GREAT SCREEN NOVELTY AT STATE THIS WEEK

The season's greatest screen novelty will be shown this week Friday and Saturday at the State Theatre.

This unusual picture is "Iglloo," the Universal drama filmed in the frozen wastes of Northwestern Alaska, with a cast composed entirely of Eskimos. The film not only depicts intimately with the home life of the natives, living in ice igloos during the terrible winters, but follows them in a great trek to the sea, where they are seen in exciting hunts for whale, walrus and polar bear.

"Iglloo" was written and directed by Ewing Scott, who spent seven months at desolate Point Barrow during the making of the picture, accompanied only by a white cameraman and a full blooded Eskimo who had most astonishingly made his way down to Hollywood and who plays the leading role. This Eskimo, Chee-Ak, is said to qualify as a veritable Sheik of the North, being at least a head taller than any other native appearing in the picture. He is the Eskimo Clark Gable.

"Iglloo" in addition to its accurate and intimate character is the most exciting picture ever made in the Arctic.

TO THE VOTERS OF IOSCO COUNTY

I wish to express my sincere appreciation for the assistance given me during my campaign for the office of county clerk and to offer congratulations to my successful opponent.

Allie A. Bigelow.

THANK YOU

Although I was defeated, I wish to thank you all for the support that was given me. I am very grateful for your consideration.

John A. Mielock.

The largest number of votes since the primary was adopted was cast at last Tuesday's election in this county. Nearly 2,700 people indicated their interest in county and state affairs by going to the polls. After all the votes were counted, notwithstanding some very spirited contests, the men in office continued to hold their place on the Republican ticket by the endorsement of substantial majorities with the exception of for the office of county road commissioner. Here Ernest Crego won against five other contesting candidates, including the incumbent in office, Harry Van Patten.

In the fight for governor Isosco county gave Wilber M. Brucker a substantial lead over his closest rival, Wm. McKeighan. Brucker received 1341 votes, McKeighan 890, and Welsh 438.

Luren Dickinson, candidate for lieutenant governor, led his competitors with a vote of 1384.

Roy O. Woodruff was an easy victor with a vote of 1671. Holbrook received 786 votes.

In this county Carpenter defeated Karcher for the state senate with a vote of 1387 to 1039. Holbeck led MacGillivray with a vote of 1368 and 1112 for the state legislature. Carpenter and Holbeck received substantial majorities throughout their districts.

Although there were no county candidates a considerable number of votes were cast on the Democratic ticket. Wm. Comstock, candidate for governor, received a majority of the votes.

The following is an unofficial tabulation of the vote for the county offices:

WARREN WILLIAM HEADS "SKYSCRAPER SOULS" CAST

"Skyscraper Souls," a spectacular drama in which the lives of thousands of persons who work in New York's largest building serve as a kaleidoscopic background, will show Sunday and Monday, September 18-19, at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, with Warren William and Maureen O'Sullivan heading an outstanding cast.

The skyscraper in this film contains all the features to be found in the modern tall building. In the basement are Roman baths where busy capitalists can "steam out" the effects of the preceding night's revels. The ground floor houses a bank, a drug store, smart shops. On various floors are to be found a stock broker's quarters, a diamond merchant's suite, a wholesale dress-importing house.

High up is a cafe overlooking the city, the private apartment of the owner of the building, and in the tower, 102 stories up, is a radio broadcasting station. And they all play an important part in the action of the drama.

Together with Warren William and Maureen O'Sullivan, the cast of "Skyscraper Souls" includes Gregory Ratoff, Anita Page, Verree Teasdale, Norman Foster, George Barbier and Jean Hersholt.

Respectfully yours,
John A. Stewart.

NOTICE TO ALL TEACHERS AND SCHOOL OFFICERS

There will be a county teachers' institute Monday, September 19, at the Court House in Tawas City, beginning at 9:00 A. M., E. S. T. All teachers in the county are expected to attend and entitled to their regular salary for the day.

All school officers are also invited, and anyone else interested in school work.

Margaret E. Worden,
County School Commissioner.

WHITTEMORE HIGH SCHOOL HAS ENROLLMENT OF 104

The Whittemore public schools opened on September sixth with larger enrollments in both grades and high school. The enrollment in the high school is 104, an increase of twenty per cent over that of last year. There are one hundred and thirty-one enrolled in the grades.

Nearly all of last year's teachers are back this year. Mrs. Duncan Valley teaches the primary room; Mrs. Alfretha Brookins has the elementary grades; and Russell Rollin, the only new teacher in the system, teaches the intermediate room. If he has as much success in basketball as he is having in the school room, neighboring schools will not find the Whittemore squad one that could be used only for a practice game.

In the high school, Howard Switzer again has charge of all mathematics and agriculture; Mrs. Horace Powell teaches Freshman English and all history; Mrs. Harry Hill has Latin and speech classes, and F. L. Stelter, science and civics.

Both teachers and students were pleasantly surprised upon returning after the summer's vacation to find the entire building redecorated. All of the walls and ceilings have been repainted, woodwork repainted and varnished, new shades installed, new seats placed in the senior high assembly, more books added to the library, more equipment added to the science laboratories, and new laboratory tables installed in the physics and chemistry laboratory. The school building is now as trim in the interior as on the exterior.

The high school is now nearly filled to capacity. We are proud of the fact that fifty-four students from other districts have chosen Whittemore as the school where they wish to receive their high school work and diplomas. Thirty-three seniors will receive diplomas next spring.

Our goal has been reached. Parents, teachers and townspeople have worked for the past five years to give Whittemore a school which would be outstanding because of its size and academic rating. Let us not now cease to work for that school, feeling that there is nothing more to do. When we cease to make progress, we slide backward and the results of our previous labors are lost. Let's feel this way. Another school year is before us. We are needed by our school. Let's pull together.

TO THE VOTERS OF IOSCO COUNTY

I desire to thank the voters of Isosco County for their wonderful vote of confidence given me at the polls on Tuesday last, which resulted in my obtaining the nomination for prosecuting attorney of Isosco County. To receive such a majority as I obtained is indeed gratifying and I promise the people that if elected I shall perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability, fairly and impartially to all and with due regard to the interests of the taxpayers of Isosco County.

Respectfully yours,
John A. Stewart.

JOHN GILBERT AS ROMANTIC ROGUE IN NEWEST FILM

"Downstairs," which introduces John Gilbert to his screen fans in a startling new departure as a sinister but colorful villain, is the attraction coming Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 20-21-22, to the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

"Downstairs" is a tense drama laid in the servants' quarters of a European castle with Gilbert, as a chauffeur, spreading a web of intrigue that enmeshes the entire household until a fantastic revenge ends his plotting.

Virginia Bruce, whose betrothal to Gilbert was announced during the making of the picture, plays the heroine as the maid and Paul Lukas enacts the avenging butler who lures the philandering chauffeur to a terrible doom.

Hedda Hopper is seen as a countess with whom the chauffeur has an affair; Reginald Owen plays the baron in whose ancestral castle the dramatic events are laid; Olga Bacalova plays the pleasure-loving baroness and Bodil Kosing has the role of the love-starved cook whose life savings are stolen by the unprincipled chauffeur.

IOSCOS DEFEAT MIKADO TEAM; SCORE 11-4

The Isosco County Independents continued their winning ways last Sunday by defeating the strong Mikado team, 11 to 4, at Sand Lake. The battle was a stiff one until the sixth, when the Ioscos put the game on ice by scoring seven runs, followed by three in the seventh and another in the eighth.

The pitching of C. Frank, Isosco hurler, was the outstanding feat of the game. He allowed but six hits and struck out six. Failor and Lane, Mikado pitchers, struck out eight men, but were nicked for 11 solid blows by the Ioscos.

"AROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY MINUTES" AT STATE

A new type of film entertainment is being evolved. Douglas Fairbanks, who captured the imagination of the film public with the fantastic romance and adventure of such films as "The Thief of Bagdad," "Three Musketeers" and "Robin Hood," is introducing the newest innovation at the State Theatre on Sunday only.

Doug's idea is to bring the colorful spectacle of his former films into the field of real life adventure. The first of his essays along this line is his "Around the World in 80 Minutes with Douglas Fairbanks," a United Artists picture.

Several months of questing in the remote places of China, Japan, Siam, Indo-China and India are compressed into the approximately 10,000 feet of experiences and adventures which comprise his new film. Only those events which are the most unusual and absorbing to the imagination have been retained, and the narrative is told in a humorous vein which takes it out of the field of a travelogue and makes it a new and distinctive type of entertainment.

In the current film Doug is the hero of numerous episodes which entail danger and the exercise of that athletic agility for which he is famous. It is an attempt to get into camera focus the dramatic panorama which won such high acclaim for "Grass," "Chang" and similar films. But the Fairbanks films also seeks to embody the life and manners of the people of foreign lands, showing how they live, rich and poor, famous and humble.

SUCH IS LIFE—Ingenious Junior!

RISK CONCERNS HIT HARD BY LOST AND STOLEN GEMS

$60,000,000 in Gems Lost or Stolen in Year.

New York.—These are sad times for insurance adjusting companies that investigate loss or reported loss of jewelry. The insurance companies, it seems, are having to pay and pay and pay—more so than ever before in the history of the business.

