MADE-TO-MEASURE ROLE FOR MENJOU AS THATCHER COLT
"The Night Club Lady," a Columbia picture that brings Adolph Menjou in the suave role of Thatcher Colt, police commissioner de luxe, to the Family Theatre next Sunday and Monday, moves from the highest pinnacle of a New York rooftop to the glittering depths of the city's night life.

Most of the mysterious action in this dramatic picture, taken from the extremely popular crime novel by Anthony Abbot, takes place in a luxurious pent-house and in one of the most fascinating and elaborate night clubs in the city.

Menjou is supported by Mavy Methot, radiant stage actress who appeared with Chester Morris in "Corsair"; Skeets Gallagher, Blanche Frederici, Ruthelma Stevens, Albert Conti, Nat Pendleton, Greta Grandstedt, Gerald Fielding and others. Irving Cummings directed.

TO THE VOTERS OF IOSCO COUNTY

I wish to thank the people for the large vote given me at the primaries, September 13, which obtained for me the nomination for County Road Commissioner of Iosco county.

If I am elected in the November election, I promise you that I shall to the best of my ability perform my duty fairly in the office of County Road Commissioner.

Ernest Crego.

LOCAL TEAM DEFEATS E. T. MERCHANTS

M. Lixey's perennial jinx over the Tawas City Independents was finally broken last Sunday when the locals snuffed out the East Tawas Merchants by a 3 to 0 count. The contest was played at the local athletic field.

The work of Boulder, Tawas City pitcher, was highly commendable. Besides holding the East Tawas sluggers to a mere four hits, he whiffed nine men. M. Lixey, his opponent on the mound, who has turned back the locals repeatedly during the last few years, did not fare so well. Although he retired twelve men by the strike-out route, the Tawas City boys measured him to the extent of eleven safeties. Lixey was handicapped, however, due to the fact that his mates' fielding was somewhat off color. The locals, on the other hand, played an excellent brand of ball behind Boulder.

Next Sunday the Tawas City boys will play two games, one with Oscoda beginning at 1:00 o'clock and the other with the East Tawas Merchants, beginning at 3:00 o'clock. Both contests will take place at the local athletic field.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School

A direct primary election was held in the high school Wednesday to nominate candidates for president and the respective class representatives of the student council. Nathan Lincoln, Robert Hamilton, and Sylvia Koskie were nominated for the presidency. Dorothy Roach, Martin Zollweg, Dora Mark, and Gertrude Bessey were nominated for class representative by the seniors. Herbert Zollweg, Arlene Leslie, and Arnold McLean were nominated by the juniors. Leonard Hostach, Agnes Roach, Marvin Mallon, and George Cholger were nominated by the sophomores. Billie Roach, Patricia Braddock, and Jean Robinson were nominated by the freshmen. An election will be held soon at which a president will be selected from the list of three candidates, and a class representative will be selected for each of the four grades of the high school.

The members of the American history class were given a test on Wednesday over the work dealing with the early European exploration of the New World.

The botany class is busy these days learning to identify the common field plants of the community, and some facts concerning them.

This year the commercial department has opened with an enrollment of forty-nine pupils, about one-half of the entire high school enrollment. Twenty-five juniors and seniors are taking Typewriting I and eight seniors are taking Typewriting II. Our aim is for smoothness and evenness in our typing, which, of course, results first in accuracy and then in both accuracy and speed. Interesting tests have been made whereby the student can see the difference in accuracy and speed between slow, smooth strokes and fast, jerky ones. Parents could sense the enthusiasm shown if they could watch the scramble for typewriters at 4:15 each day.

IOSCOS DEFEAT EAST TAWAS INDEPENDENTS, 9-7

The Iosco County Independents defeated the East Tawas Independents last Sunday by a 9-7 score. Errors were numerous on both sides, the Ioscos making seven miscues while East Tawas was chalked with four. C. Curry held the mound for the Ioscos, and Alverson and Siglin worked the rubber for the East Tawas Independents. The line-up:

REPUBLICANS CONVENE HERE YESTERDAY

Delegates from the several cities and townships met Thursday morning at the court house. Thirty-six delegates were present. Prosecuting Attorney John A. Stewart acted as chairman and Fred C. Latter was secretary of the convention.

