CITY WILL OBSERVE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY WITH SCHOOL PROGRAM

Today the world is endeavoring to recover from a long period of economic and social depression that has swept the highways and byways of the world. Every effort is being made to stabilize business, to restore employment to millions of jobless people and to build up the morale that has of late had its supports knocked from under. It is a singular coincidence that the spirit of George Washington, dead one hundred and thirty-three years, is again of beneficial help to the economic conditions of the country which he fathered. George Washington in his early manhood worked for prosperous and populous enduring communities, not only in his own Virginia but in all the parts of the new world of which he had knowledge. That he was successful in history, and that he will again instill into the hearts of the people of America a new hope, and a new joy in working out their destiny will be the history of the future. While the George Washington Bicentennial is in no way a commercial project, yet the government's co-operation in bringing this great man home to every individual, through associating him with the appearances of his time, will undoubtedly foster new business for every merchant in the country.

America's Greatest Genius

George Washington had a genius for leadership and for organization. He was always eager to help a worthy cause and he always brought his efforts to success not only for himself personally, but for those concerned in his movements. Whenever he was called upon for help in working out a situation he answered readily, and solved the crisis satisfactorily. During the French and Indian wars in the colonies he was of invaluable assistance to his country because of his knowledge of the manner of life and manner of warfare employed by the Indians. When he was elected first President of these United States in 1789, though he took the chair "like a culprit going to his execution," he followed the dictates of his heart, coupled with the less sentimental ones of his head, and proved again his genius for leadership and organization. So well liked was he, by commoner and statesman, that he was elected to a second term of Presidency in 1793, and only escaped a third term through his own refusal. When in 1799 Gen. George Washington died, he closed a long life, filled with fine activity, loyalty to his country and cause, a life that has been respected and revered with increased admiration through the passing centuries, not only by the American people but by people the world over, who recognize in him a genius of the first years of these United States.

Celebration of George Washington Bicentennial

During the administration of Calvin Coolidge as President of the United States, congress adopted the resolution providing for the celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, to be known as the George Washington Bicentennial, and to last from February 22, 1932, up to and including Thanksgiving day, November 24, 1932. It is sponsored by the United States. Congress created the George Washington Bicentennial commission and the President is its chairman.

MRS. THEODORE LANGE

Mrs. Theodore Lange, age 60 years, five months and 11 days, died Monday morning, February 15, at her home in Tawas township. She had been ill with rheumatism for a number of years.

Emma Stuedemann was born September 4, 1871, in Saginaw. In 1898 she was united in marriage to Theodore Lange. They made their home on their farm in Tawas township ever since. To this union were born six children, of whom one son preceded her in death.

Left to survive are: The husband, three sons, Clarence of Detroit, George of Wilber and Louis of Mio, two daughters, Mrs. James Styles of Wilber, Martha at home, a brother, Fred Stuedemann of Saginaw, two sisters, Mrs. Anna Eggert of Bridgeport and Mrs. Lena Newkirk of Saginaw, also four grandchildren and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the home in Tawas township. Rev. F. A. Sievert officiated. Burial was made in the Zion Lutheran cemetery.

Mrs. Lange was a member of the Zion Lutheran church here over 30 years.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF JOHN DEMPSEY WILL BE HELD SATURDAY

The funeral services of John Dempsey, aged Isoco county man, who died Wednesday at West Allis, Wis., will be held Saturday afternoon, February 20. Services will be held from the home of Mrs. Lucy Allen at 1:30 o'clock and at 2:00 o'clock from the Hemlock Road Baptist church, Eastern Standard time. Obituary next week.

WILL OPEN LAW OFFICE AT EAST TAWAS

T. George Sternberg, attorney and counsellor at law, of Harrisville, announces the opening of an office for general practice of law in East Tawas. Mr. Sternberg intends to be at this office on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week and at such other times as appointment may be made, and will be at his office in Harrisville the remainder of the time.

The office is located in the office of the Tawas Bay Insurance Agency, and will be open for business Monday, February 22.

SWANSON-TEALL

Oscar Swanson of Baldwin township and Mrs. Mary E. Teall of Hale were united in marriage at the home of the groom at 11:00 o'clock Wednesday morning, February 17, by Elder M. A. Sommerfield of Tawas City.

Edward Harnes attended the groom as best man and Mrs. Mable Harnes attended the bride as maid of honor. After the ceremony a bountiful dinner was served to relatives and friends.

THE TIMBERJACKS SERMONETTE

And as the sons of men became more numerous in the forests, it was shown unto them that the Angel of Death abideth near as the towering pine tree cracketh on the stump and shrieketh through the air as it falleth to earth at the Timberjack's command.

And they gathereth themselves unto an appointed place and the sons of men out of their combined wisdom confideth each to the others an everlasting covenant that provideth that for all time to come that no tree should be felled to the earth until the Timberjack shouteth TIMBER unto his brethren.

And men rejoiced and the beasts also, in the pleasure of their work fearing no evil. And unto this day the cry of TIMBER hath a warning unto the Timberjack.

"TOUCHDOWN" IS EXCITING FOOTBALL PICTURE

Peggy Shannon has the principal feminine lead in "Touchdown," Paramount's exciting modern story of big college football at the State Theatre Saturday and Sunday.

In "Touchdown" she is the sweetheart of Richard Arlen again. This time Arlen is the coach for Midwest, a large college, where football is played on a big scale in stadiums that hold scores of thousands of persons. A rare feature of this story is that Arlen's great team loses the last game, rather than winning it after the manner of the Dick Merriwell spirit that has prevailed in 99 movie football plays out of 100.

A score of football celebrities take part in the thrilling action of "Touchdown." The picture was made with painstaking care for exactness and reality, with Howard Jones, famous coach at the University of Southern California, Jim Thorpe, famous all-round Olympic athlete and griddler, Tom Lieb, former aide to Knute Rockne and many other authorities assisting Norman McLeod in the direction.

NOTICE

Whittemore Lodge No. 471, F. & A. M., is not sponsoring dance in any way held at Roll-Inn hall February 22, 1932. Signed—C. H. Schuster, Secretary Whittemore Lodge No. 471 F. & A. M.

OYSTER SUPPER

To be held at Wilber M. E. church Monday, February 22, from 6:00, E. S. T., until all are served. Price 35c. adv

One hundred thirteen pupils of the Tawas City public school will take part in the program to be presented at the State Theatre Monday evening under the auspices of the George Washington Bi-Centennial Committee. This will be the first of a series of patriotic programs which will be given during the next few months at Tawas City in honor of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

The entertainment will begin at 8:15 o'clock, Eastern Standard time. A nominal charge of 25c for adults and 10c for children will be made to cover the necessary expenses. Any surplus will be given to the athletic fund.

The following is the program for the evening:

Rondo, America—High School Orchestra.

Little Patriot's Drill—Second Grade.

Company "W" (play)—Third Grade.

Virginia Reel—Primary Grades.

The Character of Washington (declamation)—James Mark.

Father of the Land We Love (song)—Seventh and Eighth Grade Girls.

Wood Choppers (drill)—Fourth Grade.

Minuet—Third Grade.

Colonial Dames' Tea (drill)—Fifth and Sixth Grades.

Washington's Character—Elsie Mueller.

North Our Flag—Boys' Glee Club.

The Star Spangled Banner (play)—Fifth and Sixth Grade Girls.

Mistress Penelope—Seventh and Eighth Grades.

The Star Spangled Banner—Audience.

Flag Salute—Audience.

SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council

High School

The Girls Glee Club has a new song, "Nightfall," the music of which is taken from "Liebestraum" by Franz Liszt.

The fourth and the twelfth grades are tied for the highest average percent of attendance for the first semester of the school year, as each has an average of 99%. The average percent of attendance for the whole school for the same time is 97%.

The twelfth grade advanced Civics class is finding the study of the national government to be a very interesting one. The text book which is used, "American Government," by Magruder, has been much revised and expanded since last year. As a result, much material is presented which has never been presented before. One of the illustrations shows President Hoover speaking at the Yorktown Sesqui-Centennial, October 19, 1931.

Typewriting An Achievement (an editorial by Dr. Albert E. Winship, in the Journal of Education, October 14, 1929) is as follows:

"Modern education is measured by ability to use scholarship.

Unusable scholarship of 1920 here no more educational value in 1929 than an unharvested peach crop of this season will have next season.

Typewriting is education personified. It concentrates thought on what to do and how to do it. It pays a premium upon speed in correct thinking and doing.

This is a typewriting age because it is a mass production age. Typewriting is mass production in correct thinking and rapid doing.

A brief course in typewriting will do more to establish the habit of correct spelling than ten times the effort in any other way.

Even a brief course in typewriting is to handwriting in business what a boy's running is to a baby's creeping.

Business is as dependent upon typewriting as a metropolitan daily paper is upon the typesetting machine.

There is nothing in the school course above the sixth grade that can produce as great practical results for the time and effort re-

YOUNGSTERS WILL LIKE ROGERS' NEW PICTURE

"Ambassador Bill," Will Rogers' latest Fox picture, coming Sunday and Monday to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, has unusual appeal for children, as well as for grown-ups. The adventures of the young king, portrayed by Tad Alexander, a handsome and talented boy actor, the kids' baseball game in which Hi-Majesty gets into a fight with another boy player and the activities of the Boy Scouts will interest and intrigue the youngsters.

Rogers portrays the role of a homespun United States ambassador to a revolution torn country where he pals with the boy king, introduces baseball into the kingdom and organizes a troop of Boy Scouts.

In addition to this, he re-unites the estranged queen and her king and upsets court traditions in a series of most hilarious events.

Marguerite Churchill, Greta Nissen and Gustav von Seyffertitz and others are in the cast.

NEW COMEDY TEAM IN "THE UNEXPECTED FATHER"

Slim Summerville and Zasu Pitts. That is the star-spangled combination of laugh experts that Universal has placed together for the first time in "The Unexpected Father," the attraction at the State Theatre next Thursday and Friday.