It is estimated that from $55,000,000 to $60,000,000 worth of jewelry was reported lost or stolen last year and in nearly all of the cases the claims were paid. The percentage of recovery was just about one-tenth of 1 per cent.

But that is not all. The number of false claims is greater than ever before and in the majority of cases the companies have to pay just the same, being unable to obtain positive proof of fraud, even though the circumstances are suspicious.

Many Cases Frauds. An executive of an adjusting company in John street—a company that represents fourteen of the largest insurance companies in the world—says at least 90 per cent of the reported disappearance of jewelry in 1931 was false.

Such losses fall in the category of "mysterious disappearances" of jewelry, and last year saw an increase of about 50 per cent in the number of these strange, inexplicable disappearances, claims totaling approximately $600,000 for the country at large. Most losses, however, were reported in New York city.

"As I said, we have reason to believe that at least 90 per cent of such claims are false," said the executive, who asks that his name be not used, "but we seldom are able to prove the fraud so we try to effect a compromise to avoid litigation."

Old man Depression, who never is let out of anything these days, gets the blame.

"Most of the losses are reported by persons at one time wealthy," the executive explained, "but who have had reverses. Ever so often we get claims of losses almost immediately after serious reverses in business. Such cases look suspicious on the face of them nine times out of ten, but, as usual, proof is lacking, so we pay."

In only one case the company handled last year did the claimant, a woman, confess fraud. Her reported loss was investigated so persistently and she was questioned so thoroughly that she finally willed and admitted her jewels were nesting in a vault, safe from loss. The claim was dropped and the insurance company obligingly forgot to prosecute.

In addition to the "mysterious" losses, this particular company handled claims totaling close to $1,000,000 as the result of holdups and burglaries in 1931. This represents an increase of about 75 per cent over 1930.

"Claims have been falling off steadily this year," the executive continued, "mainly because so many were pressed in 1931. Last year we were getting an average of 160 claims a month. People once wealthy became hard up. Suddenly their jewelry disappeared. In most cases there were suspicious circumstances, but in the absence of proof we had to pay."

"You see, most jewelry policies are written to insure against any sort of loss, and losses are difficult to check up. A woman can say she accidentally dropped her bracelet from a ferry-boat. What can we do? How can we prove that she did not? We have to pay the claim."

Another unusual aspect of the business since the depression is that almost invariably those who have supposedly lost their jewelry refuse offers of replacement. They want cash. The companies usually offer to replace the lost or stolen jewelry, but last year only 5 per cent of the claimants accepted the offer.

POTPOURRI

Snakes

There are approximately 2,000 different kinds of snakes. They range in size from five inches to the huge tropical reptiles of forty feet. They inhabit all regions of the globe except the polar. Animal life is their chief food, but some exist on eggs. Most species reproduce by laying eggs, although some give birth to their young.

PENITENCE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Late Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"Repent," the prophets in Holy Writ were wont to advise sinners, and that was the cry of John, the forerunner of the Great Teacher.

Penitence, I suppose, is sorrow for sin committed, human regret that one has violated moral law. It has always been interesting to me that a call to repentance has usually been strengthened by a statement of the penalty which would fall if the sinner failed to change his point of view.

It is sorrow, then, for the offense against law or is it fear of the consequences which is most often the impelling motive to repentance? I should not want to say.

Warner who had really been brought up very well and who had never been in any real need of money, was caught forging various checks. He was apprehended, arrested, and put in jail. His father came to see me to adjust such matters as could be adjusted.

"The boy is very penitent," he said. "His stay in jail has given him time to think what his conduct is leading him to, and he is sorry, I assure you, for what he has done."

"Is he sorry," I asked, "for what he has done, or is he humiliated by the fact that he has been detected in a rather crude violation of law, and for the legal and social consequences which he is facing?"

"I don't know," the father replied. "Maybe if he had never been caught he would never have been sorry."

Jenson, who was working by the hour, got into a straitened financial situation. He needed money and so devised the system of marking up his hours when he handed in his time check. The thing was detected shortly, as such things are sure to be.

"I am thoroughly ashamed of what I have done," he said to his employer, "and more sorry than I can tell you. I have hardly slept or eaten since my crime has been discovered."

"Would you have lain awake at night, and would you have been sorry if you had not been found out?" he was asked, and he didn't know.

True penitence is sorrow for sin—not sorrow for having been discovered.

RARE LEE PHOTOS NOW IN MUSEUM

Famous West Virginia Cottage Made Shrine.

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.—Two rare photographs of Gen. Robert E. Lee and his wife, Mary Custis Lee, have been received here as the result of a nation-wide search for memorabilia of General Lee to be exhibited in the President's cottage at White Sulphur Springs.

The photograph of Mrs. Lee, granddaughter of Martha Washington, is hand-tinted and decorated by herself, and that of General Lee bears his signature. Both photographs were hand-tinted and signed as gifts from the Lees to Mrs. Susan F. Pendleton, a close friend of General and Mrs. Lee.

The photographs were acquired from a direct descendant of Mrs. Pendleton. Together with other recently discovered memorabilia of General Lee, they will form a part of the exhibit of early American Presidents, generals and statesmen which will be available to the public in the President's cottage which has been turned into a museum.

For the purpose the President's cottage has been completely restored. In the old White Sulphur barroom Patrick Henry declaimed against Colonial oppression, and Presidents Jefferson, Madison and Monroe made journeys here by horseback and stage to talk national politics with the great men of their day.

The President's cottage was built in 1816, and upon President Van Buren's visit to White Sulphur in 1837

By Charles Sughroe

he took his residence in the cottage and went for a deer hunt, together with his secretary and a group of politicians from Washington.

The cottage was thenceforth known as the President's cottage, and was successively occupied by Presidents Tyler, Fillmore, Pierce and Buchanan. When Presidents Grant and Arthur arrived they were housed nearby in one of a row of cottages known as "Baltimore Row."

French Poilu Faces a Diet of Sardines

Paris.—The word "sardine" may in the near future be greeted by the French soldier with epithets similar to those which "plum and apple" used to provoke from his British comrade.

The sardine trade has been in difficulties for some time, and those who are suffering from this depression have been inspired by the idea that the army ought to save the situation.

An influential delegation has asked the commissariat department to insinuate more and more of the oily little fish into the diet of the poilu. Nothing definite has yet been settled, but the case for the depopulation is, roughly, that a big consumption of sardines by the military would be good both for the military and the industry.

Dorothy's Mother Proves Claim

Children don't ordinarily take to medicines but here's one that all of them love. Perhaps it shouldn't be called a medicine at all. It's more like a rich, concentrated food.

It's pure, wholesome, sweet to the taste and sweet in your child's little stomach. It builds up and strengthens weak, puny, underweight children, makes them eat heartily, brings the roses back to their cheeks, makes them playful, energetic, full of life. And no bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, fretful baby or child ever failed to respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup on their little bowels. It starts lazy bowels quick, cleans them out thoroughly, tones and strengthens them so they continue to act normally, of their own accord.

Millions of mothers know about California Fig Syrup from experience. A Western mother, Mrs. J. G. Moore, 119 Cliff Ave., San Antonio, Texas, says: "California Fig Syrup is certainly all that's claimed for it. I have proved that with my little Dorothy. She was a bottle baby and very delicate. Her bowels were weak. I started her on Fig Syrup when she was a few months old and it regulated her, quick. I have used it with her ever since for colds and every little set-back and her wonderful condition tells better than words how it helps."

Don't be imposed on. See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name, "California" so you'll get the genuine, famous for 50 years.

Beet Sugar

The first factory for the manufacture of sugar from beets was erected by Edward Lee Church at Northampton, Mass., in 1838, and the following year it produced 1,300 pounds of sugar. A few other factories followed, but all were failures. In 1870, E. L. Dyer erected at Alvarado, Calif., a factory which became successful in 1879 and marked the beginning of the modern sugar-making from sugar beets.

Indian Chiefs Give Woodcock Water

When Colonel Woodcock, federal director of prohibition, made a visit recently to Glacier National park he was greeted by a group of Blackfoot Indian chiefs; and though he was thirsty and warm, all they gave him to drink was a cup of sparkling spring water from the "Land of the Shining Mountains." Left to right with the colonel in the photograph are George Bull Child, Owen Heavy Breast, Mike Short Man and Theodore Last Star.

TALES OF THE CHIEFS

By Editha L. Watson

TWO GUNS WHITE CALF

Those who think that the day of the Indian is done, and picture him as a pathetic misfit, slowly fading into the sunset, should visit the Blackfeet and their chief, Two Guns White Calf.

Here is the most traveled Indian in the world today, and the best known. His father, White Calf, the last lineal chief of the Blackfeet, was a warm friend of President Roosevelt, and it was during a visit to him in Washington that the Great Spirit summoned him. President Roosevelt sent the body of White Calf back to his people in a private car, with a military escort—honors which the Blackfeet deeply appreciated.

Two Guns did not choose to shine by his father's light. He could have made a wistful figure as the son of the last great chief, living in the glories of the past. But Two Guns is a modern. There is, he finds, a great deal to interest an Indian in the present day, and he intends to see and learn all about it. For the last twenty years, the famous Blackfoot has been enjoying a unique life, for an Indian, and no doubt he will continue to do so.

