WOULD START WORK ON SHORE ROAD SOON

The Isoco County Road Commission is now securing the right-of-way for the new Shore Road. This is in accordance with the arrangement made a couple of years ago by the State Highway Department with the counties through which the Shore Road is to run. The agreement was that if the counties would get the right-of-way, the state would build the road as soon as funds would permit.

Owing to the availability of considerable Federal money which may be applied on this road, the Commission has been advised that if the right-of-way can be secured at once, the job will be let in a few weeks. This money, recently made available by the Federal Government to aid the employment situation, cannot be applied on any job unless completion can be guaranteed by September 1, 1931. If this right-of-way can be secured quickly, it may be possible to guarantee the completion of this work by September 1, which is, perhaps, years sooner than it would otherwise be completed. The Commission is putting forth every effort to secure the property immediately, and many property owners along the route are volunteering to give the land needed because of the road's value to their holdings and in order to get work started sooner and help those out of employment.

The Commission is now hopeful of having the entire right-of-way through the county within a week or so. Owing to the cooperation manifested so far, they believe there will be relief for the local employment situation within a short while.

The last meeting of the local P. T. A., which was held in the school building Thursday evening, January 8, was well attended. We estimate that there were about two hundred people present. In loving remembrance of our son, Harvey Rhodes, who passed away one year ago, January 11, 1930.

A precious one from us has gone, A voice we loved is stilled; A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled. God in His wisdom has recalled, The boon His love had given; And though the body slumbers here, The soul is safe in heaven.

PRESCOTTS CLOSE HARDWARE STORE

Announcement was made Thursday that the C. H. Prescott & Sons hardware store would close. The store had been in operation over 40 years. It was closed in settling the Prescott estate.

This well known hardware store was the last department of C. H. Prescott & Sons' big store established here during the lumbering days. With the passing of the lumbering era the grocery and dry goods departments were sold but the hardware department was continued by the firm and was one of the most completely stocked stores of the kind in Northeastern Michigan, with a large patronage extending much beyond the trade area of Tawas City and the confines of county lines.

The high esteem in which the firm was held by its customers and the extensive line of hardware carried had placed the store in a position where its discontinuance will be felt as a great loss by the people of the whole county.

CHAS. DIXON PURCHASES BRITTING BARGAIN STORE

Charles J. Dixon has purchased the Britting Bargain Store and has removed it from the Galbraith building to the Kelly building. The store will be known as Dixon's Stop and Shop Store.

Lyman Britting, the former owner, has joined in partnership with Roy Clark to engage in the commercial fishing business.

SOUTH SEAS DRAMA AT STATE THEATRE

"The Sea God," an adventure drama of the South Seas, featuring Richard Arlen and Fay Wray, is the State Theatre offering for Sunday and Monday, January 18 and 19.

The story concerns the adventures of Arlen, with Miss Wray as a stow-away on his ship, in his expedition to an island in search of pearls. The high point is reached when Arlen dons deep-sea armor and explores the ocean bed for pearls. While he is under water savages attack and burn his boat and capture Miss Wray and the first mate, Palette. When Arlen's air supply begins to fail, he cuts his connecting hose and walks to the beach. Unable to remove the heavy helmet, he faints from exhaustion. Waking, he struggles along the beach to the native village, where the cannibals are holding the girl and the mate. The savages mistake him in his grotesque suit, for a god! They bow down before him, offer him priceless jewels, place him on an altar. Arlen is quick to take advantage of the amazing and dangerous situation, and saves the lives of the two captives.

The next day the ship of Arlen's rival arrives, terrorizing the natives with cannon fire and attacks. Arlen escapes with Miss Wray to a cave, after she had cut open his diving suit to free him. The rival and his men found them and sent the girl to the enemy's ship. A counter-attack by the savages and Arlen's recall of his godlike diving armor again puts the situation in his hands; the conclusion being as sweet and remunerative to him as it is disastrous to his enemies.

On Sunday, January 18th, I purpose starting a series of sermons on the "Remarkable Conversion of the Bible." Number one will be "Rahab the Harlot." The history of this woman is found in only two chapters of the Old Testament, but if we had only looked at that record, we might not have placed her among the Bible Converts. But when we find her held up by the Apostle Paul as one of the illustrious heroines of faith, and by St. James as one whose faith was living and true, followed by "Good Fruits," then we see that the Holy Spirit has designated that she should stand among the seed of God's chosen, and as an extraordinary convert of the Old Testament. If you would know your Bible, then attend these services.

WILL INSTALL NEW TALKING EQUIPMENT

Manager A. J. Berube of the Family Theatre, East Tawas, announced today that he had concluded negotiations with RCA Photophone, Inc., New York City, for the installation of its sound reproducing equipment in his theatre. In making the announcement, Manager Berube said that installation engineers would arrive within a short time.

"It is with a great deal of satisfaction that I make this announcement," said Manager Berube. "Having had many opportunities to see various types of sound reproducing equipment in operation in various theatres, it did not take me long to come to a decision when I saw and heard the RCA Photophone projection apparatus in operation. In my opinion, having made comparisons with other sound reproducing equipment, it is the best. The recent action of the United States government in awarding RCA Photophone the contract to equip the entire Navy with sound apparatus, entailing in the aggregate about three hundred complete projection units, which followed the installation of Photophone in sixty United States army posts, seemed to confirm that opinion. Now I have just learned that the army has ordered eleven more Photophone equipments.

"Dependent solely upon those who have so liberally patronized my theatre in the past, I felt obligated to give them the best sound reproducing equipment available. Therefore, I investigated a number of theatres where various types of sound projection apparatus had been installed and not only heard the sound delivered by them but carefully inspected the machines in the projection rooms.

IOSCO CHURCH SCHOOLS

"The Challenge of the Cross," a sacred drama, is to be presented at the Hale M. E. church, Sunday, January 25. An unusually large crowd welcomed the giving of this drama at Hemlock Road last Sunday evening. The offering of $6.80 is much appreciated by the Young People's Division of the Council. The entire receipts of this drama are used to promote religious work among the young people of the county.

The first of a series of young people's rallies was held at the East Tawas M. E. church last Sunday afternoon. Prayer was the theme of both the worship service and the discussion period. Following the devotionals, light refreshments were served by the local chapter of the Epworth League.

The second young people's rally of the series is to be held at the McVior church, Sunday, January 18, 2:30 p. m. Central Standard Time. All young people of senior high school age and older are invited. An interesting meeting is assured.

Twelve adults met in the Guild Hall of the East Tawas Christ Episcopal church last Saturday evening and organized a Leadership Training class to study pageantry and dramatics in religious education, with Mrs. C. E. Edinger as instructor. This subject promises to be one of the most interesting ever taught in our county. The class meets from seven to nine o'clock every Saturday evening. All those desiring to take the course for credit must enroll not later than Saturday, January 17.

More than seventy-five young people gathered at the McVior church last Friday evening under the able leadership of Mrs. Olive Davison of Tawas City. Following an interesting devotional meeting, games and refreshments were enjoyed. Mrs. Davison and her helpers are to be congratulated upon the exceptional success of this splendid project which they are sponsoring. It is most unusual to find so large a number of young people gathered together in a meeting of this character. The Council of Religious Education extends greetings and wishes the group continued success.

THE TWO BLACK CROWS CREATE PANIC OF FUN

Moran and Mack, the Two Black Crows, arrive at the State Theatre next Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday to dig themselves into the ribs of their patrons in a sure fire laugh production called "Anybody's War."

Based on the novel, "The Two Black Crows in the A. E. F.," by Charles E. Mack, leader of the team, "Anybody's War" is so richly endowed with exuberatingly comical material that its makers could have made two full length pictures out of it, had they a mind to. The story deals with the adventures of the two dusky comedians in the trenches of France. It opens with scenes in the quaint little town of Buford, Tennessee, where Mack is the official Dog Catcher, an office-holder who is so kind-hearted that he never kills the dogs he captures. Instead, he takes them to his little shack and boards them there, hiding them in the cellar whenever a higher official from the town pays him a visit. Moran is seen as his side-kick who gets soldier- fever and joins the recruits for the big scrap overseas.

Mack tries to enlist but is thrown out because of his feet. Picking up Deep Stuff, his favorite canine captive, he sneaks aboard the transport with the soldiers. Officials give him another examination, from the ankles up and he is permitted to join the khaki ranks. Then follows the exciting adventures that make "Anybody's War" everybody's fun.

