CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to the many friends and neighbors for their kind assistance during our bereavement in the loss of our daughter and sister; also for the beautiful flowers, those who loaned cars, the choir, and Rev. Sievert for his comforting words.

A pitchers' duel between Brown of Tawas City and Lane of Mikado was the highlight of Sunday's game in which Mikado squeezed out a 2 to 0 decision over the locals. The contest was a fast affair and took place at the Tawas City Athletic Field.

Both Brown and Lane were in top form, the former yielding but five hits while the latter granted three, all of which were well scattered. Hard luck cost Brown the game, when, in the sixth frame, two errors by his mates paved the way for Mikado's two runs.

Fighting on the part of both teams was very good. During the course of the game the locals completed three fast double plays. The line-up:

JAMES DUNN IN "SOCIETY GIRL" AT FAMILY

"Society Girl" the film drama showing Friday and Saturday, July 1-2, at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, pictures James Dunn and Peggy Shannon as the principals in a romance which has the heroine shying from wedding bells. With an unconcern for public opinion quite in keeping with the attitude of the smart set she represents, Miss Shannon brazenly leads Dunn on in a heart affair that is manifestly but a passing whim with her. Dunn, however, being a youngster from the masses where more old fashioned standards are still in vogue, considers being in love and wanting to marry somewhat the same thing.

Around this central point of difference, the dramatic conflict of the picture mounts through a vivid series of adventures said to be lightened by much humor and many deft characterizations to a climax that is reported to be as unusual as the dramatic theme. Spencer Tracy, as Dunn's chief adviser and closest pal, carries the chief responsibility of the supporting cast that also includes Walter Byron, Bert Hanlon and scores of others.

MISS ELSIE LANGE

Miss Elsie Lange, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lange, died on Saturday, June 18, after an illness of ten months.

The deceased was born in Tawas township October 17, 1908, and was 23 years, eight months and one day old at the time of death. After being ill for some time she went to the sanitarium at Howell in August, 1931, to seek to regain her health, and in December was sent to the University Hospital at Ann Arbor, where she made wonderful recovery. After a successful operation last Friday she suddenly took a turn for the worse the following day and died Saturday afternoon.

She leaves to mourn: Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lange, three sisters, Mrs. Elgin Ulman, Mrs. Carl Krumm, both of Tawas township, and Esther at home; one brother, Leo, at home; three nieces, also Immanuel Falkenburg, to whom she had been engaged for about two years, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon, June 21, at the Zion Lutheran church, Rev. F. A. Sievert officiating. Burial was made in the Zion Lutheran cemetery on the Plank road.

PLAN EXHIBITS NOW FOR FLOWER SHOW

The time for the Second Annual Flower Show of the Tawas City Woman's Club is drawing near and garden enthusiasts are urged to begin giving serious attention to their flowers.

This year, as last, the perfection of the bloom, the size, color, and quality will all be considered in the judging, and now is the time to train flowers for the attainment of these points so they may win one of the cash prizes which this year have been notably increased.

This is one of the outstanding social and horticultural events of the summer and everyone is invited to enter his exhibits. Although the exact date has not been set, it is to be some time in August.

IOSCO COUNTY SEVENTH GRADE EXAMINATIONS

There were one hundred nine pupils who wrote the state seventh grade examinations in Iosco County this year. Of this number sixty-two passed, forty-four were conditioned, and three will need to write the examination again next year. The highest averages were won by the following students:

Helen Furst, Alabaster, Grace Anderson teacher, average 91.9; Billy Makinen, Alabaster, Grace Anderson teacher, average 91.4; Mary Bamberber, Reno No. 2, Wallace Leslie teacher, average 90.

GLAMOROUS GRETA GARBO HERE AGAIN, AT FAMILY

The new motion picture, "As You Desire Me," starring Greta Garbo, is truly an event at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Sunday and Monday, June 26-27.

We believe she has never been more alluring than now, in this absorbing romance. It has been prophesied that Greta Garbo will take her place among the immortals of the world of acting, that years from now each of her dramas will live to be viewed again and again. We are of a generation which acclaims this exquisite personality at the height of her glory!

The story, the acting, and the direction all tend to hold you tightly in their grasp until the final fade-out. And Garbo! At times she is simply exquisite, especially when she dons that gown of 10 years ago. When she does, she's as sweet as any ingenue on the screen today. And that platinum blonde wig at the start of the picture plus the audience gasping for breath.

In this picture she shows her ability to build up humorous situations, and then in her drunk scenes she still further emphasizes her ability as one of the greatest players in years.

WHITE PINE BLISTER RUST CONTROL AT FEDERAL NURSERY

Work has started at the Federal Nursery at East Tawas under the direction of Gordon Fox of the United States Department of Agriculture to protect the white pine stock grown there from white pine blister rust.

The white pine blister rust is a fungus disease (not a worm) which lives only on the inner bark of white pine trees and in the leaves of currant and gooseberry bushes. In order to prevent this disease from damaging and destroying white pine, all currant and gooseberry bushes must be destroyed within the white pine stand and also within an area embraced by a 900 foot radius drawn from the edge of the stand. As long as these bushes continue to grow, they offer a constant menace to the white pine in the vicinity.

White pine blister rust has been found both on ribes (currant and gooseberry bushes) and on white pine in Iosco county.

The services of a trained foreman from the U. S. Department of Agriculture are placed at the disposal of this and other localities. The Federal Government is taking this means of helping communities protect the present stands of white pine and insure their future growth. This protection service is available to all white pine owners or those interested in planting white pine.

All the department asks for is the cooperation of the pine owner to assist in the removal of the currant and gooseberry bushes.

For further details about this work leave your name and address with the Forest Service at East Tawas.

"PEACH O' RENO" IS COMEDY TEAM'S NEW LAUGH HIT

That wisecracking, irrepressible pair of gloom chasers, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, poke the merry finger of satire at Reno and the wholesale divorce industry in their newest starring comedy which shows at the State Theatre next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The film is RKO-Radio Pictures' "Peach O' Reno" which rolls along with the gayest and merriest abandon and builds up to a crescendo of funny situations.

Cast as divorce lawyers in this Mecca of liberated womanhood, the comedians make most of their original lines and build their humorous plot through an amazing series of tongue-in-the-cheek situations and slapstick moments, building to a hilarious finish when the divorce courtroom suddenly loses its dignity and becomes an inspired Tim Pan Alley of jazz.

HERBERT HOOVER

Hoover and Curtis Are Renominated by G. O. P.

Convention in Chicago Upholds the Administration in Every Particular—Moderate Prohibition Resubmission Plank Adopted, Repealists Being Defeated—France's Attempt to Nominate Coolidge Foiled.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Chicago.—The Republican party in national convention in Chicago re-nominated Herbert Hoover for a second term, which surprised no one in all the world unless it might have been Dr. Joseph I. France of Maryland, the only other contender for the high honor.

In the matter of selecting Mr. Hoover's running mate, however, the unexpected almost happened. Many of the delegates had expressed the opinion that Vice President Curtis should be set aside, not because he was not loyal to the party or not able, but because they thought a younger man would be needed in the strenuous campaign ahead. Besides, the aged Kansas was too dry to suit the wets. So, the day the convention opened there appeared a sudden, spontaneous movement, that grew rapidly, for the drafting of Charles Gates Dawes, the Chicagoan who has filled many important posts, including the Vice Presidency. It was felt the dynamic banker and diplomat would be a good vote-getter, probably serving to hold in line many dissatisfied Republicans.

But General Dawes, just as he relinquished in Washington his latest position, the presidency of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, informed the press that he would not accept the nomination if it were offered him. At the same time word came from the National Capital, apparently authentic, that Mr. Hoover wished the convention to re-nominate Mr. Curtis.