In 1912, a group of Indians, of which Two Guns was one, went East. The striking appearance of the chief attracted instant attention, and his unusual mental qualities brought him to the fore as a man well worth featuring. The band was quartered in tipis on the roof of a New York hotel, then the highest hotel building in the world, and crowds poured up to see the picturesque folk and their especially picturesque leader, who was as much at home on the skyscraper roof as he was in his own camp by the peaceful lake.

Two Guns was the first Indian to go up in a plane. During this eastern trip, he was taken up in a hydroplane at Dodd's Ferry, on the Hudson. As the spirits of dead and gone Blackfeet watched from their happy hunting grounds in the Land Beyond, were they outraged at his daring? I doubt it; more probably, they nodded their ghostly heads in approval, and said, "He is our own brave son—a true Blackfoot."

Queen Marie of Rumania, during her American visit, stopped to greet Two Guns on his reservation. Surely no more striking picture than this could be imagined: the gracious royal lady and the stately and striking Indian chief, exchanging courtesies to the music of drum-beats, before a background of tipis, war-bonnets, and pinto ponies. It is not recorded that Two Guns lacked one whit of the poise of his queenly guest.

September 17, 1927, found this most sophisticated Indian at the White House. The Great White Father, President Coolidge, and the great red chief, Two Guns, met as leaders of their people should meet—ceremonially and with courtesy. Presidents and chiefs have met before, it is true, since the days of Washington, but never before has their meeting been on such equal terms.

There is nothing of the taciturn Indian of legend about Two Guns White Calf. The chief has a ready sense of humor, and enjoys a hearty laugh, even at his own expense. He likes to meet people, and to be in large gatherings, and he naturally dominates any crowd.

Unusual in his character as Two Guns is, in appearance he is the typical Indian. His head reminds one of a buffalo's. His strikingly fine physique, garbed in the picturesque clothing of his tribe, is an eye-filling sight. His good-nature does not disguise the strength of character which one feels is his chief attribute.

Examine a buffalo nickel, and compare it with the photograph. While the Indian head shown on the coin is a composite picture, the likeness to Two Guns is apparent. He might have been the "invisible model" for the head—evidently he stood out strikingly in the artist's mind.

And it is fitting that Two Guns's likeness should adorn the coin. The old order has changed, and only a modern Indian, alive to the interests of the modern world, would represent the first families of America at the present day. He represents the new Indian, who is taking his place in the sun, alert to the opportunities around him, ambitious and successful.

Date of Winged Victory

That famous treasure of the Louvre in Paris, the great headless figure of a woman known as the "Nike," or "Winged Victory of Samothrace," is now believed by a German scholar to have been a votive statue by a sculptor living in the decade 190 to 180 B. C., according to a report from Berlin in the Art News. The dispatch states further that this scholar, Prof. Hermann Thiersch of Gottingen, has further identified it as the work of a sculptor named Potkirkto, who lived upon the island of Rhodes.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
BILLY MINK'S MISTAKE

PETER RABBIT had been quite right about Billy Mink. Billy was hungry. He was especially hungry for a dinner of tender young birds. He had eaten fish until he felt as if he would turn into a fish himself. He was tired of fish and wanted a change. I guess you know how he felt. No matter how fond of a thing we may be there comes a time when our stomachs grow tired of it. This is true even of candy and ice cream when we have too much of them. And it was just that way with Billy Mink.

When he had started out that morning Billy had had no particular plan. He just trusted to luck to find something besides fish to eat. He had stopped at the Smiling Pool to pass the time of day with Jerry Muskrat, and it was while he was there that he had noticed Rattles the Kingfisher flying down the Laughing Brook with a tiny fish in his bill. It wasn't long before he was back watching for another fish, and when he caught it he took it off down the Laughing Brook. This was enough for Billy Mink. He knew right away what it meant. It

SEVERAL GOOD THINGS

SALAD dressings are a food accessory which we find a daily necessity and when one presents one that is different we hail it with joy.

Sour Cream Dressing.

Mix together one tablespoonful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper and one-half cupful of vinegar. Stir until smooth. Add one cupful of sour cream, stir over water in a double boiler until it begins to boil. Remove from the fire immediately. If sour milk is used add two tablespoonfuls of olive oil and cook as above.

Veal a la King.

Take two pounds of lean veal, cut into cubes about one inch square. Add water to cover after it has been well browned in one-fourth cupful of butter. Add six medium-sized carrots, two onions, one sweet pepper—all minced; one bay leaf, four cloves and cook until the meat is tender. Keep enough water to make a pint of liquor during the cooking. Add one quart of scalded sweet cream thickened as for gravy, add one can of mushrooms cut fine and one can of sifted peas. Season to taste with salt and paprika and serve on noodles.

A dainty and pretty as well as an easy dessert is prepared thus: Bake small cupcakes, cover with thin slices of candy bar—any with or without nuts. Pour a hot custard over them or a lemon sauce. Serve hot or cold. Cut cake into layers with sliced candy bar between, serve with whipped cream or any desired sauce.

St. Louis Has Colony of Clay-Eaters

IN ST. LOUIS, MO., there has been discovered a colony of clay-eaters. Their source of supply is an ideal clay mound about which they gather to scoop it up and consume it. They claim that they do not eat it because of hunger but because it leaves a pleasant "tang" in the mouth and is a desirable food. Persons of various ages admit eating this clay and some have done it for years. This particular mound is most favorable because its clay is not gritty. Our photograph shows two youngsters sampling the clay.

meant that somewhere down the Laughing Brook was a home with babies in it. The very thought made Billy's mouth water. He cut his visit with Jerry Muskrat short and started down the Laughing Brook.

Now, unlike Peter Rabbit, Billy knew just what to look for, and where to look for it. He knew all about the ways of Rattles the Kingfisher, and just what kind of a place he would choose for a home, and he didn't have a doubt of being able to find it. But he took precious good care not to let Rattles the Kingfisher catch a glimpse of him. He knew that if Rattles once saw him going down the Laughing Brook he would mount guard over his home, and Billy was of no mind to face that sharp, spear-like bill which Rattles possesses. So whenever he heard Rattles coming, Billy hid until the way was clear once more.

You remember that Billy was hiding right near the sandbank where Rattles had made his home at the time Peter Rabbit, watching from the opposite shore, discovered it. All that Peter saw Bill Mink saw, too. He saw the little hole close up under the edge of the high sandbank where the grasses hung over and partly hid it. He saw Rattles go in and come out again. And when he swam across to the foot of the bank and tested the air with his keen little nose he smelled young kingfishers. Before he had made up his mind just what to do he heard Rattles returning, and once more hid. The instant Rattles departed again for another tiny fish for those hungry babies, Billy scrambled up the bank. There was no time to lose. He wanted to get those babies and get away before Rattles should return. He had nothing to fear from the little kingfishers, they would be quite helpless and harmless.

So Billy scrambled up the sandbank and into the hole. The instant he got his head inside he forgot everything but the feast he would have, for his nose told him that way way back at the end of a long hall was a nestful of young birds. If he had stopped to smell a little more carefully that nose of his might have told him something else. But he was so eager that he didn't stop to find out all that his nose might have told him. That was where he made a mistake—a very great mistake. If he had heeded his nose he would have remembered something which he had quite forgotten in his greedy haste. He would have remembered that he hadn't seen anything of Mrs. Rattles, and Mrs. Rattles carries quite as big and sharp a bill as does Rattles himself.

But Billy had forgotten all about this and in his greedy haste pushed in along that narrow hall where there wasn't room to turn around. It was a mistake, a very great mistake. Half way to the nest at the end of that long hall Billy found it out.

EACH HAS HIS PLACE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE sea looks up to the hills,
The hills look down to the sea,
Each looks upon the place it fills
And thinks the other free.
The waters ebb and flow,
The slaves of wind and tide;
The mountains may not move, and so
They are dissatisfied.

The ocean longs to rest,
The hills to wander far,
Though each is serving God its best,
As men and all things are.
Yet men grow discontent,
And envious, and sad;
So many a weary hour is spent,
An hour that might be glad.

I know not what the case,
Your duty sea or hill,
But this I know: it is a place
That no one else can fill.
Each has some task to do,
Each has some thing to be—
You look at me, I look at you,
And think the other free.

POULTRY FACTS

NO GREAT PROFIT IN RAISING CAPONS

Inadvisable to Rear Chicks for Meat Alone.

Claims for rapid and great increase in weight after caponizing cockerels are disputed by experiment stations that have investigated them. A bulletin from the Cornell experiment station quotes the Maryland State College of Agriculture as having found that the rate of growth of cockerels and capons compared very closely up to the time of the maturity of the cockerels, the cockerels being slightly more efficient in the use of food. After maturity was reached, this relation was reversed, the capons becoming slightly more efficient. The same results were obtained at Cornell. The Illinois station found that up to 46 weeks there was little difference in the growing of capons and cockerels.