It was popular demand that elevated the tall, lanky Tilden of "All Quiet on the Western Front" and the playful Marine whom virtually every theatre-goer promptly recognizes, to feature picture stardom. And it, probably, was a happy thought to team him with the girl who has been called the screen's greatest comedienne, wistful-eyed Miss Pitts.

Dorothy Christy, the blond, willow "vamp" of many a devastating screen affair, Claude Allister, the popular English comedian, Alison Skipworth, Grace Hampton, and Tyrell Davis are also prominent among the cast.

ZION LUTHERAN CHURCH

Our services this Sunday will commemorate the bicentennial of the birth of George Washington.

10:00 a. m.—German service and Sunday School.

11:00 a. m.—English service with Holy Communion.

Wednesday, February 24, at 8:00 p. m.—German Lenten service.

LOCAL I. O. O. F. BOWLING TEAM WINS CONTEST

During the winter months Baldwin Lodge, I. O. O. F., has been holding a bowling tournament. Twenty-three two-men teams are competing for honors, with Paul Ropert and Roy Harris leading at the half-way post.

A. Carlson, chairman of the committee in charge, arranged a contest with Eden Lodge of Bay City for last Saturday evening, and at this, the first interseries contest, the local bowlers won by 209 pins. The Odd Fellow recreation room was crowded to the doors with spectators who applauded both teams vigorously.

On a strange alley the Bay City boys were handicapped. This fine group of men were led by the Grand Conductor of the Grand Lodge E. M. Sharpe, who made a 435 score, J. E. Pratt 385, W. Francis 452, H. Clutter 420, and V. Schroder 375. Total—2040 pins.

For the locals Frisch scored 434, Moran 407, Ropert 407, Carlson 371, and Hatton 570. Total—2249 pins. Hatton led with high score of 223, 192, 155 for his three games.

A return match to be held in Bay City the last of the month will tell the story, while in the meantime local city bowlers indicate that they will gladly trim the OddFellow team—maybe.

The Rebekahs have the use of the recreation room every Thursday evening, and Tawas will soon have a first rank group of lady bowlers. To date Miss Winnie Herman, Mrs. Moran, Mrs. Herstrom, Mrs. Cecil, Misses Evenson and Huhtala are among the high scorers.

T. T. CLUB HOLDS VERY ENJOYABLE PARTY

The T. T. Club met with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Earl last Friday evening for a Valentine party. The ladies had planned the party as a surprise on Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Curry and Mr. and Mrs. James Chambers, in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

After a few games of pedro, Mr. and Mrs. Chambers and Mr. and Mrs. Curry were escorted to an upstairs room where they were dressed for a mock marriage. As the couples and their attendants descended "Yankee Doodle" was played by the musicians. William Moore acted the part of clergyman, reading a very appropriate "sermon." Mrs. Sara Katterman was ring bearer and Chelsea Chambers assisted the brides with their veils (discarded lace curtains). The brides' bouquets were carrots, spinach, lettuce and onions.

After the services the old familiar hymn, "Yield Not To Temptation," was sung. Mr. and Mrs. Curry and Mr. and Mrs. Chambers were presented with silver cake plates in memory of their silver wedding anniversary. A bountiful pot luck lunch was served. Mrs. Wm. Moore deserves much praise for the beautiful four-story wedding cake she made. It was decorated with a miniature bride and groom and placed under the wedding bell.

Needless to say everyone had a very enjoyable time.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our son, Walter, who passed away February 20, 1925. We are longing for you more each day.

Ever since you passed away.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller.

MEMORIAM

Ostrander, William Clark—In loving memory of our dear husband and father who was called to his eternal home February 22, 1927.

"Gone from us, but leaving memories Death can never take away—Memories that will always linger While upon this earth we stay."

Mrs. Elizabeth J. Ostrander and Family.

AUCTION BRIDGE SCORING SYSTEM IS EXPLAINED

The following examples of the rubber system of scoring Auction Bridge as used in tournament play are printed for the benefit of those who are not thoroughly familiar with this system of scoring. The actual play of the cards when scoring by rubbers is no different than when games are confined to four hands. There is also no difference in the actual valuation of the hands. Certain players, however, will use different bidding tactics when playing by rubbers, the inclination chiefly being to bid higher. Obviously, it is just as important to make game in a rubber as it is to make game where the play is limited to four hands.

The principal advantage of the official rubber system is that it gives the losers of the first few hands a chance to come back and even the score.

Everyone is familiar with the standard printed score card upon which a line is always drawn across the columns about half way down the sheet. In bridge this line is officially known as the "line" and this is always the line which is meant when the word line is used. No points are ever scored below this line when scoring by rubbers except points made by tricks. A rubber is always ended when one side has scored two 30-point games below the line.

The following examples will serve to illustrate the rubber system of scoring:

Example A—An illustration of the simplest form of rubber. On Hand No. 1, North-South make four spades and hold 40 in honors. 35 points are scored below the line and 40 points above the line. They have thus scored on the 30-point game and a new line is drawn entirely across the score sheet below the thirty-six points. At this point one more 30-point game will give them two games and a bonus of 250 points.

On Hand No. 2, North-South make three no-trump and hold thirty in honors. 30 points are scored below the line for trick points and 30 points above the line for honors. They have thus won two games which gives them an additional bonus of 250 points above the line. Since one side has completed two 30-point games the rubber is automatically ended. The total of

MARILYN MILLER AT FAMILY IN "HER MAJESTY, LOVE"

Marilyn Miller, radiant dancing comedienne of "Sally" and "Sunny" is to be seen Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Family Theatre with Ben Lyon, in "Her Majesty, Love," her latest First National starring vehicle.

Miss Miller is more charming than ever in this gay romance of Berlin and Italy. She plays the part of coquettish Fraulein Lia Torrek—who evolves from a barnaid to a butterfly baroness—not that the aged baron matters much—with young Fred von Wallengen always in the offing.

Others in the cast are W. C. Fields, Chester Conklin, Ford Stuber, Leon Errol, Harry Stubbs, Maude Eburne, Alfred James, Ruth Hall, Mae Madison and Don Novis. William Dieterle directed.

The Nation's Greatest Son

This portrait of George Washington, highly prized possession of Marshall Solberg, Chicago, is claimed by him to have been painted by Gilbert Stuart. It bears the year 1794, and is signed by the master in an inconspicuous way. Some have thought that the earliest "Stuart Washington" was painted in 1795, but such is not the case, for John Jay gave Gilbert Stuart a letter to Washington which Stuart delivered while congress was in session in the year 1794 and Stuart refers to this in correspondence with relative. It was then that one of the three sittings occurred. There were many portraits of George Washington painted by Gilbert Stuart, but there were only three sittings, so that many of the portraits were copied by Stuart from either completed pictures or sketches. It was, of course, not entirely unusual for great painters to make preliminary sketches of their subjects, although they did on many occasions entirely complete their paintings at sittings. This latter procedure was followed, it is thought, by Gilbert Stuart in this portrait. If this is so, it stands unique among the "Stuart Washingtons." According to a volume in Mr. Solberg's library, Gilbert Stuart admired this picture so much that he retained it himself and would not part with it for many years thereafter. When it landed in the hands of Congressman Gilbert of western New York he loved it so much that he asked that it might be the last object for him to gaze upon in this life.

Washington, Man, Patriot, Statesman

COURAGE, physical and moral, was a part of his nature; and, whether in battle or in the midst of popular excitement, he was fearless of danger and regardless of consequences to himself. (Sparks, Jared—The Life of George Washington, p. 458.)

At all times and amid all conditions Washington rang true to the note of a splendid manhood. Hypocrisy and a trafficking in expedients for popular applause no more match with his life than the crime of murder. He had little of the captivating style of speech or manner but regard for the nobility of his character, rather than any rhetorical art or charm of personal address on his part, kept wavering lines from retreat in battle and from mutiny amid privation and suffering to which our neglect had exposed the soldiers of the Revolution. (Underwood, Oscar—The Career and the Words of Washington, p. 12.) (State Society of Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Pa., February 22, 1912.)

His Personal Triumph

Then came the horrors of Valley Forge and of the winters in Morris county. Those were the days when desertions were many and enlistments were few, when Washington dared not give open battle and there was hardly left to him a place for retreat. Then came the Conway conspiracy, and the ambition of Gates, and the cowardice of Lee and the treason of Arnold, and a series of persecutions so petty, so bitter, so malignant, that it is amazing how Washington survived them. Then, too, came defeats like that at Brandywine, and battles of uncertain meaning like that at Monmouth. . . .

It is easy for us as we read these events in the light of the issue to keep up our courage and understand the triumph that finally came, but it was a very different thing for Washington. Congress was weak, meddlesome, and vacillating. The soldiers were raw, undisciplined and sometimes mutinous. There were jealousies and libels and forgeries and slanders almost beyond our present ability to believe. . . .

When I recall Washington's calmness in the midst of exasperating annoyances, his unselfish loyalty when surrounded by cupidity and jealousy and hatred, his faith that put courage into the hearts of men who marched hungry and left bloody footprints in the snow; when I remember how after eight years of this and more he emerged victorious, as calm in victory as he had been serene in defeat, I do not wonder that Frederick the Great is said to have pronounced George Washington's campaign in the Jerseys the most brilliant in military annals. (Barton, William E.—George Washington.)

Shared Men's Sufferings

Washington did not leave his men and go home to live in luxury, but stayed to endure privation with them. Only he who reads his letters written during these trying times can appreciate his troubles and anxieties. (McLaughlin, Andrew C.—History of the American Nation, p. 168.)

Behold him (George Washington) in 1775 taking leave of his family and his home, and hastening to the relief of a distant and then unknown part of America. See him transforming and cementing a band of rusties into an army. Follow him to the field of battle, and see him first in danger and last out of it. Go with him into Valley Forge, and see him sharing the hunger, the cold, the fatigue of every soldier in the camp. Was there ever such fortitude in adversity? Was there ever such moderation in the hour of victory? (McMaster, John B.—History of the People of the United States, Vol. I, p. 465.)

