MARIAN NIXON FIT FOR 'REBECCA' ROLE

The attributes that make Rebecca one of the best-loved characters of literature and the drama are said to have fitted Marian Nixon for the role in the Fox version of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," which reaches the screen of the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, August 23, 24 and 25.

Like the Rebecca who sprang from the creative brain of Kate Douglas Wiggin, creator of the original story, Miss Nixon has all the qualities which make for an interesting and lovable personality. She takes intense pride in her work, is considerate of others, and has a genuine friendliness and interest in people that has won her countless friends both as an actress of ability and as a private individual.

Like Rebecca, too, Miss Nixon is keenly imaginative, naturally buoyant, and by training and inclination she is wholeheartedly optimistic. All of these qualities were stressed by Alfred Santell, who directed the picture, and are given emphasis by the sympathetic support of Ralph Bellamy. He is seen opposite Miss Nixon as the romantic Dr. Adam Ladd, whose love for Rebecca dominates the plot.

HALE TIGERS WIN TWO GAMES

On Sunday, August 14, the Hale Tigers took Harrisville into camp, 4 to 2. Young Clayton, a boy of 16 years, held the hard hitting Harrisville bunch for four frames without a hit, striking out five. One base on balls, a hit batsman, coupled with a few errors, resulted in one run off his delivery. When this boy gets a few pounds of avoirdupois on him, watch out. Slosser and Rahl finished the game, struck out eight men and allowed only three hits, finishing with the above result.

Wednesday afternoon, at Grange picnic at Sand Lake, the Tigers defeated Tawas City, strengthened by a few of the best from East Tawas, to the tune of an 11-5 score. In the first five innings 18 men faced Slosser, and three hits and one run were collected. In the (Turn to No. 1, Back Page)

LOCALS LOSE IN SHUT-OUT

By making the most of the seven hits they collected off Brown, local hurler, the St. Mary's nine of Alpena shut out the Tawas City boys last Sunday at Alpena by a 6-0 score.

Both teams played splendid ball in the field, no miscues being made on either side, and contrary to the indications of the final score, the contest was a stiff one. The performances given by Brown and McDonald, opposing pitchers, were the highlights of the game. Brown was nicked for seven safeties while McDonald yielded but four. In strikeouts Brown excelled his opponent, whiffing nine men, while but three locals went down before McDonald by that route.

Tawas City will engage the East Tawas Merchants next Sunday, August 21. The contest will be played at the Tawas City Athletic Field.

OLD CALIFORNIA ROMANCE LIVES IN ACTION FILM

"Vanishing Frontier," a story of Old California, starring Johnny Mack Brown, and featuring Evelyn Knapp, ZaSu Pitts, Raymond Hatton and J. Farrell McDonald, comes to the State Theatre this week Friday and Saturday.

The story is set in the period immediately following California's annexation to the United States, but before the territorial government has been set up. Under command of an unimaginative officer, the United States cavalry enforces martial law.

Brown has the role of a Spanish-American who shows his resentment against the military rule by organizing a band of guerrillas to right the wrongs committed by the soldiers. Like some 18th century Robin Hood, he steals back from the cavalry the money they have taken from the natives, and then restores it to the former owners.

The picture is filled with breathless and stirring incidents. Battles between the guerrillas and the military, escapes from a convict ship, midnight rides through dangerous canyons, and many other such sequences contribute to the suspense.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT CAUSES LOSS OF ARM

Grover Sessler of East Tawas was the victim of an auto accident early last Sunday morning in which his arm was shattered at the elbow and had to be amputated.

Mr. Sessler's arm, which had been protruding through the window, was shattered. The injured man was taken to Dr. C. F. Smith's residence for first aid and then to the Omer hospital where it was found necessary to amputate the arm.

The truck is owned by the Wright Trucking company of Detroit.

FLYERS WILL BE HERE 3 DAYS

The American Goodwill Flyers will arrive at Tawas near noon Saturday and are planning a three-day sojourn here. They will use the Fair Grounds as the base of their operations.

Five free passes for plane rides will be dropped from the plane Saturday noon over the business section of Tawas City. The passes will be compliments of the Tawas Herald.

Eddie Nibur, the chief pilot of the flyers, will be at the controls of the new standard open biplane powered with a Wright Whirlwind motor.

Nibur, who is a veteran flyer, has been flying for seven years, has over 3500 flying hours to his credit, and has carried more than sixty thousand passengers without an accident.

His mechanic is Dick Estler, who is one of the mechanics who assisted in preparing Amelia Earhart's plane for her trans-Atlantic flight.

After displaying the usual repertoire of loops, rolls, tail spins, etc., Pilot Nibur will demonstrate what is known in aviation circles as a "dead stick landing," to show that the popular theory that a ship is sunk if the motor dies, is not true.

After climbing to an altitude of three thousand feet, the motor is stopped and gasoline drained so that it cannot be started again while in the air. The pilot then performs a loop, roll and tail spin and finally lands the ship lightly and gracefully.

LIONEL BARRYMORE GIVES BRILLIANT PORTRAYAL

Washington, with its swirl of political intrigue, social splendor and the dramatic details of the "inside" of national political machinery, forms a spectacular background for Lionel Barrymore's newest appearance on the screen in "The Washington Masquerade."

Based on "The Claw" one of the famous actor's greatest triumphs on the stage, the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, which shows at the Family Theatre next Sunday and Monday, August 21 and 22, presents the actor in a truly "Barrymore-sized" role, as the senator and political power who is master of men, but nevertheless the tool of a designing woman.

Karen Morley scores as the political vamp, married to Barrymore. Nils Asther offers a skillful portrayal as the suave foreign affairs manipulator. The new screen "find," Diane Sinclair, plays the role of Barrymore's daughter.

One of the biggest hits of the year—don't miss it.

OSCODA - TAWAS PAVING PROMISED

A delegation from the Tenth Congressional district, headed by Sam Yockey of Harrisville, appeared Tuesday before the highway committee of the state administrative board and urged the paving of the road to Oscoda from Tawas this year. This portion of the road has been graded and a bridge over the AuSable river is now under construction.

Governor Brucker assured the group that the improvement would be made as soon as state finances permitted. He said it certainly will be on the program for paving next year and hoped it would be possible to add it to this year's schedule. He said that all members of the administrative board were interested in improving the highways of eastern Michigan north of Bay City and that a large amount of money had already been spent on projects in that section during the past two years.

That, while the Shore road was a very important part of the program, other highways in the districts must also receive consideration. He repeatedly assured them that the work of improving the Shore road would continue.

About 70 people from Harrisville, Oscoda, East Tawas, Tawas City and Bay City were in the delegation. Sam Yockey of Harrisville acted as chairman, with Mayor W. A. Evans of East Tawas, T. F. Marston of the East Michigan Tourist Association, and Representative Arthur C. MacKinnon of Bay City as principal speakers.

Previous to hearing the Shore road group, delegations from Holland and Saugatuck appeared Tuesday before the committee asking for improvements on U. S. 31 and a large number of demands have been made during the past few weeks for improvements on old and new projects throughout the state.

H. S. KARCHER IS CANDIDATE

As a result of a great deal of support promised from the home folks of Ogemaw county, and friends throughout the 28th senatorial district, H. S. Karcher of Rose City filed his petition for nomination on the Republican ticket as state senator of the 28th senatorial district.

Mr. Karcher has been a resident of Ogemaw county and the district for the past 45 years and during that time has always taken a keen interest in the affairs of government, and the development of this section of the state. For that reason he knows the present needs of the district, as well as anyone living within its boundaries.

He has served two very successful terms in the Michigan Senate, and while a member was considered one of the ablest men of the body, as he was selected to serve on all important committees.

