WOUNDS STEP-SON WITH GUN; BURNS BARN

James A. Farrand, Grant township farmer, was brought before Justice W. C. Davidson this (Friday) afternoon charged with assault with intent to murder. The charge was brought against him by his step-son, William Rice. Farrand is held in the county jail.

Farrand, who had whipped his wife today, had gone to the barn. Rice, learning of the assault on his mother, went to the barn and remonstrated with Farrand. Farrand pulled a shot gun on him and while Rice was trying to wrest it away the step-father fired. Rice was wounded.

While Rice was at East Tawas having his wounds dressed and before the authorities had arrived at the scene to make the arrest, Farrand set fire to his house and barn. Although Farrand used gasoline to feed the flames, the house was saved by neighbors but the barn was burned to the ground. It contained about 75 tons of hay.

NATIONAL GYPSUM CO. IN GOOD CONDITION

The following report received by H. N. Butler, factory representative, from the president, M. H. Baker, will be of interest to the people of this section of Michigan in that their largest operation is located in Iosco county. Mr. Butler reports that the mill will operate most of the winter.

At a meeting of the directors of the National Gypsum company in Buffalo Friday, a dividend of $1.00 per share was declared on the outstanding Preferred stock, payable January 2, 1931 to stockholders of record December 22, 1930.

In commenting on the company's action, Melvin H. Baker, president, reports, "Even though the gypsum industry as a whole is suffering a severe depression due to reduced building activity, our gross sales for the first eleven months of the year are 10% ahead of 1929 and earnings are in excess of our Preferred dividend requirements."

This unusual showing is due, first, to the extension of distribution on our major items, plaster, wall board and lime, which has helped maintain the activity of our own mills, and second, to the fact that we took over early this year the distribution of Maflex insulation board made by MacAndrews & Forbes Company, Icorice manufacturers, of Camden, N. J. Insulation board has a large market and through our fifty-eight salesmen and thirty-two hundred distributors we have been able to add materially to our gross sales with this commodity.

In addition, we have benefited from the sales of texture finishes and other specialties put on the market a year and a half ago. "The company is in a strong financial position with ample cash resources and no bank loans."

"While we do not expect any large improvement in general business for the coming year, there is every indication of a turn for the better and we should continue our present position with reasonably satisfactory earnings for 1931."

TANNER OPENS NEW LUMBER WAREHOUSE

C. E. Tanner has opened a lumber warehouse in the old depot building and will sell all kinds of lumber and building material. He received the first shipment of his stock this week.

Mr. Tanner is well known throughout this section, having spent many years in the saw mill and lumber business.

AMERICA'S IDOL HERE IN LATEST LAUGH-LOVE HIT

A humble waiter by day, a millionaire loutario by night, Maurice Chevalier's gay, laughing love-making occupies him twenty-four hours out of twenty-four in his newest starring picture, "Playboy of Paris," which the State Theatre will feature Sunday and Monday.

Chevalier's sly and roguish love making is seen at its best in this farcical French comedy with a plot as full of fresh and funny situations as was "The Big Pond."

TAWAS CITY SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council

The Christmas parties were held in the different rooms Friday afternoon.

The high school had a very enjoyable afternoon, with the following program under the leadership of Miss Sage, the music and art teacher: "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "While Shepherds Watch Their Flocks," 5th and 6th grades; "Christmas Doings," Isabelle Dease, Phyllis Bigelow, Lucille DePott, Doris Webb; "Through the Night," Lucille DePott; "Sleep, Holy Child," Girls' Double Trio; "The Inn," Delta Leslie; "Mary's Cradle Song," "Cantique De Noel," Mixed Chorus.

The teachers left Friday and Saturday for their respective homes for the holidays.

The high school students prepared a Christmas basket for the needy, which was distributed among different families.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN ROBBED FOR CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

Now that all of Northern Michigan has been stripped of all its merchantable timber to pay tribute to the lumber barons, a tremendous onslaught is now going on to denude the forests of the Christmas tree to satisfy the residents of the large cities all over the country. No one has any idea of the inroads made each year and as near as can be learned thousands of these trees are left over in the hands of dealers only to find their way into a huge bonfire to get them out of the way after the season is over. Many of these trees are taken from lands without authority of the owners and are subject to a heavy fine and jail sentence.—Cheboygan Tribune.

Miss Mable Myles of Port Huron is spending the holiday season in the city with her parents.

What's It Going to Be?

STATE POLICE PUT RADIO IN SHERIFF'S OFFICE

A radio receiving set was installed last Monday in the sheriff's office by the Michigan Department of Public Safety. These sets have been placed in various counties of the state and with the state police, and as soon as notification of a crime is given to the department at Lansing details to aid in the apprehension of the criminals is broadcast and received at every point in the state.

This is one of the most important steps ever taken to enlist modern science and invention in the service for the preservation of law and order.

CHEVALIER'S SLY AND ROUGH LOVE MAKING IS SEEN AT ITS BEST IN THIS FARICAL FRENCH COMEDY

A humble waiter by day, a millionaire loutario by night, Maurice Chevalier's gay, laughing love-making occupies him twenty-four hours out of twenty-four in his newest starring picture, "Playboy of Paris," which the State Theatre will feature Sunday and Monday.

OSCODA DEFEATS ALPENA TEAM

East Tawas high defeated St. Anne's of Alpena in the feature tilt of last Friday night's card at the Community Building, East Tawas, by a score of 16 to 6.

Poreshadowing the coming of St. Anne's to East Tawas were a number of rumors about its power on the basketball floor, but the Alpena boys were no match for the determined local five who had tasted nothing but defeat in three attempts before last Friday and who were keyed to the point of taking out revenge on most any team.

St. Martin, Klenow and Kasischek were the outstanding stars for East Tawas, accounting for practically all of its points. During the last few minutes of the game the entire East Tawas first squad was replaced by the second stringers, who held the visitors scoreless during the remainder of the game.

Results of the preliminary games between the Arenac County Normal and Iosco County Normal girls and boys were as follows: Arenac girls 10, Iosco girls 8; Arenac boys 13, Tesco boys 10.

NORMAL QUINTET DOWNED BY HARRISVILLE INDIES

The Iosco County Normal quintet was nosed out by the Harrisville Indies in a close battle at Harrisville on Monday night. The final score was 23 to 19.

At the end of the first half the tally stood 15 to 5 in favor of the Alpena county boys, in whose lineup was included Hazen "Kiki" Guyler. An inspired normal team took the floor at the whistle marking the beginning of the second half and came within two field goals of overtaking the Harrisville five when the gong ending the game was sounded.

"A LADY'S MORALS"

Grace Moore, opera soprano, may be quite unknown to the average motion picture audience, but her work in this pictureization of the famous Swedish singer, Jenny Lind, is as fine as anything that could be desired on the talking screen. Her voice records perfectly, and is delightful, nor is her acting and physical attractiveness any less so.

Reginald Denny, playing opposite as the young composer who feels he is not of sufficient position to have the singer return his love and goes blind following an accident in the gallery of the opera house, gives an excellent performance as he ever has rendered on the talking screen.

Direction is uniformly excellent and photography good, with a scene of the opera house and Miss Moore singing the aria on the stage being particularly fine.

