BUSTER KEATON, JIMMY DURANTE PAIRED AGAIN
Buster Keaton and Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante continue their combination as the most hilarious of all screen comedy teams in "Speak Easily," which opens Tuesday, August 30, at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, for three days.

Buster Keaton's "frozen asset" may have been his face through many of his comedies, but his newest role as the college professor in "Speak Easily" is the nearest thing to an exact character portrayal he has ever attempted.

Throughout the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer farce coming to the Family Theatre his part demands as absolutely set and indifferent reaction to any occurrence no matter how startling. He never changes his expression or tone of voice, which gives Keaton innumerable opportunities for his hilarious brand of comedy.

"Schnozzle" portrays the role of a small-time piano player in a tank town show. Keaton, as a millionaire college professor "adopts" the entire troupe and their adventures on Broadway provide a hilarious theme for the feature.

FURNITURE FOR SALE
This week we will offer some very attractive prices on good used furniture before we move, including piano, two overstuffed suites, two nice bedroom suites, walnut dining suite, odd dressers, chairs, tables, beds, mattresses, springs, ice boxes. It will pay you to drive many miles Saturday, Aug. 27, if you want some real bargains. Dan Phipps, on U.S. 23, opposite Dr. Weed's office, East Tawas.

The pitching performance turned in by St. Martin last Sunday was too much for the locals and the Tawas City boys were smothered under a 7-1 score at the hands of the East Tawas Merchants.

Brown, local hurler, was the losing pitcher in the game. The Merchants collected 12 hits and scored all their runs off him during the seven frames he was on the mound. Quick relieved him for the balance of the contest and allowed but one hit. St. Martin, besides holding the locals to five hits, struck out 14 men.

The support given the pitchers of the two teams was about even, three errors being chalked against each side. Boos collected the only extra base hit of the game, a double.

We Got to Get Rid of Him

TO CELEBRATE NEW SHORE ROAD OPENING

The Tawas City Improvement Association, last Monday evening, voted to sponsor a dance and banquet in celebration of the completion of the Shore road to Tawas City. It is anticipated that the road will be completed about October 1.

The dance will be held on the new Tawas river bridge and in connection, a banquet or barbecue will be held. Fred T. Luedtke, president of the association, has appointed a committee of five to develop plans for the occasion and report at a meeting of the association. After the plans have been approved the committee will have authority to go ahead with the work.

I Want You to Know--

That the road bills I introduced and those I worked and voted for now bring to the three counties I represent over $250,000.00 annually, from the gas and weight tax, and as a result all road taxes will be eliminated in the future.

I helped frame the bill that puts the expense of testing cattle on the state and takes it off the county, thereby saving the county many thousands of dollars.

The Turner School Bill which I worked and voted for brings to this legislative district more state money than the three counties pay the state in the way of a state tax.

My fight against the University tax helped cut this tax over a million annually. There should be a further cut of at least $2,000,000.00 in the cost of running the institution.

A way must be found to reduce the present school tax, and for this purpose I favor a state income tax along the same lines as the federal income tax now collected in the state.

I believe, that one license fee of not to exceed five dollars on each automobile for the life of the car is the only fair way to handle the auto license situation.

I worked and voted against the bill raising the hunting and fishing license fees. Page 1066 of the (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

GOOD FELLOWSHIP MEETING HELD AT KOKOSING RESORT

The third delightful "Good Fellowship meeting" was held Tuesday evening, August 16, at Kokosing Resort, with 140 cottage owners and friends present.

After a delicious dinner, the host, Mr. List, requested Rev. Riale to give a report of the "Cottage Owners' committee." The report was received with great enthusiasm by everybody.

Then all present went up to the beautiful lobby, where a program of vocal and instrumental music, monologue and acrobatic dance, was enjoyed. A comedy farce, "The Unemployed Lyceum," comprised the second part of the entertainment. Everyone present requested that another meeting be held in the near future.

GOLF TOURNAMENT

Plans are now being made for the Second Annual Tawas Golf Club Championship Tournament, according to an announcement by Arthur Dillon of East Tawas, who is president of the club. Hugo Keiser of Tawas City is chairman of the committee in charge, which is composed of Mr. Keiser and H. Read Smith of Tawas City and James Ruckman and Basil Quick of East Tawas.

Tentative plans are to hold the tournament immediately after Labor Day although the date for the first day's play has not yet been decided. The tournament will again be held on a handicap, match-play elimination basis as was done last year. It is also planned to allow two days for each round which will permit contestants to play nine holes of their match on each day if unable to complete the entire 18 holes in one day.

Each player who desires to enter the tournament must turn in four nine-hole rounds between August 26 and September 5. These will be the qualifying rounds and will be averaged to determine each player's handicap for the tournament. These qualifying rounds may be played at any time between now and the evening of Labor Day. Each player's qualifying rounds must be played with someone else who is also qualifying for the tournament. All cards for qualifying scores must be turned in to Frank Brown at the course and must have the signatures of the qualifying player and the player who qualified with him. It is not necessary that the same players qualify together for the entire 36 holes so long as each player observes the rule to play all qualifying rounds with someone else who is also qualifying. In other words, each player may turn in four cards representing four nine-hole rounds and each round may have been played with a different qualifying partner.

Watch this paper next week for further details.

STARS WERE HAND-PICKED FOR "SKY BRIDE"

Fitting screen players and directors into their proper niches in the film scheme of things is one of Hollywood's most important tasks.

By the same token that it is unwise to cast a player who has never seen a football game in the principal role of a gridiron picture, it is equally wise to select for such a role an actor who is thoroughly familiar with the game.

A like situation augurs for the success of Paramount's new air picture, "Sky Bride," Richard Arlen, in the chief role, was a lieutenant in the Royal Flying Corps during the World War, and continued his flying during the months that Paramount's "Wings" was in production. It was "Wings" that first focused the spotlight of screen fame on Arlen.

Stephen Roberts, the director, was a lieutenant in the United States Air Service, and after the war barnstormed through Texas with his own flying troupe, the Steve Roberts Air Circus. It is around the experiences of just such an air circus that "Sky Bride" is being filmed.

This aviation melodrama, featuring Richard Arlen, Virginia Bruce, Jack Oakie, Charles Starrett and Robert Coogan, comes to the State Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

NOTICE
Starting September 1st we will open our Used Furniture Store in the Tait office opposite the East Tawas high school. We will continue to give the same good bargains and wish to thank our many customers and friends for their patronage during the three months we have been in East Tawas.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Phipps.

HALE ROAD IS ALLOTTED $11,000.00

The Federal government has allotted $5,500.00 for the completion of the Hale-Five Channels road. This will be matched with an equal amount from the state, making $11,000.00 for this highway. The road is a national forest and state project and had been held up for some time awaiting funds.

