

TAWAS CITY

P. T. A. HOLDS VERY INTERESTING MEETING

The April meeting of the local Parent-Teacher Association was held at the school building Thursday evening, April 14, and according to the consensus of opinion of those present, it was one of the most interesting meetings of the year. One noticeable factor was the goodly number present.

The organization was called to order by the president, Mrs. Dease. The seventh and eighth grade room had the most parents present, and so the prize for the month was awarded this department. It was also announced by the president that the association would sponsor a demonstration of the Consumers Power Company at the school building Friday evening, April 22, at eight o'clock. The organization will receive ten cents for each adult who is present at the demonstration.

Another important part of the business meeting was the election of officers. The nominating committee appointed by the president, and consisting of Mrs. Wm. Leslie, Mrs. Mark and Miss Crosby, reported the names of Mrs. Bigelow, Mrs. Giddings, Mr. Forsten, and Mr. Mark for the offices of president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer, respectively. The report was immediately accepted by the organization, and so the above officials will serve the P. T. A. in official capacity for the ensuing year.

After the business session, the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Giddings. The high school orchestra played two numbers, and it was noticeable that it has considerably improved during the past few weeks. The pupils of the fourth grade gave a health play in an efficient manner. A trio, consisting of the Mesdames Mark and Horton and Miss Dora Mark, sang two songs with a result which left no doubt in the minds of the hearers that an excellent new musical combination had been found in Tawas City.

The speaker of the evening, Charles Hamilton, who is assistant superintendent of schools at Bay City, talked concerning the responsibility of parents toward their children. Much interest was shown by the audience, as Mr. Hamilton proved to be a very thoughtful speaker.

The refreshment committee, consisting of Mesdames Howittson, Moore and Dease, satisfied the physical needs of the group in a very satisfactory manner. The next meeting will be held May 12, and Mrs. Anschuetz, Miss Coon and Miss Bird will have charge of the meeting.

SCHOOL NOTES

Prepared and Edited by a Committee of the Student Council

High School
The boys of this school have finally been granted their wish. Spring is here and that means that the baseball season has once again been resumed. Everyone seems to be enjoying the sport.

This week closes the eighth month of school of the year. Report cards will be given out Wednesday.

The eleventh grade American history class is making a study of Cleveland's second administration. The "Panic of 1893" was one of the most important events of Cleveland's time and it is possible to make many comparisons between that panic and the present one.

The botany class completed the study of leaves Tuesday with a test over that part of the subject. Flowers will be the next topic to be considered. The starting of buds and flowers will soon enable the class to resume the field work which was discontinued through the winter months.

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association for April was held Thursday evening, April 14. The attendance was probably better than for any other meeting of the year. Charles Hamilton, assistant superintendent of the Bay City schools, gave an excellent talk concerning the obligation of parents toward their children. The May meeting will be given over to social activities.

Don't forget The Daughters of Mohammed, an operetta, to be given by the glee clubs Wednesday evening, May 4th.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
Our room won a book this month for having the most parents in attendance at P. T. A.

We are glad to hear Reva Sims is improving at the Samaritan hospital.

A number of eighth graders are completing final examinations for Palmer Method certificates.

The seventh grade is completing

Council Votes to Cut City Pay

At a meeting Monday night, the city council voted cuts in salaries and wages which are estimated to amount to $700.00 per year.

The following is the new salary and wage schedule:

Councilmen, $20.00 per year; Mayor, $20.00 per year; City Attorney, $20.00 per year; Health Officer, $75.00 per year; Marshal and Street Commissioner, $75.00 per month; trucks, 75c per hour; teams, 50c per hour; hand labor, 35c per hour.

No cuts were made in the salaries of the City Clerk or Treasurer.

HIGH SCHOOL GLEE CLUBS WILL PRESENT OPERETTA

On Wednesday evening, May 4th, the high school glee clubs will present the operetta, The Daughters of Mohammed.

The object in presenting the operetta, to stimulate interest in good music, has been attained. It is hoped that the efforts of those taking part may interest the people of Tawas City as well.

This is the first time in the history of Tawas City high school that the pupils will present an entertainment of this sort and it is sincerely hoped that they will be encouraged by a large attendance. In order that everyone may be present at the theatre on Wednesday, May 4th, the price of admission has been placed at a very low rate, 20c and 35c. This money will be used to defray necessary expenses.

REVIEW DAYS FOR SEVENTH AND EIGHTH GRADERS

The following high schools in Iosco county are having review days for the seventh and eighth grade pupils of the rural schools: Hale, April 22; East Tawas, April 29, and Whittemore, May 6. We feel that these review days are a real help to the pupils in reviewing the subjects on which they will write their state examinations next month and in meeting the teachers and pupils with whom they will work at that time.

Teachers will be notified where to send their pupils for these days.

SOUND THRILLS ADDED TO "BEN-HUR"

"Ben-Hur," the world's most sensational motion picture, makes a triumphant return at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, with the added attraction of sound synchronization which brings to life the voices of the multitudes in the spectacular crowd scenes. This great picture, which will live through the ages as the most remarkable achievement of silent films, was filmed by Fred Niblo in Italy and America at a cost of four million dollars which is easily evident from a glimpse of its gigantic backgrounds and spectacular episodes such as the thrilling sea battle and the magnificent chariot race by which Ramon Novarro in the title role avenges his Roman antagonist, Messala, who has been the cause of the ruin of himself and his kinsfolk.

Sound effects bring a fresh aspect to this magnificent picture, giving its spectacle tremendous realism. For now you not only see the chariot wheels tearing around the course cheered on by the frenzied spectators, but you hear them as well. The sound effects in the thrilling sea combat episodes are likewise effective. This amazing picture in its reissued version is something not to be missed!

CAN WE STOP MOUNTING COST OF GOVERNMENT?

The present crisis in taxation has brought us all to a point where every thinking man and woman asks the questions, "Why the great cost of government? Why are taxes so much higher than they were a few years ago? What is the reason and what is the remedy?"

In 1900, the population of Michigan was 2,420,000; in 1930 it was 4,842,000. In 1900 the state tax of Michigan was $2,908,680; in 1930 the state tax was $29,500,000. The population of the state just doubled but the tax is more than ten times as high.

Are the people any more prosperous and happy now than they were thirty years ago? Can a man raise his family and build himself a home any easier now than he could then? I think not. Then why this tremendous increased cost of government? Where does this money go?

Take the 1930 budget and look it over—see how many commissions, departments and boards there are, the most of which have come into being during the last ten or fifteen years. Every session of the Legislature adds to its number. There is the Board of Cosmetology, a look after beauty parlors with an appropriation from the general fund of $25,400; the Board of Athletic Control to look after prize fights, (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

Concerning Diversion of Highway Funds

There is no more reason why the automobile should be singled out with a tax to take care of schools and other branches of local and municipal government than there is to select the farmers' horses or any other means of transportation for such a tax. The license plates for automobile registration tax never was intended for any other purpose than for building and maintaining the highways which were necessary to make the automobile a useful carrier. At the time the law was passed highway building and maintenance was a serious and large problem, just as it is today.

Not only have we just begun to get pavements in the northern part of Michigan, but it is also a fact that under the program mapped out by the State Highway Department we would hardly get our pavements up here before it would be necessary to start rebuilding the present pavements in the southern part of the state. A concrete pavement will not last forever, and it is necessary to look ahead if we are to maintain

NOTICE

The Iosco County Council of Religious Education will hold a Children's Workers Institute at the Hamrick Road Baptist church on Friday, May 6th. Miss Catton of the state staff will be in charge of the institute. All church school workers are urged to keep this date open and attend, and make this the best meeting yet held in our county. You can help by your presence and suggestions.

Ban Raised on River Fishing

A much appreciated move was made by the Conservation Department when the ban on fishing for perch in the Tawas river was removed last Tuesday, and as soon as the word was received the river bank was lined with fishermen.

Mayor Edward Trudell and State Representative Fred C. Holbeck were instrumental in securing this concession from the department. The river has been closed several years for fishing until May 1, when the perch season is over. During these days of unemployment a chance to fish is something appreciated and of great benefit, and this, together with the fact that Tawas river is really not a trout stream, was brought before the commission by Representative Holbeck and Mayor Trudell. Mayor Trudell also secured the cooperation of Governor Brucker.