The following committees were appointed:

Committee on Credentials—W. A. Curtis, M. C. Musolf and E. O. Putnam.

Resolutions—Jos. G. Dimmick, Mrs. Lucile Stevens and U. G. Colvin.

Organization—Jas. MacGillivray, Frank Schneider and Arthur Dillon. The convention adopted the following resolution:

We, the Republicans of Iosco County, in convention assembled, Resolve:

We pledge anew our allegiance to the principles of the Republican party and approve of the policies set forth by President Hoover and the platform as adopted by the national convention.

We also approve of the re-nomination of Wilber M. Brucker for governor and pledge him our hearty support.

We also recommend the re-nomination of the present state officers.

Respectfully submitted,
Joseph G. Dimmick, Chairman,
U. G. Colvin,
Mrs. Lucile Stevens.

Six delegates were elected to the state convention, as follows: Jos. Danin of Whittemore, George A. Prescott, Jr., of Tawas City, Elmer Britt of Burrell, Jos. G. Dimmick of East Tawas, Mrs. Lucile Stevens of Tawas City, and Jas. MacGillivray of Oscoda. Alternates—Mrs. Amanda MacGillivray of Oscoda, Jas. Mielock of Alabaster, L. S. Little of Grant, W. A. Curtis of Whittemore, S. J. P. Lucas of Plainfield and W. H. Price of East Tawas.

"DIVORCE IN FAMILY" SCREEN FARE FOR ALL THE FAMILY
Jackie Cooper makes his latest appearance on the Family Theatre screen next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, September 27, 28, 29, in "Divorce in the Family." Based on an original story by Maurice Rapf, the new picture shows Jackie as the son of a scientist, divorced from his wife. When the boy is placed in the care of his mother and stepfather he experiences a longing for his real father, and a reluctance to attune himself to the strange environment of his new home.

The childish tragedies of the little boy trying to get used to the "new" father who does not understand him, rises to both amusing and pathetic bits of drama.

The cast includes Conrad Nagel as the stepfather, Lewis Stone as the father and Lois Wilson as the mother. Other supporting roles are filled by Maurice Murphy, as the elder brother, Jean Parker, Lawrence Grant, Richard Wallace and David Newell.

MONUMENTS AND MARKERS

I wish to express my appreciation for the support given me during my campaign for county treasurer.

Fred Swartz.

MRS. BURCH OBSERVES 90TH ANNIVERSARY

Mrs. Margaret Burch of East Tawas was the honor guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clara Grant, Tuesday afternoon, when a dozen friends gathered to help her celebrate her 90th birthday anniversary. Mrs. Burch was the recipient of a number of gifts from her friends. At a delicious pot luck lunch was a birthday cake with 16 candles, each one representing a five year period.

Mrs. Burch's maiden name was Margaret Handy. She was born in Ontario, Canada, September 13, 1842. On July 9, 1861, at Windham, Canada, she was married to Nathaniel Burch. The Burch family came to East Tawas in 1881. Mr. Burch died a number of years ago, and Mrs. Burch has lived in the home she has had for a half century of time.

Congratulations are extended to Mrs. Burch and friends here she lives to enjoy many more years in the best of health.

MRS. DELEMIA ROSE MORIN

Mrs. Delemia Rose Morin, age 69 years, three months and 27 days, died Wednesday, September 14, at her home in Whittemore.

She was born in Canada May 17, 1863. She came to Whittemore when 26 years old and has lived there ever since.

She leaves to mourn, eight sons, Napoleon, Edward, and Joseph of Whittemore, Leo, Alphonse and Rosia of Pontiac, William of Royal Oak, and George of Flint; 16 grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Julia Croteau of Canada; two brothers, Joseph and Ed. Goupil of Whittemore, and a host of other relatives.

The funeral services were held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock from the Catholic church at Whittemore.

I wish to express my most grateful appreciation for the splendid vote given me in the recent election—4628, to 2228 for my opponent. A majority of 2400 votes is a wonderful compliment not only to myself and the things I stood for in the Legislature but to my friends who supported me so loyally.

I shall do my utmost to justify the confidence placed in me by giving the very best kind of service I know how to render.

There are strenuous and serious days ahead. You can depend on my being on the job.