The anti-Curtis people were not yet through and approached Secretary of War Pat Hurley, but the Oklahoman turned them away with the statement: "I can't quit Charles Curtis, for he is my friend. I am for him, and will not be a candidate." The same word came from Theodore Roosevelt, governor general of the Philippines, who was mentioned as a possibility, as was Ambassador Walter E. Edge. So, with scattered opposition, Mr. Curtis was re-nominated.

Moderate Prohibition Plank.

Transcending in importance the choice of leaders, in the eyes of the nation, was the convention's action Wednesday night in regard to prohibition. The preliminary battle of the wets and the dries had been waged fiercely, and in the end neither side won. For the gathering was sternly ruled by the conservative element and the victory went to the "moist." No one of the practical politicians denied that something must be done in the way of furthering modification of prohibition legislation. The demand for this was too general to be ignored, and then, too, it was certain the Democrats would go a long way in that direction. But the President and his advisers, together with the more conservative leaders in the convention, believed that a plank limited to submission of flat repeal or retention of the Eighteenth amendment would be a political error that would alienate too many votes.

So after long conferences and much warm debate the platform committee prepared a resolution, approved by the White House, the main paragraph of which declared the Republicans "believe that the people should have an opportunity to pass upon a proposed amendment the provision of which, while retaining in the federal government power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherent in the liquor traffic, shall allow states to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but subject always to the power of the federal government to protect those states where prohibition may exist and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and attendant abuses."

Repeal Resolution Beaten.

The repealers, under the leadership of Senator Bingham of Connecticut, formulated a minority substitute for this plank, and argued for its adoption with vigor and skill. The majority resolution was supported with equal determination in a debate that lasted two hours, with frequent noisy interruptions from the thronged galleries. Probably not a single vote was changed by the oratory and pleas. The middle-of-the-roads were in the majority and the plank offered by the liberals was rejected by a vote of 681 to 472.

The Bingham resolution was as follows:

"We recommend that the congress of the United States immediately propose an amendment to the federal Constitution repealing the Eighteenth amendment thereto; to be submitted to conventions of the people of the several states called for that sole purpose in accordance with the provisions of Article V of the Constitution of the United States.

"Should the Eighteenth amendment be repealed we pledge our best efforts toward enactment of such measures in the several states as will actually promote temperance, effectively abolish the saloon, whether open or concealed, and bring the liquor traffic itself under complete public supervision and control with revenues properly drawn from legalized sources for the relief of the burdened taxpayers."

Opening of the Convention.

With solemnity, considerable dignity and very little enthusiasm the convention was formally opened half an hour late on Tuesday morning. The sections for delegates and alternates were filled, but in the galleries were great numbers of unoccupied seats. The band played intermittently, the news photographers shot their flash lamps continually in front of every notable, and finally Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the national committee, nattily clad, stepped to the speaker's stand, sternly ordered the flood lights turned down and started proceedings with a little talk in which he called attention to the fact that Flag day was being celebrated. Thereupon half a dozen American Legion flags were brought in and grouped in front of the stand, a huge flag was let down from the center of the roof, the four big batteries of flood lights were turned full on the Stars and Stripes and the band struck up the national anthem as the multitude stood.

Chairman Fess then introduced Silas Strawn, head of the citizens' committee, who spoke briefly, giving due credit to Edward N. Hurley, a Democrat, who did the chief work in obtaining and preparing for the convention; and following him came Mayor Anton Cermak with a cordial welcome to the delegates and mention of the many attractions offered them by Chicago.

The invocation was delivered by Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Washington, D. C. It was a humble acknowledgment of our sins and faults that have brought us to the present sad condition and a plea for help and guidance in the task of getting back to "honest industry, sound learning and pure manners."

Now came the election of Senator Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa as temporary chairman—a mere formality—and the white-haired keynoter promptly began the delivery of the speech on which he and various party leaders had labored many hours.

Dickinson's Keynote Speech.

Senator Dickinson's address was a commendable effort under rather difficult circumstances. Despite the condition into which the country, together with the rest of the world, has fallen, he found many reasons to "point with pride" to the achievements of the administration; and he did not fail to give credit to President Hoover personally for much of what has been accomplished or attempted in the way of restoring economic prosperity. Said he:

"Perhaps it was with prophetic vision that the American people elected Herbert Hoover four years ago with the greatest popular and electoral college vote any President ever received. At any rate, he had scarcely taken the oath of his office before economy storm clouds had begun to cast their sinister shadow over the nations of the world.

"His first act prevented a financial panic. Invoking the powers of the federal reserve board, he prevented this catastrophe. Thus he cushioned the effects of the debacle in Wall Street which followed the greatest period of stock speculation the world had ever known.

Social Order Maintained.

"With the knowledge that every major economic convulsion in the past had been attended by strikes, riots, bloodshed, and death, President Hoover's next concern was to maintain social order.

"To this end he summoned to the White House industrial leaders of the nation and obtained from them a promise to maintain existing wage scales as long as it was possible to do so. On the same day leaders of organized labor, sitting around the same conference table, gave their pledge that there would be no industrial wage disturbances."

The speaker then contrasted the stable social order in America with the chaos that prevailed in many countries abroad, and told of Mr. Hoover's drastic action in proposing the moratorium that averted world-wide catastrophe. He followed with a relation of the creation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and of other measures initiated by the President.

The Democrats were scored for their alleged efforts to distort every move Mr. Hoover made, and especially for their efforts to inflate the national currency.

Praise for the Farm Board.

With considerable adroitness Senator Dickinson even managed to defend the federal farm board's doings. On this subject he said:

"The farm board has been the butt of much criticism, the greater part of which is unjust. We have heard much abuse of the board's operations in stabilization of cotton and wheat by its financing of co-operatives to purchase these commodities, but we have heard very little of the fact that by its entry into the market in February during the crop year of 1930 and again in November of the next crop year it stemmed the panic which had broken agricultural prices.

"The farm board held prices in each of these two crops above world levels to such a degree that the very moderate estimate of the amount realized by the American farmer over and above what they would have realized otherwise is between $2,000,000,000 and $3,000,000,000.

"It matters little if the government loses $150,000,000 for the savings it made to homes of farmers throughout this whole land. It was throwing a regiment into the front of the battle to lose, but saved millions.

"Directly and indirectly, the federal government has, during the last three years, poured into the agricultural industry nearly one billion dollars. Grievous as his suffering may be, no farmer can deny the undeviating friendship of the Republican party."

The keynoter spoke long and fluently, but said not a single word about the prohibition problem.

Early in his address Senator Dickinson mentioned President Hoover, and the delegates and alternates rose en masse, cheering and shouting, while the band broke out in a patriotic tune. But the demonstration was a feeble effort and did not last long.

Bertrand Snell Takes Command.

Wednesday's first session was given over to the permanent organization of the convention and reports of several committees. Representative Bertrand H. Snell of New York was elected permanent chairman and on receiving the gavel from Senator Dickinson he launched immediately into his lengthy address. He declared the future of the country was safe only if the Republicans are again entrusted with its management, and he pictured the tragedy that would result if the Democrats win control.

"Victory has come to the Republican

High Spots of the Platform

For reorganization of government bureaus in the interest of economy.

For an emergency relief fund to be loaned to any state temporarily for unemployment relief.

For public economy and balancing of governmental budgets.

For reduction of public expenditure.

For adherence to the gold standard and against currency inflation.

For revision of banking laws to protect the depositing public.

For an international conference on monetary questions, including the matter of silver and commodity prices.

For a home loan discount bank system for the benefit of home owners.

Pledges the party to the principle of assisting co-operatives through the farm marketing act, which it says will be amended as necessary.

For revision of the tariff to put farm and factory on equality of protection.

Pledges itself to support any plant to help balance production against demand and raise farm prices, if it is sound, and not productive of bureaucracy.

Calls for tax relief.

For a flexible tariff and for adequate tariff protection as essential to national welfare.

Against transference from the president to congress of the authority to put into effect findings of the tariff commission.

Favoring extension of tariff protection to natural resource industries, farms, forests, mines and oil wells.

