TAWAS CITY, MICHIGAN, FRIDAY, MARCH 4, 1932

NUMBER 10

TAWAS CITY

Miss Opal Coon was a week end visitor with her parents at St. Louis.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Roach, a son, on Tuesday, March 1st.

Miss Alma Johnson returned on Thursday from Cleveland where she spent a couple of weeks. She left immediately for Hale where her brother, John O. Johnson, is ill with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ellis of Saginaw are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. McGuire and Mrs. John Lanski and other relatives in the Tawas for a couple weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Fahselt of Flint spent Tuesday and Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fahselt and other relatives.

Mrs. Alex McCormick returned Friday from Saginaw, where she spent several days.

Misses Margaret and Elsie Neumann, Elvera Kasischke and Hattie Look spent Sunday in Saginaw.

Miss Louise Bird spent the week end with her parents in Belding.

Miss Mary St. James of Whittemore was the Sunday guest of Mrs. Henry Fahselt.

Howard Swartz of Ypsilanti spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Swartz, Jr.

Adolph Wuckert returned Monday after spending a week at his home in Saginaw.

Miss Irma Kasischke of Saginaw visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kasischke, over the week end.

Mrs. Robert Murray entertained a number of friends on Monday evening of this week at bridge. Mrs. Muriel Horton received first prize, Mrs. Celia Berzhinski second prize and Mrs. Chas. Duffy low.

Dr. Zella Mullenburg left today for Duluth, Minn., where she will have charge of the eye, ear, nose and throat department of Curtis and Curtis, chiropractors, for a month. Her daughter, Margaret, accompanied her. They will also visit at Virginia, Minn., where they formerly lived.

Register of Deeds F. F. Taylor announced today that over 850 automobile licenses had been issued. Less than one-half of the car owners in the county had purchased licenses. Licenses for 100 trucks had been issued. About 2000 automobile licenses were issued in the county last year.

JAS. H. LESLIE LEASES ROACH GARAGE

Jas. H. Leslie has leased the Roach garage, taking immediate possession. The sales room is being redecorated and will be ready for showing the new Ford cars which are expected to be on display within the next ten days.

CHILD HEALTH COMMITTEE WILL MEET ON TUESDAY

P. T. A. MEETING WILL BE HELD NEXT THURSDAY

The Parent-Teachers Association will hold its regular meeting in the high school auditorium Thursday evening, March 10. The committee is planning an interesting program honoring the memory of George Washington.

THE TIMBERJACKS SERMONETTE

A remark in camp by one of the lads that it was fortunate that we were not all of one mind, is more than, fortunate to my mind, it is a blessing. Think what would happen if all were of one mind and became editors, preachers, oil station operators, or would not pay taxes or get married. Minds are so different that any statement is usually followed by a bigger one or met by a flat denial of its truth. So a statement becomes interesting when the public gets to talking about it and you are a good listener. Truth regarding early days of the Timberjacks may not apply at all to the latest. The days when the men took their own bedding and a knife, fork and plate when they started for camp are regarded as wild tales by those who followed twenty-five years later.

I have not received any stories yet and will ask if anyone has heard why in one camp at least prunes were referred to as dynamite whether in sauce or in pies.

WIN FROM PRESCOTT; LOSE TO TURNER INDIES

The Tawas cagers continued in winning form Tuesday night when they engaged the Prescott five at the Community Building. The locals smothered their opponents under a 46-22 landslide.

An amazed Prescott team saw the locals go into action immediately after the opening whistle. The fast offensive displayed by the Tawas boys proved too much for Prescott to cope with, and the end of the first half found the visitors trailing, 24-6. The second half was crammed with action. The Prescott boys “found themselves” and collected 16 points in the last two periods. However, they fell short in keeping up to the fast pace set by the locals, who tallied 22 points in these periods.

Every member of the local quintet played a fine game. Scoring honors went to Bingham, whose accurate shooting accounted for 28 of Tawas’ points. The splendid floor work performed by Lomas was one of the features of the contest and deserves special mention. For Prescott scoring was evenly divided, Black being high man with seven points. Schwanz was their outstanding defensive performer.

In the preliminary to the league contest the Tawas boys subdued Alabaster by a score of 28-22.

Tawas’ next league contest takes place next week Wednesday or Thursday night, when the locals engage Glennie at Glennie. The schedule lists the game for Thursday, but Tawas is endeavoring to have the date changed to Wednesday night.

COUNTY NURSE REPORT FOR MONTH OF FEBRUARY

During the month of February the nurse made 19 school visits, inspected 141 school children, assisted Dr. Johnston with examination of 92 children, visited 38 school children, 27 pre-school children, 28 infants and seven expectant mothers.

The school children are working hard to become “gold star” children on the health record chart. To have a gold star means that the child’s teeth are sound or in good repair, that he has no defect that can be remedied and that he is immunized against smallpox and diphtheria. The following pupils are on the Alabaster “Gold Star” list: Charles Brown, Betty Erickson, Jean Grove, Jennie Smith, Arlene Brown, Edward Grove, Robert Oates, Richard Trainor, Lucille Wogeman, Bernard Ciezlak, Gabriel Ciezlak, Helen Furst, Joe Martin, James Oates, Marcella Martin, Otto Nicanor, Rhea Oates, Nettie Rescoe and Agnes Smith.

ODDFELLOW BOWLERS WIN AND LOSE AT BAY CITY

Page—Bill Hatton, John Moran, Paul Robert, Emil Frisch and Arvid Carlson. Suffering from the old time attack of “falling timber,” these Tawas Odds slipped into the clutches of stage fright or something at Bay City last Monday evening. A balloon ascension never had a thing on the way these boys reacted and enacted. Against the strongest team of Saginaw valley, the Wenonahs, they just couldn’t get started, and were just 350 pins minus for the evening’s efforts. In a large bowling hall, with every inch of space taken by partisan boosters, there may be some slight excuse for the lack of woodchopping.

The Wenonah team, Henry Ladden, Dave Merry, Tom Traxler, Frank Adair and Dr. Bertrand, rolled like veterans, and well they should, some of them being in a class where they go to the ABC tournament every year, meeting the world’s best in competition. These gentlemen will be entertained by the local Odds this Saturday evening at the Odd-Fellow Temple.

The contest with Eden Odds ended in favor of the Tawas Fellows by 84 pins. The Eden boys were handicapped by the sickness of two of their men, but Stanley Misener, Ray Tuttle, Henry Greenwood, George Vaughn, Andrew Christeson, John Grunden, Harry Pelton and a grist of others just couldn’t be denied. Until the Odd-Fellow tournament later in the spring to be held in Bay City, practice will be redoubled. Eden wants revenge, and like the story of old, Tawas will pass the apples.

SUPREME COURT AFFAIRS

CONVICTION IN SNYS CASE

In an appeal to the Supreme Court by William Sims, convicted of assault with intent to kill and murder in December, 1929, the conviction made in circuit court here was affirmed. The defendant was represented in the Supreme Court by Thomas J. Drouillard and Louis W. McClear of Detroit. The People of the State were represented by Prosecuting Attorney John A. Stewart.

Sims, convicted of an assault on Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz with intent to kill and murder during the morning of October 31, 1929, is now serving a 25 to 40 year prison sentence.

THRILLER “FRANKENSTEIN” WILL BE SHOWN AT STATE

Packed to the brim with thrills and called by experts the most original film ever to reach the screen, Universal’s eerie “Frankenstein” will be shown at the State Theatre on Saturday, Sunday and Monday with Colin Clive, Mae Clarke, John Boles and Boris Karloff in the featured roles.

The extraordinary story of a young scientist who brought a human monster to life through weird electrical mechanisms and surgery is based upon the fantastic eighteenth century narrative of the same name written by Mary Shelley, wife of the poet.

Karloff, in his characterization of the man monster, is reported to wear makeup weighing 48 pounds in itself. Colin Clive, of “Journey’s End” fame, was brought expressly from London to enact the scientist, and Dwight Frye, of “Dracula,” plays the important Dwarf of the picture. Edward Van Sloan and Fred Erick Kerr complete the cast.

DANCE AT ORANGE HALL

Saturday night, March 5. Ice cream and cake free.

SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the local contest which will be held in the high school auditorium Friday evening, March 4, at 8 o’clock. The orators who will compete are Lulu Robinson, Evelyn Frank and Sylvia Koskie. The latter was chosen by the class to take Clair Thompson’s place. The declaimers who will speak are Arlene Leslie, Jack Mark and John Brugger. The winners will compete for honors at the subdistrict contest at Alpena.

The total number from all the rooms that are absent these days during the epidemic is sixty. This comprises about twenty-five per cent.

The giving out of report cards in all departments has been postponed for one week. This postponement has been caused by the excessive number of cases of illness among teachers and students.

H. P. Thompson, representing the Michigan School Service Co. of Lansing was a pleasant caller at the school building Wednesday.

John A. Campbell addressed the teachers of the school at their regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Campbell’s talk furnished much food for thought as it was founded upon his years of experience in the teaching and other professions.

Seventh and Eighth Grades

The percentage of attendance in this room for the month of February has fallen far below that of any month this school year. The percentage is as follows: Eighth grade, 89.6%; seventh grade, 91.1%. The average attendance for the whole room for the year is 96.9%.