Through his experience in state affairs, Mr. Karcher has a keen knowledge of state tax matters and is a firm believer in efficient and economic administration.

He stands squarely for repeal of the law fixing the fee for hunting and fishing as passed by the last session of the legislature. He believes this measure vitally affects the tourist business of Northeastern Michigan.

WHEELER AND WOOLSEY IN NEW COMEDY HIT

Pepped up to the cadence of rippling Gershwin melodies, a merry mélange of comedy will be shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State Theatre in the form of RKO-Radio Pictures' all star comedy, "Girl Crazy."

The film which marks the rebirth of film comedies makes under the new ideal sound reproducing conditions, presents one of the finest all-star comedy casts of the season in a screen rendition of the famous Broadway extravaganza of the same name.

Heading the imposing array of talents are the inimitable Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, who start the film as city slickers and wind up as rough and ready westerners. Eddie Quillan carries the romantic lead of a girl crazy youth who transforms a respectable cattle ranch into a wloopee dude resort. Mitzi Green, Hollywood's child mimic wonder, plays a pestiferous little sister and the romance and beauty brigade is headed by Dorothy Lee, Arline Judge, Kitty Kelly and Lita Chevret. Stanley Fields and Chris Pin Martin play the shoot and run villains.

The story is farce throughout, with an abundance of novel comedy episodes which rise to extreme heights when Wheeler and Woolsey, dressed like senoritas, fine humorous gauntlets into the faces of Mexican bad men.

A STORY FOR BEDTIME

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER TAKES JIMMY SKUNK'S ADVICE

What you don't think of, others may. So lend a heedful ear. The thing that most perplexes you May thus be made quite clear.

"STUPID, stupid, stupid!" exclaimed Peter Rabbit as he watched Jimmy Skunk out of sight. He didn't mean Jimmy; he meant himself. "Here I have been running my legs off trying to find the hole of Rattles the Kingfisher without once stopping to think that I never have seen him near the places where I have been looking. Jimmy Skunk is right. He certainly is. The place to look for Rattles is near water. No one sees him anywhere else except when he is flying across from one body of water to another. Of course if he lives around the water he must have his home near it. That means it is somewhere along the Laughing Brook or over by the Big River. I wonder which place to visit first. Let me think! I roost often see him at or near the Smiling Pool. If his home was over near the Big River I don't believe he out of sight of the big lilypond on which Grandfather Frog spends so much of his time. It wasn't long before he heard the harsh rattling noise that Rattles the Kingfisher makes. He was coming up the Laughing Brook from below the Smiling Pool. Peter peeped out from behind the Big Hickory Tree and watched Rattles dive into the Smiling Pool and come up with a shining little minnow. Instead of flying over to the Big Hickory Tree and there swallowing the little fish, as Peter so often had seen him do, he turned and flew back down the Laughing Brook with it.

Peter scratched his head thoughtfully. "I wonder," thought he, "if that man—that he has some babies at home and is taking the little fish to them. I wonder."

The more he wondered the more likely it seemed. He was still wondering when he heard that harsh rattle again, and there was Rattles the Kingfisher flying straight toward him. With a fowl rattle he perched in the Big Hickory Tree where he could see over the Smiling Pool. There he wait-

THE BROTHERS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

A MAN once kicked your father's shin. If others hadn't stepped right in, Yes, hadn't seen them, Got between them, Your father very likely would Have gone to jail, and gone for good.

Well, men are funny. Just last night Your dad came in an awful sight. They nearly had to Carry dad to His bed—he couldn't walk just right. I said, "You've had another fight,

"An awful fight—just see your head!" "There wasn't any fight," he said, "Twas just the brothers And some others, I've joined that lodge I wanted to; Tonight the brothers put me through."

"They put you what?" "The first degree They put me through," he says to me. "The brothers, honey."

New Things in Cookery

THEY tell us there is nothing new under the sun and he that discovers a new star is not nearly so important as he who discovers a new dish, as we already have all the stars we need, but can always enjoy a new dish.

Some good lover of spinach has added another way to make it attractive. Serve it well cooked and seasoned with two or three sections of luscious grapefruit atop each serving—giving a tart taste to the vegetable which makes it more palatable.

Grapefruit French Dressing.

Take one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika, three tablespoonfuls of grapefruit juice and one-half cupful of salad oil. Mix the seasoning well, add the fruit juice and oil and shake or beat until slightly thickened. A small piece of ice added to mixture will hasten the mixing.

Golden Fruit Salad Dressing.

Take the juice of a large orange, the juice of half a lemon, one tablespoonful of butter, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar, two egg yolks and one-half cupful of cream, whipped. Melt the butter in a double boiler top, add the fruit juices, sugar and slightly beaten yolks of the eggs. Cook over a low flame until thick, stirring constantly. Cool. Fold in whipped cream just before serving. If one has canned grapefruit one cupful of the juice may take the place of the orange and lemon.

Molded Cheese With Fruit Filling.

Take a tablespoonful of gelatin, dissolve in one-fourth cupful of cold water, add one cupful of boiling water or the fruit juice may be used in place of the water; add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, one cupful of whipped cream, one chopped pimiento, one-half green pepper chopped and one small onion chopped, one ounce of Roquefort cheese, one cream cheese and one can of grapefruit. Soak the gelatin and when it begins to thicken fold in the cheese and whipped cream. Pour into a ring mold and chill. Serve with the drained grapefruit in the center.

ROAD BUILDING FIRST AID TO IDLE

Emergency Relief Act Provides Highway Funds.

Washington.—The emergency relief and construction act recently signed by President Hoover insures some measure of early unemployment relief through road construction, declared T. H. Cutler, president of the American Road Builders' association, in discussing road building activities.

"While the $136,000,000 appropriation for highways is only a small part of the $2,122,000,000 relief measure, it is probable that road building will be the first work undertaken," stated Mr. Cutler. "Many states have plans ready so that a number of the projects can be begun immediately."

The highway funds provided in the total of $136,000,000 are: $120,000,000 for emergency construction on the federal aid highway system; $5,000,000 for national forest highways; $5,000,000 for improvements of national forests; $3,000,000 for national park roads, and $2,000,000 for roads through public lands.

States May Borrow.

In addition to the direct highway appropriation, $300,000,000 is made available for relief and work relief, including highway and street work. This money will be loaned to states, counties and cities by the Reconstruction Finance corporation on request of governors of states. Since highway and street work is a popular and effective method of providing immediate work relief, a considerable part of this money may be requested by municipalities and counties, Mr. Cutler believes.

"Only a beginning in meeting unemployment conditions can be made with the funds available," declared Mr. Cutler, "but such relief will be widely distributed throughout the country. The provision permitting cities to use the relief funds for street work, and the fact that the relief funds do not have to be matched with local money assures considerable municipal highway work. Restrictions as to the amount of federal participation per mile also have been removed.

Employment benefits will not be confined to the workers on the roads directly but will extend to those working in factories, plants and mines producing road equipment and materials and also on transportation lines conveying them to the construction sites.

"Because no part of the emergency highway funds must be matched by an equal amount from the states, regular state funds are released for new projects. The emergency federal-aid money will be used in lieu of state money to match regular federal aid in a number of states. Additional new work will be created through the releasing of federal-aid allotments in states that lack the necessary state funds to cover regular federal-aid promptly."

The emergency highway appropriation will be distributed to the states in accordance with the regular federal-aid requirements on the basis of population, area and mileage of post roads.

The amount of money each state will receive, as computed for the congressional hearings, is as follows:

Cuba Decorates Its Tile With National Heroes

Havana.—Spanish and Cuban heroes of history and fiction are being made to live again in a new medium as Cuba's rapidly developing industry, the manufacture of glazed tile, is perfected.