Washington's Victory

On only one point did there seem to be unanimity and accord. That was that the dogged prosecution of the war and the ultimate victory must be credited to George Washington. Others had fought valiantly and endured hardships and fatigues and gnawing suspense, but without him, who never wavered, they could not have gone on. (Thayer, William R.—George Washington, p. 128.)

The American revolution from a military point of view was a group of little wars rather than a single war. The one integrating force was the person of the great commander, but George Washington held the army and the cause together by his exhaustless patience and courage rather than by any comprehensive plan of war. (Muzzey, David S.—History of the American People, p. 130.)

WASHINGTON'S ARMS

To Washington no duty, however obscure, was unimportant, and no devotion from duty, however trifling, was possible. (Hoar, George F.—Washington, p. 31.) (Chicago, February 23, 1903.)

Put Patriotism First

Washington was an incorruptible patriot. He was one of the few rich men who was not a Tory. A very large proportion of men of large means stayed to endure privation with them. Only he who reads his letters written during these trying times can appreciate his troubles and anxieties. (McLaughlin, Andrew C.—History of the American Nation, p. 168.)

Great Wall of China

Where Great Wall of China Would Run if Transferred to United States.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

THE Great Wall of China, in the shadow of which fighting between Chinese "bandits" and Japanese soldiers recently has taken place, is one of the greatest engineering feats of mankind. The barrier, beginning at Shanhaikwan on the Gulf of Chihli, stretches in a snakelike source far into Mongolia.

If transferred to a map of the United States and its eastern end placed at Philadelphia, the wall and its spurs would penetrate the border of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri, Arkansas and Kansas.

According to astronomers, the wall is the only work of man's hand which would be visible to the human eye from the moon. Some idea of the size of its stupendous construction may be gained from the calculation that if the materials of which it was built were used to encircle the globe at the equator, they would be sufficient to form a barrier eight feet high and three feet thick. There are more brick and stone in the Great Wall than in all the buildings in the United Kingdom.

Historians class this mighty rampart as the "Eighth Wonder of the World"; and not the least wonderful part about it is that it has survived all the others save at Gizeh, the Great Pyramid of Kufu.

The Great Wall of China differed from other famous wonders of the world in that it served a utilitarian purpose, whereas most of the others were all "preposterous edifices of exaggerated hugeness, of dazzling and ruinous luxury." It had a mighty purpose, serving as a barrier to keep the barbarians of the North from overrunning China, whose fertile plains invited them.

The idea was not ridiculous in an era when bows and arrows and twisted pikes were the weapons of invaders. Then earth and stone were real deterrents (for artillery was unknown) against armies that were simply cavalry hordes.

Was Completed in 204 B. C.

Walls dividing rival feudal kingdoms or protecting them from foreign enemies are mentioned in the Chinese chronicles as early as the Fifth century before Christ, and it is probable that portions of these previously built walls, of which vague vestiges are still traceable in some parts of Chihli and Shantung provinces, were utilized by Chin Shih Huang Ti (contemporary of Hannibal), who extended and linked them together when he built his "Long Rampart," stretching from Shanhaikwan, on the sea coast, to Minchow, in distant Kansu, in order to protect himself and his empire from the Huns, whom he so long unsuccessfully tried to overcome in the field.

Begun in 219 B. C., the barrier was completed in 204 B. C. Thus it was fifteen years in building, seven of which were after the mighty emperor's death. To him alone, however, is due the conception of a work probably unequalled in any land or by any people for the amount of human labor bestowed upon it. Three hundred thousand troops, besides prisoners of war and all the criminals in the land, including many dishonest officials, were impressed for the work.

How these unskilled laborers accomplished their task with the primitive means at their disposal, how they overcame the physical difficulties imposed on them by the steep slopes of the high mountain ranges, remains a marvel to this day.

As for the cost of the wall, no figures have been preserved. A weaker man might well have hesitated to plan an undertaking which, though popular in the main as a defensive measure, entailed great suffering on the people. But Chin Shih Huang Ti was one of the strongest and most remarkable characters in Chinese history, or, in any history—a powerful and romantic figure, who left behind him an example of personal activity unequalled among Oriental sovereigns. Chin Shih Huang Ti was, furthermore, the autocrat who united China by subjugating a group of warring states from 216 to 210 B. C.

He Made the Emperor Supreme.

He established two principles of government destined to endure in his native land for thousands of years—the supremacy of an emperor and the non-employment of officials in their native provinces. The impression he made on following ages was great and lasting.

With his "high-pointed nose, slit eyes, pigeon breast, wolf voice, tiger heart, and stinging, graceless, cringing character," as native historians portray him, Chin Shih Huang Ti was the classical type of a Chinese military leader.

Yet he was not a great soldier himself, but simply a great fisher of men, to whose genius in choosing able lieutenants was due the first standing army in China, an army of several hundred thousand men, which he raised, equipped and maintained in a peace-loving, country to defend his Great Wall.

Wonderful stories and legends, of course, still find their place in the minds of men about Chin Shih Huang Ti and the Great Wall. The prettiest is, perhaps, the story of how his magic white horse was supposed to have marked out the line of the barrier.

The animal was allowed to wander freely, and wherever it went the builders followed, up hill and down dale, where no horse but a "magic horse" could find a foothold.

"At one point," so runs the legend, "the workmen could not keep up with the creature, so they called a halt to drink their tea."

"Meanwhile a dry fog (probably one of the blinding dust storms common in those latitudes) blew up, until they could neither see the horse nor its footprints; but after tea they continued in the same line for ten miles."

"Not seeing the horse yet, they became suspicious and sent one of their number up a hill to look out. He spied the animal far away to the southwest, heading in quite a different direction. So the workmen abandoned the last stretch, returned to their camp, and built a new wall of forty li (the Chinese li is roughly a third of an English mile), which still remains to prove this story."

Legend Accounts for Fast Work.

Another legend describes how "a compassionate God in heaven looking down and moved to pity by the sufferings of the builders, many of whom had been killed and entombed in the wall because they could not get their work done fast enough, presented each toiler with a magic thread, bidding him tie it around his wrist."

"This gave the workmen abnormal strength and they were able to satisfy the king."

"When, to his amazement, the king saw how fast and how well his people worked, he inquired the cause and found out about the magic threads. Then he seized them all and made a lash for his magic whip, which thereafter was able to work miracles, removing mountains at the pleasure of the sovereign and causing the Yellow river to stand still for the passage of his wall."

Despite the time and labor expended upon it, Chin Shih Huang Ti's mud barrier, with the watchtowers where he quartered his garrison, soon crumbled away. There was apparently so little left of it by the Sixth century, A. D., that the Tungusic Wei and Tsi dynasties, who ruled over North China from 386 to 577 A. D., spoke of building, not of rebuilding, the Great Wall.

When the Chinese dynasty of the Mings (1368 to 1644 A. D.) ousted the descendants of Genghis Khan from the Dragon throne, the Great Wall again assumed much importance. During the 276 years that they ruled the country they had to defend their empire against the northern Barbarians.

The wall was therefore vital to their safety, and Chinese historians of that era describe in great detail how they repaired it along its entire length, from Shanhaikwan to Chiayuk-nan fortress, on the frontier between Kansu province and Sin-Kiang (eastern Turkestan), adding new loops to strengthen it, from 1470 to 1592 A. D.

It was, in fact, under the Mings that the defenses of the Great Wall were most fully developed, with more than 20,000 towers, which were practically a chain of small fortresses, and over 10,000 signal beacons.

Almost every reign saw new defense works erected. Sometimes, as under Cheng Tung (1485 to 1450 A. D.), these were ineffective, since his successor, the unlucky Ching Tai (1450 to 1457 A. D.), suffered an invasion of his provinces. Under Cheng Hua (1465 to 1488 A. D.) a general reported that "to guard 300 miles he had 25 camps, but each contained only from 100 to 200 men, and that one man could not guard 200 yards of frontier night and day."

SANTA CLAUS

JUST as many children speaking many tongues have gradually converted the name of Saint Nicholas into the familiar American Santa Claus, so his many admirers in many different nations have created the conventional Christmas saint out of a figure which was in real life very different.

Nicholas was bishop of Myra, in Lycia, Asia Minor, during the Fourth century of the Christian era, the youngest bishop in the history of the church. His father was a wealthy merchant, and Nicholas by inheriting his fortunes was enabled to build up for himself a reputation for generosity and benevolence toward the poor that has lasted down the centuries. It is a matter of legend that Nicholas, because he disliked to be thanked for his gifts, once dropped a purse of gold down the chimney of the but, where lived a poor old man and his little granddaughter. Instead of landing on the hearth, however, the purse fell into one of the little girl's stockings, hung up before the hearth to dry. Thus commenced the custom of hanging up Christmas stockings for Santa Claus to fill.

How the grave saint of the early Christian church became the jolly fat Santa of today is another story. His figure and smile-wreathed face he borrowed probably from some jolly pagan good-fairy such as were worshipped before the Christian era. His gay red costume is the contribution of Russia, where he is a patron saint. His reindeer are the gift of admirers in Lapland.

MAGGIE

THE hero of that familiar song, "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," was its author, George W. Johnson; its heroine was Maggie Harris, the girl he found and won for his bride during a gold prospecting trip in the wilderness of unexplored forest, Indian ambuscades and occasional white pioneer settlements which in 1830 comprised East Tennessee.

Many years later, old and gray and alone, Johnson returned to the spot on the Haiswee river that was the scene of his courtship, reviving in his mind's eye every dear detail of the settlement as he had first seen it, the green grove where stood the Harris cabin and where he had first seen Maggie, the old mill where they had walked on a summer evening. Noting sadly every change, he wrote down his poem to take home to his wife in the East:

The green grove is gone from the mill,
Maggie,
Where first the daisies sprung,
The creaking old mill is still, Maggie,
Since you and I were young,
And now we are aged and gray, Maggie,
The trials of life are done,
Let us sing of the days that are gone,
Maggie,
When you and I were young.

