TAWAS CITY SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council

High School
The Senior benefit show, "Eyes of the World," netted the class the sum of $18.02. They seem to be quite well pleased over the result, and desire to express their appreciation to the patrons. We trust, however, that all obtained value received.

All should have in mind the general school program at the State Theatre Friday evening, March 20. There will be more than one hundred pupils on the program.

Don't forget the regular meeting of the local P. T. A. Thursday evening, March 12. The social committee is making gigantic preparations for the occasion. C. C. Barnes, Registrar and Dean of Men of the Central State Teachers' College, will be the principal speaker of the evening. Mr. Barnes has an excellent reputation as an orator and will certainly give us something worth while. Come!

The average grades of the Seniors for the past three and one half years have been figured. Alvera Goedecke, with an average of 3.46, is the Valedictorian. Irwin Schlechte, with an average of 3.14, receives the Salutatorian's honors. Marcella Low, with an average of 3.03, has third place.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank the many friends for their kindness and for the beautiful floral offerings during our bereavement, also Rebekahs, Lady Macabees, W. R. C., and pupils of the public schools.

Frank E. Dease.

MRS. FRANK E. DEASE PASSES AWAY FRIDAY

Mrs. Margaret Dease, wife of County Clerk Frank E. Dease, died last Friday after an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Dease, having been assistant county clerk for the past sixteen years, had a very wide circle of friends who have been recipients of her friendly and efficient services in the clerk's office, who, with the circle of neighbors, deeply sympathize with the bereaved husband.

Margaret Dease was born April 1, 1863, at Pontiac and came to East Tawas when she was three years of age. She was one of the first to graduate from the East Tawas Public Schools. On April 6, 1885, she was united in marriage to Frank E. Dease. She is survived by the husband, a brother, Fred Porter, and a niece, Mrs. Albert Hartman of Carson City.

Out of the city relatives who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Dease, Mrs. Geo. Dease, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Jessmore, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Dease, Ernest and Chauncey Dease, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jensen, Mrs. Mary Ball, all of Detroit, Mrs. L. Dumas of Carson City, Mrs. May Anderson of Bay City, Mr. and Mrs. H. Gordon of Curtisville, Mrs. D. McDermott of Curtisville, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hartman and children of Carson City.

Rev. Jones officiated at the funeral services which were held Sunday afternoon from the house.

REPORT OF COUNTY NURSE FOR MONTH OF FEBRUARY

During February Miss Cowgill, the county nurse, made 37 school visits, 28 class room talks were given, 14 demonstrations given, 11 pre-natal home visits, four post-natal visits, 25 infant home visits, five communicable disease home visits, four tuberculosis home visits, 41 pre-school home visits and 49 home visits in behalf of school children. Three meetings were attended and two talks were given.

The points particularly stressed in visiting the schools are: 1. Morning inspection to promote cleanliness and aid in prevention of spread of disease; 2. Hot lunches during the cold months; 3. Hand washing before lunch and use of paper towels; 4. Individual drinking cups; 5. Having a first aid kit in the school; 6. Good food and health habits.

Miss Cowgill assisted Dr. Keticik with the dental survey of the county which was completed this month with 1462 grade school children in Iosco county having dental inspections. Of that number 150 received blue buttons for showing no need of dental care.

WILL ROGERS IS PERFECT IN HIS LATEST TALKER

Comedy vies with drama in "Lightnin'." Will Rogers' latest Fox Movietone picture which is given its local premiere at the Family Theatre Saturday, Sunday and Monday, March 7, 8 and 9, and Rogers gives a performance that outranks anything he has previously done.

As the habitually idle whimsical old tippler and dreamer, "Lightnin' Bill Jones," Rogers has a role that actually excels his remarkable characterization in "They Had to See Paris" and "So This Is London."

Rogers does not rip wide open the so called divorce evil, but, rather, pokes good fun at it. A fast tempo is maintained throughout the picture and interest never lags. It is, perhaps, the best entertainment the screen has yet produced. Its direction is masterful for which much credit is due Henry King, the man who also produced such outstanding screen successes as "Tollable David" and "Stella Dallas." Its photography is well high perfect.

A supporting cast, headed by Louise Dresser, contributes much to the success of the picture. Miss Dresser portrays character of "Lightnin'"'s wife and, while famous for her mother roles in screen productions, she gives a performance that surpasses all of her previous efforts. Others in the cast are Helen Cohan, youngest daughter of George M. Cohan, who makes her screen debut in this picture, Joel McCrea, Jason Robards, Luke Keegan, Frank Campeau, J. M. Kerrigan, Ruth Warren, Sharon Lynn, Joyce Compton, Rex Bell and Charlotte Walker.

"Lightnin'" is a picture that will appeal to old and young and it should not be missed by anybody who enjoys a series of good, wholesome laughs.

LOCAL ORATORICAL AND DECLAMATORY CONTEST HELD TUESDAY EVENING

The local oratorical and declamatory contest of the Tawas City Public Schools took place at the school building Tuesday evening, March 3. A good sized crowd of students, parents and friends were present, showing that the event had created considerable interest.

Three contestants participated in the oratorical portion of the contest, and presented the following program: "A Light That Lights the World," Elsie Mueller; "Prohibition Problem," Viola Burtzloff; "Those Who Knock at Our Gates," James Mark. The judges awarded Viola first place, and James second.

Seven declaimers vied with each other for a place, and presented the following: "Toussaint L'Overture," Dora Mark; "A Scene of the Battlefield," Rose Watts; "Valley of Bones," Clair Thompson; "Spartacus to the Gladiators," Glen Barnes; "Reply to Mr. Corry," Herbert Zollweg; "America's Missions," Albert Zollweg; "The Minutemen," Martin Kasischke. Clair Thompson, with "Valley of Bones," secured first place, and Dora Mark, with "Toussaint L'Overture," secured second place.

One feature of the event was the number from which the contestants had been chosen in the preliminary contests. These had been held on three afternoons of week before last, and contained a total of sixty-three participants. It is easily seen, then, that all of the boys and girls of Tuesday evening had every reason to be proud of their record whatever place was secured.

The school was fortunate, indeed, to secure as judges Superintendent E. R. Erickson of Alabaster, Superintendent A. F. Lucas of West Branch, and Superintendent T. S. Nurnberger of Oscoda.

Eileen Nevanpaa entertained the assemblage with two piano solos,—"Polichinelle" and "Prelude in C Sharp Minor." This music was much enjoyed.

GAMBLING RESORT PICTURE AT STATE THEATRE

"Monte Carlo," a comedy of courtship without hardship in Europe's leading place for misleading ladies, comes to the State Theatre next week Friday and Saturday.

"Monte Carlo" is the tale of a Countess who goes to the great European gambling resort to escape a possible marriage with a Prince whom she cannot bring herself to fall in love with. While she is in Monte Carlo she becomes the objective of the romantic heart of a young and handsome Count who finds it necessary to get a position as her hairdresser in order to be near her.

The fortunes of the Countess, the Prince and the Count have been carefully blended into a rich and mirth provoking entirety by the masterful directorial work of Ernst Lubitsch, who made "The Love Parade." There are six sparkling new songs in "Monte Carlo."