Though other members of the cast are definitely subordinated to the two featured players, capable work is done by Jobyna Howland as the companion of Jenny Lind, also by Prima Porcasi as the manager of the prima donna. Wallace Beery appears for a moment or two as P. Barnum, who has arranged for Jenny Lind to sing at Castle Garden, New York where the star finds the blind composer who had disappeared, and the two are reunited to end the film.

This may be termed an excellent piece of work with a brilliant featured player.

"A Lady's Morals" comes Saturday and Sunday at the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

NATIONAL GYPSUM FIVE DEFEATS OSCODA; 30-23

The National Gypsum company five defeated Oscoda Independents, in a game played at Whittemore for the benefit of some of the needy families about town. The game, though hard played, was fast and clean. Oscoda's offense, led by Harry Knuth of Oscoda high school fame was very flashy and had the Nationals badly puzzled at times.

The team play was typical of that always displayed by Oscoda teams, but the Nationals were well able to cope with it and put on a fine exhibition of passing and basket shooting. The guarding was close and time after time Oscoda came down the floor very fast only to have the play broken up and the ball returned to the other end of the court where it was promptly seized by Norris, Dunham or McKenzie. The scoring was led by Norris for the Nationals and by Trigger for Oscoda.

In a preliminary game the Whittemore high school girls defeated the Iosco County Normal girls, 34 to 3. The Normal girls were completely outclassed from the start.

Following the games a dance was held, and music was furnished by Compton's orchestra. Both the games and dance were well attended and thanks are expressed to all those who aided in making this event a huge success.

Results of the preliminary games between the Arenac County Normal and Iosco County Normal girls and boys were as follows: Arenac girls 10, Iosco girls 8; Arenac boys 13, Tesco boys 10.

SCHOLARSHIPS OFFERED TO 4-H CLUB WORKERS

One hundred scholarships worth $500 each, and good in any agricultural college in the United States, will be awarded to 100 of the outstanding members of the 4-H boys and girls clubs during the coming year. This gift of $50,000, the largest ever made to further 4-H club work, comes from the International Harvester Company, and was announced ten days ago by the vice president, Cyrus McCormick, Jr., to 1400 state and national club champions, who were being entertained at luncheon by the Harvester Company as part of the program for the ninth annual 4-H Club Congress. This is also open to 4-H club workers of Iosco county.

The scholarships are to be awarded in commemoration of the invention of the world's successful first grain reaper by Cyrus Hall McCormick in 1831. It was this invention that began the revolution of the world's agriculture just a century ago, and these scholarships likewise should have far reaching effects on the future American farming.

Contestants must be members of 4-H clubs, and are to be judged on work actually accomplished for the advancement of agriculture from January 1 to October 1, 1931. The awards will go to 4-H club members engaged in corn, cotton, small grain, potato, tobacco, dairy, baby beef, pig, poultry, sheep, and other projects, including home economics, fruits, vegetables, etc., in which 830,000 boys and girls were enrolled this year. Also the contestants must be near enough ready for college to begin using the scholarships in the fall of 1932.

The winners will be announced a year from now, when the visitors to the tenth 4-H Club Congress will again be the guests of the International Harvester Company.

ALABASTER SCHOOL NOTES

Our two basketball teams, boys' and girls', were defeated by the strong Prescott five on Friday night, December 12, at Alabaster. Our boys led until the last quarter when Prescott ran the score up to 20 to 16. The girls played a good game but lost, 15 to 27.

Wednesday night, December 17th, the boys defeated Whittemore by a score of 28 to 13. The Whittemore boys played a good game but the fast Alabaster quintet proved too strong. The girls lost by a score of 17 to 5.

John St. James of Whittemore showed great skill in the refereeing of the Prescott and Whittemore games.

Thursday night, December 18th the Alabaster five defeated the Oscoda reserves, 30 to 11. The Alabaster boys' team looks forward to a successful season under the able leadership of Manager Erickson and Captain William Rescoe, having already won five out of six games played.

Our line up is as follows: Regulars—Wm. Rescoe, Bernard Benson, Henry Oates, Harold Johnson and Leonard Roiter. Substitutes—Charles McCormick, Herbert Oates, and Vernon Willett.

Our schedule is as follows: Jan. 8, Harrisville here; Jan. 9, at St. Ann, Alpena; Jan. 16, at Prescott; Jan. 23, St. Ann here; Jan. 30, Whittemore here; Feb. 6, Sterling here; Feb. 13, at Harrisville; Feb. 27, at Sterling.

Our Christmas vacation extends from December 24 at noon until January 5. The Christmas program will be held at the school house on Tuesday night, December 23. The boys' team would like to sign up some games to be played during Christmas vacation. Any team wanting a game should write to William Rescoe, Box 111.

Small Hats and Berets Popular; Lavish Use of Lace New Trend

IN THE fabric hat, more than any other, there is every opportunity to achieve individuality. For this very reason, if for no other, the hat fashioned of cleverly manipulated material is a general favorite this season. Then, too, the call of the mode is for the ensemble costume, and the reaction of this is that more women are calling upon their milliners to create for them headwear "to match" or at least to show some relation in matter of color, design and fabric.

In the little softly draped turbans and berets so often made of the self-same material of the frock, coat or blouse with which it is to be worn, unlimited opportunity is given to the designer to create headwear which shall not only sound a harmonious note in the costume ensemble, but it will be made to accomplish that which is even more to be coveted—tune to the type of the individual in matter of "lines" and detail.

The hats pictured make individuality their feature. They are just such types, being snug-fitting, as coddle down into luxuriously furled coats with becoming grace. Admirably tuned to the black-and-white costume, which is so widely exploited this winter, is the extremely smart wrapped turban shown centered to the right in this picture. This model which interworks black velvet with white velvet was worn with a black velvet suit, the blouse being of white satin.

To the left-center in the group Princess Rospioglio, one of the titled women who have come to this country to create models which are suited to the temperamental needs of the American woman, is shown wearing a velvet beret designed and executed in her own studio, from her own original sketch. A tiny velvet bow is its only decoration.

The first model at the top is a two-tone velvet beret and scarf, in brown and beige, hand-embroidered with small dots—smart for debutante or college girl to be worn with tweeds. Another interesting turban type is pictured to the right. This is of brown velvet and is molded to the head in almost sculptural lines, contrasted by the one-side drape which departs from the conventional.

The shirred turban is in keeping with the romantic fashions which have found their way into the modern picture. This model of black velvet is known as the Juliet cap. A natural-colored ostrich comes softly over the face, following the contour of the hair-line.

Frocks of Lovely Lace. One of the significant fashion trends of the times is the continued lavish use of lace both for daytime and for evening modes. That costume designers are yielding so wholeheartedly to the persuasion of lovely lace is only another link in

Burly, dozing humble bee,
Where thou art is clime for me.
Let them sail for Porto Rique,
Far off heats through seas to seek;
I will follow thee alone,
Thou animated torrid zone
Zigzag steerer, desert cheerer,
Let me chase thy waving lines;
Keep me nearer, me my hearer,
Singing oyer shrubs and vines.

LABOR-SAVING IDEAS

When making pastry prepare more than is needed and place in a cold place or ice chest, tightly covered with waxed paper. The thoroughly chilled mixture makes more flaky crust than that baked at once. From this pastry a few tarts may be made in a hurry, or cheese straws, a meat pie, using leftover meat.

