, which will have to be taken off the land this winter. John Applin, the county surveyor will have charge of selling this land. If you can use any wood see him about it. The wood can be taken off much cheaper than you can buy it elsewhere as a party will take the job to buzz up the wood and deliver it. We will not sell less than 5 acres, so if you can not use that amount, you can buy it with your friends.

Next week we will advertise the machinery we wish to sell from our mill and our future policy in handling building material.
