LOCALS DROP 7 TO 2 GAME TO TURNER

Tawas City came out second best in its contest with Turner last Sunday, dropping the engagement by a 7-2 score. An early inning uprising put the game on ice for the Arenac county boys. In the first and second frames Turner hammered Bingham, local hurler, for five safeties, and, assisted by some slow fielding on the part of the locals, made them good for five runs. Bingham settled down after these two disastrous innings and allowed four hits during the remainder of the battle. Tawas City scored one run in the sixth and another in the seventh. St. John, Turner pitcher, went along smoothly until the sixth, when the locals threatened a rally, and he retired in favor of Clayton. Due to a sore arm, Clayton relinquished the mound to Norris in the seventh and the latter finished the game without trouble. Next Sunday Tawas City will meet the Harrisville nine at the local athletic field.

Table with 7 columns: Tawas City, Turner, AB, R, H, O, A, E. Rows include Zöllweg, Roach, Zöllweg, Bingham, Prescott, Wöjahn, Libka, Bouldier, Quick, and Totals.

EDNA FERBER'S PULITZER PRIZE NOVEL REACHES SCREEN

"So Big" the new picture starring Barbara Stanwyck which picturegoers will have an opportunity to see at the State Theatre next week Wednesday and Thursday, has been adapted from the Pulitzer Prize novel by Edna Ferber which was not only a best-seller when it was published but has gone on selling steadily and largely ever since. It has, in fact, attained a place on the shelf of American classic fiction. It is not a simple matter to transfer a story like "So Big" to the screen; and the responsibility was felt by Miss Stanwyck, by William A. Wellman, who directed the picture, and by the actors and actresses who made up the cast. "We felt that we were handling something very delicate and beautiful," says Barbara Stanwyck. "We had all read the book—all, of course, except little Dickie Moore, who is only five years old—and we all loved it. 'So Big' is undoubtedly the most important picture I have ever made. I felt that while I was acting in it, and so did the others."

E. church choirs.

NOTICE TO RESIDENTS OF IOSCO COUNTY

The fact has been brought to our attention that a great many have deeds to their homes or other property that have never been recorded and in that case should they be stolen or burned up they would lose all title. Look over your papers and see that they have been recorded. We are glad to assist you in the search free of charge and will record any unrecorded papers at the legal rates. If your papers have been recorded and are lost or burned we can furnish a certified copy which is just as good as the original, at legal rates. Frank F. Taylor, Register of Deeds for Iosco County.

CONNIE BENNETT DISCLOSES RICH VOICE IN FILM

The throaty, vibrant voice that is one of Constance Bennett's peculiar attributes, will be heard in song. For the first time in her screen career, Miss Bennett sings in "What Price Hollywood," her RKO Pathe starring production coming to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Sunday and Monday. In revealing the talent which heretofore only her close friends knew she possessed, the blonde star introduces to America a sensational French waltz hit that she brought with her from Paris. It is "Parlez Moi d'Amour" by J. Lenoir. She also sings the popular number, "Can't We Talk It Over," performing in both numbers for scenes of the production which shows films in the making. In this unvarnished and highly colored picture of the screen colony at work and play, Miss Bennett is supported by Lowell Sherman, Neil Hamilton, Gregory Ratoff and others. All in all, one of the finest, most fascinating movies ever made. You must not miss it!

BAPTIST CHURCH

Don't forget our modern dancing Saturday and Sunday nights. adv Ironclad The British Warrior, the first ironclad, was launched December 29, 1860; length, 380 feet; breadth, 58 feet; plate, 4 1/2 inches thick; tonnage, 6,170; cost, $2,000,000. In the same year, the French launched an ironclad, the Gloire, but it was not termed an ironclad, a term used first by England. In 1812, John Stevens, of New Jersey, designed an ironclad steam battery, Robert L. Stevens, of the same state, was commissioned to build an iron-plated war vessel to be propelled by screws.—Literary Digest.

GOLF

Sunday will open the golf tournament season with a two-ball foursome at the Tawas Golf course. H. J. Keiser, who is chairman of the entertainment committee, reports that there will be a number of entries ready to go in the morning. Any teams that wish to enter can do so as late as 10:00 o'clock that morning. The course is in very good condition, so let's show more enthusiasm for one of the things we have to sell the tourists when they come up to visit us. This two-ball foursome will be played by two players playing the same ball against two players playing one ball. One player will take the first stroke, then his partner will take the next stroke. Beginning at the first hole, the team players toss coin to decide the tee-off, then they alternate in teeing off the balance of the 18 holes. The ball will be played where it lies or be subject to ground rules. Let's all get in and make our first tournament a bumper day for the course. Whether you play a 50 or a 70 game, this is all for fun, so let's go. Arrangements are also underway for a tournament between the members of the Tawas Golf club and that of West Branch. Dates will be given later.

ENTERTAIN LONG LAKE COTTAGE OWNERS, FRIENDS AT KOKOSING HOTEL

On Friday at 6 o'clock nearly a hundred cottage owners and friends were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. List, genial host and hostess of Kokosing Hotel. After a delicious dinner, a musical and literary program was enjoyed in the hotel lobby. Those furnishing numbers on the program were introduced by Miss Mary Lyon of Cleveland, Ohio, who called on Rev. Riale of Wooster, Ohio, and he responded with a splendid talk on "Fellowship." Mrs. Gertrude Heacock Stover of Bay City played several beautiful compositions on the cello, accompanied by Mr. Wall on the piano; Miss Mildred Sprague of Columbus, Ohio, sang three charming songs; Mrs. Smith and son, Walter, of North Baltimore, Ohio, rendered saxophone and piano music; Miss Mary Froh, Toledo, Ohio, read a poem on "Kokosing," composed by Roland Nichols; the Misses Elizabeth and Josephine Williams of St. Petersburg, Florida, gave a comedy skit, "The Terrible Operation"; John Burgess of Youngstown, Ohio, gave a character sketch, in costume, of an Egyptian lady. Everyone present so enjoyed the evening they are wishing to have Mr. and Mrs. List repeat the "good fellowship meetings."

REGISTERS AT DAMON

W. K. Henderson of Shreveport, Louisiana, who became famous for his "Hello, World, Dog Gone You!" and his campaign against the chain stores, recently visited this section and registered at Damon, one of the "host cities of Michigan. He gave his usual greeting, states the Ogemaw County Herald. Damon, in Ogemaw county, was a town of considerable importance at one time, but when the lumbering days ended its population disappeared.

21 CANDIDATES FILE PETITIONS IN IOSCO COUNTY

At four o'clock Wednesday afternoon (the deadline) only one candidate had filed a nomination petition for the office of sheriff, Charles C. Miller, the present incumbent. Judge David Davison is unopposed for judge of probate, he being the only one to file a petition for that office. This is the first time since the primary law went into effect when only one name appeared on the Republican ballot for sheriff. However, there is no such dearth of candidates in the race for county road commissioner. Six candidates have filed nomination petition for the office. The list of candidates includes Harry VanPatten, whose term of office expires this year. No petitions were filed in the county for offices on the Democratic ballot. The following is the list of candidates filed for state and county offices as furnished by Secretary of State Frank D. Fitzgerald and County Clerk Frank E. Dease: Governor—Republican: Wilber M. Brucker, William H. McKeighan, Ora A. Bailey, James C. Quinlan, Ed. A. Nowack, Geo. W. Welsh; Democrat: Patrick H. O'Brien, Claude S. Carney, Wm. A. Comstock. Lieutenant Governor—Republican: Luren D. Dickinson, Charles A. Sink, Theo. A. Thompson, Virgil A. Fitch; Democrat: Allen E. Stebbins. Representative in Congress, Tenth District—Republican: Roy O. Woodruff, Carl Holbrook; Democrat: P. M. Haller, Judson E. Richardson, Otto C. Schroeder, Wm. J. Kelly. State Senator, 28th District—Ben Carpenter, Horatio S. Karcher. State Representative, Arenac District—Fred C. Holbeck, James MacGillivray. Judge of Probate—David Davison. Sheriff—Chas. C. Miller. Prosecuting Attorney—John A. Stewart, H. Read Smith. County Clerk—Frank E. Dease, John A. Myles, Allie A. "MEMORIES OF AUSABLE"