EAST TAWAS HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

The P. T. A. will hold their regular meeting next Monday, January 19, at the high school at 7:45, C. S. T. Dr. M. Kettle, dentist, will explain in a brief talk what the children's fund of Michigan is doing for Isoco County. Four boys, Alfred Gurley, Walter Klump, Blaine Christeson and Lloyd McKay will report on the Older Boys' Conference held in Bay City. The Girls' Glee Club will furnish the music. Light refreshments will be served during the social hour. Several high school girls will entertain any youngsters in the Kindergarten in order that parents may attend the meeting. It is urged all parents make a special effort to attend.

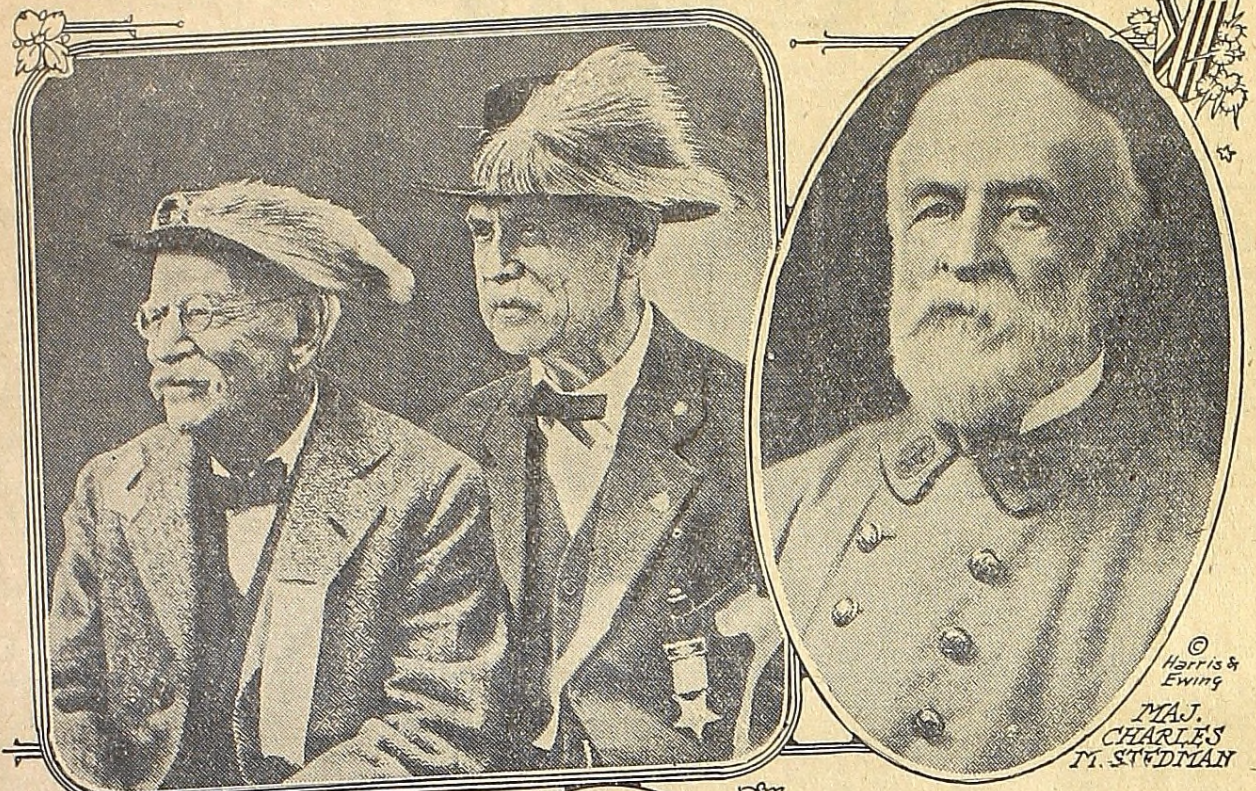

The first semester examinations will be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, January 28, 29 and 30. All students above the sixth grade are required to take them. Two hours will be permitted to write each examination. Examination grades will count one third of the semester grade. A thorough review now is much more beneficial than any midnight "cramming" the night before examinations.

Tuesday, January 13, the varsity basketball squad easily downed the undefeated Standish high team, 20 to 12. The game was marked by the brilliant defensive play of the East Tawas team during the first three quarters of the game. Our boys also exhibited a sparkling offensive; every player who entered the fray displayed a wonderful bit of fighting spirit, coupled up with a fine brand of basketball. Our reserve strength seems to be able to enter the game and play as good ball as the first stringers. The fans were well pleased with the game and also delighted over the outcome, as Standish is one of our most bitter rivals.

"Last Survivors"

W.A. MCKAY AND HARLEY DRIPS, TWO "BUCKTAILS" International Photo

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

RESS dispatches from Chicago recently carried a story about a famous Civil war regiment of which there are now only three survivors out of an original total of 1,184. The story reads as follows:

"Three are all that's left to form a company—that's what they called them in the old days even in the cavalry—but you can't have much of a reunion of the Eight Illinois cavalry with only three to answer roll call even in Memorial hall at Randolph street and Michigan avenue. Since Comrade George Perry, ninety years old, died last summer at his home in Sycamore, there isn't going to be any sixty-fifth annual reunion.

"Not that the glorious old Eighth is actually disbanded, but the gaping rows of vacant chairs and the too generous spaces of the hall that now toss back at them the quavering echoes of their odd voices lifted in the songs that once roared lustily up to the rafters waken too many memories. Too many gentle ghosts walk there.

"So the faded old flags have been furled for the last time. The records will remain closed. Finis is being written to the gallant regiment that on October 18 back in 1861 rode up Pennsylvania avenue in Washington past the White House, where the troops halted to give three rousing cheers for Abraham Lincoln. The regiment that the President watching them dubbed in his own quaint phraseology, 'Farnsworth's Big Abolition Regiment.'

"They were eleven hundred and eighty-four strong that day, mounted but without carbines or sabers, John F. Farnsworth, who recruited them, largely from Chicago and Evanston, at Camp Kane, St. Charles, Ill., was elected first colonel of the regiment. He had reason to look upon them proudly.

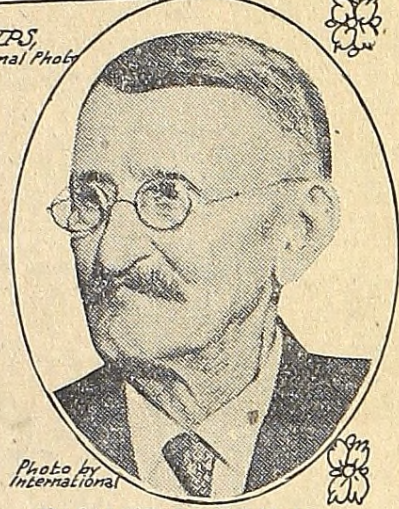

"Those who remain of the regiment that was mustered out of service at Benton Barracks, St. Louis, in June of 1865 and returned to Chicago for final payment and discharge are J. R. Duff of Dundee, Henry Eichfield of Milwaukee and C. W. Blatherwick of Chicago. Comrade Duff was captain of the vanished post."

Such a story could be written about almost every regiment which marched away to war 70 years ago, for of more than three millions who wore the Blue or the Gray in 1861 to 1865, only a handful remain. Last summer in Stillwater, Minn., there took place a dramatic scene which symbolized strikingly the passing of "the rear guard of the Civil war." It was the last meeting of the now-famous "Last Man's Club"—a meeting attended by only one man. He was Charles Lockwood, eighty-seven years old, now a resident of Chamberlain, S. D., but once a member of a group of young men who responded to President Lincoln's first call for volunteers.

It was on Sunday morning, April 21, 1861, that a company of gay young men marched from Stillwater after a night of dancing at the Sawyer house. They went to Fort Snelling, where they were formed into Company B, First Minnesota Volunteer Infantry. Then came Bull Run, battle of Fair Oaks, Antietam and Fredericksburg. They built the Grapevine bridge, salvation of Keyes corps at Seven Pines in '62. After Pickett's charge at Gettysburg only a few of the gallant Company B remained fit for duty.