Ice box rolls are another special that can be mixed and left in the ice chest for a week. Take off just the amount needed for rolls and put them to rise; when light, bake. A tin of delicious rolls are quickly served. An hour or two before baking make them into small rolls and keep very warm, tightly covered. It is better to grease them well with lard—that keeps the flour from drying out on top while rising. They should be more than double their bulk when put into the oven.

When baking potatoes prepare enough so that the next day a few will be available for cream potatoes. They are fully as good as those freshly cooked.

By keeping jars of chow chow, capers, olives, pickles as well as cheese, celery, anchovies and numerous other condiments and relishes, one has access to delightful fillings for sandwiches which need to be made in a hurry. A jar of mayonnaise and a bottle of french dressing should be made in such quantities that they are always available. It takes very little extra effort to double the amount when preparing a salad dressing, and then there is always a supply.

Wash the heads of lettuce and place in a cloth or covered dish in the ice chest, then the lettuce will always be ready for use. Parsley well washed, leaving the moisture clinging to the leaves, if put in a fruit jar tightly covered, will keep two weeks, fresh and green. Add a bit of water if it seems to dry out.

Might Be Excused for Using Strong Language

A few nights ago a spectacular fire left a warehouse a smoking ruin. Five alarms were sounded. Eleven reporters—two working and nine out to enjoy the fire—rushed to the scene. A columnist, who had no business there but loves to run after the engines, got his feet wet and caught cold.

The conflagration was the destructive sequel to a minor blaze that had scorched the establishment a few hours earlier. The first fire was discovered by the owner of the building, who sent in the alarm, watched the fire-fighters apparently extinguish the flames, and then went home.

Before retiring he telephoned a contractor to call around the next morning to see about repairing a few windows, painting the doors, and otherwise touching up the place here and there.

At seven o'clock the next morning the contractor called upon the owner at his home and together they went downtown. Arrived where the building should have been, the contractor looked at the smoking pile of debris and then at the owner. "Just what was it you wanted me to do?" he asked, puzzled.

Because of the owner's fine Sunday-school record, we don't like to tell what he replied.—Pittsburgh Post Gazette.

"Panacea"

Another word that is almost invariably misused is "panacea." It is employed as if it were a synonym for "remedy" or "cure." But it means much more than that. A panacea is a universal remedy or cure; that is, a cure for everything, a cure-all. To speak of a panacea for a particular ailment is absurd. What the farmer needs for his economic illness is a remedy. Perhaps it is an indication of the seriousness with which observers view his condition that they are apt to speak of suggested remedies not as remedies but as panaceas. To such an extent is the meaning of the word misapprehended that one even sees the expression "universal panacea," which is like saying "limitless infinity"—as if there could be any other kind.—New York Evening Post.

Debt Owed to Ladybirds
Ladybirds (or ladybugs) are great benefactors to the American fruit growers. An Australian ladybird (Vedalia or Novius, cardinalis) was introduced in 1886 to feed on the cottony cushion scale of the orange and lemon groves of California, and in less than a year it practically exterminated the pest.

Camel's Burden
An expert says that from 500 to 700 pounds is the average weight for a camel to carry. He usually carries this on an average of 10 hours or 23 miles a day. The average for the northern and the southern species varies somewhat in speed and the burden which they carry, but the above is an average for both.

Not Knocking the Auto
Old Dobbin had his faults, but you didn't have to pour hot water on him to get him started.—LaPorte Argus.

Ancient Saying
"Smooth runs the water where the brook is deep," writes Shakespeare, and he got that from the proverb. "Still waters run deep." Other versions are, "God defend me from the still water and I'll defend myself from the rough," and "Silent men, like still waters, are deep and dangerous." The German said: "Dumb dogs and still waters are dangerous."

Americans "Cold and Sour"
The average American eats 23 pints of ice cream and 25 pickles in a year. Perhaps that's what makes him such a cold, sour proposition.—Roanoke Times.

TELEPHONE USED INCREASINGLY IN TRAIN DISPATCHING

The telephone and telegraph section of the American Railway Association reports that the trains on nearly two-thirds of the total railroad mileage of the United States are now being handled by telephone dispatching. According to reports made to that section from the railroads of the country as of January 1, 1930, over 154,277 miles use the telephone service for the transmitting of train orders. On January 1, 1920, this figure stood at only 119,554 miles.

Bill of Rights

The bill of rights in England is the name commonly given to the act declaring the rights and liberties of the subjects and settling the succession of the crown, 1689, which embodied the declaration of rights drawn up by a committee of the commons and presented to William Prince of Orange and his wife, afterward William III and Queen Mary. The bill of rights is the nearest approach to a written constitution which the United Kingdom possesses.

Abbreviating Christmas Spoils Wonderful Word

Clergymen of many of the denominations in New York have joined in a protest against the abbreviation of the word "Christmas." They declare that writing it "Xmas" is irreverent and should not be permitted. It is said that with one exception letters sent out to Christian leaders brought replies in protest against the abbreviated form of using the word. If not irreverent certainly it is not good taste and spoils the appearance of one of the finest words in the whole language.

The protest is timely for many reasons. There is no occasion for abbreviating the name of Christ. Moreover Christmas is an event that appeals to nearly all, both nonbelievers as well as believers. It signifies much more than a religious observance. Nearly all the world, non-Christians as well as those who observe the day as the birth of their Lord and Savior, make Christmas the occasion for good deeds. It makes a sort of spiritual revival that affects the people of all faiths and creeds. It is the time when all mankind is drawn closer together; when selfishness is more nearly crucified than at any other period of the year; when men of all beliefs

THE GREAT AMERICAN VALUE

Fine-car distinction and quality in the new Chevrolet Six

Again, Chevrolet and General Motors have utilized their combined resources to establish a new and higher standard of value for the American motor car.

A new six-cylinder Chevrolet is now on display, offering fine-car distinction and quality certain to appeal to every discriminating buyer. For the new Chevrolet represents a type of economical transportation that America has long anticipated—a low-priced six styled with such striking talent and good taste, so smartly beautiful and complete in its perfection of detail, so advanced and refined mechanically that you will immediately recognize it as the Great American Value.

Front view of the new Chevrolet Sport Coupe

This great value is the outcome of four basic Chevrolet advantages: (1) The savings of volume production in nineteen great modern plants. (2) The economies which result when raw materials are purchased in vast quantities. (3) The benefits of continuous research in General Motors laboratories and on the General Motors Proving Ground. And (4) the close association with the Fisher Body Corporation who, this year, have surpassed all their previous achievements in coachcraft by developing bodies of outstanding quality, refinement and value.

These basic advantages have made it possible to build a finer car at lower cost. They have enabled Chevrolet to offer important improvements throughout the new Chevrolet Six—to give it a longer wheelbase—greater roominess and comfort—strikingly smarter style—impressive new luxury—more thoroughly satisfactory performance—greater dependability—and to pass on these savings of efficient manufacturing to the Chevrolet buyer in the form of low prices!

AT NEW LOW PRICES

Read over these new low prices. Know how very little it costs to own the Bigger and Better Chevrolet Six. Come in today and give this new automobile a thorough inspection. Study the many refinements and new appointments introduced in the distinctive bodies by Fisher. Ride in the car. Drive it! A few minutes' experience will convince you that the new Chevrolet Six is a new and finer type of economical transportation—a quality automobile that you will surely want to own. The Great American Value!

