TAWAS CITY ❖❖

LOCAL CAGE SQUAD ADDS PAIR OF WINS

Tawas City defeated Hale last Friday night at Hale in a loosely played contest, 49-18. The locals grabbed the lead early in the game and held it throughout, never being in danger of losing their margin. Good work on the part of the guards and accurate shooting by the forwards accounted for the lop-sided victory.

On Wednesday night of this week Tawas City made it three straight for the second half of the season by setting down the fast Whittemore quintet on the Whittemore floor to the tune of a 45-21 score. During the first half the lead seceded between the teams, ending in favor of the locals, 13-12. In the second half the Tawas City boys let loose a fast offensive and rapidly piled up a considerable lead. Siglin, the locals' lanky center, was high point man, tallying 19, with Bingham following closely with 15 points. The work of the other members of the squad also was highly commendable. For Whittemore McKenzie and Fuerst led in scoring with six points each. Adler of Standish refereed the game in fine style.

The preliminary between Whittemore high school and the locals' reserves went to Whittemore, 21-0. Tawas City plays its next league game Tuesday night at the Com-

ODDFELLOWS TO ENTERTAIN GRAND LODGE OFFICERS

On March the 10th the local Odd-Fellows will be hosts to the Grand Lodge official family. Grand Master Dow of Stanton will deliver the Past Grands charge to a class of business and professional men.

A dispute of long standing will be settled once and for all when Grand Secretary Fred A. Rogers will meet our Past Grand Master, H. E. Hanson, in a three game contest of pocket pool. For many years these two men have claimed the state championship, but this is the first time that a real settlement as to who the champion is will take place. Judge Herman Dehnke, Grand Warden, will act as official referee. A banquet will be served at 5:00 o'clock for the visiting officials. Degree work will take place at 7:30; championship pool contest at 4:00 in the afternoon.

ATTEND REFRIGERATION SCHOOL AT SAGINAW

Julius, Harris and Milton Barkman have returned from Saginaw, after spending a few days there in attendance at the Copeland refrigeration school. Realizing that there is a growing trend toward mechanical refrigeration, they have seriously considered taking on various lines for some time past and finally decided upon handling the Copeland line, which is manufactured in Mount Clemens, Michigan.

So they would be better prepared to advise those who are interested, the Barkman boys felt it was necessary to give serious study to refrigeration, and for that reason decided to take the course offered by the Copeland corporation.

SCREEN FAVORITE AT FAMILY IN ROMANTIC HIT

Robert Montgomery is starred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in "Lovers Courageous," which will play Sunday and Monday at the Family Theatre, East Tawas. The picture, a romantic comedy, was written especially for the young favorite by the noted English playwright, Frederick Londale, whose "The Last of Mrs. Cheney" proved so successful a vehicle for Norma Shearer.

Madge Evans, who recently scored in "Gully Hands" and "Son of India," has the feminine lead and the large supporting cast includes Roland Young, last seen in "The Guardsman," Frederick Kerr, Reginald Owen, Beryl Mercer, Evelyn Hall, Halliwell Hobbes, Jackie Seal, Norman Phillips, Jr., and Alan Mowbray.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Louisa Wiltburger, who died three years ago today:
"She is gone, but not forgotten, And as has dawned another year, In our lonely hours of thinking Thoughts of her are always near. Days of sadness will be hidden by a smile, Friends may think the wound is healed, But they little know the sorrow That lies within our hearts concealed."

PIONEER SHERMAN RESIDENT IS CALLED BY DEATH

Anthony Droege, one of the oldest and first settlers of Sherman township, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Thomas Wood, Friday night, February 19, of old age. He was 85 years and 15 days old at the time of death.

Mr. Droege was born near Berlin, Germany, February 4, 1847. He came to America when 15 years of age, landing at Detroit, where he remained for about five years before coming to Sherman. At the age of 20 years he was united in marriage to Kathryn Denny, who was living in Sherman at that time. To this union two daughters were born, Mrs. E. Parent, who preceded him in death about 20 years ago, and Mrs. Thomas Wood, with whom he made his home for the past several years. His wife preceded him in death about 50 years ago, and a few years later he married Mary Ann Clancy, who died 27 years ago.

Like the other early pioneers, he witnessed many hardships when the county was only a wilderness, but was well provided and cared for in his last few years of suffering. Everything was done for him to comfort his declining years.

Funeral services were held Monday morning from the St. James Catholic church at Whittemore, and burial was made in the Whittemore cemetery. Rev. H. B. Koscielniak of Omer officiated.

The grandchildren who attended the funeral from out of town were: Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Savage of Saginaw, Mrs. Nettie Matthews of Kalamazoo, Mark Wood of Kalamazoo, Mrs. Carrie Joffries of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Winnie Johnson of Grand Rapids.

B. Y. P. U. RALLY TO BE HELD AT PRESCOTT

The young people of the lower part of the Alpena Baptist Association will hold their next rally at the Prescott Baptist church on Friday evening, March 4, at 8:00 p. m. 125 young people attended the last rally. Let us make it 150 this time. Pot luck supper.

FAR PLACES OF WORLD HOLD CHARM FOR PEOPLE

The far places of the world hold a charm for almost all of us. Certain regions have magic in their very names—Bagdad—Samarkand—Venice—Madagascar—and last but not least—Singapore!

Though Singapore is not actually reached by the unconventional hero and heroine of "The Road to Singapore," the Warner Bros. picture starring William Powell, showing at the State Theatre next week Thursday and Friday—it is to Singapore they are bound—when the boat leaves the jungle-haunted settlement of Khotu, on the Island of Ceylon, where the exciting action takes place.

Those featured in support of Mr. Powell in "The Road to Singapore" are Doris Kenyon, Marian Marsh, Louis Calhern, Alison Skipworth, Tyrrell Davis and A. E. Anson.

JOHN DEMPSEY

John Dempsey, age 81 years, Iosco county pioneer, died at the home of his son, Frank, of West Allis, Wis., on February 17.

John Dempsey was born in Montreal, May 8, 1850, and came to Michigan in his early boyhood and located in Iosco county. He married Miss Fanny Thomas in 1881, settling on a farm in Grant township. Four children survive him, Henry of Plymouth, Mich., Frank of West Allis, Wis., Mrs. John B. Allen (Edith Dempsey), also of West Allis, and Mrs. John H. Smith (Harriet Dempsey) of Milwaukee, Wis. A foster child, George Thomas Dempsey, died several years ago. Mrs. Dempsey died in 1921.

The remains were brought to Tawas for burial in the family lot. He was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge, and many of his friends and neighbors were in attendance at the funeral held from the Henlock Road Baptist church Saturday afternoon. Rev. Frank Metcalf officiating. His children were present with their families, also Fred Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. Stoutenburg.

GEORGE H. WERELEY

George H. Wereley died at his home in Whittemore Friday, February 19, following a four-day illness of pneumonia.

The deceased was born in Seneca, Ontario, September 23, 1851. Here he spent ten years of his boyhood days, moving to Walsingham, Ont., where he was married to Lorain Smith in 1886. For a time they resided in East Tawas and McVior, going to Whittemore November 24, 1887 where he spent the remainder of his life.

Surviving, besides his widow, are one brother, James of Walsingham, Ont., two daughters, Martha McNeil of Whittemore and Treva Miller of Flint, and two sons, William of Whittemore and James of Flint. Four grandsons, five granddaughters, one niece, five nephews and a host of friends and neighbors also survive him.

Mr. Wereley was a prosperous farmer until failing health forced him to leave the farm, and he bought a home in Whittemore. He always had a smile and was ready to joke with his friends whenever they met him, and will be greatly missed in the community.