Builders in the New world, who for centuries turned to the old country for the tiles that are such an integral part of the intricate architecture of the Spanish Americas, now look to their own artisans. Eleven small factories in Havana are developing a guild of craftsmen.

The exploits of Christopher Columbus on his voyages of discovery to the New world form one of the most popular themes for portrayal by Cuban tile makers.

SPIES KEEP BUSY ACROSS SEAS

Fear and Distrust Cause of Wholesale Espionage.

Washington.—Although the United States abolished its cryptical bureau in Washington three years ago, doing away with the practice of prying into the secrets of foreign governments, there is every reason to believe that other countries are not so scrupulous about the secrets of Uncle Sam and that spies are swarming thicker than ever through the capitals of the world.

The reason for the deluge of international spying, it is said, is the prevalent wave of fear and distrust. Nations are afraid of war—afraid of being attacked—and are trying to be forearmed by being forewarned.

The beautiful Matti Hari, executed just outside the walls of Paris and dramatized in American movies, has her counterpart many times over at this moment in this country, in Europe, and in the Far East.

Mme. Tiodozja Majewska, one of the loveliest dancers in the theaters and cabarets of Poland, has just been sentenced to life imprisonment for espionage against her own country, and her two accomplices, a former army officer and another government official, were shot.

Mme. de Littke, a spy in the employ of Poland, has just bought her own life back from Hungary by unearthing a plot against that country, her officer-lover trying first to kill her, then blowing out his own brains when he discovered her true character. Mussolini recently fired an entire embassy staff in one of the principal capitals of Europe because a clever woman had succeeded in getting hold of the Italian code book and selling its contents to France and Jugo-Slavia.

Captain Nakamura, whose tragic death was the excuse of Japan's war against China, was, according to the Chinese, merely a dangerous spy masquerading under the guise of a harmless "scholar" engaged in the study of geography first hand in Chinese territory.

Mud of North Sea Used in Treatment of Sick

Wilhelmshaven.—Employment of mud from the bottom of the Jade bay of the North sea for the treatment of rheumatism, gout, ischias, neuralgia and kindred diseases, which was initiated in a modest way a few years ago, has proved so successful that the number of patients who seek relief is increasing. Scientists have established the presence in this mud of all balneologically important healing substances, such as carbonate of lime, sulphate of iron and soluble salts.

Halo Long Employed

There is evidence that aureoles or halos were in use in earliest times as an attribute to the deities. Aureoles have been found with the pictures of the gods on some of the coins of the Indian kings Kanishka, Huvishka and Vasudeva, 58 B. C. to A. D. 41. They are also found in the depiction of Egyptian deities, from which their use spread to the Greeks and Romans.

FINNEY OF THE FORCE

THE FEATHERHEADS

Modern Contract Bridge

Rebidding After a Forcing Take-Out

WHEN you have opened with a suit bid of one or a no trump bid of one or two and your partner, taking out with a new suit, has jumped the bid one more than necessary, the flag is up for a game (perhaps a slam) and must be kept flying. As explained in a preceding article this jump take-out in a new suit is a forcing bid, undoubtedly the most important forcing bid of the forcing system. It calls on you to rebid whether or not you have shown the full value of your hand in your original declaration. You are not free to pass.

If you have no additional value, no assistance for partner and no second suit which is biddable, you have simply to over-call with just the sufficient number of no trumps to cover his bid. Assistance for him, especially if his take-out is in a major, may be shown even though it lies only in distributional values of 4 trumps or 3 trumps to a queen or better. But full support is required to raise a partner's forcing take-out.

Naturally, a second biddable suit must be revealed when your partner commands you to rebid. Failing a second suit, or support for your partner's bid, if your own suit holds sufficient additional strength or length it may be rebid.

Sometimes, in responding to your partner's forcing take-out you find yourself with an honor-trick more than originally shown, but with no other values for a rebid. In this case your response should be three no trumps. When, with the three honor-tricks indicated by your partner's jump take-out you can count sufficient honor strength to put your partnership in or near the slam zone, you must show the power of your hand with a jump bid if forced to take-out at no trumps. Suit take-out should be bid up gradually because in a forcing take-out the slogan of all forcing bids holds good: "Once a forcing bid, always a forcing bid until game is reached."

A partner's jumped take-out must never be confused with his jump assist. While a jump take-out forces you to rebid no matter how reluctant you may be to do so, a jump assist leaves you the option of rebidding, or of passing if the full value of your hand has already been shown.

Various responses when you have bid one heart which partner has taken out with two spades:

- S-J 43 H-A K 65 D-K 654 C-J 2 Bid Two No Trumps
- S-J 432 H-A K 65 D-K 65 C-83 Bid Three Spades
- S-J H-A K Q 65 D-K 653 C-J 32 Bid Three Hearts
- S-J 5 H-A K Q 65 D-6 C-A K Q 65 Bid Three Clubs (Slam caliber can be shown later; bid has not reached game)
- S-J 5 H-A K 6532 D-K 54 C-A Q Bid Three Hearts (Slam caliber can be shown later; bid has not reached game)
- S-J 5 H-A K 65 D-K 542 C-A Q 6 Bid Four No Trumps (To show slam caliber; three no trumps might close bidding)

When you have opened with a suit bid of one on a hand of unusual honor-trick strength, at least 4 or more honor-tricks, and your partner has given you a minimum take-out, to show that your hand contains 1½ or more honor-tricks than indicated by your initial bid, you should, whenever possible, make a "forcing rebid" of one more than necessary in a new suit.

After a forcing rebid, the partner is compelled to speak and his responses follow the same line as the responses previously given for forcing take-outs.

When in doubt as to whether or not your partner is making a forcing take-out or a forcing rebid, remember this rule of the forcing system: "Any jump bid in a new suit by either partner provided, one of them previously opened the bidding, is forcing."

Looks Like the End

Mrs. Saphead rushed into her neighbor's house without troubling to knock.

"My dear!" she gasped, "I'm in an awful state. I don't know what to do next!"

"Whatever is the matter?" asked the neighbor.

"I've just had a terrible warning of approaching death."

"Godness me! What do you mean?"

"Well," said Mrs. Saphead, "I bought one of those lifetime fountain pens the other day, and now it's broken!"—London Tit-Bits.

Medieval Treasures

In Columbia university is a prayer book in Beneventan script, a rare medieval handwriting developed 1,400 years ago in the monastery of Monte Cassino in the hills of southern Italy. The book is 6 inches by 3½ and is written on vellum. It is a prayer book of the Order of St. Benedict, from the archdiocese of Naples. Dr. Hellmut Lehmann-Haupt, curator of the rare books department of the university library, said that few examples of the script are in existence. He believes the most beautiful example in this country is in the Morgan library.

Sod House Construction
A sod house is to be built in Topeka for tourists by the State Historical society. The sod house, which was the only habitation of settlers of western Kansas, should not be confused with the dugout. The sod house was built of great layers of sod and some that were built by the pioneers are still doing duty. Old-timers say the virtue of the sod house was its coolness in summer.

Woods Colored by Hand

There is no known means of fixing the color of any soft woods when they are exposed to light and weather. All woods fade in a more or less degree (ebony, satinwood, Cuba or Spanish mahogany, the least) under exposure. The richness and color of the woods chiefly used now in furniture and paneling is largely produced by the art of the French polisher, but fine quality hard woods will retain their color (indoors only) for centuries.