SEASONS GREETINGS

To our Friends and Customers:

As we look back over the year 1930 we are moved to a deeper, more sincere appreciation of our friends.

Each year we realize more fully that our friendships are what make life worth living and we, therefore, like to feel that there is a spirit of friendship underlying our business relations with our customers. Our daily experiences confirm this feeling.

We manifest our appreciation of our loved ones by tokens or remembrances at Christmas time. We manifest our appreciation of our friends by a word of friendly greeting. And so at this Holiday time we want to extend to you our sincere good wishes as an expression of our genuine appreciation of your friendship.

May the year 1931 be your most prosperous.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

This may be old, but it was told to me as an unpublished story. There is a man in New York who liked to have people around him, so he used to keep open house on Sunday afternoons. It got so that a good many persons came regularly to eat, drink, smoke and talk. The man, while not rich, was pretty well off and, at various times, helped some of his visitors financially over tough spots in the road. He felt that they were his friends. Many of them didn't need any help. Sunday afternoons were gay affairs.

KANSAS GIRL CHAMP

Miss Florence Melchert, twenty-year-old freshman in Kansas Agricultural college, has been declared the outstanding 4-H club girl in the United States. She went from her home in Franklin county, Kansas, to the International Live Stock show at Chicago to receive the trophy given by Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire.

Then came the crash and the man was wiped out. The next Sunday he made a little speech. He said he was embarrassed, but the truth was that he had been caught out on a limb in the falling stock market and was flat broke. He hoped to get back on his feet, but he was broke now.

"But I still have this apartment," he said, "and I hate to see these pleasant Sunday afternoons discontinued. We still could meet here, but—and it isn't easy to say—I haven't money enough just now even to provide things to eat, drink and smoke. I thought, if you each would put in two or three dollars, we could buy some stuff and still continue these pleasant times."

The guests assented with enthusiasm; but the next Sunday none of them arrived. They haven't been back since.

A writer got what he thought was a fine chance to show a new play with an amateur dramatic club, in a town near New York. He induced several well-known producers to attend the try out. One big scene showed a mother discovering a man, who had been her lover, making violent love to her daughter. The mother was supposed to enter in sports clothes, but the woman who played the part had heard that there would be notables in the audience and, at the last moment, decided that she would be more effective in a negligee. When the time for her entrance arrived, she was making the change.

The pair on the stage sprang apart at the proper cue; but no mother appeared. They made love some more; still no mother. The situation grew strained. Finally, the girl improvised.

"I thought I heard mother," she said, "I'd better go see where she is," and she walked off stage.

The man, left alone, opened books, lit cigarettes and strolled for some moments, but there was no sign of mother or daughter, so he said:

"I must see what has become of them," and he walked off, leaving the stage empty.

By this time the visiting producers were in hysterics and the curtain fell on another play gone wrong.

A man never really is fat until he commences to catch his safety razor in the folds of his double chin.

There is a handsome doorman in front of a Fifth avenue apartment who looks like a German drill sergeant. He spends all day marching up and down, calling taxis and opening automobile doors. The other night an inhabitant of the apartment house discovered what the doorman did with his evenings. He saw him standing stiffly in front of an armory; probably waiting for some one to come out and put a uniform on him, so he would feel free to call a taxi.

To Restore Queen's Toy Village

Paris.—Plans made to be sent to Austria by Marie Antoinette to prove that she was falsely accused of extravagance in building her hamlet of doll houses at Versailles have been found and are to be used in restoring the hamlet to its original condition.

A favorite resort of tourists and students of history has been this fragile, imitation village of peasant houses in which the queen, bored by the formality of courts, used to play at life on the farm. But in recent years its houses, built only to serve as playthings, have been falling into ruin. And had it not been for the Rockefeller repair fund the ruin would probably have become complete.

Most of the interiors are bleak expanses of bared lath, corners black with cobwebs and floors rotting. The thatched roof of Marie Antoinette's own little cottage in the village has fallen in, and the hole is now covered with tarpaulin. Six months ago a tall poplar fell on the little imitation mill, crushing an angle of the roof and causing a whole wall to lean.

they may get a proper amount of sleep. They drink no coffee; they use no tobacco; they eschew whatever is said to be detrimental to the growing athlete. They read books on how to play the various games in which they are interested and like David they can say "One thing have I desired; that will I seek after."

One of these days you are going to read in the newspapers that Bob is captain of his college football team and that John has broken the record in the pole vault, for what we most desire and constantly seek after we are likely to win.

Repaint Kissing Gates

Rayleigh, England.—Three of the six kissing-gates in Loveland are to be repainted.

The entire hamlet just now looks as foul a wreck as anything in the war-zone in 1918.

Money available for its restoration raised a new problem. How did the hamlet look when it was first built in the Eighteenth century? Nowhere in any of the archives could plans showing the color and texture of the original walls be found. It was known, moreover, that the restoration made some 40 years ago was mere guesswork and probably inaccurate.

In the library of the Duke of Ferrara in Mondene, Italy, lay a priceless "album" of original drawings of the hamlet made by Mickel, the architect who built it. They were colored drawings. The queen had had the little book made to send back to her home in Austria to prove to her family that the hamlet was after all a simple little affair and not the kingdom-bankrupting folly which rumor had made it.

The book never got to Vienna. Marie Antoinette had to answer to the French revolution on the charge of reckless extravagance, and the click of the guillotine ended the argument about it.

Patrice Bonnet, chief architect of the Chateau of Versailles, has been to Italy to copy Mickel's colored drawings. It is from these that the hamlet is to be reconstructed.

One of the discoveries made in the album is that the hamlet when new was a faked antique. It was built not to look like a new hamlet, but like one weathered and softened by time.

Built in the reign of Louis XVI, it looked as antique as if it had been there since the time of his great-great-grandfather.

The renewed hamlet will be exactly as Marie Antoinette saw it first, with a toy wooden mill wheel in the toy mill stream, and with some of the accretions of later years removed. Only it will be stronger, for hidden in the toy houses will be frames of reinforced concrete that will prevent any such general collapse as makes the hamlet a dilapidated ruin today.

FOR THE AFTERNOON

This creation of midas gold crepe, trimmed with black crepe and machine embroidery, makes a smart model for afternoon wear. The blouse features bell-shaped sleeves, and the flare in the skirt starts above the knee in inset panels. A black felt turban, rose beige chiffon hose and black leather pumps are worn. It is a gown formal enough for afternoon tea and not too fussy for business engagements.

DAILY

SUGGEST RATIOS TO LOWER COSTS

Use Wheat, Barley & Oats in Feeding Cows

Dairymen can cut feed costs by substituting wheat, barley and oats for corn and hominy feed, dairy rations, at present prices, and by feeding a grain mixture with protein content that corresponds to the roughage fed, advises Prof. B. Morrison, head of the department of animal husbandry at the New York State College of Agriculture. He suggests formulas for use with various types of roughage for feeding dairy cows.

In these formulas wheat or rye may be used, depending on local prices. For dairy cows these grains have substantially the same value for ton. Since wheat is a heavy concentrated feed, it is best not to use more than 600 pounds of wheat or rye per ton of dairy feed, so some bulky feed, like oats or alfalfa, should be included in the mixture.