In 1885 several of the veterans decided to form an organization of their comrades. They met on September 17, 1885. The ranks of the company had declined from 89 to 34. Louis Hospes, father of Al Hospes, known as the "baby" of the company, gave the organization a bottle of Burgundy wine, and it was decided to form a "Last Man's Club," and the last man was to open the wine and drink a final toast to his departed comrades. Each took a pledge to do this. The purpose of the organization was to keep "alive the memory of the fallen comrades."

"I think the boys got the idea of the Last Man's club from reading some story of French soldiers," says Lockwood. "They used to have those wine suppers every year." It was decided to hold the annual reunions on July 21, the anniversary of the Battle of Bull Run. Each year on that day the veterans would assemble at the Sawyer house after a group of them had gone to the first National bank and taken from its vault the old bottle of wine which was kept in a case along with a poem written by the late H. E. Hayden in 1887. The poem was entitled "The Last Survivor to His Dead Comrades."

"The camp fire smolders—ashes fall, The clouds are black against the sky; No taps of drums, no bugle call; My comrades, all goodby."

By 1929 there were only three of the 34 left—Lockwood, John S. Goff of St. Paul and Peter Ball of Atwater, Minn. Within the next year both Goff and Ball had died, so when July 21, 1930, came around it fell to the lot of Lockwood to hold the last meeting of the "Last Man's Club." So he stood alone among the 33 empty chairs, black-draped, set about a table in the Lowell inn, which stands on the site of the old Sawyer house—"a tired old man, prideself winner of a race against death," press dispatches of the time described him—raised his glass in salute "to my comrades!" took a sip of what had once been sparkling Burgundy wine but which had by this time turned to vinegar, and repeated the words of "The Last Survivor to His Dead Comrades." Then with his promise fulfilled he turned away—and the "Last Man's Club" had reached its destiny of dissolution.

When the Grand Army of the Republic went to Portland, Maine, for its annual grand encampment in 1929, two veterans attracted much attention by the insignia which they wore on their hats. The ornament was the tail of a deer, for these two men, William A. McKay of Utica, Pa., and Harley Drips of Derby, Pa., both of the Samuel P. Town post of the G. A. R. in Philadelphia, are among the few survivors of the famous "Bucktail" regiments of Pennsylvania. There were two regiments of "Bucktails" in Civil war days—the First Pennsylvania Rifles and later the One Hundred Fiftieth Pennsylvania Rifles.

So far as is known the last survivor of the original "Bucktail" regiment, the First Pennsylvania Rifles, died in 1927. An issue of the Potter County Journal at Coudersport, Pa., during that year contained this news story:

The recent death of Charles W. Dickenson, aged eighty-eight, marked the passing of the last member of the original Bucktail regiment, famous for its record during the Civil war.

The regiment, organized in 1861, through the influence of Gen. Thomas L. Kane, founder of the city of Kane, was made up largely of hardy mountaineers of this section of the country. On April 18, 1861, representatives from McKean, Elk and Cameron counties met at the Smethport courthouse in answer to summons sent out by General Kane. Three companies, the McKean County Rifles, the Elk County Rifles and the Cameron County Wild Cats, were organized and formed the nucleus of what later became the Bucktail regiment.

It was at Smethport that the insignia by which the regiment came to be known was adopted. The day the recruits assembled at Smethport, April 25, 1861, James Landregan, member of the McKean County Rifles, while passing a meat market where a deer's carcass was on display, cut off the animal's tail, stuck it in his hat and proceeded to headquarters. Thomas L. Kane, who later became a general, observed the buck's tail and seizing upon the idea, announced that the force he was recruiting should be known as the Bucktails. Within a short time the deer's carcass was divested of its hide which was cut into strips to resemble buck tails and attached to their caps.

After marching over the mountains the McKean and Elk county troops joined those of Cameron county at Emporium and continued their march to Driftwood on the Sinnemahoning, a branch of the Susquehanna river.

Rafts had been constructed of lumber for their journey down the Susquehanna to Lock Haven. And on April 27, 1861, the forces numbering 315 men embarked and at Lock Haven boarded a train for Harrisburg where they were mustered into service.

Visitors to the state capitol at Harrisburg, Pa., can see in the cases which hold the tattered ensigns of the Keystone state regiments that of the One Hundred Fiftieth Pennsylvania Rifles, a flag which has an interesting history. During the battle of Gettysburg the "Bucktails" were forced to abandon their position on Seminary Ridge and fall back into the town. During this retreat the wounded color-bearer became separated from his comrades and the flag fell into the hands of the Confederates. Later it was presented to President Jefferson Davis, and was found among his effects when he was captured in 1865, and in 1869 it was restored to the state of Pennsylvania.

In the city of Alexandria, Va., lives the sole survivor now of the 600 or 700 Alexandrians who fought with the Confederates. He is Edgar Warfield, a member of Company H, Seventeenth Virginia regiment, known as the Old Dominion Rifles.

Last year also saw the passing of an even more famous "last survivor" of the "Lost Cause." For when Maj. Charles M. Stedman died on September 23, 1930, the Congress of the United States lost its sole survivor of the Civil war serving our national legislature. Up until recent years there were a number of Civil war veterans, both those who wore the Blue and those who wore the Gray, in both houses of congress. But the last decade saw the number cut down steadily until 1925 when there were only three left. In that year Gen. Isaac Sherwood of Ohio retired to private life at the age of ninety and his departure marked the passing of the last Union veteran from the house of representatives. In 1929 Senator Francis Warren of Wyoming died and the last Union veteran was gone from the senate. And last year the death of Major Stedman of North Carolina removed not only the last Confederate veteran but also the last Civil war veteran on either side from both houses.

Major Stedman was born January 29, 1841, in Pittsboro, N. C., and entered the University of North Carolina at the age of sixteen. He was graduated from the university in 1861 and received his diploma, but before the commencement exercises could be held he had responded to a call for volunteers and enlisted as a private in the Fayetteville Light Infantry company which was a part of the First North Carolina (or Bethel) regiment. Upon the disbanding of this regiment he joined a company from Chatham county, rose to the rank of lieutenant, then captain and finally major. He served in the army of Gen. Robert E. Lee throughout the war and was present at the historic surrender at Appamattox. Major Stedman was wounded three times during the war but survived his wounds to become a lawyer and to be elected from the Greensboro district of North Carolina to the Sixty-second congress 20 years ago.

DAIRY FACTS

WATER REQUIRED BY DAIRY COWS

Of Much Importance to Supply Abundantly Always.

It is a well known fact that heavy producing milk cows require a large amount of water—more than many people realize. When cows have free access to water at all times during the winter months, as when supplied with drinking cups, they consume more than when they have an opportunity to drink only once or twice a day; especially is this true when they are forced to drink ice water.

The fact that milk contains 87 per cent of water in itself indicates that a large supply is needed when a cow produces from 40 to 50 pounds of milk a day. The chief function of water in the animal's body, however, is not to supply the amount needed for her milk. She also needs it for dissolving her food materials, to help distribute the nutritive matter through the body and to remove the waste body cells. It has been stated that 56 per cent of the water consumed by a dairy cow is excreted in the feces, about 13 per cent in the urine, 12 per cent through the skin and about 15 per cent through the milk. In summer more is eliminated through the skin than in winter.

At the Michigan station water consumption by ten dairy cows was measured from the latter part of March to the latter part of July in 1929, while the cows were producing an average of 44 pounds of milk daily. The consumption during that period was 16.9 gallons per cow or about 140 pounds per day. Thus they consumed about 3.2 pounds of water for every pound of milk produced.

The large daily requirement of water calls attention to the importance of providing an abundance at all times. On most farms the water supply is not as adequate during winter as it is during summer, even though the cows may not need quite so much. Where drinking cups can be installed in the dairy barn they will pay good dividends.

Care of Cow Essential for Making Cheap Milk

Clean, palatable foods are necessary in order to make the cheapest milk, the most milk and the best quality of milk. Moldy, dusty hay, musty grains, and all such containing dust make the cleanest and cheapest milk impossible.

Clean straw or clean shavings make splendid bedding, whereas dusty straw, dirt from the hay loft, cheap, dusty hay, and the like mean a dusty barn and dirty, poor-keeping milk.

The best milk pail is the one with the smallest opening at the top. The poorest milk pail is the large, open-topped pail which will collect the most dust.

The milk pails, cans, separators, and all other utensils used for milk must be thoroughly washed and sterilized immediately before milking.