For full and adequate relief for disabled service men and their widows and orphans.

Indorses Hoover's foreign policies.

For adherence to the world court.

For reduction of armament, but not for reducing our navy defenses below those of any other nation.

On wages and work the labor planks favor the shorter work week and shorter work day, restriction of immigration, collective bargaining, freedom of speech, press, and assemblage.

As to public utilities the platform is for giving the federal power commission authority to regulate the charges for electric current when transmitted between states.

The platform also stands for: Regulation of common carriers by rail, highway, air, and water to let them operate under conditions of equality.

The St. Lawrence seaway.

Continuance of federal policy of state aid in building roads.

Rigid laws to stamp out gangsters, racketeers, and kidnapers.

Conservation of natural resources from monopolistic control.

Equal opportunity and rights for negroes.

popular airs he knew. At last Chairman Snell obtained order and introduced James R. Garfield, chairman of the committee on resolutions, to submit the platform.

The document was long, as always. The introduction was the usual laudation of the doings of the party and the administration during the past three and a half years, and then came thirty-eight planks covering a wide range of subjects. Mild demonstrations of approval from various delegations marked the reading of resolutions in which they were especially interested, but everyone in the Stadium, delegates and spectators alike, was waiting eagerly for the prohibition plank.

At last Mr. Garfield, pausing a second, uttered the words: "The Eighteenth amendment," and instantly a roar of joyous anticipation broke out. The preamble displaced no one, until the speaker read the sentence:

"We do not favor a submission limited to the issue of retention or repeal." Then came applause from the conservatives that was utterly drowned out by the angry boos and jeers of the occupants of the galleries. The uproar continued until Chairman Snell was forced to appeal to the audience to "pay attention to Mr. Garfield and not to partisanship."

When the clamor was stilled Mr. Garfield hurriedly completed the reading of the platform and moved its adoption.

Bingham Offers Repeal Substitute.

Then stepped forward Senator Hiram Bingham, protagonist in the flat repeal movement, to present the minority substitute for the prohibition plank. White haired, lean, and right on edge, he looked every inch the fighter as he looked out over the house with a grim smile. The repealers among the delegations and in the galleries—the latter appeared to be unanimous—instantly started a tremendous demonstration, the standards of many of the wet states being carried through the aisles, together with collections of beer steins and "growlers." The repeal plank being modeled on that adopted the previous week by the Indiana Republican convention, the Hoosier delegation paraded behind a huge banner lettered with the words "Indiana Demands Repeal" and "Indiana Leads the Way." Dry delegates of the state of Washington fought hand to hand with their wet colleagues to keep their standard from being added to the procession, and won the battle with the aid of the police.

Response to Senator Bingham's arguments was so fervid and loud that one might have thought his cause was won, if it were not for the knowledge that the contest had already been decided in the caucuses of the state delegations.

Galleries Boo Garfield.

Garfield took the floor again to defend, needlessly, the majority report, and in opening he deplored the fact that in the midst of a great economic crisis, with problems of vast import pressing for solution, the party should be compelled to spend so much time on the prohibition question. Then he accused the repeal advocates of offering no constructive substitute for prohibition.

"They ask us," said Garfield, "to go back to those conditions of which the younger people of our generation know nothing—"

The speaker was cut short by an outbreak of bedlam. It began with some scattering hoots and then, gathering volume, burst into a deafening tornado of derision, dying down as quickly as it rose.

"Yes, my friends, I repeat," Garfield resumed.

Another avalanche of derisive yells.

"I repeat—"

Another torrent of howls.

Chairman Snell hammered and hammered until he almost broke his gavel, and finally, reminding the galleries that they were the guests of the convention, he threatened to have them all ejected, which would have been some job for the sergeants at arms. Mr. Garfield was reasonably patient and at last was allowed to finish, though he was heartily booed as he stepped back to his chair.

Blast From Butler.

Next came Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, the militant president of Columbia university, and a leader of the nation's wets. He described the majority plank as "the worst proposition almost that has been made," a misleading proposal that would give us years of litigation, and he contradicted Mr. Garfield's assertion that the repealers offered no substitute for the prohibition amendment in the way of national control of liquor. He lauded party loyalty but shouted "What comes first is party honesty and courage."

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden

Mills, speaking presumably for the administration, ably supported the plank that had been drafted with his assistance. His most striking assertion was: "The submission of the question 'Shall we repeal or retain?' leaves it to the people to make the choice of whether to endure the evils of today or to return to the evils of the old saloon and the old liquor traffic. The minority report gives the choice between the speakasy and the saloon and gives no other choice. It returns to the conditions before the Eighteenth amendment.

"The difference between the two proposals is this; The minority report holds a promise and hope that the saloon will not return. Our proposal is such that nowhere can the saloon come back as an American institution again. We propose to protect the nation against the return of conditions which Americans never want to see again."

These big guns were followed in rapid succession by others of considerable caliber and some who were more like poptons. Col. Ambrose Kennedy of Rhode Island, Walter S. Fenton of Vermont, Mrs. Agnes Jones Gifford of Nevada were among the supporters of the minority report.

The allotted time having expired, Chairman Snell ordered the roll called on the motion to substitute the minority plank for that offered by the majority. The result was that the repealers were defeated by 681 to 472. Their vote was really considerably larger than they had expected. Many of the delegations were split.

Hurriedly the chairman put the motion to adopt the majority report as a whole, and declared it carried by a viva voce vote. By this time it was after one o'clock and the weary Republicans were glad to adjourn and get a little sleep.

Herbert Hoover Nominated.

Every one stood up and sang a stanza of America to open the final session at 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning. The call of the roll was ordered for nominations for the Presidency, Alabama yielded to California, and Joseph Scott took the rostrum to present the name of Herbert Hoover. The distinguished lawyer and eminent Roman Catholic talked eloquently and at length about California and the West generally, and then pronounced the necessary eulogy on Mr. Hoover. As he uttered the name the band in the gallery blared forth, another band entered playing and the stated demonstration began. Nearly every state standard was carried in the procession through the aisles, together with some huge banners and other devices, and from nets in the ceiling hundreds of toy balloons, each bearing the word "Hoover," were released to float down among the delegates and guests.

Even the most ardent Republican could not claim that the demonstration was a real success. It was kept going for thirty minutes, but only with the help of the hard working bands and the vociferations of a few enthusiasts. However, it sufficed.

No other state offered a candidate until Oregon was reached. Then a Mr. L. B. Sandblast of Portland stepped forward and told of the many reasons why, in his opinion, the convention should select former Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland for the party's standard bearer. Mild applause.

France's Scheme Squelched.

"The secretary will proceed with the roll call," said Chairman Snell.

But Doctor France had another idea. Pushing his way onto the rostrum, he demanded a chance to speak, and when the chairman refused, he shook his fist in Mr. Snell's face. Half a dozen officials and one policeman hastened to the rescue and France, still protesting, was hustled back. It was generally supposed at first that he had desired to speak in his own behalf, but the truth was he intended to withdraw his own candidacy and put Calvin Coolidge in nomination for the Presidency. This did not accord at all with the plans of the managers of the convention, so he was squelched.

It is needless to give the details of the vote for the Presidential nominee. Suffice it to say that Mr. Hoover received 1,223½ votes, the rest of the 1,154 being scattered among Coolidge, Dawes, Wadsworth, France and Blaine of Wisconsin. On motion of a gentleman from Oregon the nomination was made unanimous.

Vice President Curtis was proposed for renomination by Mr. Scott of Kansas. Iowa, through Darling the cartoonist, offered the name of Hanford MacNider. New York put forward Gen. James G. Harbord, and Florida asked consideration for J. Leonard Repliege. All these gentlemen got some votes, but Mr. Curtis was an easy winner.

Notification committees were named, thanks voted to Chicago and other formalities carried out, and then in mid-afternoon the Republican national convention of 1932 came peacefully to an end.