In a communication this week from State Highway Commissioner Grover C. Dillman, he stated he anticipated that the contract for completing this road would be given this fall.

It is disclosed that an allotment of $27,351.00 has been made for the National forests of Michigan and the apportionments are being made on a basis of the relative needs of the various forest projects.

The Federal Forestry Service believes this work will help in relieving unemployment in the sections affected.

DUCK HUNTING SEASON EXTENDED TO TWO MONTHS

Among the more important changes in the waterfowl regulations to be effective during the coming fall include the lengthening of the duck season to two months, from noon, October 1 to sunset November 30; limiting the number of certain species which may be taken in a day; and limiting the number of live duck decoys that may be shot over at one gunning stand to 25. There will be no open season on ruddy ducks, woodcocks, buffleheads, Ross' geese and cackling geese to conform with federal regulations.

The game bird and waterfowl seasons to be effective this year are:

Chinese Ring-Necked Pheasants (male) Oct. 15-26 inclusive in lower peninsula. Bag limit: two in one day, four in possession, and four in season. Closed season in upper peninsula.

Ruffed Grouse: Oct. 1-12 inclusive in upper peninsula and Oct. 15-26 in lower peninsula. Bag limit: five in one day, 10 in possession and 10 in season.

Prairie Chicken: Upper peninsula Oct. 1-12 inclusive. Lower peninsula Oct. 15-26 inclusive, north of the north line of VanBuren, Kalamazoo, Calhoun, Jackson, Washtenaw, and Wayne counties. Bag limit: five in one day, 10 in possession, 10 in season.

Waterfowl (except woodcocks, ruddy ducks, buffleheads, Ross' geese and cackling geese): Noon Oct. 1, E. S. T. to sunset Nov. 30. Bag limit: in one day 15 in aggregate of all species of which not more than 10 in the aggregate may be taken of following: canvasback, red-head, greater and lesser scaup, ring neck, bluewing, greenwing, and cinnamon teal, shoveller and gadwall. Two days bag limit may be in possession at one time; 100 in season.

Geese and Brant: Noon Oct. 1 (E. S. T.) to sunset Nov. 30. Bag limit: four in one day (combined) and five (combined) in possession at one time.

Jacksnipe and Coot: Noon Oct. 1 to Dec. 15. Bag limit: 10 in one day; 20 in possession; 50 in season.

Woodcock: Sunrise Oct. 15 to Oct. 30. (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

"RED HEADED WOMAN" COMING TO FAMILY

Jean Harlow, of the famed platinum blonde tresses, offers a surprise to filmgoers in her latest screen role as the heroine of "Red Headed Woman," showing Sunday and Monday, August 28-29, at the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

In order to play the title role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's filmization of the sensational Katharine Brush best-seller, Miss Harlow was required to change her hair to a flaming red, a change which is reported to make quite a difference in her appearance and personality.

"Red Headed Woman" presents a vivid character study of a woman who stuns at nothing to gain her unscrupulous ends.

The story is said to give Miss Harlow the greatest acting opportunity of her career.

A strong cast appears with Miss Harlow, including Chester Morris of "Miracle Man" fame in the male lead; Lewis Stone, in the role of the father who attempts to "buy off" the red-haired siren; Leila Hyams, as the wife whose domestic happiness falls about her ears; Una Merkel as a wise-cracking beauty parlor employee; Ma Robson, who scored as the mother in "Letty Lynton."

The picture has been lavishly produced with scenes ranging from a small American suburban town to New York and a reproduction of the famous Longchamps race course near Paris.

TO THE VOTERS OF IOSCO COUNTY

Where Farm Board's Free Wheat Is Going

A PICTURE of the wide distribution of Red Cross flour, manufactured from 40,000,000 bushels of farm board wheat voted by congress for the needy and distressed, is given in American Red Cross records, and is illustrated by the map above. The dark areas show counties to which free flour has been shipped; the white, those which requisitioned none. Since the first shipment 19,000,000 bushels of the wheat have been manufactured into flour, and shipped into five-sixths of the counties in the United States. More than 3,000 chapters have requisitioned flour for the needs of 2,836,771 families. Stock feed consumed 11,198,951 bushels of the wheat, and was shipped to 184,188 stock owners of the drought territory, all west of the Mississippi river. The method of distribution has been standardized as follows: Application blanks were sent each of the 3,600 Red Cross chapters. Requisition of flour was made through chapters, and the chapter chairman was the responsible officer for signing the blank before a notary to testify to the needs in his community. Distribution is through the recognized family welfare agency or agencies.

OUR BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Patience is a virtue possessed by very few. I try to cultivate it and so, I hope, will you.

PETER RABBIT was cultivating it. To cultivate anything is to make it grow. Peter is naturally impatient when his curiosity is aroused, and so he was finding it very hard work to cultivate patience when he wanted so much to find out where Rattles the Kingfisher had made his home. But he was beginning to suspect that just as the longest way round is sometimes the shortest way to a given place, so the practice of patience is sometimes the quickest way of finding out a thing you want to know. So now as he lay in the long grass on the bank of the Laughing Brook a little way below the Smiling Pool watching Rattles pass up and down just above the water he felt sure that he was doing the wisest thing.

When Rattles flew down the Laughing Brook he always had a minnow or a tiny trout in his big spear-like bill. When he flew past toward the Smiling Pool he carried nothing. "Just as sure as Jenny Wren flirts her tail he takes those little fish home to his babies, and that means that his home is down the Laughing Brook still farther," muttered Peter. "I'll go a little farther down and watch again." So Peter did. This time it was not nearly so long after Rattles disappeared with a fish till he flashed past on his way to the Smiling Pool. "That means that I am getting nearer," thought Peter. "It can't be very far from here. I'll go a little farther and wait again." So Peter waited until Rattles the Kingfisher had gone back to the Smiling Pool, and then scampered along down the bank of the Laughing Brook. This time he went farther than before, and once more hid in the long grass. He waited and waited and waited, but not a glimpse of Rattles did he get although now and then he heard his harsh rattle farther up the Laughing Brook. After he had waited a long, long time, or at least what seemed to him a long, long time, he thought of something. It must be that he had passed the home of Rattles without knowing it. He had come too far. Yes, sir, that must be the reason that he no longer saw Rattles the Kingfisher coming and going. That home must be somewhere between the place where he had last hidden and the place where he was then hiding.

Once more Peter decided to change his hiding place. He poked his head out over the edge of the bank and looked up the Laughing Brook. A little way above was a bend in the Laughing Brook which shut off the view. From just beyond that came the sound of the unmusical voice of Rattles. "That's the place for me," thought Peter. "I'll hide just where I can see around the bend and see what I shall see."