After Freshening Feed Small Amount of Grain

After freshening only a small amount of grain should be fed. A warm bran mash is also beneficial during this period. In fact, bran should form most of the grain fed for two or three days after calving. The cow may be brought on feed gradually, depending on the condition of the udder. If the udder is badly caked or congested, grain should be fed sparingly. If the udder is not badly congested, then the cow may be brought onto feed gradually, having her on a full grain ration at about three weeks after freshening.

Dairy Notes

Milk is approximately 87 per cent water. Too often water is looked upon simply as something to quench thirst.

Roughage is the backbone of the real dairy ration. It determines, to a large extent, the feed cost of producing milk.

A calf well started is a calf half grown. It takes a long time to overcome a setback that a calf may get in the first few days or weeks of its life.

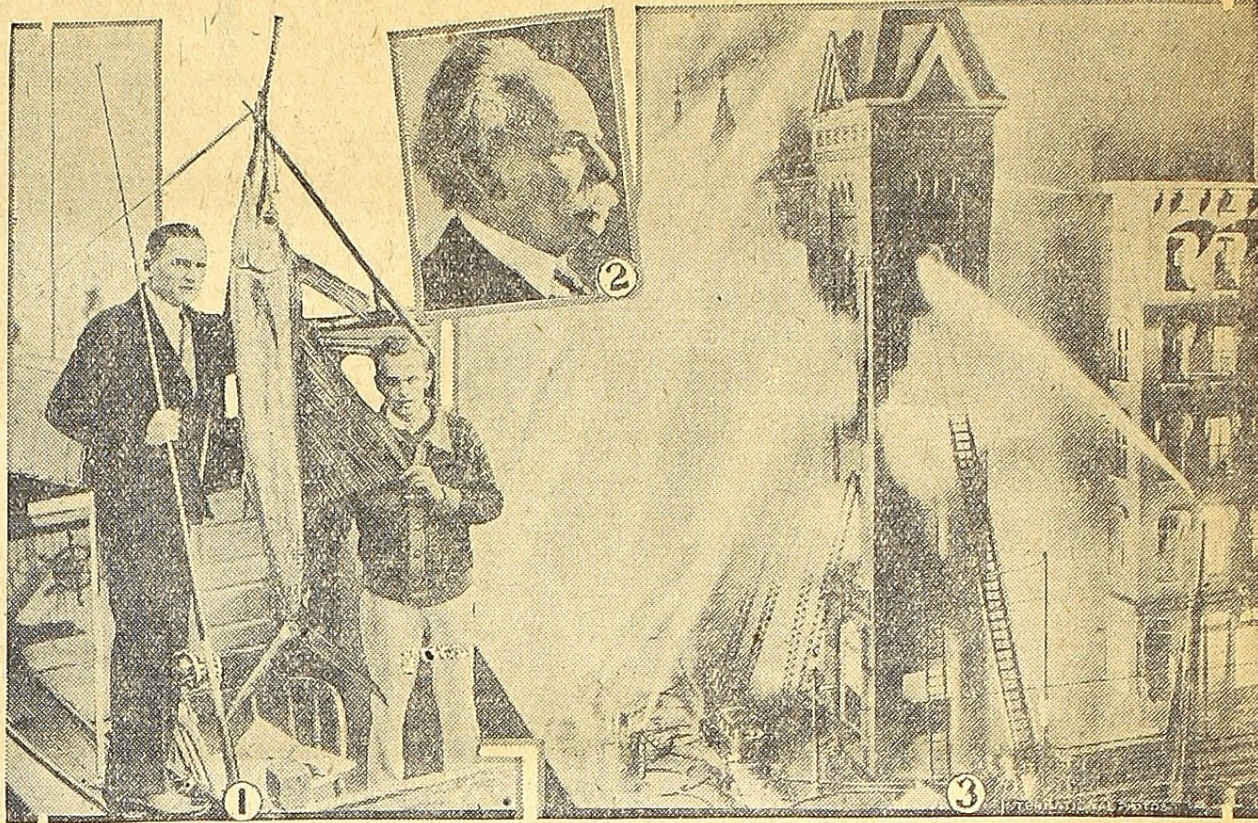

The owner of a low producing dairy herd has no choice—he must send the poorest cows to the butcher, or else he will find himself working for nothing, or less than nothing.

If water is handy cows drink in proportion to the way they milk. If not then cows milk in proportion to the way they drink.

If cows cannot have water at will or cannot fill up on it two or three times per day they must come down in milk production.

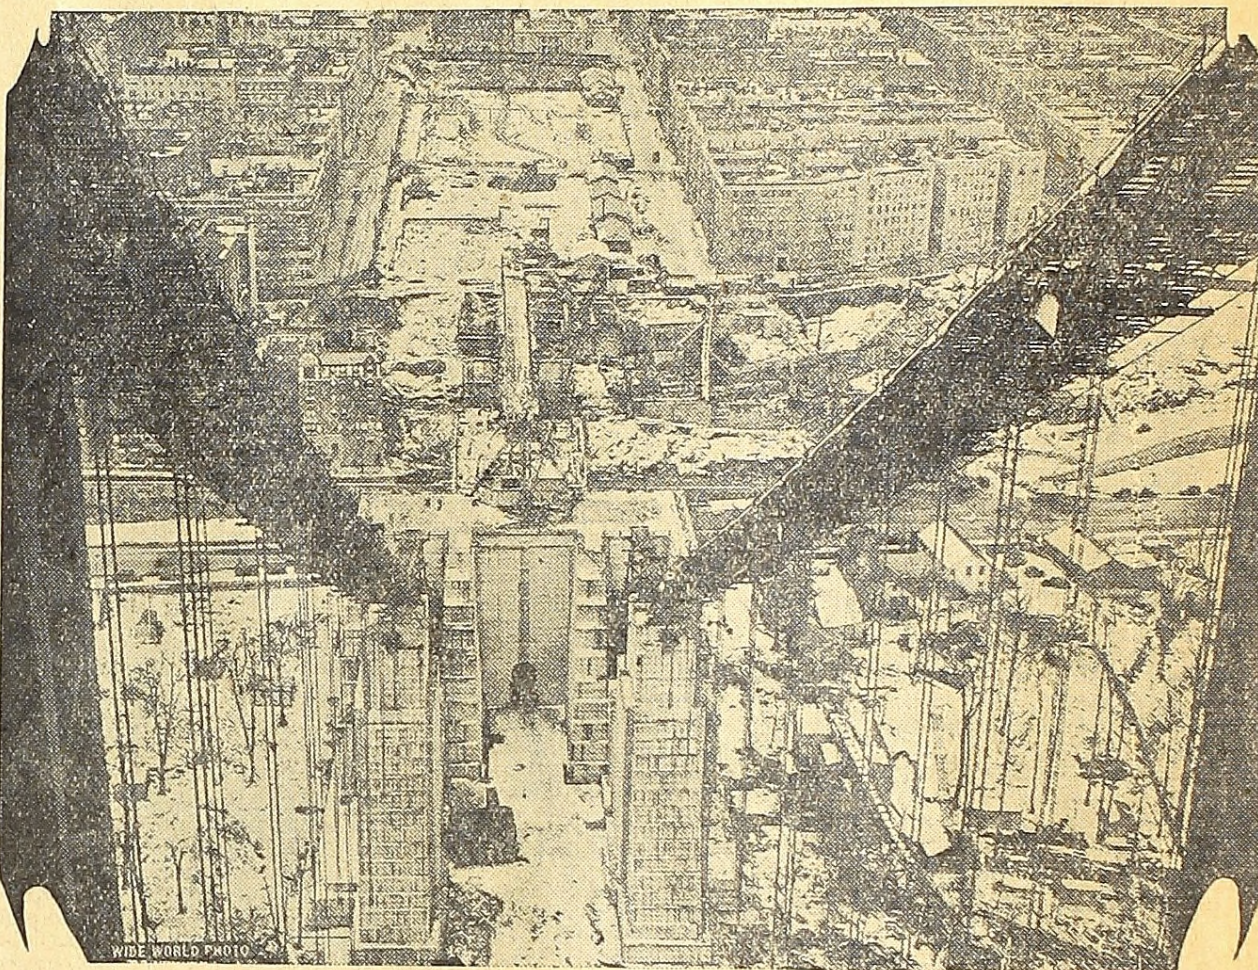

Distance is no handicap in dairy record clubs. A box of samples taken in Holland recently reached the testing laboratory in Wisconsin in good condition, after a 21-day trip.