Gypsies to Go Modern, Says New King

Discard of the colorful costumes which have so long distinguished their nomadic race, and entrance into legitimate trades as good American citizens, is the aim of Steve Stanley of Detroit, whose recent coronation as king of the gypsies ended a struggle for the throne that threatened to split the ancient race. King Stanley's unprecedented preachings met with considerable opposition, but his successful coronation would seem to indicate that the American gypsy tribes will soon cease their wanderings and settle down to the more prosaic life of their adopted country, with just an occasional trip on the road. King Stanley, who is a graduate of the New York City college, is shown above with two of his sisters who illustrate the new and the old in gypsy costume.

SCIENCE WILL SEEK COCOS ISLAND GOLD

New Metal Detector to Be Tried by Expedition.

Washington.—The elusive caches of pirate gold on Cocos island that have defied maps and diggings of fortune hunters for more than a century, now must dodge the delicate instruments of science. An expedition now on the island is reported pinning its hopes on a newly developed metal detector. "Cocos island, which is 16 square miles of lofty, forest-covered mountains and furrowed valleys, owes its fame to the activities of pirates along the coasts of Central and South America from the Seventeenth to the early part of the last century," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"After Capt. Edward Davis looted Leon, Nicaragua, in 1685, he sailed for Cocos, buried his treasure and rested until his next plundering expedition. In the early eighties, Benito, a former Portuguese naval officer who was a scourge to shipping in the Caribbean, felt that his old balliwick was becoming too well policed for his profession, rounded the Horn, preyed upon towns and shipping along the Pacific coast and sought refuge on Cocos. He also buried treasure on the island before he and his crew were captured.

"Loots of other pirates have been reported buried on Cocos, but the famous loot of Lima, perhaps, is the chief magnet of modern expeditions to the island. Gold and silver and precious stones worth millions that were accumulated by the Spaniards from the natives and from richly adorned Inca temples, were hoarded in Lima when a revolution broke.

"The Lima mint was filled with gold and silver and the Lima cathedral was a vault of wealth. The cathedral chalice was solid gold, studded with priceless gems. Golden altars equipment glistened in the dim light of the edifice. Diamond-studded vestments beamed with a new radiance with every movement of the priests who wore them. There were chasubles of gold adorned with rows of diamonds, rubies, emeralds and sapphires.

"Fearing seizure of these treasures by the revolutionists, Lima city fathers sought a ship as a hiding place.

U. S. BIRTH RATE REACHES LOWEST POINT IN YEARS

But Fewer Babies Die During First Year.

Washington.—The birth rate in the United States dropped during 1931 to the lowest point it has reached since the establishment of birth registration in this country nearly 17 years ago, according to statistics made public by the bureau of the census.

At the same time, the bureau reported, the infant mortality rate showed a continued decline in the year, dropping to its lowest level since such statistics have been systematically compiled. During the year the infant death rate was 61.7 for every 1,000 live births, as compared with a rate of 64.7 in 1930.

The birth rate for the country in 1931 was 17.8 for every 1,000 of population, according to the bureau's report. In 1930 the rate was 18.9. The 1931 birth rate in Illinois was 15.4, compared with 16.7 in 1930.

The total number of children born in this country during last year was 2,084,443, as compared with 2,191,012 in the preceding year.

Of the more than 2,000,000 born in 1931, 126,645 died in their first years of life, while in 1930 the number reached 141,670.

The registration area on which the bureau's report was based includes all except two states and comprises 94.7 per cent of the total population of the country.

In the rural part of this registration area the birth rate and infant mortality rates were higher than in the urban section, the report showed, while the still birth rate was lower. The rural section had a population of 59,333,000, while the urban section had a population of 57,560,000.

In the city area the birth rate was 17.5 per 1,000 of population; the infant mortality rate was 60.8 per 1,000 births, and the still birth rate was 4 for every 100 live births.

In the rural area the birth rate was 18.2; the infant mortality rate 62.6; and the still birth rate 3.7.

Household Questions

Indian meal rubbed over a greasy sink will make the task of cleaning it much easier.

When serving grapefruit and oranges in salads use scissors and cut off all the white portion.

If the soup is too salty, grate a raw potato in it and continue cooking for a few minutes. The potato will absorb the salt.

When children's stockings become worn at the knee cut them off about the length of socks and crochet a shell stitch at the top for a finish.

To renovate a soiled couch hammock, try painting it any desired color. The canvas will take the paint very well. Two coats are generally needed.

Bread dough may be kept a number of days if a small amount of bicarbonate of soda is added to it. The soda keeps bread from souring. The dough must, of course, be kept in an icebox.

POTPOURRI

Camphor

Camphor is obtained by distilling wood chips and bark of a tree of the laurel species grown most extensively in Japan and surrounding islands. After it has been freed of volatile oil and refined, it is very valuable as a medicine. It is also used in the manufacture of celluloid and some explosives.

Summer In Sweden

This Swedish Housewife Bakes Only Four Times a Year.

(Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)—WNU Service.

THIS year all Sweden is celebrating, with memorial rites and exhibits, the three hundredth anniversary of the death in battle of Gustavus Adolphus, the Swedish hero king.

Many are the ways of celebrating, for as the traveler moves about Sweden, by canoe, coast steamer, river barge, motor car, railway or airplane, he is confronted with many peoples with customs and dialects unlike.

The differences, however, fade in retrospect and the outstanding impression one gets of Sweden today is of a closely-knit and homogeneous group. In its population an unusually pure Nordic type predominates—tall stature, long face, light complexion, golden hair and blue eyes. The blond coloring gives the streets of Stockholm a quality of lightness. In contrast, Paris seems somewhat somber and dark.

The one exception to the homogeneity of the population of Sweden is the Lapp. Some seven thousand of them, a race apart, dwell in the Arctic wastes of the Far North. In some vague past—their racial memory is short—they wandered in from the East, possibly from Mongolia. They have not stopped to carve their names on the eternal hills. They are deaf to the tread of the centuries. For them the music of life comes only through the singing of the wind above their nomad tents of bark and through the velvety tramp of fleet, vagrant reindeer hoof.

As protected wards of the Swedish state, members of this alien race roam securely over the tundras and snow-capped fjelds of the North. For more than a century Sweden has not been embroiled in war. At no time in its history has a conquering foe invaded its territory and left the customary aftermath of mixture of blood. During the past six years Sweden has entered more actively upon its humanitarian purpose of trying to outlaw war altogether.

Sweden has no colonies and so avoids entangling alliances. Its zest for empire and empire-building was worked off in the flush of youth. In the Viking days brave adventurers went West, and traces of their wanderings still exist on the coasts of England and France, Iceland and Greenland; but in many of the lands they touched they left no enduring record of occupancy.

Sweden's intervention in the Thirty Years' war saved the cause of religious liberty for Europe. Then came the brilliantly tragic reign of Charles XII. With his death in 1718 ended his gallant defense, as he alleged, of western ideals of statecraft against the threat of Muscovite anarchy. Sweden had lost its Baltic possessions. Its prestige as a world power diminished. The energy expended on extending empire has since been directed toward the more peaceful pursuits of developing internal resources.

Sweden's no immigration problem, about 99 per cent of its six millions being native-born. Not immigration, but emigration, once threatened the national welfare. Before American immigration quotas were known, nearly a fifth of Sweden's population was represented in the United States.

Love of country dominates the Swedish people. Their songs reveal a passionate love for the beauty of the land which has been an unending source of inspiration to Swedish poets. The Swede's reputation for melancholy may be attributed wholly to his susceptibility to the vagaries of the weather. He is gloomy at the very thought of autumn, harbinger of the dark winter months. All the russet gorgeousness of September and October is wasted on him. He is quick to lament the briefness of the season of light. Remind him of some event in the past and he is likely to say reflectively, "Oh, yes, that was the year the summer fell on a Tuesday."