Nine delegates from Wisconsin who belong to the La Follette faction incurred the wrath of their colleagues on the opening day because they failed to rise when Temporary Chairman Dickinson first mentioned the President, and again kept their seats when the flag was unfurled, rising only as the national anthem was played after Mayor G. W. Meade of Wisconsin Rapids had cried shame at them. The conservative delegates from the Badger state held a special caucus on this matter and denounced the La Follette men bitterly. Many of them favored asking the credentials committee to unseat the La Follettes, but this, it was decided, might make them martyrs.

Modern Contract Bridge By Lelia Hattersley

The Distributional Count

TO START with an orderly process of constructive thinking concerning the worth of the actual cards which you hold when making the most usual bid at contract, a suit bid of one, let us realize how many tricks you are undertaking to win and ascertain what will be the probable source of these tricks. When bidding one you contract for seven tricks. Of course you are not expected to take all seven tricks yourself. Your hand is supposed to furnish at least four of the contract, and you are permitted to count on finding about three assisting tricks in your partner's hand.

To see how your own four tricks can be counted, let us take this clear-cut type of a minimum one heart bid:

S-8-6-4 H-A-Q-9-3 D-A-8-6-4 C-7-6

(When vulnerable, this hand would be too weak for an opening bid. Vulnerable, a four-card suit bid must hold at least a queen better than the minimum.) Obviously as only 2½ of your tricks appear in honors, something additional must be produced from the length or distribution of your suits. One of these expected playing tricks is a small heart; because in bidding a suit, you are always permitted to count one playing trick for every trump over three, that is, one end trick in a four-card trump suit, two end tricks in a five-card trump suit, and three end tricks in a six-card trump suit. This brings your hand to a total of 3½ playing tricks. Where is the other ½ to be found?

In another "long-card," the fourth diamond, which has about a fifty-fifty chance of setting up as an eventual winner. In side suits, you may give the value of ½ playing trick to every card over three—just half the value of "long-cards" in the trump suit. Thus you get the value of the above hand as a total of 4 playing tricks which include 2½ honor-tricks.

Now, suppose that you have bid one heart on the holding above described. Your valuation is sound because unless your partner has adequate trump support it is improbable that you will ever play the hand at hearts. If he held the balance of honor strength but lacked trump support, your partner would take you out. If he lacked both honor strength and trump support, the opponents would declare their strength, relieving you of your responsibility. In no case could you rebid such a hand at hearts, even though your partner gave you every encouragement to do so.

When opening an original bid in a suit, the estimate of your playing tricks is based entirely on honor-cards and long cards in trumps and side suits. Singletons or void suits cannot be counted as extra tricks because the trumps in your hand have already been estimated as playing tricks. To add a value for singletons or void suits would simply amount to counting the same tricks twice. A particular warning must be given against this error, often made by fairly experienced players. A short suit or void is as we shall see, an extremely valuable asset in the assisting hand to a trump bid. But in the declarer's hand it has only a slight promotional value, too indefinite to count.

The Count of Long Suit Tricks in Declarer's Hand

	In Declarer's	In a
	trump suit	side suit
A 4-card length is worth	1 trick	½ trick
A 5-card length is worth	2 tricks	1 trick
A 6-card length is worth	3 tricks	1½ tricks

As a matter of fact, in the first declaration of a suit bid, it is not necessary to count playing tricks. All sound opening suit bids of one show about 4 playing tricks for the reason that there must be no less than 2½ honor-tricks in the hand and at least one long suit trick in trumps; an additional ½ trick can almost invariably be eked out somewhere. But in considering rebids, after your partner has raised, or sometimes after he has denied your suit, it is absolutely essential that you count your playing tricks and ascertain how much, if any, additional value you have for a rebid. Remember that the bidder's sum of playing tricks is his total of long card tricks and honor-tricks. In other words, playing tricks and honor-tricks are not separate values but a suit total.

Some surprising facts have been compiled by the National Geographic society. The city of Reno, Nev., is 100 miles farther west than Los Angeles, Jacksonvile, Fla., is farther west than Cleveland, Ohio. One travels south from Detroit to reach the nearest part of Canada. (WNU Service)

"IT'S a lie! The wicked don't flee and they aren't punished, either!" Clarice Mackay burst into the room and dug her little fingers into the palms of her hands to keep from screaming.

"Have you lost your mind?" asked Alice Dalmain, calmly looking at her roommate. "For a bachelor girl you certainly lack the poise that is part of our creed."

Clarice merely gave her friend a withering glance, flung her hat on the table and herself into the deep chair by the window.

"But it's the third time this week!" she said after a moment.

"What's the third time this week?" asked Alice, glancing across at the slender little figure. Clarice was a lovely girl, Alice reflected, but terribly lacking in poise and so utterly dependent upon Jack Withers for her happiness, Alice amended more fairly.

"You know that little widow, Mrs. Holcombe?" Clarice went on. "Well, she was at the dance Halloween night and I, like an idiot, introduced Jack to her, and the minute she spoke to him I knew it was all up with me. I could see him falling for her right on the spot. She has that pitiful little girl oh-oh-I'm-too-little-and-frightened-to-cross-the-street-alone manner about everything she does. Oh, her technique is perfect. Don't fret, she's got him bound and gagged. I've seen her with him three times this week and I'll bet he's spent more money on her already than he has on me in all the two years he's known me. She's deadly. That's the dreadful part about it. If it were some little lonely girl I could almost resign myself thinking about how happy Jack was making her, but that thing goes after every man in sight. I know her! And when she sees me she's so sweet to me I could kill her; drags me into the drug store and treats me and gushes over me and simply ignores my icy manner. It's impossible to squelch her. Oh, Alice, I'm so wretched I could die! And the worst is she's so attractive and vampish she could marry anybody, and then to go and take Jack away from me, and after I'd introduced him to her."

"Never mind, honey," soothed Alice. "Don't you pay any attention to her, and when Jack comes around be just as nice to him as ever. He'll get over it. A girl of that type can't hold a man—that is, not a sensible man—long. They'll all fall for her at first, but they soon find out there's nothing to her. He'll get over it before long."

"Get over it!" sneered Clarice. "You ought to see the adoring way he looks at her. He's head over heels in love with her, and she's just pulling him along for all she's worth."

"I wouldn't be too sure," said Alice, "and I'd let him see me with other men every chance I got. I'd go to dances and movies and anywhere I could."

"What heart have I to do anything?" said Clarice with exasperation. "I only want to die!"

But all the same she did take Alice's advice and a few weeks later found herself one evening at a party, one of a dozen guests, among them Jack and Mrs. Holcombe. Jack's manner was strained and he seemed embarrassed in Clarice's presence, but the little widow was her usual gay, playful self. When she saw Jack talking to Clarice she went over to him and tugged at his arm.

"Naughty boy," she teased. "Come away. You brought little Evelyn to the party and not Miss Mackay. I won't love oo any more, ever, ever again!"

Jack flushed and looked silly. Somehow he felt that she had made a fool of him in the presence of his erstwhile sweetheart.

"Isn't he naughty, naughty, Miss Mackay?" she asked, looking mischievously at Clarice.

"I don't think so," the girl answered in her most cheerful manner. "I think he's nice."

"Thanks, Clarice, you always were a trump!" said Jack warmly. For the first time in Mrs. Holcombe's shallow little life she felt defeated. With a toss of her golden head she turned away from the two and joined another group across the room. Clarice was happier than she had been in weeks. She put a gentle hand on Jack's arm.

"You'd better go back to her, dear," she said kindly. "After all, you are her escort tonight!"

"Yes, but darned if I'll ever be again. That is, if you'll take me back—for keeps this time," he said, turning away and going toward the widow.

The next day he called Clarice Mackay up for a date, and now certain that she had won him back she told Alice all about the little incident of the night before.

"It seems to me the wicked generally punish themselves," said Alice thoughtfully. "She cooked her own goose that time by making him appear ridiculous in public."