Funeral services were held from the Whittemore M. E. church Sunday afternoon, Rev. George Smith officiating, with interment in the L. D. S. cemetery.

Those from out of town who attended the funeral were his nephew and niece, Edna and Roy Wereley of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Lee McNeil of Flint, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Collins of Pontiac.

PIONEER BALDWIN TOWNSHIP RESIDENT DIES

William John Bischoff, a pioneer resident of Baldwin township for 50 years, died Wednesday evening, February 17, at the home of his son, Herman Bischoff, in Baldwin township.

Mr. Bischoff was born in Germany December 28, 1840 and in 1882 he immigrated to America, settling on the farm in Baldwin township after living a few years in East Tawas. He was one of the early settlers in this section and was active in both the business and church affairs of the community, being a life long member of the Zion Lutheran church. About twenty years ago he was stricken with paralysis and lost control of his lower limbs, which confined him to his home from that time.

He was married to Miss Augusta Widstock in 1864 and seven children were born to this union. Mrs. Bischoff preceded her husband in death in 1904. He is survived by four sons, Adolph and Carl of East Tawas, Ferdinand of Detroit, and Herman of Baldwin township, with whom he made his home until his death. Eighteen grandchildren and ten great grandchildren also survive him.

Those from out of town attending the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Bischoff and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gartz of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. William Lynch and daughter, Vita, of Pinconning, Mr. and Mrs. Hanaford Gray of Eaton Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. John Koepke, Jr., and children of Boyne City, Mrs. George F. Stengel, Irma Bischoff and Louis P. Butenschoen of Saginaw.

Rev. F. A. Sievert officiated at the funeral services held Sunday afternoon. Burial was made in the Zion Lutheran cemetery.

ODDFELLOW BOWLERS DEFEAT TAWAS STARS

Last Saturday evening the Tawas stars locked horns with the local Oddfellows in a bowling match. After the smoke of battle cleared it was found the Oddbowlers collected 84 pins too many. When the proverbial ninth inning arrived the city chaps were leading by 31 pins, which made it necessary for Hutton, Ford, Tuttle and Harris to bear down; in fact, we never saw the Odds work harder in response to partisan urging.

The all-star team was Captain Chas. Kasischke, Tom Curry, Edward Klenow and Freddie Abernethy. Everyone of these lads throws a wicked ball and they claim vengeance on the return match which will be played in the near future.

Next Monday evening the Odds journey to Bay City with two five-men teams to play a return match with Eden and Valley Lodges.

"GOOD SPORT" DIGS DEEP INTO GOLD-DIGGERS' SECRETS

Presenting, as it does, some valuable information on the ways and wiles of the unscrupulous sisterhood of gold-diggers and some expert advice on how to combat these phony anding females, "Good Sport," which opens next Friday and Saturday, March 4-5, at the Family Theatre, is said to hold a special appeal to women.

No matter how happily married a woman may be there are times when she wonders just what she would do if she ever discovered her husband untrue to her, and "Good Sport" is said to delineate a new and effective means of meeting just such a situation.

Linda Watkins and John Boles portray the leading roles in this sophisticated drama of modern matrimony which Kenneth MacKenna directed.

REPORT ON PROPOSED GAS TAX CHANGE

The Iosco County Road Commissioners were called last week to the Governor's conference or hearing on tentative plans of his committee for Covert tax relief.

Four plans or proposed laws were submitted by this committee for discussion. A large number of real estate men were present, mostly from the counties of Wayne, MacComb, Berrien and Oakland, which are in the greatest distress from the Covert situation. They made some very strong pleas to get the state to stop construction and take over their Covert debts, in order to save the owners from losing the property and in some cases prevent it reverting to the state because of more tax against it than the property is worth. Naturally this plea was directed against the gas and weight tax because of it being the only apparent source of revenue and the only tax that is being willfully paid today. Many of these roads were built to exploit real estate through petitions circulated by realtors and the county persuaded to build the job by agreeing that a large per cent (in some cases as much as 90%) would be assessed against the local property owner. In many cases values were placed on this land by the exploiters that was five to ten times its real worth—so that when the boom fell through many of these assessments were several times higher than the land value itself.

MRS. WILLIAM SCHILL

The funeral of the late Mrs. William Schill, who died last week Thursday following an illness of two days' duration, was held Sunday afternoon from the home. Rev. C. E. Edinger officiated. Burial was made in the Greenwood cemetery, East Tawas.

Maria Koch was born in Hamburg, Ontario, on March 17, 1872, and came to East Tawas in 1895. She was united in marriage to William Schill on December 23, 1895. Thereafter they made their home in AuSable, Tawas City and East Tawas.

To this union two daughters were born, Mrs. Dorothy Goders of Detroit and Mrs. Harriet Gifford of Utica, N. Y., who, with the husband, survive her. One grandson, Billy Robey, also survives her.

Those from out of town attending the funeral were: Harold Koch, Mr. and Mrs. John Schill and Clayton Schill of Battle Creek, George Schill of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Schill of Cleveland, Ohio, Charles Schill of Saginaw, Mrs. Mae Fowler of Monroe, Mrs. Bertha Roth, Mrs. Pearl Fullwood, Mr. and Mrs. Alvah Schill and Mr. and Mrs. Arvid Sedstrom of Detroit.

SETH PARKER, RADIC CELEBRITY, NOW ON SCREEN

Another noted radio personality wins universal recognition and expression in the movies. Seth Parker, who was lifted into radio from the front parlor of a sea coast cottage in Maine now comes to the screen at the State Theatre Saturday, Sunday and Monday in "Way Back Home."

Every Sunday evening, NBC listeners hear Seth, "Mam" Parker and their neighbors sing "main" hymns and exchanging talk about everyday life. From this setting in Jonesport, Maine, Radio Pictures has built a colorful story around the homely philosophy of Seth. He and the eleven members of his radio family play a strong supporting cast of film players in the show.

This climaxes an idea that came to a young man, who, hardly more than two years ago, got off a train at Grand Central station and found himself "lost" in a big city. Pull the whiskers off Seth Parker today and you have that same young man. He is Phillips Lord, a New Englander of twenty-eight years who claims to be neither actor nor apostle. Yet he created a role which has brought happiness to millions of radio listeners and will bring wholesome joy to as great a host of others who will see him on the screen.

THE TIMBERJACKS SERMONETTE

To my mind the cook and the choreboy should be mentioned as the mainstay of the Timberjacks—the front and back choppers to fall the standing tree—the trimmers—the cutters into log-lengths of the fallen march.

In the very early days a pollax was the only implement used by the Timberjack in falling and fitting a tree into logs. Often times an extra task was required in long butting the tree if it exhibited heart defect or showed signs of shake. Skill was required to fall a tree so that it could be trimmed and cut into log lengths with a minimum amount of labor. The echo of the axes rang as music in the troubled dreams of the Timberjack.

More and more strangers tell of visiting the Lumberjacks Monument and call it wonderful.

Kindly send me a clean story, a song, or a poem of the Timberjacks days and your name will be used as the contributor.

RIO GRANDE RIVER IS SHIFTING BOUNDARY

One Might Retire in U. S. and Awake in Mexico.