CROP PRODUCTION LOANS MUST BE IN BY APRIL 30

All crop production loans must be in before April 30. If there are any farmers in Iosco county who wish to take advantage of this opportunity they should see H. T. Swanson at the East Tawas public school and have the necessary papers filled out. Kindly call after two o'clock, Eastern Standard time, during school days.

DIPHTHERIA TREATMENTS BEGUN BY 330 CHILDREN

Three hundred thirty children in Iosco county have begun treatments for protection against diphtheria. The next treatments will be on Tuesday, April 26, at the following places: Hale, 9:00 to 11:00 a. m.; East Tawas, 1:00 to 3:00 p. m.; Wilber, 3:30 to 4:00 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

All children over a year old should be protected against diphtheria either through the clinic or by your family physician.

"THE WISER SEX" IS MODERN TYPE DRAMA

Drama of the thoroughly modern type is "The Wiser Sex," Paramount's talking edition of Clyde Fitch's play, "Her Confessions," which the State Theatre offers on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, April 23, 24 and 25.

Claudette Colbert, perhaps the "most unscandalized" beauty of films, and an exquisite brunette who performed charmingly in "Secrets of a Secretary" and "The Smiling Lieutenant," is featured in the new offering with Melvyn Douglas, young stage thespian, who made his photo play debut with Gloria Swanson in "Tonight or Never."

Others in the cast are Lilyan Tashman, William Boyd, Effie Shannon, Ross Alexander, Franchot Tone and Douglas Dumbrille.

Miss Colbert is cast as a charming lady of luxurious means, who gives up a European play tour to come to the rescue of Douglas. Douglas, who neglects his love duties to wash up an under-world blot on his city, has been prettily framed into a murderer charge through the untender gestures of Boyd and Miss Tashman, a former showgirl friend.

Action is said to abound in drama and thrills, sustained right up to the climax, in which Miss Colbert, obviously doomed for her "last ride," neatly turns the tables on the "brains" of the racketeer element.

WHITTEMORE SENIOR PLAY
"Drums of Fury," will be given at Roll Inn hall, at 8 o'clock Friday evening, April 29. Adm. 20c and 40c.

MCLEAN MADE CHAIRMAN OF SUPERVISORS

Chas. L. McLean of Tawas City was elected chairman of the board of supervisors at a meeting held here Monday and Tuesday of this week. In the vote for chairman, ballots were cast three times, each one being a tie between Supervisor McLean and Supervisor Ernest Crego of Reno township. The final decision was made by lot. Miss Dorothy Bigelow, a clerk in the treasurer's office, drew the deciding ballot from a hat. Ernest Crego was unanimously elected chairman pro tem.

The board voted to reduce the pay of supervisors from $5.00 to $4.00 per day. They also voted to discontinue the practice of paying an extra half day to those supervisors who live more than ten miles from the county seat.

The following committees were appointed by Chairman McLean and unanimously approved by the board:

FLORENCE STILL HOLDS ITS MEDIEVAL CHARM

Venerable City Not Spoiled by "Face Lifting."

Washington.—"Florence, officially Firenze, venerable Italian treasure chest of art, is making new strides toward modernity," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "City planners of Florence first shocked antiquarians when they raised the city's old wall in the 'sixties.' The wall site now hums with modern traffic. Subsequently ancient and medieval palaces, churches and residences partially or completely disappeared to enlarge public squares and widen main streets.

"Now it is proposed to build a new bridge across the Arno river within eyeshot of the Ponte Vecchio, the medieval shop-flanked span that has long been one of the most striking 'sights' of Florence. More water mains and electric lights for dark streets also are contemplated.

"These improvements will not obliterate old landmarks. The city, at least 2,000 years old, has outgrown three walls and has spread to both banks of the Arno.

"Amid alternating periods of peace and turbulence the city has never lost its spirit. It felt the wrath of Caesar; frequent plagues left thousands of dead in their wake; Pisa and other near-by city states harassed its inhabitants when the Florentines themselves were not at their neighbors' doors with strong, well-equipped armies; European princes, with greedy eyes set upon its growing wealth and industrial position, stormed its walls; and perhaps, worst of all its troubles, were medieval riots and outbreaks against the nobility. Dante, one of its most famous sons, was burned in effigy in a Florentine square. In the same square the monk, Savonarola, Martin Luther of Italy, was executed and his limp form reduced to ashes.

"Florence rose to the pinnacle of art and culture in the Fourteenth century. It ranked among the great financial, industrial, and commercial centers of the known world. Its native-born artists, augmented by adopted wielders of the brush and sculpture's mallet, formed one of the most illustrious gatherings of all ages in the field of art.

"Michaelangelo, Giotto, Leonardo da Vinci and Raphael either were born or lived in Florence. Their studios produced sculptures for the public squares and the niches of the numerous palaces and famous paintings for palace walls. Meanwhile their brushes also applied frescoes to walls and ceilings of Florentine buildings and wealthy merchants of the city accumulated art collections from the studios of foreign artists.

"Florentine commerce expanded until the city had a representative in nearly all the important known ports. The ruling Medici family expanded its financial influence. At one time it owned 16 banks and made loans to powerful European rulers. The florin, once Europe's most widely circulated coin, was named for the city and first circulated there. The three-ball sign of the pawnbroker was adopted from the Medici coat of arms.

"Florence now has nearly 300,000 inhabitants and remains one of the most charming cities in Europe. Its valuable collections of paintings, sculptures and frescoes have weathered war and riot and near its modernized thoroughfares the traveler may stray into an atmosphere of centuries ago.

"There are byways flanked with medieval architectural gems whose doorways bear the coats of arms of famous families. Many of the street corners are adorned with finely executed shrines—the works of old masters. There remain a few of the open-front shops of other days where cabinetmakers, wool combers and metal workers ply their trade apparently oblivious of the motley crowd looking on. In a few blocks a pedestrian rubs elbows with visitors from a dozen different countries, for tourist entertainment is the city's leading industry."

Mother of 27 Seeks $500,000 Award

Mrs. Florence Brown, forty-two, of Toronto, Canada, with some of the twenty-seven children she has borne, fourteen of whom are still living. Under the terms of the will of Charles Vance Millar, Mrs. Brown would receive the award of $500,000 he bequeathed to the Toronto woman who ten years after his death had given birth to the most children. The provincial government, however, is undertaking to annul the alleged "capricious" will of the bachelor millionaire lawyer and convert the money to the University of Toronto. Mrs. Brown has brought suit to win the award.

FOLLOWING ON

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK

Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

There was suffering ahead for Him, and danger and death of a most cruel character, and Jesus knew it. He was going up to Jerusalem, and He was well aware of what awaited Him there. Nor were His friends ignorant of what fate was very likely in store for Him there, and they warned Him to take some other road, to save Himself by not going to Jerusalem. He could pass by the danger.

"Get Thee out, and depart hence," they said, "for Herod will kill Thee." There was safety by another road.

But He shook His head; duty was before Him, the appointed task had to be performed. He was not ignorant of what His fate would be but—

"Nevertheless," He said, "I must walk today and tomorrow and the day following," and He went on until the end, and faced death courageously.

Life does not for many of us have the tragic nor the glorious end that His life had, but there is for every human being if he would accomplish the best that is in him, today and tomorrow and the day following, a routine which, commonplace or difficult or unpleasant as the individual case may be, must be faced and followed.

I watched a fell race in England years ago. The men start from a certain point in the valley and, by whatever route they choose, they reach a high point of the cliff a mile and a half or so away. It was a rocky uneven road which they traveled without path to follow in many cases. They dash through streams, they climb over fences, they leap from one bench of rock to another, they take all sorts of chances, only they go on, stumbling, climbing, pushing toward the goal in spite of danger and exhaustion. No matter if the flesh is torn by thorns or the feet bruised by sharp rocks, or strength seems all but gone, the goal must be reached by some means, or other. It is an inspiring sight, and one I shall not soon forget. I've thought of the race often when I have been discouraged.