Fred C. Holbeck.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE HELD HERE

The Iosco County teachers held their annual institute in the Court House at Tawas City, Monday, September 19, the meeting starting at nine o'clock. The invocation was given by Rev. F. Metcalf of Tawas City, and was followed by group singing of old songs led by Supt. H. T. Swanson. Miss Worden introduced Miss Jessie McLean, Assistant Superintendent of the Training School, C. S. T. C., who gave an address on "The Teaching of Reading," which included the instructing of beginning classes and continued through to the teaching of elementary and higher grades by tested, present-day methods.

Dr. Johnston, Director of the Health Unit in Iosco County, gave a brief talk, following which Miss McLean continued her discussion. The group then adjourned for the noon hour. The Hale teachers, with Miss McLean, Miss Worden, Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Osgerby, and Mr. Swanson as their guests, enjoyed a pot luck dinner in the domestic science rooms of the East Tawas high school.

Singing under the leadership of Mr. Swanson, Mr. Reagan, Miss Williams, and Miss McLean opened the afternoon meeting. The first speaker was F. A. Reagan, Sanitary Inspector of the Children's Fund, Second Unit, who talked briefly on "School Sanitation." Rev. A. Walter Hueschen of Owosso, publicity director of the Audubon Society, gave a lecture on nature study and conservation. Following this was a brief talk by Walter Schenkel, county eighth grade delegate to the State Fair, who told of his trip to the fair. F. T. Ketchik, dentist, and Miss Myrtle Cowgill, county nurse, addressed the group on county health work. "Our County Normal" was the subject of Mrs. J. K. Osgerby's talk, and Miss McLean concluded the institute by continuing her address on the teaching of reading.

The attendance was splendid, all the townships being well represented. In addition to the teachers and the County Normal students, school officers G. E. Olson from Wilber No. 1, and Mr. Gauthier and Mr. Bellinger from Tawas No. 2 were present.

The high schools whose teachers attended 100% were: Alabaster, Tawas City and St. Joseph. East Tawas and Oscoda each had one excused absence.

The following townships in which one, two and four room schools are located had a 100% record also: Baldwin, Grant, Plainfield, Sherman, and Wilber. Tawas and Reno each had one excused absence. The members of the county normal class were all present except one.

COUNTY NORMAL NEWS

Members of the Iosco County Normal met together for the first time at a wiener-marshmallow roast Wednesday evening, September 14. The party started at five o'clock in the State Park, where the group gathered to play baseball. Klenow's team won over Carpenter's by a score of 17-14. The students then walked down the beach to the lot behind Harwood's Super-Services Station where a large bonfire was enjoyed along with roasted wieners and marshmallows.

"TOM BROWN OF CULVER" HAS UNIQUE STORY

What is said to be one of the most interesting and novel screen plays of the current season will be shown Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State Theatre.

The picture is "Tom Brown of Culver," the Universal production which presents Tom Brown and Slim Summerville in the leading roles, and was filmed partly at Universal City and partly at the famous Culver Military Academy in Indiana. The entire story is told against the background of this well known institution, and is said to tell a most dramatic story of a boy whose father was erroneously credited with being a hero of the World War.

A noteworthy feature of "Tom Brown of Culver" is the fact that not a girl appears in it—and yet, it is said, the story is not lacking in intense "heart interest." The list of players appearing with Brown, Warner and Summerville includes Richard Cromwell, Sidney Toler, Russell Hooton, Andy Devine, Kit Guard, Willard Robertson, Ben Alexander, and other screen favorites.

ANNOUNCEMENT

H. E. Bigelow will open a barber shop in the Galbraith building next Monday morning. His many friends here are invited to visit the new shop, which will be sanitary and furnished with new modern equipment. Free shampoo will be given to first five patrons receiving haircuts each day, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 26, 27, 28.

TO THE VOTERS OF IOSCO COUNTY

Many thanks for the splendid vote given me at the September 13th primary. Your kindness is appreciated and will long be remembered by

John A. Campbell.

Town of the Economites Celebrates Centennial

FREEDOM, a small town near Pittsburgh, Pa., was founded in 1832 by a group of so-called Economites; and this year it is celebrating its centennial with parades, reunions and other affairs. Here is part of a parade of the Economites in their peculiar black garb.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY

WITH all the different kinds of foods talked about and recipes for using them in ways that are different, we come to molasses, the good old sweet that comes to us right from the sugar cane. Here is one to serve to youngsters that will be enjoyed:

Vitamin Salad.