Washington.—News that a band of mounted cattle thieves rode across the Rio Grande river from Mexico into Texas recently, probably presents a picture of this southern boundary river of the United States far different from that conjured up by a look at the map," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"On the map the Rio Grande has the appearance, in its lower reaches, at least, of being as wide as the St. Lawrence or the Detroit rivers, along both of which large ships ply. In flood times the Rio Grande is a wide, full river; but during portions of the year, owing to little rainfall on its tributaries, seepage into the sandy soil, and appropriation for irrigation purposes, its waters dwindle away until only a narrow stream remains, dodging in and out among wide expanses of sand. Quicksands make crossing dangerous in places, but at other points it is a simple matter to ride or wade from bank to bank.

"Because the river can be so easily crossed in times of low water, United States and Mexican officials have had stubborn problems along certain sections of the Rio Grande in the enforcement of immigration, tariff, prohibition, narcotic, and other regulations. The problems are heightened by the fact that the American side of the river is not uniformly developed and that most of the Mexican side is unutilized. At some points on the American side the huge irrigated gardens and fields and citrus groves of the lower Rio Grande valley reach to the river, representing land in the highest degree of cultivation. But at other points the river bank and a zone ten miles or more in width is covered with a growth of mesquite and other bushes, and is virtually uninhabited. Chinese and other aliens secretly entering the country, and smugglers in both directions hide in these wilderness spots, and when overtaken often 'shoot it out' with members of the border patrol.

"The Rio Grande in flood times has been equally a problem to the United States and Mexico. When the river rises unduly it eats away the fine sandy alluvial soil as though it were brown sugar, frequently forcing new channels across the narrow necks where the stream loops. When this happens the bits of land cut off ('bancos,' they are called), are thrust into an alien jurisdiction. Many a river-bank resident has gone to sleep in the United States and waked up next morning in Mexico.

"All along the lower Rio Grande at one time were numerous bits of United States territory on the Mexican side of the river, and fragments of Mexico in the United States. The situation became so complicated that the two governments finally agreed that since in the long run the shifts of territory from side to side were about equal, new channels would be taken as marking the boundary, where the bancos were small. It was provided, however, that if fragments of territory exceeding 618 acres or having 200 or more inhabitants shall ever be cut off by the river, they shall still belong to the country from which they were torn, the old channel remaining as the boundary."

Blind to "See" Usual Print by New Device

Paris.—Two French inventors, MM. Thomas and Conland, have devised an apparatus by which ordinary print can be made legible for the blind.

The apparatus is called the photo-electrograph. A ray of light is made to pass over the printed page and as each letter is illuminated the corresponding letter is presented in relief and in magnified form in another part of the machine, where the blind reader identifies it by touch.

Not only ordinary print, but Braille can be read with the machine; in the latter case it has the advantage that the Braille characters can be printed with ink on a smooth page and need be no larger than ordinary type, thus reducing Braille types to a convenient size and making them cheaper and easier to produce than hitherto.

Palace 3,000 Years Old Is Unearthed in Egypt

Cairo.—A three-thousand-year-old palace, probably the residence of the famous Queen Nefertiti after her fall from power, has been discovered by the Egyptian Exploration society excavating at Tel-el-Amarna.

(Nefertiti was the wife of Akhenaten, the "heretic king," who preceded Tut-Ankh-Amen, his son-in-law. The famous head of Nefertiti, in painted sandstone, which was found in 1912, has been described as "perhaps the most lifelike portrait in all Egyptian art.")

Beauty Talks

By MARJORIE DUNCAN
Famous Beauty Expert

Choice of Toilet Preparations

WITH science and genius helping beauty culture to make such splendid strides, the choice of an effective facial preparation has become a simple matter indeed. Women study themselves, their beauty needs. They also study various preparations. They experiment to see whether the preparations are suited to individual needs. So that the choice of a cream or lotion is becoming more and more exact, more and more scientific.

Having with confidence chosen a preparation, the next step is to know exactly how it should be applied. The maximum in efficiency and beauty can be hoped for when preparation plus method are right.

It is essential for the modern woman to know how to give herself a rejuvenating and refreshing treatment.

A telephone call may mean a last-minute engagement. Then, she is challenged by the new beauty need, the wish that she could do it all for herself, the desire to know how.

Method is equally as important as the choice of preparations, and method has not been sufficiently emphasized. Give an intelligent woman the reason for doing a certain thing a certain way; explain the how of it and you will have appealed to her sense of reasoning. The directions read: "Apply upward and outward to counteract the natural tendency for muscles to sag and droop downward."

Directions for using a bleach should warn the purchaser not to apply too near the eyes or nostrils. Because even a mild bleach is too strong for the delicate tissues around the eyes. And bleaches should never be used too near the brows and lashes or the hairline for fear of lightening the hair.

A skin tonic should be made to do double duty. When sponged over the skin it removes every trace of cream or grease. Applied on a piece of absorbent cotton and patted upward and outward with brisk slapping movements, it stimulates the circulation, regulates the oil content of the skin and promotes its health generally.

Directions should emphasize the wisdom of removing creams and lotions as carefully as they are applied, always upward and outward, patting off as gently and firmly as you pat when the preparation is applied. Thus the elasticity of the skin is preserved, without stretching and without breaking the delicate tissues.

Use Cosmetics Subtly

IN SPITE of the many millions of dollars spent annually on cosmetics, the number of women who have never known the enhancing effect of rouge or powder is staggering.

And they do not constitute backwoods people or those "out-on-the-farm," far away from civilization. Right in our big cities you will find them. Some still cling to the ultra-conservative and ultra-old-fashioned idea that it is sinful wrong to use a bit of rouge.

These women have to be educated to the modern way of doing and the modern way of applying make-up.

The art of make-up has passed through many stages. The experimental stage when women applied so little, they failed to achieve the desired effect; then the exaggerated stage when they ruined the effect by the other extreme.

But modern make-up methods have, fortunately, achieved the happy medium. Rouge is delicately applied and blended to lend a look of natural bloom and health. The color seems to come from beneath the skin. A look of health and beauty—it lends life to the face and sparkle to the eyes.

Powder is not put on in pounds—not today. Its purpose is to give the skin a toned-down, well-groomed look, to put the finishing touch to a picture of perfection.

And a lipstick gives the lips more color and deftly used it improves the outline. One can wear lipstick without "telling the world." It need not be bold or obvious.

Modern make-up methods really make women lovely. The function of make-up is to give back to the skin that natural, healthful glow which the fast pace of modern living takes from the skin.

If you are one of the thousands who have not yet started to use make-up, throw off the shackles of old-fashioned ideas, get up enough courage to go to the best store in your vicinity. A capable salesgirl can help you to choose a range of good quality, proper texture and consistency for you, a shade to match your skin. She can explain exactly how it should be blended, too. All this applies to powder also. You can get a fine quality rouge and powder for a nominal sum and the investment will last over a long time. So much beauty for so little!

A Maine bank has for a depositor a man who lives out in the country. He has $1,100 to his credit. Twice a year, regularly, he drives up to the bank in his horse and buggy and asks to see his money. Always it is counted out for him. He looks it over, is satisfied and hands it back. He is assured that it is being well cared for.

TROTZKY STRIKES AT STALIN GOVERNMENT

Deposed Leader Has Visions of Coming Back.

London.—Russia is in the throes of a serious rebellion against Stalin, the Moscow dictator.

The movement, judging from the very guarded references in the official newspapers, is directed by Trotsky, the deposed commissar for war, from his exile in Turkey.

The rank and file of the rebels, described as Trotskyites, or Left Wing-ers, have invaded every strategical point in the Soviet economic machinery and, in spite of frequent arrests, have maintained their influence.

Soviet spokesmen, according to verbatim reports which have just reached the Daily Mail, openly admit that the rebels have been harassing Stalin's government for more than a year, and that their action has led to serious consequences in vital sections of the five-year plan for Russia's industrialization.