In that respect he is the arch pessimist. Stockholm, to be sure, is in very nearly the same latitude as the southern tip of Greenland. This means that approximately two-thirds of the country lies in latitudes generally considered unfavorable to habitation and growth. But the climate of the Scandinavian peninsula, with its jagged coast line sweeping down majestically from polar regions into the North and Baltic seas, is tempered by the warm Atlantic drift, which follows the western coast of Norway and dips also into the Skagerrack. There is a joyous glamour about the way spring and summer come with a rush. Almost overnight, in the South, one sees the beech forests turn into low ranges of jade.

The islands the transatlantic visitor sees first, as he nears the Swedish coast, are those that encircle the harbor of Goteborg (Gothenburg), chief shipping center and commercial port of the country; for the usual approach to Sweden is by the "lonely passage" that rounds the bleak northern tip of Scotland and then threads down among the islands in the Kattegat.

Goteborg and Stockholm are linked by a road of water, the Gota canal. This connects the North and Baltic seas and the large inland lakes, Vanern—the largest lake in Europe excluding Ladoga and Onega, in Finland and Russia—and Vatern and Malaren. The series of locks that provide for the varying levels in the route—the highest point is 308 feet above the Baltic—were an engineering triumph when constructed nearly a century ago.

Through Gota Canal.

North of this belt of water is another "lake district," including the Fryken lakes of Varmland, Lake Siljan in Dalecarlia, and Dellen in Halsingland, along the eastern coast. Farther north come the extremes of summer and winter. Where the Arctic circle cuts through the fjelds along the Norwegian boundary the sun is visible for 24 hours of the day for seven weeks in June and July. From any of the accessible mountain peaks the midnight sun is a breath-taking spectacle of magnificence.

With a few outstanding exceptions there are no striking extremes of wealth and poverty in Sweden. There are no slums in Jonkoping, for instance, though it is the home of the world-famous safety match, one of the most important manufactures of the country. Eskilstuna steel, an equally familiar trade-mark, has not produced a Swedish Pittsburgh of vicious volumes of smoke.

The miners at Kiruna, north of the Arctic circle, live in a model community of neat, modern houses; and Falun, center of the Bergslagen mining interests, suggests neither luxury nor squalor, although one corporation, generally said to be the oldest in the world, has held continuous possession since 1284 of the great mine, Stora Kopparberget, with its vast underground pit.

Nearly All Live Comfortably.

The ordinary comforts of life are within the reach of the majority. With a highly developed telephone system, business and social matters are handled largely over the wire. At the hint of a delay, when a call is made, the Swedish operator answers, not "Just a minute," but "In the wink of an eye!" and she means literally and expeditiously just that.

The main railway lines, like the telephone, are state-owned. Private lines supplement rather than rival this service, which includes about a third of the total railway mileage of the country. Sweden has a more extensively developed railway system, in proportion to population, than any other European country. Third class is cheap and clean. Second far outranks the ordinary European second, and first offers luxurious means of travel.

The electrified railway that is farthest north in the world runs from Boden, below the Arctic circle, to Narvik, Norway's always ice-free port, through which much of Sweden's iron ore is shipped. The electrical current is supplied from Porjus, a modern industrial town that has sprung up in the wilderness of 25 years ago. The machine room at Porjus is sunk into a blasted mountain wall at a depth of 165 feet, a precaution that gives a hint of the low temperatures of the Arctic winter.

Electricity, derived from waterfalls and rivers, is being substituted by modern industry as fuel that in time will supplant the black coal which Sweden lacks. Black coal heads the list of imports and keeps the balance of trade unfavorable to Sweden, but white coal is beginning to take its place.

From the depths of the forests of Sweden—they cover approximately three-fifths of its land area—come the commodities that head the exports. Wood, pulp, planned and unplanned boards, paper, beams, spars, mastwood, and box boards provide nearly half of the nation's annual revenues from exports.

THE STORY

Six bandits hold up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the Mackenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sgt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father, Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan falls to capture the bandits, and returns to Fort Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame. Alan starts out of the country in a motor canoe. He meets "Buzzard" Featheroff, famous aviator, and enlists him in the enterprise. "Slob-ice" Jensen, leader of the bandits, plans to capture Joyce. Haskell suspects Alan's plans.

"Snakes!" Bill breathed to himself, as he thanked Haskell and went out the door. "That Spring-heel Johnny must be winding up to ask a favor of me, or something. But I've got my three days to help Alan out. Lord, I hope Alan shows up during my free time. He might maybe let me go along on his trick."

With no suspicion of the ugly truth, he turned up the twilight slope.

When Whipple came in, Haskell ordered him to close the door and pull down the window, to guard against possible eavesdropping. Then he tersely explained the situation. He added:

"Hardsock will probably steal some more gasoline and oil tonight. What he's already stolen isn't enough for a plane to do much maneuvering on. I want you to watch him stealing that stuff so that you can later be a witness. He'll probably have time to take those drums only a couple miles from here tonight. Tomorrow he'll take all of it on to the place where he's to meet Baker. He's been speaking it away little by little when he had the chance, and hiding it close by; but during his three days he'll take it to the meeting place.

"You go down to the river bank now to those two tepees and get that Indian called Ogi-Tomax. You remember Hardsock thrashed him one time last winter for carrying a squaw-club and beating his wife. He's got a grudge against Hardsock, he'll have a personal interest in this, he's just the man we want. Take a carton of my cigarettes with you and a little rum as a silence present. I'll personally pay him five dollars a day. Do you understand so far?"

Whipple nodded. Haskell went on: "You and the Indian are to shadow Hardsock tonight and tomorrow. Find out where he's taking that stuff and where he's going to meet Baker. As soon as you do that, whip back here and report to me."

It was late the next evening before Whipple returned. He came back tired, bedraggled, but with electric news.

He and the Indian had watched Bill steal more gas and oil from the stores. They had shadowed him to the temporary cache two miles up the Mackenzie. There he had loaded his canoe to the gunwales with the drums and cans and had taken them all to a big lake twenty miles on up the river.

He had cached the fuel on a headland called Goose point; and was waiting there without the faintest suspicion that he had been trailed and was being watched. The Indian, lying low back in the willows, was keeping an eye on him.

As Haskell listened to the report, he forgot the haggard day and night just passed. He had scarcely dared hope for such news as this.

After careful thought, guarding against any slip-up, he ordered Whipple: "Go get your rifle and belt-gun. I'll take mine, too. We'll go up there in the launch. You can drive it. We'll capture Hardsock and those supplies. That'll be that. Then we'll wait there. The plane'll be alone in a couple days. We'll keep the launch in cover close by. When the machine lights down and they go ashore to get the supplies, we'll ram it and put it out of commission. Then we'll have Baker and this Featheroff—and we'll put them where the dogs won't bite 'em!"

After his despair of their last week, after his helpless festering anger at Baker, it was a new lease on hope to know he was going to smash Baker's venture and throw him into prison and make his marriage to Elizabeth impossible! Baker was walking all unknowingly into a deadly trap. Walking into arrest and criminal disgrace and prison. He would be lucky to get off with a sentence of two years. That was the statute minimum for his offense.

Buckling on his belt-gun, Haskell snuffed the candles and went out of his cabin—on the easiest, most exultant, most deadly certain trip he had ever made.

CHAPTER IX

Wings Over the Wilderness

On that first day of flight, as dawn broke full and the sun chased away a layer of gossamer clouds beneath the White Speedair, Alan looked down with marveling eyes at a strange panorama. Evergreen forestry, silvery lakes and silvery network of rivers far below, swam past at a speed that a whole day's hard traveling by canoe or komatik.