Jeanette MacDonald plays the part of the Countess. Jack Buchanan is the Count who wins her hand. Claude Allister is the unlucky-in-love Prince.

JOHN A. TURNER DIES SATURDAY EVENING

John A. Turner, baker at East Tawas, died at about eleven o'clock Saturday evening at Mercy hospital, Bay City. Mr. Turner had been in trouble. The deceased had been in business at East Tawas for the past 23 years and was well known throughout this section.

John Alfred Turner was born September 15, 1869, at Barrie, Ontario. On October 19, 1898 he was united in marriage to Isabelle Wilkinson. He is survived by the widow, four daughters, Mrs. D. Nielson of Chester, Pa., Mrs. F. VanWormer of Belleville, Mich., Mrs. R. Lixey and Mrs. C. King of East Tawas, and one son, Earl of East Tawas. Mr. Turner had been a member of Baldwin Lodge No. 274, F. & A. M., and a Prince of Royal Secret, 32°.

The funeral services were held Tuesday, Rev. J. W. LeVan of Bay City officiated.

The many friends sympathize with the bereaved family.

LEVI FRANK

The remains of Levi Frank of Port Huron were brought here for burial last Wednesday from Port Huron. Mr. Frank had been in ill health for several weeks.

Levi Frank was born in the township of Wainfleet, Ontario, on November 13, 1884, and died Monday, February 23, at the Port Huron hospital after an operation. He is survived by his wife and five children, Mrs. Leo Teigbert and Claude Frank of Lansing, Mrs. Otto Draves of Flint, Michael and Ruth at home, and mother, Mrs. Charity Frank, and three brothers and two sisters.

The remains were taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. C. W. Cox. The funeral was held from the L. D. S. church on Thursday, M. A. Sommerfield officiating. He was buried in the family lot in the Tawas City cemetery.

EVELYN BRENT HAS FINE ROLE IN 'MADONNA OF THE STREETS'

A great favorite will appear on Sunday and Monday at the State Theatre in her latest picture, "Madonna of the Streets," the Columbia film adapted from W. B. Maxwell's story, "The Ragged Messenger." It is none other than Evelyn Brent, the alluring, the beautiful, the magnetic personality of the screen.

The story is an excellent vehicle for her. It is a dramatic story of love and reformation unfolded in the colorful locale of the Barbary coast of San Francisco. Evelyn Brent plays the designing woman of the world who goes through an amazing change of character when she falls in love with a man who patterns his life along the golden rule. Miss Brent has shown herself supreme in the interpretation of this sophisticated woman who ruled men with her haughty glance. In "Madonna of the Streets" she is allowed a slight variation in portrayal. The story permits her to be transformed from this type of woman to one who is willing to humble herself and work hard for the man she loves.

An excellent cast has been assembled to support Miss Brent. Robert Ames, one of screendom's most popular leading men, one who is in constant demand to play opposite the most outstanding women stars in the industry, plays the leading male role opposite Miss Brent. Josephine Dunn and Ivan Linow play other important supporting roles.

SKELETON IS FOUND IN BARN AT ALABASTER

The unidentified skeleton of a man was found Monday morning in a hay barn belonging to the United States Gypsum company at Alabaster. Apparently death had occurred early in the winter and rats and birds had completely eaten the flesh from the bones with the exception of the feet which were encased in shoes and a spot on the skull which had rested against the side of the barn. No marks on the clothing or otherwise were found that would identify the person. Two Elgin watches and 26 cents in money were found in the clothing.

Monday Ed. Weimer, barn boss, and another employe of the Gypsum company went to the barn which is located on what was formerly the Spring farm, for a load of hay. When starting to load the hay a horse was found which they thought at the time to be from a sheep, but shortly afterward the skeleton was uncovered. No indication of violence was evident, and it is thought that the man may have died from illness or exposure.

The skeleton appeared to be that of a large proportioned man and from the appearance of the few teeth which remained in the jaw bones, a man well along in years. There were some indications that the man had been in the barn some days previous to death.

Several residents have recalled the appearance in October or November of a stranger in the Tawas who might fit a description constructed from the clothing and skeleton. Thomas Curry one morning aroused a man from sleep in his ice house and conversed with him. Mr. Curry thought that the clothing was similar. This man was from the north. A man went into the H. E. Friedman store early in the winter. Mr. Friedman gave him a pair of socks. The stranger said that he was going to Alabaster to seek employment. Mr. Friedman thought that the man was ill. The socks on the skeleton were not the ones given by Mr. Friedman.

EAST TAWAS SCHOOL NOTES

East Tawas high school will hold its local declamation and oratorical contest next Wednesday evening, March 11, in the high school assembly room. Interest in this local contest has been very lacking, due probably to the fact that most of the contestants were more attentive to their basketball desires. Now that basketball is practically over, perhaps we can arouse more interest. The declamation contest is open to ninth and tenth graders, while the oratorical contest is open to those students in the 11th and 12th grades. The two winners of these contests are to go to the district elimination.

The high school basketball team won two out of three games last Friday evening. The seconds defeated Harrisville seconds, 12 to 6; the girls lost a close contest to the Prescott lassies, 12 to 6; and the boys' varsity squad took revenge on the Harrisville first stringers to the tune of 26 to 4.

The second team showed the fans some fairly good basketball, even though they were an extremely "green" team. Edward Doak displayed great skill in finding the mesh, scoring 8 of the 12 points.

In the girls' game the East Tawas lassies just could not locate the basket. Our girls had many more attempts to score than the Prescott high girls, but they were a little off form that evening.

The boys played the most impressive game that they have played this season. It was a thrilling victory to close a fairly successful year. It was certainly a pitiful sight to see Captain Kasischke have to sit on the bench, due to an injured knee. It was his last chance to play a scheduled game for his old Alma Mater. Charles has been one of the outstanding players among many who have graduated from East Tawas. He was always in the thick of the fray, fighting from the opening of the game until the final whistle was blown. Members of the team will certainly miss his presence in the line-up next year. Earl Bennington, another Senior to have played his last scheduled game, showed up in great style. Earl has been one who plugged along through a lot of disappointment, and finally turned out to be the outstanding defensive man on the East Tawas squad. In the last two games not one field goal has been made through his stone-wall defensive tactics. We certainly are going to miss Earl next season. The squad wishes both of the boys success, and all hope that some day they will also be stars on some college team.

Paris Seeks to Avoid Ravages From Seine

Paris.—The Paris council general of the Seine will shortly ask for 10,000,000 francs to supplement existing appropriations for the protection of Paris and its suburbs from the frequent rising of the Seine.

Judging future floods by past performances, M. Lenarchand indicated that Paris has a real flood every 11 years and an important rise in the river about every three years.

The city council has drawn up a plan which when completed will make the valleys of the Seine and Marne near Paris safe from sudden floods.

Reservoirs will be built letting in the overflowing water; new buildings along the quai which have cellars below the Seine will be rigorously inspected and constructions in zones which are not considered safe will be forbidden.