Next to Diamonds

Corundum is the hardest mineral next to the diamond and when transparent is known as amethyst, sapphire, and ruby. Although it is a compound of oxygen and aluminum it is four times heavier than water. It is named after the Hindu word "kurand" and it is therefore thought to have first been discovered in India.

DAIRY

PROFIT SHOWN IN "SELLING" TO COWS

Good Method of Disposal of Surplus Forage.

Fourteen dollars worth of farm-grown feed fed to good average cows will produce $28 worth of butterfat at present prices and will leave $5.60 worth of skim milk on the farm, to say nothing of manure.

At the present prices for butterfat, the man who has produced a surplus of forage and other dairy food can sell this feed through cows for a fairly good return for his labor," says A. C. Kimrey dairy extension specialist at North Carolina State college. "The relation between the farm price of dairy feeds and butterfat is favorable now and bids fair to remain so. Records kept on present market conditions show that if $14 worth of feed is fed to good average cows, it will produce 100 pounds of butterfat. When sold for buttermaking purposes, this fat is worth $28. In addition, there will be left on the farm about 1,600 pounds of skim milk worth 35 cents a hundred pounds. This is excellent for feeding the poultry or hogs and when so fed has a value of $5.60."

In addition to these values, 75 per cent of the plant food in the feedstuffs go back to the farm in the form of manure, and thus cut down the fertilizer bill, says Mr. Kimrey.

The return from selling feedstuffs through cows does not suggest that anyone will get rich from the project, cautions Mr. Kimrey, but he does suggest that a better price will be received for the grains and hay than if the same material is sold in the raw state. In addition, there is the advantage of a steady income each month from the sale of cream.

Wheat Has Proved Value in Dairy Cow's Ration

The boost in wheat prices may result in corn proving a more economical grain in the dairy ration than wheat, on some farms, according to C. L. Blackman, specialist in dairying in the department of animal husbandry at the Ohio State university.

If the price of wheat should go much higher than that of corn, he asserts it will be good business to sell wheat and buy corn and save the balance. This, he believes, is a good time to watch prices of all kinds and vary the rations according to the largest possible returns per dollar's worth of feed.

It has been found that when wheat displaces 300 pounds of corn and makes up 30 per cent of the dairy ration, about the same results are obtained from the wheat as are obtained from the corn, if both rations are fed with alfalfa hay and corn silage. The cows gain a little more in body weight on the corn ration but produce a little more butterfat on the wheat ration.

Feeding Skim Milk

Increased use of the cream separator on the farms of this state should do much to increase the income from pigs, chickens and calves to which the skim milk is fed. Recent months have seen the price of milk powder, casein and other skim milk products so unsatisfactory that it has become desirable in so far as possible to keep the skim milk at home for utilization as feed. Co-operative creameries and others have been recommending this practice to their members and patrons. The doubly desirable result of increased profit from poultry and livestock and gradual reduction of the surplus of skim milk products should be noted.—Idaho Farmer.

Approved by Testing

Producing an average of 451.08 pounds of butterfat, 8,544 pounds of milk in a year, the cows in the purebred Jersey herd owned by A. H. Scribner, Mt. Kisco, N. Y., have recently completed a year of official testing through the herd improvement registry of the American Jersey Cattle club. During the year of test Mr. Scribner's herd averaged seven cows in milk. The yield of these cows is equivalent to 563 pounds of butter and 3,974 quarts of milk per cow for the year.—Rural New-Yorker.

DAIRY NOTES

Ground soy beans as a feed for growing dairy calves gave nearly identical results with linseed meal in experiments at Purdue university.

Most bacteria in milk come from dirty cows and dirty utensils, but dirty stables, bad air and dirty surroundings all add their share of germs.

Turnips are somewhat better for dairy cows than carrots, though the latter may be used.

Cattle will live to the age of fifteen years if not slaughtered before that time. Unless special circumstances exist, a cow will have outlived her usefulness by the age of ten years.

Bad flavors in butter in winter often come from keeping the cream too long before churning. It is a nuisance to churn a small amount, but may pay.

Skillful Railroading

A thrilling race between the fore and hind quarters of a freight train took place on a steep gradient near London, England, after the train broke in two. The engineer, fearing that the last half would crash into the front part and derail it, immediately put on speed, and for four miles there followed a breath-taking race to prevent a crash. Finally, the derelict cars came to a standstill on a level part of the track and the engine backed and hooked them on again.

Supplying Sponge Demand

Sponge production is centered in two localities—the Mediterranean and the Gulf of Mexico and West Indies. The Mediterranean fisheries are a little the larger. These are exploited chiefly by Greeks, but to some extent by all the Mediterranean nationalities. Americans do harvest sponges, and in the western hemisphere the output of two Florida fields is the most valuable. One field is off Tampa bay, the other around Key West. The Bahamas and Cuba produce most of the West Indian sponges.

The frock on the right uses drapery technique to gain width above the waist, combining flatteringly with a surplice twist and a raglan shoulder. The design is smart in soft silk crepe colored in one of the new spring blues, such as colonial or cornflower. The child's dress is simple in line, achieving individuality through the use of linen in contrasting colors. Exam "Boners" Make Professors Laugh

Hartford, Conn.—"Boners" relieve the dullness of reading examination papers, says Prof. Henry A. Perkins of Trinity college.

Here are a few he listed as encountered in Trinity examinations:

"Work is the ability to do something.

"Aristotle says that grass attains form when it is eaten by a cow.

"Cicero must have been a very careful critic and a very careful writer. His writings are forever emphasizing the point he wishes to emphasize.

"As the moon approaches full and is nearer the earth, it has stronger attraction and effects (sic) the apple.

"Mass in a body is solid, it is the force attracted to the earth. A football player needs mass.

"Since women can vote, voting has ceased to be a privilege.

"Mass is an object that contains weight. Weight is what the object weighs.

"When some one applies an epitaph to you it is sometimes very hard to reply.

"The average man is rather below normal.

"When it says here 'Compare with civilized communities' it would be all right to take the United States."

TREASURES FORGOTTEN IN HOTELS BY GUESTS

Absent-Minded Forget Jewelry, Coats, False Teeth.

Chicago.—It is not the typically absent-minded professor type, but the hustling business man or salesman who most often leaves articles ranging from new shirts to false teeth in his hotel room when he departs. Chief hotel detectives of large Chicago hotels are responsible for that information.

The assistant manager of one hotel, who is also chief of its house officers and has been for several years, reports a list of articles found in hotel rooms which includes bass drums, large-sized radios, swords and jewelry.

A diamond ring valued at $12,000 was left in a hotel room by a woman who was so forgetful she could not remember where she left it. After writing to hotels throughout the country she got in touch with the hotel here and her ring was returned.

Sets of false teeth and odd single teeth are often found in rooms after guests leave. At one hotel it was said that many sets of false teeth are held for months without ever being called for by their owners.

A fine gold watch was left at another hotel. It was inside a pillow case and was not seen by the maid. She tossed the bed linen down a soiled clothes chute, and as the laundry does not touch linens by hand, the watch went through all the washing machinery. There was little left when it was discovered.

Some women guests who have three or four fur coats have left sable, mink, and other valuable coats in their rooms. A horn was found once. Convention delegates who bring fancy dress uniforms and gird on their swords for parade, often leave their swords.

Pajamas, slippers and shaving apparatus was most commonly left. Watches are frequently left by busy salesmen. Often a man leaves a pair of old slippers on purpose. They are held 90 days if not called for. Men sometimes send for an old worn-out pair of bedroom slippers because they have formed an attachment for them. On a rainy day a dozen or more umbrellas will be found in the lobby alone.

Women are the worst for writing back to recover articles they have left. They will write back for a handkerchief, for a toothbrush, and an old one at that, for face creams and lace collars.

Seventy per cent of the persons who are forgetful get in touch with the hotels to recover their property. Telephone calls to inquire if an article of jewelry or some other treasured possession had been found, have been received from San Francisco, New York and all parts of the country.