Now all this time Peter hadn't once thought of how unfair it was to be spying on a neighbor in this way. He was just trying to satisfy his curiosity. He didn't once think that it was not the way one Quaddy should treat another Quaddy. So his conscience, which you know is that small voice inside, didn't bother him a bit as he hurried over to his new hiding place. There he could see above the bend in the Laughing Brook, and almost the first thing he noticed was a big sandy bank on the other side. But Peter had seen big sandy banks before, and he didn't think anything about this one. Then he saw Billy Mink swimming up the Laughing Brook. He was tempted to call Billy, but decided not to. It would be fun to watch Billy and see what he was up to. So Peter held his tongue and used his eyes instead.

Billy Monk seemed to be looking for something. As he swam along he kept watching the banks of the Laughing Brook, first one and then the other. Where the water was deep he swam, but where it was shallow he ran swiftly over the rocks or along the shore, every few steps stopping to look and to sniff. It was very clear that Billy was hunting for something. Suddenly a harsh rattle sounded from the direction of the Smiling Pool. Rattles the Kingfisher was coming. For a moment Peter forgot Billy Mink. When he thought of him again Billy had disappeared. You know Billy Mink can disappear the quickest of anyone unless it is Shadow the Weasel.

"Now where did he go?" muttered Peter, and then straightway forgot all about him as he saw Rattles the Kingfisher coming swiftly down the Laughing Brook with a little fish in his bill. Peter felt sure that at last his patience was to be rewarded.

ANOTHER

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

MEN say "another Riley"—
But there was only one;
Men say another something
That some one else has done;
And yet the world will never see Another Michaelson.

There may be greater Rileys,
But never one as great;
There may be greater Lincolns
To better serve the state,
For genius always must surpass
Or failure is its fate.

The man who is "another"
Is not, and never will,
Be better than the master
Or your apprentice still.
Seek not the level of the rest
But pass them on the hill.

Be not another some one,
Be something all your own,
You're not another Lindbergh
Till farther you have flown.
There are a thousand little hills,
The peaks all stand alone.

HOT WEATHER DRINKS

Lemon Sirup.
During the summer weather cool drinks are used more freely and it is a great satisfaction to have something good, cold, and palatable ready to serve one's friends. Lemon sirup, aside from its being more delicious than ordinary lemonade, gives one the assurance of its always being ready to serve at just a moment's notice.

Squeeze the juice from enough lemons (probably five dozen) to make two quarts of the juice. Add enough of the grated rind to suit the taste, six pounds of sugar, and two and one-half quarts of water. Heat to the boiling point, strain and bottle. Keep cold. When serving pour a tablespoonful or two of the sirup over chipped ice in the glass, add water and serve.

Chocolate Sirup.
Mix together one pound of chocolate, one pound of sugar, and one pint of water; add a few drops of vanilla or cinnamon extract. Keep cold; use three tablespoonfuls to a glass of chilled, iced milk.

Ginger Punch.
Chop half a pound of canton ginger, add one quart of cold water, one cupful of sugar, boil fifteen minutes, strain, add one-half cupful of orange juice and the same of lemon juice. Serve on crushed ice.

Currantade.
Take one quart of currants, one pint of raspberries, one quart each of water and sugar boiled to a sirup; cool. Serve in a punch bowl with ice. Strain before putting in the bowl.
Add ginger ale to grape juice for a nice drink.

We Are at War!

By GENERAL JOHN J. PERSHING

Here's a stirring call to arms that summons the spirit of those half-forgotten days of resolute marching men

Article I

FOURTEEN years ago an army of two million American citizens was gathering in France. They had left their homes and families and businesses; they had traveled three thousand miles across submarine-infested seas; and now they were ready to lay down their lives, if need be, for their country. Millions more, in America, were prepared to follow them and do likewise.

Today the nation faces another crisis, in which the enemies allied against us are more insidious but not less dangerous. Pervasive self-seeking and corruption, which the chosen officers of the law seem powerless to suppress; the sinister growth of the underworld, whose tentacles reach out to touch us all; the ever-increasing extravagance of government; and the mysterious paralysis of our economic system—these are the enemies which now confront us. They have been allowed to encroach upon us largely through our own carelessness and neglect of duty as citizens.

In the battle against them the average citizen is at a disadvantage because he is unprepared; he is willing enough, but he is bewildered. He doesn't yet realize that he himself is primarily to blame, hence he is taking no serious part in the conflict. By average citizen I mean a great many men to whom we should look for leadership, as well as the larger number who possess no qualifications for it. In fact, too often do citizens of all classes assume that politics, and crime, and even economics, are no business of theirs. It does not occur to them that they are, every one, individually, responsible.

Why is it that patriotism burns so brightly in times of war, so dimly in times of peace? It is just as necessary in meeting the complex obligations of peace, but these obligations do not stir the imagination like the primitive emotions of war. The average citizen feels that, somehow, the problems of peace will be solved for him, and fails to realize the possibility that calamity may result from his own indifference.

Still Can Be Proud.

We have as much reason now as we had fourteen years ago to feel proud of our country and to love it. We believe, with some justice, that it is the greatest republic in the history of the world. Under no flag in the world does a people enjoy more freedom or find greater happiness. We boast of public education, universal suffrage, liberty of speech and the press. We enjoy rights undreamed of in ancient Greece and Rome. Yet even with the sounder principles upon which to base the hope of permanence of our institutions, we too may some day go down, as did these older republics, unless we recognize and live up to our civic obligations. It cannot be too strongly impressed upon every citizen in a democracy that it is his duty to help—actively help—in the task of government.

The other day I was talking to a substantial business man from New York. We were discussing an issue of increased taxation then up before the house of representatives. "By the way," I said, "who is the representative from your district?" He grinned sheepishly. "I don't know," he said. My friend pays a goodly share of taxes to support the government, and yet he doesn't know who votes for him on the tax question. He relies on "a substitute" and doesn't even know who the substitute is!

This is something of a retrogression from an earlier period. When our government was founded, our forefathers did not let unknowns represent them. They made it their business to know all about the character and achievements of the men they elected to public office. Then the outstanding men in the country took part in ably write that military axiom into its books for the years to come.

We have made two other military blunders. We began by underestimating the strength of the enemy, and progressed from that to overestimating it. The cry, "We are just turning the corner," of 1929-30, was the equivalent of "We will have the boys out of the trenches by Christmas" of 1914-15. And our "This country is going to the dogs," of 1932 is the equivalent of "The Central Powers are invincible" of March, 1918. I have heard leading men, given over to fear, prate of national failure, bankruptcy, and

Bolshevism This is no time for craven cowering. Looking out of my window, I see the shaft of the monument to Washington. I think of Valley Forge, and wonder how those who now lament and wring their hands would have enjoyed that winter. This is Washington's bicentennial. It is time for a new reckoning, a new responsibility, a new courage.