Trotsky still hopes to return to Moscow, and for this purpose keeps in touch with his Russian and foreign groups of followers. These groups, as well as Trotsky himself, are financed from a secret fund, which continues to grow. It is estimated that the Trotskyites in Russia are spending $15,000 a month on bribes and "other forms of corruption."

A private complaint of Trotsky's activities was made recently by Russia to the Turkish government, which replied that it was unable to take any action.

How greatly Stalin is perturbed by the growth of the revolt is shown by venomous attacks he has recently launched against Preobrazhensky, one of the Soviet's financial negotiators in London, whose crime, like that of Trotsky in 1925, is a book reviewing the world position. Every Soviet misfortune has been attributed to his interpretation of events.

Close observers of affairs in Russia believe that the days of the Stalin regime are numbered, and that his opponents will make a decisive bid for power when they are fully equipped and ready.

Prince Gets Belongings, but Alfonso's Are Held

Paris.—The Spanish Republican government has shipped several cases of clothing, household silver and other private possessions to the prince of Asturias, but it has not returned any of his personal property to former King Alfonso or Queen Victoria.

As a result of intervention by an emissary of Alfonso the government agreed to ship to the prince the silverware which was a gift from his English grandmother, Princess Beatrice. She gave him several pieces of silver each year on his birthday.

The government decided that since the silver represented a gift from a member of the family living outside

Ohioans to Build House of Welded Steel Sheets

Cleveland.—The world's first frameless steel house is to be erected soon in Solon, a Cleveland suburb, as an experiment which might revolutionize residential architecture.

The first unit of "mass production" by the uniting of this method is projected, it was learned, by the American Rolling Mill company of Middletown, Ohio, and a Cleveland group. The house will consist of steel sheets, welded together and insulated. It will cost less than a wooden house, will have eight rooms, two baths and a two-car garage. The exterior will be of asbestos sheet and the interior of insulation board. Nearly fourteen tons of steel will go into the structure.

Inns Claim Age Record

Briston, Eng.—Two inns here claim to be the oldest hostleries in England. The license of one of them, the Rumer Inn, was in existence in 1241. A plan of the city between 1250 and 1350, however, mentions the Full Moon hotel as "apparently a verie anciente hostellerie."

Fire in Home Kept Burning 50 Years

Statesville, N. C.—The story of how Ephriam Scroggs, pioneer settler, started a fire in his home on his wedding night which he and his wife kept burning continuously for 50 years has been told here by his niece, Mrs. Ellen Lippard.

In the 50 years, she said, the couple spent one night and one day away from home, but each time the fire was so well banked it did not go out.

Nonflammable Gas Is Perfected in Jersey

Bayway, N. J.—A gasoline which will not catch fire has been perfected by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

A. F. Masury, chairman of the ordinance finance committee of the Society of Automotive Engineers, stated: "This gasoline has the same characteristics as the gasoline that is now sold on the street. However, when a match is thrown into it, it will not burn. It has practically the same flash point as Diesel or furnace oils."

First Cosmic Ray Telescope

INTERNATIONAL

THIS is the cosmic-ray telescope, first of its kind, which will be used to measure the intensity of this mysterious radiation from one part of the heavens for comparison with the strength of the rays from another portion of the skies. The telescope has been designed and built in the laboratory of the Bartol research foundation of the Franklin Institute at Swarthmore, Pa. It is for the use of Dr. W. F. G. Swann, prominent physicist and director of the laboratory. Next summer he will take it to a place of higher altitude, such as the top of Mt. Washington or Pike's peak, where cosmic radiation is more intense.

A STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER SEES A CHANCE

Never give up, but be willing to try. He always wins out who will never say die.

WAS ever anybody in a worse fix than Peter Rabbit? There he sat panting for breath under a pile of brush in the Green Forest with Hooty the Owl perched on his watch-tower just above, and hiding in a hollow log not far away, Shadow the Weasel. Of the two Peter feared Shadow most. He knew that Shadow knew just where he was. In fact, if it had not been that Hooty had happened along just in time to swoop at Shadow and chase him into that hollow log, it is probable that Peter would have been caught before this.

"It's a lucky thing for me," thought Peter, "that Hooty did not come along until after I had got under this pile of brush. He doesn't know I'm here, and so he won't be watching for me at all. Shadow won't dare come out until Hooty has gone away, and until then I am perfectly safe. Perhaps I can steal away while Hooty is watching for Shadow. Of course, if I make the least sound Hooty will hear me. I don't see what Old Mother Nature was thinking of to give him such wonderful ears. It isn't fair to the rest of us."

Of course Peter quite overlooked the fact that Hooty's eyes are of very little use to him in daylight, and so he must do all his hunting at night and must have keen ears to help out his eyes in order to get enough to eat. Mother Nature is never unfair, though it may sometimes seem so.

"I'm glad," continued Peter to himself, "that there is snow on the ground, because that means that there will be no rustling of dry leaves when I move. It is dreadfully hard work to walk over dry leaves without making them rustle. That is one thing I do not have to worry about. I hope Hooty will be as patient as he usually is. If he sits there long enough, I will get quite rested. Of course Shadow will follow my tracks as soon as the way is clear. He is the most persistent fellow of whom I know. He never gives up until he has to. Now I'll look about and see what chance I have to get away. The sooner I can do it the better. Shadow thinks I won't dare move while Hooty is on guard. I'm going to fool him if there is the least chance in the world, and the sooner I do it the better."

Very, very slowly and carefully Peter crawled to the edge of the brush pile farthest from where Hooty sat on his watch-tower with his eyes fixed on the hole in which Shadow had disappeared. He took care not to make a sound. Where the brush was very thick he crawled on his stomach through the snow under it. And so at last he reached the edge where he could peep out. Just a little way off was a big stump.

"If I could reach that," thought Peter, "without being seen, I think perhaps I could steal away. There is a little hemlock tree just beyond, and if I can once get that between Hooty and me he never will see me in the world. It is my one chance to get away from here, and after I've done that I will have to trust to luck to fool Shadow. He'll follow my tracks as sure as winter is here, once Hooty lets him out, and Hooty isn't going to sit there all night."

Peter looked back over his shoulder up at the top of the tall dead tree which was Hooty's watch-tower. Right on the very tip-top sat Hooty. If Peter had not known he was there he certainly would have thought Hooty a part of the tree itself. Peter shivered, and it wasn't the cold that made him shiver. Did he dare to cross that open place to the big stump right in plain sight of Hooty if he should turn his head?

GENOA, Old and New

Street Laundry in Genoa.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

A MOUNTAIN recently was blown into bits near Genoa to make way for a seaside highway between the city and Sampierdarena, one of its suburbs. Before excited Genoese who crowded every vantage point, tons of dynamite, which had been poured into 700 foot drilled holes, leveled the rocky barrier, thrusting a large part of it into the Genoa harbor.

Genoa may be considered the Alma Mater of the Americas. She nurtured Christopher Columbus in his boyhood years, when he dreamed the dreams that were to shape his life; communicated to him a love of the sea that had made her great; imbued him with a dominating thirst for the adventure that was hinted at by every strange galley and caravel that crowded her harbor, and all the motley throng of bronzed seamen from distant lands who jogged elbows with him on her quays.

And, having reared the boy Columbus in this atmosphere, the city sent him forth to battle with true Genoese spirit for his dreams until that October day in 1492 when, fulfilling them, he wrung a hemisphere from oblivion to add it to the map of the world.