The poem remained unknown until 1886, when the composer, J. A. Butterfield, wrote the music to which it is sung today.

KING ARTHUR

WHETHER King Arthur was a historical figure or not, and scholars are recently renewing research into this fascinating subject, there stand today in Cornwall, England, ruins of an ancient fortress, crowning the promontory Tintagel Head, which are generally known as "King Arthur's Castle." As the birthplace of the glorious King of the Round Table; this spot has recently been transferred to the possession of the English government to be used as a national park.

If King Arthur was a historical figure he was a comparatively insignificant Cornish chieftain of the early period just succeeding the withdrawal of the Romans. Such a chieftain is celebrated by the Sixth century historian Gildas, in connection with an account of the Battle of Mount Badon in 516, the decisive struggle which checked temporarily the advance of the Saxons against the Celts. Nennius, writing in the Eighth century, calls him by name and attributes to him victory in twelve battles. The date of his death in the battle of Camlan in 537 is added in the Tenth century, Cambrian Annals. By the Twelfth century the Monks Geoffrey of Monmouth and William of Malmesbury were able to produce accounts of his heroism already embellished with much of the legend made familiar by Mallory and Tennyson.

Actually, only the foundations of the chapel of "King Arthur's Castle" date from anything like as early as the Sixth century. The rest of the ruins have been established as Thirteenth century Norman.

The original Aztec civilization was warlike and Spartan; extreme severity marked the penal codes; intemperance, the consuming canker of the American Indian races, was severely penalized; they were constantly at war with their neighbors, and needed no better pretext for a campaign than the need to capture sacrifices for their gods.

Rhine Fortress Is Weakening

Washington, D. C.—Ehrenbreitstein, frowning fortress on the east bank of the Rhine opposite Koblenz, is weakening. Enemy guns have often shaken the lofty fortress but this time nature is making the attack. Recently huge boulders have loosened from its foundations, leveling vineyards in their path to the highway which they blocked below.

"It is nearly 400 feet to the crest of the rock on which Ehrenbreitstein fortress is perched," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"The north, east and west sides of the rocks are cliffs so precipitous that the fortress is almost unapproachable from these directions. The south side, though it has a winding roadway, also is not easily accessible.

Where Stars and Stripes Flew.

"The central fort of Ehrenbreitstein thrusts castellike above the double line of works surrounding it. The fortress is the successor to a Roman fort that crowned the rock centuries ago when Koblenz was a little settlement called Confluentia. A portion of the central fortress now standing has dominated the Rhine valley since the Eleventh century. In 1631 the French occupied the fort for six years. The most recent foreign flag to adorn its ramparts was the Stars and Stripes which fluttered over the fort from December to January, 1923, while it was occupied by the American forces in Germany.

Stars and Stripes Once Flew From Its Ramparts.

"Perhaps few spots in the Rhine valley offer more magnificent panoramas. Above and below Koblenz the Rhine shore line is dotted with quaint villages that resemble pearls strung on a silver string. Their steep backyards are well-kept vineyards that give the river banks the appearance of having recently been combed by a coarse instrument. Topping many rocky summits above the vineyards are castles—some occupied and some in ruins—which once echoed the voices of the great and near great of Europe in celebration of historic events.

"Although the Rhine flows between Koblenz and Ehrenbreitstein, the traveler views the town from such height that it appears almost at its immediate base. Three bridges, one of which is of the pontoon type, span the Rhine at Koblenz.

Old Koblenz Is Hidden.

The city is snugly built between the Moselle and Rhine rivers with a colossal statue of William I mounted on a massive stone foundation, adorning the point where the two rivers meet. From the statue to the end of the city along the Rhine shore, there is a continuous promenade, canopied with shade trees and here and there studded with small flower-filled parks. The land side of the promenade is flanked with villas set in gardens, and quaint eating places, including outdoor cafes. There, while the traveler sips the finest of Rhine wines, he may watch Koblenz stroll at his elbow and the commercial parade on the river beyond.

"What does Koblenz do for a living? and 'What happened to the town that was here 2,700 years ago,' are questions visitors ask. One observes few old buildings. There are no sooty smokestacks to mar the skyline punctuated by graceful spires of churches. The quay on the Rhine is clean and devoid of cargo, and warehouses are conspicuously absent from view.

"These questions are not answered until one penetrates the modern city and finds oneself in a small district on the banks of the Moselle beyond the echo of the Rhine. Here commercial Koblenz is abustle. Barges come and go from the quays, the near-by streets rumble under the pounding steel rims of heavy cart wheels drowning out the noises emanating from piano, paper and dye factories and chemical laboratories. This is commercial Koblenz and ancient Koblenz. Its winding streets and buildings, though not 2,700 years old, have watched the progress of several centuries."

GAMBLING

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

It is wrong to gamble, most people concede, even those mature people who indulge in the pastime themselves. Kayser, who has been caught in a gambling escapade, asks me to explain to him that the practice is contrary to law. There are many things, he points out to me, that the law forbids that are not in themselves wrong, but are taboo because of other considerations.

Kayser is quite familiar with the ten commandments—the eleven, in fact—and he cannot see that gambling in any way violates the commands laid down in these.

Why is gambling wrong if the men concerned in the sport are willing to take the consequences of their wagers?

Well, for one reason, there is seldom an unattached being whose actions concern only himself. Parsons, for instance, who could with difficulty keep himself from the habit, was a young married man with a child as well as his wife to support. He was not risking his own interests alone when he bet upon games or took a hand at poker or played the stock market. He was risking their interests and doing it, too, without their consent. It isn't quite playing the game squarely to do so.

McMasters was talking to a young friend of mine not long ago upon this subject. McMasters is not a young man any more. He has seen a good deal of the world; he has met all sorts of people, and his experiences have been varied. He has seen gambling from the standpoint of the onlooker and from the standpoint of a rather skillful manipulator of the cards.

"I wouldn't gamble, son," he said, "for this reason. If you lose, you usually can't afford it, and if you win you have money for which you have given no return, and money of that sort gives you little pleasure, isn't worth much. It is only the things that you pay full value for that really gives you any real pleasure."

This biographical approach serves to make history something alive and understandable, rather than a batch of facts to memorize, Doctor Hesselstine finds.

Execution in 1825 Is Recalled by Old Arms

Sword and Rifle Are Treasured by Ohio Man.

New Philadelphia, Ohio.—Destruction and retribution frequently go hand in hand, just as do cause and effect, supply and demand, etc., but not often do you see their actual weapons lying side by side.

At Schoenbrunn Memorial park, just southeast of here, are the two weapons, a rifle and a sword.

Behind the two instruments of oblivion is the story of the only legal hanging in Tuscarawas county, which was attended in grand style by the militia and 5,000 citizens of this vicinity, who turned out for the event.

In 1825 a young mail carrier named Cartwell was shot while traveling a lonely wooded trail, bound from Westchester to Coshocton.

A hunter named Johnson heard the rifle crack, and hurrying through the brush, found Cartwell dead and the mail bag rifled.

He immediately gave the alarm, and was surprised most unpleasantly when he found himself arrested on circumstantial evidence and brought to Tuscarawas county jail, in New Philadelphia. Here he was charged with the murder.

Footprints of a man on the scene, however, did not coincide with Johnson's tracks, and, in accordance with a suggestion from the accused man, the entire male population was ordered to assemble on a certain day ostensibly to have their feet examined.

Johnson hoped by this method to identify the man whom he remembered having seen emerging stealthily out of the woods the day of the murder and whom he then had taken for another hunter.

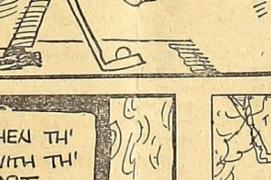

After scanning many faces Johnson suddenly pointed to John Funston, exclaiming, "That is the man!"

"You are a liar!" Funston answered, but even as he spoke sweat gathered on his brow, his lips trembled and his face paled. Johnson was released.

Later, after Funston was tried and convicted, he broke down and admitted the fowling piece found near the mail carrier's body was his.

A gallows immediately was erected along the intersection of West High and Tuscarawas avenues. Postbox, a station on the Cleveland-Marietta railroad between Newcomerstown and Cambridge, now marks the site.

Beauty Talks

By
MARJORIE DUNCAN
Famous Beauty Expert

Ambitious to Be Beautiful?

I HAVE heard young girls say, my ambition is to be a pianist, teacher, salesgirl, singer. Always a goal. I have heard business women declare "I am ambitious to make this a banner year." Hard work ahead. I have seen them direct their efforts along the desired channels, hard work, stick-to-itiveness. Success may have been slow but it was sure.

We all know what sacrifices have to be and have been made in order to achieve success; but desire backed by ambition, and hard, sincere work usually make a success formula.

There will be more beautiful women in the world when more women are ambitious to be beautiful.

Women who excuse a lack of loveliness by, "Oh, you have to be born beautiful," or "I haven't the time," or "I haven't the money," or "I haven't the face, figure or foundation to work with," or "I just can't fuss," are only shutting their eyes to their own possibilities. Lack of loveliness on their part is due largely to laxness.

To be sure there are types and types. There's the short person who wishes she were tall, the large-framed lady who wishes she were petite, the blond who envies the brunette and the brownie who resorts to peroxide bleachers. But there is sufficient loveliness in every type. And to be the perfect exponent of your type is truly to "be beautiful." For remember that beauty today is not measured by the straightness of one's nose or the natural curl of the hair. Selfmade beauty is what counts. Selfmade beauty is nothing more nor less than perfect grooming. And perfect grooming is within reach of every woman.

The course is a simple one. Take an inventory of yourself.