Entirely sober business men will dash out of the hotel madly, forgetting their suitcase filled with all their belongings, and wire from another city to have it sent on.

A man may buy some new shirts and leave them instead of his old ones, or he may leave the old ones on purpose—in which case they are retained the full time. Articles of sentimental value, such as photographs, letters, or an old hat some one has formed a fondness for, occasionally are the objects of frantic search by the person who forgot them until he locates what hotel he has left them in.

Famed Dartmouth Indian Changes His Feather

Hanover, N. H.—After two years' research by a Dartmouth graduate, that college's Indian symbol is now believed to be historically correct.

The Indian has always been to Dartmouth what the bulldog is to Yale or the tiger to Princeton. The standard Dartmouth Indian invariably has been portrayed as wearing an elaborate feathered headdress.

Walter Beach Humphrey, Dartmouth '11, widely known artist, found that the elaborate headdress was associated with Redskins of the western plains, such as the Sioux, whereas the eastern Indian connected with the college's early history was of the Mohegan type.

So now the Dartmouth Indian, Moheganlike, is pictured with a solitary feather dangling from a topknot of hair.

Briton Perfects World's Strongest Searchlight

London.—A searchlight generating 3,000,000,000 candle power and throwing forth such light as would make reading possible six miles away, has been perfected by Maj. J. C. Savage. This searchlight, which is undergoing tests by the war office, will have the effect of making invasion by enemy airplanes an impossibility. It throws a grid of light into the sky, immediately giving visibility to the aircraft and at the same time providing a means of arriving at a range by which anti-aircraft guns could fire at the raider.

Kirkcaldy, Scotland.—Seventy-two old, his cheery smile familiar in the district, Robert Hunter has been walking about with a broken spine for 25 years, since he was pinned under debris in a mine accident.

"I've got a warm feeling for Target Tobacco, though I don't happen to be a smoker myself."

"My husband switched to Target from ready-mades. He thought he wasn't going to like rolling his own. But now he says he'd never smoke any other kind. He tells me that Target is real cigarette tobacco, a blend of Virginia, Burley and Turkish tobaccos just like the ready-mades use. And he says that with those gummy papers you get free with Target, it's easy to roll a firm, round cigarette."

"I'll take my husband's word for all that, but I do know that we save real money every week. My husband rolls thirty or more cigarettes from each package of Target. And that means a big saving. Figure it out. Target is only 10 cents a package."

AND GET THIS: The U. S. Government tax on 20 cigarettes amounts to 6¢. On 20 cigarettes you roll from Target Tobacco the tax is just about 1¢. No wonder you get such value for a dime!

Concrete That Floats

A block of concrete floated on water, bobbing up and down like a cork, at the school of practical science, University of Toronto, recently, when Prof. G. R. Anderson, carried out an unusual experiment. Known as cellular concrete, this floating stone was made on a system, analogous to raising a bread with yeast. The cement, gravel, water and sand, were put into a mixer and a carbon dioxide forming chemical was added. The cement then set into a hard porous substance lighter than wood. Professor Anderson says it has remarkable resistance to sound.

PRESIDENT'S PARDON MAKES COUPLE HAPPY

Resume Honeymoon Halted by Immigration Laws.

Chicago.—An interrupted honeymoon was resumed recently. A bride returned to her policeman husband, and three motherless children found a new mother, when President Herbert Hoover gave a personal and unconditional pardon to Mrs. Joseph Killian.

Quake Expert Studies Earth in Buried Vault

Santa Clara, Calif.—In a concrete vault 20 feet below ground on the University of Santa Clara campus, Dr. Albert J. Newland, disciple of the late Father Jerome Ricard, Jesuit "pope of the rains," conducts his "earthquake factory."

Every night for 25 years Doctor Newland has descended the narrow passage to the tomblike chamber, bolted the single, narrow door of the vault, and kept his vigil with the earth's quiverings and tremors.

Only the weird blue glow of five "light pencils" from his seismographs illuminates his "factory" chambers. Within the vault's 2-foot concrete walls, Doctor Newland checks the earth's tremblings, the expansion and contraction of its surface due to cold spells, heat waves, other causes. These are recorded by the "light pencils."

Doctor Newland's "earthquake factory" is buried deep in the ground so that surface vibration will not affect its delicate instruments. The seismographs, firmly lodged on a concrete pier, record the nature, location, and time of occurrence of disturbances.

nee Stefania Poczatko, stranded for eight months in Windsor, Can.

Red tape, precedent, passports and charges of falsification and moral turpitude figured largely in the romantic story which has just come to its happy ending.

Last August Policeman Joseph P. Killian thought he had settled all the difficulties his fiancée encountered through her illegal entrance into the United States.

He married her, with permission of Secretary of Labor William N. Doak and took her honeymooning to Canada that she might re-enter the country as the wife of an American citizen and a legitimate citizen in her own right.

But the Department of Labor slipped a cog, decided that Stefania herself was responsible for the errors on her passport and Stefania was ordered to remain outside the country.

So she found herself stranded in a cheap boarding house in Windsor for eight months, during which she wrote adoring letters to her husband and dreamed of the things they could do for his three youngsters, the oldest just six.

And then the hand of the President scrawled a full pardon to exonerate the exiled young bride and restored her to her adopted home.

Stefania, at last has returned to her home and her husband. Uncle Sam has a new citizen and three little babes a new mother.

American Rackets Reach London and Cause Worry

London.—American rackets often take a long time to get here, but they arrive eventually.

Theater managers right now are alarmed at the operations of strangers, who have begun selling tickets above the box office prices to those waiting in line outside. It has been done here before, but never on the scale of the scalpers who "work" the New York theaters and the world series baseball games.

Whereas the American scalper would scorn to handle tickets selling for less than $5, London's scalpers deal in three shilling pastebords.

The chief difference between English and American racketeers seems to be that the former work alone rather than in gangs. Blackmailing is extensive, and recently several bold entrepreneurs have undertaken to sell "protection" to various trades—sabotage being the alternative, of course.

One instance was that of a fish merchant, who supplied a large hotel and who refused to buy "protection." He lost his contract with the hotel because, it was stated, his fish had not been up to standard. Later he discovered that the fish had been kept for several days before being cooked and otherwise tampered with.

VAIL MEDAL GIVEN FOUR IN MICHIGAN

UNUSUAL ACTS OF SERVICE BY TELEPHONE EMPLOYEES TOLD IN CITATIONS

Theodore N. Vail medals in bronze will be awarded four employees of the Michigan Bell Telephone Company—three men and a woman—for outstanding acts of service in moments of extreme emergency during 1931, it is announced by Burch Foraker, president of the Company and chairman of the Michigan Committee of Vail Medal Awards.

They are Everett K. Monroe, Pontiac cable splicer; Mrs. Celia S. Schroeder, Roseville night operator; and Fred Collins, lineman, and Charles G. Enos, cable splicer, both of Detroit.

Each was instrumental in saving a life, and is cited for exercising unusual initiative and prompt action. Two of the men, Monroe and Enos, restored consciousness to persons in danger of death from drowning, by application of methods learned in Telephone Company First Aid classes.

Collins rescued a woman from a burning building, and Mrs. Schroeder was instrumental in saving a man from asphyxiation.

Awards of the medal in bronze, silver and gold are made under a fund created twelve years ago in memory of Theodore N. Vail whose life-work was devoted to the development of universal telephone service and who inculcated into the Bell System many of its high ideals of service.

The silver and gold medals are national awards. Since the establishment of the fund, 52 bronze medals have been awarded Michigan people, 48 to employees of the Michigan Bell Company and four to employees of connecting telephone companies. Two silver medals have been awarded Michigan people, both connecting company employees.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

"THREE times I've turned upon my tail, and crossed my toes, but still I fail to win from Luck my simple wish for just one single little fish."