Written by Mrs. G. A. Priangle for the Dedication of the Lumbermen's Memorial. Tune: "The Battle Hymn of the Republic"

Mine eyes have seen the woodsman Cut the pine trees from the hills, Where th' Ausable flowed so swiftly As it bore them to the mills; And those days are still a memory That is fought with many thrills, While th' Ausable still flows on. Chorus: Flow on, flow on, dear A-Sable, Flow on, flow on, dear A-Sable, Flow on, flow on, dear A-Sable, We love your wataets still. In the seventies and eighties, When the forest stood so grand, There came the red-scarved woods-men; Sawed and axes in their hands, And those giant trees were slaughtered. Slipped to home and foreign lands, But the Ausable still flows on. Chorus I have seen the dear old river, When its banks went flowing wide, And the logs went swiftly tumbling To the towns on either side, And the boys with pole and peavy Kept them rolling as they ride, While the Ausable still flows on. Chorus But the boys are passing one by one, The logs have all gone through, And the power that sent them down the stream Now lights the heavens blue; So we here erect this monument To memories good and true, While the Ausable still flows on. Chorus

BANCROFT IS ADVENTURER IN RED REVOLUTION

A gusty adventure story of the hectic days during the Russian revolution is the current vehicle for George Bancroft at the State Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Bristling with tense dramatic thrills, "The World and the Flesh" provides the ebullient Bancroft with his most sensational characterization since "The Mighty," according to preview critics. Paramount has gone to great pains in providing an abundance of authentic atmosphere for its burly star in this film production. Scores of scenes in scores of indoor and outdoor locales heighten the realism of the story which moves rapidly from one thrilling episode to the next. Miriam Hopkins, blonde favorite of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Smiling Lieutenant" and "Dancers in the Dark," heads the supporting cast which includes Allyn Mowbray, George E. Stone, Mitchell Lewis, Oscar Apfel and Reginald Barlow.

SUCH IS LIFE—Shrinking Up Junior

WORLD'S GOLD

Weighing Gold Bars in a South African Refinery.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

DISCOVERY of a gold belt more than 100 miles long and from three to ten miles wide in northern Quebec, Canada, and the recovery of the golden treasure of the ill-fated steamship Egypt which lies on the floor of the Atlantic off Brest, France, have recently brought the precious yellow metal into the world news.

From France's sizable 25 foot cylinder of gold, the national "towers" of precious metal fell to very modest piles. Great Britain, in September, 1931, could have built a stack little more than six feet high: she could muster gold enough for only a little more than six of the super dollars; Spain and Japan, a little more than four; Belgium, three and a half; Germany, Switzerland, and the Soviet Union, three; Italy, the Netherlands, and Argentina, less than three; India less than two; and Canada, less than one. A striking fact in regard to the gold holdings of countries is that South Africa, which in the last few centuries has produced an amount of gold equal to the unprecedented pile possessed by the United States last autumn, held at that time less than enough monetary gold to construct one half of one of the hundred million dollar disks.

Hardly a day passes, however, without gold creeping into the headlines. One day a great nation drops the gold standard. On another day another nation adds steadily to its stock of gold; on another a new mine is discovered somewhere; on another, unusually large shipments of gold cross the Atlantic, the Pacific or the Indian ocean.

Despite a universal interest in the gold, the average man probably has hazy ideas of the actual amounts of gold involved in world stocks, annual production, and the incessant shipments back and forth between countries. To a considerable extent this is owing to the extremely small unit—the "fine ounce"—by which the weight of gold is measured.

It will help visualize the amounts of gold that figure in the world's news, if we construct in imagination a "super dollar" of gold worth one hundred million dollars. This super dollar will be a disk one foot thick and just a tiny fraction less than 18 1/2 feet in diameter. It will thus retain, roughly, the shape and proportion of the ordinary gold dollar, will contain a trifle more than 275 1/2 cubic feet of gold, and will weigh a little less than 166 tons.

Gold production statistics are not available for the period covered by the history of civilization, nor even for the Christian era. But we do have fairly accurate estimates of the total amount of gold mined in all parts of the earth since the discovery of America by Columbus. Let us imagine all this gold brought together today at one spot and minted into our super dollars. With the aid of a huge crane we can have these huge yellow "chips" piled one on top of another to see how high the world's "stack" will reach. When 224 have been put in place the supply of full "dollars" will have been exhausted. To bring the pile up to date, we will have to hoist to the top as a capstone, a half of one of our disks, shaped like half a pie, and worth only $50,000,000.

World's Gold in a Column.
Here, then, in a sparkling column 18 1/2 feet in diameter and more than 224 feet high, would rest all the gold that has been gleaned by myriads of men in 440 years of toil. The column would be about as high as a 20 story office building, and would be worth approximately $22,450,000,000. During the past five years, a "super dollar" has been added to this world pile approximately every three months—about $400,000,000 worth of gold each year.

But as soon as we have built up our imaginary stack, we must begin pulling it down if we would represent the current gold situation. For although almost twenty-two and a half billion dollars worth of gold has been produced from 1492 to 1932, this is not the amount "in sight" in the world today. Nearly half the precious metal represented by our imaginary stack has been lost, hidden away, or used up in industry, the making of jewelry, the gilding of ornaments, and the like. The total known stock of gold money and gold bars in the world at the end of 1931 was worth approximately eleven and a half billion dollars. We must therefore discard something like the upper half of our imaginary stack of gold, leaving only 115 of the huge disks in place. This 115 foot tower of precious metal, that we have built in fancy, represents the monetary gold of the world. On it are based all monetary systems in so far as they depend on gold.

But again we must alter our imaginary golden tower. At no time, of course, has all the world's monetary gold been assembled in one country. The greatest concentration within the borders of one nation occurred in September, 1931, when the amount of gold coin and gold cast in bars in the United States slightly exceeded five billion dollars in value. In the United States, then, there could have been built last autumn the greatest tower of gold that it has ever been possible to construct of the holdings of a single nation—a stack of 50 of our gigantic hundred-million-dollar "chips." At the same time France could have piled up 25 of the great disks.

Gold Supply Changes.
To get a vivid idea of the changes in the gold supply of the United States, let us imagine all the gold movements of 1931, and half of 1932, affecting the United States to be concentrated around this country's "gold tower." At the beginning of 1931, forty-five full super dollars would have been piled one on the other, while on top would have been the forty-sixth golden disk with only a tiny wedge missing. Gradually, net gold importations would have built the pile higher. Before the middle of January the forty-sixth disk would have been complete; by the end of March there would have been 47; by late June, 49 and by mid-September, the tower's peak would have been reached, with 50 of the super dollars in place.

After the middle of September, one of the heaviest gold exportation periods over experienced in the United States set in. An observer at the mythical tower of gold would have witnessed feverish activity in removing the huge disks. In a little over a month he would have seen more than seven of the mammoth gold units lowered from the tower and carted away for shipment overseas. By the end of October only 42 3/4 of the super dollars would have remained. Then gold would have begun to arrive again at the tower's base, from imports, and the work of building would have been resumed. By the end of 1931, more than 1 1/3 of the heavy disks would have been added to the tower, bringing it to a height of a little over 44 feet.

As a final operation of the year we can imagine there-being hoisted into place a segment equal to about a third of a super dollar—worth $33,000,000—representing the gold produced within the borders of the United States during the year, less the new gold made into jewelry and used in other industries and arts. The country's tower, then, after its marked fluctuations, would have contained at the end of the year, 44 1/2 of our super dollars—roughly one and a quarter less than when the year started.

Our Holding Varies.
Since the beginning of 1932, five and a half more of the "super dollars" have left the United States. During the latter part of June the United States' gold stock had been reduced to 39 of the 100 million dollar units. At the same time Great Britain possessed less than five, and France's pile had grown to 31.