Ask yourself these questions: Am I in good health? If not, see your physician at once. If the answer is yes, live sanely to preserve this most precious possession. There is little excuse for not knowing the health rules. And there is even less excuse for not observing them.

Now for actual beauty. Take your figure, your skin, your eyes, your brows, your entire face, your hair, your hands, your arms, legs, etc., your posture, attention to details, personal daintiness. Under each heading make a fairly full report of why you are or are not satisfied with yourself. And what are you doing for each item in the beauty ensemble?

"Nerves" Undermine Health and Beauty

A PHYSICIAN and nerve specialist speaking: "Too many over-zealous, over-conscientious people in the world live in that's the trouble. Many men, but more women. They love beauty more than their health, but sacrifice both on the altar of over-activity, or over-worry—whatever it is it is over-much."

The discussion put me on the qui vive and in a single day I saw more pictures of "nerves" than I had seen in the preceding month. And every case marked the truth of the learned doctor's verdict.

First we visited a large business organization. Huddled in a corner of one of the offices was a young girl, typing away faster than we ever heard a human type, head lowered over her work, eyes and fingers flying. Her department head whispered us a word of commendation.

"A little wonder—simply in love with her work—engrossed in it from the minute she gets in until the time she leaves, which is usually long past the regular hour." She was giving too much—that young girl.

Without a "let up" a few months breathless, top-speed, long-houred work-a-days would undermine her health, her eyes would lose their sparkle, her hair its luster, her skin become haggard. She may soon be rewarded with a higher position and more pay—then again she may fall victim to "nerves" long before the reward comes.

The next picture—luncheon with an old acquaintance. A trick of fate and fortune had suddenly plunged her into the maelstrom of social activity. An hour to herself was an "event." "I look a wreck, don't I (and without waiting for an answer) got to get more ginger, can't seem to keep step, feel tired out. Think I'll go hiking—that ought to make me feel peppy, don't you think?"

"Think you ought to go to bed for a week," I put in. But the look of surprise on her face seemed to say—who ever heard of going to bed? It took hard work on my part to convince her to drop everything for a week, go to bed, get complete rest and relaxation, and when she once again resumed her routine to have it modified—a great deal.

Too much of anything is—just too much. And work and worry can rouse health and beauty more quickly than one imagines.

The DAIRY

DAIRY COW NEEDS PLENTY OF WATER

Wise Owner Will Make Supply Easy of Access.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)—WNU Service.

Dairymen who want the most milk and butterfat from their cows should arrange to let them drink as much water as they want when they want it, says T. E. Woodward, of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Woodward, who is senior dairy husbandman in the bureau of dairy industry, has completed experiments to determine the relation of methods of watering dairy cows to their water consumption and production. The tests were run both in warm and cold weather and included both high-producing and low-producing cows. The results of watering twice a day and once a day were compared with results obtained when the cows had free access to water.

In these tests, according to Mr. Woodward, the cows drank more water when watered only twice a day than when they had water at will or when watered only once a day, but their production was highest when they had water at will. The production of the cows in this experiment averaged 2.8 per cent more milk and 2.1 per cent more butterfat when given free access to water than when watered only twice a day; and when watered twice a day they produced 1 per cent more milk and 1.4 per cent more butterfat than when watered only once a day.

Mr. Woodward also reports that the increase in milk production as a result of more frequent watering was more marked in the case of the good producers than in the case of the low producers. He concludes: "From these experiments it appears that 'water at will' is the most desirable method of watering all dairy cows. Free access to water is more advantageous in warm weather than in cold weather and also more advantageous to high-producing cows than to low-producing cows."

New System of Feeding Given Test in Canada

A system of feeding cows in milk that had its origin in England is to limit the total bulk fed to cows. To do this, heavy producing cows should be fed a great deal of grain and silage and roots have to be left out. This system was tested at the Ontario Agricultural college. The feed was limited to three pounds daily for each 100 pounds of the animal's weight. Grain was fed at the rate of 3 1/2 pounds for each 10 pounds of milk produced. Also the meal was a 22 per cent protein mixture. A 1,200 pound cow, therefore, would get 36 pounds of feed daily. If she produced 60 pounds of milk her ration would consist of 21 pounds of grain and 15 pounds of hay. With 40 pounds of milk she would be fed 14 pounds of grain and 22 pounds of hay. The grain ration should be high in protein and low in fiber but also coarse and bulky. The mixture at Guelph contained 100 pounds bran, 100 pounds cottonseed, 100 pounds nutted oilcake, 150 pounds rolled oats, 150 pounds rolled corn, 200 pounds corn gluten feed. Professor Steckley concludes that "this work has not been carried on long enough to give very definite observations as yet. We were, however, able to produce 100 pounds of milk during the summer for every 25 pounds of hay and 40 pounds of concentrates fed. It would appear that for high producing cows, this system of feeding is quite satisfactory but it is not particularly adaptable when the cow's production goes under 30 pounds of milk per day."

Productive Cow

A fifteen-year-old Holstein cow, owned by Kansas State Agricultural college, has made a really remarkable record by producing three and a half times her own weight in butterfat and enough dry matter during her lifetime to equal the bodies of 33 steers averaging 1,250 pounds in weight. In eight lactation periods, this cow, which bears the name of Inka Hijaard Walker, has produced 66.8 tons of milk containing 2.4 tons of fat and has also produced eleven calves, of which nine are heifers and two are bulls. On the basis of 1,500 pounds body weight, she has produced 89 times her body weight in milk. Her best record is 21,068 pounds of milk containing 775 pounds of butterfat on advanced registry test and her eight lactations average 16,707 pounds of milk containing 611 pounds of fat.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Milk Distribution Costs

Milk distribution costs have remained high because they are largely fixed charges which can be reduced but slowly and with difficulty. Interest, depreciation, and taxes are not lowered as prices fall. The most important of these continued high costs is wages, since distribution costs are largely in wages. And wages always lag behind prices; when prices rise, wages rise slowly and when prices fall, wages, as a matter of course, tend to remain high.

Painless Way to Study History Quite Popular

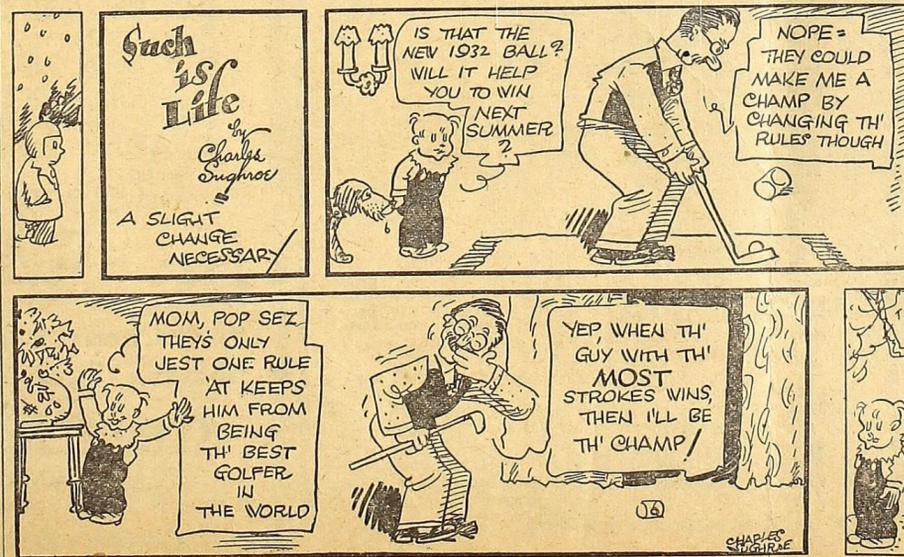

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Dr. William B. Hesselstine has developed a "painless" method of teaching American history. For three years now the youthful head of the University of Chattanooga history department has offered a biography course as introductory to the study of the history of these United States. He calls it "representative Americans." The class is filled to capacity each semester.

Members of the "representative Americans" class read biographies and listen to lectures on the lives of typical Americans instead of forcing themselves through the usual admittedly tedious study of a textbook, with its confusion of dates, wars and facts. The lives of 18 men, from Franklin

Lawrence Fortune and Clayton Schuster have changed their seats.

The Valentine and Lincoln's Birthday party was enjoyed Friday afternoon. Several games were played and lunch served. The pupils gave a bouquet of flowers. Mrs. Fortune was the fortunate one to win the bouquet.

Bert Fortune and Beverly Freeland are getting tricky lately. We are going to try a new plan to get them in ten minutes before the bell rings so they will be here.

Punctuation

Time values for punctuation are given in the method of pointing known as rhetorical punctuation. Here the comma is said to indicate a pause long enough to count one, a semi colon two, a colon three and a period four. Since readers would vary in rapidity of reading and counting punctuation according to grammatical circumstance is usually followed.

Evil-Smelling Gas

"Mustard gas" was given the name because it had a mustardlike odor. It is said that some of the French mustard gas smelled more like garlic than mustard.

Little Wanda Greve is on the sick list, also Miss Faye Yawger. Dr. Hasty is in attendance.

F. E. Bernard is a business visitor in Ohio this week.

Mrs. Henry Oetjens is on the sick list.

S. J. E. Lucas and Miss Lottie Rehl, both operated on recently for appendicitis at the West Branch hospital, were able to return to their respective homes this week.

Owing to so much sickness and bad roads, the attendance at Grange meeting was not what it should have been. The program prepared by Mrs. Adams was reserved for the next meeting when we hope every member may be present. March 15 being the date.

Mrs. Sarah Johnson was hostess to the 500 Club on Tuesday of this week. Score cards and table decorations carried out the Valentine idea and the prize for highest score won by Mrs. Erma Atkinson was a beautiful heart-shaped box of sweets. The attendance at the O. E. S.

card party on Friday evening of last week was not as large as usual owing to weather conditions and illness, but an enjoyable time was had by those attending. The committee in charge was Mrs. Ross Bernard, Mrs. Chas. Harsch and Mrs. Frank Dorcay.