The Cornell statement with regard to this continues with the cautionary paragraph. "Apparently the extravagant claims have not been founded upon facts. . . . Under most New York state conditions it is not advisable to attempt to raise capons for the New York wholesale market. . . . However, in localities where a special trade can be built up and premium prices obtained it may be profitable to produce them. . . . A plump, juicy capon cannot be excelled by any poultry for fine table quality, and doubtless many poultrymen continue to produce them primarily for home use." This seems to correspond with the opinions of numerous poultry keepers who have tried producing capons for the wholesale markets and have found that feed costs have been too great to permit any great profit in the raising of fowls for meat alone.—Rural New-Yorker.

Vitamins That Affect

Food Value of the Egg

Eggs from chickens fed a ration full of vitamins A and D are better food than eggs from chickens fed rations less rich in these vitamins.

Recent experiments in Ohio indicate that the amount of vitamin A and D supplied to the bird is directly reflected in the vitamin content of the eggs produced. Thus, in feeding his hens to maintain their health, the poultryman is feeding for eggs of better quality and more worth.

A ration for hens rich in vitamins would contain yellow corn, alfalfa leaf meal, or a high grade cod liver oil.

Vitamin D prevents rickets and assists with the building of bone. Vitamin A builds resistance to diseases and infections.—Dakota Farmer.

Poultry Outlook

The summary of the program for poultry as outlined in the "Agricultural Outlook for 1932," and published by Iowa State college, is, in our judgment, sound advice.

"Most farmers with general flocks adapted to both meat and egg production might well hold their production plans to about the same volume as last year and put further emphasis on proper feeding, careful flock management and selling on a graded basis. Graded selling of eggs becomes increasingly important with the marked expansion in the competition between frozen eggs and the lower grades of cold storage eggs."—Wallace's Farmer.

Separate Ducks and Hens

Ducks, chickens and turkeys have quite different habits and requirements; therefore they should be kept separate in order to be profitable and healthy. If ducks and chickens are confined to the same run it will soon be found that the webbed feet of the ducks treading on the droppings will make the run very insanitary for the fowls, and any contagious disease breaking out would be quickly communicated to the entire flock.

Turkeys must be provided with space for exercise, and fresh air and should be kept in a fairly cold, dry atmosphere.

Moist Ration Best

Mixing a part of the dry mash with milk until it is moistened to a crumbly state greatly increases the palatability of the poultry ration. Experiments with flocks of the same breed kept under exactly the same conditions and fed the same rations, except that a part of the ration was fed wet in one case and in the other case all of it was dry, showed an increase in production during the year of 24 eggs per bird, a matter no poultry raiser can afford to overlook.

When to Start Culling

Culling should begin when the eggs are selected for incubation and continue until the birds are disposed of, a University of Minnesota bulletin points out. Only strong, vigorous, healthy chicks should be placed in the brooding pens. Pullets put into winter quarters should be carefully selected as to factors bearing on their usefulness, and throughout the laying year, hens that developed physical weakness, or are late, or irregular, producers should be removed.

DAIRY

NON-PAYING COWS TURNED INTO BEEF

Action Brightens Future of Dairy Markets.

By C. S. RHODE, Dairy Extension Specialist, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Paving the way to stronger markets and better prices for dairy products, members of Illinois dairy herd improvement associations are culling their cows at a record rate, thus reducing heavy surpluses of milk.

It is estimated that more than 20,000,000 pounds of milk will be kept off the market this year if culling continues at the rate it has been going during the first five months. In that time members of dairy herd improvement associations have culled out nearly 10 per cent of their cows and sold them for beef. At that rate almost a fourth of the cows in the herds of members will be culled during the year, a much heavier than normal rate.

There are approximately 1,400 dairymen, the owners of more than 20,000 cows, who are members of the 55 dairy herd improvement associations now functioning in the state. They are organized by the extension service of the agricultural college to teach farmers up-to-date methods of feeding, breed and management and other practices which will enable them to market their dairy products to greater advantage.

Rigid culling which the members are now doing is expected to raise the already high efficiency of their herds. It is estimated that if the average cow in the state were as efficient as the average of the dairy herd improvement association cows that present production could be maintained with 407,000 less cows, and herd owners would have $20,000,000,000 more to show for their work.

Benefits of the culling are indicated in the case of a Tazewell county dairyman who got rid of 11 cows, or more than a third of his 32-cow herd. He put 37,972 pounds less milk and 1,334 pounds less fat on the market the following year. The herd of 21 cows returned $985.43 more above cost of feed than the 32 cows had the year before.

Canadians Make Claim for World's Record Cow

Some United States dispatches have recently been received which credit a Holstein cow owned and bred in Minnesota with a world's record for combined milk and butter production in 365 days. Lady Pride Pontiac Lieuwkeje, owned by F. E. Murphy, Breckenridge, Minn., gave 35,629 pounds of milk and 1,273 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.57 per cent. Such a combined production is outstanding and indicates that efforts to raise the standards of the Holstein breed are continuing in spite of conditions. However, Canadians can still point with pride to the world's record for butterfat production, which is still held by that famous cow, DeKof Plus Segis Dixie, owned by Raymondale farm, Vaudreuil, Que. Dead some three years now, her production of 1,384 pounds of butterfat in one year seems likely to remain unchallenged for some years yet.—Montreal Family Herald.

Effect of Feed on Milk

Much experimental feeding of dairy cows has been done at various times to determine to what extent the composition of milk is influenced by the character of the ration fed. In a general way investigators are agreed that the nature of the feed a cow is fed does not change the composition of the milk. If a cow is given too little protein, for example, she will draw upon her body protein so long as that is possible to make up for the deficiency in that constituent in her ration. When that can no longer be done the quantity of the milk falls off to a point that can be maintained by the protein supplied in the feed. But the composition of the milk itself remains constant.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Acreage for Each Cow

The acreage allowed per cow depends to a great extent upon the productivity of the soil, but on good land one-half an acre will produce sufficient feed for spring grazing and will also leave a good amount of material to cut for hay or to turn under for soil improvement. A fertile soil, however, is necessary for best results in any pasture and this should be fertilized with from four to five hundred pounds of a complete high grade fertilizer. With proper fertilization and the addition of two tons of ground limestone one acre will furnish sufficient grazing for two animals.

What They Do in Oregon

Many dairy farmers have not yet learned the value of a dairy herd improvement association, but here are some who have. The Klamath association of Oregon found itself unable to continue testing this year. The 11 dairymen left after reorganization had only enough time to keep a tester busy half time, so in order to keep the association going they arranged to employ him on their farms at regular farm wages during the other two weeks of each month.

The farmers are filling silos. Sam Hutchinson is on the sick list.

Ernest Crego was at Flint on business the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brown were Sunday visitors at her parental home.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Thompson and children of Prescott spent Sunday at the home of his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Sherman were at Bay City Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thompson, Cecil Watts and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Laffer attended the fair at Saginaw Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Robinson and children of Reno, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Barker and son, Bruce Lee, of Elkhart, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur White of Prescott camped at Sage Lake last week.

Bonus in "Contract"
In progressive contract, a game is made when one side bids and makes a trick score of 100 points or more in one hand. In addition to the trick score the premium for game is 300 points if not vulnerable and 500 points if vulnerable. The side having the higher score after four deals gets a bonus of 250. If both sides have exactly the same score, each of the four players receives a bonus of 25 points.

Not a Chance
One thing, though, we've never heard of an absent-minded professor who was so absent-minded as to mark an absent student present, or to give a high mark to a flunker. There's a limit to everything.

Criticism of the Flea
Recent laboratory experiments show that a flea can live 62 days without food. The trouble with the fleas I have met is they don't seem to know their own strength.—Detroit News.

Early Wall Decoration
Inhabitants in ancient Pompeii were specialists in wall decoration, painting their plastered walls in rich, flat tones and in decorative medallions.

Guarding the Vatican
The pope requires a small army to guard the Vatican, and for centuries past Swiss guards have been employed for the purpose.

Curio From St. Kilda
Among a collection of curios from the storm-swept isle of St. Kilda is a puffin snare, which is spoken of as a very beautiful piece of native workmanship, and must have taken a very long time to make.

"Times That Try Men's Souls"
The author of this expression was Thomas Paine. During the Revolutionary war, soon after the British captured Philadelphia, and when the cause of independence was shrouded in gloom, Paine, who was a spirited champion of independence, wrote in "The American Crisis," "These are times that try men's souls."

Archives in Bakehouse
The city of Madrid keeps its archives in the old royal bakehouse, built in 1672. The oldest document dates from 1142 and refers to the privilege granted by Alfonso VII to the city council to rule the land and mountains between Madrid and Segovia.

SCHOOL NOTES

Music and Art Notes
The Girls' Glee Club has a membership of thirty-two selected voices. We have practically an equal number of voices in each of the four sections, first and second soprano and first and second alto.

The Boys' Glee Club has a total membership of twenty-five voices. The voices were tested separately and divided into classes of eight each in the first and second tenor and first bass sections.

An aim of the glee clubs is to work on music of various types, so that at the end of the semester we may be able to give an interesting musical program, consisting of music of the following classes: Religious and Negro spirituals; classical, modern, semi-classical, humorous; and songs taken from our great American collection of songs, such as sea songs, patriotic songs, college songs, and home songs.