Place a leaf or two of crisp lettuce on each salad plate. Place a slice of pineapple on the leaf and fill the center with New Orleans molasses. Cover with a thick slice of orange, top with a slice of apple (or a square), topped with a cherry. Just before serving pour over the following sirup: To one teaspoonful of molasses add the juice of one orange and one-half a lemon. This will serve four salads.

Veal Stuffed Tomatoes.

Take out the seeds from six tomatoes after slicing off the top. Sprinkle well with salt and pepper. Cook two tablespoonfuls of butter with one-half tablespoonful of chopped onion for five minutes. Add one-half cupful of chopped cold veal, one-half cupful of bread crumbs, the tomato pulp, season with salt and pepper. Cook five minutes and fill the tomatoes with this mixture. Place in a buttered pan, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake for 20 minutes.

Tea Ice Cream.

Take one cupful of milk, three egg yolks, one cupful of sugar, a bit of salt, one-half cupful of strong tea infusion, one cupful of thin cream, two cupfuls of heavy cream. Freeze and add two cupfuls of whipped cream, and finish freezing.

FACE THE LIGHT

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

SHE'S set them in the window, Geranium and rose, A window-box of pansies, fox, And ev'rything that grows, Hydrangea, verberna, And even daisies white— And ev'ry one has sought the sun, Has turned to face the light.

I wish we had the wisdom Of flowers on a sill, Would turn away from shadows gray And seek the sunlight still. Though grief is all about us, And trouble hard to bear, I wish that we would turn and see The beauty ev'rywhere.

The rose can teach a lesson, The pansies point the way: Be done with doubt, look up, look out, And seek the dawn of day. Behind you may be shadows, But skies ahead are bright; And, when you grieve, be brave, believe, And turn and face the light.

sure that he had left and there was no more danger they flew to a little tree near Peter, and then how their tongues did fly as they talked it all over. As for Peter, his heart fairly bounded with joy. The little kingfishers were safe after all. He, like Billy Mink, had forgotten all about Mrs. Rattles. He might have known that with babies there she would not be far away. As it happened, she was right in the nest with them, as Billy Mink had found out to his sorrow.

Peter watched Mr. and Mrs. Rattles for a few minutes. Then he kicked up his heels and started for the dear Old Brier Patch to tell little Mrs. Peter all about it, and that it really is true that Rattles the Kingfisher lives in a hole in the ground.

Pineapple Salad.

Take one cream cheese, three-ounce size, one-third of a cupful of walnut meats, the same of raisins cut into bits, make into small balls. Arrange on crisp lettuce leaves in the center of a slice of pineapple, add a spoonful of mayonnaise and a spoonful of whipped cream. Garnish with dates cut into quarters. Add a tablespoonful of lemon juice to the four slices of pineapple.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER RABBIT SEES THINGS HAPPEN

PETER RABBIT sat on the bank of the Laughing Brook staring across at a little hole near the top of the big sandbank opposite. Billy Mink had just vanished in that hole and Peter knew why. He knew that that hole was the entrance to the home of Rattles the Kingfisher, and he knew that somewhere back beyond that entrance was a nest, and in it were the babies of Rattles. He knew, too, that it was for those babies that Billy Mink had entered that hole in the sandbank, that Billy meant to make a dinner of them.

Tears were in Peter's eyes as he stared across at that little hole, for there was nothing he could do to save those babies. He didn't want to stay, and yet somehow he couldn't make up his mind to go. He knew just how dreadfully Rattles would feel when he returned and found that home empty, and it made his heart ache. So he sat staring at the hole in the bank across the Laughing Brook and wishing with all his might that there had been some way for him to save those baby kingfishers.

Suddenly he noticed sand begin to trickle down from the edge of that hole. First there was a little, then more and more. Strange noises reached him, smothered noises. There was an angry spitting sound and growls and little squeals of pain. No baby kingfishers ever made sounds like that. What could it mean? Peter crept to the very edge of the bank and stared across with eyes that looked as if they were trying to pop right out of his head. He didn't have long to wait. More sand poured out of that hole, and then the tail of Billy Mink followed by Billy's long slim body. Billy Mink was backing out of that hole, and he was doing it in a hurry!