They Make Us Work

All of us owe a debt to our opponents and our obstacles.—American Magazine.

Rotolactor Washes, Dries and Milks 50 Cows

This Rotolactor, composed of a revolving circular table, 60 feet in diameter, on which 50 cows are washed, dried and milked while they make one complete revolution with the turntable, is an invention just developed at the Walker-Gordon laboratories at Plainsboro, N. J. Three times a day 1,680 cows are milked in this sanitary manner. At the completion of each 12½ minute revolution, each cow returns unguided to her place in the cow barn, an eighth of a mile away. By means of this equipment a degree of cleanliness and purity of milk never before attained is made possible.

Milk Fifty Cows at Same Time

New Contrivance Speeds Product on Way to Consumer's Doorstep.

Plainsboro, N. J.—Times have changed since Uncle Hiram used to slip out to the cow barn before daylight with a lantern and pail to spend a frosty morning milking a few dairy animals.

A crowd made up of dairymen and scientifically minded men gathered here to watch the workings of the latest invention to speed milk on its way from udder to doorstep. Fifty well groomed cows stood facing inward on a revolving merry-go-round, all of them being milked at one time, and being replaced by other cows continuously as they had given their quota of lactal fluid through automatic palpitating tubes.

Untouched by Human Hands.

This contrivance for washing, drying and milking 1,680 cows three times daily is called a "rotolactor," and was set in motion by its inventor, H. W. Jeffers, president of the Walker-Gordon laboratories. Fifteen years ago this man conceived the idea of a central milking plan for cows—whereby the cows came to the milker instead of the milker to the cows.

The continuous flow of a more nutritious milk of maximum biologic value, produced in an air conditioned room called the "lactorium," is never touched by human hands or air impurities, but is conveyed through sanitary pipes to an adjoining laboratory where it is cooled and bottled as certified milk. By certified milk is meant a milk of extra low bacterial content, unpasteurized, and of higher than market standard butterfat test.

Food for 30,000 Babies.

Enough milk comes from this revolving platform in a day to feed 30,000 babies. At the completion of each 12½ minute revolution each cow returns unguided to her place in the cowbarn. The platform is 60 feet in diameter, each stall having its own milking tubes and sterile glass container to record Bossy's contribution.

Uncle Hiram would have been amazed today at the application of science and engineering to his tedious

DISAPPEARANCE OF ESKIMO TRIBE PUZZLES NORTHLAND

"Village of the Dead" Is Discovered in Far Arctic Region by Rov-ing Trapper.

Winnipeg.—One of the unsolved mysteries of the frigid Northland is the disappearance of a whole tribe of Eskimos from their village in the heart of one of the most lonely places on earth—in the Lake Angikuni country, 500 miles northwest of the port of Churchill, on Hudson bay.

Somewhere, somehow, the endless desolation of the barren lands has swallowed up 25 men, women, and children, and thus far no clew has been found that might lead to the solution of the mystery.

The "village of the dead" was discovered by one Joe Labelle, a roving trapper of the barren lands, who came upon the tribe's abandoned camp.

Its tents, made of caribou skins, were still standing. Inside were hides, clothing, cooking utensils, even rifles. There was no sign of violence; no sign of trouble. The place was simply empty.

Mounted police have taken up the hunt, and white trappers have been asked to be on the lookout, but nothing, so far, has been learned.

Even when he spied the tent colony, Labelle said, he sensed that there was something wrong. He had beached his canoe on the edge of the lake, a hundred yards or so distant, and he let out a hail of greeting as he walked up, but there was no answer.

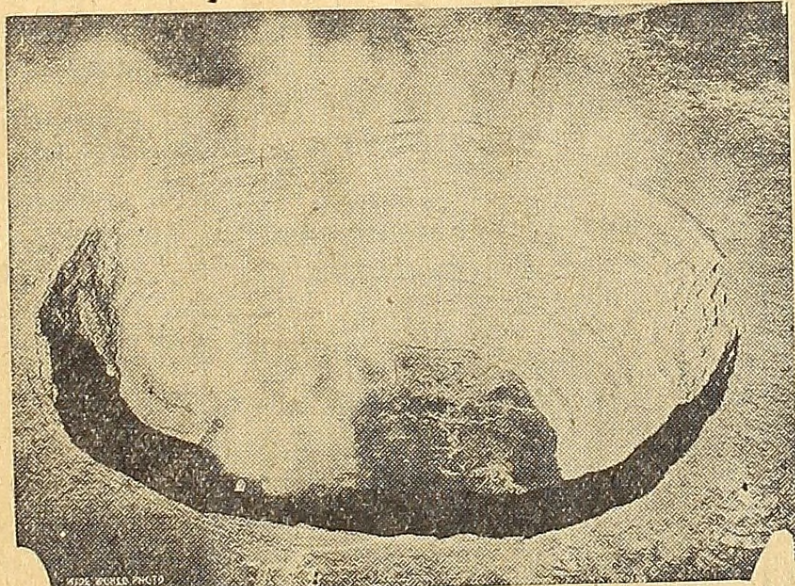

Two Youths End Lives With Homemade Pistol

Terijoki, Finland.—The suicide of two boys in this town, one nine and the other fourteen, with a homemade pistol, loaded with powder, salt and match-ends, has puzzled the Finnish psychopathic authorities. The boys discussed their plans and executed the tragedy with uncanny coolness. A third boy, a playmate, who was with them when they deliberated the act, was told to go away. He remained, however, and is the only witness to the tragedy.

After the fourteen-year-old boy committed suicide, the nine-year-old one picked up the weapon, and, after reloading it, followed his companion's act.

The parents of the boys cannot give any reason for the suicide.

Siamese Woman Claims She Was Dead 4 Days

Bangkok, Siam.—A Siamese woman died for four days and then returned to life here recently—if the stories of the woman and her husband are to be believed.

The woman, Nang Pin by name, is a follower of an Indian fakir who created something of a stir several years ago.

One night Nang Pin announced that the fakir had appeared to her in a dream and ordered her to follow him into the great beyond. She warned her husband not to disturb her.

Four days later the husband summoned a Buddhist priest and informed him that his wife was about to come back from the dead. During the four days, he declared, she had taken no food or water and had not even breathed. At the house the priest performed the "hang sakul" religious service. The woman awoke to tell some remarkable stories of her adventures in the "beyond."

Monument to Inventor of Automatic Telephone

Kansas City, Mo.—Kansas City is planning to erect a monument to the man who suggested the principle of the automatic telephone. He was Almon B. Strowger, an undertaker.

One day 40 years ago Strowger got mad at a telephone operator. He told the company that she was reporting his line busy in order to throw business to a rival undertaker.

A veteran official of the company tells in Collier's of the efforts he made to locate the trouble, which was eventually found to lie in a tin sign hanging over Strowger's telephone—every time the front door opened, drafts swung the sign and short-circuited the instrument.

But in the meantime Strowger had been tinkering with a device which he hoped would do away with telephone girls. It embodied the principle of the dial phone now used in hundreds of cities.

CLEVER FUR-TRIMMED SUITS IS FASHION'S LATEST EDICT

Two Handsome Models.

WOMEN who are looking smartest about town are those who are wearing clever fur-trimmed suits. To all appearance these suits are not as warm as the more cumbersome-looking winter coats, but this is because they are deceiving. As a matter of fact they are quite as "comfy" in most instances, owing to cold-proof interlinings as well as to the materials themselves which are woolen, light in weight and notably warm and protective. Then, too, their voluminous fur collars and massive sleeve embellishments of fur count for genuine comfort.

Then, too, some of these winter ensembles made of sturdy woolen weaves add a full length coat to the jacket-and-skirt suit, which together with a separate costume blouse achieves not only a strikingly handsome four-piece but one which is ready to defy even the severest weather. The advantage of such a foursome (see model to the right in the picture) is that it holds good until late spring as a wearable costume, for it may be tuned to the elements.