During the past 18 years the column that could have been built with the stock of gold in the United States at any one time, has arisen and fallen like the mercury column of a barometer. But in the long run it has grown higher. At the outbreak of the world war in 1914 it would have contained approximately 15 of the 100,000,000 dollar disks; at the close of the war, 29. In 1920 it would have been down to 27; in 1924, up to 43. Back to 40 in 1928, it would have sprung up to 45 in 1930 and to 50 in 1931. The level at which it now rests is well below the peak of 50, but it is much higher than at any time in the country's history, except during the last eight years.

Johannesburg, South Africa, is called "The City of Gold" because it is situated in the great South African gold producing region; was born of the greatest gold discovery known to the modern world, and rose to the stature of a city in the space of a few years, practically "on the diggings." It is almost on the crest of "The Rand," the 50 mile ridge of gold-bearing conglomerate from which the world's greatest stream of gold has flowed since 1906 when production passed that of all North America.

RETIRED DETECTIVE SEES MANY CHANGES

Says New York Better City Than in Old Days.

New York.—The jewelry thefts and pickpocket rackets are slipping in New York. The old-time penny-wheeler, whose trick of substituting fake stones for good ones cost jewelers many a dollar in the good old days, has about disappeared. And the old school of pickpockets, many of whom were so proficient that they were hard to catch, have been succeeded by youthful thieves whose work is crude and amateurish by comparison.

"Bogus checks are the leading racket these days," according to former Detective Ernest L. Moore. "Banks, jewelers and stores are the victims of this type of confidence game, and the merchant is the most defenseless against it, for in most cases, rather than lose a sale, he will take a chance."

Mr. Moore has just retired from the police department after 25 years of service. Practically all of it was spent in the detective division, and on the Fifth avenue squad, the group of plain clothes men especially detailed to the midtown section to guard against confidence men and pickpockets.

"Fifth avenue today isn't the street it was when the Fifth avenue squad was formed," the old veteran crime chaser said. "For one thing, 75 per cent of the town's jewelry establishments are now located in the midtown area, and the safeguards have been greatly increased. If you are accustomed to thinking of Maiden lane as the center of New York's jewelry section, you are behind the times, for, with the exception of the silversmiths, most jewelers have moved up town to office suites."

"Then, too, most of the better known thieves no longer operate here, for dips and confidence men are known to the police, who pick them up on sight. The Baumes act, too, which sends a fourth felony offender to prison for life, has no doubt done much to scare away the pickpockets."

On Famous Cases.
Moore, who was born in Pennsylvania, joined the police department in 1907, and, with the exception of two years during the war, when he served as lieutenant in the navy, he has been continuously a member of the city's finest.

During his quarter of a century in the detective division he has worked on many famous cases, but a lifetime of keeping his own counsel makes it difficult to get him to reminisce. He is a slender, quiet looking individual, whom you'd take at first sight for a conservative business man. But one look from his penetrating blue eyes and you understand why a crimp was put in the crime racket during the years he operated on Fifth avenue between Forty-fourth and Forty-eighth streets.

Moore was chief arresting officer when the Gondorf brothers, Charles and Fred, who were called the wire tapping kings for their swindling operations, were started to Sing Sing.

With this arrest the bunco syndicate that embraced the United States, Canada, and England was broken up.

Hunt Lost Currency Buried Half Century

Fayette, Mich.—Summer in the upper peninsula of Michigan has again revived talk of renewing search for the buried wealth amassed by Alphonse Bellangue, on the outskirts of Fayette, more than fifty years ago.

Bellangue, a French-Canadian, came here in 1872 when Fayette was in its prime. He saw opportunity in the fact that the sale of liquor was prohibited in the town and set up a saloon on the beach, two miles away.

He prospered and did not believe in banks. His wife discovered that he had buried much of his fortune, but she could not find the hiding place. Regularly since then searchers have sought in vain for the treasure.

One advantage of voting for the loser is that one doesn't have to make apologies at the end of the term.

ARE YOU BUSY?

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Emeritus Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

So far as I can remember I have always been busy. If I am not doing something with my head, my hands are generally occupied. I have never known what it is when awake to sit or lie still with no occupation of any sort. What I do when asleep only those who watch over me are conversant with, but I imagine I'm restless if not talkative.

"Can't you sit still?" mother used to say to me when I was squirming about in church, not interested in the sermon, but trying to get my hands onto a hymn book or something else with which I might more agreeably occupy my attention.

Nelson comes into my office leaving a dozen people waiting outside to see me, and finds me with the desk piled high with the morning mail.

"Are you busy?" he asks.

Of course I am busy. I shouldn't be earning my salary if I were not, but I do not say so. I simply reply, "I'd be very glad to talk to you if you wish," and the letters lie unread before me.

I am comfortably seated in an easy chair before the wood fire after dinner. "With Lawrence in Arabia" is in my hand half read and holding my attention with the account of the adventures of that impossible man. I am tremendously busy, and I have no

CITY DWELLERS ARE GOING BACK TO FARM

Disillusioned Youths Return to Old Home Nest.

St. Louis, Mo.—Throughout the Middle West there is a steady back-to-the-farm trek of youths, who, a few years ago, sought fame and fortune in the cities, according to Wood Netherland, president of the Federal Land bank here.

Economic conditions have forced young men and women, who were drawn by the glamor of the city and its high wages, to return to the farm with a sad story to tell the home folks, Netherland said.

Elderly persons, who were intent on spending their last years surrounded by the comforts and conveniences incident to city life, have been shorn of their incomes and have returned to their former homes.

The present city farm movement is perhaps the broadest and most far-reaching in the history of the Middle West, Netherland believes. The tide, which for many years had been flowing to the city, began ebbing back to the farm more than a year ago, he said.

Since then, industrial workers, either definitely out of employment, or in prospect of a layoff, have joined the trek in constantly increasing number, records of the Federal Land bank show.

Many city people, realizing that farms may now be purchased for a fraction of the price asked a few years ago, have gone to the country with the idea of profiting by the present depressed land prices, he said. More than 40 per cent of the current farm sales are to city people, he added. The movement, according to Netherland, results from the first instinct of man, self-preservation. Faced with hunger, or becoming a ward of charity, city dwellers are moving out where they get a plot of land upon which to raise food.

desire or intention of being disturbed. I never was busier in my life. The bell rings and I go to the door. Jackson stands without, hesitant, embarrassed.

"Are you busy this evening?" he inquires.

"I'd like to talk to you a while if you are not."

Now what he really means is that he'd like to talk to me, no matter what I am doing.

If you want to make a good beginning with a man of complicated and varied duties, it is just as well not to begin either by asking him if he is in a good humor or busy. He's probably both, but if he isn't, it won't help matters to inquire.

Sheep's Longest Wool

There are many kinds of sheep but a breed known as the Merino has the longest wool. While the wool clipped from an average sheep weighs but three to eight pounds, as much as 30 pounds may be obtained from these. It is a native of Spain, but is also raised extensively in Australia.

No. 11. More About the Forcing Take-Out

THE forcing take-out fills a more imperative need than any other forcing bid in the approach-forcing system. Ely Culbertson, its originator, places it far ahead of his forcing two-bid in importance, and there can be no question that use for it occurs much more frequently than for the original two-bid. How many times when your partner has opened the bid, say with one heart, have you held a hand somewhat like the following:

S: A, Q, J, 4, 2 H: K, 10
D: Q, 10, 7, 6 C: A, 8

Certainly there is a game here, possibly a slam. But should the bid be played in spades, hearts, diamonds or no trumps? You can only get the answer by gaining further knowledge of your partner's distribution. And how can you be sure of getting this further information? Simply by bidding two spades, which compels your partner to tell you more about his hand. (Unless the take-out is bid to an advanced score and is sufficient for game).

Here are examples of some sound forcing take-outs of an original bid of one diamond:

S-A K 6 5 3 S-K 10 9 8
H-K Q 8 4 H-A K Q
D-4 3 D-J
C-6 3 C-K J 6 4 3
(Two spades) (Three clubs)

S-A K Q J 10 9 H-A K
D-9 3 2 D-7 6
C-7 6 C-5 4 3
(Two spades)

S-7 6 S-A Q 6 5 3
H-K Q 7 6 4 H-A K 8 7 4
D-J 10 9 8 D-none
C-A K C-9 8 6
(Two hearts) (Two spades)

S-3 H-A K
D-4 2 D-4 3
C-K Q J 8 6 5 4 3
(Three clubs)

Even if there is an opposing bid, a jump bid in a new suit is forcing. When you hold strong support for your partner's suit bid with 3 or more honor-tricks, it is advisable to resort to a forcing take-out in another biddable suit and give your raise on a later round. In this way only can you convey to him the quality of your raise, telling him that it is founded not alone on distributional values, but on honor-tricks as well.