The high school Art class has already been working on a new project which greatly improves our music and art room. The class of twelve members has designed and made new drapes for the windows. These curtains are made of heavy, tan wrapping paper, and the designs are worked out with colored paper of two colors. This has been an interesting task, because we have found how cozy a room can be made with no cost at all.

The class hopes to develop a really artistic room with the atmosphere of an art room. The work of the year will be put up for inspection on the walls of the room.

During the course of the year the class will learn to handle many new kinds of art materials and how they apply to practical uses in the home. Among the materials to be used will be show-card colors which we use in poster work. In our study of poster work, we hope to exhibit the finished product in different windows around town, that the public may know and see what we are doing.

Art in the grades will be carried out partially in conjunction with the grade teacher. Class projects are already underway.

In the first grade, we have been weaving paper rugs, using the three primary colors for our color scheme.

In the second grade, we are studying how to draw human figures.

In the third and fourth grades, we are studying the color chart and how we mix different intensities of a color.

In the fifth and sixth grades we are making geography note book covers.

In the junior high school we have been studying design.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
The following pupils from the seventh grade have had perfect spelling papers since school began: Raymond Boos, Lucille DePotty, Thelma Herman, Grace Hill, William Koepke, and Myrton Leslie. In the eighth grade Betty Holland, Dorothy Nelson and Effie Prescott had perfect papers.

Robert Bradley, from the Pontiac public schools, entered the eighth grade Monday morning, which makes our enrollment twenty in that grade.

The seventh grade geography class is studying about the place in Greenland where the Hutchinson family was wrecked and saved.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
Miss Cowgill, the county nurse, visited our room Tuesday. She inspected the skin and teeth of the pupils and was well pleased with their condition. She also gave out vaccination and immunization cards to be signed by the parents.

We have had no absences in our room so far this year.

June Brown was appointed librarian for this month. Ardith Westcott is board captain.

Betty Davis is keeping track of all the 100 papers in spelling for both grades. The fifth graders are trying to earn more hundreds than the sixth grade. So far they are ahead.

Third and Fourth Grades
The pupils in the fourth grade are studying about the Indians for geography. Some very interesting reports have been given.

We have health inspection every morning. Hugh Prescott is the fourth grade inspector and Peter Pfeiffer the third grade inspector.

We were very sorry that Alvin McCormick couldn't be with us a few days last week. He hurt his arm and was unable to attend school.

Jack Bradley entered the third grade Monday.

Miss Cowgill visited our room Tuesday afternoon.

The third and fourth grade pupils are enjoying their new ball and ball.

A new clock has recently been placed in our room. This was a much needed article.

Primary
Irene Miller entered the first grade Thursday, Ellen Bradley entered Monday, and Genevieve Putnam entered Tuesday.

We now have a total enrollment of 36.

Hugo Wegner was absent several days last week.

Popular Adage
The adage about the pot calling the kettle black is found in many tongues. A Spanish adaptation is: "Said the jackdaw to the crow: Get away, nigger," while in Italy one hears: "The pan says to the kettle: Get away lest you stain me." "The shovel scoffs at the poker," is the way the French put it. Hindus quote: "The colander said to the needle: 'Get away, you have a hole in you.'"

Wen Fame as Aviator
The aviator known as the Flying Parson was Helvin W. Maynard. He was born September 28, 1892. He served with the A. E. F. was discharged from the army May 3, 1920, was appointed a reserve officer June 5, 1921. In 1924 he was killed at Rutland, Vt., in an airplane accident.

Forestry in Europe

France took up forestry only when the destruction of most of her forests was followed by heavy floods and the washing away of her hillsides. Need for wood, says the American Tree association, first caused the Germans to think of forestry, for there, where winters are long and severe, fuel wood is almost as much a necessity as food itself.

"Hog Money"

The money known as "hog money" was coin struck by the colonists in the Bermuda islands about 1616-1618—shillings, sixpence and threepence—are now known as hog money, because they bore the figure of a hog on the obverse side.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by Walter E. Laidlaw and May Laidlaw, his wife, of the Township of Tawas, Isosco County, Michigan, Mortgagees, to Joseph Sempliner of the City of East Tawas, Michigan, Mortgagee, dated the 5th day of August, A. D. 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for the County of Isosco and State of Michigan, on the 6th day of August, A. D. 1919, in Liber 22 of Mortgages, on page 235, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal, interest and taxes, the sum of Six Hundred Ninety Dollars and Thirty-four Cents ($690.34).

No suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan, in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 6th day of December, A. "I WONDER WHY I WASN'T INVITED?"

Youthful, attractive, possessing a charming, vivacious personality... yet Polly seldom is invited on those impromptu, "spur of the moment" parties. For Polly has no telephone at home, and most parties nowadays are arranged the easiest, quickest way... by telephone!

The social advantages, the PROTECTION afforded in emergencies, and the many time- and step-saving ways in which the telephone serves daily, combine to make telephone service invaluable to all the family.

Few things offer so much usefulness and PROTECTION at such little cost as the telephone.

SAVE WITH SIX CYLINDERS

—with more than six you sacrifice economy
—with less than six you sacrifice smoothness

IF YOU'RE careful about the way you spend your dollars for a low-priced car, you'll be extra-careful about the way you count cylinders. Because if you count more than six, you're not going to get the lowest all-round motoring cost that is saving so many thousands of dollars for Chevrolet owners every day.

And if you count less than six—you won't be any better off from a dollars-and-cents standpoint. Six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have, and still get Chevrolet's built-in smoothness. And built-in smoothness saves you money. It guards against the insidious workings of excessive vibration. It holds repair bills down to rock-bottom. So—if the car is a Chevrolet Six—you'll SAVE!

ESPECIALLY AFTER 5,000 MILES

What's more important—you'll keep on saving. There's nothing temporary about Chevrolet economy. It lasts! Especially after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles, when the cost of operating other low-priced cars goes up, Chevrolet's cost stays down. More economical to start with, Chevrolet is more economical still, after long usage!

Best of all: you can save with six cylinders, and not sacrifice one important advancement. You enjoy Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, roomy Fisher bodies. Considering these facts—do you honestly think it's wise—or economical—to keep that old car any longer?

Most Spanish City

Lace Making in Seville.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—YNU Service.

SEVILLE, center for a few hours recently of a royalist uprising, is described as "the most Spanish city of Spain" by many of the visitors who travel down from Madrid and up from Cadiz and come to a brief halt in this famed town of southern Spain, capital of ancient Andalusia, sun-swathed city of spotted shadows, where encroaching modernity seems ever to struggle futilely against the strongly entrenched, if slightly crumbling, glory of long ago.

And perhaps those folk who are wont thus to describe Seville are right. Probably nowhere else in all the Iberian peninsula does one come upon more definite traces of that luxuriant flower that was Old Spain than in this city of a quarter of a million souls, which straggles along the banks of the slow-moving Guadalquivir river.

In Madrid, in Barcelona, in other thriving cities of the North and East, one is in Spain, to be sure; but a Spain revived, cosmopolitan, commercialized. In the high interior, from Caceres to Castellon, one likewise knows Spain; but it is a rural Spain, a credulous, cradled Spain where the simple beauties of blue skies and verdant hillsides are somehow transmitted to one's daily life.

And in the mountain-top towns of the South, crumbled outposts of Moslem might, one finds the Spanish influence still strangely subdued by moldering remnants of the once far-flung Moorish empire.

But Seville is a delightful blend of the romantic past and the busy, quick-moving present. Along smoothly paved streets are churches hoary with age and beside them steel-framed office buildings.

Buried Roman City.

A few miles from Seville the buried Roman city of Italica, of which thus far only the arena has been fully excavated, gives mute, if muddy, evidence of that classic civilization which was in full flower at the birth of the Christian era.

Many of the carved treasures of Italica and of the other Roman ruins in Carmona, nearby, have been collected and may be seen today in the Provincial museum of Seville and in several private homes of the city. The great majority, however, are believed still to lie buried beneath clay coverlets, wherein generations of gnarled olive trees have embedded their roots.

And the Tower of Gold, while slightly grimy from steamboats' funnels in the Guadalquivir river, is not greatly changed from that day in 1220 when the Moorish governor of Seville conspired with the western sun's reflection to give it a name.

But it was the virility of western Christendom, building on the Orient's lavish splendor, that made the Seville of today. Not until mosques were transformed into churches did this city, nestling at the threshold of European civilization, attain its rightful place in the sun. Phoenician, Carthaginian, Roman, Goth, Jew, Saracen, Christian—all collaborated in the making of Seville; but the greatest of these carried a cross.

Their Home Life Is Simple.

It is in the nature of things that the people of Seville should blend in their present lives a little of each of the eventful epochs of the city's past. Each race, in lingering and passing, has left something to the Sevillano, whether it be in language, customs, architecture, or in mere physical characteristics.

Few of these gifts appear uppermost today, however. Many racial threads twine through the tapestry that depicts the life in Seville as it is lived at present; but all of these strands have been happily woven into a fabric wherein is portrayed the glory of the past, the awakened strivings of the present, and a future that is at once promising and undetermined.

The ordinary visitor to Seville learns little about the home life of the Sevillanos, for their home life is a thing apart.

There is no great mystery about it. It is very simple, fulsomely satisfying to its several members, and complete unto itself. It is a taken-for-granted part of existence and seldom enters into the discussions and activities of everyday life.