We have been reading the story of Jean Val Jean in seventh grade reading class this week.

The seventh grade geography class has started the study of South America.

Third and Fourth Grades

DOLORES DEL RIO COMING TO STATE IN NEW TRIUMPH

Vibrant with the personality of a new and lovelier Dolores Del Rio, IKO-Pathe Pictures’ screen play, “Girl of the Rio,” comes to the State Theatre next week Thursday and Friday.

Miss Del Rio plays the role of a cafe entertainer in a typical Mexican border town. The role is particularly colorful in view of the setting with its bustling industry of gambling games, vacueros and cowboys at play and love and the inevitable drama of hates and passion possible only in this type of resort. The star makes the most of a role exceptionally full of romantic moods and at times stirring melodrama.

In support of the star are two accomplished actors, Leo Carrillo and Norman Foster.

SEVERAL EAST TAWAS ORGANIZATIONS HOLD BI-CENTENNIAL PROGRAMS

The Ladies Literary Club was the first to celebrate the George Washington Bi-Centennial with a winter picnic and program on February 17th. The tables were decorated in red, white and blue. A playlet, “When George and Martha Returned,” was given by County Normal students, directed by Mrs. Osgerby. The musical program consisted of numbers by the high school orchestra and community singing of appropriate Washington songs, with Miss Helen Applin in charge and Miss Helmie Huhtala acting as pianist.

On February 21st the East Tawas high school and seventh and eighth grades gave a pleasing program at the Community Building, and on the evening of February 22 the first six grades of the school rendered a fine program, also at the Community Building.

The annual Washington banquet was held at the Masonic hall on the evening of February 22nd. Tables were decorated in the national colors. After a sumptuous banquet, an appropriate program was given, with J. G. Dimmick in charge. The speaker of the evening was J. K. Osgerby, who gave a very fine address on his trip through the East and to the Washington Memorial. Musical numbers were given as follows: Piano selections, Misses Helen Turner and Helen Misener; appropriate vocal solos by Rev. C. E. Edinger and Superintendent H. T. Swanson.

On Friday evening, February 26, St. Joseph’s school celebrated with a program and play, “Cousin Gene,” at the Community Building.

MRS. ADAM CATALINE

Mrs. Adam Cataline died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Hunt, in Flint, last Tuesday. The funeral was held from the L. D. S. church in Whittemore Thursday afternoon, Rev. Matt. Umphrey of Bentley officiating.

Mrs. Cataline was born in 1834, and would have been 98 years of age had she lived until May of this year. She leaves to mourn her loss one daughter, Mrs. George Hunt of Flint, and one son, Schabel, of Gaylord, besides a host of other relatives and friends.

TEN MICROPHONES CAPTURE SYMPHONY

Ten microphones, strategically suspended over the various sections of an 80-piece symphony orchestra, were required to record George Gershwin’s “New York Rhapsody,” a symbolic successor to his world-famous “Rhapsody In Blue,” to be introduced in “Delicious,” newest Janet Gaynor-Charles Farrell Fox Film romance, coming Sunday and Monday to the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

This “multi-mike” recording marked an innovation in sound reproducing methods, and was made necessary by the complex melodic pattern of the work. One microphone alone could not handle with justice the abrupt changes, shadings and delicate harmonies of the symphony, it was found, and so the new system was developed.

Gershwin’s magnificent new rhapsody, together with several popular song numbers, are introduced as complementary incidentals to the plot of “Delicious,” which is an inspiring and thrilling romantic drama by Guy Bolton.

INDEPENDENT CAUCUS

An Independent caucus will be held in Tawas township hall Thursday, March 10, at 2:00 p. m. By Order of Committee.

TOURNAMENT ONLY FOUR WEEKS AWAY

Many tentative entries have been received for the coming Tawas Auction Bridge Tournament to be held during the week beginning March 28th under the auspices of the St. Felix Guild of the Episcopal church. James Ruckman, chairman of the committee in charge, reports that the number of entries from Tawas City has been particularly encouraging and accordingly arrangements are being made to conduct the play in Tawas City on about the third night.

The number of men and women entries from Tawas City are about even while the number of male entries from East Tawas thus far exceeds the number of women by a small majority. This situation is surprising in view of the fact that as a whole women are presumed to be much more in the majority as bridge players. This response from the men is especially gratifying to the committee as it virtually assures the success of the tournament as to the number of entries. At the same time it is pointed out that it behooves the women players of the community to select their partners immediately and prepare to enter the tournament or else they are very likely to find the championship title resting upon the shoulders of a couple of stalwart male entrants. Of course, there will be several mixed couples entered which if victorious would divide the honor equally between the men and women players.

It is again pointed out as a reminder that play will be conducted on a match play elimination basis. Each player will retain the same partner throughout the tournament. The tournament will begin on Monday night, March 28th, and continue each evening until the winner is determined. The winners of each match each evening will continue into the next round on the next evening while the losers of each match will automatically be eliminated from further play.

Each match except the final will be determined by the winning of four rubbers out of seven; that is, whichever side first wins a majority will win the match. The final match will be determined on a basis of five out of nine rubbers. It is recommended that those players who are not thoroughly familiar with the rubber system of scoring secure the edition of this paper dated February 19 which contains a thorough explanation of how to keep score by rubbers.

An article on the most common misplays and the rules governing penalties for misplays and unethical conduct will be printed in next week’s edition of this paper.

WHITEMORE STUDENTS WIN SPEAKING HONORS

Lois Charters, a freshman in Whittemore high school, took first place in the declamatory contest held at Whittemore last Thursday night. She gave the declamation, “The Mission of the Public Schools.” Arden Charters, a sophomore, took second place. He gave the declamation, “Washington’s Genius.” Ulene Cataline, also a sophomore, took third place with “The Union Soldier.”

First in oratorical honors was awarded Flavia Bellville, a senior, who gave the oration “The Genius of Edison.”

The two first place winners will go to Alpena to compete with winners from other schools, some time in April.

STELLAR COMEDY TRIO AT FAMILY NEXT WEEK

A stellar comedy trio, composed of Buster Keaton, Jimmy “Schnozzle” Durante and Polly Moran does its share to attempt to lift the current depression blues in “The Passionate Plumber” which, heralded as M-G-M’s latest laugh riot, will play Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

The three are said to have side-splitting adventures in a story which depicts the diverting career of a plumber who becomes the guardian of a Parisian beauty and is involved in a series of riotous experiences in his attempt to prevent the girl from succumbing to the charms of a two-timing gigolo.

Keaton as the willing but bungling plumber gets into one absurd situation after another.

The romantic affair between the long-nosed Durante and the belligerent Polly Moran also holds its share of laughs and the note of high-keyed merriment is carried through various scenes which reach their topmost pitch in a furious domestic battle in which crockery and glassware are hurled about much in the manner of the highly amusing quarrel sequence of “Private Lives.”

Irene Purcell, who scored opposite Robert Montgomery in “The Man in Possession” has a prominent part in the comedy proceedings and the cast also includes Gilbert Roland and Mona Maris.

Ra. Most Destructive

The common house rat is the most destructive rodent in the United States.

Two Shanghais

Moving Freight on Shanghai's Bund.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.
SHANGHAI, which because of military activities became the center of world interest as the new year got under way, grew inevitably to be the most important commercial city in China. The first important factor in this growth was the city's location near the mouth of the Yangtze river, Asia's greatest natural trade artery. A second reason for growth was the fertility of the surrounding region, the Yangtze's delta, which has been called "China's garden spot." Finally, Shanghai has had time in which to develop, and western guidance; for it was one of the first Chinese cities to be opened to westerners and western trade, one of the five original "Treaty Ports" established in 1842.

This designation of Shanghai as a treaty port 90 years ago has resulted in the dual character which the city now possesses. For there are two Shanghais: the closely-built, teeming native city, and the foreign concessions with their wide streets and avenues and their solid, western-type buildings.

British merchants were the first to move in after the opening of the port in 1842. They obtained a concession to manage their municipal affairs in their settlement. The French and American residents joined in the arrangement, but later the French set up a municipality of their own which is maintained separately today. Residents of other nationalities have thrown in their lot with the British and Americans, and today about twenty nations have arrangements with China in connection with trade and extraterritorial rights in Shanghai.

The entire urban group—Chinese, French and International—that bears the name "Shanghai," has a population in excess of one and a half million people. By far the larger part is Chinese but the concentration is not greatest in the narrow-streeted, dirty, smelly native city. So well have the foreigners governed their concessions that Chinese have flocked to those sections. The international city is especially a favorite residence for retired Chinese officials from other parts of the country. It has become a model, too, in the matter of street pavements, drainage, sanitation and police methods, and since the revolution has been copied extensively by Chinese cities in other parts of the country.

Not on the Yangtze.
Shanghai is near the mouth of the Yangtze river and close to the Grand canal. Around it for many miles stretches intensively cultivated gardens. This strategic situation has made the city not only a great commercial emporium but as well one of the greatest Chinese industrial centers.

In sense, however, the city is out-of-the-way. It is not directly on the Yangtze, but on a tributary, the Hwangpoo (Whanpoo) twelve miles from the great river. The meeting place of the two rivers is called Wosung. The largest ocean steamers cannot ascend to the city, but must anchor in the Yangtze estuary near Woosung and tranship passengers and freight to steam tenders. Smaller ships can cross the bar, however, and the war vessels of many nations are constantly on duty off the Bund.