"Maybe so," sighed Clarice, "but now I've got him back I don't care about anything."

YOU KNOW a bargain when you see it. Cast a thrifty eye on what you are offered here.

Goodyear quality—Goodyear value—stout, husky, handsome tires with the Goodyear name on every sidewall—at the lowest prices in rubber history!

Goodyear builds these Speedway Tires with patented Super-twist, that famous cord material which gives tires longer life. And every one of these tires has a lifetime guarantee.

You can get such amazing values because Goodyear builds millions more tires than any other rubber company.

And if you stop to wonder why Goodyear builds more tires—here's the answer: more people want Goodyear Tires, more people buy them, because experience shows they're the best tires on the road.

That makes it easy for you to get the best tire for your money. Just ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more?

God of Fellowship Is Need of Present Day

It would seem fitting that the exigencies of the weather which so much concerned the religion of ancient time should find its corollary in modern industrial life in the problem of unemployment. In this day of social worship, of a social interpretation of the Gospel we would paraphrase Elijah and cry: "The God that answereth by fellowship, let him be God!" And with a new consciousness of belonging to one another, make our prayers and deeds concern themselves more directly with the intimate life problem of our own day, with the problem that concerns the great majority of men and women. It is not enough that economists should point the way out. "If to labor is to pray," as the old monks said, then an active co-operation of heart and mind directed toward such a great social end is the direct obligation and the immediate concern of the churches in the present trend of social enlightenment upon this human issue.—The Churchman.

Mr. and Mrs. George Blust and children visited relatives here last week. Quite a number from here attended the all day meeting at Whittemore Sunday at the L. D. S. church.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller and friends of Bay City called on friends here last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hughes of East Tawas visited their father, E. Webb, on Sunday. We are glad Eric Falkenberg is able to be out again, after being sick for the past two months.

Mrs. Felix Hartman, Mrs. Ola Snyder, Walter Peck and Ernest Peck, all of Detroit were called here by the death of their cousin, Miss Elsie Lange.

Our community was saddened by the death of Miss Elsie Lange. Although she has been ill for the past year, her death came as a great shock to her many friends. She was greatly loved and respected by everyone. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the family and other relatives.

"SIX CYLINDERS no more-no less" says America

Since January 1st, buyers have chosen more Chevrolet Sixes than the combined total of all fours and all eights priced below $1000

Look at what happened when America began lifting hoods and counting cylinders: Overwhelming preference for "SIX CYLINDERS. No more—No Less." A sweeping endorsement of the soundness and correctness of the Chevrolet six-cylinder engine!

America knows its motor cars. And America knows that six is the largest number of cylinders you can have in a low-priced car and get unexcelled economy! That six is the fewest you can have in a car and still get built-in smoothness!

America prefers the Chevrolet Six—because it strikes a happy medium between two extremes. It gives economy—the lowest operating and upkeep cost of any American car. It gives smoothness—the built-in smoothness that makes driving really enjoyable! And it gives many other advantages that are just as essential as six cylinders! Big, spacious, luxurious Fisher bodies. Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh shifting. An advanced chassis of proved design. Four parallel-mounted springs. Four hydraulic shock absorbers. And new reduced prices, as much as $50 and $55 lower than they were before!

Chevrolet is able to give you all this value, because Chevrolet is the world's largest producer of motor cars. Largest for three out of the past five years! Largest for the first six months of 1932! First in value—First in sales!

Japanese Keep Dry With Dried Rice

THESE three figures are not Japanese scarecrows, but are real live peasants keeping themselves dry as they work in the rice fields. The jaunty raincoats are made of dried rice and are worn with hats that look very much like radio amplifiers. Despite the encroachments of modern science into the daily lives of the Japanese, this style of raincoat has persisted for seven centuries.

LITTLE BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PADDY THE BEAVER sees other people a great deal oftener than they see him. Paddy is one of those who believe in seeing but remaining himself unseen. There isn't must that goes on around that little pond which he himself made deep in the Green Forest of which Paddy doesn't know. It is one of the advantages of living in the water most of the time that you can disappear any time anywhere, and no one on shore knows where you have gone. A least you can if you can swim like Paddy the Beaver or his cousin, Jerry Muskrat, or Billy Mink, or Little Joe Otter. All you have to do is to dive and then swim under water to some place where you can watch all that goes on. Simple, isn't it?

"What Can He Want of That?" Thought Paddy.

On this particular day, the very day when Buster Bear found the storehouse of Busy Bee and Farmer Brown's Boy discovered both, Paddy the Beaver had spent most of his time sleeping in his house out in the pond. You see inside that house it was dark and cool and comfortable, while outside the sun was very, very bright and hurt Paddy's eyes, which are not very strong. The air was hot and even the water was warm, warmer than Paddy liked. He much prefers to be abroad at night anyway. So inside his house Paddy dozed and was very comfortable and was sorry for his neighbors who had no such cool place to go on a hot day. Once in a while he would go out just to see that all was well or to pass the time of day with Mr. or Mrs. Quack.

It was on one of these occasions that Paddy's keen ears heard just the faintest sound in the Green Forest. He was among some rushes which grew on one side of his pond, a favorite retreat of the Quack family. Mr. Quack heard it, too. "Some one is coming," he whispered, and with a low quack awakened all the young Quacks, for they were taking a nap. Instantly their heads popped out from under their wings, and with their heads stretched up they sat perfectly still listening. Paddy swam to the edge of the rushes, where with only his head out of water he could see and not be seen.

The noise grew louder. Whoever was coming was not trying to steal up to the pond silently, and this was a good sign. No one who wanted to harm them ever would approach so noisily. Nearer came the noise, and it was quite clear to Paddy and to all the Quack family that whoever it was was in a hurry. Presently Paddy saw something moving just over on the other side of the pond, and in a minute out stepped Farmer Brown's Boy. At the edge of the pond he stooped down and scooped up a handful of soft, wet mud.

"What can he want of that?" thought Paddy. Then his eyes grew round with wonder. Farmer Brown's Boy was plastering that black, wet mud on his nose and his forehead and the back of his neck and on one of his hands! Then he sighed, and so still was it there around Paddy's pond that sigh could be heard over where Paddy was.

Paddy wasn't sure, but it sounded to him very much like a sigh of relief. Then Farmer Brown's Boy sat down in the shade of a tree half hidden by an old stump and once more it was as still as if there were no living being around Paddy's pond. But it wasn't still very long. A twig snapped over in the Green Forest near the foot of Paddy's pond where he had built his dam. Some one else was coming and wasn't trying to walk softly. Paddy looked at Mr. Quack and Mr. Quack looked at Paddy, and then both fixed their gaze on the place from which the noise was drawing near. Out on the shore of the pond walked Buster Bear. And such a sight as he was! Bits of bark and twigs and dead leaves and plain dirt stuck all over him. He was a sight! He was grumbling and whining. For just a minute he sat up and looked all over Paddy's pond. He wrinkled his til he was covered with mud from head to feet. He rubbed his nose and the top of his head in it. When he got through he certainly was the worst looking bear ever was. Paddy blinked and looked at Mr. Quack. Mr. Quack blinked and looked at Paddy. They were seeing strange things that afternoon. (© 1932, by T. W. Burgess.)—WNU Service.

Use Gay Colored Linen for Festive Occasions

When you ask your friends in to luncheon or your husband's friends in for cocktails, remember that they like that festive air produced by tiny cocktail napkins, finger-tip towels and tray cloths of sheer Irish linen. The gayer the colors the better. A rainbow of fringed linen finger-tip towels decorates any bathroom effectively. If your party is informal and the guests stay to wash up the glasses, have two or three linen glass towels with exotic colored centers, showing a shaker pouring liquid into a glass, or fruit flowing from a horn of plenty. These little gadgets help to make your party a success just as much as brilliant conversation.