Knowing that if he and Buzzard showed up at a police post or larger trading center, it would mean a quick and sorry end of their flight, Alan planned to avoid such places religiously. He had a conviction that he and Buzzard were "wanted." They had left too many tracks in Edmonton—clews that would speedily be followed up. The police there, a wise live outfit, had certainly connected them with the theft of all that government property and had radioed instructions for their arrest.

Eventually he and Buzzard were going to be caught. It was as inevitable as sunset. Soon or late they would have to return to civilization and face the music. To Alan the worst of it was that Buzzard was going to pay a heavy price for helping him on this thankless job. For himself he did not greatly care; he hardly thought of it. . . . He was headed north again, on his last patrol, his greatest patrol.

As they worked on north, they made moderately good time, but only by incessant care and worry. Engine trouble caused them delay. Again and again they sat down on some unknown river or lake and sweated for hours over the old motor. Fuel was a constant problem. Avoiding Mounted detachments and Royal Signal corps stations like the plague, they dared stop only at wilderness-buried posts where radios were unlikely and no police handy. They could never be certain of getting fuel, and what they did get was usually half kerosene.

Alan was looking forward to his rendezvous with Bill as the end of all this worry about gas and oil. Besides the fuel there at Goose point, Bill had promised to cache some supplies up the Aloska near Joyce's home.

Alan was fervently looking ahead to meeting Bill at En Traverse lake, to getting those precious supplies, to seeing Joyce again there on the Big Aloska. All of his loyalty to the sister of his dead partner could not keep him from comparing Joyce's vital spirit personality with Elizabeth's leisure-bored ennui, and Joyce's two years of heroic sacrifice with Elizabeth's idle deliberate dependence.

On their last evening, worn out by a day of engine trouble and head winds and blinding rains, they alighted in a little spruce-buried lake on Silver-tip river, a short hundred miles south of Fort Endurance. Anchoring the plane, they paddled ashore, cooked a warm meal, and rolled up in their

Religious and Secular Stories That Parallel

All the great religions have stories that parallel each other in some degree. For instance, Jephthah, one of the judges of Israel, made a remarkable vow before he marched against the Ammonites, that if he proved victorious he would offer to the Lord the first living thing which should come to meet him on his return.

This happened to be his only daughter, whom he sacrificed to fulfill his rash vow. The history of Jephthah is contained in the second book of Judges. Idomeneus, in Homeric legend, king of Crete, succeeded his father Deucalion on the throne, and accompanied the Greeks to the Trojan war with a fleet of 90 ships. During this war he rendered himself famous by his valor. While returning, he made a vow to Neptune in a dangerous blankets for a few hours of desperately needed rest.

"Tomorrow's the day of days," Buzzard remarked, thinking of the supplies and a base to maneuver from.

"It's the day of days," Alan agreed, but he was thinking of Joyce running down the path, bareheaded in the sun, to greet them. Tomorrow he would know if she was safe. Tomorrow, after the rendezvous with Bill, the White Speedair would be dropping down upon the Big Aloska.

Buzzard was asleep almost instantly, but Alan, tossing in a useless attempt to sleep, finally got up, built a tiny fire, and sat beside it, thinking, a dead pipe in his teeth.

As he sat there under the solemn spruces, he tried to look steadily at his looming marriage to Elizabeth, and decide his course. No longer blinded by idealization of her as a girl, he saw now, with pitiless insight, that all along she had not wanted him unless he had a good income and was out of the North. She might love him as well as she had ever loved anybody; but to her he was not greatly more than a means of getting what she wanted out of life.

The prospect of marrying her, when his respect was gone, made Alan wince. And his respect was gone with a vengeance. Those moments in the cabin, when she offered herself to him, had been a shock and revelation. She had acted not out of excusable passion, not out of love, but as a guarantee that he would take that Victoria job. He thought of the incident with something of revulsion.

Now he was groping to see the honest and righteous thing for him to do. He wondered whether it would be courage, or a weak yielding to desire, for him to break with Elizabeth and sweep aside the obligations binding him. There was right on both sides. Elizabeth was waiting for him; he had promised to marry her and take her out; he had burned his bridges and committed himself to that Victoria job. Yet it was wrong to enter a loveless marriage that would bring tragic unhappiness. It was wrong to marry Elizabeth when his whole-hearted respect and love went out to Joyce MacMillan.

In the lonely anguish of his thoughts he laid his decision more or less in the hands of time. He felt he must see Joyce again before he could take a decisive step. If he did capture those six criminals and so cleared her father, she would be grateful with all her heart. He meant to tell her about the tragic happening which had bound him to Elizabeth. If he could win back that old intimate comradeship with her and they could begin anew, then the righteous thing was to put Joyce's happiness above Elizabeth's.

A little after gray dawn Alan rebuilt the fire, cooked breakfast, and reluctantly awakened his partner.

Later, when they skirled out to the plane, Buzzard glanced at the tanks and remarked tersely:

"I hope your buddy, this Hardsock, has got some gas and oil out to that lake. It'll be our finish if he hasn't." "Bill will have it there," Alan assured. "He may not be there himself, he's probably on duty; but we agreed exactly where to cache it. It'll be waiting for us."

They climbed in, taxied twice around the lake to warm the spluttering motor, took off and headed north toward Goose point at Lake En Traverse.

With the heavy rains stopped and the insect scourges abating, Alan knew the bandits were on the move again or shortly would be. When they did stir, he wanted to be there on the Big Aloska to look out for Joyce.

Ever since he came to believe that Dave MacMillan knew nothing of the crime, he had been puzzling about that pack of stolen furs. Something dark and sinister lay behind that pack. There was some connection between the trader and those criminals. But what?

Alan reasoned: "Those furs didn't get in that shed by accident. Those men might have had a grudge against Dave MacMillan and planted them there. They might have figured he'd show them to us and get in hot water. That guess is at least possible. If it's true, then their grudge might lead them to strike at Joyce."

If they intended anything against Joyce, they doubtlessly would attempt it just before they started eastward on their trek through the Great Barrens and Strong-Woods. Alan had dreamed of that, dreamed of her being captured and taken along, as the bandits had captured Margaret Fournier.

With Haskell refusing to extend her any protection whatsoever, Alan felt that he and she alone stood between her and a terrible danger. If anything happened to the plane, or to him and Buzzard. . . .

POULTRY

VACCINE WILL SAVE LOSSES IN FLOCKS

Its Value Demonstrated by Experiments.

Chicken pox, a disease which annually takes a heavy toll in Illinois poultry flocks, can now be controlled with more safety as a result of experiments which the division of animal pathology and hygiene, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, has made during the past year with different vaccines.

Pigeon pox vaccine proved superior to chicken pox vaccine, and consequently the former is being recommended to farmers and flock owners.

Proper vaccination at this season of the year will prevent losses from canker, avian diphtheria or chicken pox during the winter months, according to the laboratory. There is no medicine or serum that will cure the infection, but vaccination will prevent it. Growing stock that is running on range should be vaccinated during June, July and August. If vaccination is put off until fall, egg production may be lowered as a result of the extra handling of the birds as well as by the reaction from the vaccine.

Potent vaccines properly administered to healthy, young chickens produce an immunity against chicken pox that probably lasts for a year or longer. It is important, however, that chickens be free from intestinal parasites and other diseases before they are vaccinated.

The pigeon pox vaccine which is now being recommended causes less reaction than the chicken pox vaccine, and therefore may be used with less danger. A practical immunity is induced by the pigeon pox product. A limited supply of the vaccine prepared by the division of animal pathology and hygiene is available at a nominal cost to qualified veterinarians for demonstrational purposes. Veterinarians taking advantage of this supply are required to make a careful record of the vaccination, age and condition of the chickens vaccinated on blanks furnished for the purpose.