It is suggested that the Pont de L'Alma be rebuilt, especially the substructure from which floods always escape in bad weather. Near Notre Dame dredgers will begin making the Seine deeper and the current faster, although at other places in the suburbs the river will be widened.

Hen Takes Over Job of Raising Small Puppies

Russellville, Ark.—Fronie, the police dog, and Henny Penny, the hen, are on the "outs" with each other.

One day Fronie left her seven newly-born pups to search for something to eat and returned to find the hen sitting on as many pups as her wings would cover. Fronie objected but received only a sharp peck for her pains.

Now Henny Penny sits all day trying vainly to "protect" all seven of the puppies at one with quick pecks at anyone who dares touch her foster children.

Every now and then Fronie, by force, chases the Rhode Island hen out of the dog box and gives her offspring a light lunch.

Grant, the trader, followed the trails of Marquette and La Salle into this country, where he arrived about 1800.

Simple Trick Hid Thefts BY SEATTLE BANK CASHIER

Deposit Cards Removed, Says Embezzler When Brought Up for Sentence.

Seattle.—By the simple expedient of removing savings deposit cards Horace Greedy Phillips, former assistant cashier of the Asburn National bank, evaded for five years detection of serious shortages in his accounts.

His method of covering up defalcations amounting to $6,000 was revealed in Federal court when Phillips appeared for sentence on a charge of embezzlement to which he pleaded guilty recently.

Such a strong plea was made for leniency, however, that Judge J. Neterer directed Federal Probation Officer Adrian B. Miller to investigate the circumstances. Sentence was put over. So successful was Phillips' system, Assistant United States Attorney Jeffrey Heiman said, that examiners did not discover the shortage until a savings depositor whose card had been removed made demand for his money. The cards were found in Phillips' home.

Through his attorney, Paul D. Coles, Phillips admitted his speculations began when he was a teller.

"Money had been missing at various times in the bank and several employees under suspicion were discharged," Coles said. "One day Phillips discovered that he was $100 short. Some one else had taken the money, but he was afraid to report it for fear he would be blamed. So he removed a savings deposit card to make his accounts balance."

A few months later, Coles stated, Phillips took $120 himself and covered it up in the same manner. From then on he used the system for his own benefit. After he was found out Phillips, the court was told, made partial restitution, turning his home and other property over to the bank. "This man cannot suffer more for his misdeeds than he has already," Coles declared in asking for a suspended sentence.

Talking of Twins

Photos by International

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IF YOU want to get in the news pictures, be a twin! Many schools have won temporary fame because a picture has gone out bearing this familiar caption "— Sets of Twins in One School Puzzle Teachers" and the number which is inserted in that blank space varies from five to seventeen. A few years ago Stephens college at Columbia, Mo., already famous as "the Vassar of the West," won even more renown from the fact that it had in its enrollment no less than 18 pairs of twins, and that they had formed a unique organization, named the "Duplex club."

In St. Louis a year or so ago the press agent for a pair of "Siamese twins" who were appearing at a local theater had the happy inspiration to give a "twin party" to which all twins were invited. Sixty-five pairs, ranging in age from two months to forty-five years, were on hand with the result of an interesting group photograph—and much good publicity for the "Siamese twins." In New York city twin daughters of a lawyer attended the Fordham law school together, were graduated together, passed the state examinations together, and the news photographers rushed to picture them together! Among the most publicized candidates for admission to West Point in recent years were the seventeen-year-old twin sons of a Pennsylvania soldier, killed near Chateau Thierry during the World war. When President Hoover nominated them for admission to the United States Military academy, news stories (and a news picture, of course), recorded the fact that "their appointment is believed to be the first designation of twins ever so made."

But are twins such a rarity after all? Science gives an answer which you can interpret as you wish. It says that of every 1,000 babies born there are ten pairs of twins. That's 2 per cent. If you want to base your calculations on some of the much-publicized "twins in schools," you will find the percentage somewhat higher. A California school a year or so ago broadcast the fact that it had nine sets of twins in an enrollment of 300—that's 6 per cent. Similarly Logan, Iowa, reported 12 pairs of twins in an enrollment of 275—a little over 8 per cent.

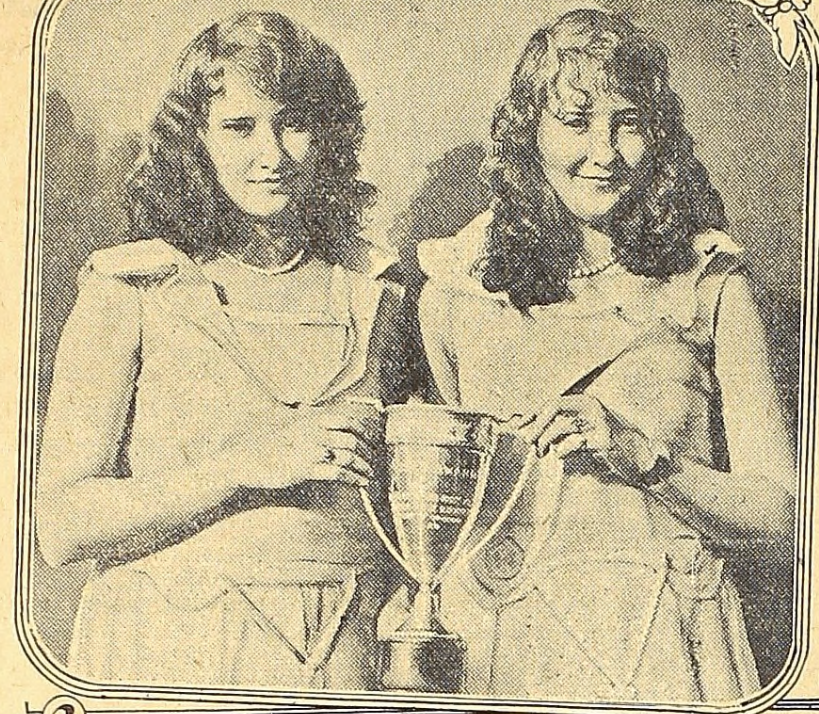

But whether you consider these figures as evidence that twins are or are not such rarities, the fact remains that the study of twins has challenged the attention of scientists for many years, and some definite results to explain them have been accomplished, although the scientists are not entirely in accord in all conclusions. Two kinds of twins are generally recognized—the "fraternal" and the "identical."

"Fraternal" twins are children born at almost the same time, but the product of two life cells. They may be the same or opposite sexes, and frequently bear no more resemblance to one another than any brother and sister. They are simply a biological coincidence.

But in the case of "identical" twins, it is a far different matter; for they are produced by the splitting of a single life cell. They are invariably of the same sex and, furthermore, resemble each other amazingly, not only facially, in coloring and other physical details, but in mental processes, emotional reactions and in other subtle ways. They are literally two halves of a single personality.