A take out, even when it is forcing, can never be made on an unbidtable suit. It should usually show at least a five card suit, but may occasionally be made on a four-card suit.

By the exchange of the exact information revealed in a forcing take-out it is often possible for a partnership to bid and score a slam which might otherwise have been missed. Take the following hand for example:

NORTH
S-6 H-A 10 6 4 2
D-Q 2 D-10 9 8 4
C-A K 7 8 2

WEST EAST
S-A 10 8 7 5 S-Q 4 3 2
H-7 5 3 H-Q J 9
D-7 6 5 D-J 10 9 8 4
C-8 5 C-9

SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
S-K J 9 Pass 2 Hearts Pass
H-K 8 Pass 5 Clubs Pass
D-A K 3 Pass Pass Pass
C-Q J 10 6 4

Here South has opened with one club and West has passed. If North immediately jumps to five clubs, South should pass, as he has no means of knowing whether North's raise is based on distributional or honor strength, and so cannot discount enough of the opponent's honor-tricks for a safe slam bid. If, however, the hand is correctly bid by both partners, the slam cannot be missed. The correct bidding is:

SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
One Club Pass 2 Hearts Pass
4 No Trumps Pass 5 Clubs Pass
6 Clubs Pass Pass Pass

Counting his honor-tricks in conjunction with the 3 shown by his partner's forcing take-out, South can readily see that his partnership is in the slam zone with 7 honor-tricks. And knowing that North also has powerful trump support and favorable distribution, shown by his high raise, South is practically compelled to bid for the slam.

More often than not, however, the forcing take-out of a suit bid indicates lack of support for the suit, and under no circumstances can the original bidder assume trump support or rebid his suit without about 4 sure trump tricks.

Here are PRICES that make first-choice tires real BARGAINS

THE best tire, regardless of price, is a Goodyear. Don't take our word for it. Take the public's. The public says Goodyears are best—by a lead of 2 to 1 over any other tire.

And here are prices that prove that the best costs no more.

Every price buys Goodyear quality—a lifetime guaranteed Supertwist Cord tire—marked with the Goodyear house flag and Goodyear name.

Look them over, and ask yourself: "Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more?"

Find Appropriate Stone for Bjornson Memorial
After searching for two years among the forests and rock-strewn valleys of southern Norway, Herr Sjur Fedje, an octogenarian member of the Storting (parliament), has found a natural megalith of granite suitable for erection as a "bauta" stone for the Bjornson centenary celebrations this summer. In Viking times these "bauta" stones were set up to commemorate the illustrious dead, often being dragged for weeks on end to the chosen site. The stone measures about 23 feet wide, 18 inches thick, 15 feet high, and weighs seven tons. A portrait of the famous Norwegian poet is to be carved on the face of the stone found by Herr Fedje, after which it will be taken to Bjornson's estate at Aulestad, and erected in the grounds. Bjornson, massive and rugged in his person, as in his heart, could have desired no more fitting memorial.

Queen Sits on Auto Floor
After his visit to Europe the Emir Feisal advised his father, Ibn Saud, king of the Hedjaz, to buy automobiles for the entire royal family. The result was a $150,000 order. The coach-work of the cars is polished aluminum. The one for the Emir's mother is completely closed in and has no seats. Instead, its floor is spread with thick carpets. Overhead are electric fans to cool the heat of the Arabian desert.

Fossil remains more than 4,000 years old have been identified as those of a horse.

Iron Food for Troops
The new emergency or "iron" ration to be issued to the troops is just a hard cake weighing only 8 ounces. It consists of cocoa, sugar, pea powder, beef chowder, oil of lemon and cocoa butter. It is supposed to sustain a man for 24 hours.

"Sure, kid! Hop to it; but don't burn your snoot on my cigarette."

We carry small wheat for chickens over three weeks old for $1.10 per 100 lbs. This is the best feed on the market at the price.

"Yes," said the boastful young man "my family can trace its ancestry back to William the Conqueror."

"I suppose," sneered his friend, "you'll be telling us that your ancestors were in the Ark with Noah?"

"Certainly not," said the boaster, "My people had a boat of their own."

Dad: "Look here, my dear. I don't mind your sitting up late with that young man of yours but I do object to his walking off with my morning papers!"

Little chick starting grain, $2.00 per 100 lbs.; bran, $1.25 per 100 lbs.; middlings, $1.25 per 100 lbs.; egg laying mash, $1.90 per 100 lbs.; chick starting mash, $2.20 per 100 lbs.

ORDINANCE No. 88

An Ordinance Concerning the Use of City Sewers

Sec. 1. The City of Tawas City ordains that from and after the passage of this Act, any person, family, property, owner, firm or corporation desiring to use or make a junction with any sewer owned or built by the City, shall first pay into the city treasury the sum of Ten Dollars for each such connection or union.

Sec. 2. In case such union or sewer connection is made the work shall be done by or under the direction of the City Marshall or Street Commissioner, with the approval of the Board of Public Works, who shall collect such sum, or see that the same is paid, before the work is commenced.

Sec. 3. Any violation of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punishable by a fine of Ten Dollars or imprisonment in the county jail for ten days, upon conviction thereof before any Justice of the Peace of such city, upon complaint made by the City Marshall.

Sec. 4. This Ordinance shall be published for three successive weeks in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in Tawas City. Will C. Davidson, Clerk.

ORDINANCE No. 87

An ordinance to prohibit the erection of building costing less than $1000 on Lake Street in Tawas City.

Sec. 1. The City of Tawas City ordains that from and after the passage of this ordinance it shall not be lawful for any person, firm or corporation to erect any structure or building on Lake Street, or on lots abutting thereon, within the City Limits from the mouth of Tawas River on the South and along said street Northeastly, to the City Limits on the North, to cost less than One Thousand Dollars.

Sec. 2. Before any such building or structure shall be commenced permission therefor and approval thereof shall be obtained from the Board of Public Works of the City.

Sec. 3. Any violation of the provisions of this ordinance shall be punishable by a fine of One Hundred Dollars or imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ten days, or by both such fine and imprisonment, upon conviction thereof, before any Justice of the Peace of such city, upon complaint made by the City Marshall.

Sec. 4. This Ordinance shall be published for three successive weeks in the Tawas Herald, a newspaper printed and circulating in Tawas City. Will C. Davidson, Clerk.

IT'S VACATION TIME IN MICHIGAN

Tell those who live in less favored states of Michigan's sandy beaches, her forest trails, historic spots rich in Indian lore, her peerless summer climate and unequalled facilities for the enjoyment of every sport.

The millions of dollars spent each year by Michigan's thousands of visitors add to the prosperity of the state. Let us also spend our own vacations in Michigan this year, thereby contributing still further to its prosperity.

And wherever you go, dispel worry by telephoning home and office frequently. Call friends to tell them when you will arrive. Telephone ahead for hotel accommodations. Long Distance rates are low.

The most powerful and economical low-priced truck you can buy

It takes an exceptionally good truck to meet today's hauling needs. It must be capable of long runs at high speed. It must be powered to let the driver ignore road conditions. It must be able to operate with a minimum of time out for servicing, and with the lowest possible consumption of gasoline and oil.

Indication of Returning Prosperity

EMPLOYEES of the Des Moines assembly plant of a big automobile manufacturing company were called back to work the other day after months of idleness. The reopening of the plant was hailed by the Iowa city as a sure sign that prosperity was returning, and the parade put on by the workmen was heartily cheered.

OUR EVENING STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

NO ONE has much of anything to do with Rattles the Kingfisher. He and Mrs. Rattles live their lives quite by themselves. Others of the little feathered people are very social, and you often find them together. Many of them are close neighbors in the Old Orchard, and when the time comes for the long journey to the far-away sunny Southland a great many of them journey together, and the same thing is true when they come back in the spring. But the Rattles family is not social. Mr. and Mrs. Rattles always are found by themselves, and if the truth must be told, they seem to prefer it that way.