Ground rye may be substituted, wheat or barley in these formulas. Since rye is usually not quite as digestible as these grains, it is best to use more than 300 to 500 pounds of rye per ton of feed.

When little or no legume hay is used, feed a 24 per cent total protein mixture, as: 300 pounds of ground wheat or barley; 300 pounds of ground oats; 350 pounds of wheat bran; 350 pounds of gluten feed; 400 pounds of cottonseed meal; 200 pounds of linseed meal, and 100 pounds of glucose meal.

With mixed clover and timothy hay and corn silage use a 20 per cent total protein feed, as: 600 pounds of ground wheat or barley; 600 pounds of ground oats; 300 pounds of gluten feed; 200 pounds of cottonseed meal; 200 pounds of linseed meal; and 100 pounds of soy bean meal or gluten meal. With clover hay and corn silage only 18 per cent total protein is needed in the grain mixture, made as follows: 700 pounds of barley or wheat; 700 pounds of oats; 200 pounds of gluten feed; 200 pounds of linseed meal, and 200 pounds of cottonseed meal.

With alfalfa hay and corn silage the grain mixture can be reduced to 16 per cent total protein, containing: 800 pounds of ground barley or wheat and barley; 800 pounds of ground oats; 200 pounds of gluten feed; 100 pounds of linseed meal; and 100 pounds of cottonseed meal.

Fish Oil as Corrective for All Dairy Cattle

There is a possibility that dairymen will soon be feeding fish oils as generally as do the poultrymen. The latter feed cod liver oil to avoid rickets in growing stock, to hold the health of the laying flock and to improve hatchability. It is now being demonstrated that fish oil that is rich in vitamin D will result in healthier calves, will increase the useful life of the cow and is, in a measure at least, a safeguard against breeding troubles. There is still an excess of cod liver oil over what is used for human consumption and for poultry. Investigations in the United States prove the pilchard oil, 4,000,000 gallons of which are produced annually from California sardines, is as rich in vitamin D as cod liver oil. Tuna oil, less abundant, is equally rich. Salmon oil is half as rich. The use of these oils in dairy rations should receive more attention from the research men on our experimental farms and in our colleges.

During First Two Weeks Feed Calves Whole Milk

It is preferable to feed whole milk to calves during the first two weeks after birth, but in case this cannot well be done, whole milk feeding may be limited to one week. Small calves, such as Jerseys and Guernseys, should be given about seven and one-half pounds of milk a day. Larger calves, such as Holsteins, Ayrshires, Short-horns, etc., should be given ten pounds a day until they are at least two weeks old. If this cannot be done without too much trouble, two feedings a day will suffice, but a little smaller quantity of milk should be given. That is, a calf that will consume seven and one-half pounds a day in three feeds should not be given more than about six and one-half pounds a day in two feeds. Overloading the calf's stomach should be carefully avoided. See to it that the milk is always fed at an even temperature of about 95 degrees Fahrenheit.

Mixture for Cows

A grain mixture for cows can be compounded from three or four feeds, but a variety of five to seven grains is advisable. Such a mixture will usually be more palatable and carry plenty of bulk, both features necessary to get the best results. A mixture that is palatable will stimulate the flow of digestive juices which in turn will mix best with the ration when it is bulky. In this way the grain mixture is more thoroughly digested and the best results are obtained.

LIVE STOCK

PURE-BRED SIRE CAMPAIGN HELPS

Increased Interest Is Shown in Improved Stock

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Increased interest in improved live stock is shown by the records of the pure-bred-sire campaign conducted by the states in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture. Listings of breeding stock submitted in recent months by those enrolling in the campaign show a total absence of scrub animals in herds headed by pure-bred sires, and the proportion of scrubs to all females listed before July 1, 1930, was only one in seventy. Although every male animal used must be pure bred in order that the owner may enroll in the campaign, the females kept on the farm may be crossbred, grade, or scrub animals as well as pure bred. Most owners reported a considerable number of pure-bred females among their breeding stock.

Enrollment in the campaign entitles the farm owner to a barn sign resembling a bronze tablet, which bears the inscription, "Pure bred sires exclusively used on this farm." In addition, the owner is furnished a certificate, suitable for framing, signifying interest in better live stock. Enrollment blanks may be obtained on application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Three Important Things in Care of Young Pigs

There are three things that are very important in the care of fall pigs, according to C. C. Culbertson of Iowa State college. These things are keeping them warm and dry, feeding them good ration and keeping them in sanitary quarters. The housing quarters must have plenty of room and be sanitary, well ventilated and bedded with clean straw. A hogoller in the quarters is liable in the winter to keep down. Automatic feeders in the house will be the means of keeping the pigs from eating in the cold winds which are likely to get on them. If feeders are not located in the house there should be a break to protect the pigs while eating. Water tanks with heaters in the houses will insure the pigs getting plenty of water. Warm water is not essential, but plenty of water is always necessary, Mr. Culbertson states. A good balanced ration of corn and prot supplements is essential to rapid growth and a homemade or commercial mineral is also essential, according to Mr. Culbertson.

Basin of McLean System of Sanitation for Hogs

The clean system of swine sanitation based on the proposition that if animals are kept away from parasites the will be no trouble from that source, it can be successfully carried out by using four things thoroughly and acceptly, as follows:

1. Wash with soapy water and a brush always before they are put in farrowing houses, which have been scrubbed with boiling lye water.
2. Confine sows and pigs to the clean haw until they are ready to move away from the old lots.
3. Haul, do not drive, the sows and pigs from the farrowing house to the clover field pasture, which has had no hogs for at least a year, as driving would enable them to pick up worm eggs and thus infest the pigs at an early age.
4. Confine the pigs to the clean pasture, clover referred, until they are four months old. Make sure there are no holes in the fence through which the pigs can go to the old lots.

Revive Chilled Lamb by Immersing in Hot Water

If, perchance, a new-born lamb becomes thoroughly chilled and even may appear to be almost lifeless, such a lamb may be placed in a tub of water, as warm as the shepherd can stand to keep his elbow in. This method is called the shepherd's "magic cure," and it times it really is amazing how a apparently lifeless lamb will, within 15 or 20 minutes, be decidedly alive and bleating for its mother. Not only keep the lamb's nose out of the water, but its entire head as well, for the lamb's mother will recognize it not by sight but by sound, but by smell, and if the lamb's natural scent is entirely removed by being in the water, the ewe will likely disown the lamb when it is returned to her.

Use for Artichokes

The greatest usefulness of Jerusalem artichokes in the past has been as a stock feed. At present in France they are mostly used for sheep and cattle, and in this country they are most frequently grown for hogs. The crop has been highly recommended for this purpose, but has never superseded corn where that crop succeeds. The leaves and branches are also good stock feed and are extensively used abroad. The stalks may be cured in the same way as corn stover.

WHAT WE MOST DESIRE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

David, all things considered, was a pretty human and a pretty successful man. It is not an easy job being king, I imagine, but David stands out with all of his human weaknesses as the ideal ruler and the ideal man. Perhaps there is a reason why. He says in one of his psalms: "One thing have I desired... that will I seek after." He had a high purpose and a determination to accomplish it. Most of us want too many things and so often miss getting or doing much of anything worth while.