As one approaches the city from Woosung, the villages, graveyards and anchored ships of all kinds become more numerous as he draws near the wharves. The hum and roar of factories and cotton mills in peace time belie the real atmosphere of this metropolis of central China. It is not until the heavy, half-sickening smell of bean oil, incense, opium smoke and of human beings penetrates the nostrils that the true Asiatic flavor of the city is revealed.

Although the quaint Kiangsu junks are rapidly disappearing, the cargo junks, sampans, and speedy slipper boats still vie with the motor launches of huge steel and wooden vessels from every port on the globe.

Shanghai, like Venice, is a city built largely upon piles sunk far into the soft black sand and saturated clay upon which the city rests along the banks of the Hwangpoo river. Huge reinforced concrete rafts are buried in this clay, and the foundations of the buildings are laid on them.

The foreign settlements are delightfully modern, with plenty of space, light and air, and are as clean and orderly as occidental cities. The French maintain their own concession under a government separate from that of the other twenty powers, with their own language and the "ruas," "quais" and other signs typical of the homeland.

Gay City in Peace Times.

The hybrid city of Shanghai—a city of both East and West—is in peace times what many a traveler finds Paris is supposed to be but isn't: perpetually gay and carefree. Europeans and Americans, forced by business, or government assignments to live there on the other side of the world in a none too kindly climate, seem with one accord to have determined to make the experience as pleasant as possible. White men's working hours might have been framed by a visionary Socialist for the year 2000. Many offices open at ten o'clock, grant a rest period from twelve to two, and close at four so that harassed merchant, and banker and clerk may hurry away to club or casino or tennis court, golf links or houseboat, for what Robert Louis Stevenson called "the real business of life."

The Bund, the waterfront thoroughfare of occidental Shanghai, is normally crowded with prosperous, unhurried westerners; and Bubbling Spring road of an afternoon is thronged with stylishly dressed men and women of leisure and fashionable equipages that would do credit to Fifth avenue, the Champs Elysee or the Ring-Strasse in the days of Vienna's glory.

The city is thoroughly cosmopolitan. Perhaps no other city of the world surpasses it in this respect except Cairo. Every western country has nationals in Shanghai, and there are besides representatives from all parts of Asia.

In the Old City.

In striking contrast has been the old Shanghai, where most of the Chinese live. Going through the gates of the native city one passed into another century. Old temples, cramped courtyards, where flowering peonies and chrysanthemums could be glimpsed in passing, and an endless succession of narrow streets, hung with rococo banners of Chinese characters, and filthy and reeking with a thousand odors, differentiated it at once from its smaller modern cousins but a short distance away.

A tea house set in the middle of a stagnant pond is one of the breathing places of the old city, where sellers of jade and cheap jewelry, letter writers, fortune tellers, cobblers, menders, peddlers, jugglers, and others of Shanghai's polyglot population gathered over teacups or chattered endlessly in high-pitched voices. The Chinese theater is another native oddity. The want of scenery, the din of the orchestra, and the piercing intonations and gaudy costumes of the actors furnished a spectacle, which, while not always pleasing to western tastes, was always colorful and unusual.

Shanghai's sobriquet, "The Paris of the East" has referred more to the gaiety of its social life than to any external resemblance to the French capital. It is not nearly so picturesque as Hong Kong, or that queen of oriental beauty, Foochow. Shanghai cannot set out a thousand lanterns on a dozen hills 1,800 feet up into the night, as Hong Kong can, but her more intimate house and garden decorations have been famous. There were lanterns everywhere, certain types were used as shop signs, and with their non-sputtering cold tallow candles they shed a perfect light.

Along Bubbling Well road in happier days a panorama of the city's life passed in review. Once the resort of closed broughams and fine cars of foreign dignitaries, it has lately echoed to the rattle of anything that can go on wheels, and the rickshaws and wheelbarrows of the natives, darting in and out among the carriages, taxis and limousines, have furnished a gay and motley spectacle all day long.

Shanghai is not only a great commercial emporium, handling nearly half the foreign trade of China, but it has also become, in recent years, one of the greatest Chinese industrial centers, with a large laboring population. Cotton and silk cocoon winding mills employ thousands of workers. In addition there are large numbers of smaller factories, manufacturing matches, paper, cigarettes, fireworks, wood carvings, jewelry, etc.

Much of the occidentalization that has come to China in the past half century has filtered through Shanghai, especially through the great printing establishment there which has turned out excellent translations, into Chinese, of the literature and ideas of the West. Shanghai also possesses several daily newspapers, printed in both foreign and native languages.

ODD THINGS AND NEW—By Lane Bode

HONAN-FU NEWEST CAPITAL OF CHINA

Was Seat of Government When Paper Was Invented.

Washington.—News dispatches that are beginning to reach the world with the date line "Loyang," "Luan" or "Honan-fu" are coming from a city that has become China's newest capital but which once served as the seat of Chinese government long before telegraphy was dreamed of, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"The city with three names is most commonly known as 'Honan-fu,' meaning 'Honan City,'" says the bulletin. "It lies in the province of Honan about twenty miles south of the Yellow river. There is good reason for such a site rather than location directly on the great river. This stream emerges from the highlands, a few miles to the west, and from that point on becomes 'China's Sorrow,' an erratic river that is forever changing its course. Few cities are built within its treacherous reach.

Not Easily Accessible.
"Headquarters of the Chinese regime that has been centered at Nanking were moved to Honan-fu because of the relative inaccessibility of the latter place to invading forces. Nanking, situated directly on the Yangtze, is in easy reach by ocean-going gunboats.

"The situation of the new capital in relation to the more familiar cities of China, can be best understood, perhaps, by an American comparison. Shanghai, great commercial center near the mouth of the Yangtze (although actually a few miles up a tributary) may be compared to New Orleans. Nanking, farther up the Yangtze, has a situation comparable to Vickburg, Miss. Honan-fu, to which the Nanking government archives and personnel have been moved, lies 400 miles to the northwest, in a position that can be likened to that of Oklahoma City.

"The Yellow river is not navigable anywhere near Honan-fu, so that there is no danger of attack by naval forces. The Peiping-Hankow railway, China's principal rail artery, lies about seventy-five miles east of the city. A branch line extends from it to Honan-fu.

"Honan province has figured importantly in Chinese history from the earliest times. It has even been suggested that Chinese culture had its birth in this region. At any rate, it was from Honan that the early culture spread southward to the Yangtze and eastward to the coast. The name means 'South of the River,' but an early nickname was 'Middle Flowery Land.' It was from this affectionate term for Honan that the name 'Middle Kingdom,' applicable to China, arose.

"Although off the route of river traffic and through rail traffic, Honan-fu has been for centuries on one of the most important of Chinese overland highways, the Great Northwest road. The portion of this road from Peiping to Honan province extends southward to the vicinity of Kaifeng, the provincial capital. It then runs along westward some twenty miles south of the Yellow river through Honan-fu, Shenchow and Sian; turns northward to Lan-chow, Liang-chow, and Su-chow; and extends on into Central Asia. Over it moves most of the commerce between Chinese Turkestan and China proper.

Typical Old City.
"Honan-fu has a population of only about 20,000. It is a typical old city of the interior with a wall enclosing a clutter of narrow and dusty streets. About its gates at certain hours is a congestion of wheelbarrows, laden donkeys and vendors of food and tea. In the town is the first temple raised in China to Buddhism, the famous 'White Horse Temple.' On the site, it is said, was buried the white horse

Women in Danger of Becoming Baldheaded

London.—When your sweetheart, or wife, bends over, do not be surprised if you notice that she is becoming bald headed!

The hour of bald headed men's revenge is at hand, according to London hairdressers. Many women are beginning to lose their hair very rapidly due, it is alleged, to the damages of continual bobbing, shingling and waving.

Titled women and aristocrats of the "weaker sex" are among those who now sense the reported danger and are besieging their hairdressers for treatment. Young women, some not past their thirties, have been forced to resume the long hair style to grow enough hair to cover their bald crowns.

THE PRACTICAL JOKER

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

Some foreign countries, as highly civilized as our own perhaps, once followed the beneficent custom of transporting out of the country citizens whose procedure was not in accordance with those principles which seemed to tend to the development of the best sort of society. Thieves and house breakers and those whose moral presence was objectionable were loaded into the proper sort of conveyance and gently deposited upon some remote shore from which escape was difficult or impossible. Thus isolated, many of them grew up into good citizens who practiced economy and built cities and forgot their criminal tendencies.

I am not at all sure but that it was an admirable way to get rid of objectionable characters for whom capital punishment would seem too severe or too lenient; I should at least recommend it for the man who points an alleged empty gun at your head and for the practical joker. I see no good reason why the practical joker should not be wiped out.

He has no sense of humor for humor really is kind, sympathetic, pleasant spirited. A humorous man has no intention of giving anyone pain or discomfort. He wants to laugh, it is true, but seldom at the victim of his joke but with him.

A freshman last Christmas, a thousand miles from home and too poor to make the journey across country, was desperately homesick. All his friends were gone, his boarding house was closed, and he was quite alone, away from home at Christmas for the first time in his life. A call came over the telephone and a man's voice spoke inviting the boy to dinner at the home of one of his professors. His gloom vanished, some one had thought of him. When he called at the professor's house no one was there. It was a practical joke which some keen-minded acquaintance had played upon him, and he had no recourse.