Instances of remarkable resemblances between twins usually refer to the "identical" type, although it is generally conceded that there was no safe criterion for distinguishing between the "identical" and the "fraternal" until a Japanese scientist, Taku Komai of the Imperial university at Kyoto, Japan, announced his discovery of a method. Of it he says:

"In the course of study on my collection of fingerprints and hand and sole-prints of some twins, I have come to realize that, generally speaking, the same hands or feet of the identical twins resemble each other more closely

1. To this Council Bluffs, Iowa, family goes the distinction of being America's "F. F. T." (Finest Family of Twins). They are Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kroger and their ten children—five sets of twins. The twins are Clyde and Claude, born in 1912; Addie and Abbie, born in 1914; Floyd and Lloyd, born in 1919; Jean and Jeannette, born in 1923; and the babies, Donald Dean and Norma Jean, born in 1930.

2. Leo and Theo Bogant of Corvallis, Ore., have a double (no pun intended!) distinction. Not only are they twins but they are leap-year twins, having been born February 29, 1916. Although they are fifteen years old, they have been able to celebrate their birthday only three times! They are shown above holding the cup which they won at a recent "Twins Round-Up," held at Albany, Ore., in which 208 sets of twins took part.

ly in their patterns than the two hands or feet of the same individual.

"This statement holds good in principle also for several identical twins studied by others; while such a condition can never be found in twins of different sexes nor in twins of the same sex bearing evidence for their being fraternal twins. Thus, we seem to be justified by saying: 'Such twins are identical twins in which the same hands or feet of different individuals are more alike than the different hands or feet of the same individual.'"

"But this statement must not be taken as involving the notion also that, if the former resemblance is less than the latter resemblance, the given twins are fraternal, since there are some twins which are apparently identical and yet do not show the condition mentioned above. Anyway, this will probably serve as a criterion for identifying some identical twins.

"Some writers on twins and twinning seem to hold the view that the identical twins are comparable with the right and left halves of the body of one person. The view could not be quite correct, should it imply that the resemblance between the identical twins is in principle equal to the resemblance between the right and left halves of one person. As a matter of fact, speaking generally, the resemblance between the identical twins is more than that between the halves of one person. Aside from the fact that the viscera shows a marked asymmetry even among identical twins, there are several cases known where such twins have the same defect or abnormality on the same side of the body. Moreover, as mentioned above, the hands or feet of the same side of different twins show closer resemblance than the two hands or feet of the same individual."

But how does science account for twins, anyway? No one has ventured a positive answer, but it is generally believed that the process which takes place to produce twins is as follows:

The ovum, a single cell, is fertilized, and thereupon begins to divide—always by twos—into many cells. Gradually these are differentiated into three types and form themselves into layers in the form of a sphere, the middle of which is hollow, called the blastosphere. Up to this point the process is normal. For some reason not known, however, the blastosphere next begins to split. It is thought that this is possibly due to the fact that the cells on the inner layer expand much more rapidly than those on the outer and, naturally, the outer layer bursts, as does a football bladder when it is blown up too tightly. When the split is complete the sides of the two split portions are joined together and we have two distinct blastospheres, which proceed to form identical individuals.

Since the division is always by twos and it is the opinion of Dean Horatio H. Newman of the University of Chicago, author of "The Physiology of Twinning" and "The Biology of Twins," which are regarded as standard reference works on the subject, that it is thus obvious that triplets can never be identical. Two of the children may be duplicates and the third merely a fraternal type, the result of the fertilization of a second ovum. It is possible, however, for quadruplets to be two sets of identical twins, Doctor Newman holds. In such instances the two blastospheres, that resulted from the original split, in their turn divided.

The famous German case, partly legendary and partly substantiated by records of the time, of the woman who gave birth to eight children at one time, is also recalled. In this instance—so rare that it is mentioned in all reference works on biological anomalies—the four blastospheres again divided to form eight. An extremely vital reproductive cell may survive two divisions and four normal children result.

Some of the most important evidence as to the nature mode of sex determination and much additional light on the age-old dispute over the relative importance of heredity and environment comes from a study of "identical" twins who have been adopted in infancy by different families, according to Dean Newman who has had charge of a study made by the University of Chicago, of orphans adopted into private homes. Among the 800 children studied were 50 sets of twins. Of this number the cases of two were particularly interesting—first that of Eleanor and Georgiana Kelly, Eleanor had been adopted when she was two years old, Georgiana at eighteen months. Both had grown up in environments in many respects entirely different. And yet they are as nearly alike as they could be, not only in appearance but in the matter of mental drives and impulses as well.

In contrast to the Kelly twins, there is the case of Alice and Olive Redman also identical twins studied and observed by Doctor Newman and his assistants. Alice and Olive, born in London, were separated from each other, through adoption, for more than ten years. Not long ago, they were reunited in Oshawa, near Toronto, Canada.

The Redman girls received about the same amount and kind of education, they are remarkably alike physically, and they apparently have the same interests and tastes. But there is a vast difference in the mental developments of the girls.

FASHION DECLARES IN FAVOR OF NAVY BLUE FOR SPRING

A NAVY blue jacket suit is front-page news for spring. So if you are aiming to start the season right, invest in just that—a navy suit of either serge or cheyot or any of the spongy woollens which are so fashionable just now.