The Genoa of today is a great modern city, if you center your attention on its industries, on its steel ships, on the dwellings of its upper tiers, on the business of the Via Venti Settembre (20th of September street), and the crowds of prosperous-looking, well dressed people who throng that thoroughfare morning and evening to holiday proportions.

But Genoa is not only a modern city. The links that tie the present to the times of Columbus, and to days long before his, still hold strongly. One may step on the very stones on which young Christopher walked; the walls that rose beside the narrow ways that his restless young feet trod still stand, block after block of them; and only a few steps from the present business heart of the city, where beautiful modern buildings rise about the Piazza De Ferrari and the Via Venti Settembre starts upon its broad, straight way, is the most important link of all, the House of Columbus.

This dwelling of Domenico Colombo, father of the future admiral, and of Susanna, his mother, was the place in which Christopher spent his early boyhood. Tourists must view this historic old house from the outside, unless they have a special permit.

Records All in Palaces.

Official records of the family of Columbus are kept in municipal offices. These offices are in one of the beautiful old palaces of the Genoese nobles. Whatever activity you search for in Genoa, it seems, you find in a palace. The city offices are in one, the port officials transact their business in another, the prefect looks after matters of state in a third; and others are museums, art galleries, schools, and telegraph offices. You begin to wonder, as you make your way from palace to palace, whether the butchers and bakers and candlestick makers of Genoa conduct their businesses in these sumptuous structures, and to doubt that in Genoa's palmiest days there were any commoners at all to live in mere houses.

In the municipal palace Genoa keeps mementos of her illustrious sons, whether by birth or forced adoption. There are portraits of the great statesman, Mazzini; the incomparable explorer, Marco Polo and Columbus; and sundry heroes of the Crusades. In a glass case rest the violin and bow of the world's master violinist, Paganini.

At an end of the council chamber, carved from one piece of marble, stands a tall pedestal surmounted by a bust of Columbus. A recess has been cut into the pedestal and fitted with an ornamental bronze door. This a custodian unlocks and takes from their marble resting place Genoa's most precious documents: three letters written by the hand of Christopher Columbus and signed with his curious signature, and a parchment book containing copies of the documents through which various privileges and titles were conferred upon him by Ferdinand and Isabella.

All the letters were written from Seville to Genoa, two in 1502, as the great navigator was preparing for his fourth and last voyage, and one in 1504, after his return from the New World. Two are to Nicolo Oderigo, an important citizen of Genoa, who served as ambassador from the republic to the Spanish court. That of March 21, 1502, tells of sending his book of privileges for safe keeping.

Treasures Carefully Guarded Now.

The letters are framed now and protected by glass. This was not always so, as the missing lower corner of one of the documents shows. This fragment, the custodian tells you, was torn off years ago by a tourist who had been courteously permitted to examine the letter—one of that inexplicable breed of vandals, the soulless souvenir hunter, to whom ethics apparently are beside the point.

As soon as a privileged visitor has examined the treasures, the watchful curator takes his treasures and locks them again in their queer place of safe keeping. The Columbus house is some distance away but every step adds interest to the traveler's stay in the city. The narrow, winding streets teem with an intimate mixture of wheeled traffic and pedestrians. Some of these ways have narrow sidewalks, from which the pedestrians spill over at intervals. Others have no curbs, and one must needs compete for space with taxis, open "cabs," and laden carts. Still other ways are mere crevasses between old five and six storied tenement houses, far too narrow for wheeled vehicles.

Suddenly you leave these congested streets and come out into the Piazza De Ferrari, the largest of the open spaces within Genoa's business sections. One side of the square is lined with the buildings of Old Genoa, the walls of palaces for the most part; but on the opposite side a newer Genoa stands forth—the Teatro Carlo Felice, the Academy of Belle Arts, the new Bourse, the post office. These fine structures are relatively new and form the portal to the Via Venti Settembre.

When this era of new construction was under way many ancient buildings were demolished. Part of the ground so obtained was used as sites for the new structures and part was left vacant and added to the piazza. One of the blocks of closely packed buildings marked for destruction contained the house of Columbus. The identity of this edifice had long been lost, but became known in 1885, after which the property was purchased by the municipality and set aside as a monument.

In the House of Columbus.

The house originally had five stories, but was only one room in width. It was hemmed in between taller buildings and was in part supported by these neighboring edifices. When this group was torn down the entire house of Columbus could not be left unsupported, so the upper three stories were removed. The two lower stories, roofed over, now stand isolated, an approximate cube of rough masonry—a sort of Genoese Kaaba and, like that sacred Meccan shrine, a center of world interest if not of pilgrimage.

Inside the large wooden door the traveler finds himself in a gloomy, unlighted, boxlike room, wholly bare. It is some minutes before one's eye can make out the details of the interior. The floor is of stone, and the brick walls have a queer, jagged surface. Overhead the beams and thick floor boards have the same rough, nicked appearance. Your guide explains that for a long time before it had been identified the house had been used as a tenement by poor families of the city, and that when it came into possession of the municipality its walls and ceilings were encrusted with the grime of centuries. Scrubbing would do no good; so stone cutters were put to work with chisels and mallets to cut away the incrustations of half a millennium and to bring to light a surface at once clean and nearer to that of the Columbian era.

Toward the rear of the portion of the building still standing is a narrow, winding stair of wood. The front room on the second floor has two windows in the front wall, is more airy and is better lighted than that below and was probably one of the chief apartments of the Columbus family. Its walls, too, have been chipped to form a fresh surface, and the floor, reasonably clean, has probably been scraped. Into one of the side walls has been set a marble slab, carved into a charming base-relief of the Santa Maria, the ship which bore Columbus on his great adventure. In a corner stands a little statue of Columbus, the boy. These are the only mementos of the great man who as a child lived here; for the rest the house is bare

Girl at the Top in Health Tests

Millions of boys and girls all over the world, thousands of them right here in the West, are being restored to health and strength by the purely vegetable tonic and laxative known as California Fig Syrup and endorsed by physicians for over 50 years.

Children need no urging to take it. They love its rich, fruity flavor. Nothing can compete with it as a gentle, but certain laxative, and it goes further than this. It gives tone and strength to the stomach and bowels so these organs continue to act normally, of their own accord. It stimulates the appetite, helps digestion.

A Kansas mother, Mrs. Dana Allgire, 610 Monroe St., Topeka, says: "Bonnie B. is absolutely the picture of health, now, with her rosy cheeks, bright eyes and plump but graceful little body and she stands at the top in every health test."

Much of the credit for her perfect condition is due to California Fig Syrup. We have used it since babyhood to keep her bowels active during colds or any children's ailments and she has always had an easy time with them. She always responds to its gentle urging and is quickly back to normal."

Ask your druggist for California Fig Syrup and look for the word "California" on the carton so you'll always get the genuine.

Thought He Had Vision of the "Good Old Days"

There is an old-fashioned inn in the little village of Walmingham that attracted my attention one day when I was out for a country ramble. It still has an atmosphere of stirring times in the past. A highwayman's haunt, no doubt.

Swords used in the good old days still hang over the mantelpiece of the huge chimney piece in the center of the heavily-beamed room, and the innkeeper himself can recount many tales of duels and robberies.

At the end of the garden I noticed two limp objects hanging, swayed to and fro by the wind—lifeless skeletons! No longer a frame for warm flesh and blood. They hung with feet dangling. I shuddered and ran my fingers round my collar at the thought of a gibbet and all its horrors.

Just then a door banged and a woman came hurrying down the garden, unpegged the two stockings hanging on the line and took them in.—Passing Show, London.