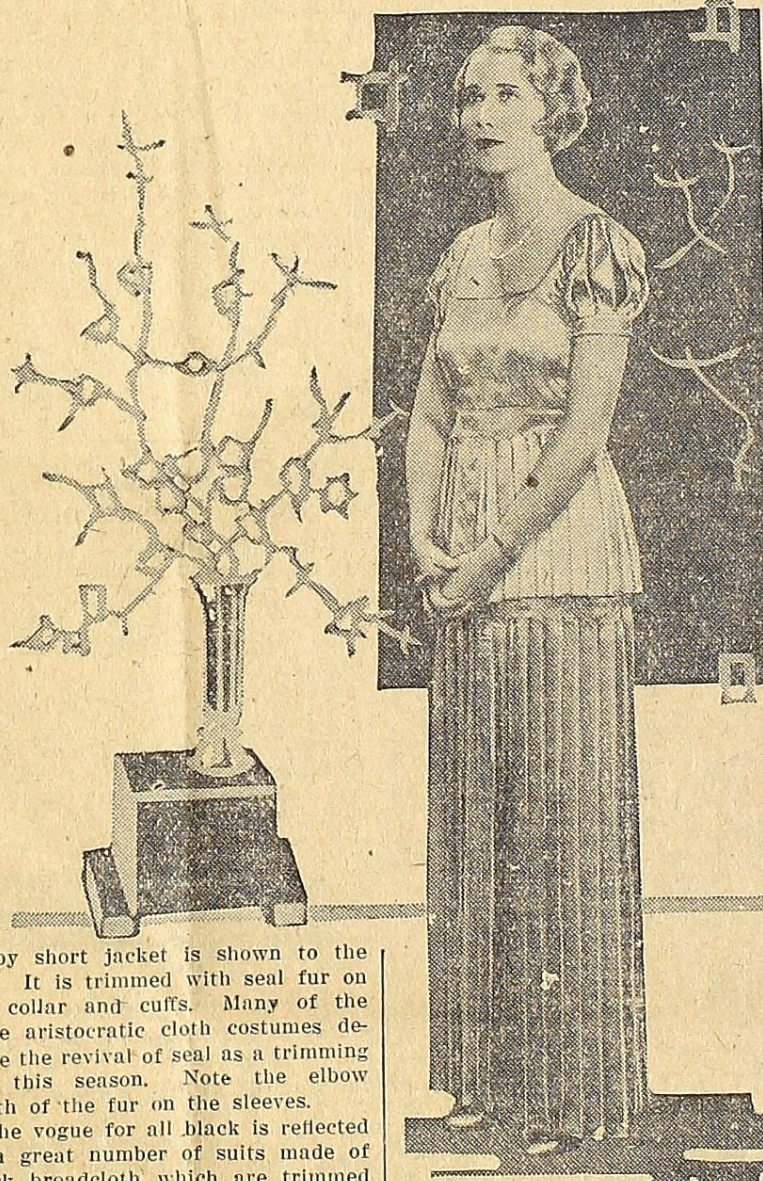

This costume which is a four-in-one proposition consists of a jacket, a skirt, striped blouse and a coat. It is fashioned of gray flannel and is trimmed with mountain goat fur. The fact that it is carried out in all gray is significant, for while gray has not been popular with the masses this winter, it has been highly regarded in circles where exclusive dress is the theme. Spring forecasts are making considerable mention of gray.

A stunning novelty tweed ensemble consisting of a one-piece dress and a left, there are satin frocks everywhere about, but the one in this picture is "different." It departs completely from the rank and file taking on, as it does, an entirely new air of distinction. Which goes to show that the styling of a gown highspots it as much as the material of which it is made.

In this perfectly charming gown posed so prettily by Genevieve Tobin, a Universal film star whom to see is to admire, "lines" as expressed in terms of satin are viewed from a decidedly up-to-the-moment angle. We see here a modernized version of an empire gown developed in oyster blue satin. It revives the raised waistline, adopts the short puffed sleeve, likewise the square-cut decollete neckline—details which are tremendously important if one is keeping tab of spring and summer trends.

Pleats, pleating and pleated is a message which is speeding its way from fashion's broadcasting station in regard to midseason and early spring frocks: Not that pleating is being done in the old stereotyped forms with which we are familiar. It is the striking originality displayed in the new pleated treatments which tells an old story in new language. The arrangement of side pleats in two nobby short jacket is shown to the left. It is trimmed with seal fur on the collar and cuffs. Many of the more aristocratic cloth costumes declare the revival of seal as a trimming for this season. Note the elbow depth of the fur on the sleeves.

The vogue for all black is reflected in a great number of suits made of black broadcloth which are trimmed in handsome black astrakhan and flat furs of similar type. Midseason and early spring will bring these chic suits out in great numbers, for they are practical at the same time that they are good-looking. The newer blouses worn with these suits will add a brightly spring note in that they are gayly colorful and being muchly befuddled they are decidedly youthful in appearance.

Crepe satin remains a favorite material for the blouse. However, advance information refers favorably to the blouse made of printed materials, especially crepe for practical wear. It is very smart for an extremely wide collar pleated of the print silk to trim the blouse, this deep frill worn out over the jacket.

For Evening Wear.

Few evening dress affairs but what record the presence of gleaming satin. Nor does the sentiment for satin show any signs of waning.

Wherever one goes in the social whirl there are satin frocks to the right, there are satin frocks to the

World Ever on Lookout for Ideas Worth While

Cason J. Calloway of La Grange, Ga., "took an idea to market" and found it profitable.

He has kept up a constant search for new ideas to use in his business ever since. And the practice still continues a successful one.

The idea was to buy short staple cotton left after the manufacture of tire fabrics and other cotton goods. It had been selling as waste. Cason Calloway planned to grade it, command higher prices than a waste product would bring and eventually manufacture from it cotton products not requiring a long fiber. In three years his valley waste mill was worth $500,000 and doing nicely.

Since the World war the Calloway group of mills has expanded from nine to fourteen units. Their products are diversified—and that diversification is the result of using new ideas. Often a new idea is the result of an accident.

One day a foreman took to the plant hospital a worker whose little finger had been badly torn. On the way back to the mill he began to remember a number of such accidents. Investigation revealed they all traced to the same cause, the use of cotton waste for cleaning moving machinery. A worker got his fingers tangled in the fibers and before he could free himself had lost or badly injured a digit.

The experimental laboratory was put to work on this problem. It produced a wiping cloth made of the very same waste, that did the work better and eliminated the danger.

Mr. Calloway sent out a surveying group to determine if a market for such cloths existed. And the sale of such cloths last year totaled 50,000-000 units.

ALABASTER SCHOOL NOTES

The fast Alabaster high quintet added two more victories to their string last week by defeating the strong teams from Harrisville and St. Ann of Alpena. The game with Harrisville was probably the best and hardest fought game of the season. Both teams displayed wonderful skill and the score at the end was tied at 25. In the five-minute overtime period that followed, Johnson looped one field goal while the opponents were held to one free shot. The game ended with a score of 28-27. St. James was the referee and he is to be commended on his fine judgment.

On Friday night the boys journeyed to Alpena where they engaged in a game with the skillful St. Anne's team. In the first half the home boys ran away with the Alpena quintet, shooting 19 points to their opponents' 2. However, in the last half the Alpena boys scored 10 points to our 6, making the final score 25 to 12. We look forward to a good game with Alpena on January 23, when a return game will be played at Alabaster. We would like to arrange a game with any local team that we have not already played. Information may be secured from Wm. Rescoe, Box 111.

Some of the pupils are going to East Tawas this week to receive dental care from Dr. Veticik.
Receipts from the sale of Christmas seals this year amounted to $25.49, according to the report of E. R. Erickson, local chairman for the seal sale, as made to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association. The winner of the school nursing award, to which Alabaster is eligible by having a chairman in charge of the sale, will be announced by February first, when all communities will have reported their sales to the Michigan Tuberculosis Association and standings will have been determined. The award will be made on the basis of the number of seals sold in relation to student enrollment in the school. HOCKEY HIS HOBBY

There is a man I know in the newspaper game who always has been of a mathematical turn of mind. He used to amuse himself in his off time by working out baseball averages and rating football teams on a percentage basis of his own devising.

Finally this newspaper man took up golf. He didn't take it up directly. He was led into it by miniature courses and these open country men who are doing a fifty-cent-a-bucket business.

Big Jobs Well Done by Army Corps

Washington.—Conduct of thousands of American Gold Star mothers and widows to military cemeteries in France, partial completion of the army housing program, and the restoration of Robert E. Lee's old home were mentioned as outstanding accomplishments of the army quartermaster's corps in its annual report.