As he said this, Buster Bear sat and stared into the Laughing Brook with wrinkled brows. He had set out that morning to get fish for breakfast, and because he had set his heart on fish, nothing else would do. You know, Buster Bear is sometimes what is called pig-headed—that is, he starts to do a thing, and no matter what happens he persists in trying to do it. He had started out for fish that morning, and fish he would have or else go hungry. Now, everybody knows that it is of no use to try to drink from an empty pail, and every fisherman knows that it is of no use to fish when the fish have gone away from their favorite places. Buster Bear knew that for some unknown reason there were no trout in the little shallow pools where he does his fishing. Of course, he didn't know he looked around first to make sure that no one would see him. And, of course, his luck didn't change. You see, there isn't any such thing as that kind of luck. No matter what happens there is a cause, a reason for it. The reason Buster Bear saw no fish that fine morning was that there were no fish to see. They had all gone down to the Smiling Pool because the water there was deeper and cooler than in the Laughing Brook. You see, the weather had been so hot for so long that the Laughing Brook was growing smaller and smaller, and so the fish had moved down to the Smiling Pool for comfort and safety. If Buster had used his common sense he would have known this and given up all thought of fish.

At last he sat down in a little open place close by the Laughing Brook and not far from where Plunger the Fish Hawk had built his nest. Buster sat down to rest and cool off. He had not been there long when he heard voices, harsh, screaming voices. They came from high up in the air. Buster tipped his head back and looked up. There he saw Plunger the Fish Hawk and King Eagle, and they were quarreling. Plunger was dodging this way and that way, now up, now down, now to this side and now to that. And clutched in Plunger's claws was a great, big, fat fish. At the sight of that fish it seemed to Buster that his stomach just flopped right over. Yes, sir, that is the way it seemed. Water began to trickle from the corners of his mouth, water of pure longing. Plunger was high in the air, and it that fish was big enough for him to see at that distance it must be very, very much bigger than any fish Buster had ever caught in the Laughing Brook. Buster could not keep his greedy little eyes off it. He knew by what he saw that King Eagle was trying to make Plunger give up that fish.

Buster Tipped His Head Back and Looked Up.

this when he started out that morning, but it didn't take him a great while to find it out. Not so much as a glimpse of a fin or tail had Buster had, and he had followed the Laughing Brook almost to the place where it leaves the Green Forest on its way to the Smiling Pool in the Green Meadows.

And just because he couldn't have fish, Buster wanted fish more than anything else in the world. People are that way sometimes. So Buster persisted in wandering along the Laughing Brook, hoping that luck would turn. Fishermen, you know, are great believers in luck, and Buster is like the rest. That is why he said that foolish little verse at the beginning of this story. Of course, he knew it was all foolishness to turn around three times and to cross his toes, and when he did these things

Botanist at Four

Although he is only four years old little Clare Roeder, Jr., of Arvada, Colo., knows the botanical names of more than 500 uncommon plants and can make difficult distinctions at a glance. He is already experimenting with grafting and is particularly interested in hybrid rose and geranium species. The little boy, who has a collection of plants which rivals that of many of the nation's foremost plant specialists, is hailed as the Luther Burbank of the future.

COOKING FOR INVALIDS

NEARLY every home maker at some time in her life finds it necessary to cook for and prepare food for a convalescent who cannot eat the food prepared for the family.

The returning strength and good health of the invalid depends in a large measure on the food which he eats and assimilates. His appetite should be tempted.

Custard should be velvety as cream if it is to be served: one that is overcooked and separated into whey should be eaten by some other member of the family and a fresh one prepared for the one who is ill.

For the person who is ill in bed, the meal time should be the joyous time of the day, an oasis in the monotony of the long day.

It is worth while to bring to bear upon this matter all the artistic ingenuity one possesses, as variety and element of surprise and making the tray and all food appealing to the eye, are most important.

Never serve an invalid pie or pudding which is rich and not easy of digestion. Pastry is for those who are well and able to digest it. One may purchase small cartons of junket tablets, of various flavors or the plain ones. Add, after dissolving in a tablespoonful of water to milk that has been warmed, flavor and sweetener and pour into a pretty cup or sherbet glass to stiffen. If cream is allowed, a spoonful will top the junket when served. Have all such foods nicely chilled and garnished.

A LITTLE WHILE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A LONG, long time is soon a little while, and every footstep makes a shorter mile.

If we would think in days instead of years, Yes, even minutes as each day appears.

No time would then be long, or journey far. Whatever are our days, how few they are!

So step by step I try to walk my way, Accept my sorrow, and with joy be gay.

Each day is shorter as the sun ascends, And never yet a journey but it ends. I try to live each minute more and more.

Climb hills when I come to them, not before.

And so each mile has roses here and there; Then, if the Journey's long, I do not care.

And so each minute has some beauty in, Some treasure that I need not wait to win.

Wait not for tardy time some gift to give— How much there is in life if life we live!

Your Beauty Assets

YOU are urged to take an inventory of your assets and liabilities. List each item in the beauty ensemble. What are you satisfied to preserve and what do you wish to improve. Then tell yourself truthfully what you are doing for your beauty.

Your figure, for instance. Do you wish to gain or reduce? Or are you, fortunately, just right? Check up on your posture as poor standing, sitting or walking positions can destroy even the most perfectly molded figure.

Now check up on your hair. Is it an asset or a liability? Are you faithful in brushing it properly night and morning for ten minutes? Can you boast a glowing, healthful, lustrous crop or is it stringy, dry as a heap of straw or oozing too much oil? Is your scalp in healthy condition? Are you troubled with dandruff? Is your hair an even, lovely, lustrous shade or drab and discolored? Is it graying?

Start at once to set things right and turn the liability to a beauty asset.

Now for your skin. Anything wrong here? Dryness, oiliness, blackheads, eruptions, lines and wrinkles, sagging muscles? Or happily a clear, flawless, firm complexion? And remember that the normal skin needs only a good cleansing cream, skin tonic and nourishing cream—to keep it young and lovely through the years.

Your eyes, are they clear and bright? Are you kind to them or do you strain them? Do you read or sew or work in a good light, does the light come from behind the left shoulder? Do you squint? Squinting indicates something wrong with the eyes and tells you in plain terms that there will soon be crow's-feet and frown lines around the eyes.

When you present arms in an evening gown, is the skin white and clear, matching your face and neck? Are your hands soft, smooth, white, well-groomed to the fingertips?

Lastly are you particular about the details of good-grooming, so small in themselves, but what a big part they play in destroying the perfect picture if they are not just right. A run down heel, a crooked hose seam, a missing button, a soiled dress collar, all these are important.

Need Toning?

TEMPORARILY tired—not enough restful sleep the night before—or a poor dinner perhaps that has not agreed with you? These may leave your skin looking heavy—dull—a yellowish tinge. If you have been working too hard and not getting enough additional rest to compensate—plan an extra few hours of rest—store up a little extra energy. An afternoon nap for an hour or two, if you are at home and your time is your own, will work wonders. You will feel fresh and rejuvenated. If your digestion has been impaired, get after that. Remember that elimination must be regular—drink plenty of water to flush out all impurities—plan a change to a single diet for a few days.

If your entire system needs toning—remember that fresh air and exercise will do the trick. Throw your window wide open. Breathe in—a long, deep breath. Slowly. Exhale slowly, too. Continue for several minutes. Follow with a few setting up exercises. A cold shower—warm to cold if you can't stand the shock of the cold water to begin with. Then a brisk rub. Now a little skin cream—simple—cleansing cream and skin tonic. Pat with quick, slapping movements upward and outward. Now look in the glass and see if there isn't a suggestion of glowing, health color. Your whole body should feel alive.

Plan a half hour's walk sometime during the day. Not just sauntering along—but rhythmic, quick walking. Hum a tune as you walk—a marching song—a wonderful secret for improving one's posture and pulling up one's spirits.

Far worse than the temporarily yellowish tinge, is the generally sallow, sluggish skin.

First thing to do is to get at the root of the evil—determine the cause. Organic difficulties such as sluggish liver sometimes cause the skin to look very sallow. Consult your physician. He will probably tell you to watch your diet, keep up the daily ration of eight glasses of water a day—be sure elimination is regular. Internal cleanliness is very important.

Don't forget the deep breathing, setting up exercises, shower, etc., in the morning.