The M. E. Sunday school is arranging for a Washington's Birthday program to be held in the church on the evening of Monday, February 22. A cordial invitation is extended to the public to attend.

On next week Friday evening, February 26, falls the regular meeting of the P. T. A. The programs presented have been instructive and entertaining. We earnestly desire the interest of the parents and patrons of the school district in our P. T. A. work. Your presence expresses this interest. Remember the date—February 26.

We welcome your inspection of our new numbers in living room suites. Barkmans.

WHITTEMORE

You are invited to attend the Washington Bicentennial program at Whittemore sponsored by the Common Council and the Ladies Literary Alliance Monday, February 22, at 2:00 o'clock at the Roll Inn hall. Following is the program for the day: Opening Song, America; Invocation; Patriotic Pageant; Orchestra Selections; Playlet; Quartette Numbers; Address, J. A. Campbell of Tawas City; Benediction.

Mrs. A. Wise is seriously ill at this writing.

George Wereley is very low with pneumonia and not expected to recover.

Mrs. Joseph Danin and daughter and Mrs. Robert Curtis spent Tuesday afternoon in Bay City.

The Methodist Episcopal church at Whittemore was crowded on Sunday last to listen to another illustrated sermon arranged by the Rev. George Smith, the pastor. We understand that Rev. Smith has every Sunday evening fully taken care of by this method of presenting the Gospel message until Easter Sunday. If you want to see, and hear the true Gospel in song, picture and speech, then we invite you to attend these services.

Mrs. Lewis Miller and James Wereley of Flint were called home owing to the illness of their father, George Wereley.

Ernest McCready of Twining has rented the home of Mrs. Fred Mills and moved there Tuesday.

Nearly all of the family of Richard Fuerst are confined to their beds with the flu.

Marion Jacques is home from Grand Rapids for an indefinite time.

Mrs. Horace Powell and Mrs. Harry Hill have both been absent from school on account of being ill with the flu.

Mrs. R. J. Smith had the misfortune to fall Tuesday and hurt her back.

Nearly all of the family of Roy Charters have been ill with the flu. Howard Antterson and mother spent Tuesday in Bay City.

The Ladies Aid of the Hale Methodist church visited their pastor and family, Rev. and Mrs. George Smith, at Whittemore on Wednesday last, and after a very pleasant afternoon, all left for their homes, leaving behind them for the pastor and his family chickens, butter, potatoes, honey, eggs, meat and much fruit, etc. Thank you, ladies. The parsonage is ever open to all such visitors. Why not visit your pastor once in a while? He needs your visit as much as you need him to visit you. Come again.

COMFORT
... THROUGH CASTORIA'S
GENTLE REGULATION

The best way to prevent colic, doctors say, is to avoid gas in stomach and bowels by keeping the entire intestinal tract open, free from waste. But remember this: a tiny baby's tender little organs cannot stand harsh treatment. They must be gently urged. This is just the time Castoria can help most. Castoria, you know, is made specially for babies and children. It is a pure vegetable preparation, perfectly harmless. It contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. For years it has helped mothers through trying times with colicky babies and children suffering with digestive upsets, colds and fever. Keep genuine Castoria on hand, with the name:

Famous Tree Gene
The famous Natick (Mass.) elm, believed to have been at least three centuries old, is no more. The huge tree, 16 feet in circumference, succumbed to age recently and crashed to the ground. Under this elm, according to tradition, the praying Indians of Natick once gathered to hear the words of wisdom of John Eliot.

C. C. CASAD, city engineer of Bremerton, Wash., 12 miles across Puget sound from Seattle, couldn't bring his two vacant lots to Seattle, where he purchased two houses, so he loaded the houses aboard scows and towed them to the lots in Bremerton. Here we see the houses on their trip down the river with the Fremont bridge opened up to allow them passage.

HOW A TAIL SAVED A LIFE

IF YOU think Peter Rabbit had a narrow escape when, just in the nick of time, Hooty the Owl swooped at Shadow the Weasel and drove him into hiding, Shadow himself had a narrower escape. Yes, indeed. Shadow had as narrow an escape as you can well imagine. There was just one thing that saved Shadow and that was his tail. Shadow ought to think a great deal of that tail. Probably he does. And yet it is quite likely that Shadow doesn't know to this day that it was his tail that saved him that night. But Hooty the Owl knows.

You see Shadow's winter coat is pure white, just as white as the snow, but the tip of his tail is black. It looks for all the world as if Old Mother er Nature had been in a hurry when she changed Shadow's coat and forgot the end of his tail. But she didn't. Oh, my, no! Old Mother Nature never forgets. She left the end of Shadow's tail black purposely, and it's lucky for him that she did. You see, when he came jumping along in the snow, Hooty the Owl saw him. That is, he saw something moving. But Shadow was so white and the snow was so white that it was very hard indeed to tell them apart. Still, it is probable that Shadow would have been caught but for one thing. The black tip of his tail was very easy to see. Of course. Against that white snow it stood right out as black as black can be. Hooty couldn't help seeing that. It was such hard work to see Shadow himself and so easy to see that black end of Shadow's tail that Hooty kept his eyes fixed on that.

When Shadow was near enough, Hooty swooped swiftly and silently, but his eyes being fixed on that moving black spot, he grabbed at that with his great claws instead of at Shadow himself, and that tail being too small for him to get hold of he simply plunged his great claws into the snow and got nothing at all. Shadow dodged like a flash. No one can dodge quicker than Shadow the Weasel. He can move so quickly that it would have been hard work to follow him even if he had been wearing his summer coat of brown, but in that white coat—well, it just couldn't be done. The best Hooty could do was to keep his eyes on that black tip of Shadow's tail. So, of course, every time he swooped he missed Shadow. It made him terribly angry, because each time he would think that surely he had Shadow and each time he missed. As for Shadow, he quite forgot Peter Rabbit. The instant he had dodged the first time his sharp little eyes had looked all about for a hiding place, and they had seen an old log with a hole in it. It was nearer than the brush pile where Peter was hiding. Right away he decided that was the place for him. So dodging swiftly this way and that way he reached the little hole and darted in. He was safe, but he was terribly angry. He knew that he would have to stay there until Hooty got tired of watching. He knew, too, that but for Hooty he would have caught Peter by this time, and the mere thought made him grind his teeth. "Anyway," thought Shadow, "as long as Hooty is on his watch-tower Peter will not dare leave that pile of brush. It will give him time to get his breath and to rest, and that means that I will have a little longer chase than I expected, but I'll get him just the same. My, but I'm hungry! FOR AFTERNOON TEA

THE cup of tea with a few congenial spirits, gives one an opportunity to enjoy a few moments of conversation, which in this day and age seems impossible over the bridge table.

Almond Sandwiches.
Mash one-half of a package of cream cheese with a tablespoonful of lemon juice, adding more if needed to give the right consistency and flavor. Now add one-eighth of a pound of ground almonds. Spread on buttered slices of white bread, cut into diamond-shaped pieces. Put three small pieces of candied orange peel down the center of each sandwich.

Date Sandwiches.
Take one cupful of ground dates, one tablespoonful of orange juice, mix well, add one-fourth cupful of ground pecans and one-eighth teaspoonful of cinnamon. Spread on buttered slices of bread into finger-sized pieces and decorate with half a pecan. Small cakes, french pastry, cookies and wafers, vie with the sandwiches on the tea table.

Candies, preserves, conserves, as well as candy wafers, add to the delights of the afternoon cup of tea.

Dr. Harrison Gray Dyer, Washington (D. C.) biologist who died three years ago, had a unique solution of the exercise problem. Dyer's widow explained that her husband, ordered by his physician to get more exercise and, being unable to get out into the country, arose at five o'clock each morning for four years and put in several hours of digging daily.

Fish Without Eyes

Blind fish swim in subterranean caverns 1,500 feet beneath San Antonio, Texas, scientists here believe. Specimens have been sucked up through pumping plant pipes of the San Antonio Public Service company. The eyeless fish are light pink in color when seen above the ground, probably due to the breakdown of cell composition. Water pressure in their cavernous haunts is about 500 pounds a square inch, whereas atmospheric pressure at sea level is 14.7 pounds. Specimens, 3 to 6 inches long, invariably die on reaching the surface.

COLDS

RUB Musterole well into your chest and throat—almost instantly you feel easier. Repeat the Musterole-rub once an hour for five hours... what a glorious relief!

Those good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor—are mixed with other valuable ingredients in Musterole to make it what doctors call a "counter-irritant" because it gets action and is not just a salve.

It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Triumph for Age

Beauty competitions seldom end in such a way as one in Paris, to find the loveliest pair of eyes. The entrants were all dressed alike, in wide-hooded cloaks that covered all the body except the eyes. Finally one pair were so outstanding the judges immediately decided. The process of removing the disguise caused a murmur of surprise through the audience. The "loveliest eyes in Paris" belonged to an old woman of seventy!

The Men on the Dead Man's Chest

By CLIFFORD RAYMOND

(WNU Service.)

Copyright, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

FROM THE BEGINNING

During a "holdup" at the Dutch Mill, Chicago night club, patron, Dunn Clayton, is killed. Lieutenant of Police Stanton questions a club visitor, "Buck" Trembley. In Clayton's pocket Stanton found a note signed "Maisei," making an appointment with the dead man at the Dutch Mill. Stanton is inclined to suspect Trembley of the murder. At a Wisconsin winter camp a boisterous crowd includes Preston Brown. An apparent stranger arrives. Later, two men, driving, come on the scene. The stranger leaves in his car, and the two men follow, passing him. A viaduct is out, and one of the two men removes the danger signals. The stranger, in his car, goes over the embankment. He is dead. Brown is dead. In his papers Clayton's name is found and Stanton connects the deaths. He goes to Wisconsin, and finds the dead man is Trembley. Trembley had caused Brown's death, apparently an accident. A Vermont lawyer, John Whittlesex, reading of the case, recalls the names in connection with an odd will made by a man named Turner. Turner had bequeathed the interest on $6,000,000 to six men, Blair, Ashley, Roberts, Brown, Trembley, and Clayton. The income, at the death of each beneficiary, is to be divided among the rest. Turner's son, on the deaths of the six beneficiaries, is to inherit all. Turner dies shortly after making the will. Whittlesex suspects foul play in the three deaths, and writes to the Chicago police. Stanton interviews Asa Darling, one of the executors of the will.