The quartermaster's corps was charged by the secretary of war with making all the arrangements for the Gold Star mothers' European pilgrimage and, Dewitt said, "the most careful consideration was given to this duty."

All work under the 1927 army housing program, providing 600 new hospital beds, housing accommodations for 7,983 enlisted men, 92 noncommissioned officers, and 18 officers' families, has been carried out, Dewitt reported.

ported. In addition the 1928 program has been finished except for commissioned officers' quarters at Selfridge field, Michigan.

Thus far congress has appropriated $40,000,000 for the army housing program. When the 1930 work is done quarters for 4,801 enlisted men, 437 noncommissioned officers' families, 373 officers' families and 29 nurses will have been finished.

There still will need to be provided, Dewitt said, quarters for 14,600 enlisted men, 3,286 officers, and 2,463 noncommissioned officers, envisioned in the permanent housing program.

Restoration of the Robert E. Lee mansion at Arlington, Va., was completed during the last year, the quartermaster general said. Also, more than a third of the furniture needed to give the interior its original appearance has been obtained.

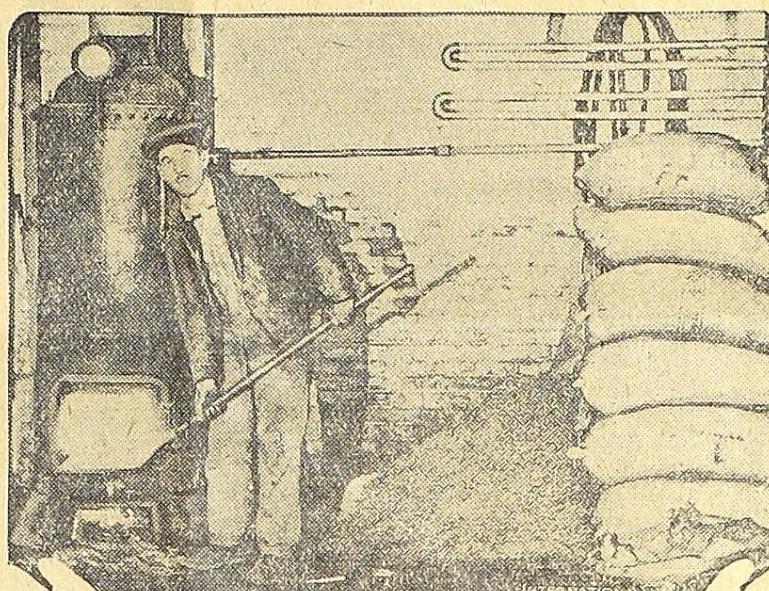

The present strength of the quartermaster's corps is 767 officers and 7,457 enlisted men, Dewitt reported.

One Way to Dispose of Wheat Surplus

This furnace tender in Nez Perce, Idaho, is shoveling wheat into the furnace instead of coal because it is cheaper fuel. Coal there costs $16.50 a ton and wood $10 a cord, while wheat, delivered to bins and basements, is only $9 a ton and it produces an even heat and holds fire as long as coal.

Speedy Liners to Carry Ocean Mails

New York.—Three day mail service across the Atlantic ocean is not to be limited to air transport. The United States lines has placed before the Navy department plans for two new 50,000 ton liners, with a speed greater than either the Bremen or Europa can display.

These new superliners are to be equipped with catapults with which fast long distance mail planes can be launched from 600 to 1,000 miles at sea.

The new vessels, it was said, are not likely to be laid down until at least one of the 30,000 ton liners, the keel of which is to be laid at Camden, N. J., soon is nearly ready for the sea.

Coincidental with the plan to put mail in New York from Europe and Great Britain "within three days" it was also learned that the North German Lloyd, which is now operating ship to shore mail planes from the decks of the Bremen and Europa at a saving of twelve hours, is planning in the spring to cut twenty-four hours from the present schedule between New York and Bremen.

This is to be accomplished by sending a plane off the ship far out at sea, first to Cherbourg and then on to Bremen. Hitherto the plane has ended its flight at the first port of call.

The navy's interest in the new liners is due to possibility that they might find use in a national emergency as auxiliary cruisers or aircraft carriers.

While it is not possible to compute the actual cost of the giant liners now, it is estimated that they will cost $30,000,000 each.

The all air transatlantic project in which both Imperial Airways and Pan-American Airways are interested is to be opened with a line between Bermuda and the United States. Representatives of the two airlines, as well as the great French airways system, have been in conference here on details of the Bermuda link and airways concessions in the West Indies and South America.

facade, which made a rather striking appearance, the window display had been well managed; we were interested by what we saw, and determined to come back in the morning and look inside. We were disappointed when we saw inside the establishment. Things seemed cheap, common, second class, badly selected and badly displayed.

Perkins dressed well, talked fluently, and his great figure towered above the crowd whenever he came into a public assembly. Nature had given him as attractive a facade as that of the department store in Paris.

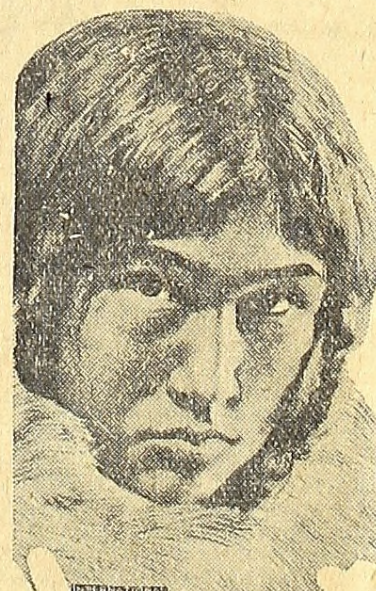

No one ever started a conversation when Perkins was about that he did not immediately take the subject out of the speaker's mouth and run away with it. He had an abundance of

Grain Measurements

For many years grains were measured in bushel containers, or peck containers. However, in different states the exact size of these containers varied within the same state.

THE STORY

With his English wife, Catherine, and son, Jeems, Henry Bulain, French settler in Canada in 1749, cultivates a farm adjacent to the Tonteur seigneurie. As the story opens the Bulains are returning from a visit to the Tonteurs. Catherine's wandering brother, Hepsibah, meets them with presents for the family. To Jeems he gives a pistol, bidding him perfect himself in marksmanship. Hepsibah fears for the safety of the Bulains in their isolated position. Jeems fights with Paul Tache, cousin of Toinette Tonteur, whom they both adore. Next day Jeems calls at the Tonteur home and apologizes for bawling in front of Toinette. The Tonteurs go to Quebec. Four years pass. War between Britain and France flares.

This recalled an important matter to his mind. Toinette had entrusted him with a letter for Jeems. Boiling over with his own selfish exultations, he had forgotten it. He hoped it was an invitation for Jeems to come to the seigneurie. He had often told his girl she should be more friendly with the lad.

Jeems took the letter and went off by himself. It was the first recognition from Toinette since the day of the levee. He had not seen her and had tried not to think of her. Alone, he read the words she had written him.

With pitiless coldness and brevity, they called him a renegade and a coward.

On a September morning some days later, Jeems stood watching his uncle as he disappeared into the frost-tinted woods of Forbidden valley. It seemed to him that Hepsibah's suspicious and guardianship of the valley had become greater with the growing news of French triumphs in the south which so positively assured their safety. Only yesterday Tonteur had brought the latest word from Dieskau. The German had been on the eve of smashing Sir William Johnson and his mob of Colonials and Indians when his messenger had left. By this time the event had probably happened, Jeems thought. Yet his uncle was going into Forbidden valley with a look in his face which puzzled him.

Restlessness possessed Odd after Hepsibah had gone. Passing years were beginning to leave their mark on the dog. He was growing content to watch life with Jeems instead of ceaselessly pursuing it. He was not old, and yet he was no longer young. There remained one thing which did not fail to stir in him the tense fierceness of his youth. This was the Indian smell. He always told Jeems when one of their wilderness visitors was near, sometimes many minutes before the savage appeared from the woods. And he never tired of watching Forbidden valley. In the dawn he faced it. At midday he dozed with his half-closed eyes turned toward it. In the evening he sniffed its scents. Yet he did not go down into the valley unless Jeems or Henri was with him.