Fight That Pleased Romans

The prodigious strength of the bear, which makes him a by-no-means unworthy antagonist of the lion in a fight did not escape the attention of old-time writers. In later days such contests were popular in Roman amphitheaters, and bears were almost as valuable as lions to those who provided the costliest shows ever provided for the people's amusement, those in Roman amphitheaters in the days of Nero and Caligula.

THE STORY

Six bandits hold up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the MacKenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sgt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father. Joyce defends him. Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska and catches sight of the bandits. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits and returns to Fort Endurance.

When he finished his report, Haskell made no comment. Wondering at his cool air, Alan was silent a few moments. He could not understand the man's nonchalance. This was war between them; each knew it; and yet Haskell showed no fear, no concern, no conciliatory spirit whatsoever. Keeping back his heavy weapon, Alan took up his defense of Joyce's father:

"About Dave MacMillan. My opinion is, he's entirely innocent. There's no call to send him outside to Edmonton. A travelling court is coming down the Three Rivers in August, and his case can wait for that. He can be kept here, or released on bail. Drummond will put up bail; I'll be personally responsible for him. There's another reason: he's got some good friends among the Dogribs; if he's released he'll get busy and stir them up to help hunt these bandits."

Haskell interposed. "What was he doing last week? Where was he? Can he put up any alibi?"

"He was in the Candle-ice lake country, trying to locate Little Otter's band. He'd fed them all winter, and they owed him their spring peltry; but they'd sneaked away and taken their peltry in to the L. & H. He saw no one; he has no alibi."

"That trader won't be released," Haskell said flatly. "I'll decide whether to keep him here or send him outside to Edmonton."

Dismissing Dave MacMillan's plight with a curt gesture, he demanded: "What made you leave Constable Burgoon there at the trading post, short-handed as we are?"

"To watch after the furs and trade goods."

"That's MacMillan's lookout. I'll have to instruct Pedneault to get Burgoon tomorrow."

"But Miss Joyce expects to return there. She has good reasons. What protection do you intend to give her?"

"If she insists on returning, I don't feel any responsibility. This isn't an orphanage; it's a Mounted Police post."

Alan entered that remark in his account against the inspector. Haskell's callous attitude toward a defenseless, grief-stricken girl seemed to him an index to the man's real meanness.

Still keeping his sword hidden from Haskell, he broached the matter of that patrol to the Inconnu. As he sketched his plan briefly, he saw that Haskell, listening to him coldly, was not even interested. An uneasiness came over him. What was Haskell thinking? Didn't the man realize he had made a fatal mistake?

weak vacillating fight? . . . Good Lord!" His memory whipped back to Bill and himself belying up behind the muskrat house, and to Larry Younge coming out against six men on open water.

"You failed dismally," Haskell proceeded, in knife-edge voice. "You probably wanted to fall, so you could try to hang something onto me. Those criminals escaped clean, and one of your men was badly shot. After such a performance, don't you think it's a bit ridiculous of you to stand there and baldly ask me to let you lead a thousand-mile, all-summer patrol with five men? Instead . . . Well, you've been in the Mounted long enough to know what the consequences are of a failure like yours."

Alan stood dazed. Haskell was actually blaming that disaster upon him! Did the man still fail to realize that the patrol had been wrecked by his own crazy orders?

"Consequences?" he repeated. "Consequences for me? I warned you we shouldn't split our party. That was the cause of us falling. I predicted just what happened."

Haskell brushed the words aside. "The consequences of a blundering, botched-up patrol such as you led are usually demotion to the ranks. That's what you'll have to take. In an important matter like this I haven't any choice but to make you a constable. Whipple, write out the papers for this demotion."

For moments Alan stared at him. Then he laughed. It was incredible, a travesty. Busted! Busted because of this man's orders. Busted because he had been sent out, tied hand and foot, on a patrol doomed to disaster before it started.

He snapped. "You can quit that scratching, Whipple; I'm not a constable yet. And you, inspector, if you haven't got sense enough to know me. You meant to get me. Whether I gave orders or merely suggested, isn't the question now, sergeant. The question is: How are you going to prove your charge? Do you happen to possess any documentary evidence, or can you produce any witnesses, that I gave you that order? You can't! Hardsock and Younge were down at the wharf. On the other hand Constable Whipple here was present and heard what you said. So it is the word of two people against yours, and one of them your officer commanding. What do you think of your heavy artillery now?"

He smiled sardonically, in triumph. Alan stood mute, thunderstruck. A moment ago he had thought that Haskell had actually forgotten those crazy orders. But now, with the meaning of those words dawning upon him, he realized that Haskell had deliberately planned this perfidy. By a brazen, incredibly brazen lie, he intended to squirm out of any and all responsibility for the wrecked patrol.

The very effrontery of the denial staggered Alan. In a dazed manner he sought to find a way out of what Haskell had just said. But after a little space it was borne in upon him that Haskell had beaten him; that he no longer held a sword over the inspector; that his own heavy weapon was turned against himself now. Whipple had been here; his own men had been down at the wharf. In sickened despair he felt his situation like the fanged jaws of a trap pinning him.

He stood there speechless, staring into the cold taunting eyes of his enemy. Presently he was able to say, throatily: "I hadn't thought of that, inspector. I knew you were tricky, but still I thought you were too near being a man for a thing like that. I've been associating with men like Larry and Bill and Ped for so long that I'd forgotten your kind exists. A lie, a damnable bare-faced lie, from an officer—in that uniform . . . Good G—! If you hadn't said it, I wouldn't have believed."

"Is that all, constable?" Haskell inquired, with a faint sneer on his mouth.

"Yes, that's all. You've got me." He turned and trudged out the door. His thoughts were all a confused turmoil. Busted—a constable—saddled with the whole blame of that disgraceful patrol—the ground cut out from under him by that brazen lie! Now he realized to the full how unscrupulous Haskell could be in a show-down fight. When reputation and Elizabeth Spaulding and command here were at stake, Haskell was as cunning as a slinker wolf and as malign as a carcajou. The inspector had been out to get him, and had got him. He stood on a level now with Whipple and Burgoon—he, once the proud leader of a proud detachment.

One fact came home to him, hard and inexorable: his Inconnu trip was smashed. To make that patrol he had to have Haskell's backing. But to hope for any co-operation from the inspector would be a fool's wishful thinking. Haskell was out to get him, not those criminals. That Inconnu plan was dead.

Alan felt the terrible hopelessness of his situation. He was bound hand and foot. There was nothing on earth he could do—nothing except forget the aching vision of running those six unknown murderers to earth.

Did he dare forget? . . . Dimly through the creeping mist he saw the candle light of the tiny hospital where Larry, his able silent comrade on many a patrol, lay tossing in pain and fever; where Larry, so strong of body, so proud of his physical powers, was facing the black realization that he would never again go out on patrol with other men, and would never again follow a Strong-Woods trail. Jutting out from the barracks he could see the massive outlines of the cement cell where Dave MacMillan, helpless to prove his innocence, awaited the full vengeance of the law. He felt a responsibility toward Dave MacMillan, all aside from Dave being Joyce's father. If it had been his duty to arrest MacMillan and bring him in, it was a higher duty now to fight for him, to clear a man whom he knew in his heart to be innocent. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

ONE FLAG AND ONE LAND

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

ONE man for one woman, one woman for one man, For so it is writ since creation began. One roof for a shelter, one shelter alone, One home that is dearest, and that one your own. One true heart forever that truly you love; With all of our dogmas, one Father above. Yes, so it was written and so it was planned— If rich man or poor man, one flag and one land.

Whatever our devotion, or what we adore, A man or a woman has room for no more, A love undivided that naught can estrange, That no one can alter and nothing can change. A faith that is fickle, a vow that is vain, Brings nothing but sorrow, leaves nothing but pain. It may be an island, it may be a crag, Yet cherish forever one land and one flag.