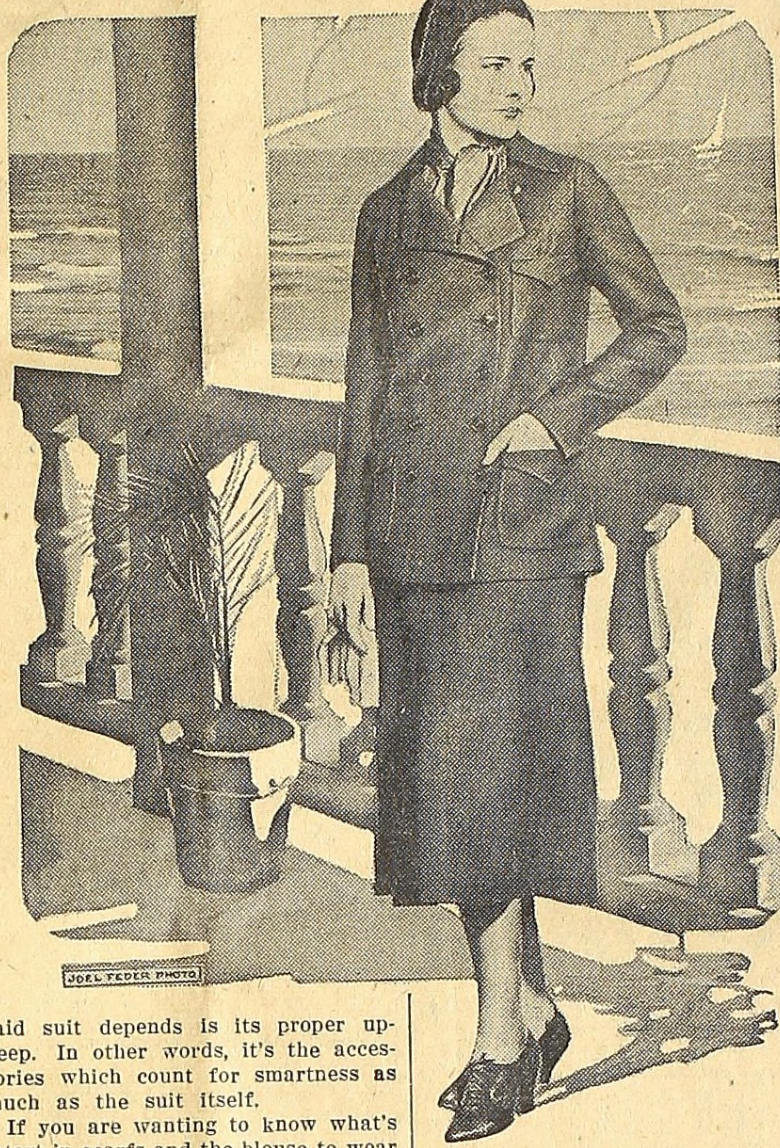

The act of acquiring a natty navy suit, or make it skipper blue if you choose, which is a near relation to navy and infinitely smart according to the new color chart, is only one step in the right direction. The real issue upon which chic for the aforeblouse, shoes and gloves by way of accessories. Then again the double-breasted jacket will be smart worn over a sleeveless white pique frock, later on.

Velvet Wrap to Stay.

All dressed up and ready to go to the dance, or the play, the banquet or the formal dinner means to the style-minded, for the most part, a frock of lovely lace topped with a velvet evening wrap.

The best part of the charming vel-

said suit depends is its proper upkeep. In other words, it's the accessories which count for smartness as much as the suit itself.

If you are wanting to know what's latest in scarfs and the blouse to wear with the spring 1931 navy or skipper blue suit, we will say it in one word—plaid. Of course if you prefer stripes, all well and good, for between plaids and stripes it is a fifty-fifty proposition. In either event "make it snappy" for the colors—must be high so as to accent striking contrast.

If the smartly clad young woman in the picture were to remove her coat there would be a revelation of bright color, for the blouse which she is wearing with her "chauffeur suit," is an animated plaid with scarf to match—an ascot scarf, if you please, for these narrow types worn inside of the coat collar and tied close up around the throat vet wraps which are flourishing "in society" at the present moment is that they promise to remain in the picture all through the coming spring and summer months. Evening wraps is the role they are playing just now, but later on they will make new conquests, as they pose effectively over dainty afternoon frocks of organdie, gay printed chiffons and such.

Seen in the original the gown and wrap as pictured in the foreground of the accompanying illustration presents an enchanting color symphony. The frock is of rose beige chantilly lace.

in choker fashion and they are the "last word."

Notice that the jacket has the double-breasted high closing, turned-down military collar and the patch pockets which make it look almost like a uniform. These severe tailored effects are ever so good this season, remembering always that they must carry their message of chic with the aid of the swankiest sort of accessories. The hat topping this modish costume is a navy blue knitted turban, worn far back on the head, exposing the forehead and part of the hair.

Seeing that blue with white is a much lauded combination for spring and summer, with a navy blue suit like the one pictured one can effect many changes, such as white hat,

THIS AND THAT

Soups are enjoyed in any season. There is such a variety of canned soups from which to choose that the busy housewife or business woman may serve herself and family a different soup every day of the month.

The home prepared soups of fresh meat and bones with plenty of marrow are much more enjoyed when nicely prepared. Long, slow cooking, with meat and bones put on in cold water to draw out all the flavor, will give a most tasty and nourishing broth. Adding rice, barley, or vegetables of different kinds will vary the flavor as well as the enjoyment. To prepare and serve a good vegetable soup is an accomplishment which is worthy of praise.

Tons of American confections go to every part of the world. From America last year from June, 1929, to June, 1930, eighteen million pounds of candy was shipped. The world is growing conscious of the value of candy.

The scientists of the United States Naval observatory who went to the Pacific island of Niuafoou to see the total eclipse of the sun have proved that lollipops are a valuable asset in gaining the confidence and help of savage tribes. Since money means nothing to such semi-barbaric people, candy buys their good will.

A box of candy is always a most appreciated gift from youth to very old age.

Peanut Brittle.—One may make candy in her own home; it is not much work nor does it take a great deal of skill to make the pan candies. Take a pound of peanuts, shell, remove the brown husks and roll with a rolling pin until the nuts are like coarse crumbs. Take one pound of sugar, place in a thick iron or heavy aluminum pan over heat and stir until the sugar is well melted, stirring well from the sides of the pan. Add the nut meats with one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, mix well and pour onto a buttered baking sheet.

Origin of Expression

"That Beats the Dutch"

"An American Glossary," by Thornton, gives examples of the use of the expression "That beats the Dutch" as early as 1773, the line "Our cargoes of meat, drink and cloths beat the Dutch" appearing in a "Revolutionary Song" by Bartlett of that date. In the Philadelphia Public Ledger of February 6, 1837, occurs this statement: "That beats the Dutch, saith the proverb; meaning that, as the Dutch beat Old Nick, it is something of an exploit to beat them. Vizetelly and De Bekker's Deskbook of Idioms states that the phrase originated in the days when bitter enmity prevailed between the Dutch and other nations. In this connection, however, it is worthy of notice that most of the expressions that arose out of the struggle between the English and the Dutch in the Seventeenth century were derogatory or derisive; among these are "Dutch courage; to talk double Dutch; Dutch comfort; Dutch concert; I'm a Dutchman if I do; Dutch treat; Dutch gold; talk like a Dutch uncle." The saying "That beats the Dutch" is not derogatory and is an American and not an English one, so that it possibly expresses admiration for the fighting qualities of the Dutch in their long struggle with Spain and later with England. Again, as the name "Dutch" is also applied to German mercenaries of Colonial days.

Right Method of Walking

The public health service says that the correct method of walking is to walk with the toes pointing nearly straight ahead and only slightly out. Correct posture is more like the military attitude at rest—namely, with heels apart, toes almost straight forward, the sides of the feet approximately opposite sides of a square. This attitude gives stability and poise and insures a proper distribution of the weight of the body upon the structures of the feet.

Eliminate Them Altogether

After they have perfected the process of making rubber from potatoes, maybe the scientists can do something with restaurant pie crusts.—Newark Evening News.

White Sugar Sweetener

Sucrose is the sweetening agent in sugar. White granulated sugar is 99 per cent sucrose, while brown sugar is between 96-99 per cent sucrose. Brown sugar may seem sweeter at times, but white granulated sugar really contains more of the sweetening agent.

Simultaneous Discovery

Chloroform was discovered in 1831 by Leibig in Germany and Soubeiran in France, and their reports were published almost simultaneously.

We are handling the Wolverine fertilizer. We can save you from $3.00 to $6.00 per ton. This is a Michigan fertilizer, made by Michigan people at Lansing.

George Gates has an idea. He suggests crossing hens with parrots. Then you won't have to hunt around for eggs—the hens just come up and say, "Say, I just laid an egg. Go get it."

We have Mason's and hydrated lime on hand at 50c per sack.

Judging from the couples loitering along the streets after school we note that spring is having its usual effects.

Feeds we carry: Whole kettle-dried corn, cracked corn, ground oats, scratch feed, corn and oat chop, bran, middlings, wheat screenings, Hexite.