Story, whom I have known for some years, has a good mind, I think, and husky, healthy body. He has, in addition, a college degree which should have given him some balance and some training. He has drifted from one thing to another, however, for the last ten years and always with enthusiasm. When he joined church I

Disasters for '31 Are Predicted

Paris.—Mme. Delmas-Fraya, famous soothsayer and confidante of several great political figures, predicts that 1931 will see the end of Fascism in Italy and a violent revolution in Germany, accompanied by economic and material catastrophes in every part of the globe.

"I see," she says, "the violent death of Italy's greatest statesman followed by a complete transformation of the political regime. Germany will be tormented by revolutions causing economic and financial ruin.

"Argentina and Brazil have not yet completed their political revolutions and there will be several violent changes, without great bloodshed, during 1931. Spain also will be tossed upon the stormy sea of political convulsions."

Madame Fraya prophesies that war is fast approaching in Europe but that 1931 will be passed under the constant panic of war without actual fighting. During this time France will continue to consolidate its position through the efforts of a "young man" whose political star has not as yet arisen. "I am afraid," she laments, "that the coming year has many unhappy events in store for the world. The United States will be even harder hit by the economic depression, but will emerge victorious from the struggle. The women of America will play a large part in the re-establishment of financial and economic order. "Europe will be tested by violent tempests and earthquakes while similar catastrophes throughout the world will take thousands of lives."

THE STORY

With his English wife, Catherine, and son, Jeems, Henry Bulain, French settler in Canada in 1749, cultivates a farm adjacent to the Tonteur seigneurie. As the story opens the Bulains are returning from a visit to the Tonteurs. Catherine's wandering brother, Hepsibah, meets them with presents for the family. To Jeems he gives a pistol, bidding him perfect himself in marksmanship. Hepsibah fears for the safety of the Bulains in their isolated position. Jeems fights with Paul Tache, cousin of Toinette Tonteur, whom they both adore.

Jeems was aware of her presence and physically sensible of her combativeness, but in the complexity of action which surged over and about him he could afford no discrimination in the manner of using his arms, legs, teeth, and head, and at last, finding herself disintegrated, Toinette scrambled to her feet considerably bruised and in such disorder that no one would have recognized her as the splendid little lady of the seigneurie who had come so proudly to Lussan's place a short time before. Her handsome hat was a crumpled wreck in the mud. Her dress was twisted and bedraggled. Her hands and face were discolored with soil, and her hair was so tangled about her that she was almost smothered in it. Despite this physical condition, her mental self was more than ever inflamed with the desire to fight, and seizing upon the hand and woodlike stalk of a last year sunflower which lay in the dirt, succeeded in bringing it down with such force that, missing Jeems, caught Paul on the side of the head and laid him sprawling flat on his face. This terminated the conflict. Toinette, who gave a cry of apprehension when she saw what she had done, Paul had recovered from Toinette's blow before Jeems could take advantage of it, and what happened during the final round of contention remained largely a matter of speculation in Jeems' mind. He was still stupor-stricken after a little, and there was no one to strike at. Paul and Toinette were out of his reach yet he heard their voices, oddly indistinct, moving in the direction of Lussan's house. Tried to call out, thinking that Tar was escaping like a coward, but nothing in his throat choked him until it was impossible for him to get breath enough to make a sound. He made an effort to rise that he might pursue his beaten enemy. The earth up to him swam dizzily. He was gasping sick at his stomach, and blood was dripping from his nose.

offer him that his small world held, if there he could make amends for the r and humiliation he had brought her. A spirit of chivalry in him, older than his years, rose above lowly consideration of rights and igs. He was sure he was right; he wanted to say he was wrong though he did not know it, year passed since two days ago, and was a new Jeems going to a new nette. His fear of her had vani. He was no longer borne down a feeling of littleness and unimportance, and for the first time he was waiting Tonteur manor without thought of inferiority sending its mings through his soul. upon him as a symbol of the grim and unapproachable spirit that guarded the rooms within. His hand reached out to awaken the dull thunder of its voice. His fingers touched the cold iron. He hesitated in the moment he was lifting it, for he observed that the door was open by a space of a few inches. Through this aperture a voice came to him clearly. It was a high, biting, angry voice, and he recognized it as Madame Tonteur's. He raised the weight from its metal panel and would have knocked when he heard a name which made him pause in rigid silence. It was his own. He heard Toinette's mother say, "Henri Bulain was a fool for marrying this good-for-nothing English woman, and Edmond is a greater fool for not driving her from the country when her breed is murdering and killing almost at our doors. The woman was made for a spy, despite the pretty face which has softened Edmond's silly heart, and that boy of hers is no less English than she. The two should not be allowed to live so near to us, yet Tonteur maintains they are his friends. The place they have built should be burned and the English woman and her boy sent where they belong. Let Henri Bulain go with them if he chooses to be a renegade instead of a Frenchman!" "Fie upon you for such thoughts, Henriette," chided the milder voice of Madame Tache. "I despise the English as much as you or Toinette, but it is unfair to voice such invective against these two, even though the woman is proud of her pretty face and her boy is a mud-slinging little wretch. Edmond is a big-souled man and sim-

Bright Idea That May Have Averted Tragedy

Allusions to the effective use of ridicule against his opponents made by the late Lord Balfour during the term of his chief secretaryship for Ireland recalls an incident of long ago, when a body of convicted prisoners who had been concerned in one of the rebellions—the 1848—had to be marched through the streets of Dublin. The authorities had been warned that a desperate attempt at rescue might be made by the mob and even though a military escort had been provided, there was some uneasiness. In these circumstances a really brilliant notion occurred to the officer in command of the troops. He gave instructions at the last moment that the suspender buttons on the trousers of the prison-ply befriends them out of pity! Are you angry because of that, Henriette?" "I am angry because she is English, and her boy is English, and yet they are allowed to live among us as if they were French. I tell you they will be traitors when the time for treachery comes!" Jeems had stood with his fingers clenched at the unyielding iron of the knocker. Now he heard another voice and knew it was Toinette's. "I think Jeems' mother is nice," she said. "But Jeems is a detestable little English beast!" "And some day that beast will help to cut our throats," added her mother unpleasantly. The great iron knocker fell with a crash, and almost before the sound of it reached a servant's ears, the door swung open and Jeems stalked in. The women were speechless as he stood in the wide opening to the room in which they were seated. He scarcely seemed to realize they were there and looked only at Toinette. He remained for a moment without movement or speech, his slim figure tense and gripped. Then he bowed his head in a courtesy which Catherine had carefully taught him. When he spoke his words were as calm as those of Madame Tache had been. "I have come to tell you I am sorry because of what happened at Lussan's place, Toinette," he said, and he bent his head a little lower toward her. "I ask you to forgive me."

Even Henriette Tonteur could not have thought of him as a beast after that, for pride and fearlessness were in his bearing in spite of the whiteness of his face. As the occupants of the room stared at him, unable to find their voices, he drew back quietly and was gone as suddenly as he had appeared. The big door closed behind him, and turning to a window near her Toinette saw him go down the steps. An exclamation of indignation and amazement came at last from her mother, but this she did not hear. Her eyes were following Jeems. He went across the open and into the fields. As he drew near the foot of Tonteur hill, Odd came cautiously forth to meet him, but not until they reached their old resting place at the crest of the ascent did he pause or seem to notice the dog. Then he looked back upon the seigneurie. A bit of iron had sunk into his soul. His eyes were seeing with a new and darker vision. From the rich valley which had been the fount of all his dreams they turned to the faint gleam of distant water in the south where lay Lake Champlain, and beyond which, not far away, were the Mohawks and the English and the land of his mother's people. It was the blood of that land, running red and strong in his veins, which Toinette and her mother hated.