Foreign admittance thereto is not desired—indeed, is not comprehended—and in fact there is little social intercourse among the families themselves.

Antique dealers are found on every hand. The resurrection and, if the truth must be known, the contemporary manufacture of "antiques" constitute one of the city's leading industries.

Plenty of Antiques.

The score and more of antique shops in Seville have long been the mecca of collectors from all parts of the world, with the result that many tons of old Spanish furniture, iron grilles, paintings by old masters, moth-eaten hangings and draperies, ancestral silk shawls, ceramic tile the secret of whose soft glaze has long since been lost, anciently wrought pottery, and many other highly-prized objects are shipped each year from Seville.

And no doubt many more tons remain to be found, bargained over, and eventually purchased, although it is well for the prospective buyer to remember that clever wormholes do not for antiquity make, nor rust-crusted iron bars for age.

This reflection brings to mind the old story (itself an antique!), heard wherever the sale of antiques has been developed into a fine art. The local version has to do with a young foreign student temporarily sojourning in Seville, who considers himself something of a connoisseur in the matter of old Spanish pottery.

One day he happens to pass the cluttered window of an antique shop and notices there, all but hidden by the bric-a-brac bestrewn the showcase, a certain blue bowl, fascinating despite a thick layer of dust. A moment he studies it, and then, feeling that here indeed is a "find," he straightway goes inside.

But the grizzled old shopkeeper, while gently courteous, is firm withal and refuses to be tempted by an offer of 50 pesetas, declaring with many gesticulations that the price cannot possibly be a centimo below a hundred.

Then weeks of haggling follow, during which time the pride of possession enters deep into the soul of the student, while incidentally the shopkeeper comes down to 75 pesetas.

And, then, just as the youth is on the point of leaving Seville and while he is still debating that extra 25 pesetas, black disaster falls. Two wealthy tourists enter the shop, and from beneath the very nose of the covetous collector carry the blue bowl away in triumph, having without demur paid the original price of 100 pesetas.

His voice trembling with disappointment, the student turns wrathfully on the old shopkeeper. "You sold it for 75! And just as I am leaving, too!"

Reward for a Good Boy.

"You are leaving Seville, senor?" Twinkling old eyes regard blazing ones. "Then, amigo, come with me. You have been a good boy and . . ."

Through a mysterious door at the back of the shop and into an unexpectedly large, well-lighted room, the student is conducted. There, after the old man has carefully unlocked a mammoth cabinet of carved wood and thrown back the doors, are discovered dozens of blue bowls standing in neat and silent companionship, each an exact replica of the "find" in the window.

"Because you have been a good boy and did not tell the people of my lower offer, I have the great honor of presenting you with one of these. No, amigo, you shall not pay. And see, you and I are great friends, no? You say you are leaving Seville tomorrow? Then I shall show you my greatest treasure."

A very small cabinet is thereupon reverently approached, gingerly opened, and nestling on a velvet cushion is an exquisite blue pitcher.

"Quite perfect, is it not, senor, save for that infinitesimal chip out of the lip? But it is old, my friend, centuries old. And I must tell you a very pretty romance about how it received that tiny blemish."

After hearing the story and with difficulty overcoming the old man's dogged resistance, the youth is finally permitted to purchase the pitcher for 75 pesetas, but only because "he has been a good boy."

There is a sequel to the story. The student, returning unexpectedly to Seville some days later and chancing once again to pass the antique shop, beholds there, all but hidden by the jumbled odds and ends of antiquity, sadly forlorn, a little blue pitcher, quite perfect save for a scarcely noticeable blemish in its dust-laden lip!

Buzzard dropped down, swung around. As the plane sailed over a second time, Alan drew the island up to him studying the tent sharply, he saw a movement of the flap-front and distinguished a man's face, upturned, peering at them.

"One bandit there at least! But the others?"

A guess shot into his mind: those others had probably gone hunting for caribou over east at the foute.

As though that watcher there below realized what this ominous circling meant and had become panicky, a puff of white, a single puff, burst from the flap-front. Confident the man was alone and the others were gone, Alan decided to take this bandit alive. He needed information about the others, and information about that pack of furs to clear Dave MacMillan.

While Buzzard circled at a safe distance, he tore a page from a memo book and printed a message:

"If you shoot again, we'll splatter you and that island into the lake with our machine guns. Stand out in the clear. No weapons on you. Don't try any crooked move after we light."

He wrapped the message around a monkey-wrench and handed it to Buzzard. From wartime practice of dropping "eggs" on ammunition dumps and second-trench Flammenwerfer and camouflaged batteries of Krupp 79's east of Verdun, with no aerial sights except two nails and a string along the fuselage, Buzzard was a good judge of speed, altitude and the right split-instant to release. Whirling over the island, a few hundred yards up, he planted the missile within a dozen paces of the flap-front.

As they looked back they saw the man run out to it, read the message, hesitate a moment, and then raise his left arm, waving something white.

A pistol-shot off the island the plane lighted. Buzzard stayed in the machine. Alan and Bill got out the canvas canoe, slipped automatics into their pockets, took rifles prominently in hand and went ashore.

While Bill searched the bandit for a hidden revolver, Alan looked at him curiously. He was a strange character to find in this country. Slant-eyed, his skin olive, he looked as though he had oriental blood in his veins. The rag he had waved in token of surrender was a sling. His right arm dangled limp at his side.

Alan demanded, "Are you the fellow we hit in that fight?"

"Chink" Woolley nodded.

"Are those other men out hunting?" Alan asked. "Or where?"

Woolley batted his eyes slowly, as though taking thought. "Huntin', yes," he managed.

"Which way?"

"Northeast."

"That probably means they went southwest," Alan remarked, and his short laugh was not pleasant. "You lie natural and easy-like, but it won't get by with us. We've nailed too many liars in our time. I want to know who this party of yours is, where they came from, how they got into this country, how they know their way about in it. I want to know how that pack of otter pelts got into Trader MacMillan's storage shed. I want to know the man who killed Jimmy Montgomery there on the Midnight Sun. Now get busy."

He clicked the safety on his automatic and brought his elbow up against his side.

Chink Woolley trembled, his knees shook, he wilted. He guessed that this man must be the Baker fellow, the sergeant terrible, whom Meti Andre always mentioned in lowered voice. Those hypnotic gray eyes seemed to be boring through him. That heavy automatic was tilted to make his next lie the last. And if he turned king's evidence, he might escape the noose.

It was a strange story that Alan and Bill listened to, there on the island in the heart of Many Waters.

Eighteen months ago, on a whaler in Beaufort sea, the five whites, excluding the half-breed Andre whom they picked up later, had "run a buck" under Jensen's instigation, but were overpowered by the captain and rest of the crew. Flung ashore with the skipper's sulphurous good wishes at bleak Demarcation point on the Arctic coast, they made their way across the Romanzoff's to the new placer fields in the Kayukuk headwaters. They came too late to get worthwhile claims; and they discovered, too, that "hawking" in the perpetually-frozen subsoil was even harder work than whaling.

It was Jensen, brooding over their predicament, who conceived the idea that it was easier to find gold which already had been found than to thaw a hole thirty feet down to black sand and bedrock and then maybe get nothing. It was Jensen who allayed their fears and dangled the golden lure in front of their eyes till their mouths watered and they were ready for anything he planned.

Andre the half-breed was a find. He fitted into the party like a key into a lock. They were crassly ignorant of the country; they were tyros when it came to traveling, hiding, living in the bush. But Andre the 'breed was bush-wise as a weasel and water-wise as a muskox mink, and he knew the whole north country from Roes Welcome to Point Barrow as he knew the palm of his hand.

It was Andre who had brought the party into this strange country, by back rivers and untraversed trails, avoiding all sight of men, so that they seemed to have dropped from the sky. It was Andre who suggested the place of attack on the Midnight Sun, and the Thal-Azzah as a place to hide in after the swoop and robbery. And it was 'breed Andre's sharp-speaking Savage that drilled Jimmy Montgomery through the heart.

Alan Baker breathed a little harshly. He ordered, "Describe that 'breed.' And he added, "So there will be no mistake when I meet him."

Woolley described his meti confederate. Alan nodded curtly. After a few moments' silence, he spoke again: "Now about Trader MacMillan. How did that pack of furs get in his shed?"

"Jensen put it there."

"Why?"

Woolley did not know all the details, but from hints Jensen had dropped he was able to piece the story together pretty well.

Several years ago at Hershell island, that gathering place for whalers, Indians, traders, Eskimos and Arctic explorers, Jensen had run afoul of Dave MacMillan. He had come ashore from a whaler, hungry for drink and hungry for woman's company after eight months of following the herds. He had found the drink, and in a whisky haze had started to make rough love to fifteen-year-old Joyce MacMillan.

Dave MacMillan fell upon him. For years now Jensen had been nursing his hairy chin reminiscently where MacMillan's hard fist had caught him; and his ears still rang with the derisive jeers of those who saw him dog-whipped down across the swells and over the shingle to the whaler.

"I'll Not Kill You if You Tell."