Funny, wasn't it?

on which were brought from India the first Buddhist scriptures.

"Honan-fu's experience as a Chinese capital has been a long and varied one. From 255 B. C. to 206 B. C. it was, under the name of Loyang, the capital of the Chin dynasty, from which the name 'China' is derived. After an interval of more than two centuries it again became in 25 A. D. the central seat of government for 200 years under the Han dynasty. It was while these patrons of literature ruled over China from Loyang that paper was invented and greatly stimulated literary developments. Once again, in 589, Loyang was made imperial capital and remained such for a quarter century.

"How materially the governing center of China has shifted is shown by Loyang's subsequent history. After other cities became the capitals of the empire, this ancient city was made a subordinate governmental center and served as the 'East Capital' from 618 to 907 A. D. From 960 to 1280, still subordinate, it was the 'West Capital.'

Cleveland's Novel Relief Plan

Employment of a "man-a-block" is the goal of Greater Cleveland in an effort to help relieve the jobless crisis. The movement was inaugurated by a group of Cleveland citizens and reports reveal that efforts of the first week of the committee resulted in pledges of 11,500 hours of work in scattered neighborhoods. In the illustration O. E. Luzius, secretary of the movement, is seen taking applications for jobs.

IMPROPER DIETING MENACE TO HEALTH

Leaves Victim Prey to Disease, Says Surgeon General.

Washington.—"There is one widespread practice which is undermining health throughout the country, particularly among women, on which, unfortunately, the public health service cannot secure statistics," said Hugh S. Cuming, surgeon general, United States public health service. "It is what is commonly known as dieting," he continued. "It is not done on the advice of physicians but almost invariably on the initiative of the individual who practices it. Neither is it done for health, but for looks.

"It cannot be recorded that people die directly from dieting but thousands of deaths are attributable indirectly to improper and foolish dieting." Dieting simply to produce a slim figure lowers the subject's resistance and leaves her a prey to disease. "Official reports for the year just closed show happily that the general health of the nation is improving. The tuberculosis curve, thanks largely to the vigorous fight conducted against the white plague, is dropping. A sad thing, however, is that there is too much of that dread disease showing up among young women from fifteen to twenty-four years of age.

"This may be attributed to several things on which there are different theories. One thing is sure, however, that is, woman's disdain for curves and her desire for a stream line body, to attain which she will sacrifice almost anything, is not helping her health.

"Diet fads, food fads, no butter, no bread, are the undoubted underlying cause of many a woman's ills. Good old-fashioned bread and butter is vastly preferable to many of the present-day food concoctions with which the foolish are fed.

"It is of no consequence to the city girl or matron, I suppose, how great assistance she could be in helping the farmer and Uncle Sam solve the problem of surplus wheat by including bread in her daily diet, but she should at least be interested in helping herself to health."

California Mayor Holds Job for Three Minutes

Pasadena, Calif.—Some kind of a record has been established by Edward O. Nay, business man here who was mayor of Pasadena recently for exactly three minutes and thirteen seconds. After a recall of public officials Nay was elected mayor and chairman by a new board of city directors. No sooner had the applause subsided than the board moved to abolish the title of "mayor," and the motion passed unanimously—even Nay voting his approval.

Lake Yields Old Boat

Rome.—Another small boat of ancient Roman construction has just been found in Lake Nemi. It measures about 27 feet by 8, and served, it is thought, as a sort of courier and provisioning boat between the two Roman galleys that were anchored in the lake for the delight and amusement of the Emperor Caligula.

Uses of Ether
Ether is said to have first been used by Dr. Crawford W. Long of Georgia, in 1842. William T. Morton, a dentist, is said to be the first to have used it regularly as an anesthetic. It is made from sulphuric acid and alcohol. Since the middle of the Nineteenth century ether has been used as an intoxicant in Ireland. The effect is similar to that of opium.

EXPERT EXPLAINS FREAKISH WINTER

Caused by Solar Radiation and Lunar Pull, He Says.

Washington.—A theory for the freak weather a large part of the world has been experiencing has been advanced by Herbert J. Browne, celebrated long-distance weather forecaster, of Washington. While his explanation is looked upon by official United States weather bureau men as merely a theory, to many persons it sounds plausible.

Browne's system is built upon the observations of a scientific man of the highest rating—Dr. Charles Greeley Abbot, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and discoverer of variability in the sun's radiation.

Browne believes the sea reflects solar changes, gradually gaining and then gradually losing heat, with the gradual increase and diminution in the intensity of radiation from the big luminary, through the 11.20-year swing which Doctor Abbot has fixed as the length of the cycle.

With due allowance for a lag of about three years, to give time for ocean currents to effect a distribution of the waters throughout the seas, from the equatorial to the most northerly and southerly and back again, is the groundwork of Browne's theory.

He also takes into consideration the cyclical changes in the position of the moon, with what he presumes to be its accelerating drag upon the currents, as well as its tidal uplift.

Now the lunar cycle is of 18.6 years. Thus at a given point (say in the maritime area to the southeast of the Florida coast) the combination of influences of maximum solar radiation and the maximum lunar pull would be felt only once in 55.8 years.

And this, says Browne, is just the influence which, in that area, recently has been approximating its climax.

The result, he asserts, is the creation of barometric conditions which, moving inland to the northwestward, not only are giving much of the country its peculiar warm winter but also have been giving it increasingly peculiar weather for several years past.

The Gulf stream, under the same influence, has penetrated much farther than usual, past Spitzbergen into the Arctic, where the warmer water, remaining at the surface, because lighter, has squeezed out the colder water underneath, hastening its movement southward along the European coast and causing exceptional severity of the winter to the southeastward.

Moreover, the winter has been a severe one in northwestern North America—in Canada and even, to some extent, across the border—for Pacific conditions have been similar to those in the Atlantic. The severity of Pacific coast weather has been occasioned by the Japanese current pushing past the Aleutian peninsula and into the Arctic, forcing cold currents to spread to the Pacific coast.

Snake Among Bananas

Alva, Okla.—A three-foot boa constrictor was found wrapped around a banana stalk by Mrs. Myra Dorman, grocery store employee, at Carmen, near here. The snake, groggy from the sea voyage and constant refrigeration, had remained wrapped around the stalk.

Jobless Pan Black Sand

Gold Beach, Ore.—Many miners and men out of work are busy panning rich, black sand concentrates carrying high value in gold and platinum uncovered along the beaches near here by recent heavy rain.

Bermuda Lilies Will Be Ready for Easter

Easter comes early this year—on March 27—and seemingly nature took notice of this fact, for spring came to Bermuda about three weeks ahead of the usual time. Consequently the lilies, a field of which is seen above, will be ready for the church festival.

Doctor Urges Music as Remedy for Sick

Chicago.—Music instead of pills for the ailing was suggested by Dr. A. S. Hershfield, former state alienist.

His suggested remedies included:

- Grieg's songs to relieve nervous exhaustion.
- Bach for an alcoholic hang-over.
- Chopin, Beethoven and Dvorak for grief.
- "Tannhaeuser" for furious mania.
- Wagner's "Ride of the Valkyries" for melancholia.

The physician said music already had been used beneficially for many maladies.

Flying Boat to Carry 200 Passengers Planned

The Hague.—The world's largest flying boat, twice as big as the famous German DO-X, will be constructed this year by the Dutch aircraft builder, Fritz Koehoven, at Rotterdam after a completely new model and at an estimated cost of $1,200,000.

The total passenger carrying capacity will be 200, with room still left for a freight load of two tons. The cruising speed is estimated at around 125 miles an hour. The power plant will consist of ten 1,000 horse power motors. It will be a monoplane with a wing spread of 325 feet. The maximum cruising range is gauged at 3,000 miles and the flight distance fully loaded 2,100 miles. The machine is intended for trans-Atlantic service. It is claimed that the cost of construction, while only half that of a dirigible, will produce a machine of a much higher efficiency.

On account of its size the ship will be built not in the usual aeronautical factory but in a shipyard.

Once High Officers of

Czar Live in Poverty

Paris.—A little colony of Russian derelicts of war once all high officers in the czar's army, are making a last stand in a desolate retreat near Paris, still waiting for the day when the "white" revolt will come and open the way for them to go back home.

They are banded together by their wretchedness and despair, all crippled or nursing wounds, and despite hunger and privation they live within themselves the great days of the past when they commanded millions and were surrounded by splendor.

No more pathetic spectacle of hard times could be imagined than that which is found in the Maison Vera, once an imposing structure on the road to Versailles, but which, like its present occupants, is only a shell of its former dignity.

ROYAL APARTMENTS VISITED BY GHOSTS

Station Waiting Room Is Offered for Rent.

Windsor, England.—A mere $250 (par) a year will rent a suite of royal apartments here in the shadow of Windsor castle.

They are lofty rooms, emblazoned with heraldic devices and haunted by the memories of Wellington, the prince consort, and Queen Victoria, herself.

They are the former magnificent suite of waiting rooms at Windsor railway station specially built and allotted for the reception and comfort of royalty.