He dropped a hand upon Odd's head, and the two started over the homeward trail. The dog watched the forest and caught its scents, but he watched and guarded alone, for Jeems gave small heed to the passing interests of the woods and thickets. Late spring, then the beginning of summer, followed Hepsibah's arrival at the Bulain home, and still he gave no betrayal of the restlessness which presaged his usual disappearance for another long period into the fastnesses of the world. This season of the year was always one of torment for the forest dwellers because of the winged pests which crawled the earth and filled the air, and Jeems had come to dread it as an indescribable nightmare of discomfort and suffering. From the first of June until the middle of August, such plagues of mosquitoes bred and multiplied in the swamps and lowlands and woods that beasts were half devoured alive and the pioneers literally fought for their own existence, smothering their cabins incessantly, covering their flesh with hog fat and bear grease, and resorting to every known subtlety that they might snatch a little sleep at night. Within a few days, it seemed to Jeems, a world that had been a paradise of flowers, of sweet scents, of ripening fruits and delicious air was transformed into a hell of insect life which shut out travel in all directions and which invested with poisonous torture every spot where it was not partly subjugated by fire and smoke. The timber was heavy and dark, swamps were undrained, rivers and lakes were shadowed by dense vegetation, and in the humid, sweating mold of these places, the malevolent pestilence was born and rose in clouds that sometimes obscured the face of the moon. During these weeks a cordon of decayed stumps and logs smoldered night and day about the Bulain cabin, screening it in pungent smoke, and outside this small haven, work on the farm was continued at a price of physical martyrdom, except under a burning sun, when the insects sought refuge from the glare and heat. Distinctively American Home That Will Suit Prospective Builders

A compact home of six rooms and bath. The exterior is broken up neatly with the gable over the entrance which tends to soften the roof lines. Study the floor plan and see how convenient the rooms are laid out. Here is a genuine home feeling.

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Those who have traveled through Pennsylvania, Maryland and New Jersey will recognize at once that the colonial type home shown in the accompanying illustration is patterned after the homes that were built in those states a hundred or more years ago. The design of this home is almost an exact copy of those built by the second or third generations of the settlers of those states. While it is not the type of colonial home that is found in New England, it is suggestive of them in that it has the shuttered windows and the clapboard siding. This is a compact home design, six rooms and bath. The exterior is broken up neatly with a gable over the entrance, the wide dormer and the broken lines of the pitched roof which extend out to form the porch roof. An outside fireplace chimney of brick is also a distinctive feature. The entrance at the corner leads into a reception hall. Off this reception hall is the living room, 12 feet 6 inches by 15 feet 6 inches. At the rear through a casad opening is the dining room, 11 feet 6 inches by 12 feet and adjoining it is the kitchen, 8 feet 6 inches by 11 feet. Stairs to the second floor run out of the reception hall and end in a side hall upstairs. Here are three bedrooms, each a corner room. The one at the front corresponds with the living room in size, while the one at the back corresponds with the dining room. The third bedroom is small and is over the kitchen. At the front and at the end of the upstairs hall is the bathroom. This house is 24 feet by 26 feet, exclusive of the porch projection. It is of standard frame construction set on a concrete foundation with the basement the same size as the house. This is a distinctly American home and will suit the ideas of a great many prospective home builders. The rooms are commodious and the exterior of the house is attractive. The wide deep porch is inviting, and when this house is set on a site which permits of plantings of trees and shrubs, it will make a most attractive home.

Plumbing and Heating 20 Per Cent of Price

Building contractors have found that the cost of plumbing fixtures and installation is 9.9 per cent of the total cost of a home. The cost of the heating plant and its installation in the average home is 8.3 per cent. Thus the total cost of these two items is less than 20 per cent of the price the owner pays for his home. In view of this comparatively low cost and the importance of plumbing and heating, the home builder should not try to cut down on these items, it is pointed out by builders. If he does try to cut down, it is likely that he will have to spend money on repairs in a few years. Plumbing repairs are among the most inconvenient operations required for the upkeep of a home that has been unwisely planned. If the roof leaks, a bundle of roofing material and a few hours of carpenter-labor are, likely, all that will be needed to make things right. If cheap hardware has been used, it may be replaced with little nuisance and cost. Even if a poor job of plastering has been done, it can be fixed without disturbing the whole household. But if inferior plumbing fixtures are installed by an irresponsible plumber, sooner or later they will break down under the strain of daily use. Not only will the fixtures have to be replaced, it also will be necessary to go into the walls to make changes in the fittings. This may necessitate tearing out the tiling or flooring. All this requires labor and time, and it is disastrous to the routine of the family. First cost is last cost if excellent plumbing accessories and fittings are bought and installed by a reputable plumbing contractor. With wise selection, the 9.9 cents of the building dollar allotted for plumbing will buy beauty, permanence, convenience, and satisfactory performance of the most vital functions of a home. It is poor economy, too, to have too small a bathroom or an inadequate number of bathrooms. While some families may not be able to afford the ideal arrangement of one bathroom with every bedroom, there should be at least one bathroom for every two bedrooms in every house. Nothing adds so much to the salability of a house as an adequate number of modern and colorful bathrooms. There is no better time than when a house is being built to plan for the proper number of bathrooms. While it is true that bathrooms can be added later, if necessary, it is best to have the full number included in the original contract. Other conveniences, too, such as a modern compartment sink or an electrical dishwashing sink, a downstairs lavatory, and possibly an extra closet combination or a shower in the basement should be included in the plumbing fixtures of a house because they will save time and steps in a house for all members of the family.

Judicious Use of Color Adds Dignity to House

The colonial is still the most popular architectural style in America. In the thirteen original states, houses dating back to colonial times are regarded as models for many houses built today; and in other parts of the country, we often see houses in the colonial manner that remind us of the homes the early settlers left to travel west. The colonial house receives from this age one important contribution—additional color. The traditional white or yellow for the body and the darkened green for the shutters does not completely satisfy the growing taste for color today. New notes of color are added to the shutters, sashes and window boxes. Odd colored designs copied from colonial decoration are often picked out in the shutters. Bright curtains may be seen at the windows. The upright dignity of the colonial house and its gracious proportions are accentuated by a judicious use of color. But restraint must be exercised for best effects. There is no reason for gilding a lily or hiding the classic beauty of a colonial house with circus wagon colors.

Why Officials Did Not Sign Large Contracts

Much has been heard about Coolidge economy, but perhaps the largest single saving to the government antedated Coolidge by nearly five years. It was made by Judge Walter Winter Warwick, then comptroller of the treasury. One afternoon in November, 1918, Judge Warwick was asked by General Goethals to drop in at the War department. Warwick found Goethals and a bevy of other high officials seated around a huge table heaped with papers. "Those papers are contracts," Goethals explained. "They represent the result of months of negotiation with private manufacturers. None of them have been signed, but we have told the manufacturers in each case that we expect to sign them. They cover munitions and other supplies, and in each case the manufacturer has gone ahead on the assumption that the contract would be signed. "Since these negotiations were started, however, the armistice has been signed. Now, what we would like to know, Judge Warwick, is whether that makes any difference—whether we can legally sign them." Judge Warwick looked at the papers. "How much money is involved in these contracts?" he asked. "Oh, I suppose, roughly, a billion dollars," Goethals replied. "Well, gentlemen," replied Judge Warwick, "I can only say this: If you sign them every last one of you will go to the penitentiary." He walked out and the contracts were not signed. One billion dollars, more or less, remained in the federal treasury.—Collier's Weekly.