Keeping Poultry House Dry Not an Easy Matter

There is a fairly general opinion that dry air is lighter than damp air, and this opinion has some influence upon methods of poultry house ventilation, says the American Agriculturist. As a matter of fact, air rises as it becomes saturated with moisture, which makes it obvious that the outlet for moist, impure air should be near the top of the house if this excess moisture is to be removed by air circulation. On the other hand, the air intake should be somewhat lower, and then the fresh, cool, dry air will enter the house and accumulate near the floor, where it takes up moisture as it becomes warmer. The principal difficulty comes during periods when the outside air is practically saturated with moisture before it enters the house. In such cases, the only practical way to keep the house dry is to raise the temperature inside the house. Although the body heat of the birds will raise the temperature some, it has been found that artificial heat is essential if the house is to be kept absolutely dry.

Brooding Problems

Chicks that are confined to a brooder house require much more room than those that are permitted to range during a part of the day. The average 10-by-12-foot brooder will accommodate only 300 chicks when confined, and from 300 to 400 when they are on range. Chicks that are reared in confinement are more susceptible to vices such as feather-pulling and cannibalism than those on range. Greater sanitation in the brooder is necessary when chicks are confined, and producers who use wire floors in the brooders escape many of the losses which sometimes are had on regular floors. Frequently, it will pay to build a wire porch on the front of the house so as to get the chicks out in the sun a part of the time.

Medicated Eggs

Most medicated or artificial nest eggs often recommended for controlling poultry parasites are nothing but ordinary naphthalene, of which moth balls are made, and are of no use whatever against lice, mites, and other parasites of poultry, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Naphthalene, explains the department, in a bulletin, does not kill or drive away poultry parasites, and may even injure good eggs and give a moth-ball flavor to the flesh.

Keep Chicks Cool

Shade is essential for successful brooding of late-hatched chicks. In early spring brooding, ninety degrees Fahrenheit at the edge of the hover is warm enough for the first week. After that the temperature can be lowered five degrees a week until 70 degrees Fahrenheit is reached. After chicks are five weeks old they need heat only at night. With late-hatched chicks it is hard to keep the temperatures low enough and vitality is sapped.—Prairie Farmer.

TALES OF THE CHIEFS

By Editha L. Watson

SPEMICALAWBA

The Indian boy, crouching in a corner, wished with all his wild young heart that he might be invisible. The white soldiers killed Indians, that he knew, but they were quick to see everything, and he was unable to run away without their seeing him. It was wrong to show fear, but all the same, the lad was afraid—terribly afraid. His black eyes were the only part of him that moved, as he huddled into as small space as possible, hardly daring to breathe.

General Logan, with his troops, was on an expedition against the Ohio tribes. The general was not a hard-hearted man, and when he spied the young Shawnee, his impulse of kindness took practical form. The boy was made a captive, but he was well treated, and when the general returned to his home in Kentucky, the lad accompanied him.

Here he was given treatment such as the young Indian had not dreamed possible. He was taken into the Logan family and given the general's name—an honor of itself. He went to school and received the education of a white boy. And when this was over, and the lad had grown into a youth, he was sent back to his people.

Although he was called by the Shawnee Spemicalawba, or "High Horn," to the whites he was known as Capt. James Logan. His life in the good general's household had implanted in him an ardent friendship for the white race, and he did all that he could to prove his loyalty, even to death.

He opposed Tecumseh, his uncle, when that brilliant orator flamed through the country trying to kindle the spark of resentment into the fire of war. Unable to dissuade Tecumseh from his plans, Logan did the next best thing: he enlisted in the American forces well as scout and spy.

It was during this service that Logan proved his loyalty with his life. During an engagement against greater numbers, his party had been forced to retreat. While the move was a legitimate one under the circumstances, and such as they themselves would have made in a similar case, some of the thoughtless white soldiers questioned Logan's good faith. Some thought that he should have stood against the enemy, if he had died in the attempt; others felt that he had joined the army with the purpose in mind to delay and complicate matters. Who could tell what was in the mind of an Indian? And Logan, for all his education and training, was an Indian still.

Logan was hurt by this slander. He knew it to be unwarranted, and he determined to accomplish some deed which would clear his name and establish his honesty for all time. With two Indian companions, he went down the Maume river, hoping to find an enemy. This hope soon became a reality, for Captain Elliot of the British army, with five Indians, appeared, and at once declared Logan and his men prisoners.

Here was the opportunity for which the chief had longed. Watching their chance, the three Indians attacked their captors, made a brave fight, and succeeded in killing Elliot and two of his men. Logan was not unharmed, however—he and one of his men were severely wounded.

Great was the surprise in General Winchester's camp, when the three Indians entered it, bringing with them the horses of their conquered enemies. Logan felt that he had vindicated his honor, and he was proud. His wounds, however, were deep and serious, and soon deprived him of his triumph. The agony was more than he could endure, and after suffering for two days, he died.

The Indian captain was buried with military honors, to the envy of the other Indians in the camp. General Winchester and Major Hardin eulogized him as a man of courage, intelligence, and sincerity. The general wrote to General (afterward President) Harrison that "more firmness and consummate bravery have seldom appeared on the military theater. . . . He was buried with all the honors due to his rank, and with sorrow as sincerely and generally displayed as ever I witnessed."

The Sixth Nation

The Five Nations of Iroquois Indians occupied the best lands of New York state, and many are still found there. In 1712 another tribe moved up from North Carolina, asked to join the Iroquois, and were given land along the Chenango river. They were named Tuscaroras, meaning "shirt-wearers," and became one of the Iroquois Six Nations. The original Iroquois were the Mohawks, the Oneidas, the Onondagas, the Cayugas, and the Senecas.

"Newsboys" in Old Days

Apparently newsboys have been employed from an early period and were known in Great Britain in the Eighteenth century. In Scotland paper criers or caddies sold newspapers and also provided news gossip. At the close of the Seventeenth century they were incorporated in Edinburgh into a society, but it eventually became a nuisance and was dissolved in 1710. The word "newsboy" appears in English literature as early as 1812.

The DAIRY

WHAT RICHER MILK MEANS TO RAISER

Profit and Loss Affected by the Quality.

By DR. W. L. GAINES, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois—WNU Service.

Producing richer milk is a problem now confronting many dairymen, as a result of higher standards on the milk markets and the need for more efficient production.

The quick way of meeting the problem is to sell some of the cows giving low-testing milk and replace them with cows giving a high-testing product. The slow way is to select bulls of higher-testing families and gradually breed up cows producing richer milk.

Adding one or two high-testing cows cannot be expected to have much effect on herd test. Even if half the herd were replaced, the most that could be expected would be a half-way position between the cows retained and those added. As a general proposition, higher-testing cows will fall below the mid-point of the two groups. As an example, if the herd contain 100 cows giving milk testing 3.2 per cent butterfat, it would take, on the average, 110 cows giving 3.8 milk to bring the herd test to the half-way point of 3.5.

Improving the herd test through breeding is possible within certain limits. It requires continued selection over a long time. An illustration of what can be done by this means is found in the records of the Danish cattle-breeding societies. Going back to the early days of testing, the native cows in these societies in 1900 gave milk testing 3.4 per cent butterfat. By continuous selection of the higher-testing and good-producing cows as breeding stock, the test has gradually been increased until it averages 3.9 per cent butterfat at the present time. The milk is used very largely for butter-making, and for that purpose it is an advantage to improve the fat test. It takes 6 per cent more feed to produce a pound of fat in 3.4 per cent milk than it does in 3.9 per cent milk.

Dirt and Bacteria Big Enemies of Dairymen

Losses due to poor quality in milk and cream can be traced directly to utensils that contain dirt and bacteria. To check these losses, utensils must be kept not only clean but sterile, says a writer in the Farm Journal.