Just then there was a sharp rattle from up the Laughing Brook. Rattles the Kingfisher was bringing home another fish. He reached the sandbank just as Billy Mink was half way out of the hole. Dropping the little fish he had brought, Rattles shot down like a fury and his sharp bill struck Billy Mink, leaving a red mark where it had torn Billy's coat. Billy squealed and then he rolled over and over down that steep sandbank. He didn't stop to come down gracefully. No, sir, he just rolled over and over any way to get to the water.

Billy Mink was a sorry sight. He certainly was. His coat was torn and there were bright red marks on the top of his brown head. Hardly was Billy out of that hole when the spear-like bill of Mrs. Rattles followed, and then she herself, as angry a kingfisher as ever was seen. As Billy dove into the cool, welcome water of the Laughing Brook both Rattles and Mrs. Rattles shot after him. But they were just too late. Then, rattling excitedly, they hovered over the water waiting for Billy to show his head. But he didn't show it. He knew all too well what was waiting for him. He swam under water until he could crawl out for air at a place where the bank overhung the water and he couldn't be seen. There he licked his wounds and then, whimpering softly, made his way down the Laughing Brook toward the Big River, taking the greatest care to keep out of sight. He had lost all appetite for young kingfishers.

As for Rattles and Mrs. Rattles, they flew about excitedly watching for Billy and ready to give him more punishment. At last when they were quite

Modern Contract Bridge By Lelia Hattersley

No. 19

Responding to High, Strength-Showing Bids

WHEN your partner makes an opening bid of three in a major or four in a minor, he tells you that he has a powerful trump suit needing no support and outside strength as well and that his total of playing tricks count within two of game. In short, he says, that with very little assistance in either honor or playing-tricks, he is practically sure of his game. Such a strong plea for assistance should rarely go unanswered. One supporting trick plus is a sound raise for such a dynamic bid. Unless your raise is based on ruffing values, you need not bother about your trump holding. Even a singleton will do.

When you find yourself with three supporting tricks of which two at least are high honor-tricks, you may give your partner a "slam suggestion," by jumping his major suit three-bid to five. A bid in another suit is classed as an indirect raise. Such a declaration does not necessarily show a long suit. It is not really offered as a take-out, but rather to reveal to your partner where your support is concentrated. He may be able to use the information for a slam bid.

Unless the opponents should overcall your partner's opening game bid, you would rarely need to consider a response. In such a situation a slam bid should not be contemplated unless you held three or four honor-tricks with, perhaps, other supports. The Triple Valuation of a Hand

The danger of driving your opponents into a successful slam bid is always present in high competitive bidding. And, at lower stages of the bidding we are frequently called on to consider the danger of pushing the opponents into a successful game contract.

With such a possibility in mind, as well as when you must consider a penalty double, your hand must be viewed from an entirely new angle, you must appraise it defensively.

Hitherto we have discussed only aggressive valuations, that is the appraisal of bidding and assisting hands. But as a matter of fact, during the course of the bidding the same hand often has to be valued from three different angles.

First—At your own bid. Count honor-tricks and long suit tricks both in trumps and side suits. Second—in support of your partner's bid: Count honor-tricks, long suit and short suit tricks. Third—Against opponents' bid: Count honor-tricks and trump tricks only. Count no long suit tricks or short suit tricks except rarely a singleton or void.

Simple Defensive Bids A defensive bid is a bid made by the side opposing the player who opens the contracting. A simple or regulation defensive bid is always just high enough to cover the previous declaration. A defensive bid does not necessarily show the strength in honor-tricks that an original bid implies, nor can it ever give the same type of exact information.

A hand which would suffice for an original bid of one is almost always sufficient for a defensive bid of one; and a sound original bid of one with a strong five-card suit is sufficient for a defensive bid of two if forced by the opponent's declaration.

Sound defensive bids may be made on hands which contain biddable suits with no more than 1 1/2 honor-tricks if with this minimum holding of honor-tricks there are sufficient playing-tricks to promise a favorable chance of making the contract.

The best way to be assured of the soundness of your defensive declaration is to use the rule of "two and three." In making a defensive overcall when vulnerable, count on your partner for two supporting tricks and bid accordingly. When not vulnerable, count three supporting tricks from your partner.