We are expecting to wake up any morning now to find the pronounced odor of young onions beating against our bedroom window.

We believe it was old Ed Howe who is credited with the comment that "You can't make footprints on the sands of time with the seat of your pants."

Now is the time to feed Hexite and keep your cows in good condition until the grass starts.

LIGHTS OF NEW YORK

By WALTER TRUMBULL

Efrem Zimbalist, master violinist and a grand person, has just returned from a trip around the world. He sailed from New York to Genoa and from there to the Orient. Mr. Zimbalist was perhaps most interested by Japan, where he played compositions of Beethoven and Bach, accompanied by a Japanese orchestra. He says the Japanese are fine musicians, that they know all about western music, and that they have educated themselves in that knowledge in the past twenty years.

He told me he thought the most beautiful place for its size on earth was Java. I said I always had thought the most beautiful place I had ever seen was Sicily. Then we both agreed that really the most wonderful scenery in the world was to be found in America.

"Only," said Mr. Zimbalist, "the average American doesn't know it. There are wealthy people here in the East who know all about Europe, but never have seen the Grand canyon, the Yellowstone, Zion or Rainier parks, the redwoods of California, the Canadian Rockies, or the woods and lakes of Michigan, Wisconsin or Minnesota. They don't even know much concerning the Adirondacks, although they can tell you about the Dolomites or the Alps." And it is true. There are tens of thousands of persons in New York who never have been north of Boston, south of Washington, or west of Cleveland. Many of them have never been that far, except in one direction—the one from which they came.

Whether true or not, a good story is a good story. Heywood Bronn told me this one. He said that a Notre Dame scout happened to be in the East and that Knute Rockne sent him word that, although Notre Dame did not play Yale, he was curious concerning the ability of Albie Booth and wished the scout would look him over and get a real line on him. The scout's report, for purposes of the story, read: "Booth is a good football player. Not wishing to underestimate him, I still must say that I do not consider him a great back. He first-strings backfield.

"Why," the letter concluded, "I don't think he would even make all-America."

Buyers of New York stores who make fairly frequent trips to Europe are looking for the first good break they have had in several years. They say that Europe at present is a "buyers' market." Foreign manufacturers are overstocked and willing to listen to reason. When the United States was riding the crest of general financial affluence, Paris merchants could get about any price they had the nerve to ask. Now they are looking for custom.

New York has many theatrical clubs. The best known are the Players, Lambs and Friars, but there are a multitude of others. There are, for instance, the Back-Stage club, the Greenroomers club, the Chinese Dramatic club, and the Amateur Comedy club. None of the larger clubs are confined to actors. The Players is only a bit over 50 per cent in its actor membership. This club is housed in the old home of Edwin Booth and has an atmosphere the others do not possess.

A New Yorker of wealth who went big game hunting in Africa was aided by a chief of one of the tribes. By way of showing his gratitude, after his trip was over, he shipped the chief a big box of edibles. The chief found some one who could write and dictated a letter of thanks, saying the stuff was so good that he had been able to swap a small portion of it for a couple of wives.

"I wonder," said the New York man, "how long that fellow is going to remain grateful?"

Mastiffs More Than Match for Lion

New York.—The mastiff, probably the oldest of the British breeds of dogs, has remained unchanged in form, size and colors for hundreds of years. And always he has been known for his courage.

"It is written that the Romans found the mastiff in Britain and, noting its great strength, took it to Rome to fight against other great and captive beasts," says Freeman Lloyd in Home and Field.

"Soon after Britain was discovered, the 'pugnaces,' or fighting dogs of Epirus, were pitted against those of the British, and, according to Gratius, completely beaten.

"As to the bravery of the English mastiff, one writer relates an instance of a contest between three mastiffs and a lion in the presence of James I. This affair took place in the Tower of London, which at that time had its collection of wild beasts. "One of the dogs, being put into the den, was soon disabled by the lion, which took him by the head and neck and dragged him about. Another dog was then let loose and was served in the same manner. But the third, being put in, immediately seized the lion by the lip and held him for a considerable time, until being badly torn by his opponent's claws, the dog was obliged to quit his hold.

"The lion, greatly exhausted, refused to renew the engagement and, taking a leap over the dogs, fled into the interior part of his den. Two of the dogs soon died of their wounds. The last survived and was taken care of by the king's son, who said: 'He

Desire for Power

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

George, who was twelve, was the oldest of the five Van den Berg children and made the most of his position. He felt that his mature age and experience gave him the right to give advice and directions and in no small way to control the actions of the younger members of the family. George very much enjoyed the power which his seniority gave him, and though the younger boys were often galled by his authority it was easier on the whole to submit in most cases than to revolt and have a riot. It is the same point of view which we not infrequently assume in our more mature human relationships. We are irked by the arrogance of those who exercise authority over us, but we say nothing.

But George's authority was for the time being coming to an end. He was going off for six weeks to a summer camp and Fred, who was the next oldest in the family, was looking forward with eagerness to his own ascension to the throne. He had the desire to run things himself and he felt that with George out of the way it would be easy. When George was on the train and well on the way to camp Fred turned to his mother and remarked with a sigh of satisfaction: "Well, mother, it's a great relief to be rid of George." With George gone his desires for power were to have fewer inhibitions.

It is strange how many people want to be chairman of the committee, or president of the Rotary club, or head of this or that, and all because the position gives them some prominence or authority. There is never an office open that some one is not eager to fill it.

I had two letters in this morning's mail from members of an organization to which I belong. Each one wants to be national president of the organization, and they are sending out much literature, and expending much time and money to bring about that result. It is the thirst for authority the desire for power which is urging them on, and they are quite willing to spend time and money to reach that end.

Two boys were in my office today. Each one wants to be appointed to a position of authority in college—a position which carries with it a considerable amount of power. But neither one has given much consideration to the responsibility which goes with authority and power. There is work to be done; there are decisions to be made; there are embarrassing situations to be met by those who have executive position and power, and it is these things rather than the honor attached which has always loomed up before me when I have considered any position of power or authority. Too many men whom I have known do not know how intelligently to use authority. They do not realize that power is sometimes the most delicate, the most dangerous, the most difficult thing to use properly.

Russian Princes Do Well in America

New York.—Prince Mdivani, late of Tiflis but more recently of Paris, was in his youth an aide de camp to Czar Nicholas II and in his middle age a general in the Russian imperial army.

If the Soviet had not changed everything the lives of his three handsome princeling sons, David, Serge and Alexis, must inevitably have followed much the same course.

But now we have: Prince David Mdivani, married to Mae Murray, American motion picture star, and giving "husband" as his occupation when arrested for speeding in Santa Monica, Calif., a couple of years ago.

Prince Serge Mdivani, engaged in the oil business in California and claimed by Mary McCormic, American opera singer, as her future husband. Prince Alexis Mdivani, youngest—and some say handsomest—of the three, engaged to marry Louise Astor Van Alen, great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. William Astor, who once ruled New York society as imperiously as the Mdivanis ever ruled in the Russian state of Georgia.