Rinsing with cold water before the milk dries is the first step in cleansing. Follow this with a good scrubbing; use a brush, hot or warm water, and a good alkaline washing powder. Rinse with cold water.

So much for getting the utensils clean. The next step is sterilizing—killing bacteria, if you please. Scrubbing doesn't get rid of those. Live steam is ideal for sterilizing; but many dairy farmers don't have steam—not even an abundance of hot water.

The use of a chlorine solution insures a good job of sterilizing. It is a simple procedure—merely put the chlorine in water and wash the utensil. The chlorine wash won't take the place of scrubbing, though; it is a bacteria killer, not a dirt chaser. You must use both.

Warm Drinking Water

Here is a real argument for water in front of the cows so they will never be compelled to drink too heavily of cold water at any one time. A French investigator, E. Garillet, reports that the water supplied in winter, when very cold, caused some cases of abortion and stoppage of rumination. When the water was heated, no such troubles were encountered. The easiest way around such troubles would be water bowls or troughs in front of the cows but, lacking these, a tank heater should be considered to take the chill off the drinking water. Consider that a cow takes into her body about 400 pounds of water for each 100 pounds of milk produced and it is easy to understand that cold water in big doses could not be otherwise than harmful.

Improving the Herd

Every dairymen should have a definite program for breeding improvement. The old maxim that the bull is half the herd still holds true and the securing of a pure-bred bull with a good pedigree is the first step in such a program. In selecting the dairy bull, especially for a grade herd, it may not be necessary that an exceptionally high price be paid, but it is even more important that the record of production shown by his pedigree be high. The bull should conform to the dairy type, with plenty of constitutional vigor and capacity.—American Agriculturist.

Quest the Inferior Cow

Inferior cows pay very low prices for the feed they eat. Figures from the Minnesota state-wide cow-testing associations show that it costs 22 cents more to produce a pound of butterfat from a cow that produces 100 pounds in a year than it does from a cow that makes 400 pounds. The cow that makes 400 pounds in a year pays 43 cents a bushel for oats, whereas the cow that only makes 100 pounds pays but 17 cents per bushel for oats, says Successful Farming.

Unable to Define "Will-o'-the-Wisp"

That the famous will-o'-the-wisp is a real scientific mystery, richly deserving investigation but which present-day science ignores, is emphasized by Charles F. Talman, of the weather bureau, in a recent publication of the American Nature association. The traditional idea that these dancing flames move over swamps and marshes to lure unwary travelers into the mire is obvious superstition. But it is unquestionable, says Dr. E. E. Free, that mysterious flames do appear above marshy land and have been seen by thousands of persons, including many trained scientists. The typical flames, Talman reports, are small, not very bright, usually bluish in color, nearly or quite heatless, always appear over marshy or flooded land and usually dance about over a space of a few square yards each but without progressive motion. The often quoted chemical theory that these flames are due to combustible gases set free from the marshy soil chemists themselves call impossible. Electrical theories have also been rejected on the ground that the typical will-o'-the-wisp appears when the air is not electrified. Fireflies or the luminous fungus called "fox fire" may explain some reports but cannot explain its typical occurrences. Perhaps the most plausible suggestion, Talman thinks, is that of Prof. Fernando Sanford, of Stanford university, that luminous bacteria are lifted into the air by bubbles of gas from marsh mud. The real explanation, however, is still a mystery.

Rat-Kangaroo Still Lives

The rat-kangaroo of Australia, long thought extinct, has been rediscovered by H. H. Finlayson of Adelaide university, that country. In a letter in Nature, a scientific periodical published in London, he points out that since 1843 it has been feared this queer animal had become extinct. The writer claims he has not only rediscovered the long lost desert inhabitant, but has obtained specimens in all stages of development. They live in the sandhill country between the Diamantina and Coopers rivers. They are marsupials and possess pouches in which they carry their young.

Mill's Centennial

A flour mill made of stone and hewed timber and powered by a water wheel in Indian creek near Dumas, Texas, reached its centennial of operation this year. The mill, which has been operated since 1839 by Anthony Watts and his descendants, was built in 1832 to grind the grain for the Indians. The Watts' descendants held a celebration in observance of the mill's centennial.

If one can't get cod liver oil, it is said that halibut livers is just as good. Lacking either, one must fall back on artificial aids, like sunshine.—Detroit News

Won't Eat
There's a reason.

When your child refuses its meals, is irritable, restless or feverish, the chances are worms are the cause. Careful mothers treat promptly with Dr. Jayne's Vermifuge, the foremost remedy for intestinal parasites. Worms are not always passed in recognizable form, but an improvement in your child's health will show that your judgment was correct. Your druggist will tell you that many of your friends have used Dr. Jayne's Vermifuge successfully. DR. D. JAYNE & SON, Philadelphia.

Monster Sturgeon
The biggest sturgeons in the Great Lakes weigh 200 pounds or more and measure as much as eight feet in length, which accounts for the fact that they are sometimes excitedly thought to be sea serpents.

Large Colonial Plantations
There were many plantations in Virginia in the early days of 5,000 or more acres. Nicholas Hayward had a unit of 30,000 acres, and William Fitzhugh at one time owned a total of 45,000 acres.

sixth Slosser weakened from a wrenched muscle and yielded four runs as a result of one hit, two errors, a hit batsman and two bases on balls. Rahl took the mound in the seventh and only one man reached second base, the result of a walk and an error. Only ten men faced him. During the game Hale gathered 17 hits off the offerings of Brown and Boudler, including four doubles, three triples, and a home run by Rahl.

When a team plays the brand of ball the Hale boys put up at pitching, fielding and hitting, they are a hard bunch to beat. It was a hard game, due to the large crowd present, for the Tawas boys to lose; so much that they ordered all other games scheduled to be cancelled. Hale Tigers go to Harrisville Sunday and a big following is going along to enjoy the game and a picnic at the Harrisville State Park. The party will leave about 11:00 o'clock, so be on time to join the party.

"The proof of freedom from rabies infection is simple. Rabies is always fatal to animals as well as human beings. Once the symptoms of rabies manifest themselves, there is but one outcome—death. The fatal result always occurs before the tenth day of the disease. Therefore, if an animal lives ten days after biting a person, the animal did not have rabies at the time of the biting.

"Rabies is commonly supposed to prevail only during the hot months, but it is in fact more prevalent in cold weather. Exposure to cold seems to increase its virulence. More dog bites occur from April to September than from October to March in this climate, because dogs run abroad more freely at this season of the year."

The following rules should be followed when a person has been bitten by a dog:
1.—Don't kill the animal unless it is necessary to effect the capture;
2.—Secure the animal in a comfortable place by a light chain or wire;
3.—Treat the animal kindly, he is probably sick;
4.—Give the animal plenty of food and drink and have the animal seen by a veterinarian or other competent diagnostician once each day;
5.—Make sure that the animal does not escape;
6.—Keep children and inquisitive adults away;
7.—If the animal lives for ten days, he was not rabid at the time of biting and can be released.

Important!
For a dog to bite a person or another dog is an unusual act and is usually the result of something abnormal. If it is a person who is bitten, the chance of infection is too great and the fatality is too high (100%) to take any chances on the needless sacrifice of human life.
For these reasons, it is the policy of the Michigan Department of Health to consider that every dog in this state that bites a person is rabid until clinical or laboratory evidence is available that proves that the animal was not rabid.
Bites on the face or hands are especially dangerous and the Pasteur Treatment should be started as soon as possible after the biting. If the biting animal evades capture or cannot be identified, start Pasteur Treatment at once.