For local treatment you will need more than the usual cleansing and toning combination to give your skin that vivid glow. A stimulating bleaching cream will do the work. After thoroughly cleansing the skin, you will apply this stimulant with an upward, sweeping motion over face and neck. After five or ten minutes, remove the cream gently with tissues. Do not rub. Apply your nourishing cream generously to allow any burning or stinging sensation. Then mold and pat for ten minutes more.

Man's Peculiarity

Man is that peculiar animal who can get a good hearty laugh out of pictures in an old family album and then look in a mirror without as much as a grin.

Where Does She Get Her "Pep?"

SHE doesn't look seventy. Nor does she feel that old. The woman who stimulates her organs can have energy that men half her age will envy!

At middle-age your vital organs begin to slow down. You may not be sick, simply sluggish. But why endure a condition of half-health when there's a stimulant that will stir a stagnant system to new life and energy in a week's time?

This remarkable stimulant is perfectly harmless. It is, in fact, a family doctor's prescription. So, if you're tired of trying every patent medicine that comes along, tell the druggist you want a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a bit of this delicious syrup every day or so, until you know by the way you feel that your lazy liver is again active, and your bowels are poison-free.

Men, women, and children who are run-down, who tire easily, get bilious spells or have frequent headaches, are soon straightened out when they get this prescription preparation of pure pepsin, active senna, and fresh laxative herbs. (Syrup pepsin is all the help the bowels need, and you do not form the very bad habit of always taking cathartics.)

Keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin in the house, and take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. It is all that a great many people ever take to keep strong and vigorous, and absolutely free from constipation.

Red Fox Destroys

Many Farm Pests

Cats may get the glory, but the red fox is the mouser par excellence, his capacity for field mice and other noxious rodents apparently knows no limits, according to Prof. W. J. Hamilton, Jr., of Cornell university, who has studied the contents of the stomachs of nearly 1,000 fur-bearing animals to learn their feeding habits. It is not unusual, he says, to find as many as five mice in a fox's stomach.

The fox is fond of fruits, and eats many berries during the summer and fall months. As winter approaches, his diet is restricted largely to mice and rabbits, both of which are serious farm pests. Woodchucks become prey for foxes when they emerge from their winter's sleep. Reynard plays havoc with the young woodchucks, and the baby foxes grow fast on such a diet. Small game is brought to the den alive, where the young foxes are given their first lessons in hunting. Debris about a fox den shows insects, mice, small birds, and often some chicken feathers which give further clues to his diet.

Professor Hamilton says protective measures will be necessary if the red fox is to survive for future generations. It would seem only fair to protect the fox when the mother is with young. The fox is one of the finest game animals and furnishes many citizens sport and profit yearly. He more than atones for the few birds he kills by his year-round destruction of mice and other rodents.

The Real Thing

Mrs. Goldman had engaged a new maid. She was a good girl, truthful, honest, very willing and obliging, but she lacked tact.

One evening, when her mistress was going to the theater, the maid noticed that a favorite rope of pearls was missing.

"Oh, madam," she cried, "where are your lovely pearls tonight!"

"I'm not wearing them, Winnie," replied Mrs. Goldman. "I don't fancy them tonight."

"Oh, what a pity, ma'am!" exclaimed the maid. "An' they made you look so like a real lady!"

American Amateur King

Among the four amateur kings who have "made" themselves in French colonies within three months is an American, while two are English, and the fourth the enterprising son of a German father and a Scotch mother. All are fairly well-to-do, and they opened their kingdoms with much pomp and ceremony.

Heart of the North

by William Byron Mowery

The author of HEART OF THE NORTH, whose stories of the great wilderness are sweeping the country, because of their authentic romance of the last great frontier, has known the forests since he was old enough to set a trap. As a boy in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, and Ontario, he trapped, hunted, sometimes acted as a guide and tried several ventures in fur farming and training fox hounds and coon dogs.

"My earliest memory," he says, "is of a bigger brother carrying me across a river to get an otter from a trap. I learned to shoot and trap before I could read and I shot a bear once when I had to prop up that heavy old octagonal Winchester with a forked stub." But Mowery did learn to read and write—especially write. He acquired education so avidly and with such good effect that a few years ago he was drafted by one of the largest institutions of learning in the country—the University of Illinois—to be an instructor in English.

Every time he got a vacation he spent it in the North country, principally along the Mackenzie river from its headwaters clear down to the Arctic ocean. He became an authority on the forest and muskox wilderness. Finally the fascination lured him to drop everything else and devote himself to making literature of the region. His stories are thrilling in the highest degree and have the unique quality of combining great charm, authenticity and refreshing character studies with the thrills.

One of Mowery's happiest achievements is in the very real, but none the less interesting, manner in which he depicts the police service known as the Northwest Mounted. The hero of HEART OF THE NORTH is a sergeant of that service; a man of today, truly drawn, but of a courage and chivalry that might grace the pages of knight-errantry.

CHAPTER I —1— The Killers

Father Claverly, leaning against the rail of the Midnight Sun, suddenly straightened up, stiff with shock; and stared incredulously at the six men.

For moments he could not believe he actually was witnessing a robbery. Here in this Canadian Northland where outlawry was rare and furtive, here on the mighty Mackenzie where river boats time and again carried unguarded cargoes of half a million in furs and gold, a brazen daylight attack upon a big steamer was simply unthinkable.

A few minutes ago the six men in a pair of birch-bark canoes had skinned out of the tributary river, the Big Alooska, and hailed the steamer as though they were merely trappers or a trading party wanting passage up south. A ladder was innocently let down for them, and they had come aboard, taking a despicable advantage of the friendly, accommodating spirit extended from man to man in this North country.

Now, under the leadership of a huge red-bearded fellow, they stood on a pile of deck cargo amidships, watching each way. With repeating rifles alert in their hands, they loomed ugly and menacing over the crowd.

Father Claverly, quickly recovering from his shock, stared sharply at the six men, trying to identify them. One was a 'breed; the other five were nondescript whites. All of them were unknown to him.

While he was wondering what their next move would be, a girl among the passengers suddenly cried out: "Bandits! They're bandits! Oh—oo—!"

To half the people aboard the Midnight Sun the girl's cry was a first warning of the holdup. Whirling, the passengers stood transfixed, staring at the six vicious strangers who had them covered.

Fearful of bloodshed, Father Claverly glanced around at the crowd. Realizing that a fight would turn this deck into a shambles, he prayed that somehow, by quick thinking, he could avert a battle.

There were courageous men among those fifty on deck; but only one man had the quiet deadly courage to draw a long belt-gun against six rifles.

He was Jimmy Montgomery, mate of the steamer.

Crouched beside a bale of wolf-skins, Jimmy had been pointing out things ashore to his four-year-old daughter. At the cry he glanced up, saw the bandits, understood instantly; and his face hardened. He was Mounted-trained, Jimmy was—seven years with the scarlet-and-gold Maintainers of the Right. Shoving his baby girl behind the wolf peltry, he whispered, "Lie down, sweet; keep down, down," and rose to his feet.

His first bullet, fired from the hip, sang between two bandits and whanged into the pines beyond. His second knocked the floppy stetson from a bandit's head. His third was never fired. A Savage spoke out sharply. Jimmy grabbed at his breast, his revolver dropped to the boards, he swayed a moment, then sank down, shot cleanly through the heart.

Father Claverly heard a mutter arising among the crowd; heard the shuffling of feet, the half-hysterical sobbing of women, the snarling oaths of men. Out of the corner of his eye he saw men glancing at one another, waiting for one of their number to raise the long yell; and he realized that this ominous, swelling mutter was the prelude of a concerted rush.

The bandits realized it, too. It was plain to Father Claverly that they had not bargained on a battle, and were covering at the prospect of rifle talk. But there was no retreating now; they would be forced to fight. In a flashing thought he visioned this deck as it would be a few moments hence: the criminals, rifle-armed, shooting from cover of the cargo piles; the blood-spattered promenade, with women and children caught in that swath of death.

In the next instant Father Claverly saw how he might stop the slaughter. Stepping forward from the rail, he uplifted his arm to draw the eyes and attention of the bandits. Obnoxious to personal danger, thinking only of the innocent lives he might save, Father Claverly walked up closer, closer, till the criminals could have touched him with their guns. Either his calm mien or his black robe and hat had proved over those rifles, for the muzzlees swerved aside from him.