When Prince Alexis first heard of the American girl who is to be his bride he was attending an exclusive boys' school in England, and among his chums were two young Americans.

Then everything began to turn topsy turvy. The prince's father, who had won distinction in the imperial army in the early years of the World war, was military governor of the Caucasus when the Russian revolution occurred. Georgia became a republic, with his father as minister of war.

The Bolsheviks arose. The Mdivanis were exiled and their property confiscated. The three young princes had to look about for something to do.

They all came to America. David married Mae Murray in Hollywood in 1926, with Rudolph Valentino as his best man.

Serge was president of the Geo-gian Exploration company, Inc., dealing in oil lands and leases, with offices in Paris and New York, when, in 1927, he married Pola Negri.

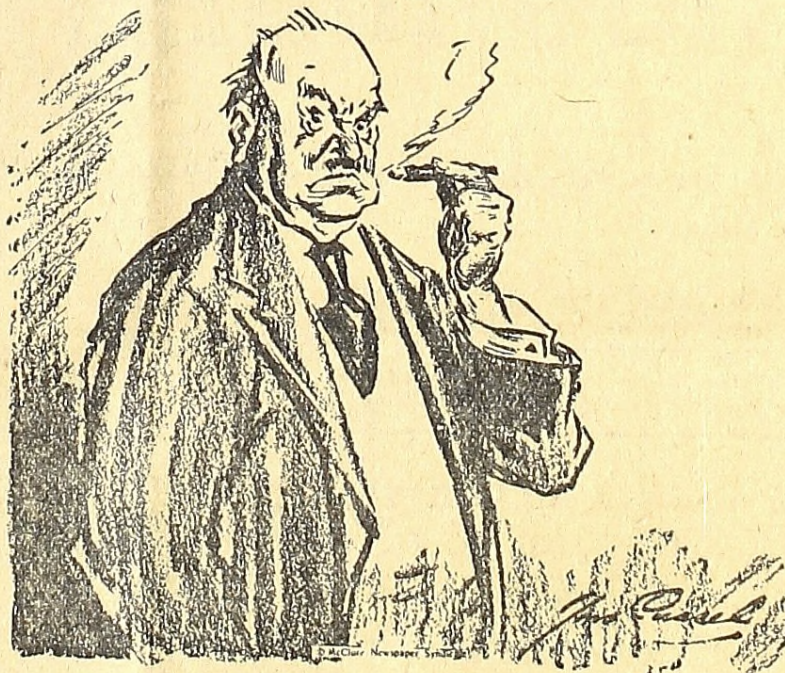

Alexis on his arrival in America hunted up his schoolmates, the Van Alens, who helped him get a job. During 1928 and 1929 he courted Louise Van Alen and spent a great deal of time at the Van Alen estate at Newport, where they are to be married at Easter time.

After Serge had married Pola Negri in 1927 at her chateau near Paris and the couple had come on to Hollywood somebody expressed doubt that Serge was a real prince.

He retained a lawyer and established his lineage.

CHAPTER VIII

Twenty minutes after Odd had revealed their hiding place Jeems and Toinette were standing in the sun. Mysterious things had happened in this time. Unseen hands had dragged the warrior from under the rocks. An interval had followed in which excitement gave way to solemn and low-voiced talk outside. Then some one had called in guttural, broken French commanding them to come out. They had obeyed, Jeems first, Toinette after him, and Odd last with the downcast air of a beast who knew he was in disgrace.

It was an astounding and unexpected reception by enemies at whose belts sculps were hanging. There were between twenty and thirty of the Senecas, splendidly built, keen-eyed, lean-faced, most of them young men. Even in the shock of the moment, Toinette surveyed them in startled admiration. They were like runners ready for a race. Staring at the youth with his bow and at the girl with her tangled, shining hair, the Indians returned their gaze with a look of amazement not unmixed with approval. They seemed scarcely able to believe these two had fooled them so completely, capturing one of their number in the bargain, yet conceded the fact with glances in which passion was held subdued.

A young savage who stood before them seemed largely responsible for this attitude. Purplish lines were around his throat as if a rope had choked him. Two of the eagle feathers in his tuft were broken, and his shoulder was bleeding where the skin had been torn by a jagged tooth of rock. Evidently he held considerable influence in the war party of which he was a member. Beside him was a much older man of even more powerful figure.

It was he who spoke in Seneca to the younger.

"So this is the boy who made my brave nephew a captive to be saved by the voice of a dog!"

The other scowled at the taunt in his voice.

"He could have killed me. He spared my life."

"This is the young he-fawn to whom you owe a feather from your tuft!"

"I owe him two—one for himself and one for the maiden whose presence must have stayed his hand."

The older man grunted.

"He looks strong and may stand to travel with us. But the girl is like a broken flower ready to fall in our path. She will cumber out feet and make our way more difficult, and great haste must be our choice. Use your hatchet on one and we will take the other."

At this command Jeems gave a sudden cry, and the faces of the savages relaxed in astonishment when he began to speak in their language. Hepsibah Adams' schooling had prepared him for this hour. His tongue stumbled, some of his words were twisted, there were gaps which only the imagination could fill, but he told his story. The Indians listened with an interest which assured Jeems they had not been a part of the force that had massacred his and Toinette's people. He pointed to the girl. He related how the Mohawks had destroyed his father and mother and all who had belonged to Toinette; how they had fled together, how they had hidden in the old house, and that with an arrow he had killed the white man who had fired the gun. Bronzed and disheveled, the long bow in his hand, Jeems made a vivid picture of courage and eloquence that would remain with Toinette as long as she lived. She drew herself up a little proudly, sensing that he was fighting for her. She stood straight, her chin high, gazing with unafraid eyes at the leader of the war party.

With the courtesy which Tiaoga had already established for himself in borderland history, the chieftain listened attentively, and when the youth had finished, he spoke words which sent two of his men running down the ridge in the direction of Lussan's place. Then he asked questions which let Jeems know the Senecas had not gone as far as Lussan's, but that they had heard the gun, and in seeking for the one who had fired it, had stumbled upon their trail in the hardwood slope half a mile from the abandoned house.

When his brief questioning was over, Tiaoga turned his attention once more to the young man beside him.

"I think the boy is a great liar, and I have sent back for proof of it," he said. "If he has not sped an arrow through this friend of the Mohawks, as he claims, he shall die. If he has spoken the truth in the matter, which will be proof that he has spoken it in others, he may travel with us, and his companion also, until her feet tire so, that death is necessary to bring her rest."

Toinette began to prepare herself for the ordeal, braiding her hair swiftly. Jeems came to her, and she saw the torturé of doubt in his eyes.

"I can do it, Jeems," she cried softly. "I know what you were saying and what they were thinking, and I can do it. I will do it! I am going to live—with you. I love you so much that nothing can kill me, Jeems—not even their tomahawks!"

The tall young warrior approached. He at least was one friend among the many who stood about them.