During the winter past many a good man, willing and able to work, has gone through a hell of unemployment and uncertainty. Remembering that, we may also find that some good, along with the evil, comes out of all depressions.

I am not a stranger to depressions. Economists tell us that the panic of 1873 was the closest analogy which history furnishes to our present troubles. My father, a well-to-do business man and farmer in Missouri, was caught in that general disaster. I was just thirteen years old. One day my father told me the whole story.

"John," he said, "everything I own has been swept away except the farm, which is covered by a heavy mortgage." (We finally lost it.) "I must try to make some money by traveling as a salesman. While I am away you must take care of the family and manage the farm." During the next three years my brother and I ran the farm. We plowed, sowed, and reaped. We took our produce to market. Those days were not so different from these for the farmer. I remember we had a field of timothy hay which was particularly fine. I baled it up, carload of it, and sent it by rail to St. Louis, hoping to receive a top price, but it did not bring enough to cover the freight charges.

During those years my attendance at school was limited and I had to do the best I could to keep up with my classes by studying at night. Those were certainly hard times. Yet, "sweet are the uses of adversity," and it was the best thing that ever happened to me. It taught me more, gave me greater confidence and a keener sense of responsibility than anything else could have done.

Unsuspected Powers.

I cite my own experience merely to show how men and women actually gain a new strength and courage when thrown upon their own resources and responsibility in times of crisis. They find in themselves powers they never suspected.

The life of a military man furnishes another example valuable in times like the present. In every army career there come occasional times of dullness. The officer, stationed at some remote army post, has his routine duties to perform. When these are completed he finds the temptation almost overwhelming to give over his leisure to cards, light reading, social evenings, painless time-wasting. It is the officer who resists that temptation, who spends hard hours each day studying the latest advances in artillery technique, in transport, in tactics—it is this officer who receives recognition when the opportunity for active service comes.

So it is in business. In this time of extreme dullness, many have sunk back into a kind of lethargy. But the wise business man, like the conscientious officer, is using his present leisure to prepare for the battles to come. He is devising new economies of production and distribution. He is studying the problem of how his product may be varied or made more attractive. He is getting ready to take advantage of the upturn when it comes. He is not accepting gloomy defeatism. He is thinking for himself.

I have touched at some length on the depression because it has so glaringly shown us the folly of carelessly delegating our thinking to others.

It has also thrown a bright cold light on the flaws in our political methods and on our crime problem. During the years of prosperity following the war an underworld of gangsters and racketeers unparalleled in any other civilized nation, grew up and flourished in our cities. The criminals who manned this underworld were of a new type. They were not the masked and shabby plug-uglies who filled the jails in earlier years. They were expensively dressed; they owned machine guns, high-powered cars, and speed boats; they had money in the bank. With this money they were able to establish a relation with corrupt officials and police which seemed to make them immune from prosecution.

Association With Sage

Not One-Sided Honor

That's a grand Shaw story. The one relating to his trip to Russia. Strolling along the banks of the Volga, he encountered a beautiful girl playing in the sand.

He stopped to chat with the child, who immediately took a liking to the bearded sage. They walked along the river for a while, her hand in his, Shaw, enjoying the trivialities of which they talked. Finally the little one informed the Shavian boy that it was time for her to go home.

"Good-by, my dear," he said, "and when mother asks you where you have been, tell her you have been walking along the Volga with George Bernard Shaw."

The great name was absolutely unknown to the child, but she recognized the courtesy in the words of her strange friend and was not to be outdone. Her pleasant smile and bow acquired a quaint gravity. She replied:

"And when you go home and they ask you where you have been tell them that you were walking along the Volga that with Katherina Ivanovna Fyodorovitch."—New York Morning Telegraph.

DELVE INTO RUINS OF ANCIENT TROY

Excavators There Hope for Rich Rewards.

Nine levels of ancient settlement have been identified on the mound of Hisarlik, which lies about four miles from the Dardanelles and is now accepted as the site of ancient Troy. The sixth of them is probably the remnant of Ilium's towered citadel, a fortress contemporaneous with ruined Mycenae and surrounded by fragments of massive fortification. In the several layers of rubbish and relics the archeologists can confidently trace 3,000 years of ascending civilization, from the dawn of the Bronze age to a Graeco-Roman city of the Christian era.

Possibly there is no more fascinating problem in archeology than is represented by this heap of history's leavings. Its broken treasures are eloquent of the affairs of forgotten peoples, their daily occupations and their efforts toward the adornment of their lives with a little beauty of craftsmanship. There are signs to be read in the rubbish of long periods of peace and of sudden catastrophe. And in addition there is the formidable and fascinating task of identifying known facts with the rich detail of

Larger Bank Notes Growing in Favor

Hoarding One of Reasons Advanced by Financiers.

Washington.—Paper currency of high denomination has notably increased in the last three and one-half years. In outstanding $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000 notes the net gain has been $732,198,550. Outstanding $5,000 and $10,000 bills decreased $148,135,000, while other high denomination paper gained $880,333,500 between January 31, 1929, and June 30, 1932.

Confidence in banks, have withdrawn their money from deposit and transferred it to safety deposit boxes to the amount of about $2,000,000,000. In determining the amount of hoarding, treasury and federal reserve experts have considered the requirements of business and the amount of currency in circulation. On this basis, hoarding has been estimated as running from $1,500,000,000 to $2,000,000,000, including the abnormal volume of money maintained in vaults by banks to meet emergencies. On June 30 the total amount of money in circulation was $5,695,041,717, or an increase of $874,000,000 during the year in the face of declining business. Circulation at the end of the 1932 fiscal year was $948,000,000 higher than June 30, 1929, and $1,174,000,000 higher than June 30, 1930.

Considerable doubt is expressed in Washington whether criminal elements make great use of banknotes of above $1,000. Normally, they use "more negotiable" money. Not much change in their banking habits has been noted. Nevertheless, $100, $500 and $1,000 bills may be used to a considerable extent in the bootlegging business. Hoarders of large sums undoubtedly use bills of $100, $500 and $1,000.

Between January 31, 1929, and June 30, 1932, the largest gain in outstanding bills was that of the $100 denomination; it was $441,246,300. The $500 bills increased $177,100,250; the $1,000 bills, $261,987,000. In $5,000 bills there has been an increase of $13,000,000 since January 31, 1930; in the last six months it came to $1,000,000. But from 1929 to this month a net decrease of $48,505,000 is recorded.