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours. This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

TESTED RECIPES

OCCASIONALLY for luncheon or for a supper dish one likes a change, something which appeals to the taste and intrigues the imagination. The dish may be an ordinary one, but the serving makes it different.

Herring in Paper.

Soak smoked herring overnight in cold water after removing the heads and tails. Wipe dry and place in a paper bag, those prepared for cookery or in a greased paper. Place on a hot griddle and cook until the paper is well browned. Serve in the paper with:

Maitre d' Hotel Sauce.

Put a tablespoonful of butter into a small saucepan over a moderate fire and add to it chopped parsley and chives. Season with salt and a little lemon juice and while sizzling hot pour over the fish.

Another sauce to be used for this dish or for any fish is:

Sauce d' Anchois.

Take three or four anchovies, mash them and mix with two tablespoonfuls of butter. Prepare a brown sauce with browned flour, butter and milk. Stir in the anchovy butter and just before taking from the fire add the juice of half a lemon or more.

Dutch Sauce for Fish.

Take two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of liquid in which the fish was cooked, one cupful of milk, salt and paprika to taste. Cook the sauce, adding two egg yolks, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and beat well with an egg beater just before taking from the heat. Add a tablespoonful of minced parsley and serve.

Marzipan.

Take one-half cupful of heavy sugar sirup, warm it and mix with one-fourth pound of almond paste, add one-half pound of confectioner's sugar and work into a paste. Add a few drops of flavoring and mold into any desired form, using color and leaves of angelica; small fruits are easily copied.

MY MEMORY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHY is it I remember Things upstairs when I am down; Recall some thing I meant to bring When I'm half way to town? Why is it in the attic I think about the fire, Or, far below, remember so What attics may require?

Why is it I remember Things downstairs when I'm up? When up I went I fully meant To bring along a cup. Why is it, when I'm outdoors I think of things within, And, in again, remember then, The things where I have been?

Why is it I remember Things inside when I'm out, My kitchen cares when I'm upstairs, Am I always turned about? Since at the proper minute A thing I can't recall, I wonder why it is that I Remember things at all.

The sweetpea is a native of the island of Sicily, and was first mentioned in 1695 by an Italian monk, who sent seeds to England and Holland. The seeds of sweetpeas became an article of commerce as early as 1724.

Long Dynasty Near End

Since the year 1557 the descendants of one old English family have plied their trade of saddler in the same shop without interruption. They are named Denyer. At present Edmund John Denyer still carries on the business in Staines, a quiet, old-world town on the banks of the Thames. But when the present Denyer dies the dynasty will end. Diseases Caused by Mind

We should be surprised if, suffering from rheumatism, we went to a doctor and, instead of being given medicine, we were told to cease our cynicism and the rheumatism would depart. Yet that may be the procedure shortly for it has been established that certain diseases are caused by the action of the mind—the thoughts we think and the feelings and emotions thereby raised.

Avoid Complaint

Complain as little as possible of the wrongs done you; for, commonly speaking, he who complains sins, because self-love always makes us believe the injuries done to us greater than they really are.—Francis de Sales.

OLD LEE HOMESTEAD IS BEING RESTORED

Will Revive Life and Culture of Old South.

Richmond, Va. — Stratford Hall, homestead of the Lee family in Virginia, a center of historical interest and a symbol of the life and culture of the Old South, has been saved for posterity.

There remains now the work of re-creating the fine old house and restoring the extensive grounds which formerly made it one of the show places of the state.

Completion of the purchase fund marked the close of another chapter in a dramatic story which had its start in Greenwich, Conn., early in 1928.

A Speech on Lee's Death. The paper proved to be a speech he had made in Macon, Ga., in 1870, on the death of General Lee, in which he urged the establishment of a memorial.

On the following day Mrs. Lanier received a letter from a friend describing a visit to Stratford and asking why it could not be preserved.

Stratford hall is more than two hundred years old and bears the distinction of having been the birthplace of two signers of the Declaration of Independence, Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee, as well as the home of "Light Horse Harry" Lee and other generations of the distinguished family.

It stands on a hillock not far removed from the Potomac in a section of the Northern Neck which the older generation of Virginians especially looks upon as hallowed ground.

The house itself, built in the shape of the letter H, is two stories in height, with a tall basement forming the first floor, and is topped by massive quadruple chimneys on each wing.

The mansion, in a fine state of preservation, is built of brick on English lines by English standards, with walls of fortress thickness, and was known as the stately house of its time in Colonial Virginia.

In restoring the plantation with its Colonial atmosphere and its arts and industries as pursued two centuries ago, the old brick and saw mill, now in ruins, will be rebuilt and placed in operation.

The Garden Clubs of Virginia will complete the restoration picture with landscaping, terraces, flowers and rare shrubs such as once were the pride of the Lees and the delight of their many distinguished guests.

AFRICAN CANNIBALS CRAVE EPSOM SALTS

Will Spend Week's Wages for a Single Dose.

New York.—Mrs. William S. Seabrook, who shares the explorations of her noted husband, says that a white man can prosper by retailing epsom salts to the natives on the Ivory coast.

"Epsom salts," she says in the American Druggist, "are white magic to the people who deal in black magic, people who will work for a week to buy a single dose of salts, and consider themselves lucky to get it."

"One charming cannibal to whom my husband and I were indebted made a single request when asked how we could repay him for his many favors. He replied quickly and naively: 'Yes, send me epsom salts, and my fortune is made.'"

"His idea was to go into the cut-rate business and sell epsom salts for ten cents.

"Natives of the Ivory coast suffer terribly from constipation. Here you have a primitive people struggling with nature in a dense jungle, afflicted with a condition which we have been told results from a civilized and sedentary life. The difficulty is with their diet. They eat practically no greens and even among cannibals starchy food predominates.

"Witch doctors and sorcerers brew magic stews and make a lot of mumbo-jumbo, but the black men have discovered the efficiency of the white man's drugs, so they beg to borrow or buy them whenever possible. They may continue the treatment prescribed by their own witch doctor because in no event would they want to hurt a local practitioner's feelings; but if they can combine witches' brew and a good stiff cathartic, they feel pretty certain of complete cure."

THEY DON'T CHANGE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

We change very little after we are beyond the high-school age. I may have emphasized this fact at one time or another before, but it is more and more impressed upon me as time goes on.

Between fourteen and eighteen our habits are pretty definitely formulated, and if they change it is generally only in degeneration. Only a revolution or a crisis will effect any material change.

I used not to think so. Going to college or getting married, or taking up a business of some sort, I imagined would work miracles in the development or the modification of a man's character. I see now that none of these things makes very much difference.

I hadn't seen Maguire for more than thirty-five years until he dropped upon me a few weeks ago. He was the wittiest, cleverest man in my class, cheerful, happy, ready for a lark and ready to laugh at a good joke even if it were on himself.

He had not been in my office ten minutes until I saw that, priest that he is, he has not changed excepting to strengthen the fine qualities which he had revealed when we were boys together. He still has the happy outlook upon life and the keen sense of humor which is so characteristic of the Irish.

WE had to cut down expenses, so my husband did his share by switching to Target and rolling his own cigarettes. I felt kind of sorry for him at first, but I notice he's more cheerful than ever.

"He tells me that Target rolls up into cigarettes that look and taste like ready-mades. Target is the same mixture of foreign and domestic tobaccos that the ready-mades use. You get 40 special gummied papers free. No wonder my husband tells me he's glad he changed. He's getting more cigarette pleasure than ever, and we're saving about enough to pay for the family's bread and butter each month."