"I am Shindas," he said. "We are going to a far town—a long way. It is Chenusfo. There are many leagues of forests, of hills, of swamps between us and it. I am your friend because you have been a brother and allowed me to live, and I owe you two feathers from my tuft. I brought your hatchet from under the rocks because I did not want you to strike and be killed in turn. You love the white maiden. I, too, love a maiden."

The Seneca's words brought to Jeems not only hope but shock. These savages were from Chenusfo, the Hidden Town—a place which even the adventurous Hepsibah Adams had looked upon as another world, a goal which he had dreamed of reaching in some day of reckless daring. Hidden Town! The heart and soul of the Seneca nation! It was a vast distance away. His uncle had once said, "You must be a strong man before you can travel to it. That is why the Senecas, who range far, are the finest of all two-legged beasts." Shindas spoke again.

"Tiaoga, my uncle, who is a great captain, will keep his word. He will kill the little fawn who is with you if her limbs fail her."

Jeems looked from his friend to Toinette. She had approached the fierce old warrior and was smiling into his face, her eyes aglow with confidence as she pointed to her ragged shoes. For a moment Tiaoga repulsed her advance with stoical indifference. Then he turned his back on her and gave a command which quickly put a prisoner's thong of buckskin around Jeems' neck and relieved him of his bow.

Down into the valley and through the forest the long, grim march began.

The two braves had returned with the white man's scalp and the broken arrow that had killed him. They talked excitedly, and Toinette could understand by their actions the story they were telling. It was the portrayal of a desperate struggle between their prisoner and the white-skinned Mohawk. They measured the difference in their weight and size. The broken arrow was compared with its fellows in the quiver.

Tiaoga spoke. "This youth shall go with us, and in turn for his brotherhood, we will take the maiden to fill the place of Silver Heels in my tepee. See that he is given the scalp which is his that he may have a feather in his tuft when we arrive." Then he spoke to Jeems: "You hear?" Then to Toinette: "You are Silver Heels. She was my daughter. She is dead."

No flash of emotion, no softening of his features, no sign of friendship crossed the chieftain's countenance. He turned and put himself at the head of his band, huge among his men, with the dignity of a king in his bearing.

DAIRY

SUGGESTS THREE GRAIN MIXTURES

Corn, Oats, Bran and Cottonseed for Dairy Cows.

Feeding dairy cows rations that make for economical milk production is one sure way to cut high feeding costs, states S. M. Salisbury, specialist in animal husbandry at the Ohio State university, who suggests that the most economical grain mixture under present prices consists of corn, oats, bran and cottonseed meal.

When alfalfa hay is available, he recommends that the grain mixture be made up of three parts each of corn, oats, and bran, with one part of cottonseed. But if clover or mixed hay is fed, the ration might be modified to 2 parts each of corn, oats, and bran, and 1 part of cottonseed meal. A good grain mixture to feed with timothy hay consists of equal parts of corn, oats, bran, oil meal and cottonseed meal. These rations may be fed with or without silage at the rate of 1 pound for each 5 or 4 pounds of milk produced.

The most practical method of providing a grain ration for dairy cattle is to feed one of the suggested rations to the entire milking herd, according to Salisbury. If one cow tends to become fat and her milk production falls off too early it is well to add a little extra high protein feed to her ration. This has a tendency to stimulate milk production rather than the accumulation of fat.

If another cow is milking heavily and has a tendency to become too thin, it is best to add extra corn and oats or other high-carbohydrate feeds to her ration. It is not practical, he points out, to attempt to make a separate grain mixture for each cow.

As there are about 87.5 pounds of water in every 100 pounds of milk and as a cow consumes three pounds of water for every pound of milk she produces, it is essential that she drink plenty of water, Salisbury says. In cold weather water cups in the barn are oftentimes responsible for a 10 to 15 per cent difference in milk production.

Measuring Efficiency of Cow Is the Latest Task

Electricity's latest task is a boon to the dairy industry. In the laboratories of the College of Agriculture, University of California, at Davis, Calif., there has just been completed a "respiration chamber" in which the input-output efficiency of a cow may be tested electrically. In fact, provisions are made for tests on two cows at one time.

The animals are provided with comfortable stalls in air-tight chambers, and are fed, watered, milked and cleaned under careful laboratory conditions. The feed is weighed, the water is analyzed and the air in the chambers is cooled and humidified. Attendants who enter the chamber at regular intervals must pass through an air clock auxiliary chamber to prevent air leakage.

The breathing of the animals is measured by an elaborate "mechanical lung" device called an "aspirator," designed and built by Doctor Kleiber on the staff of the college. A classifier, in the basement under the respiration chamber, separates the waste products. The entire equipment is about three times the size of a large motor bus, and it cost nearly three times as much.

Dairy Cows Rustling in Stalk Fields for Feed

Dairy cows forced to rustle around a cornstalk field for a part of their feed in winter cannot produce enough milk to make them profitable. Even when the very best of grain feeds are fed to cows which are called upon to get all their dry roughage in the stalk field, there is very little chance for them to make a worthwhile milk yield. One reason for this is that cows that are kept out of doors use up most of their feed to keep warm, and the other reason is that there is very little in cornstalks from which a cow can make milk.

A good milk-producing cow is usually thin in flesh. She is thin-skinned and cannot stand the cold. She needs to be kept in warm quarters to be comfortable. Even under such conditions she cannot make much use of cornstalks as a part of her feed. She needs plenty of digestible, milk-making feeds all the time. This is true whether she is in milk or in dry condition. When she is not making milk she should be fed liberally so that she will keep on producing milk profitably when she freshens again.

Ground Soy Beans

Ground soy beans are a very satisfactory source of protein on many dairy farms. Usually only favorable comment is heard from men feeding beans during the cold weather. In summer, however, a lack of palatability in the ration containing the ground beans is often reported. In most cases, however, the beans are not refused by the herd when first ground but rather after the feed has been ground two weeks or more. The finer the beans are ground the more trouble.

Small Force Comprises British Army in India

There are 60,000 British troops in India, and 150,000 Indian troops, with 34,000 reservists. This force constitutes the sole military weapon on the spot with which to defend an area of 1,805,000 square miles and a population of approximately 349,000,000, to protect a vast continent against external aggression and internal disturbance.

There is one British soldier to each 30 square miles of territory, and to each group of 3,315 Indians.

It may assist in giving a more concrete idea of the position if it is pointed out that the figures quoted above represent—assuming an even distribution—one unit of 1,000 British troops for each 30,000 square miles of territory, and the unit of 1,000 Indian troops for each 12,000 square miles.

In many cases, the district officer is hundreds of miles from the nearest troops; he may easily spend his whole service in India without seeing a British soldier, except when he visits a garrison town, probably well over 100 miles away, for official or social purposes.

We have often been told that "India is held by the sword"; the statistics given above lend no support to that dictum, and it is hotly denied by all who know the real facts of the situation.—Sir John Campbell in the Atlantic Monthly.

Won Over Detractors

Originally the term "Gothic architecture" was applied in contempt by adherents of the classical school which accepted the Romanesque style. They considered the pointed arch barbarous and grotesque, therefore, Gothic. It soon made a place for itself and was widely employed through out Europe in the construction of cathedrals, churches and abbeys.