Now I suspect that it is partly because they want to be alone and partly because the other birds will have nothing to do with them. And the reason that they will have nothing to do with Rattles is because they do not understand him. In the first place, he isn't at all like other birds save that he wears a feathered coat and flies. He perches in trees, love to Mrs. Rattles he doesn't have a single soft note. Blacky the Crow has a harsh enough voice, goodness knows, but he can soften it when he wants to. The same thing is true of Sammy Jay. He screams most of the time, but sometimes his voice is really beautiful. There must be something wrong with anyone whose voice is always as hard as that of Rattles. And then, too, his head is too big for his body. I never could bear people with big heads."

"But you will have to admit that Rattles has a handsome coat even if he hasn't a fine voice," spoke up Welcome Robin with a sly wink to Goldie the Oriole. You know Jenny Wren has a very sober coat, a plain little brown coat.

Jenny tossed her head and jerked her tail. "Fine clothes never make fine people," she snapped. "I would rather have a fine voice than a fine coat. Rattles has rather a good-looking coat, though I don't know as I would call it handsome. He needs something good. I'm told his home smells something awful. But what could you expect of anyone who lives in a hole in the ground and eats nothing but fish?"

"I live in a hole in the ground, and I know a good many others who do the same thing, and let me tell you that our houses are as neat and clean and sweet as those of people who live in holes in trees," spoke up Johnny Chuck, who had been listening. "For my part I think Rattles the Kingfisher has more sense than some people I could mention, if it is true that he makes his home in a hole in the ground."

"That is all right for you folks who cannot fly," retorted Jenny Wren sharply, "but for a bird—Bah! It gives me the feeling that he is only half bird. And they say that he makes his nest of fish bones! Did you ever hear of anything like that? No self-respecting bird will have anything to do with another who lives in a hole in the ground and uses fish bones for a nest. Fish bones! Think of it!"

"I don't know that that is any worse than using Mr. Blacksnake's old clothes to line a nest with, and that is what Cresty the Flycatcher does," said Chatterer the Red Squirrel, who had been listening.

"Certainly it is!" snapped Jenny Wren. "And then think how the place smells!"

And so Jenny Wren chattered on and on, and the other birds said little. But it was clear to Johnny Chuck that they agreed with Jenny Wren. They didn't like Rattles the Kingfisher, and all because he didn't live as they did.

"Just hear that noisy fellow," said she. "I don't wonder he and Mrs. Rattles want to live by themselves. If I had a voice like that I would want to do the same thing. Did you ever hear such a voice? Isn't it awful? He can't sing a single note, and I've heard say that when he makes but never walks or hops about on the ground. Yet he makes his home in the ground, a thing that no self-respecting bird does save one other, a cousin of Skimmer the Swallow.

Pert little Jenny Wren, the gossip of the Old Orchard, happened to hear his rattle as he flew over the Old Orchard one day, and it set her gossipy little tongue to going as only it can go. There isn't any tongue that can wag faster than that of Jenny Wren.

"Just hear that noisy fellow," said she. "I don't wonder he and Mrs. Rattles want to live by themselves. If I had a voice like that I would want to do the same thing. Did you ever hear such a voice? Isn't it awful? He can't sing a single note, and I've heard say that when he makes

WITH SOUR CREAM

AS OFTEN sour milk and cream accumulate, one must be alert to make the best use of such valuable food.

Johnny cake is one of the best of hot breads to use the sour milk or cream. If one has cream, the shortening may be lessened or left out entirely.

Sour milk and sour cream may take the place of the sweet milk in any recipe when using flour. A bit of soda, often not more than an eighth of a teaspoonful need be added and the usual baking powder used as in the recipe for sweet milk. It is better to stir the soda into the sour milk or cream, seeing that it is well dissolved, before adding to the flour and egg mixture.

When sour cream is to be substituted for fat, one must remember that it takes the place of some of the liquid as well as fat. A very little experience will enable one to judge of the richness of cream and the exchange when using it instead of butter.

Another point to be remembered is that sour milk needs a bit more thickening than sweet, as the lactic acid acts on the gluten of the flour, softening it.

Sugar Cookies.

Take one cupful of sugar, one egg, one cupful of thick sour cream, one-half teaspoonful of soda, flour to roll—about two cupfuls—two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of lemon extract and a grating of nutmeg. Mix and roll out only a portion at a time. Brush the cookies

Chocolate Drop Cookies.

Take one cupful of brown sugar, one egg, one cupful of thick sour cream, one-half teaspoonful each of soda and salt, three-fourths of a cupful of nuts, one and one-half cupfuls of whole wheat flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, three square of chocolate and three-fourths of a cupful of raisins. Mix and drop by teaspoonfuls on baking sheet. Bake at lower temperature than sugar cookies. This recipe makes three dozen. (© 1932, Western Newspaper Union.)

Artificial Silk

A substitute for silk has been sought for a great many years. As early as 1855 George Audemars of Switzerland patented in England a process for making artificial silk filaments from collodion and liquid rubber. The artificial silk industry was not established on a practical basis, however, until the invention of a French count, Hilaire de Chardonnet, who exhibited a cellulose yarn in Paris in 1899. His process has been improved and developed into the rayon of today.

New Soviet Ship Annoys Tars

Vessel Without Helm Arouses Wrath of Sailors.

London.—Salty old British sea dogs, descended from many generations of adventurous mariners and with sea water, rather than blood, in their veins, are disgusted.

The object of their loathing is the Soviet ship Neva, which arrived here recently with a consignment of Black sea butter. It is not because the Neva is a foreign ship, nor that she brought foreign produce in spite of the "Buy British" campaign. But the Russian builders of this new vessel have dared to violate all the notable traditions of the sea by designing a ship without the beloved steering wheel.

The forefathers of these old salts fought hard to retain sails, ropes, rigging, and wooden hulls, but gradually resigned themselves to steam, clear superstructure, and steel. Many of the present generation have even been converted from steam to motor power, but a ship without a steering wheel is regarded by most British seamen as the very last straw.

If this Russian innovation is universally accepted, the traditional warning, "Don't talk to the man at the wheel," will have to be changed to "Don't interfere with the helmsman's buttons," for steering on the Neva is done by a series of electric buttons.

It is almost impossible to imagine a picture of the typical rugged seaman, grim and determined, rain and sea water pouring from his oilskin coat and son'-wester, battling against the gale by tapping his fingers on little buttons set on the top of what looks like a steam radiator.

In order to port the helm, the helmsman merely presses the appropriate button and an indicator needle tells him if he has sufficient swing on the vessel. Should a sharper turn be necessary, other buttons may be pressed. There are similar buttons for putting the helm to starboard.

The Neva, which was built in one of the former imperial Russian naval yards, has a number of other devices, regarded by the old-time sailorman as a positive nightmare.

Government Workers

Now Travel by Air

Washington.—The average fare rate per mile on air passenger lines in the United States is 6.29 cents, according to the Commerce department.

This is 7 per cent lower than the fare in effect at the beginning of 1932, is only about half of the average rate in effect on January 1, 1930, and compares with an average railroad rate of about 3 cents per mile.

The rates announced by the department were computed on 50,000 miles of air routes in the United States.

Air travel rates have become so low that government employees, on official business, are now allowed to travel by air instead of rail.

Sight Restored After 20 Years, Changes Awe Him

New York.—"I don't know what to say or do," said Jacob Lieberman. "I couldn't be happier with millions."

He had groped in darkness for 20 years—blind. At eighty-seven years old, it seemed that he would never see sunshine, trees, and faces again. Then surgeons operated on his eyes in the home of the New York Guild for the Jewish Blind. His eyes were bandaged for days. Finally they were uncovered. He blinked and smiled. "I see!" he exclaimed.

Years seemed to fall away from Jacob Lieberman after that. He looked younger, happier. Friends he had known only by their voices became visible. He looked at himself in the mirror and laughed. For the first time he saw his snow-white hair and beard. He was proud of his military carriage, still retained, a reminder of service in the Russian army.