Royalty uses the rooms no more, for when the king and queen come to Windsor they usually travel by road. Since the death of Queen Victoria the rooms have been kept under lock and key. Now a "to let" notice is in the window.

In the wall of No. 3 platform of the station is an unobtrusive door. A rusty key grates in the lock and one crosses the threshold of the apartments which great courtiers of the past had entered to bow before a little woman in black.

Decayed splendor meets the eye everywhere. Long streamers of cobwebs festoon the elaborately plastered ceilings from which once had hung magnificent candelabra.

Dust lies thick on a magnificent Tudor fireplace in one of the inner rooms. Here, before a roaring log fire, Queen Victoria had warmed herself after enduring the discomforts of early railway travel 80 years ago. Here the gallant Disraeli had advanced to kiss her hand and whisper compliments.

Austrians Falling for 'Get Rich Quick' Plans

Vienna.—Out of work, or forced to scrape along on greatly reduced wages, Austrians have taken to playing the lotteries on an unprecedented scale. Statistics for 1931 just published by the government show an increase in every kind of "get-rich-quick" system throughout the country.

The Austrian government has a monopoly on lotteries. Besides the larger ones, several of which are for charity, there is the so-called "small lottery" for the poor people. Both together yielded the government a profit of $4,000,000 last year.

Besides the monopoly the state has an interest in the mutual-pani at the race tracks, collecting 4 per cent of the amounts bet. Despite the supposed bankrupt condition of Austria, the government takings on bettings at the trotting races alone was $2,600,000 last year.

Find Ancient Cistern in Justinian's Palace

Istanbul, Turkey.—The immense underground cistern serving Justinian's palace, which lay in the area of St. Sophia, has been discovered and is being opened to the public.

It extends from the foundations of the oldest church in Byzantium, St. Irene, which is now the military museum, to the foundations of St. Sophia, a distance of a 100 yards. It is still filled with perfectly limpid and pure water.

The vaulted roof is carried on a double row of marble columns bearing the seal of Constantine the Great. Between the capital of each column and the column itself is a thin leaf of lead to prevent the capitals slipping in case of earthquakes.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by Christine Ullrich Holland, of the village of Grosse Pointe, Wayne County, Michigan, Mortgagor, to Laura M. Tobin, of the Village of Grosse Pointe, Wayne County, Michigan, Mortgagee, heirs and assigns, bearing date the 12th day of August, A. D. 1931, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Isoco, State of Michigan, on August 28th, 1931, in Liber 25 of Mortgages, on pages 144 and 145, which mortgage contains a power of sale. There is claimed to be due and unpaid on said mortgage, at the date of this notice, for principal and interest, the sum of Three Thousand One Hundred Two and 33/100ths Dollars ($3,102.33). No suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been had or instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now therefore, by virtue of the power of sale in said mortgage contained, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Thursday, the 19th day of May, 1932, at 12:00 o'clock noon (Eastern Standard Time), said mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front entrance of the Court House in the City of Tawas City, Isoco County, Michigan (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Isoco is held, of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due on said mortgage, as aforesaid, and all legal costs, charges or expenses thereon, including the attorney fees allowed by law, which said premises are described as follows:

A piece of land in fractional Section 28 and E½ of Government Lot 1, Section 21, Town 22 North of Range 8 East, 100 feet wide fronting on Tawas Bay and bounded as follows: Commencing on the North line of Section 28, 1400 feet west of the N.E. corner of said Section; thence south parallel with east line of section 28, to shore of Tawas Bay; thence westerly along Bay Shore 101.3 feet; thence north parallel with first line and 100 feet therefrom across Section 28, and into Section 21, a distance of 256.2 feet more or less, to south line of 20 foot drive-way, thence south 84 degrees east along said drive-way to a point directly north of starting point; thence south to place of beginning; also use of 20 foot drive-way established across north end of said lot for use of grantee herein and adjoining lot owners, in common, for ingress and egress west and northward to "Tawas Beach Drive," so called. Reserving all commercial fishing rights; together with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereof, in the City of East Tawas, Isoco County, Michigan.

Battling With Eggs and Vegetables

WHEN the sophomores and freshmen of Liverpool university put on their annual battle their ammunition includes eggs, tomatoes, oranges and even flour. Above is a view of the desperate conflict at the peak of the excitement.

King Snake Kills Tropical Rattler

PETER'S HEART IS IN HIS MOUTH

OF COURSE not! And of course no one ever does really and truly have his heart in his mouth. But if you ever have been terribly frightened probably you have felt as if your heart were in your mouth, or at any rate in your throat. Peter Rabbit is quite positive that his heart has jumped quite into his mouth more than once. You couldn't make him believe anything else. He would tell you that it is his heart and he ought to know, if anybody does, where his heart is and what it does. You see, Peter is like a very great many people—set in his opinions.

So it would be quite useless to tell him that his heart wasn't really in his mouth that night when he stole from the brush heap to the old stump and then to the young hemlock tree again right in plain sight of Hooty the Owl had Hooty but turned his head at the right time. He is positive it was.

Hooty sat on the top of his watch tower, which, as you know, was a tall dead tree. So still he sat and so straight that he looked in the moonlight like part of the tree itself. His great yellow eyes were fixed on the little hole in an old log into which he had chased Shadow the Weasel. He was waiting for Shadow to come out. Once in a while he turned his head without moving his body at all until he could look straight behind him. Then it seemed as if his head had been put on his shoulders hindside before. He would look behind him this way for an instant just to make sure that there was no one moving there. Then his head would snap around back in a flash, and he would once more fix his great, fierce, hungry-looking eyes on the old log in which Shadow had found safety. Peter waited until Hooty had looked back this way and then the very instant Hooty's head flew around so that he could watch for Shadow, Peter started across for the old stump. He hurried. Oh, yes, indeed, he hurried! But he took the greatest care not to make a sound. It was then, he says, that his heart was in his mouth. If it wasn't there he doesn't know where it was, for he is very sure it wasn't where it ought always to be.

When he reached the old stump he slipped around to the other side and squatted down close to it. Then he took a long breath, for you know he had held his breath all the way across that open place. "So far, so good," thought Peter. "Hooty can't see me behind this stump. Now, if I can reach that little hemlock tree, I guess I'll be safe from him."

He peeped around the old stump to watch Hooty. He saw Hooty look behind him and then, satisfied that there was no one in sight, turn back to watch for Shadow. Once more holding his breath Peter started for the little hemlock tree. Just as he slipped under it he stepped on a dry stick sticking above the snow and it broke with a tiny snap. It was a very little sound, but instantly Hooty's head flew around and Peter could just feel those great fierce eyes glaring at the little hemlock tree. This time he thought that his heart would jump right out of his mouth. But Peter was quite under the spreading branches of the little hemlock tree when he had so carelessly stepped on that little dry twig, and Hooty couldn't see him. For a minute he stared, very hard, but only for a minute. He saw, he didn't dare keep his head turned longer for fear that Shadow would slip out of that old log and get away.

Such a sigh of relief as Peter did give then! He was safe now from Hooty, for the little hemlock tree was tall enough so that Hooty could not see beyond it. "I wish I could get away from Shadow as easily," thought Peter as he hurried away through the Green Forest, lippy-lippy-lippy-lip. "But just as soon as he gets away from Hooty he will follow my tracks. Oh, dear! What shall I do next?"

sauce. Place a layer of potatoes in the bottom of a well-greased casserole, using one-third of them, cover with a few slices of onion and one-half of the ham; season with salt and pepper, repeat with the same and have a layer of potatoes on top. Cover all with the white sauce and cover the casserole; bake until all are well done.

Green Pepper and Corn Scallop. Take two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one-half cupful of milk, one chopped green pepper, one chopped red pimiento and two cupfuls of fresh or canned corn. Fill a buttered casserole one-third full of the mixture, add one-fourth cupful of fresh bread crumbs buttered, then another layer of corn and peppers and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake until well done.

THE THINGS EACH DAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE little things we do each day To help to smooth another's way Have never brought us any fame, Or any fortune, if it came. The little things, that only take A minute, for another's sake. Our kindnesses, too small amount To really take into account.

Our fame is much more hardly won With greater deeds that we have done. Our fortune must be measured by Gigantic figures, written high. The little things we don't put down To be remembered by the town. The little things, so small, so plain. Are done without a thought of gain.

And then some day, our record writ, St. Peter lets us look at it, And there we find, beneath our name, No word of fortune or of fame. We find instead, to mount the skies And pass the gates of Paradise. Requires a record, strange to say, Of little things we did each day.

Silver Was Safer

Behind a stone in the roof of an old Sussex (England) mansion a workman found a bag containing 400 silver coins of the reigns of Elizabeth and the Stuart kings. A farm worker of Donegal hid a packet of banknotes in the rafters of his cottage, and found, when he went to look for them, that rats had eaten all but a few shreds of them.

FOUR GOOD THINGS

A GOOD dressing for a fat chicken is:

Prune Dressing.

Soak one cupful of prunes over night, drain, stone and chop. Add one cupful of chopped tart apples, one-fourth teaspoonful of nutmeg, one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and one cupful of bread crumbs; mix well and add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and stuff the fowl.

Cranberry Sherbet.

Wash and cook two cupfuls of cranberries in water to cover. When soft force through a potato ricer and add two cupfuls of sugar, mix well and add three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, a pinch of salt and a pint of rich milk. Freeze as usual.