Five and $2 bills decreased. The reduction in outstanding $10,000 bills, as shown by treasury books, was $429,630,000. However, of that amount $330,000,000 was accounted for by the retirement in May, 1929, of a reserve in gold certificates maintained in the New York assay office, bringing the actual decrease in the $10,000 bills to $90,630,000. As these bills were sent to the treasury for redemption they were retired.

Mme. Magda Lupescu Again Escapes Assassin's Bullet

Police Dog Saves Life of King Carol's Favorite.

Bucharest.—A German police dog saved the life of Madame Magda Lupescu when a Rumanian officer secretly entered her bedroom with the intention of killing her. Madame Lupescu was wounded in the arm, her chambermaid shot through the abdomen.

This was the second attempt upon the life of Madame Lupescu in her villa in Bucharest. The beautiful Jewess, for whom King Carol was prepared to sacrifice his throne, was saved from certain assassination when her faithful police dog sunk his teeth in the arm of Colonel Taranu, former Rumanian military attaché in Paris.

Taranu dropped his pistol before he could fire the shot that was aimed at Madame Lupescu's heart. Colonel Taranu, together with four other Rumanian officers, was arrested. The discovery that both attempts to kill Madame Lupescu were made by Colonel Taranu created a sensation in Bucharest.

His enmity toward Madame Lupescu is declared to be the result of his transfer from Paris, where he was Rumanian military attaché, to Focsani, a small Rumanian city. He believed Madame Lupescu to be responsible for it, and resolved to take revenge.

His first attempt to assassinate her took place last Easter but was unsuccessful. He was able to flee undisturbed.

GAGE AND HIS MONEY

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

At the professional school which he attended they still say that Gage had the most brilliant mind that the school has ever trained. His family was very poor and so was not able to help him financially even when he was going through high school. He managed in a dozen ways, some of them clever and others quite commonplace, to earn his living while in high school and college. He often lacked proper clothes; sometimes he was only scantily fed, but through it all he managed to do very remarkable work in his studies.

No doubt his poverty galled him, but if it did he was too proud ever to reveal his true feelings even to his most intimate friends.

Unlike most young fellows who struggle along without friends or position, he fell at once, when he finished his professional course, into a position which brought him clients of wealth who were able to pay large fees for satisfactory service. Gage prospered beyond his most rosy expectations. He made more in a year than he had ever had in his whole life before. He had met a girl after he had left college whose experience had been very much like his own, and, shortly after he took up his practice, they were married.

And here is where they made the great mistake of their lives. As soon as they got money, they began to spend it recklessly. Never having had many of the comforts of life, they were now not satisfied without its luxuries. Never having had an adequate income within which to live, when they got one, they lived far beyond it.

Gage made twice as much money as he should have spent, for so skillful was he, and so much in demand that his office was crowded constantly with people eager to consult him. He worked long hours, often coming back to his office at night to finish what the daylight did not furnish sufficient time to accomplish, but the money that he earned he squandered foolishly.

Gage is an old man from overwork at forty. He has accumulated little though he has made much. He has learned to save neither his strength nor his money.

Same Family Pastors in Swedish Parish 350 Yrs.

Kristdala, Sweden.—For 350 years Kristdala parish, in the Swedish province of Ostergotland, has received its pastor from the same family. The first reverend was named Duranus Meurling, and his descendant, Dr. Erik Meurling, today holds the same office. In honor of this, two memorial plaques were unveiled on Kristdala churchyard in the presence of the Swedish minister for cults and education and the bishops of Linkoping and Vaxjo.

Ancient Swedish Manors Are Now Roadside Inns

Stockholm, Sweden.—Old Swedish manor houses, formerly seats for the landed gentry, in many cases have been turned into inns and boarding houses for motorists, according to the Royal Automobile club. These roadside hostleries are becoming quite popular. The spring weather has been good this year for the roads and they now are in excellent condition. Owing to the favorable Swedish rate of exchange, a record number of foreign visitors bringing their own cars is expected this summer.

MODERN IRAQ

Fire Wood Is Scarce in Iraq.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

IRAQ, where American explorers recently discovered a complete historic township, dating from the early fourth millennium, is the modern name for the traditional Garden of Eden, historically known as Mesopotamia. Many historians hold that somewhere in Iraq—in the valley of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers—is to be found the cradle of civilization.

Upon the breaking up of the Turkish empire following the World War Mesopotamia became a British mandate which was erected into the Arab kingdom of Iraq with a Mohammedan prince from Mecca upon the throne. Such is the latest form assumed by the Phoenix among nations. In the last six thousand years Babylonian, Assyrian, Chaldean, Persian, Greek, Roman and Saracen civilizations have flourished in Mesopotamia, each rising from the ashes of its predecessor.

The great irrigation works which, throughout the centuries, had kept the Tigris-Euphrates valley green, rich and flourishing were destroyed by invading Mongols and allowed to decay by heedless Turks. The Garden of Eden became a treeless desert, except for a few date palms along the river banks. Cities like Baghdad and Basra fell into decay and seemed fast approaching the fate which had overtaken Ur and Babylon, where jackals howl above a lonely waste.

Then followed a rebirth during the throes of the great war. Once more boats crowded the swift and treacherous reaches of the Tigris. Once more the bazaars of Baghdad and Basra and Mosul hummed with world traffic. Marauding desert robber tribes were kept in perpetual peace by airplanes humming over their remote villages. Sanitary regulations and electric lighting made town and country both more safe and more healthful. Ice factories and soda water establishments helped alleviate summer days of 120 degrees in the shade. Levees were built to keep the flooding rivers within their banks and slowly bit by bit work was begun on repairing irrigation works and building railroads. Thus was modern Iraq born.

GABBY GERTIE

"Benjamin Franklin, flying his kite, was no doubt the first to say 'Thereby hangs a tail.'"

SUCH IS LIFE—One on Ol' Doc!

By Charles Sughrue

These keleks come down to Baghdad in hundreds from Mosul, bringing wool, pottery, grain and skins.

The present custom house at Baghdad is a wing of the old palace of Harun-al-Rashid; yards of scrawling Arabic characters, cut in marble panels, still adorn its historic walls.

Baghdad arteries of traffic are mere alleys, often so narrow that two donkeys cannot pass. Once Turkish soldiers tried to move artillery through Baghdad. The streets were so narrow the horses had to be unhitched, and men moved the guns about by hand.

A great wall encircles Baghdad, with guarded gateways, as in medieval days. Flat-roofed, huddled Moorish houses, many almost windowless and each surrounding its own open court, are a distinct feature of the older parts of Baghdad. On these flat roofs Arabs spend the summer nights with tom-toms, flutes, water-pipes, and dancing women. Facing the river, removed from the Arab town, are built the imposing foreign consulates, mercantile offices, and the sumptuous homes of rich Jews, Armenians, Greeks and Syrians—the men who make New Baghdad.