HUSBANDS, PLEASE NOTE! You pay less than one-sixth the government tax on ready-mades when you roll your own from TARGET. Buy a pack of TARGET. Roll yourself fifteen or twenty smokes. If you don't say they are the best cigarettes you have ever smoked, return the half empty pack to your dealer's and you'll get your dime back.

Migratory Waistlines

The waistline of the members of the "fair sex" has now returned to almost the normal level after having slipped down almost to the knees. These vagaries, however, like the rest of fashion's fancies, are no new thing, and in an old French book published in 1820, when George IV was king, we find this sentence: "The waist is a part of the body, whose length, breadth, shortness, or smallness is entirely regulated by fashions, which sometimes does not appear to allow of any."

The Men on the Dead Man's Chest

by Clifford Raymond

FROM THE BEGINNING

During a "holdup" at the Dutch Mill, Chicago night club, a patron, Dunn Clayton, is killed. Lieutenant of Police Stanton questions a club visitor, "Buck" Trembley. In Clayton's pocket Stanton found a note signed "Maise," making an appointment with the dead man at the Dutch Mill. Stanton is inclined to suspect Trembley of the murder. At a Wisconsin winter camp a boisterous crowd includes Preston Brown. An apparent stranger arrives. Later, two men, driving, come on the scene. The stranger leaves in his car, and the two men follow, passing him. A viaduct is out, and one of the two men removes the danger signals. The stranger, in his car, goes over the embankment. He is dead when found. Brown is dead. In his papers Clayton's name is found and Stanton connects the deaths. He goes to Wisconsin, and finds the dead man is Trembley, apparently an accident. A Vermont lawyer, John Whittlesex, reading of the case, recalls the names in connection with an odd will made by a man named Turner. Turner had bequeathed the interest on $6,000,000 to six men, Blair, Ashley, Roberts, Brown, Trembley, and Clayton. The income, at the death of each beneficiary, is to be divided among the rest. Turner's son, on the deaths of the six beneficiaries, is to inherit all. Turner dies shortly after making the will. Whittlesex suspects foul play in the three deaths, and writes to the Chicago police. Stanton interviews Asa Darling, one of the executors of the will. Darling tells him he believes Turner wanted and expected the six beneficiaries of the will to kill one another, they having in the past injured him beyond forgiveness. The will is his method of revenge.

them all. It was a good garden year. Tomatoes? Well, you'd never believe the tomatoes. Agnes has the cellar full of them in cans and crocks. Tomato butter in the crocks. Agnes is my wife. I'm rather impressed by that when I say it. You see, she's been my wife only three months. I suppose one gets over being unduly impressed, but it doesn't seem possible now."

"Tell me, Mr. Turner," said Stanton, "why you didn't contest your father's will. Most sons would have done so. Courts aren't easily persuaded to set wills aside, but your father's was so eccentric that it might have been regarded as bad public policy to let it stand."

"But why should I have done so, Lieutenant?" the boy asked. "My father knew what he wanted to do. I liked him. He was what he was. He made all his money himself. He left me ample for security and comfort. If I wanted more I should be obliged to get it myself. I know he loved money, but he loved earned money. I disappointed him. You mustn't think he was bitter about it. He was eminently reasonable. I was what I was. He was what he was. He'd have liked a son who could have stepped out with him. You know. A fellow who would have been berserker when he was berserker. I wasn't that fellow. He had to swallow his disappointment and go his way, while I went mine."

"He had some compelling reason for making this will. Do you know what it was?"

"Not as much as you'd like to have me. Here, you see, is one consequence of my being the kind of son I was. I was not much in my father's confidence. I suppose he wanted these men to make one another miserable. He may have thought or have known that they would try to kill one another."

"But you don't know why? You don't know what they did to him?"

"I don't, not in a satisfactory way. I know he nearly died years ago from exposure in a jungle, Panama or maybe Peru. What he was doing there I don't know, but you may be sure it had something to do with money. I think he had been deserted by men with whom he was associated or whom he had employed. There were a great many ventures in his life which might have made him hate men. He hated quickly and hard and long. There's my wife in the doorway now. Oh, Agnes!"

"Yes, Bill."

"Come on out. You'll want to see Agnes, Lieutenant."

A young woman came toward the garden as Stanton stood up. She was comely and smiling.

"My wife, Lieutenant," said the boy. "Agnes, this is Lieutenant Stanton of the Chicago police, actually of the Chicago police, where they need them. We've been talking, as you'd guess, of my father's will. Let's sit down again. Maybe you've heard that father did not like Agnes. That wasn't true. He did, but when he saw her it was confirmation of what he already knew about me. I never was going to die in a Panama jungle. I wasn't going to be in the whirl of anything. So he passed us up. He knew neither one of us ever would even ride a horse across country. He was fair enough to admit that some people must be like that. One happened to be his son and another was to be his daughter-in-law."

Lieutenant Stanton looked at the young wife inquiringly.

"I've never been quite so tolerant of Bill's father as he is," she said. "I feel as Bill does as to our share of the will. It's enough. I prefer Bill to go the rest of his way on his own feet. But the other intention of the will—it's been terrible."

"He had a reason," said the boy. "I'm not soft that way. I've no doubt the men deserve whatever they do to one another."

"Even now," the lieutenant suggested, "the courts might set the will aside in your favor. There have been three murders. There are probably two more to come."

"No," said the boy, "I wouldn't interfere if I could."

"But, Bill," said the young woman, laying her hand on his arm, "I feel that we're sharing responsibility if we neglect something we could do. We don't want the money, as you say, but think of the ways good use could be made of it and think of what it is doing now."

"No, Agnes. It's not our concern and I do not believe the courts will find it any concern of theirs until these men are charged with murder. Let's go in and show Lieutenant Stanton the house. He likes New England houses."

CHAPTER VI

Mr. Roberts Makes a Call

"Occasionally you'll hear from me," Stanton said to the young couple as they stood in the front doorway of old burial and coffin-length uncertainties. "Did you ever consider how they will get you out of that house if you live in it until you die?"

"It's the window for us," said the boy. "We're anticipating it, cordially."

"My Wife, Lieutenant," Said the Boy.

ly. It will be a romantic escape. Like a bird."

"Don't be in a hurry about it," said the lieutenant.

"Certainly not," said young Mrs. Turner.

"You'll hear from me," said the lieutenant as he clicked the gate. "You're only three removes from a lot of money."

"We couldn't abide it," the girl called after him.

The lieutenant waved them farewell. He looked at his watch and saw that he had an hour of the morning before lunch, and when he came to his hotel he walked on by it to the Washbrouck house, headquarters of Washington when the army marched back from Yorktown to the Highlands.

The late October sun was warm, and the lieutenant strolled about within the inclosed grounds, reading the inscriptions on the French guns of His Christian Majesty and observing contemplatively the tomb of Uzal Knapp, "the last of the Life Guards."

[Even more than an Unknown Soldier in Arlington, Westminster, at the Arc de Triomphe or elsewhere, Uzal Knapp is the military apotheosis of the enlisted man. His is the lone watch in the Highlands. His name is known, not unknown. His tomb on the bluff by the Hudson is in the living shade of his commander in chief. Royal Soup Calls for Variety of Ingredients

The recipe for the famous "ollo" soup made for the Austrian court "since the time of the Empress Maria Theresa's father" has been printed in Budapest. It is said to have originated in Spain, and the secret was revealed by a pensioned court chef. The stock consisted of veal or ham, nutmeg, venison and other game roasted in butter and then boiled. Calves' feet and ox feet, turned into jelly, were added, together with white cabbage stewed with smoked and fresh pork, maize seed, chestnuts, lentils, pearl barley and carrots roasted with sugar.