Scalloped Ham and Potatoes.

Take one and one-half pounds of ham cut into convenient sized pieces, four cupfuls of sliced raw potatoes and a pint of well-seasoned white

Winner in National Yard and Garden Contest

FIRST prize in class 1 of the 1931 National Yard and Garden contest, it has just been announced, has been awarded to Mrs. Charles A. Emery of Pomona, Calif. In this class all the work must have been done by the family. Mrs. Emery, whose husband is a police sergeant, did practically all the planting and beautification with her own hands, though her three children, who live in the garden most of the time, gave her considerable help and Mr. Emery assisted in the heavy work. Our illustration shows the back yard and, inset, Mrs. Emery and her children. The Emery garden took first place among the west coast entries before winning the national prize.

Who Was Who?

"Come, all you rounders, if you want hear The story told—but a brave engineer; Casey Jones was the rounder's name; On a six-eight wheeler he won his fame."

AS CASEY JONES, whose heroic death in a railroad collision near Vaughan, Miss., in 1900, has been celebrated in a long ballad boasting some six or eight different and variously quotable versions, John Luther Jones, hailing from Cayce (pronounced Casey), Tenn., has gained a unique sort of immortality. He is a popular hero of the day when railroading knew a glamor lost in the modern transportation system, a giant of a man, swarthy, black headed, notable as a teetotaler and a habitual and melodious whistler.

In 1900 Jones was engineer on the old Illinois Central "Cannonball" running south from Jackson, Miss. One night Jo Lewis, one of Casey's buddies, was too ill to answer the call from the roundhouse to take out his train, and Casey, just in from a long run, offered to "double out" for him. The train was an "expedite" freight, run as fast as a passenger train. What went wrong nobody knows. But the crash was sudden and complete, and Casey, though he saved the life of his fireman Slim, was himself killed. A negro wiper named Wallace Saunders poured out his grief for the accident in the original version of the song. A professional song writer, playing the showhouse in Jackson, picked it up in the railroad yards, polished it off and gave it to the world in its present form.

CALIFORNIA JOE

HEIKO of more than one dime novel thriller, nevertheless there once was a real "California Joe." Gen. George A. Custer, for whom he once served as chief of scouts, writes of him in "My Life on the Plains" as follows: "He was known by the euphonious title of 'California Joe'; no other name seemed ever to have been given him and no other name ever seemed necessary." But Custer was wrong, for Joe's other—and real—name was Moses E. Milner.

He was born in Kentucky in 1829, ran away from home at the age of fourteen to seek adventure in the West and during the next twenty-five years found plenty of it as a prospector and miner in California, Montana and in the Black Hills of South Dakota; as an Indian fighter and as a scout and guide for army officers during the Indian wars in the sixties and seventies.

Milner got his name of California Joe thus: One day in 1862 when he was riding into Virginia City, Mont., some inquisitive strangers asked him where he was from. Milner, who was an inveterate joker, replied "From California, where most of the gold is." Next they asked him his name and Milner, resenting their curiosity, told them it was Joe. "All right" they replied, "We'll just call you California Joe, if you are from that state." And that was the name he bore to the day of his death in 1876 when he was assassinated by an enemy near Fort Robinson, Neb.

THE BLOOMER

WITH the prevailing tendency toward slender figures and closely fitted garments, the bloomer has today lost much of its former standing as a woman's undergarment. But its influence, and certainly its original spirit, is amply carried out today in many feminine costumes, from lounging pajamas to riding breeches and one-piece bathing suits, all bespeaking the emancipation of woman, to further which Mrs. Amelia Bloomer some eighty years ago bestowed upon this piece of wearing apparel her good name.

In the day when legs were still limbs, Mrs. Bloomer startled the community at Lowell, Mass., by appearing one day in full trousers gathered in at the ankles, worn under a skirt shockingly abbreviated to a point midway between ankles and knee. In vain did the valiant crusader point out that the costume was more decent than the customary layers of petticoats, and certainly more sanitary than skirts which dragged in the street. In vain did she argue woman's right to dress comfortably in her little publication, The Lily. The New York Tribune made editorial comment on Bloomerism, Bloomerites and Bloomers, the entire country took up the controversy, anger feminists here and there adopted Bloomerism and dropped it under a deluge of criticism, and Mrs. Bloomer's name became irrevocably attached to the garment she fostered.

In 1865 Mrs. Bloomer herself abandoned the costume, because, she explained, of the embarrassing havoc a high wind played with the short skirt!

"Hair of the Dog"

The origin of the expression "the hair of the dog that bit you" is that when a man has had a debauch he is advised to take next morning "a hair of the same dog," i. e., a glass or two of the tipple that caused the trouble, in allusion to an ancient notion that the burnt hair of a dog is an antidote to its bite.—Washington Star.

First Aid-Home Remedy Week

Chicago, Ill.—"Insure Yourself Against Needless Suffering" is the intensive slogan of personal action which prefaces national announcement that the eleventh anniversary of First Aid-Home Remedy Week has been fixed for March 13-19. The National Association of Retail Druggists, sponsors of the plan which Sterling Products, Inc., dedicated to the drug world in 1922, is joined in this campaign for nation wide preparation to meet unexpected accident and sudden illness, by the National Wholesale Druggists' Association and the National Association of Retail Drug Clerks. For the first time all State Pharmaceutical Associations are also co-operating for greater preparedness for the physical emergencies of life. Several governors and mayors of municipalities have by proclamation called attention to the week which has enjoyed a decade of increasing success. "Fill That Medicine Chest Now!" is the command that has been made from the first week to the present campaign, and all of them have been timed during housecleaning days. Secretary S. C. Henry of the N. A. R. D. in an awakening suggestion to the retail druggists predicts record-breaking co-operation this year when the week affords opportunity for live wire druggists everywhere to use timely advertising in their local newspapers and thus insure additional sales in a helpful effort to maintain volume.

The Poet's Lot

John Masefield, the poet laureate, said to an American interviewer in London: "The liners nowadays all advertise their steerage as 'college cabin.' 'Our new Third Class College Cabin,' you read, 'arranged exclusively for ministers, students, professors, research workers, etc.' 'These advertisements leave our poets. Poets aren't even up to college cabin.' Mr. Marsh laughed and ended: 'Poets are born, not paid.'"

Girls Raising Goats

Goat raising is becoming a favorite vocation for girls in Britain. The milk of the animals is becoming increasingly popular there, and girls at the recent dairy show in London said that the work is easy and pleasant. "To say that anyone is as silly as a goat is to pay him a very high compliment," said one fair exhibitor, "for the goat is a most intelligent animal."

Neal's Mother Has Right Idea

Within a few months there will be no more feverish, bilious, headachy, constipated, pale and puny children. That prophecy would surely come true if every mother could see for herself how quickly, easily, and harmlessly the bowels of babies and children are cleansed, regulated, given tone and strength by a product which has proved its merit and reliability to do what is claimed for it to millions of mothers in over fifty years of steadily increasing use.

As mothers find out from using it how children respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup by growing stronger, sturdier and more active daily they simply have to tell other mothers about it. That's one of the reasons for its overwhelming sales of over four million bottles a year.

A Western mother, Mrs. Neal M. Todd, 1701 West 27th St., Oklahoma City, Okla., says: "When my son, Neal, was three years old he began having constipation. I decided to give him California Fig Syrup and in a few days he was all right and looked fine again. This pleased me so much that I have used Fig Syrup ever since for all his colds or little upset spells. It always stops his trouble quick, strengthens him, makes him eat."

Always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name and see that the carton bears the word "California." Then you'll get the genuine.

Reform yourself and it helps your neighbor to reform—and in the best way.

The Men on the Dead Man's Chest

by Clifford Raymond

FROM THE BEGINNING

During a "holdup" at the Dutch Mill, Chicago night club, a patron, Dunn Clayton, is killed. Lieutenant of Police Stanton questions a club visitor, "Buck" Tremblay. In Clayton's pocket Stanton found a note signed "Maisie," making an appointment with the dead man at the Dutch Mill. Stanton is inclined to suspect Tremblay of the murder. At a Wisconsin winter camp a boisterous crowd includes Preston Brown. An apparent stranger arrives. Later, two men, driving, come on the scene. The stranger leaves in his car, and the two men follow, passing him. A viaduct is out, and one of the two men removes the danger signals. The stranger, in his car, goes over the embankment. He is dead when found. Brown is dead. In his papers, Clayton's name is found and Stanton connects the deaths. He goes to Wisconsin, and finds the dead man is Tremblay. Tremblay had caused Brown's death, apparently an accident. A Vermont lawyer, John Whittlesey, reading of the case, recalls the names in connection with an odd will made by a man named Turner, bequeathing the interest on $50,000,000 to six men, Blair, Ashley, Roberts, Brown, Tremblay, and Clayton. The income, at the death of each beneficiary, is to be divided among the rest. Turner's son, on the deaths of the six beneficiaries, is to inherit all. Turner dies shortly after making the will. Whittlesey suspects foul play in the three deaths, and writes to the Chicago police. Stanton interviews Asa Darling, one of the executors of the will. Darling tells him he believes Turner wanted and expected the six beneficiaries of the will to kill one another, they having in the past injured him. The will is his method of revenge. Turner's son is contented and happy with his small income. Roberts, one of the three survivors of the six cared for by Turner's will, visits Darling. He reveals the fact that Blair and Ashley, supposed to be abroad, are in this country.