For the first time in 20 years he lighted his own cigarette. Downstairs he walked unflatteringly and came out into a world he had not seen for a fifth of a century.

He smiled joyously at trees showing new leaves, but he was amazed at the traffic, the higher buildings, new-type cars, and transformed streets.

Back at home, he took a bath unaided and put on a new suit.

"I am richer than Rockefeller," he said.

Hindu Ceremonies Cost Billion Yearly

Religious Body Wants Huge Expenses Reduced.

London.—That the Hindus in India spend something like $1,250,000,000 annually on ceremonial occasions, and that this national budget of the people needs economizing, is the main conclusion and recommendation made in a preliminary report by the Hindu religious committee to his holiness the shankaracharya, Doctor Kurtakoti.

A small committee was appointed by his holiness at the end of last year to report on the condition of religious observances in India and their effect on the economic condition of the people. The following are the general conclusions drawn up by that committee in a preliminary report:

Leaving out the Moslems and the depressed classes for the moment, there are 200,000,000 Hindus in British India. These are grouped into about 40,000,000 families. There are about 4,000,000 deaths each year in these families.

Every death means religious ceremonies, lasting for 13 days, which are performed by Hindus of all castes. It has been estimated that 50 rupees per death ceremony would be a very modest estimate. Thus 200,000,000 rupees per year is paid out by the Hindus in what the committee calls "death duties" surrendered to the Hindu society. Part of this is purely for ceremonies. Similarly there are about 5,000,000 births per year among the caste Hindus. The ceremonies in connection with births are much less complicated, as seemingly the passing of man from this life is of more importance than an arrival into the world, and the committee calculates that the total average cost does not exceed 10 rupees per head, including the ceremonies. This would add 50,000,000 rupees to the bill.

During the lifetime of a caste Hindu there are in all 16 ceremonies, including birth and death. In the case of the Brahmins, numbering more than 15,000,000, there are two ceremonies, the death and marriage ceremonies which are the most important.

Marriage is a ceremony of universal importance with Hindus of all castes. It has been estimated that there are in all about 30,000,000 Hindu families in India. The number of marriages per year is estimated at about 5,000,000. But taking into consideration that two families are concerned in the marriage, about 10,000,000 families are affected by it. At the lowest, it is estimated, each of these families spends about 150 rupees on the marriage, bringing the Hindu national marriage bill up to the huge sum of 1,500,000,000 rupees.

The thread ceremony among the Brahmins is the most important, as without it no person has the right to call himself a Brahmin. About 250,000 thread ceremonies take place every year, costing about 30,000,000 rupees.

There are numerous other ceremonies on all sorts of occasions, like the new year, the dassa, the festival of lights, etc. Added together, all these ceremonies represent an expenditure of 2,750,000,000 rupees, or $1,050,000,000.

The depressed classes, numbering about 50,000,000, have their annual ceremonial which costs them about 10 rupees per head, adding another 500,000,000 rupees, of $187,500,000 to the huge sum spent on ritual. The committee considers that this is an estimate for very lean years. For the average good year this estimate should be increased by 50 per cent.

Taking the present estimate as the best for the purpose of general consideration the committee thinks that at the present moment, when the government dues are being considered as excessive, an attempt should be made to reduce these religious charges. The government of India's annual revenue is round about $500,000,000. The Hindu spends more than 25 per cent on his religious rites and ceremonies alone. If the income of an Indian per head per year is taken at the official figure of $25, then the Hindu is spending more than 25 per cent of his income on religious ceremonies. After government and other taxes have been paid the Hindu has to live on about 15 cents per week.

The committee considers that a broader and more humane outlook must be taken of this problem of life for the Hindu. They feel that the question must be considered as a whole and that heads of the Hindu religion should be consulted throughout India, and that religious ceremonies should be reduced in costs so as to make it possible to undertake religious ceremonies without having to borrow from a money lender to do so.

Italian Stores Retail

Gas Masks for Next War

Rome.—Fear of gas attacks against civilian populations in the next war is one of Europe's worst bugbears at the present time.

Retail stores in Italy are now displaying a type of gas mask in their shop windows the same as they would hot water bottles, goggles, or other types of rubber and chemical appliances. Two types of masks are to be seen in a store window for retail sale in Plebiscite street, just opposite Mussolini's office. No statistics on retail sales are available but the implication is that the public is to be encouraged to buy these masks and store them away for time of need.

Italian disarmament proposals at Geneva call for the discontinuance of gas warfare and the dismantling of all factories for the manufacture of toxic gases for war purposes. Meanwhile the manufacture of gas masks adds another staple to the rubber and chemical business for public consumption.

THE STORY

Six bandits hold up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the Mackenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sgt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father, Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits, and returns to Fort Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame. Alan starts out of the country in a motor canoe. He meets "Buzzard" Featherof, famous aviator.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"Buzzard"—that's more like. I saw you sailing around up there when I got off the train. Made inquiries and hustled out here to the field. Was on my way down to Winnipeg. Expected I'd have to go down there, or maybe to Calgary, to find a machine and a pilot.

"Uh-huh."

Baker jerked his thumb at the plane—"Whose is that?"

"Looking at you. Belongs to me and myself. Unlimited. Bought it with cigarette coupons."

Baker's face brightened a little, and now Buzzard noticed that this hard-bitten man was deeply worried but was hiding his trouble and talking with a jest on his lips.

"So the machine belongs to you. Glad to hear that. Working on your own hook, I suppose? That's still better. Say, Featherof, how long are you booked up ahead?"

Buzzard had found it good policy to lie. If he made out there was a crushing demand for his services, it impressed people and got him jobs—sometimes.

"Oh, about two months," he said carelessly. "All depends on how much flying weather I get."

Baker plucked a blade of grass and chewed it meditatively. Finally he asked: "Say, Featherof, you couldn't shake free for a couple or three weeks, could you? Get sick, or have to get married, or something like that?"

Buzzard took thought as he batted an eye. A couple or three weeks. . . . Must be a good-sized job. . . . Might pay well. . . . Oh d—n the pay! Always thinking of pay. Getting comerdal.

"I might," he answered. "Depends. What kind of flying do you want me to do? What for a job is it?"

"That would take me some time to explain. I wouldn't want any man to tackle it without him understanding the whole thing, or then he might feel I'd dragged him into trouble."

Something in Baker's tone made Buzzard look at him sharply. "Nothing ille—crook—out of the ordinary, is it?"

"It's all three, and then some."

Buzzard bit his cigarette. "And then some?" My eyes! Who're you declaring war on?"

"If you want to know who I am, I was in the Mounted. The O. C. here at Edmonton can tell you about me. And I can give you other references."

"You were in the Mounted?" Buzzard frowned thoughtfully. "Baker—the Mounted. . . . Say, haven't I heard or read somewhere. . . . Are you that Sergeant Baker down north near the Arctic?"

Alan nodded.

"My eyes! I've read about some of your doings. You're on a detective trick or something like that, Baker?"

With expert judgment Alan had been sizing up his new acquaintance, from his brick-red helmet, down across his oil-splattered jumpers, to his "side-walk" shoes. He read the daredevilry in this Featherof. He was a man after Alan's own heart. And he had a machine of his own! If only he'd go, it would save precious days looking for a plane and pilot.

Alan said: "My story is a long one. You look as hungry as I feel. . . ."

"I am, Baker. Let's go eat and then talk."

Alan helped him pull a canvas over the machine. Together they stepped over to the taxi. As they rambled down town they swapped war yarns, discovered several mutual acquaintances, and came down to "Alan" and "Buzzard."

Baker Jerked His Thumb at the Plane—"Whose is That?"

jumped. "Will I go—on a trick like that? H—l's bells, what a question! Would I kiss my girl if she asked me to?"

Alan checked him: "Just a minute, Buzzard. Let's get a couple things clear. One is the matter of pay. I've got a couple hundred dollars in my pocket and five hundred coming by wire. It'll probably take all that to outfit us, so right now I can't pay you one red cent. But I'm going onto a good-salaried job, and I'll pay you before the year's over—"

"How much are you getting out of this?" Nothing. Good! I'll take the same."