He had never forgotten the MacMillan girl nor the incident of that snowy October day. The incident had smoldered in his vengeful soul; and when his party passed the trading post, it had flared out. It was a neat stroke, putting that comparatively worthless bale of furs in the shed of the man who had dog-whipped him. He had counted on the trader discovering them, wondering about them, innocently calling the attention of the police to them, and getting into hot water when he failed to explain how they got there.

The revelation of Dave MacMillan's complete innocence was no surprise to Alan but merely a proof that his and Joyce's instinctive belief had been correct. Now he could know that in buying out of service he had saved the reputation and possibly the very life of Joyce's father. Under Haskell's tyranny he could never have vindicated Dave. In his own way he had planned, and had fought through to this partial triumph.

Writing down the essential points of the confession, he forced Woolley to make his mark on the paper, with himself and Bill as witnesses. He made a second copy for Bill, in case something happened to Bill or him. Then he demanded of Woolley:

"You say those other men went hunting. When are you expecting them back?"

Woolley did not know. He seemed strangely hesitant. Fidgeting uneasily, he would glance up at Alan and then away, as though he had something to tell but was afraid to tell it.

Alan saw his agitation. He demanded: "What're you stumbling over? Cooking up some lie?"

The man wetted his dry twitching lips. "You'll not kill me if I tell you de trut—where dey went? You may can git back dere on de Alooska in time to save de girl."

"On the Alooska—in time to save the girl"—Alan jerked as though a bullet had sung past his throat. His face went suddenly pale. "You mean Joyce MacMillan? What about her? Tell it, or by G—d I'll choke it out of you! Open up. What about her? What do you mean—in time to save her? I'll not kill you if you tell."

Woolley stammered: "Dey went down de Alooska to git her. It's Jensen's idee. He's almin' to take her along on de escape and keep her for himself. He's all burnin' about dat girl. . . ."

His shaky voice trailed off. He shrank back in quivering dread from the expression that had come into Baker's eyes.

For a little while, a few moments only, Alan stared unseeingly out across the waters of the great blue lake. To wait here, until the bandits came back? Not that; they'd be three days and nights on the return trip. . . . Joyce would be helpless all that time, in the power of the man who was "all burnin' about dat girl." They had left only thirty-odd hours ago. He stood a chance of beating them to the trading post. . . .

Whirling on Bill he ordered:

"You stay here. You attended to this end of it. Buzzard and I will attend to the other. We'll go after them in the plane. There's a chance we can get to the trading post before they do. You'll have a rifle extra. They're intending to come back here after the loot. If anything happens to Buzzard and me, you'll be left, you'll have a chance at them. It'll be all up to you."

He turned on his heel and ran down to the canoe and skirled out to the waiting plane.

"Get back to the Alooska, Buzzard! To Joyce's home!" He pleaded busily. "For G—d's sake make it straight and fast!"

No one appeared at the doorway of the trading store. No one, with hair shimmering in the sun, came running down the path to greet them.

Their shouts at the landing brought no answer from a girl's lips or from old Pence. In some measure prepared, Alan called Joyce's name as he strode into the trading hall. He called but once; he looked but once into her room.

Buzzard came running to him with a piece of paper in his hands. His face was lit with elation.

"Alan! Alan! Luckiest thing in our whole d—d lives! Look here, read this! Joyce and old Pence had left! Weren't here when that pack came! Went after caribou! Almost too good to be true!"

Alan grasped the note and read. It was in Joyce's fine swift handwriting. No doubt about that. It stated that she and old Pence had gone to Black Timber lake thirty miles north to get caribou and would be back in two days, in case a patrol happened past.

Alan studied the note for half a minute. His face did not relax.

"Yes, too good to be true," he commented slowly. "Don't you see?—this note is addressed to Constable Larry Younge. Why did Joyce do that? She knows Larry is not patrolling, knows he is at Endurance all shot up; and she knows we know it. Don't you see what she tried to do? It was her only way of telling us that something was wrong. She had to write this note as they dictated it, but she tricked them."

"It's so, it's so," Buzzard agreed. "She tricked them under their very eyes, and counted on us to understand."

From room to room—Joyce's room, her father's, the kitchen, the trading hall, the ground outside—Alan went carefully, noting signs, reading the story of what had happened.

Nothing about the post was disturbed. There were no signs of a struggle or fight. Joyce's light rifle still hung on a peg in her room. Its barrel inside was clean and shiny; the weapon had not been fired. Joyce must have been surprised and overpowered without a chance to fight back.

At the clearing edge Alan found a trampled spot in a thicket where five men had lain and watched. Kneeling down, examining the broken twigs, the wilted leaves, the crushed nettles, he read that all this had happened three hours ago and that the criminals were thirty of forty miles up the spruce-buried Alooska, with Joyce their prisoner.

About the whole post there was only one telltale sign of something dark and sinister. In their hurry to get away, the bandits had overlooked that sign. Beside a stump in the sunlit clearing, Alan picked up old Pence's story-stick. Once or twice he had wondered what they had done with that old white-haired waif. They would not burden themselves with him, nor would they turn him free, to report and bring the police hot on their trail. How had they dealt with old Pence?

As he picked up the stick, he saw a brownish-red stain on one end of it, a crimson splash already turning dark; and a few hoary-white hairs clinging to the wood. And this story-stick which old Pence had been whittling at, carving clumsy bas-relief scenes from his own life—scenes of mining camps, of the fur-path and lonely gold trails, of dog teams and packhorses, of broad-shouldered men bent under heavy portage loads and of women with a crude beauty of face and figure—this story-stick of his life, from its rounded handle to its tapering end, was completed now.

Poverty Defined

The following definition of poverty is that of Dr. Robert W. Kelso, sociologist: "Poverty is that condition of living in which the individual, whether from lack of means or the failure to apply them, consistently fails to maintain himself and those properly dependent upon him at a plane of living high enough to insure continuous bodily and mental fitness to carry on permanently in his occupation and locality, and which allows him and them to live and function in their community with decency and self-respect."

Modern Contract Bridge

No. 18

Higher Opening Suit Bids

Each opening bid in the forcing system has certain definite characteristics and carries with it certain information highly important for the achievement of the best results in partnership bidding.

Opening suit bids of one and two are differentiated by their honor strength (the honor-trick requirement being twice as great for a minimum bid of two as for a minimum bid of one). But original declarations of one and two have this in common—the trump suit named may, and usually does, require full trump support from the partner. Also, these declarations are apt to show hands of flexible type which offer another bid or support for other declarations.

Original suit bids higher than two also show different degrees of honor strength, according to whether they are immediate game declarations or bids for just one less than game (as three in a major suit or four in a minor). But all bids of three or more have two definite characteristics. In the trump suit, at least, these high opening bids announce independence of partner's support. They always show trumps of such abnormal length or strength as to contain without assistance at least five sure trump tricks. Also they reveal hands of inflexible type which will play to advantage only at the suit named.

The difference which distinguishes immediate game bids from bids of one less than game lies mainly in their honor strength requirements.

Opening suit bids of three in a major and four in a minor are not, strictly speaking, pre-emptive. They are strength-showing bids, covering the type of hands which just lack enough honor-tricks for a forcing two-bid, but are so powerful in honors and playing-tricks as to be with-in two tricks of game.

An original bid of three in a major suit requires (vulnerable or not vulnerable) 8 playing-tricks including at least 1½ honor-tricks in side suits.

An original bid of four in a minor suit requires (vulnerable or not vulnerable) 9 playing-tricks including at least 1½ honor-tricks in side suits.

The forcing system does not recommend minor suit three-bids, but if used, restricts them to one meaning—a long, unquestionably established suit.

Immediate Game Bids: Pre-Emptive

Original bids of four in a major or five in a minor show holdings of abnormal distributional value (trump length), but do not promise any defensive honor-trick strength.

An original bid of four in a major suit shows (not vulnerable) 7 playing-tricks; (vulnerable) 8 playing-tricks. No honor strength in side suits.

An original bid of five in a minor suit shows (not vulnerable) 8 playing-tricks; (vulnerable) 9 playing-tricks. No honor strength in side suits.

Examples of pre-emptive (game) bids are:

(Not Vulnerable)
Four Spades:
S-K Q J 10 5 7 8	D-Q J 6 5
H-None	C-6 2
Five Clubs:
S-None	D-A 10 9 4 2
H-None	C-K J 9 8 7 6 4 2

If any value is to be realized from hands of this type they must be played at their suits, and the partner should be warned of the fact by an immediate bid for game. From its very nature, an original bid of this character can never be construed as an invitation for slam.

Pre-emptive bids are especially effective at contract because, though the many high cards missing from your hand may be against you, the specter of drastic penalties usually so terrorizes the opponents that they do not venture to over-call your pre-emptive declaration unless entirely sure of their ground. Thus, at a slight risk, you can often shut out a game or slam which the adversaries might readily have discovered had they been allowed the opportunity for an exchange of information.

For instance, if the dealer of the following hand, not vulnerable, should pass, the opponents could probably get together for a small slam at spades. Singly, it is doubtful that either of them would overcall an original bid of four hearts, especially if they were vulnerable.

REPAIR CRISIS COMING SOON

Avoidable Home Neglect Costs Millions; Save by Painting Now.

Home owners and others throughout the United States face an avoidable burden of $200,000,000 for repairs and replacements next spring, that can be prevented by adopting proper precautions this fall.