CHAPTER V—Continued

"Well, Lieutenant," as Pompey came with the tray, "here's our treat. At least it's mine. You're young. I'm old. I try to like being old, but it isn't natural to do so. It requires a philosophy, if you have it. Your health, Lieutenant. A lieutenant of the Chicago police! Do you know, that would give any man a thrill."

"You run us ragged on that here in the East, Mr. Darling. I'm completely out of comebacks. A Patagonian can do no more."

"I'm sincere, Lieutenant. To a man who mostly sits here and finds his world in books, and in Pompey, a Chicago lieutenant is a man from the Danube, the German forests or Hadrian's wall, a Roman centurion."

"I assure you, Mr. Darling, that it's a great joke. Aside from knowing some hoodlums and knowing of some more I get my wild life by reading about it."

"I refuse to believe you," said Mr. Darling smiling. "I have more intuitive confidence in you. You are from our glowing, animated, medieval, Gothic Chicago. I approve of it all. Pompey, put that Napoleon bottle down, after you've taken it out and poured another for yourself. Well, Lieutenant, you had some other mission than that of treating an old New York gentleman to the sight of an actual Chicago lieutenant of police, of a centurion in Lorinrium, of an Angle long swordsmen in Byzantium, of a Viking chief in Sardinia. I presume it's the Turner will."

"You're right, of course, Mr. Darling."

"I've been, in a way, expecting the police, but thought I'd have a New York call. In fact, Lieutenant, I've even considered that I might be arrested as an accessory, an experience which would brighten up any reasonable old age. What do you want to know, Lieutenant Stanton?"

"You know that three beneficiaries of Mr. Turner's will are dead. Our chief point of concern seems to point to the surviving three. You may be able to tell me where they are."

"In a fashion. I'd have to say yes and no. Twice a year I must know where they are, to send them their checks. I couldn't enable you to lay your hands on them at once. You have a copy of the will?"

"I have just come from the probate office in White Plains."

"I hear from them prior to August 1 and December 1. Those were the dates of payment. I could tell you where they were last August. Pompey! Please get me the address book. But that was some eleven or twelve weeks ago, and three of them will not send me addresses any more unless I am to believe Sir Oliver Lodge and Conan Doyle, which I don't."

The old colored man brought him a leather-bound book.

"Here we are," he said, opening the book. "Clayton was in Chicago, as you no doubt know. Preston Brown was at Little Butte des Mortes, Lac Vieux Desert, Wis. Arthur Trembley was in Nova Scotia. He would get his mail at Halifax August 10. Blair and Ashley were in England and would be in London to receive mail by August 15. Ronald Roberts seems to have been traveling. His letter was post-marked Genoa and gave his call for mail as Paris, also about the middle of August."

"The three who were on this side of the water are dead," said Stanton. "The other three are alive, for what that may be worth for speculation.

Those are unbalanced dates for twice-a-year payments, Mr. Darling."

"Aren't they, Lieutenant! You will notice they are so fixed in the will. I forebore to question my friend, Turner, on this point. He seemed to relish it. My conscience suggested that it might be easier if it had nothing more definite than my own imagination."

"I think I follow you, Professor," said Stanton.

"I was sure you would," said Mr. Darling.

"You mustn't kid a policeman, I'm probably wrong, but I'd guess the gentlemen were easy spenders. From December 1 to August 1 would seem a long time unless the spender was careful with his budget."

"It might make him restless," Mr. Darling suggested. "As I said, my friend, Turner, seemed to relish this point. I refrained from questioning him. Between us, Lieutenant, I think it occurred to him that thirty thousand a year might tend toward contentment. His real conviction, I am sure, was otherwise, but he took this precaution."

The lieutenant looked at Mr. Darling. "There isn't any doubt in your mind, then," he said.

"If I'm certain of what you mean, there isn't. I'd prefer to concede that to you in an informal, say confidential, manner, as it were. My friend, Turner, is dead. Mr. Clayton, Mr. Brown and Mr. Trembley have passed on to their reward. There seems to be no evidence seriously and directly involving anyone living in what might be called a series of crimes. My associates in this trust truthfully may say that their duties and connections with it have been perfunctory, but what would you say of me as an accessory to murder, Lieutenant?"

"I hadn't thought of it, Mr. Darling. You might make a case out against yourself. I don't think it would stand in court."

"I might, indeed, and I can see a prosecuting attorney looking askance at me. I usually keep a certain reserve in my meditations on this will, but I'll speculate with you if you wish. The answer unquestionably is that Tom Turner wanted these men to have a reason for killing one another. As a trustee of his will I must think that the suggestion is grotesque and slanderous. As a friend of Turner I might protest that it is fantastic, but I must say that I think it is true."

"I should tell you," said the lieutenant, "that we had a letter from an attorney in Dorset, Vt., which gave us the Turner will as a key."

"I know of Mr. Whittlesex. Turner spoke of him. He liked him. He thought he was delightfully conscientious."

"Turner asked if Whittlesex ever had been an accessory to murder before the fact and told him he was going to be."

"No doubt. On occasion Tom would bellow out that he intended to kill six rascals in a most enjoyable way. He must have had some idea that he would be ballooning around somewhere above to see it. Tom was an incorrigible sentimentalist, romanticist and idealist. He should have corrected himself."

"Nothing happened for nearly two years," Stanton suggested. "What, do you imagine, broke the peace?"

"Tom Turner was shrewd where men were concerned," said Mr. Darling. "He was more than shrewd. He was intelligent. That's a tall thing to say of anyone, but he was. He knew these men, and they knew one another. They would see from the first why the bequest had been made. Tom laid it on thick with terms they couldn't misunderstand as to loyalty and fidelity. Their first instinct, you see, Lieutenant, would be to smile and resolve to defeat him. They had each an income of, say thirty thousand a year, and what could be more reasonable than to shake hands with one another on it and laugh at Tom Turner?"

"They would do this, Turner knew they would, but he also knew them deeper than that. He knew they couldn't trust one another. They were justified in not trusting one another. They were of varying degrees of courage, but none was afraid of direct action. Distrust is a bad thing to have in your mind. It puts an enemy behind you in the dark. It was bound to become intolerable for these men to be wondering which one would break the truce. The temptation was always there. They had feared Turner himself for a long time. He knew they did, and that gave him so much satisfaction that he was content to wait for this."

"Gradually they convinced themselves that they were out of danger from him. They knew they were when he died, until they learned of the will. You will see how completely he had them. It did none of them any good to try to withdraw from participation. One might have done so. He might have renounced his rights and have denounced his patron, but nevertheless if he died of pneumonia or a bad appendix or from having a car run him down the shares of his associates increased. If men did not have confidence in one another these conditions would be unpleasant. You will have read in the will that Turner said money was what the man who had it was.

"Our gentlemen evidently have tried believing they could trust one another. They also strengthened their confidence by keeping as far apart from one another as they could. My records show them widely scattered about the world. All except Blair and Ashley, who seem to have chummed it."

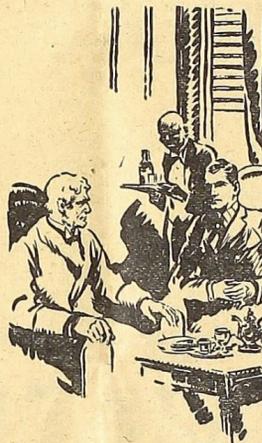

"All that satisfied me as to motive," said the lieutenant. "It's fantastic as you observed, Mr. Darling, but there's cause and there's continuity in the case of Clayton, Brown and Trembley. By the way, do you know of a woman named Maisei? I mean in connection with any of these men."

Mr. Darling shook his head.

"She was used as a decoy for Clayton," the lieutenant continued. "She hasn't been found. That's a side issue. Our continuity breaks at the red lanterns at the Wisconsin bridge if the three other men of these six are in Europe."

"They can be almost anywhere," said Mr. Darling. "They can be in the United States. They can have been here all of September."

"Until it's proved that they haven't been," said the lieutenant, "one of them picked up the lanterns in my story, and I stick to it. My guess is that at least one of them will be found here, or if he skips to Europe, has been here. Now, Mr. Darling, I know I'm imposing on your evening time and probably am quite out of order."

"By no means. Far from it. I am a man of late habits. I hope you will live long enough to know that some people in old age love the night. Old age is congenial to the dusk and the end of day. External are fading out. We are subjective people."

"May my old age be as yours, Mr. Darling, but it won't be. I'd probably be a night watchman in a warehouse, although I would like to retire with a couple of bees to a clover country. Just a few more questions. Can you suggest a way of picking up the whereabouts of Blair, Ashley or Roberts?"

"Only by beginning where they were when I heard from them last or waiting until they give me their post offices next month."

"What influenced Mr. Turner to make this will?"

Mr. Darling was silent a moment.