"But it's my affair, my quarrel."

"Then I'll horn in on it. And besides, I'll get my pay out of it in the long run. Look at the publicity value, Alan, if we pull a stunt like that! With all the headline advertising I'd get. . . ."

"But supposing your machine gets wrecked down north somewhere? It'd be a total loss. I couldn't pay you back for a long—"

"Usually when a fellow's plane is a total wreck, he doesn't worry much about the loss. All he cares about is a nice headstone."

"But look here now, and get this straight. We haven't any right to pull a trick like this, Buzzard. We're stepping outside the law. We're violating several hard and fast statutes. I happen to know."

Buzzard grew impatient. "Suppose we get down to essentials. You said you wanted to leave as soon as you could. Then let's talk sense. How about gas? This crate of mine isn't one of these transatlantic planes."

Positively the Latest in "Simplified English"

What is described as "a scientific and practical method of simplifying English spelling" has been worked out by a Swedish professor, who calls his system "Anglic." It is designed especially for the use of foreign students. The professor apparently has the idea that "Anglic" may become a sort of universal language, because, he explains, in the "true spelling" he has devised, that he wants to "pae" our "langwig" the hiest compliment possible by endeavoring to maek it noen, uezd, luvd, and apreeshaeted al over the world." Such a language—which all may read—has been worked out between the British railways and a number of foreign lines. It consists of a series of picture labels, affixed to goods carried by rail, which are going from one country to another. The labels show the nature of the goods

It'll do about seven hundred miles in a pinch, and then it stops and sets down. I'll have to get a pack-chute for you. A decent one'll cost three hundred. I've got to put on a new propeller; that toothpick on the old crate now is about ready to quit. A new prop costs like sixty. Then we need navigating instruments on a long trip like this. They come high. I could use fifteen hundred dollars."

Alan paled a little, but he said doggedly: "I'll raise it. I'll raise it somehow."

Buzzard was thoughtful for a moment. "Maybe," he said finally, "you won't have to raise it. I'll tell you what, Alan; you give me two hundred, and I'll try to manage the rest of it. You'll need money for your outfit and we'll have to keep some for operating expenses."

Alan nodded, though he did wonder what Buzzard meant by that word "manage."

They went back to the Chateau and waited. At three o'clock the wire came from Victoria.

"The five hundred is accompanying this let me know if need more looking forward to seeing you and presumably meeting Mrs. Baker."

"S. G. V. STEELE."

Alan was grateful for the desperately needed money; grateful for the personal warmth of Colonel Steele's message. But he felt that he had sold his freedom now and indentured himself.

Stubbornly he forced his mind away from the heavy cost and regrets that tore at him. Putting aside three hundred dollars for operating expenses, he gave Buzzard two hundred and kept two hundred for himself. After arranging to meet out at the field that night, they separated.

At a pawn shop Alan stopped and bought a pair of binoculars. Powerful x-12's of a costly make, they put a sad dent in his roll. Farther along he managed to purchase two heavy automatics, slipping the proprietor ten dollars extra in lieu of a permit. They came emergency food for the trip and the flying togs Buzzard had advised him to get.

He still lacked a folding canoe, a number of small items, and one last piece of equipment—the most vital of all his adventure. Down to fifteen dollars, he went into another pawn shop and soaked his expensive watch and a diamond heirloom of his mother's, making the owner promise to hold them for six months. With a hundred and seventy-five in his pocket, and a second-hand Ingersoll which the old gentleman had kindly given him, he walked out, breathing easier.

As he passed a fashion shop, his eyes happened to be caught by an exquisite ceinture fleecée, a broad sash-belt hand-made in old Quebec. Thinking of the worn and faded one Joyce owned, he stood admiring this beauty, imagining how rapturous Joyce would be if she had it. She knew how to wear it properly, with a saucy grace that only the metisse girls could match, for the wearing of the bright girdle was an ancient voyageur custom rapidly dying out. . . . Forty precious dollars. . . . but worth the price if she'd like it, a gift from him. . . .

With almost his last dollar he went in and bought the girdle.

Later, through the gathering twilight, he walked to the armory. Two companies were practicing there that evening. By pretending to be a new Edmonton citizen anxious to learn how to drill and perhaps to join the militia, he not only got inside but was shown all around the place by a lieutenant impressed by his stalwart powerful physique.

The lieutenant went back to his duties, the companies went on drilling, the privileged spectators began trickling homeward. When the armory was closed at eleven, when the gaunt big building was locked up and deserted, it was Alan Baker who rose up, like a thief in the night, out of a big bass drum case in a corner on the ground floor.

Not daring to strike a light, he groped across the parade floor to the room where the lieutenant had showed him the machine guns and explained their use—to him, commander of a machine gun platoon through a dozen major battles! He felt around among various types till he laid hands on an old friend, the Browning air-cooled, A-10. He found plenty of ammunition, a better tripod, and lastly a tarpaulin to wrap the whole outfit in, for if he started down an Edmonton street with a machine gun over his shoulder he was not likely to get far.

Gathering all his things at the Chateau, he whipped on out to the rendezvous arranged with his new-found partner.

WORLD'S GOLD

Weighing Gold Bars in a South African Refinery.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

DISCOVERY of a gold belt more than 100 miles long and from three to ten miles wide in northern Quebec, Canada, and the recovery of the golden treasure of the ill-fated steamer Egypt which lies on the floor of the Atlantic off Brest, France, have recently brought the precious yellow metal into the world news.

Hardly a day passes, however, without gold creeping into the headlines. One day a great nation drops the gold standard. On another day another nation adds steadily to its stock of gold; on another a new mine is discovered somewhere; on another, unusually large shipments of gold cross the Atlantic, the Pacific or the Indian ocean.

Despite a universal interest in the gold, the average man probably has hazy ideas of the actual amounts of gold involved in world stocks, annual production, and the incessant shipments back and forth between countries. To a considerable extent this is owing to the extremely small unit—the "fine ounce"—by which the weight of gold is measured.

It will help visualize the amounts of gold that figure in the world's news, if we construct in imagination a "super dollar" of gold worth one hundred million dollars. This super dollar will be a disk one foot thick and just a tiny fraction less than 18½ feet in diameter. It will thus retain, roughly, the shape and proportion of the ordinary gold dollar, will contain a trifle more than 27½ cubic feet of gold, and will weigh a little less than 166 tons.

Gold production statistics are not available for the period covered by the history of civilization, nor even for the Christian era. But we do have fairly accurate estimates of the total amount of gold mined in all parts of the earth since the discovery of America by Columbus. Let us imagine all this gold brought together today at one spot and minted into our super dollars. With the aid of a huge crane we can have these huge yellow "chips" piled one on top of another to see how high the world's "stack" will reach. When 224 have been put in place the supply of full "dollars" will have been exhausted. To bring the pile up to date, we will have to hoist to the top as a capstone, a half of one of our disks, shaped like half a pie, and worth only $50,000,000.

World's Gold in a Column.

Here, then, in a sparkling column 18½ feet in diameter and more than 224 feet high, would rest all the gold that has been gleaned by myriads of men in 440 years of toil. The column would be about as high as a 20 story office building, and would be worth approximately $22,450,000,000. During the past five years, a "super dollar" has been added to this world pile approximately every three months—about $400,000,000 worth of gold each year.

But as soon as we have built up our imaginary stack, we must begin pulling it down if we would represent the current gold situation. For although almost twenty-two and a half billion dollars worth of gold has been produced from 1492 to 1932, this is not the amount "in sight" in the world today. Nearly half the precious metal represented by our imaginary stack has been lost, hidden away, or used up in industry, the making of jewelry, the gilding of ornaments, and the like. The total known stock of gold money and gold bars in the world at the end of 1931 was worth approximately eleven and a half billion dollars. We must therefore discard something like the upper half of our imaginary stack of gold, leaving only 115 of the huge disks in place. This 115 foot tower of precious metal, that we have built in fancy, represents the monetary gold of the world. On it are based all monetary systems in so far as they depend on gold.