A crisis that has been approaching for several years will be reached this winter, and "a vigorous offensive program," to lessen its seriousness will be inaugurated at once, according to an announcement by the Acme White Lead and Color Works, Detroit White Lead Works, W. W. Lawrence & Co., Lincoln Paint & Color Co., the Lowe Brothers Co., John Lucas & Co., Inc., the Martin-Senour Co., Peninsular Paint & Varnish Co., the Sherwin-Williams Co. Newspaper advertising in every part of the United States will be used to tell property owners of the danger from further delay in making needed repairs and replacements.

"Millions of dollars can be saved by giving buildings proper care this fall. They have been exposed to the elements three, four and five years, through neglect and postponement of needed work. Property and equipment cannot go longer lacking proper protection, without further serious injury.

"When a woman's home is saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint which led to a renewal of the loan on the house, as has just been reported from a small Middle Western town, it is easy to see that other benefits than just those of property protection can be derived, too, from adopting the correct safeguard methods.

"Prices of good paints are the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on the average home can be bought with a

The chief contributors are partisans and city people, especially high school boys, college students, and certain business interests.

The nationalists, he says, are now carrying on an educational campaign with villagers and are trying to win their interest. Where the villager has been reached by this campaign, he is torn between two loyalties; but he is non-committal. He is loyal to the English if he talks to an Englishman, and is loyal to the nationalists if he talks to a nationalist. The farmers who are active participants in the nationalist cause are usually paid agents, or those personally acquainted with Mr. Gandhi. The others, he says, prefer to cultivate their fields, tend their animals, and to smoke their pipes.

Average Indian Farmer Unstirred by "Politics"

The farmer in India does not care whether Mahatma Gandhi or the king of England rules, so long as his taxes are not increased and no one takes away his village rights. W. H. Wiser, a former missionary and now a student at Cornell university, explained in a radio broadcast.

Indian villagers are largely illiterate and a newspaper seldom reaches the village. News circulates as rumors, and villagers have even heard that Gandhi was king, he says. The farmer's interests are limited to his own fields and to his own village; only a few have been led to contribute to campaign funds.

Halibut "Come Back"

A large halibut marked with the letters M. R. M. recently was caught off Western bank by the Boston schooner Joffre, and M. Robert Schoon, a member of the crew, recalled that he had caught the same fish two years previously off the Grand banks, but after scratching his initials on its side had thrown it back, as it was too small.

Life's Proudest Moment

"No bigger than a minute"—when he arrived . . .

But look at him now! See what the scales are saying! Look at those muscles! Look at that husky framework! Look at the bright-eyed, pink-skinned health of him!

It comes over you both with a great surge of happiness—he's a perfect specimen, your baby!

Can a baby thrive like that, if his mother's milk fails?

Millions of mothers nod a beaming "Yes!" For millions of mothers in America have had proof in their own homes that Eagle Brand builds wonderfully sturdy babies—babies that grow to be men and women of fine physique, outstanding health.

And recently, two famous baby specialists put Eagle Brand to one of the most searching tests that modern science has ever given a baby food. They fed fifty average infants on Eagle Brand* for a period of months, comparing results with other groups of babies similarly fed on other foods. They tested these babies' progress with the X-ray, with blood counts, with measuring, weighing, every modern check on growing structure, growing strength. And measured by every scientific test, the result was favorable to Eagle Brand. These Eagle Brand babies showed themselves superbly nourished—lacking in nothing that makes for future health and stamina. Eagle Brand* had proved itself equal in every way to the building of 100% babies!

You see, Eagle Brand is wonderfully easy to digest—second only to mother's milk in easy digestibility. Every drop goes quickly into the making of bones and teeth, tissue and muscle, energy and strength. Eagle Brand is easily prepared—you merely add boiled water. See directions on the label. Eagle Brand is free from dangerous germs—safe for your baby. It keeps indefinitely in the can. And can be obtained at any grocer's.

Send for a free copy of "Baby's Welfare"—an 80-page booklet on feeding and caring for baby. It gives you pictures and histories of a number of Eagle Brand babies. And let us send your physician a report of the scientific test we have described.

*As with mother's milk, or any milk diet, the usual supplementary foods were given. These are, of course, orange or tomato juice, and cod-liver oil or other source of the anti-rachitic Vitamin D.

Old Roman Hairpins
Ivory hairpins, found in London and dating from the Roman occupation, are knopped with the busts of Roman ladies of the empire. One in the British museum is adorned with a little statuette representing Venus wringing the water out of her hair after rising from the sea. Another is topped by an ivory hand holding a cone and encircled by a serpent.

Many Have Same Thought
One often hears the saying, "The sin is not in the sinning but in the being found out." "Scandal is the greatest part of the offense," recites Dryden, the poet, and Moliere says, "The harm is only the noise that one makes." A popular eleventh commandment is, "Thou shalt not be found out." The French put the following twist on it: "Guard yourself from being found out so that you may be at fault freely."—Boston Globe.

Musical Phenomenon
An account of Ole Bull says: "Ole Bull was a Norwegian violin virtuoso. He showed remarkable musical precocity. Bull was a rare phenomenon in the history of music. In the matter of mere technique he rivaled even Paganini. And yet a critic could discern the self-taught musician behind this prodigious technique."

Beads and Barbarism
From time immemorial the human race has resorted to beads and trinkets for ornament as well as for charms against the forces of evil. In Genesis, we read that the servant of Isaac brought earrings and bracelets to Rebekah, as well as to her brother and her mother; in Exodus, we find both men and women, as many as were willing-hearted, brought bracelets and earrings, and rings and jewels of gold as an offering for the building of the tabernacle.

Save them
Trees with cavities, safe refuges of the small hunted wild animals, are the "fur" or "den" trees. Affording shelter to the small animal, the den tree is very important to its life, for when the animal is taken and the den destroyed nothing is left there to protect another animal, says the American Forestry association.

Lingering Anguish
A song writer in New Hampshire makes the proud boast that he wrote 3,000 before he made a hit. But that does not abate the anguish caused by the singing of the 2,999 that preceded the hit.—Boston Transcript.

Lovely Tale
All we have to say about that astronomer's theory that the earth was born in a collision between the sun and a star is it certainly sounds awfully romantic.—Ohio State Journal.

Estimating Horse's Age
The age of horses may be rather accurately estimated by an examination of the teeth. The time of eruption, the "cusps" or depressions on the wearing surfaces, and the form and direction of the teeth are all indicative of age at different periods of life.

Handwriting
Men of quality are in the wrong to undervalue, as they often do, the practice of a fair and quick hand in writing; for it is no immaterial accomplishment.—Quintilian.

Plan Miscarried
As early as 1611, the colony of Virginia set aside 10,000 acres for a University of Henrico, where both Indians and English were to be educated.

Personal "I. Q."
The intelligence quotient or "I. Q." of a person is determined by multiplying the mental age by 100 and dividing by the actual age. Thus the intelligence quotient of a normal person is 100. A person with an "I. Q." below 80 is rated as subnormal, while one with an "I. Q." above 120 is rated as gifted. About five persons in 100 will be found to be 20 below normal and about one in 20 above normal.

Not Bound for Ruin
There may be a rash on the face of civilization, but its heart is still beating vigorously, and its feet are still marching on and up.—American Magazine.

No United States "Penny"
A penny is not the official designation of any coin minted in the United States. It is merely a colloquial and popular name for our 1-cent piece. The application dates back to the beginning of our money system.

Concerning Learning
Learning, wrote Pope, is like mercury, one of the most powerful and excellent things in the world in skillful hands; in unskilled the most mischievous.

"Live" and "Dead" Weight
Live weight is no lighter than dead weight, but may accommodate itself more to the comfort of the carrier, thus making it easier to carry.

Currency Feature
The silk threads in United States paper money are distinctive of the paper currency of this country.

Antelope 9 Inches Tall
There are antelopes ranging from eight or nine inches to six feet in height at the shoulders. The smallest of the species is the gnuvi, or pygmy antelope. The eland is one of the largest. Most of the antelopes live in Africa though several varieties are found in Asia.

Egg-Swallowing Snake
Prof. J. Arthur Thomson says an African snake, the Dasyatis, swallows eggs larger around than its throat, then sucks out the contents and regurgitates the shell without breaking it.

Needs More Than Petting
A good petter may be popular during the courting days, but there isn't much demand for petting after marriage, and a girl soon discovers it's the good provider who shines as a husband.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

British Census
The first complete census in Great Britain was not taken until 1801. Before that time authorities had estimated the English population in 1570 at 4,160,221, in 1875 at 5,773,646. The census of 1801 showed the population of the United Kingdom to be 10,500,056. Since then the census has been taken every ten years.

Temples Not Lasting
Chinese temples are rarely very old. Being built of wood, they have not had the lasting qualities of marble and granite.

Chipmunks in Winter
While chipmunks hibernate during the winter, they apparently do not become dormant in most cases, like bears; rather they store up food in their burrows during the summer and subsist upon this.

Monster Sturgeon
The biggest sturgeons in the Great Lakes weigh 200 pounds or more and measure as much as eight feet in length, which accounts for the fact that they are sometimes excitedly thought to be sea serpents.