Begun in a garden, the world widens far, But one is your own land, the land where you are; And many the banner that floats in the air, Yet only one banner is fairest of fair. And these shall be happy and these shall be free; The loyal forever, wherever it be. For this is the oneness that heaven has planned— One love and one cottage, one flag and one land. SOME HAM SANDWICHES

THE first ancestor of the sandwich family was a meat sandwich. They are substantial things, often meant to take the place of a full meal or the main part of a meal.

The meat sandwich is often a dainty affair, but it is meant to satisfy hearty appetites and is filling and practical. Ham as the meat for sandwich filling would no doubt receive the most votes, so we'll serve a few as follows:

Ham Sandwich.—Mix one cupful of chopped ham, one sweet red pepper chopped, one tablespoonful of olive oil and one-half teaspoonful of made mustard. Spread on buttered bread. Tastes differ as to the amount of fat used—many prefer to remove the fat. The ham when used in slices should not be too thin; spread with salad dressing and thin slices of sour pickle, or lettuce may be used between the bread. Also some prefer the pickles served separately.

Ham With Chowchow Sandwich.—Mince sufficient boiled ham to make a solid cupful and enough chowchow and mustard pickle to make one-fourth of a cupful. Mix enough of the liquid mustard from the bottle to soften to the spreading consistency. Use on buttered rye or whole wheat bread.

Ham Sandwich Delicate.—Lay thin slices of cold boiled ham on buttered bread and sprinkle with powdered sugar and ground cloves. This has a flavor like the edge of baked ham.

Ham and Egg Sandwich.—Chop equal parts of boiled ham, hard cooked eggs and cucumber pickle, mix with salad dressing and add salt. Spread on buttered slices of any kind of bread. (© 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Dragon's Sword Found

What is declared to be a dragon's sword of the Seventeenth century period, and probably a relic of the Covenanting days, was found at Stonehouse, Scotland, by two school boys. The sword was firmly incased in what appeared to be a leather scabbard, but age so rotted it that it fell to pieces when the weapon was withdrawn. The blade is hooked, heavily rusted and measures 30 inches from hilt to tip.

New Prison for Women Has Neither Walls Nor Bars

CALIFORNIA has just presented her erring women with a beautiful place to rehabilitate themselves and change their environment, representing the new trend to help prisoners to lead a normal life in elevating surroundings. Situated in a beautiful valley at Tehacapi and surrounded by gardens, the Norman cottages offer the involuntary guests the maximum of opportunity to express themselves in a normal way. The plan of the new institution is to help rather than to repress.

Class Mosquito Among Worst of Insect Pests

Mosquitoes lay more men low than lions, tigers, wolves and venomous snakes; and we can't shoot them. We can't, with any degree of real triumph, rout them from their chosen world of preying on the human race.

And yet, the mosquito, originally where there were no human beings, found his (or her, for it is the female that is the more deadly of the species) sustenance in the sap of leaves. But the mosquito took to a more fiery and habit-forming drink and now is our most hateful and persistent insect enemy.

We have long been convinced that the mosquito does not care. It does not fear the human race and has learned how to carry on operations for transfusion of blood without danger to itself. And in this function it transfuses everything else. From yellow fever to day by day or every other day, fever and ague. Incidentally, the mosquito has developed quinine into one of the best money-making drugs on the globe.

Boy's Lucky Find

Digging a hole about a foot deep, while playing on the outskirts of Colimbatore, India, a boy discovered a large earthen pot. Inside the vessel, which he dug out, were over 120 silver coins bearing Roman inscriptions. The coins are stated to be about 2,000 years old.

A. E. F. CAPTAIN RECOVERS RING LOST IN FRANCE IN WORLD WAR

Finder Kept Up Search 13 Years for the Owner.

Chicago.—Capt. Robert N. Winslow and Sergt. Harry G. Young met once, for a few minutes only, on a battlefield in France. They were not formally introduced. The captain was a slightly wounded combatant and the sergeant was at work in a first-aid station pouring iodine, twisting bandages and giving tetanus shots. They parted quickly. Nearly fourteen years have passed since the meeting. Recently Captain, now Mr. Winslow, received a letter. He now lives at 2204 Forestview road, Evanston, but the missive had been sent to his former address.

It was mailed from North Brooksville, Maine, and read as follows: "Dear Captain: "At intervals during the last 13 years I have been trying to locate an A. E. F. officer bearing your name. "The object of my letter is to ask, if you served in France, did you lose any personal jewelry? If so describe same and state, as near as you can, the place you lost it.

"H. G. YOUNG." Captain Winslow, in reply, wrote as follows: "Dear Mr. Young: "Thanks for your thoughtful letter. I wonder how you ever got my address, especially as I have not lived there for several years, although in the same city, which is a suburb of Chicago.

"I was born and raised in Fredrickton, N. B., which is probably not far from your home. "Regarding the personal jewelry which you mention: On September 14, 1918, during the battle of St. Mihiel, I dropped into a first-aid station which happened to be in an old church in the town of Mouilly, to have my hand dressed. It was badly torn by barbed wire.

"I took off a gold ring which probably had my initials and laid it down while the doctor did the work. I forgot all about the ring and when I went back to get it I found that the medical outfit had moved. Possibly this is what you refer to in your letter, because I don't remember ever losing anything else.

"I appreciate very much your thoughtfulness in trying to find me, and if there is anything I can do to reciprocate, kindly let me know.

"Sincerely yours, "ROBERT N. WINSLOW." From Mr. Young came the following:

"Dear Mr. Winslow: "Through the company clerk, American Legion, New York office, I obtained your 1924 and last address as listed by the adjutant general's office in Washington.

"I remember quite clearly the morning you came into the first-aid station in Mouilly (about 9 a. m., and you were to come back at 4 p. m.). I dressed your hand and after you left I found the ring, which I have kept. Had it not been for your name inside, I could not have located you. It gives me pleasure to return this souvenir to you by return mail.

Students Build Plane and It Passes Tests

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The Central high school class in aerodynamics decided it wanted to be practical. Members pooled resources and the result was an airplane given the Department of Commerce stamp of approval.

The plane, built of old material during class periods, was claimed to be the first project of its kind carried through and meeting federal regulations.

Lack of funds and policy of the school kept the board of education from financing the plan. Students bought material and an old plane, tore it down, and under supervision of an aviator friend built an airworthy craft. They planned to form a flying club and hire an instructor.

New Deal for Hoboes Is Planned by Conference

Kansas City, Mo.—The problem of the hobo, the tramp, and the bum, was studied at length by the Missouri-Kansas conference for social welfare, and in the study the hobo became "the local homeless man."

Any community, the conference decided, owes a definite responsibility to men of this type, and, while this responsibility has for the most part been accepted in the past, the meth-

WORLD WAR PLANES NOW HOPELESSLY OUT OF DATE

One 1932 Pursuit Plane Equal to 1918 Armada.

Washington.—So remarkable has been the development of aerial warfare in the past 15 years, according to army experts, that one well-manned fighting plane of 1932 could destroy an entire air armada of 1918!

The Spads and the Fokkers in which the war-time aces went forth to engage in "dog fights" over no man's land are now as hopelessly outmoded as milady's hat of the gay nineties, and the United States, it now develops, is the leader in setting the new fashion in planes.

The army's Boeing P-12 F has without challenge the highest rate of climb and is faster than any other single seater, air-cooled pursuit type in the world. There are changes being made now in this ship which will better its present performance.

The 525-horse power engine, the 192-miles-a-hour speed, and the 30,000-foot ceiling of the P-12, combined with a structural strength that was never ods used in handling the men have been wrong.

Missions, rewarding the man who prayed loudest, pursued the wrong course, the experts asserted. So did those who gave with a cynicism rivaled only by that of the transient, and those who regarded the men with suspicion.

Now, it was agreed, "the seasonal migratory worker" and "the local homeless man" should get a new deal—a deal in which a definite trend in treatment would be preserved, not only in a community, but in a whole section of the country.