"Probably?" the lieutenant asked.

"Couldn't you know?"

"Frankly, I kept to my cabin after I saw Ashley. I assumed Blair was with him. I didn't trust them. If I wanted to commit murder a ship's the place I'd choose."

"You'd be an awful fool if you did," said the lieutenant. "but why did murder occur to you? You didn't know anything of Clayton, Brown and Tremblay then."

"I'll refer you to the Turner will," said Roberts, "and then to anyone who has had a chance to know Blair and Ashley. The whole thing was only a question of who and when. Turner wrote that plot. Europe wasn't big enough for the three of us. That's why I was coming back. Blair was with Ashley on the boat. I saw them both on Fifth avenue yesterday. And look here, Mr. Darling, I'm declaring myself out of this. I don't want any more of your d—n checks. I don't want anything to do with the d—n will. I'm not going to be hunted down."

"Mr. Roberts," said the lieutenant, "as you may have surmised, I am in doubt. I have some convictions and some of them concern you, but there are many doubts. We know Arthur Tremblay shot Dunn Clayton or had him shot. We know Arthur Tremblay threw Preston Brown on a knife blade. We know Arthur Tremblay ran off the road and was killed. But we don't know, you see, who took away the red lights. If you and Mr. Blair and Mr. Ashley had been in Europe at the time and had remained there you might have left us speculating as to what agencies you could have employed, but we could not have placed any one of you on the road by the lights. But it appears that you were all three in this country. When did you arrive, Mr. Roberts?"

Roberts looked at his questioner as if he suspected his answer would not be satisfactory.

"I landed October 7," he said.

"And your boat?"

"The Empress of Australia."

"Oh, a reflective exclamation from the lieutenant. "Did I misunderstand you, Ron, when you said you landed in New York and that Mr. Ashley was on the boat with you?"

"That was a slip, an inadvertence. We were on a Canadian boat. I came direct from Montreal to New York."

"You landed at Montreal and not Quebec?"

"Naturally, for the connection for New York."

"Odd. The Empress of Australia does not go above Quebec. Another inadvertence probably. The ship's list will prove you were on the boat. Your hotel registration in New York will prove you went there. Consequently you didn't go from Quebec to the Eagle River region of Wisconsin. You were not there October 8 because you did not land until October 7."

We've got to give the three of you that break, Ron. All we need is a verification of it on the ship's list and the hotel register."

"You'll not find it. I didn't use my name in coming over."

"You d—n little louse! Will you come clean? Pompey, bring me three feet of garden hose."

The lieutenant arose to meet Roberts face to face, and Stanton's bulk and conviction dwarfed the other's physical and moral nature.

"Come clean, before I handle you. Come on, now. Pompey, get me the hose."

Mr. Darling arose in horror.

"Stop!" he cried. "What is this in my house?"

Stanton turned to him and smiled. "Your Roman centurion, Professor. Your lieutenant of Chicago police. Come through, Ron, or I'll put you remains out in the street. You'll have to pardon me, Mr. Darling, but this rat requires it. I want the truth from him. I'm going to have it. I may have to prepare him for it. Look at him. A rough word and he's not so hard boiled."

Roberts had quailed but was recovering, and he was to recover enough dignity in another minute to make use of his outraged position in Mr. Darling's home.

"I wasn't prepared for this treatment," he said. "It startled me, it was so entirely unexpected."

"It startled me," said Mr. Darling. "I had more confidence in Lieutenant Stanton."

"Sorry, Mr. Darling, but it was necessary to startle Mr. Roberts. I must remind him that I can and will throw him into a cell. Now I want the truth. When did you land?"

Roberts was silent a moment, looking down at the rug.

"I think I made a mistake in trying to conceal anything," he said finally. "It's only as to the time. I came over September 15 and landed in New York."

"Was it the truth that Ashley and Blair were on the same boat?" Stanton asked.

"Yes; that is, I saw Ashley as I said. I kept to my cabin, but I saw Blair with Ashley a few days after landing."

"Not just yesterday, then?"

"No, it was five or six weeks ago."

"So. The entire six of you were here two weeks before the first of these killings."

"That's true, but now listen, Mr. Copper. I'm not an assassin. I've been covering, but it's been to protect myself. That's all. I don't mind hazard and danger. I've had them in my day. But I can't stand being stalked like game. I haven't got the nerves to be expecting a shot from the brush or the alley. So I've been going to pieces in a way. D—n them, if they would shoot it out I'd take them on, but I'm not equal to this assassination. That's all there is to it, lieutenant. I can't stand it. I'm not hot enough. I can't kill first. So I've got to wait for it. I can't do it. You can say I'm yellow. I guess I am, if this is the game. I could have killed both Ashley and Blair. There wasn't much chance of its being difficult or dangerous. I could have got Ashley any time at night, out on the deck, even in his room. Who in h—l would have suspected me? I could have got Blair in New York. What's another murder in New York? But I can't do it. I want to throw them off me. That's why I came here. I give up my share. I'll get along."

"But, Mr. Roberts," said Lieutenant Stanton, "you can't give up to their satisfaction. So long as you live there is an impediment to the redistribution of the estate in the hands of the sole surviving beneficiary. And that, I think, is the object being pursued."

"I think you're right," said Roberts. "I've tried to think it otherwise, but I can't. I may be yellow, but I can't go through with it."

"Of course you're yellow," said the lieutenant.

Roberts turned on him. "No copper can tell me that. I've been more places which asked for guts than any copper ever saw."

"One of them made Thomas Turner your enemy," said Stanton. "You might tell us that piece of yellowness."

"Lieutenant," Mr. Darling protested, "this has been interesting but—"

"I know what your objections would be, Mr. Darling, but isn't our pattern defining itself? You may know why Mr. Turner made this will. I can guess. Mr. Roberts here knows. Roberts, do you want to tell us?"

"I presume Turner thought he had been injured. He was wrong as to me."

"How were you six associated with Mr. Turner?" the lieutenant asked. "And where?"

"Once, for me," said Roberts. "I don't know about the others. The seven of us were in a Peruvian jungle. Turner was taken desperately ill. I volunteered to make a dangerous trip to get a doctor. I don't know what happened. I got out, but I couldn't get back. I was too sick myself. I don't know what the others did."

"You were inclined to think that Mr. Turner was sincere when he said his bequest to you was in gratitude?"

"It was unexpected, but I had no reason to think it was in enmity."

"It would seem that he planned a massacre and evidently not in gratitude. He must have been pretty sure of the character of some of you."

"Well, I want out of it. His money can't compensate me for life on these terms. I tell you I'm not an assassin, and I can't protect myself."

"I intend to meet and talk to your two friends," said Stanton. "It may add to your sense of security. Frankly, Mr. Roberts, I do not know whether you removed the red lights or did not. My guess is that you didn't. My guess is that one of the other two did. Whoever it was had a d—nable brutality. He did not care who went off the road. He took a chance he would get the man he wanted. Who's the greater brute of the two?"

"Acton Blair, I'd say. But Ashley is trickier. He might be crueler, although he's physically weaker."

"It must be apparent to all three of you," said the lieutenant, "that a fourth death will be highly suspicious. We have actors and motives rather plainly before us. I shall advise all three of you to take your increased dividends and trust to luck we can't find the man who took away those lights."

For the first time Roberts, standing on Mr. Darling's hearth-rug, smiled.

"Don't be simple, Lieutenant," he said. "Murder need be legal murder, not if you knew Ashley or Blair or the others. Look at the way Brown died. You'd have some difficulty providing anything there, I think, even if Tremblay hadn't been killed almost immediately afterward. Suppose a man is stalked by an automobile. Easy, isn't it?"

"Ibanez did that one," said the lieutenant. "No one knows how often it has been used."

"It's too simple. They'll not try that."

"You leave yourself rather out of it," the lieutenant suggested.

"Good lord, do you suppose I'd be here talking as I am if I wanted to play this game?"

"Yes, that's exactly what I'd suppose. You're getting your plausible alibi in advance, aren't you? But my guesses don't have to be plausible. So I guess you're on the square in being a quitter. But I'll have a talk with your friends. Do you want protection?"

"Don't be ridiculous," said Roberts. "How could I get it?"

"Mr. Roberts," said Mr. Darling. "I'm sorry for your agitation. I'm almost sorry my friend, Turner, had this side to his nature. I probably should have refused to countenance it. I should have declined to participate in it. I was incredulous, and he was determined."

Roberts, who constantly had fingered his watchchain, took out his watch.

"I'll be getting back to the city," he said. "I'll protect myself as well as I can. I thought I could resign. I see I can't. But you've heard the last of me. You'll not need to send any more checks. I haven't a great deal, but it's enough. I'm on the wing in a few days, and the person who ever finds me or knows me will be welcome to use his knowledge. Good day to you gentlemen."

"Pompey," said Mr. Darling, "assist Mr. Roberts."

"Yes, sir," said Pompey.