"Don't shoot again," he bade quietly, as one with authority. "You have killed a man. You have murdered."

The dark-faced bandit who had fired the shot flinched before that steady accusing gaze, and turned his eyes away from Father Claverly's.

"I was compelled to keel heem. He should not tried to interfere wit' us."

Father Claverly scorned so flimsy a justification of a brutal killing. Turning away from the bandits, he faced the crowd. Steady, clear, his voice rose:

"Men! Don't stir! Don't make a shambles of this deck. There's nothing aboard this boat as precious as the lives that would be lost. Let them take what they want and go peacefully."

His appeal fell on deaf ears. A slow vengeful wrath was gathering. . . . Jimmy Montgomery, known and loved all along the Mackenzie, lay murdered there on the deck. . . . Those killers were going to pay for that barbarous crime.

The snarling oaths rose again; the muttering swelled audibly; hands crept down and closed upon belt-gun butts. . . .

It was the bandit leader who stopped the rush, who stopped it dead short at one stroke. Swinging his gun at a young schoolmistress, Margaret Fournier, one of the passengers, he ordered her, "Step up here, sister; step up close;" and when she obeyed him, wild-eyed with terror, he cocked his weapon with an audible snick and pointed it at her breast.

His voice rose so that the whole deck heard.

"Now shoot! You can't git me afore I c'n git her! First move I see made with a gun, I'll give her what that gent there on the boards just got!"

Without turning or swerving his rifle from the girl, he bade two of his men:

"Andre, you and John go below. Git the dust. Sort out some furs, too, good furs, six or seven hundred pounds—marten, mink, dark fox. You know what's light and valyble."

The two bandits stepped down and seized one of the crew and made him take them down the companionway. Coming up presently, they lowered their booty into the two birchbark canoes that bobbed against the side of the steamer.

As though every man aboard realized that the bandits held the whip-hand, that no one dared stir, that retribution must come from elsewhere, a whisper started, spontaneously, from a dozen points at once:

"Baker! Alan Baker! Sergt. Alan Baker!"

This whisper went from neighbor to neighbor, from group to group; and men smiled grimly as they heard this mere mention of a man's name:

"Baker! Sergt. Alan Baker—at Fort Endurance."

Another of the bandits, protected by that rifle pointing at Margaret Fournier's breast, walked boldly out among the passengers; and securing a fire ax, he went from boat to boat on deck, smashing their frail sides so that there could be no pursuit, no retribution, if the two canoes could only get out of rifle range of the steamer.

Seeing now that the threat to Margaret Fournier's life had checked all thought of a rush, Father Claverly walked toward the stack of wolf skins, crossing himself as he stepped over the dark stream of blood that trickled slowly toward a scupper. Bending, he picked up the little Montgomery girl, who was looking with wide, uncomprehending eyes at the body of her father. Mercifully taking her away from there, he walked over to the rail, holding the little tot so that she could not look back.

The man beside him said in a low voice: "Look at that devil smashing the boats! They must have planned that 'caution aforehand, so we couldn't chase 'em. But don't that big red-haired devil know we'll be splattering their canoes afore they get ten rods gone? G—d!—what we'll do to them six!"

The whisper spread. . . . "Wait! Wait! they start away. . . ." Men folded their arms, and watched quietly, biding their moment of vengeance.

And then, when the canoes were loaded with their booty, the red-bearded leader played his last and best card. Flipping his gun at Margaret Fournier, he ordered her:

"Git down into one of them canoes, sister. We're going to carry you a couple miles up this Big Alooska here and set you off on a bar, see? We ain't meaning to harm you at all. Just start anking over and climbing down into a boat. . . . That's right; that's a sensible girl. . . ."

He raised his voice so that every one could hear; he spoke to Margaret Fournier, but his words were intended for the men aboard:

"Some of these fellows is figuring to shoot h— out of us afore we c'n git clean gone, see? But they'd better think twice about that. And I guess they will. First hunk of lead comes whistling our direction, you'll git a bullet squar' atween them pretty eyes, sister!"

CHAPTER II

A Northern Man

At Fort Endurance, in his big three-room cabin overlooking the rest of the post, Alan Baker was changing uniform and making himself regimental again, after a four-day patrol to a camp of drunken Hares.

Just turned thirty, tall and lanky and powerful of body, Baker had shaken off the last vestige of an unhappy boyhood and his three harrowing years Across. He was in the prime of a virile and hardened manhood. Coming here to Endurance as a corporal seven years ago, with Jimmy Montgomery and Curt Spaulding as his constable, he had speedily showed his worth as a "northern man" and a detachment leader able to cope with frontier problems. To him it was like coming into his own. In his boyhood he had daydreamed of hunting big game; and here, at this post just beneath the Arctic circle, these daydreams had been realized, though in a strange way. For here he had hunted the biggest of big game—human game that had intelligence to match against his; that carried a rifle in its hands, and wore a belt-gun, and must be captured alive, at risk of his own life.

During the years that he had been officer commanding here, he had built up an enviable reputation. With his gradually increasing pack of northern men he had successfully brought his big territory through Indian troubles and epidemics, and had smashed those lawless elements that came in with the oil-prospecting rushes farther south.

With a record like that and with Superintendent Williamson as his friend, Alan had expected to get his commission last fall when the post was raised to an inspectorate. No one in all the Three Rivers country doubted that Baker would be the chosen man. To them, to Alan, the blow came unexpectedly. A political appointee named Haskell, a newcomer to the Force, a worse than raw newcomer to the North, got the inspectorship and command of this coveted detachment.

In these last months, Alan had been very thoughtful about his future. Here, at thirty, he found himself in a blind alley, a non-com on meager pay, with no hope of promotion. He had turned down the opportunity of going into a big mining company that was prospecting by planes through the Athabasca country. He had refused half a dozen offers that held prospect of advancement and fine money. And then the Force that he had given such loyalty to had betrayed him. Worst of all, most stinging of all, he was forced to manage this territory still, straightening out the mistakes and enduring the arrogance of the man who had got the place he himself had earned.

Fortune in Croquet Box

A manuscript worth hundreds of dollars a page was found in the lumber room of an English castle.

One summer's day the guests of Lord Talbot de Malahide decided to play croquet and sent servants to fetch the mallets and hoops from their box in an old lumber room. The servants opened a box and, instead of mallets, found a mass of musty crumbling papers yellow with age.

These proved to be the manuscript writings of James Boswell, the great-grandfather of Lord Talbot, and among them were 107 pages of his famous Life of Johnson. Only 16 pages of this manuscript had been found before, and their owner was offered $75,000 for them.

GULF STREAM NOT CHANGING COURSE

Authority Says Belief Has No Foundation.

The ingenious who pin their faith upon the Gulf stream as the real explanation of all the current vagaries of our weather are assured by an article in the Merchant Marine Bulletin that they are wrong. The Gulf stream has not changed its course; it is, moreover, somewhat improbable that it ever will within our time. That familiar river of the ocean (which, according to a recent computation, has a discharge through the straits of Florida equal to twenty-two times the total discharge of all the rivers in the world) is directed by the action of the trade winds and the configuration of the coast and the ocean bottom; as long as the trades persist it would take a vast submarine upheaval to effect any permanent alteration in the Gulf stream's course, and nothing of the sort has been observed recently.

The minor variations which do occur owing to wind changes or the varying effects of the Labrador current are not enough to do much with New York weather, even though New Yorkers might wish that they were.

The same article reprints a facsimile of the first chart upon which the Gulf stream ever appeared. Although its existence had been known to mariners since the days of Ponce de Leon's expeditions to Florida, and it had had an important effect on the routes of the early transatlantic trade, this first chart of it did not appear until about 1770, when no less a scientific investigator than Benjamin Franklin got a Nantucket shipmaster to mark down the course of the current for him. The Nantucket man had learned it by experience and as a part of the professional lore of his trade; the resultant map was not very accurate, but for the earlier part of the course at any rate was good enough, both in direction and velocity. Though it had never before appeared on charts, it had been used by seamen in their business for 250 years; and it would be interesting to know how far the Gulf stream, as a part of the system of wind and current which made the West Indies the natural gateway to America rather than our own north Atlantic coast, has affected the history of this continent. We are familiar with the way in which the land rivers channel economic and political development; the similar effect of this sea river is less often spoken of.