CHAPTER XI

How to Damn an Enemy

A Takudah brought word to En-durance of a strange happening at En-traverse lake. He had been fishing there at an inlet for barbutes, he said—half-asleep that morning, with the fish line tied around his big toe. A thundering sound in the sky had roused him; and looking up, he had beheld a fearful thing come out of the southern horizon and roar out over the lake.

The sight of it, said John Afrald-of-his-Squaw, had nearly tumbled him from his boat. It had lit down on the water, he said, near Goose point. And behold, a few minutes later it rose and started across the lake for the south shore. He had watched it no longer, but scurried to the bank and crawled in among some rocks; for the dreadful thing might have been hungry and questing for food.

Frank Pedneault listened very thoughtfully to the Indian's story, and then began drawing some conclusions of his own. To him this Indian's shiny monster was a possible key to many puzzles. To the best of his recollection he had never yet seen Alan Baker throw down a job merely because it was tough. And he knew that Baker had been heart and soul determined to wipe out that first stinging defeat and save Joyce MacMillan's dad. Bill had intimated that Alan had gone after those bandits; without violating his oath of secrecy, he had dropped a few broad hints to that effect.

Pedneault drew a conclusion: "Alan went out and got himself a flying machine to hunt them men out of the Thal-Azzah or make that Inconnu trip. He and Bill arranged to meet somewhere. He picked Bill up and now they're over there together on the rousing trick in a coon's age!"

As he stood in the barracks door gazing wistfully across the Mackenzie to the distant hills, he felt all deserted by his comrades. "And they left me out in the cold. Didn't tell me one d—d thing about it. To h—l with 'em both! But Lord! I wish—on a trick like that—oh Lord, I wish . . ."

Not absolutely sure of his conclusions, he started out along the grassy terrace toward Mrs. Drummond's flower garden where Elizabeth Spaulding was reading. He was pondering, in vague outline, a trick of his own. It was a serious matter, and he wanted to be certain of his guess before he cut loose with a scheme like that.

Elizabeth no doubt knew all about Alan's plans, since she was waiting here for him to return and marry her. Elizabeth did know the story. Haskell had let her know. Not daring to go to her himself, he had employed Whipple to casually tell her that Baker had stolen valuable government property at Edmonton, had broken several flying regulations, and was certain of arrest and imprisonment the hour he showed up in civilization. No longer a policeman, and having no authorization of any sort, Baker might even be charged with second-degree murder if he killed any of those bandits.

The news affected Elizabeth very little. Superintendent Williamson and Colonel Steele were both good friends of Alan's and both had power in high places. If his venture should be successful, they no doubt could get him clear. There is a lot of virtue, she reflected, in success.

When Pedneault came across and began asking roundabout questions concerning Alan and his venture, Elizabeth told him what she knew. She knew that Pedneault would repeat her words to Alan, if he got the chance; and Alan would thus hear from another person of her steadfast loyalty to him.

Very thoughtful, when he found out his guess had been correct, Pedneault walked back across the terrace to the mission hospital where Larry Younge was propped up in a chair beside a window. For twenty minutes, leaning over the sill, Pedneault conferred with Larry in low tones.

From there, he went over to Haskell's cabin.

Haskell was shaving. He turned around and snapped: "Well, what is it?"

"Sir, a met called Adolphe brought word of trouble down river in an Indian camp. The Smokies, several families of 'em, have got hold of some 'pernit', and they're quarrelling, fighting. I could handle it myself. I've straightened out messes like that. I could be there and back in the launch by mid-afternoon, with your permission."

"You can't go. I need the launch myself in a little while."

Pedneault cleared his throat nervously. "Sir, I know it's not my place to say a thing like this, but—just a mere suggestion, sir—Superintendent Williamson is coming here on the next down-boat, probably tomorrow evening; and he's always very vexed about Indians killing each other in drunken brawls. He's always pleased when we nail a camp like that, sir."

It was a consummate stroke, his reference to Williamson, Larry Younge had prompted him to that.

Haskell took thought. If he sent a man and smoothed out this Indian trouble, it would look very well in a report. It would be a positive action, an achievement. He said: "All right. Go down and reduce them to order. But be back here in three hours. I want that laun—"

Pedneault was already on his way up to barracks for rifle, belt-gun and keys from Whipple. Down at the wharf, he hurriedly tanked up on gas and put in a big drum extra. Jumping in, slipping into the wheel seat, he stuck a pipe between his teeth, jammed his hat low over his eyes, yanked the starter chain and swung out upon the broad river.