During the morning, Odd's uneasiness began to reflect itself in Jeems. Soon after noon, he left his work and told his mother he was going in the direction of Lussan's place. Catherine walked with him through the young orchard and up the slope. Never had she seemed more beautiful to Jeems. His father was right—this mother of his would always be a girl. From above the orchard, standing on a little plateau that overlooked the Bulain farm, they called to Henri, who was in his turnip field, and waved at him. Jeems stood for a few moments with his arm about his mother. Then he kissed her, and Catherine watched him until he was lost to her sight in the Big forest.

Jeems did not have the desire to hunt, nor did Odd. Unexplainable impulses were pulling at them both. Odd's restlessness was unlike his master's. Whenever Jeems passed, the dog turned and sniffed the air of their trail, facing Forbidden valley in an attitude of suspicion and doubt. Jeems observed his companion's enigmatic actions. Odd was not giving the Indian signal. It was as if something without form or substance, a thing bewildering and unintelligible, lay behind them.

They came to Lussan's, nine miles from their home. Since Lussan's departure, the place had been abandoned, and in those five years the wilderness had largely reclaimed what man had taken from it. Jeems stood where he had fought Paul Tache, and ghostly whispers crept about him in the stillness. Then came a feeling of dread, almost of fear. He turned back to the house and to the open, where long ago he had stood with Toinette and all her loveliness so near to him.

The sun had set and dusk was gathering over the land before he drew himself away from the ghosts which haunted Lussan's place. Night could add nothing more to his gloom. Odd whined frequently in his eagerness to reach home. Sometimes he showed impatience at his master's slowness by running ahead. Jeems did not hurry. He unstung his bow, which was the only weapon he had brought, and carried it ready in his hand. Yet if Odd had hinted of danger he would have paid no attention to the warning. Danger was miles away on the other side of Dieskau and his men. It would come no nearer and he would never have a chance to meet it. In Toinette's eyes he would always remain a renegade and a coward.

Night thickened. The stars came out. Deepening shadows lay about them as they climbed the tallest of the hills, from which they could look over the ridges and woods between them and Forbidden valley. Because from this hill it was possible to see over the Big forest which sheltered their farm from the north winds, Jeems and his father called it Home mountain.

Odd whined as he climbed it tonight. He went ahead of Jeems, and when he gained the crest his whining changed to a howl, so low that one would scarcely have heard it at the foot of the hill.

Jeems came to him and stopped. For a space, there was no beating of a heart in his breast—nothing but a stillness that was like death, a shock that was like death, a horror that could come only at the sight and the feeling of death.

Rising from the far side of the forest into which Hepsibah had gone that morning was a distant glow of fire. Nearer, over the rim of Forbidden valley, the sky was a red illumination of flame. And this illumination was not of a burning forest. It was not a scorch of burning stumps. It was not a conflagration of dry swamp grass reflecting itself against a moonless heaven. It was a tower of blazing light, mushrooming as it rose, flattening itself in a sinister scarlet radiance under the clouds, dripping at its edges into colors of silver and gold and blue.

His home was burning! With the cry that came from his lips, there leapt madly into his mind the words that Hepsibah had spoken to him a last time that morning: "If ever I'm off there and you see a fire lighting up the sky by night, or smoke darkening it by day, hurry to the seigneurie with your father and mother as fast as you can go, for it will mean my hand has set the heavens talking to you and that the peril of death is near."

CHAPTER V

For a space Jeems could not move as he gazed at the crimson sky. His home was in flames. This alone would not have deadened him with horror. His father was there to care for his mother, a new home could be built, the world did not end because a house burned. But there were two fires—and the other, farther on, reflecting itself dimly and yet more soberly, was the one that terrified him. It was Hepsibah's fire talking to him through the night!

Then the choking thing in him gave way, and as the power to act returned, he saw Odd facing the lighted heavens—and in every muscle and line of the dog's rigid frame the Indian sign was clearly written.

He set off at a run down hill, and as he ran bushes whipped at his face and shadows gathered under his feet and long arms of gloom reached out from among the trees to hold him back. He could not come up with Odd. Like two shadows in a playful night, one closely pursuing the other, they ran until Jeems' breath began to break

Electrical Treatment of Soil of Little Value

There is a great difference of opinion among agricultural scientists as to the value of electricity in the cultivation of various food crops. Many English authorities claim that grain and some garden produce is quite materially speeded up so far as growth is concerned and the quality improved, by a current of electricity passing between the ground and a network of wires suspended above the growing crops. A Finland farmer reports an increase of 50 per cent in the amount of produce and grain grown in this manner. The United States Agricultural department has been experimenting with the subject for years and the final conclusion is that no benefit or at least very little has resulted from the electrical treatment of the soil. In fact it was noticed that a slightly prolonged exposure resulted in killing the seed placed in the ground. This conclusion is agreed in by some other authorities so that the preponderance of opinion is that the electrical treatment of soil is without result.—Exchange.

Winter Feeding Expensive

The winter feeding of big game animals is an expensive project. The federal bureau of biological survey found that it required $25 tons of hay to take care of the elk herds at the elk refuge in Wyoming from February 6 to March 26 and it costs over $25 a ton to get hay into the refuge. Without this winter food the animals would have a hard time through the winter.

There Is No Escape...

You must have food, shelter, and clothing for yourself and your family—not only now, but in the later years when your earning capacity has gone.

A moderate yearly payment now on the Metropolitan plan will provide for the later years and will make your family secure if anything happens to you in the meantime.

The girls' team has yet to break into the win column, but no one can say that they did not manifest a strong fighting spirit against the clever Standish femininity. The game was extremely fast and was nip and tuck all the way through, until the last few minutes of play, when something seemed to go wrong with our team, or else the Standish team suddenly became greatly inspired. The half ended in a tie. The final score was 14 to 5, but it does not describe how really close the battle was. The fans all claimed they got a big thrill out of this game.

Our strong seconds were finally defeated after a hard battle. Our team out-played their opponents, but were very weak in putting the ball through the net. We hope that this defeat will show them their weaknesses, and that they will profit as a result.

East Tawas high's fine debating team lost their last scheduled debate at West Branch last week. Our team is glorified even in defeat, for it is the first time this season that any team has won a point against the West Branch team. The decision was two to one, our one point being given to us by the professor of speech from Mt. Pleasant Normal, which again only goes to show how well our team fulfilled their parts. East Tawas ahead in the number of facts of the case left standing, but the West Branch team excelled in delivery. Those who went to the debate from East Tawas were well pleased with our team's showing. We are all proud of this fine team and are sure that next season we will have a winner.

Friday, January 9, our basketball team traveled to Alpena, where they met more than their match at the hands of the most brilliant and clever basketball team we have encountered this season. This Alpena team was away out of our class on their extremely large floor. One of our boys remarked that "we should have brought camp chairs and lunches so that we might rest and eat on the way from one end of the floor to the other." The final score was 39 to 6. We admit this looks bad, and we also admit we were outclassed; but when Alpena Central brings their basketweavers down on our maple flooring, although we do not promise local fans a victory, they are assured of seeing a real battle from start to finish.

RCA Photophone sound reproducing equipment is installed in many of the largest motion picture theatres in the United States, among which are the theatres operated by the Radio-Keith-Orpheum circuit and several hundred so-called independent theatres. Recent noteworthy installations include the new RKO Mayfair theatre in New York City, the giant ocean liners, Berengaria and Britannic of the Cunard Line, the recently christened President Hoover of the Dollar Line, the S. S. Malolo, largest and fastest passenger vessel plying the Pacific, three separate installations in private residences of William Randolph Hearst, and the beautiful new Casino theatre at Catalina Island, California. In addition to nearly three thousand theatres equipped with RCA Photophone sound reproducing apparatus, eight studios in Hollywood employ RCA Photophone sound recording, as do the majority of the producing companies in England, France and Italy.

A Wonderful Sermon

Rev. George Smith preached a wonderful sermon last Sunday at the Whittemore Methodist Episcopal church. He called it "A Vile Conspiracy," taking his text from the Book of Daniel, chapter 6, verses 15 and 16. He brought out in a very remarkable way how Daniel triumphed, although amid the intrigues, jealousies and conspiracies of the Babylon court. If at any time you want to hear a good exposition of the scriptures, then go and listen to Rev. Smith, for we are sure that you will not be disappointed. Go and listen to him next Sunday. Watch the columns of this paper for his subject.