Make Scientific Study of Scourge of Leprosy

The ancient scourge of leprosy is being intensively studied in Hawaii with a view to steady reduction in the number of cases and eventually to eradication. Gov. Lawrence M. Judd has appointed a committee which includes men who have given many years of attention to leprosy cases. Their report, just concluded but not made public, deals not only with medical treatment, but with measures for segregation of lepers and closer control of the disease. Hawaii for many years has treated leprosy without special fear, knowing that care in handling it sufficiently protects doctors and nurses from contamination. Measures suggested to the governor by the commission will be embodied in legislation by the territory of Hawaii next spring.

"Come-Back" for the Horse

There are positive indications that the horse is returning to favor throughout France and particularly in Paris. In the French capital more and more horses are appearing on the streets every day. The explanation is that the traffic is so congested that for delivery purposes the automobile has ceased to have any advantage. It cannot be economically used unless it can be kept moving. Under these circumstances the horse makes a better showing than the car. It does not represent as great an investment and its life of usefulness is longer.

SERRADELLA FARM HERD HAS HEALTH RECORD

The Serradella Farm herd has just passed and qualified for its tenth successive accreditation certificate under the state and federal tuberculosis accreditation system.

It is the only herd thus accredited and maintained north of Saginaw. At the same time that the tuberculosis test was performed samples of the blood for abortion were taken. One hundred sixteen blood samples were tested by the state laboratories with not a single positive reactor. This is the fourth successive clear test in the past 18 months.

The aim of the Serradella Farm is to maintain this enviable health record of its herd at all cost. No effort is being spared to maintain the sanitary and hygienic standard thus far established to keep the herd free from possible infection.

The milk of this health record herd goes to supply baby milk for the cities of Bay City and Saginaw, also for the schools of Bay City. The main object is to produce a milk that can be safely used, especially for infants and growing children, in its natural form. In infant feeding this is most essential.

The final judging will be done by a committee which will be announced later. The details of the plan will be administered by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club work with offices in Chicago.

Any boy or girl in the United States who will be of college age by September, 1932, and who is a member of a 4-H Club on March 31, 1931, may compete.

2. One hundred scholarships of $50 each will be awarded to 100 members selected by a judging committee from a list of 500 members submitted to the judging committee by the 4-H Club management.

3. These scholarships will be geographically distributed as follows: For the purpose of making the awards, the nation has been divided into four sections: The eastern section, 10; southern, 35; central, of which Michigan is a part, 40; western, 15.

4. After October 1, 1931 the 4-H Clubs shall select 500 candidates for the scholarships from those entering the contest, distributed geographically as above, and shall submit their names before November 1, 1931 to the judging committee, with details of the qualifications of each candidate.

5. The judging committee is to be announced at a later date. From the list of 500 candidates for scholarships submitted to it the committee shall select the winners of the 100 scholarships, and shall further select a list of 100 from which alternates may be chosen to receive any scholarships left vacant by default of the holders. The winners and alternates will be announced at the annual Harvester Company luncheon to 4-H Club members during the Tenth National 4-H Club Congress in December, 1931.

6. Selection of the 500 candidates by the 4-H Club management and of the 100 winners by the judging committee shall be based on the relative value to agriculture of the 4-H Club service performed by the contestants between January 1, 1931 and October 1, 1931.

7. In order to secure representation in the awards for all the diversified major phases of agriculture, scholarships shall be allotted for the different 4-H Club projects as follows:

Corn, 16; cotton, 7; small grain, 6; potato, 3; tobacco, 2; baby beef, 6; pig, 10; sheep, 4; dairy, 16; poultry, 8; open, including Home Economics, fruits, vegetables, etc., 22. Total—100.

8. No scholarship may be used except to defray the expenses of the recipient toward a regular four-year course in agriculture at a state agricultural college or other institution with an approved course selected by such recipient.

9. Use of each scholarship must begin within one year from the date of the announcement of the award. A scholarship winner must notify his or her state club leader in writing or before August 1, 1932, stating his or her intention to use the scholarship. Should such winner be undecided as to use of the scholarship or for other causes, such as sickness, death, or removal be unable to utilize it, such scholarship shall be awarded to the alternate who as nearly as possible represents the same major phase of agriculture and whose residence is nearest to that of the winner.

10. The sum of $200 of the scholarship fund shall be paid to the winner as soon as practicable after matriculation. An additional $200 shall be paid February 1, 1933. A further sum of $100 shall be paid at the time the winner registers for the second collegiate year. All these payments shall be contingent upon receipt of a favorable report from the 4-H Club state leader, that the contestant is properly qualified and is in attendance at an agricultural college.

11. The details of administration of this plan shall be supervised by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work, 360 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Broad "A" Not 1935

Professor Granton of Harvard university says the earlier English "ah" became short "a" by the sixteenth century. Until 1780 or thereabouts the standard language had no broad "a." Benjamin Franklin, who recorded in 1768 the pronunciation of his day, knew no "ah." Evidence indicates that it appeared again in London speech between 1780 and 1790. There is no basis for the statement that it originated with the Irish.

HAWAII PREPARES FOR SERVICE WITH U. S.

Modern Island System of 23,000 Telephones to Connect With Those in This Country

In Hawaii, two thousand miles out in the Pacific Ocean, the Mutual Telephone Company of Honolulu has drawn up an extensive construction program in preparation for the opening of radio telephone service with the United States, which is now scheduled for 1932.

This new undertaking will further improve the modern telephone systems which serve the four principal islands of the Hawaiian Archipelago, and also provides for the construction of radio transmitting and receiving stations to interconnect the several islands. Erection of the powerful radio units necessary to establish commercial telephone service with over twenty million telephones in the United States is one of its outstanding features.

The Hawaiian Islands already have thoroughly modern telephone systems. More than 72% of the 23,000 telephones in the Archipelago are dial telephones, giving Hawaii as high a percentage of automatic telephone operation as any country in the world.

On January 1, 1930, the Hawaiian system ranked seventh in respect to the number of telephones in proportion to population. That these telephones are highly used is revealed by the fact that 71,000,000 calls were made by these 23,000 telephones during 1929—an average of over 3,000 calls for each telephone.

Says Ed Howe, philosopher and journalist, "I often remark the gentleness of telephone girls. . . . If women generally would be as gentle with husbands as with the public, marriages everywhere would average better."

Start the New Year right by seeing and hearing this wonderful picture.

C. E. TANNER LUMBER CO.

We have opened a warehouse in what was formerly the Tawas City Depot, and carry a line of the best-quality building material. We manufacture doors, windows and frames to your order. We invite you to submit your specifications on that new building or repair job.

Second Hand Lumber

We also have a large quantity of second hand doors, windows and lumber which we are selling at low prices.

Saw Filing

Don't use a dull saw! It can be correctly filed and put in shape with our new saw filing machine. Saws gummed.