But the Baghdad of Ali Baba's day, with the splendor of Aladdin's enchanted age, is gone forever. The palaces, the mosques, and minarets are mostly in ruins. Even the tomb of lovely Lady Zobeida, favorite wife of Harun-al-Rashid, is tumbled down and decayed. It is into modern monuments to New Baghdad—into roads, bridges, public buildings, irrigation works, army organization, dredging the Tigris, etc.—that the Young Turks put their money.

Modern Baghdad is in safer hands; no dissipated royalty guards its gates. Sober, clear-headed men, drilled in the best schools of modern Europe, able to hold their own anywhere, administer its affairs. As late as 1830 the Tigris overflowed its banks, swept through Baghdad, and drowned 15,000 people in one night.

Till lately Baghdad, more than any other city in the Near East, has been slow to yield to Europe's influence. For centuries Baghdad kept close to the Bedouin life, under the sway of nomad customs. Even now Baghdad's famous bazaars, despite her evolution in other ways, are conducted as they were a thousands years ago. These Arab trading places have changed not one whit since Abraham's time. Here is barter and sale as Marco Polo found it, as it was in the days of the Three Wise Men who bought gifts for Bethlehem.

Basra is situated on the Shatt-el-Arab, a river formed by the union of the Tigris and Euphrates. Smaller centers of importance, such as Kut and Amara, follow each other at intervals the entire length of the valley. Most of the inhabitants are Mohammedan Arabs, though in the cities are many Jews, while in the mountainous north are settlements of Nestorian Christians dating from very early times.

Arabs Who Work in Factories. City Arabs have taken readily to the ways of civilization and seem glad for the chance to work in ice and cotton cloth factories, and upon engineering and public works. Much agricultural land has been reclaimed, the date palm, of which more than sixty varieties are known, being the chief product. Wheat, barley and rice are also grown, and experiments with cotton are being made. Flowers, pumpkins, and vegetables are planted in the date orchards where the palms protect tender leaves below from the scorching summer sun. These green spots are still chiefly confined to the regions of the river banks. The rest of the lower valley is swamp or treeless plain.

In the spring months when snows are melting on near-by mountain ranges the Tigris and Euphrates become swollen torrents and often overflow their banks and inundate the surrounding country, just as they did in the days of Noah. The new regime is taking active steps in flood prevention by strengthening river banks in low places and damming up the flow at headwaters. There has been no serious flood since 1919 when the Tigris rose to within a foot of the level of Baghdad and the lower valley became one vast lake wherein man and beast vainly sought for safety.

The traveler is paddled ashore from the steamer in a "goofah," a queer, coraclelike craft in use here since Jonah's day. A goofah is woven from willows about six feet in diameter, is circular and basket-shaped, and is coated outside with bitumen. Some say Moses was cut adrift in one of these goofahs.

Old City Mostly in Ruins. Another strange craft at Baghdad is the "kelek," a Kurdish invention. The kelek is a raft made of inflated goatskins, held together by poles and covered with a platform of straw mats.

THE STORY

Six bandits hold up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the Mackenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sergt. Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at the news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father. Alan leads his expedition up the big Aloska. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits, and returns to Fort Endurance. Haskell blames him for the failure and Alan is allowed to buy out of the Mounted on condition that he absolve Haskell from blame. Alan starts out of the country in a motor canoe. He meets "Buz-zard," Featherfoot, famous aviator, and enlists him in the enterprise. "Slob-Ice" Jensen, leader of the bandits, plans to capture Joyce. Haskell suspects Alan's plans, and plots to capture him.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

Looking ahead through the propeller disk, he glimpsed the great blue lake of his rendezvous with Bill. A few minutes later on the northern shore he sighted Goose point reaching out into the sunlit waters of En Traverse.

Leaning forward, he pointed out the promontory to Buzzard and shouted into his partner's ear:

"That's the place. Glide down and light, close in as you can. I don't see Bill there, but he probably couldn't get away from duty to wait for us. Our supplies are cached in that red-willow thicket back next to the woods. We'll go ashore and get them."

Buzzard cut off ignition. The engine roar stopped. As the plane glided down at a mile-long tangent and swept over Goose Point, Alan leaned out into the slip-stream and looked under keel, searching the flag-and-willow headland for a possible sight of Bill Hardsock.

Hardly expecting to meet Bill, he was not surprised when his old partner failed to show up. But as the machine glided silently over the point, his eyes were caught by an object there on the muddy landwash. At a second glance he saw it was a large gasoline drum lying in full view at the very tip of the headland.

The sight of the drum startled him. He queried silently: "Why the devil did Bill put that thing out there so glaring? He didn't need to draw my attention; we arranged about the cache."

Beyond the point the plane touched the surface, plowed on through a shower of spray and came to a stop three hundred yards off the landwash.

In the scarlet-and-gold police launch, hidden behind a low-sweeping balsam at water edge, Inspector Haskell and Corporal Whipple watched the machine whirr low over the point. As it came down and down, Haskell clutched his rifle a little tighter and watched intently.

His heart leaped as the machine touched the wavelets, skimmed on a little distance, and came to a stop.

"They're going ashore," he breathed exultantly to Whipple, as though unable to believe his incredible luck. "We'll skim out and ram the plane. Get ready!"

Uneasy, Alan stood up in the cockpit and searched the headland with his glasses. Over and over he kept telling himself that it wasn't like Bill, his cautious old patrol partner, to roll that drum of gas out there.

While he was searching the point, he felt Buzzard excitedly grasp his arm.

"Alan! Look! . . . Lord's sake!—look over there!"

Alan whirled and looked where he pointed, at the southern shore of the lake eight miles away.

On a long timbered headland there a sudden sheet of flame had leaped up nearly sixty feet into the air and stood out above the tree tops, with a fiery puff and cloudlet of smoke visible for miles and miles across the open water. A few seconds later the flame died down a little, as though it had been of explosive origin, but a clump of paper birches up which the flame had raced still continued to burn like a gigantic torch.

Focusing on that distant headland, Alan saw nothing except the fire-wrapped birches. As he brought the glasses down, mystified, frowning, his uneasiness swept through him again, sharp and insistent. That suspicious drum of gasoline—Bill surely wouldn't have rolled it out there. That huge burst of fire across the lake—it had some meaning.

body being near, he grabbed for his rifle. But I jumped for him too quick and hit him a couple times, and while he was coming out of it I lopped that gun of his around a tree. Then I collared him and asked him what the condemnation his intentions might be. At first he closed up like an oyster and wouldn't do nothing but grunt and look sour. I was suspicious of him laying low there watching me, so I up and lammed h—l out of him then and there till he did pry open his jaws.