The combination was laid on ice for four hours, so as to remove every trace of grease. Next a bouillon was prepared of beef and veal bones, mushrooms and other vegetables, making a liquid to be cleared by the addition of hashed beef, ox liver and white of egg. The boiling bouillon was strengthened by cooked fowls, ducks, turkey, pigeons, pheasants, geese and wild duck. It took two days and two nights to complete the process.

The last thing done was to drain the concoction through muslin bags. When porcelain jugs were filled, the guests were served in small china cups.—New York Times.

Invention of Telescope

A letter nearly three hundred and fifty years old in which Galileo Galilei expressed great excitement over his invention of a telescope that would "discover ships two hours before they could be seen by natural vision," is said to have been acquired by Thomas F. Madigan, of New York. The letter, written to the grand duke of Tuscany, Cosimo II, concludes: "I assure you I will keep this invention a great secret and exhibit it only to your highness." Cardinal Pietro Maffi, of Pica, Italy, has written that the letter is authentic, as it compares perfectly with other Galileo letters in the Pisa collection.

WORK IN THE HOME CALLS FOR "TRAVEL"

A mail carrier presents official figures showing that in the course of his forty-two-year career he walked a distance equal to nine journeys round the earth. But the housewife, the waitress, the bus conductor, the doctor and many another person who does not seem to move far from one spot takes, in reality, an astonishing amount of exercise. Pedometer records have shown that a woman walked about fifty miles in the course of a week. In another case tested by pedometer, a girl dancer at a theater, who has plenty to do on the stage, found that her work entailed fewer steps than that of a housewife who had no children to look after. Schoolboys and girls have been found to walk more than seventy miles a week, in the course of their restless fittings hither and thither. A London bus conductor has a very strenuous day's physical labor. In addition to walking about thirty miles in the course of his week's work, he has been found to climb every day the equivalent of nearly two-thirds of the height of Mount Snowdon. A golf professional discovered that he had walked a little over 110 miles in the course of giving 54 ordinary lessons to beginners on the links.—London Mail.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs.

At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying what you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness and headache of a bilious spell, and rid the system of that slow poison that saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and unlike habit-forming laxatives you can take it freely or give it to any child. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin today, and take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give your system this wonderful help. You can avoid those spells of biliousness or constipation. A spoonful every now and then is better than constant worry about the condition of your bowels, or fear of auto-intoxication as you grow older. Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin protects the system. All druggists keep this preparation.

History From Trees

For a quarter of a century Dr. Douglass of the University of Arizona has studied the rings which mark the annual growth of trees. He demonstrated that the rings formed each year vary in width in direct proportion to the amount of rainfall—a wet year produces a thick ring and vice versa. Tree growths in the giant sequoias of California were traced back three thousand years. Doctor Douglass made an unbroken annual calendar back to 700 A. D. By the study of timbers taken from pueblos he gave exact dates of events in the history of those Indian peoples back as far as the Eighth century.

SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council High School

The George Washington Bi-Centennial program which was held at the State Theatre last Monday evening was well attended. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music, plays, drills, and readings portraying the life of Washington. About thirty dollars was taken in at the door. This amount paid the expenses and left a remainder of about five dollars.

The Central State Teachers College Scholastic contest for the high schools of Michigan will be held at Mt. Pleasant, Friday, May 13. The Tawas City school expects to send a team to represent it at this contest.

All departments of the school are affected considerably by the epidemic which seems to be prevalent in Michigan. We trust that the disease will soon pass from our community.

The program for Washington's birthday was sponsored by the Freshman class. The program was as follows: Star Spangled Banner by assembly; Flag Salute by assembly; Washington's Character by Elsie Mueller; a poem, Washington's Birthday, by Mildred Quick; song, The Father of the Land We Love, by a group of eighth grade girls; story, To Dance With Sally, by Leona Ulman; Character of Washington, by Mr. Giddings; America, by assembly.

On Thursday and Friday afternoons of last week the oratorical and declamatory contests were held in the high school auditorium. Of the orators, Lulu Robinson, Evelyn Frank and Clair Thompson took places. Of the declaimers, Arlene Leslie, John Brugger and Jack Mark were placed. These six winners will compete for honors in the local contest to be held on Friday, March 4. We are very grateful to Mrs. Bielew, Mrs. Shattuck, Rev. Voss and Mr. Campbell for their assistance as judges.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
An error was made in our notes last week in regard to the Scholastic-Clerk-Patterson standardized arithmetic test which was given to our room last Friday by Mr. Giddings. Of the 40 taking this test, 24 had scores above their grade. Of these 24, two had college freshmen scores while the remaining 22 had high school scores. Eleven had scores below their grades.

Many from our room have been absent this week on account of sickness.

Third and Fourth Grades
Harold Wegner and Betty Rano had perfect spelling lessons all last week.

The fourth grade has finished studying the Plateau States and have started the Pacific States. We had several absent on account of illness.

Primary
The following people had perfect spelling lessons last week: Leona Zehl, Arlene Harris, Dick Prescott, Zelpa Kehoe, and Junior DePotty. The "B" group of the first grade will start reading in the Companion Primers Thursday. Zelpa Kehoe and Herbert Marz have the most stars in spelling this month.

Erud "A" Mat Irish
Professor Crandall of Harvard university says the earlier English "ah" became short "a" by the sixteenth century. Until 1783 or thereabouts the standard language had no broad "a." Benjamin Franklin, who recorded in 1783 the pronunciation of his day, knew no "ah." Evidence indicates that it appeared again in London speech between 1780 and 1790. There is no basis for the statement that it originated with the Irish.

No. 2 Continued from the First Page

We agree that this is a serious situation and believe there is some way that this situation can be relieved as long as the rest of the state (and it seems that northern Michigan will do most of the suffering in either plan) is not made to suffer from their mistakes, and so long as the user of the road only is made to pay.

Many of these roads are unessential roads and are not used a great deal by the general public, having been built by the counties through influence of high pressure real estate men for exploiting their interests. We doubt if the people who pay the gas tax will welcome seeing their money used except for maintenance and construction of roads in proportion as such roads are used by them. Every person who drives or rides in a car is interested in this because the plans thus far presented are more for the relief of the property owners who are paying local Covert tax assessments; and if trunk line construction is stopped in Northern Michigan it will not even be to their interests.

We believe some relief must be given the property owner in the Covert tax situation but if this is done at the expense of stopping construction on state trunk lines in northern Michigan, we doubt if the trade will do any of us any good in the long run.

Hard surface roads have been extending from the southern part of the state for the last few years and have just about reached and gotten a good start in our half of the state; and it would not be fair to us now that they have all the roads they want in the southern part (as some of them express it) to stop before we have hardly started. Furthermore if we do not get our pavements before rebuilding of the present pavements starts we will be out of luck again. Even a concrete pavement will not last forever. We wonder also if after the reapportionment of the legislature, since the big cities will be in control of that body, if the gas and weight tax fund will not be robbed further to help the cities.

It is very much to the interest of all of us to be on guard during this special session of the legislature to use what influence we have to see that no law is passed that will kill our state trunk line construction and paving program. Harry VanPatten.

His Duty
The Photographer—Now, madam, don't be at all nervous; just be natural and try to carry this thought: Remember that I am bound to make you look better than you are!

Scoring Lawn Tennis
In the early days of lawn tennis two methods of scoring were used, almost indiscriminately. One of these was the scoring used in the game of "raquets" and the other the "tennis" scoring. In 1878 the "tennis" method of scoring was adopted and the "raquets" scoring abandoned. No material change in the method of scoring has been made since 1878.