Horses Called to Take Disabled Truck to Fire

Brighton, Can.—A fire in this village is quite an event. The volunteer firemen dash at top speed for the fire house, and the chief drives the bright but not so new fire truck down the street spectacularly. But fires are infrequent.

The other night there was one, and everything went well until the chief jumped into the driver's seat and stepped on the starter. Nothing happened.

The crank was tried. Nothing happened. Then it was discovered that some one had appropriated some of the ignition apparatus. A pair of old reliable horses finally dragged the truck to the blaze.

Big Gold Deposit Found in U. S. National Forest

Clarksburg, W. Va.—What is believed to be the biggest gold deposit ever found in the eastern states lies in the Monongahela national forest, owned by the United States government.

The deposit was found recently by a group of Clarksburg and Parsons, W. Va., business men, who have leased 600 acres in the district and plan immediate construction of a mining plant. The ore lies about ten feet below the surface in the mountains near Porterwood, two miles from Parsons. Tests in Washington, D. C., and Pittsburgh have shown enough gold and silver content to make mining profitable.

The first rocket mail had special stamps.

NOT ALL ANIMALS REVEAL INFECTION

But Losses by Abortion Can Be Minimized.

This question has been asked us: "Is it advisable to attempt to rid a herd of contagious abortion by selling every cow as soon as she aborts?"

Little or no benefit will be secured from any such program, because many animals that have the infection present do not give any evidence of it and cannot be detected except by a blood test.

Doctor Metzger of the New York State College of Agriculture suggests that breeders who are unable to use the blood test to eradicate the disease, can reduce their losses by the following practices:

Isolate every aborting animal. If possible have a maternity stall with a concrete floor and clean and disinfect it thoroughly.

Raise all replacements on the farm except the herd sire. Research shows that heifers born of an aborting dam have the infection at birth, but by the seventh or eighth month the infection generally leaves. After breeding, they become highly susceptible.

Everything should be done to guard the bred heifer from taking the infection into her system. This means watching things not only in the barn but while on pasture.

All cows and heifers should be pastured separately from all outside stock. One aborting animal will often infect all bred animals in the pasture.

For replacements, some dairymen are buying four and five-year-old cows hoping that they have had abortion. Generally such cows are not as susceptible to the infection as heifers.—American Agriculturist.

Testing Necessary for Keeping Check on Cows

In these days of financial uncertainty how long would a banker last if he simply accepted the deposits that were offered and cashed the checks that were drawn on his bank, without going to the trouble and expense of keeping a line on each customer and entering each transaction in his records?

It sounds ridiculous, doesn't it, but it is no more ridiculous than for a dairymen to say he can't afford to test his cows simply because prices are down and conditions trying. The banker individualizes each account. If you are one of his customers and you write a check to pay the gas bill when there is no balance in your account, the check does not pay the account and possibly you will get in bad.

In like manner, the successful dairymen will individualize his cows, and when he is not keeping the deposits of feed and care up to standard, the cow is going to return the drafts marked "Insufficient Funds," or, if he is doing his part up to the letter all the time, and the cow isn't honoring the checks, then there is something wrong, and the cow herself is very apt to be in bad.—H. E. Colby, in Iowa C. T. A. Report.

Sunlight Affects Flavor

A tallowy or even a burnt flavor in milk about which housewives in Chicago and other cities recently have been complaining may be caused by nothing more than leaving the milk exposed to light, according to P. H. Tracy, assistant chief in dairy manufactures at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois.

Milk users who take advantage of natural refrigeration during the winter months and leave bottles of milk standing in windows or unprotected out of doors are likely to find that the flavor is impaired, he said.

Either direct sunlight or diffused light when permitted to pass into milk through colorless glass hurts the flavor. Permitting the bottle of milk to remain in the sunlight even for 30 minutes may cause the milk to acquire a tallowy flavor sometimes described as a "cappy," or pastebord, taste. If the milk is allowed to remain in the sun long enough a distinct burnt flavor will predominate.—Exchange.

Potassium Proved Value

One lot of calves at the Ohio experiment station was fed on the milk from cows which were getting normal feeds while another lot was fed on the milk from cows which were being given one gram of potassium iodide per day each. The calves fed on the milk from cows getting the potassium iodide made better use of their feeds. Another test at the same station showed that cows on pasture produced butterfat approximately twice as potent in vitamin A as the butterfat of the same cows before turning them on pasture.—Successful Farming.

Record Friesian Cow

A German newspaper, Gemeinuetzger of Varel, Oldenburg, East Friesland, Germany, reports that G. Taben of Poggenkrug, Kreis Wittmund, East Friesland, has received highest reward for record Friesian cow, Gertrud 131181. In her test of 365 days she produced 13,819 kilograms milk (approximately 30,465 lbs.). This matter was brought to our attention, says the Rural New Yorker, by a reader, Carl Urken, whose early home was in that part of Germany.

The greatest thrill a mother can know

HER BABY... thriving... gaining by leaps and bounds! His back, strong and fine as a little champion's. His teeth developing perfectly. His legs straight and sturdy. His skin rosy, his flesh firm, his whole body a living promise of health—radiant, buoyant health—through the years to come!

Can any food except Nature's food build such a baby? Millions of mothers have answered Yes to this question. And now more emphatically still a world-famous clinic answers Yes.

Seventy-five years ago, Gail Borden gave Eagle Brand to the mothers of America. Today, Eagle Brand—second only to mother's milk in easy digestibility—is known as a wonderful infant food the world over. Eagle Brand has raised more healthy babies than any other food, excepting mother's milk. In practically every community are healthy, sturdy boys and girls, and men and women who got their start in life on Eagle Brand. In your own community, see how these Eagle Brand ex-babies compare.

What the scientists discovered But newer still is the news from the world-famous baby clinic. Two physicians fed a group of 50 average babies on Eagle Brand for a period of several months—checking with care every detail of their health and growth. Bone structure. Tooth development. Weight and height gains. Blood count... And those 50 Eagle Brand babies, judged by every known test, proved themselves superbly nourished!

Mail coupon below for a free copy of "Baby's Welfare"—containing feeding instructions and directions for general care; also histories and pictures of Eagle Brand babies. We will gladly send your physician a report of above scientific test of Eagle Brand. Your grocer sells Eagle Brand—feeding instructions are on the label.

Think It Over The first step toward happiness is to determine to be happy.

If your child Won't Eat

When children are finicky about food, pale, irritable or cross, careful mothers treat promptly with Dr. Jayne's Vermifuge. It has been used successfully for over 100 years and is the most effective remedy known to expel round worms and their eggs. No other preparation is quite so efficient. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle and sure in action, absolutely harmless. If worms are present your little one will be a different child after taking the first bottle. Ask your druggist, DR. D. JAYNE & SON, Philadelphia.

Modernistic Piano Modernistic art has transformed the piano into something new and unfamiliar. A new art piano has been exhibited at the Leipzig fair in which the solid piano legs are replaced by steel supports, no thicker than a finger. The sides of the piano, a triangular grand, are made of plates of red glass, while the top and even the music rack are covered with glass.

There's nothing longer than the summer days to the girl who is to be married in the fall.

It may be of interest to the public that over 700 letters have been received from all parts of United States with letters inclosed to be mailed on the date of dedication with this cachet, each letter being received having at least from one to five letters inclosed for this event.
On account of the memorial being located in our county and being that this memorial stands for the lumbering industry that our state once stood for first in this country and on account of the historical event of this kind, the people of our county should all send out covers to all their friends with this cachet.
Any parties wishing to send out covers for this event, all that is necessary is to address their envelopes to parties that they wish to send the same to, leaving clear enough space on the left hand side of the envelope for the cachet and use 3c postage to take care of the new postage rate and turn the same over to Joseph Barkman at East Tawas, who will apply this cachet and take care of the covers for you to be mailed out on the 16th. All covers should be turned in not later than the 14th of July to take care of them.