"Haskell had hired him to shadow me and spy out what I was doing. He must have got hep somehow to me taking that gas. And he and that fishworm Whipple were coming there to Goose point in the launch to get me, gas, oil, then lay low and nail you two when you lit down. Two bits to a shirt button they're over there right now!"

As he thought how close he and Buzzard had come to going ashore and being captured, Alan shuddered. Bill went on: "When the Smoky told me that . . . Say, did I make some tall tracks? I never got such a wiggle on in my life. With the Smoky helping, I made two trips across the lake and snaked the drums all away—all except one drum which I heard the launch coming and didn't have time to take—"

"It's still over there," Alan interrupted. "They rolled it out in plain sight like a decoy, but instead of that it made me suspicious. They overplayed. But what got you all shot this way, Bill?"

"I've been awake four or five days and nights, that's what! Not a wink! Didn't dare sleep. It made me sweat blood to think of you lighting down over there and getting nailed. I had to draw your attention somehow, when you were over the lake; and it had to be one whopper of a signal, that far away. I got a couple big piles of birch paper ready and had a drum of gas handy to soak it with; and I kept a dry-wood fire going so I could stand back and throw a blazing chunk at the paper. But it made the signal, all right. It nearly singed me and I stood thirty feet back."

"I'll vow it made a signal," Buzzard commented. "It looked like the evacuation of Lens."

"I had to stay awake every minute," Bill continued, "for fear you'd come and fly right into the trap. And then I had to guard the Smoky. He's tied up back there; didn't dare turn him loose, or he'd told Haskell where I was. If I'd ever got started dozing, I'd have beaten this Rip Winkle fellow for long-distance sleeping. There was times when I got so near overpowered I had to wade out and set on a rock with the water up under my chin, where I didn't dare go to sleep or I'd been drowned."

Merely by looking at Bill, Alan knew that his former partner had left half his story untold. It was only afterwards that he heard all the details of Bill's heroic siege.

"How about Joyce?" he asked. "You've been to see her, Bill?"

"I ducked aside twice. Last time was a week ago. She's taken in a big raft of peltry. She's closing up the place to go out to Edmonton and be with her dad."

"A week ago," Alan thought. "Anything could have happened in a week." He asked, "Any news at Endurance?"

Just everyday things, Bill reported. Except for Larry. Larry would cry, Bill said, whenever he looked at his shattered leg. Larry, who kept himself as young as men half his age, who prided himself on his wolf-lean body—was wasted away to a mere shadow of his former self.

Glancing out across En Traverse, Alan suggested: "We'd better be leaving here. Haskell and his stool pigeon over there probably saw us light. They may take a notion to whip across the lake after us. Where's the oil and gas, Bill?"

"Right yon by that rock jumble. The Smoky is just this side. I'll go along—"

"You stay here; you're about once in. Buzzard, you turn the plane and make ready for a quick getaway in case that launch shows up. I'll get the drums."

He hurried to the tangle of junipers and granite boulders where he found the precious gas and oil which Bill had sworn to bring to the rendezvous. Taking a load out to the plane, Alan hoisted it up to Buzzard, who began siphoning into the wing tank.

Stages of Civilization Recorded by Currency

Money, according to Fararn Zerbe, former president of the American Numismatic association, is a historian of the first rank.

Money is a documentary record of the progress of man and the stages of civilization. Coins are imperishable manuscripts in metal, unfolding a concise story of the refinements and energy of the people producing them. The history of money for the past 5,000 years is also a history of mankind.

Coins indicate to what estate has risen the art, architecture and metallurgy of a people; mythology and religion here are graven in imperishable record. Greece in all her glory and Rome before the fall of the empire are portrayed for all to see in the bushels of coins uncovered by modern excavation.

The deterioration which followed the universal tragedy of a dead empire is reflected in the barbarously crude coins of the Middle ages. Money tells a story of conquest and siege, of victory and defeat, of culture and ignorance. Money records lost causes, tells of the rise and fall of the affairs of men; it suggests civilizations destroyed and forgotten.

Parade Into Fields

Bulgaria is 5,000 red-roofed villages strewn along streams, scattered in clusters over plains, straggling along the crest of hills, and all the work, order, love and sacrifice, song and prayer that fill them.

On May mornings Bulgaria is a stream of grandparents, parents and children, flocks of sheep, herds of cattle, droves of pigs and geese, all pouring forth from their appointed places. Mother carry babies in tiny hammocks on their backs, and on reaching the fields hang them to the flowering branches of leafy trees or to shaded tripods. If the journey is long, donkeys carry the swaddled infants in saddlebags.

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lelia Hattersley

No. 15.
Bidding a Two-Suiter
A partner with assistance in either suit is a tremendously powerful hand because of its high distributional value. When holding two strong suits, make every effort to find which partner can best assist, and to play the contract at that declaration. Always, if possible, show both suits, and give partner the opportunity to indicate his preference.

When choosing between two five-card biddable suits, or one six-card and one five-card biddable suit, the higher ranking should be mentioned first, irrespective of superior honor strength in the second suit or of the relative length of the suits. For example, with the following hand, S-A 10 6 3 H-A K J 10 5 D-4 3 C-9, the opening bid should be one spade. Or with, S-8 H-J D-A J 4 3 2 C-A Q J 5 2, the correct opening is one diamond.

The reverse method of bidding two suits, that is of naming the lower ranking suit before the higher, is reserved for one particular type of holding known as a semi two-suiter. When two biddable suits are distributed 5-4 or 6-4, the initial bid should always be in the longer suit, whether it is a minor or a major, and even though the longer suit is weaker in honors. For example, holding: S-A K J S H-8 6 5 3 D-J 10 8 C-3, your original bid should be one heart; then if a later round of the bidding gives you an opportunity to show the spades, your partner will know without question that the latter suit is a four-carder. When one of your suits is of six or seven card length, and your second suit contains only four cards, the longer suit should, almost invariably, be rebid once before the four-card suit is shown.

The definite rules which in the forcing system control the bidding of two-suiters and semi two-suiter enable partners to give and receive amazingly exact information concerning the distribution as well as the strength of their hands.

Responding to Two-Suit Bids

If your partner has shown two suits in the natural manner, bidding the higher valued suit first and the lower on a second round, your course is simply to choose the declaration to which your hand is best fitted. A two-suiter may be raised very strongly if you hold length in one of your partner's suits and a singleton or void in the other. Such a distribution promises a valuable cross-ruff, and enables you to give a higher raise than the count of your hand would normally indicate.