But again we must alter our imaginary golden tower. At no time, of course, has all the world's monetary gold been assembled in one country. The greatest concentration within the borders of one nation occurred in September, 1931, when the amount of gold coin and gold cast in bars in the United States slightly exceeded five billion dollars in value. In the United States, then, there could have been built last autumn the greatest tower of gold that it has ever been possible to construct of the holdings of a single nation—a stack of 50 of our gigantic hundred-million-dollar "chips." At the same time France could have piled up 25 of the great disks.

YOUNG COW MAKES SPLENDID RECORD

Yield Equals That of Five Ordinary Animals.

(By S. J. BROWNELL, New York State College of Agriculture.)

With cows like Lauderdale Lilly Posch, the old-fashioned family cow would become a neighborhood cow, for this four-year-old Holstein gave as much milk as five typical dairy cows, or enough for 65 people for a year when she recently made the record of 24,000 pounds of milk and $22.9 pounds of fat.

Lilly was bred by H. V. Bump of Cambridge but is now owned by Harry Yates of Orchard Park. Her mother is the daughter of North Star General Champion, who has fourteen daughters in the advanced registry of the breed, and made a record of 23,424 pounds of milk and $40 pounds of fat as a five-year-old.

Lilly Posch gave from 91 pounds of milk on her best day to 41 pounds on the last day of the test. She was fed an average of 16 pounds of grain a day composed of: 300 pounds of oats, 200 hominy, 300 distiller's grains, 200 bran, 100 gluten, 100 cotton seed meal, 100 oil meal, 20 minerals, 25 charcoal, and 10 salt. Her roughage was 20 pounds silage, 10 alfalfa hay, and 10 beet pulp daily. She was fed about forty pounds of red beets a day for about four months and during this period the beet pulp was cut to five pounds daily.

DAIRY FACTS

Nearly 700 New York dairymen in 51 counties tested 8,569 cows by mail in April.

A reliable dairy thermometer is cheap insurance against losing a premium or having milk rejected.

For the third successive year, a cow owned by Hugh Andrew of Haddington, England, has given 2,000 gallons of milk.

Teaching the calf to drink takes time, milk and other feeds for the young calf are costly, and in most parts of the country the calf requires stable room.

High yield per cow is the basis for profitable milk production. Cows producing less than 200 pounds of butterfat fail to pay for the cost of feed and labor.

Keep the calf pens and bull pens darkened and apply fly spray twice a day.

Prompt handling of milk and proper facilities for maintaining a favorable temperature during the summer are necessary to marketing first-grade cream.

The average 10-cow herd keeping records in Minnesota returned this past year about $230 more over feed cost than the average of all herds. Culling out the poor cows helps.

DAIRY FACTS

YOUNG COW MAKES SPLENDID RECORD

Yield Equals That of Five Ordinary Animals.

(By S. J. BROWNELL, New York State College of Agriculture.)

With cows like Lauderdale Lilly Posch, the old-fashioned family cow would become a neighborhood cow, for this four-year-old Holstein gave as much milk as five typical dairy cows, or enough for 65 people for a year when she recently made the record of 24,000 pounds of milk and $22.9 pounds of fat.

Lilly was bred by H. V. Bump of Cambridge but is now owned by Harry Yates of Orchard Park. Her mother is the daughter of North Star General Champion, who has fourteen daughters in the advanced registry of the breed, and made a record of 23,424 pounds of milk and $40 pounds of fat as a five-year-old.

Lilly Posch gave from 91 pounds of milk on her best day to 41 pounds on the last day of the test. She was fed an average of 16 pounds of grain a day composed of: 300 pounds of oats, 200 hominy, 300 distiller's grains, 200 bran, 100 gluten, 100 cotton seed meal, 100 oil meal, 20 minerals, 25 charcoal, and 10 salt. Her roughage was 20 pounds silage, 10 alfalfa hay, and 10 beet pulp daily. She was fed about forty pounds of red beets a day for about four months and during this period the beet pulp was cut to five pounds daily.

Growing Sentiment for Fewer and Better Cows

Three per cent of all dairymen in Illinois are members of dairy herd improvement associations and more of them will join the movement as fast as they realize that it often is possible to make more money from fewer and better cows, state dairy authorities claim. Also fewer and better cows not only will make more money but they will put less milk and butterfat on the market.

For instance, 10 cows like those that averaged between 450 and 500 pounds of butterfat in 1931 made as much return above cost of feed as 27 cows that averaged 200 to 250 pounds each. Returns above feed cost do not tell the whole story. In one case there are 10 cows to house and care for and in the other case 27 cows. Labor and equipment are important items of expense in producing milk and butterfat. Furthermore, the 10 cows made as much above cost of feed as the 27 cows and they produced 50,958 pounds less milk and 1,456 pounds less butterfat for market consumption.

Check the Separator

In a study of 1,027 separators in use by members of cow testing associations it was found that 12 per cent of all separators in use for less than one year did not skim clean. Of the separators that had been in use for five years, 35 per cent left .08 of one per cent of fat in the skim milk and of those that had been in use for 15 years 50 per cent did not do a good job of skimming.

This does not mean that there was anything radically wrong with these separators. It just meant that they were somewhat out of adjustment. The figures presented are given merely as reminders that it pays to check up on the cream separator once in a while to see whether it is doing as good work as it is capable of doing. When a separator leaves .05 of one per cent more of fat in the skim milk than it should, the loss in a herd of ten cows may run from four to six pounds of fat a month.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

DAIRY FACTS

Nearly 700 New York dairymen in 51 counties tested 8,569 cows by mail in April.

A reliable dairy thermometer is cheap insurance against losing a premium or having milk rejected.

For the third successive year, a cow owned by Hugh Andrew of Haddington, England, has given 2,000 gallons of milk.

Teaching the calf to drink takes time, milk and other feeds for the young calf are costly, and in most parts of the country the calf requires stable room.

Waiting for the Signal

Sister was visiting in the country and auntie had promised her she could gather the eggs. She was up bright and early the first morning and after making many fruitless trips to the henhouse, asked:

"Aunt Mildred, how can you tell when those hens lay?"

"When they cackle," she was told. She stood around a while and finally said:

"Auntie, has those hens giggled yet?"

Barge on Reservoir

A new boat has been added to the municipal fleet of Los Angeles, Calif. This strange craft, officially known as a chlorine barge, will chug back and forth over the waters of the 100-acre reservoir that supplies water to the city. The boat will release chlorine gas, compressed to a liquid in eight tilted cylinders, into the water through long spouts. The powerful chemical kills germs and minute growths.

MORTGAGE SALE

By reason of default in the payment and conditions of a mortgage made by Christine Ulrich Holland and her husband, James G. Holland, of Detroit, Michigan, and each in own right, Mortgagees, to Joseph R. Misener and Nella Misener, his wife, of East Tawas, Michigan, of the second part, Mortgagees, dated July 11, 1930, and recorded in the Register of Deeds' office for Isosco County, Michigan, on the 14th day of July, 1930, in Liber 28 of Mortgages at Page One, and upon which there is now claimed to be due at this date by reason of such default, the sum of Eighteen Hundred and Seventy-eight Dollars, for principal and interest, and no legal proceeding having been taken to recover said sum;

Said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises on the 10th day of September, 1932, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, Eastern Standard time, at the front door of the Court House in Tawas City, Isosco County, Michigan, to satisfy the amount then due for principal, interest, attorney fee and costs.

Said mortgaged premises are described as follows: A piece of land in Fractional Section No. 28, and the E½ of Government Lot No. 1 of Section 21, T. 22 N., R. 8 East, 100 feet wide fronting on Tawas Bay, and bounded as follows: "Commencing on the North line of Section 28 at point 1400 feet west of the NE corner of said Section, thence South parallel with the east line of Section 28 to the shore of Tawas Bay; then Wly along the Bay Shore 101.3 feet, then North parallel with the first line and 100 feet therefrom across Section 28 and into Section 21, a distance of 256.2 feet, more or less, to the south line of 20 foot driveway; then South 84 degrees east along said driveway to a point directly North of the starting point; thence straight South to the beginning." Also use of said 20 foot driveway across the north end of said Lot, for use of Grantee with the joining Lot owners; reserving all commercial fishing rights. Situated in East Tawas, Isosco County, Michigan.