Just the Scallops

The B family was enjoying a turkey dinner with all the "trimmings" and, of course, scalloped oysters were included. When they were passed to Kathleen, she was asked whether she would like to have some scalloped oysters. She replied:

"Well, I don't care for the oysters, but I will have some of the scallops."

Lee Sims Broadcast in a Bathing Suit

"Things are different now," remarked Lee Sims, NBC's master showman of the keys.

"Ten years ago my first radio job was with Charley Erbstein's station WTAS or Willy, Tommy, Annie and Sammy, as it was known in those days. The station was a remodeled stable, with the transmitter on the first floor and the luxurious studio in the hayloft.

"The equipment consisted of a cheap player piano, an old glow mike and 50 chairs which were used on Sundays when visitors were allowed. "Charlie and I were the entire artist staff.

"In the summertime the studio, due to the velour ceiling, would get so hot that we could not work in clothes, so I always wore a bathing suit. When it got too hot, Charlie and I would put a Lee Sims piano roll on the piano and take a dip in the swimming pool in the yard.

"But now," continued Lee, "I come down to work in my automobile or speedboat, enter the world's largest

To every mother who can't nurse her baby... NEWS!

When a mother's milk fails, nothing is more important than this—to be sure that the food that goes into her baby's bottle gives him just what he needs to make him rosy and healthy now, and build him a firm foundation for future health.

Test made with fifty babies

Recently, two physicians—specialists in baby diet—conducted a test with fifty average babies, to throw new light on this subject.

The food tested is one unique in infant feeding history. Next to mother's milk, it has raised more babies than any other food in the world. Over a period of 75 years, it has given millions their start in life. Throughout America, there are healthy babies, children, grown-ups, to prove the value of this amazingly digestible food.

Yet never before had scientists put this famous food—Eagle Brand Milk—to such a thorough, controlled, scientific test. What would such a test reveal?

Simple diet proves builder of 100% babies

For months, the two physicians fed those fifty babies on Eagle Brand—checking with closest care every detail of their health and growth. Bone structure was studied with the X-ray. Tooth development was watched. Weight and height were periodically recorded. Blood tests were made. . . .

And those fifty Eagle Brand babies, judged by every known test, proved themselves splendidly nourished. This simple diet—Eagle Brand, with merely the usual supplementary foods—had proved equal to the building of a 100% baby.

Now, science joins the millions of mothers who say, "We have our proof that Eagle Brand Milk is a truly valuable and effective food for a baby."

If you cannot nurse your baby, try Eagle Brand. Easy to prepare—merely add boiled water. Always pure, safe, free from dangerous germs. Keeps indefinitely in any climate. Simple feeding directions are on the label.

*The usual supplementary foods, of course, are orange or tomato juice, and cod-liver oil or other source of the anti-rachitic Vitamin D.

The bean used in chop suey is the mung bean. This is an oriental bean grown primarily in China and Japan. The bean sprouts grow to be from one to one and one-half inches long. It is only the bean sprout that is used, as practically all of the bean goes to sprout. For sprouting, the bean should be soaked 24 hours in water and then placed in a well drained container and kept at a medium temperature for about ten days. The bean should be moistened daily.

You say, "What is the answer?" I say: Too much politics, too many job hunters, too many people to be rewarded for political service. The duty of the government is not to employ all of the people who want jobs although a great many people think so. The function of government is to maintain law and order and to promote conditions that will leave to the individual citizen the fullest opportunity to conduct the social and economic business of the state along lines that will tend to give to all citizens of the state the greatest amount of prosperity and happiness.

One thing that will do more than any other to correct the above situation would be to fix it so that no governor could serve more than one term in office; make the term four years if you want to. If a governor could serve only one term there would be no need to build up a political machine; no need to consider what effect an appointment would have on his next election. The average governor makes around five thousand appointments during his term of office.

I believe that the governor of our state who holds the most important office in the gift of its people should be able to give his whole time and thought to the great problems that daily confront him, and that worry and planning incidental to a campaign for reelection should be removed by a constitutional provision prohibiting more than one term.

British Census

The first complete census in Great Britain was not taken until 1801. Before that time authorities had estimated the English population in 1570 at 4,160,221, in 1575 at 5,773,646. The census of 1801 showed the population of the United Kingdom to be 10,500,956. Since then the census has been taken every ten years.

European Pawnshops

The government pawnshops of France and Belgium are known as Monts-de-Piete, originally "Monts de Pitié" or Banks of Charity. They are colloquially known as one's "aunt."

Drains Vast Territory

The Black sea, which is one-sixth the size of the Mediterranean sea and five times as large as Lake Superior, drains nearly one-fourth of the surface of Europe.

the highway system that we now have.

While the weight tax may not be a fair method of taxing all automotive vehicles in order to take care of commercial traffic, it is generally agreed by most highway authorities that even the present weight tax is insufficient to cover proper charges against commercial automobile traffic. It certainly is not fair to the railroads that trucks engaged in commercial traffic should be allowed to enter into such unfair competition with these carriers at the expense of the public. The public owns the highway. It was built by the public, which also owns the right of way and maintains this highway. The trucks using these highways pay a very small percent of the building and upkeep. They are allowed to put the railroads out of business, because these railroads not only build and maintain their own expensive road but must pay taxes on their right of way as well. While the big cities are demanding this weight tax that is already insufficient in our area, we find today miles of roads, even state trunk lines, practically impassable from frost heaves. It seems that we may soon look forward to neither railroad or first class highway.

We in northern Michigan are very much opposed to any highway diversion. We not only believe it unwise but we think it unfair to our section of the state as well as to all the people in general, who pay the bill. However, if there must be a diversion we would like to see it distributed on a basis that will be fair to the sparsely settled sections of the state. Some of the southern counties are demanding the return of the weight tax to the counties on the basis of population in those counties. In other words they are claiming that the weight tax that they pay into the state is theirs and should come back to them. This is a very unreasonable claim. The money belongs to the roads on which the cars and trucks are used.

One speaker from Detroit calls this tax a personal property tax and says the state has been robbing the big cities for many years of money that should be returned to them. It seems that this would be a peculiar personal property when you do not have to pay the tax unless you use the property on the highways. It is very plain that is not to be considered as taxable property except in connection with the roads on which used. When your car is left in the garage you do not have to buy a license.

We have many county highways in the northern part of the state, that are not state trunk lines, on which a large percentage of the total traffic is foreign, much of this being from Wayne, Oakland and the various southern counties. To build and maintain these highways we have been raising five mills for county road work for many years, and this has been raised at the expense of many farms being sold for taxes and much land going back to the state, while some of these southern counties have been raising nothing for county road work. Some few have raised one mill. A few have even raised more than this but none approaching the amount we raise. The cars and trucks from the north that will be found on the county highways of these southern counties is such a small percentage as to be negligible. It seems that we are asked and expected to build and maintain our county highways, even though we are not able, for cars and trucks from other sections of the state, while those sections of the state demand our money and call it theirs. No fair distribution of the weight tax can be given on the basis of population or registration. Furthermore, our foreign traffic is increasing each year as the trunk line pavements from the south get closer to us.

It seems too bad that many of the officials from the big cities are not more state-minded. We are all supposed to be living in the same state and the building of roads is a state obligation, not a local proposition, otherwise cars and trucks should be restricted in their use of the roads to the area in which they pay their taxes. There is no fair way to build and maintain roads except that the user pay. The weight tax distribution should be according to traffic, and changed periodically as traffic varies.

Wooer From Afar

Some years ago when the last pair of white-tailed eagles were nesting in Scotland, one of the birds died. There was not another eagle of that species in the country, yet within a few days the remaining bird had signaled her loss to a continental bird and it came over and they mated.