"These men had injured him unforgivably," he said as if he were con-

Normal Human Instinct for Beauty in Clothes

One reason why clothes, or at least the clothes of men, excite so little interest is that they have become drab, and this drabness is excused on the ground that clothes are meant to be useful and comfortable; and usefulness and comfort have ceased to be associated with beauty in modern life. Neither reason, of course, is true. Clothes are worn to enhance human dignity, and, at bottom, only such comfort is wanted as shall not interfere with the prevailing mode. The women who starved and sliced themselves in order to keep slim, who will cripple their limbs with hobbled skirts when these are the wear, and crucify their feet when pointed toes and high heels are the fashion, display a normal human instinct. Men have suffered

Biblical Manna
The Hebrew university at Jerusalem has made a careful study of manna, the mysterious food product with which the Israelites were sustained while wandering in the desert. Scientists at the university concluded that manna contained sugar, glucose, fructose and saccharose and came from the sap of a species of tamarisk tree. The manna is formed when a tiny insect pierces the bark and causes the sap to exude and crystallize in white grains.

sidering his words. "It wouldn't interest anyone very much. As to the actualities of it he never talked much, although he was seldom reticent. At first I was unable to believe that he was serious in this arrangement. When I was forced to know that he was I represented the case of his son as strongly as I could. He was persuaded that his son was amply provided for. I was inclined to be angry and might have broken our friendship, but I have been generally delinquent in the moral grace which should have compelled me to interfere in other people's lives and purposes. In the end I did not take a firm stand. Tom Turner had been almost mortally injured. This idea of justice pleased him. Whatever I should have done, I didn't, and whatever conscience I should have, I haven't."

The lieutenant waited for what more Mr. Darling might say of Turner's will. When it was apparent that he would not of his own desire go further the lieutenant forebore to press the question.

"Mr. Turner's son," he said after a pause, "lives here in Newburgh, I believe."

"Yes, the boy is recently married. He will get his education without college. I have encouraged him in that. He is a young fellow of the most engaging seriousness. I hope to live to see what comes in the way of learning to a young fellow who cuts loose from our delightful American college life."

"Then I probably could see him tomorrow?"

"Oh, surely. Just go north, say, a half-mile from the Palatine and inquire."

"May I call on you again, Mr. Darling? There'll be more questions, if you don't mind."

"I shouldn't like it if I weren't to see you again, Lieutenant."

Pompey came into the room.

"He's always just around the corner," said Mr. Darling.

Pompey looked critically at the brandy bottle.

"I'm glad you remind me of hospitality," said Mr. Darling. "Lieutenant Stanton and I will have a stirrup cup. Pompey, you are in the presence of a lieutenant of Chicago police. This gentleman has been a centurion where Dion O'Bannon, Tim Murphy, Lombardo, Bugs Moran, Al Capone and twenty others lived or still live."

"Don't kid us so much, Mr. Darling. We do the best we can. And good night to you."

In walking to the Turner boy's house the following morning Stanton made some mind pictures of Thomas Turner's son, and the boy he thus prepared himself to find proved to be that boy. It was fairly conclusive that if a hard fighter of repressible conscience, of an elastic moral code and of a world easily adjustable to his desires had alienated so much of his fortune from his son it was because his son was unlike him. The difference might be on one side or the other of the elder's character. Such a boy might be much of the worst of his father or largely the best of him.

The house was a New England remove into the Hudson valley, the type which was framed, raised and painted white, and which generally contained the question whether the coffin of an adult could come out the front door or mist it be let out of a window? In the old days of infant mortality (see the diary of Samuel Sewall, for instance, godly man of serious and prayerful life, a Salem witchcraft judge in the court of Oyer and Terminer. He begat in December and buried in September), the little coffins came easily and often out of the front door which had to the right an entrance to the living room, to the left an entrance to a down-stairs spare bedroom and directly ahead, up stairs steep in pitch and narrow in step, access to the dormitory. The hall space for this movement in these three directions might be three feet by four or less. (Meditation upon the mortality of life would include wishful looks at the door and pensive contemplation of the windows, speculation governed as the case might be by Calvinism or by Arminian conceptions of the universality of efficacious grace.)

Writer Would Go Limit in State Abbreviations

The abbreviation used for Ohio is "O." Apparently Oklahoma and Oregon do not object. But there are six states whose names begin with letters which are not the first letters of the names of any of the other states. These states are: Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Utah. Why not use D, F, G, L, P and U for the abbreviations in those cases? Also, West Virginia is the only "West" state. So why not simply use "W. V." instead of the usual "W. Va."? The only reason for abbreviations in the first place is the desire to save time and space. Then why not save all the time and space possible, or else use the full name? Why fuss with "Pa." and "Penn." and "Penna." when "P." would fill the bill?—Worcester Telegram.

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 3855 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

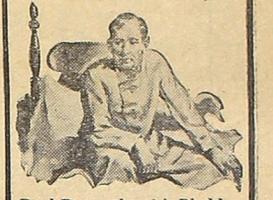

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

Hogs Eat Grasshoppers

Late in the summer some sections of the state of Nebraska were reported to be badly overrun with grasshoppers. Many methods were tried to hold them in check but it remained for a pig breeder to discover one simple plan to destroy them. This pig man discovered that his shoats would eat the grasshoppers and if left in a badly infested area would gradually devour or drive away the pests, and make good gains in weight at the same time.—Montreal Herald.

No. 2 Continued from the First Page

all points on the score sheet from top to bottom are now added. The result shows that North-South won by a score of 386 to 0.

The score sheet, example A:

N-S	E-W
250
30
40
36
30
Total 386	0

The foregoing is an example of a rubber which is played out in only two hands of playing. This is an unusual accomplishment and necessitates the playing of two game-hands in succession.

Example B—An illustration of the most common form of rubber score. On Hand No. 1, North-South make five diamonds and hold fifty in honors. 35 points are scored below the Line and 50 points above the Line. Since a 30-point game has been made, a new Line is drawn across both columns of the score sheet below the 35 points.

On Hand No. 2, East-West make three hearts and hold 30 in honors. Accordingly they score 24 points below the Line (the last Line drawn) and 30 points above the original Line.

On Hand No. 3, North-South make three spades and hold 30 in honors. They are thus given a score of 27 below the Line and 30 above the Line. It is to be carefully noted at this point that in scoring by rubbers the points below the Line may be accumulated until a 30-point game has been completed by one side. As the above example now stands North-South need only 3 points and East-West need only 6 points below the Line to give them a 30-point game. In other words, whichever side first makes a bid of one or more will complete their 30-point game. In the case of North-South it will mean their second game and a bonus of 250 points while in the case of East-West it means their first game and a fresh start on even terms with North-South for the third game.

On Hand No. 4, East-West make three clubs and hold thirty in honors. They are given a score of 18 below the Line and 30 above the Line. This 18 with their original 24 points gives them a 30-point game. Their game points actually show 42 points but a game is constituted of 30 or more points, the additional 12 points made in the last hand actually being unnecessary to their making game inasmuch as only 6 points were needed. Since one side has again completed a 30-point game, a new Line is drawn entirely across both columns of the score sheet below all figures now shown.

Two points are now to be noted carefully. First, the extra 12 points over and above the 30 points required by East-West to win a game do not apply on the next 30-point game. Second, the 27 points last made by North-South are automatically cut off by East-West first completing the 30 point requirement. When the new Line was drawn to indicate the game for East-West it was also drawn below the 27 points last recorded for North-South and these 27 points cannot now be applied by North-South on another game any more than the surplus 12 points by East-West can apply on game. In other words, an entirely fresh start is now being made below the Line for the third game.

On Hand No. 5, North-South make two spades and hold thirty in honors. They are given a score of 18 below the Line and 30 above the Line.

On Hand No. 6, East-West bid four hearts, are doubled and are set two tricks, thus losing 200 points. They hold 40 in honors which are scored for them above the Line and the 200 set points are scored for North-South above the Line. No points are ever scored below the Line except trick points where the bid is made. The chief value of the above hand was the net gain by North-South of 160 points which was the difference between their 200 set points and the 40 honor points held by East-West.

On Hand No. 7, East-West make three no-trump and hold 30 in honors. 30 points are scored below the Line and 30 points above the Line. This gives them a 30-point game. It is their second game of the rubber and they are given a 250 point bonus. All of the points on the score sheet are now added up, which shows that East-West had won the rubber by a score of 452 to 390.

The score sheet, example B:

N-S	E-W
200	250
30	30
30	40
30	30
50	30
35
27	24
	18
18	30
Total 390	452

It will be noted in the above example that if East-West had been set an additional 100 points, North-South would have had the higher score and would have won the rubber.

Many players who are uninformed erroneously believe that the side which wins two games always wins the rubber. This is usually true but is not necessarily so. The winning of two games definitely decides only two things; first, when the rubber is ended, and second, who is to receive the bonus of 250 points. The winner of the rubber, however, is always the side whose total score of all points made is the largest. This total score from top to bottom of the score sheet includes all points however made which includes trick points, honor points, set points and bonus points.

Example C—An example in which one side wins a rubber without completing a 30-point game. On Hand No. 1, North-South make four diamonds and have 40 in honors. They score 28 below the Line and 40 above the Line.

On Hand No. 2, East-West bid five clubs, are doubled and are set two tricks. They hold 40 in honors which they score above the Line and North-South score 200 above the Line for their set points.

On Hand No. 3, East-West make three no-trump and hold 30 honors. They score 30 trick points below the Line and 30 honor points above the Line. Since they have completed a 30-point game a new Line is drawn entirely across the score sheet thus cutting off the 28 points North-South has scored towards game.

On Hand No. 4, East-West bid four hearts, are doubled and are set three tricks. They hold 40 in honors which they score above the Line and North-South scores 300 above the Line for their set points.

On Hand No. 5, East-West make four spades and hold 50 in honors. They score 36 trick points below the line and 50 points above the Line. They have completed two 30-point games and are given a bonus of 250 points above the Line. One side has completed two 30-point games, and the rubber is ended. The total of all points are now added and the score reveals that North-South won by a score of 568 to 476.

The score sheet, example C:

N-S	E-W
300	250
200	50
40	40
28	30
Total 568	476

In the above example North-South won the rubber without completing a 30-point game. The rubber was automatically ended when East-West completed their second 30-point game. The defeat of East-West, of course, was due to their losing an excessive number of set points.

It is recommended that all players interested in the coming tournament retain this article for reference.