Even though you may not have a legitimate raise for either of your partner's suits, there is a certain technique in two suit bidding which it is important to understand. Whenever your partner bids a suit and subsequently names a second, unless there is a bid from the intervening opponent, you must take your partner back to his first declaration if it better fits your hand.

When your partner opens with a lower ranking suit, and later bids a higher ranking suit, it shows that the latter is a four-carder, so if the next player passes, you should, with equal length in both, take your partner back to his first declaration even at the expense of increasing the contract. To illustrate, you hold: S-J 8 3 H-K 10 8 5 D-9 6 3 C-8 5 4, when your partner has opened with one club and has later bid two spades. You should return to the club bid unless an opponent relieves you of the responsibility by intervening.

Whenever the intervening opponent takes your partner out, a bid from you in either of your partner's suits shows more than a preference, it announces a legitimate raise with some assisting tricks and trump support of normal caliber.

No Trump Bids and Rebids

While a great many hands evaluate in no trumps contracts, in the forcing system the opening bid of a no trump is rarely heard. This is easy to understand considering the strict rule that a biddable suit, even a four-card minor, takes precedence over a no trump declaration in the initial bid.

When you find, however, that your hand contains the quota of honor-tricks for a sound opening, but lacks a biddable suit, you must naturally consider a no trump.

In the position of dealer or second-hand, not vulnerable, you may open with one no trump when you have 2½ honor-tricks distributed in three suits. Vulnerable, such a bid is dangerous and should not be opened with less than three honor-tricks. No trump bids by third and fourth hand are governed of course by the same restrictions as third and fourth-hand suit bids. They require at least three honor-tricks, with additional strength if opponents have a partial score.

Between the opening bid of one and two no trumps there is a wide gap, about five honor-tricks being required for the latter declaration. An initial bid of three no trumps is based on honor-tricks and playing tricks, the total requisite being eight sure tricks with all suits stopped. Considering its high requirements, a three no trump bid is naturally a rare occurrence.

CURRENCY IN DAYS OF NATION'S YOUTH

Revolutionary Paper Money of Little Worth.

The recently arranged exhibition at the Newark museum of types of paper and metal money and objects of barter used as a basis for exchange in this country during the lifetime of Washington furnishes an interesting sidelight from the past on the gold standard and the problems of a stable currency in a period of chaotic economies.

Certainly the early American currency was nothing if not varied. In the early Colonial days barter was a common method of exchange—fur, tobacco and Indian wampum being used because of the shortage of coins in the Colonies. What coinage there was consisted principally of English gold pieces and Spanish gold pieces from the Spanish main—these latter due to the rich trade carried on in the Caribbean and to the roving freebooters and pirates who not infrequently visited the English settlements on the Atlantic.

Coins were struck off in what is said to have been the first American mint, in Massachusetts, the material coming from melted-down foreign currency. This mint, opened under authority of the Colonial legislature, was later closed by the crown. Some attempt to relieve the shortage of currency was made through royal grant to private individuals. One of these, William Wood, undertook to make copper tokens for both Ireland and America, and when the Irish received them coldly all were eventually sent to the American Colonies.

Both congress and the individual Colonies experimented during the Revolution with paper money. As the credit behind the various issues was anything but firmly established, these issues depreciated practically to worthlessness, and after the establishment of the federal mint, in 1792, most of this currency was repudiated.

With the Republic a working organization, a new coinage was undertaken. It had been suggested that the head of Washington be used on the new coins, but he refused to permit it—agreeing with the widespread belief that it would be well to get away from the British-type coin with the heads or figures of royal personages. This started the precedent, which has been continued, of never using the head of a living person on the coins. The head of the goddess of liberty was used on the first coins struck at the Philadelphia mint.—New York Times.

Lending for Protection

Hollywood thought a certain motion picture star had gone crazy when he began to lend money to certain of his friends. To be sure, the amounts were small, but the fact that he lent any at all was cause for consternation among the people who knew him real well.

"Don't you worry," grinned the star, when it was pointedly suggested that he needed a vacation and mental relaxation. "I haven't loaned a dollar more than I'm willing to pay to feel certain that I'll be left strictly alone. No one comes near you when they owe you money."

Legislative Journal records both my protest and my vote against this bill. These high fees should be immediately reduced. They have not increased the revenue, but they have increased the number of law-breakers, and have driven thousands of resorters to other states.

I have constantly and continually fought the high salaries paid some of our state officials. When the bill cutting state salaries was first reported out, I voted against it, and helped send it back to the committee, because it only cut the big fellows ten per cent. This bill was finally passed, and I voted for it, cutting all salaries of $5,000 and over, twenty-five per cent, over $3,000 fifteen per cent, and over $1,200 ten per cent. This one bill reduced the state tax about six million dollars.

During the four years that I have been your representative in the legislature, I have only missed three roll calls. I have been always on the job. No one ever came to Lansing while the legislature was in session and found me away, and no citizen ever wrote me a letter or called my attention to any matter that did not receive immediate attention.

I believed this kind of service to be my duty and I did it willingly and with all the ability and energy at my command.

Never in the history of this nation has the situation been so critical; never has there been a time when the farmers, especially, had greater need for one of their own number in the legislature.

If you decide to have me continue to represent you, I pledge myself to give my time, my energy, and every ounce of my ability to do everything in my power to increase the prosperity and happiness of the people of this district and of the State of Michigan.

HOLBROOK For Congress

Mr. Carl Holbrook solicits your support for the Republican Nomination for Congress, Tenth District on a platform of Governmental Economy and Revision, in keeping with the changed conditions and problems of the present time.

He Advocates:—

Reduced Governmental expenses that will actually lower taxes.

Abandonment of unnecessary bureaus of no practical value to the average citizen.

Elimination of overlapping departments.

Added encouragement to railroads and their employes.

Local labor on necessary government work.

1932 consideration for 1917 soldiers.

Protective legislation for the farmer.

Laws to protect bank depositors.

Wall Street stock supervision.

Greater distribution of Federal Reserve and Farm Loan advantages.

Repayment of War Debts by Foreign Nations.

Industrial Equality that will enable the independent manufacturer and business man to stay in business.

More equal distribution of labor hours.

Anything practical to relieve unemployment.

Repeal of the 18th Amendment.

A successful lawyer, eight years Prosecuting Attorney of Clare County, four years City Attorney, President of the Clare County Chapter of American Red Cross, Past Commander American Legion, Veteran of Foreign Wars, 19 of 22 months War Service in France, President of Clare Chamber of Commerce—and vitally interested financially and otherwise throughout the district he aspires to represent in Washington.

Briefly, Mr. Carl Holbrook is an energetic citizen whose many activities have made him thoroughly conversant with the needs of the people and whose ability to represent them is without question.