[Ronald Roberts had been a Church of England vicar with a small living. An Easter service with twenty dull communicants brought him to a decision to hereticate, if that were still a way of looking at it, and to become a non-conformist, evangelistic worker in the London slum where his considerable power of vivid expressionism might attract attention, possibly an heiress or a tolerable woman with money. In doing so he was a dramatic success of pale and earnest aestheticism, but the heiress did not appear. However, Mr. Roberts made some acquaintances outside his his-sion and became Art Twitcheley, a character later wanted by Scotland Yard. In emigrating the ex-cleric and evangelist reverted to his proper person as Ronald Roberts, but he did not resume his priestly function or title. He had not been an Oxford man, and this lack enabled him to disguise the otherwise fatal quality of English accent in American crime.]

CHAPTER VII

The Three Quick and the Three Dead

"You've heard me say I'm not a detective," said the lieutenant as the door closed on Roberts, "or haven't I thought to mention it? This case seems to recognize my hat size. My mystery plot is to detect three known characters killing one another for an explained motive at a place easily discoverable. It will probably be too much for me."

"I find an immoral enjoyment in incidents which should be shocking to a person of ethical integrity," said Mr. Darling. "What do you think of Mr. Roberts' fears? After all, aren't they a little egocentric?"

"He isn't as yellow—" Stanton broke off in his sentence, leaving "as I pretend to believe him" unsaid. Roberts was re-entering the room.

"Ashley and Blair are coming in at your front gate, Mr. Darling," he said nervously.

"Indeed," said Mr. Darling. Roberts went to stand on the rug.

"You'll hear their knock at your door in a minute," he said. "They did not see me. They are at your door." Roberts' voice was muted.

Mr. Darling's door-knocking sounded three times.

"Pompey," Mr. Darling called, "admit the gentlemen and have them come directly in."

There was a moment while Pompey opened the door and the callers laid aside their overcoats. Then Ashley and Blair entered.

"Good afternoon, gentlemen," said Mr. Darling. "Mr. Roberts you know, of course. You may not know Lieutenant Stanton, of the Chicago police."

Both men stopped instantly and looked first at Roberts and then at Stanton. It was as if they saw a trap. Then the smaller of the two, a fellow with lively eyes and a square chin, chuckled, and the larger, he was much larger, stepped forward.

"Hello, Roberts," he said and turned toward Stanton. "I'm Blair, Lieutenant and this is Ashley."

The smaller man—it was rather in bulk than in stature—smiled and bowed. Stanton, having arisen to shake hands, sat down again. He said nothing. He perceived that Blair and Ashley were caught a little off their balance, and he intended that for a while they should guess at the constable.

Blair had addressed Mr. Darling. "Come up to see you," he said, "and I see Roberts did. Hello again, Ron. You see, Mr. Darling, it's getting so we're noticed. Why, d—n it, we're getting to be public characters. What's all this? I'm going to sue some one for libel."

"You do that, Acton," said Ashley. "and then take it to the bank and see what Mr. Morgan will give you on it."

Boston Scene of First Conversation by Phone

It was on October 9, 1876, that the first conversation ever held over a telephone line took place between the Boston and Cambridge offices of the Waltham Manufacturing company. Professor Bell was at the Boston end of the line and Mr. Watson was at the Cambridge end, the distance apart being about two miles. In the early days they used to say, instead of "Hello," "Aho," doubtless a relic of New England's familiarity with ship-ping. The first telephone exchange was opened by Edward T. Holmes. The first woman telephone operator was named Miss Emma Nutt. A year after the discovery of the telephone practically all the telephones in the world were in Boston and immediately surrounding cities and towns. The New England Telephone company was organized in February, 1878, and was followed in July of that year by the incorporation of the Bell Telephone company, which was the predecessor to the American Telephone & Telegraph company, at present with its associated concerns the largest company from the standpoint of assets in the world.—Boston Herald.

Weather Lore

People began "speaking of the weather" a long time ago. The first scientific treatise on the weather, says the United States weather bureau, was written by Aristotle more than 300 years before the Christian era. The weather bureau library, which is the largest meteorological collection in the world, has a big book on the weather by Albertus Magnus, printed in 1494, and a facsimile of a weather journal kept by Rev. William Merle of England, who recorded the weather day by day from 1337 to 1344. The first weather records in America, so far as known, were kept by Rev. Johann Campanius, who recorded the weather each day in the colony of New Sweden near the present site of Wilmington, Del. for the years 1644 and 1645.

The return to the stage of our beloved Maude Adams brings to mind her equally famous contemporary, the late Richard Mansfield. Mansfield, like Miss Adams, managed to keep his stage life quite separate from his personal affairs, but once, on the occasion of Nat Goodwin's "steenth marriage," Mr. Mansfield said:

"Well, I'm not sure whether he's lucky or unlucky. As for me, I play mostly villains and was never a so-called matinee idol. Only one woman ever wrote me a mash note, and I promptly married her, lest she change her mind.

Miller, Norma Malcolm, Betty Uman, Elma Herman, Ruth Gibson, Warren Kehoe, Marjory Musolf. The third grade has started the study of Holland. We made a large poster of a Dutch scene. We read "The Leak in the Dyke," by Phoebe Cary.

We are learning a new song in music, "The Wind."

Primary
The first graders are memorizing Field's "Rock-a-by Lady" for language.

We are enjoying the story of the Dutch Twins. The following people have been neither tardy nor absent during the past month: Marian Clark, Grace Gibson, Harold Harris, Ralph Hill, Lyle Hughes, Gordon Jones, Norman Koepke, Donald Marz, Billy Musolf.

Betty Nelson, Jimmy Prescott, Jack Smith, Richard Sievert, June Eby, Warren Hughes, Zelpha Kehoe, and Herbert Marz.

On the honor roll for this month are Marian Clark, Harold Harris, Gordon Jones, Phil Mark, Betty Nelson, Richard Sievert, June Eby, Arlene Harris, Eleanor Harris, Warren Hughes, Herbert Marz, Norman Rapp, and Leona Zielh.

HALE

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Victor Webb on Saturday, February 27, an eight-pound boy, who has been named Donald Jean.

Mrs. Fred Livingstone returned Sunday from a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. C. Davis, of Detroit.

Mrs. Charles Taulker of Detroit spent last week visiting relatives and friends in Hale.

The Hale basketball team succeeded in defeating the fast going Whittemore team to the tune of 22 to 9, Tuesday night. Hale started off with a bang and apparently took their opponents with such surprise that they were lost during most of the game. Hale played splendid ball throughout the game and were not at any time in danger.

The Hale girls basketball team played their first game Tuesday evening against Whittemore. They played a wonderful game, only losing by a 11-9 score. Fans feel that the girls have material for a fast team.

The condition of John O. Johnson, who has been seriously ill the past few days with pneumonia, is slightly improved at this writing. Dr. Hasty is in attendance.

On Monday last a fine crowd gathered in the Methodist Episcopal church to listen to a good program given by local talent followed by a fine talk by Rev. George Smith on the topic, "Washington, the Christian."

Miss Lucy Stevens of Bay City is the guest of Hale relatives for two weeks.

Miss Winnifred Livingstone and John Brandall sprung a surprise on their friends by announcing their marriage on their return Sunday evening from a few days' visit in Battle Creek and Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Brandall are at the home of the groom this week receiving the congratulations of friends.

Mrs. Kitchen has moved here from Pinconning to assume the active management of her business here. She is occupying the Jno. D. Webb residence property in the village.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson on Friday of last week, February 26.

At a regular meeting of Hale Chapter No. 482, O. E. S., held last week Thursday evening, Mrs. O. H. Alderton was initiated into the degrees of the order. Out of town guests were Charles Taber, a member of Zion Chapter, West Branch, and the Mesdames Clyde and Glenn Taber of Rose City Chapter. After the degrees a delicious repast was served in the dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swanson of East Tawas visited Hale relatives over the week end. Mrs. Swanson was formerly Mrs. Mary E. Teall, of Hale, whose marriage to Mr. Swanson was solemnized at the home of Mr. Swanson on February 24. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Teall and Mrs. Roy Barnard from Hale attended the ceremony.

Miss Bertha Ward of Hale and Edward Birch of Rapid River, U. P., were married at Rapid River on February 9, 1932. Miss Ward has been visiting her sisters in the Upper Peninsula for the past two months. Mr. and Mrs. Birch will make their home in Rapid River.

French Easter Custom

In olden times the noblemen of Paris paid a complimentary visit to the palace to felicitate the king on his great luck in not being a perplexed man of science in a goddess world. And in return, as an acknowledgement, each nobleman received the royal Easter egg.

TAFT

Mrs. Claude Crego and little daughter, Cleona, spent last week at the home of her brother, Cecil Westervelt, in Rose City.

Mrs. May Westervelt visited Mrs. Josiah Robinson Friday.

Wall Paper Cracks

Tear out a piece of wall paper like that on the wall to patch wall paper cracks, starch it well and use a castor to roll its edges smooth. Patches cut with scissors show the edges, but torn pieces do not.

Gratitude and Generosity

Wherever I find a great deal of gratitude in a poor man, I take it for granted there would be as much generosity if he were a rich man.—Pope.

Quick Action
It takes six generations to make a gentleman and only one bad day in Wall Street to make him a bum.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Early Wall Decoration
Inhabitants in ancient Pompeii were specialists in wall decoration, painting their plastered walls in rich, flat tones and in decorative medallions.