A little puzzled by these preparations and all this haste, Haskell stepped outside his cabin. As he stood there, watching Pedneault's demoliac driving, watching the scarlet-and-gold launch vanish in its own spray down the Mackenzie, he heard a feeble shout up the terrace behind him; and he turned and looked at the hospital.

At that moment Larry Younge, leaning forward in his padded chair, was shaking a fist out the window and emitting a weak—

"Yee-ooow! Three whoops for Ped!"

It was Haskell's intention, as soon as Pedneault came back with the launch, to take Whipple and make a trip up the Big Alooska. Baker would probably use the MacMillan trading post as a maneuvering base against the bandits. By muffling the motor over the last few miles the launch could slip up quietly. They would not be expecting him to strike a second blow; they likely would be up at the trading store; and at best it would take them ten full minutes to rise out of the narrow cramped river.

But as he sat there in his cabin, planning this blow, Haskell doubted if he was to succeed. A kind of fatalism had laid hold of him. In his feud with Baker he had been successful in the main, but what did all his triumph mean, when he had lost Elizabeth Spaulding? His victory had been a barren one. He saw that she was going to marry Alan Baker. In these last weeks the prophetic knowledge of that marriage had been a waking nightmare. Day by day it was marching closer and he was powerless to halt it.

When four hours passed and Pedneault failed to return with the launch, Haskell began to get suspicious. Five hours, six—and Pedneault still absent. Haskell finally went across to the hospital and demanded of Larry Younge: "What were you and Pedneault talking about before he came to my cabin?"

Larry never smiled. "I don't exactly mind, but I think we were talking about the weather. Ped said he hoped it ain't going to rain any more."

Haskell snarled: "You're laughing in my face. You hatched some devilry with him." He threatened viciously: "I'll fix you, constable. You're to be invalidated out of service. I've got something to say about the terms. When you're hobbling around, trying to live on a few dollars a month, you won't be quite so d—d chipper!"

In a seething fury he turned away. Pedneault had tricked him, stolen the launch, and joined Baker's venture!

Unable now to go up the Alooska and smash that plane, he found outlet for his bitterness in avenging plans, vengeance against Alan Baker and those men. At Williamson's coming visit he could deal them some terrible blows. His enemies had played into his very hands. Baker had bought out under suspicious circumstances, had made a criminal of himself, had taken the law into his own hands and turned justice to private ends. Pedneault had given a false report and absconded with police property. Bill Hardsock had stolen supplies and subverted them to his own uses, had gone a. w. o. L. had aided in a criminal enterprise, and to crown it all, had deserted.

Knowing Williamson's foibles pretty well, Haskell foresaw the superintendent's anger when he learned those blunt facts. They violated every tenet in the stern old officer's code, for he was a stickler for discipline. He would soak Hardsock and Pedneault to the limit. He would turn thumbs down on any leniency toward Baker. The ex-sergeant would be branded with disgrace, if he escaped the pen. And if he did get those bandits, he had awaiting him the news that Trader MacMillan, whose innocence he had championed, for whose sake he had done all this and whose vindication had been his great purpose—that Dave MacMillan, broken by shame and bitterness, was lying dead, a suicide, at Resolution.

Haskell saw that his only real difficulty lay in overcoming Williamson's earlier prejudice and winning his personal liking. That called for shrewd psychology, but on that point he knew he could make Alan Baker look like a stammering farm boy.

The next evening, when Williamson arrived, Haskell first of all took him on an inspection tour of the post. Flashed with that, they stopped and talked together on the slope, a little distance from the barracks. A respectful distance behind them Corporal Whipple waited, note paper in hand, ready to scrape and salute if they glanced his way or asked for any figures.

Haskell was elated, he was secretly exultant, at his success so far in "working" his superior officer. Williamson was openly pleased with the inspection. Barracks, cabins, dog teams, canoes, guns—everything was in capital shape.

This auspicious beginning was all well enough, Haskell felt, but his trouble with Baker was the all-crucial thing. It was going to make or break him. The whole outcome depended on Williamson; depended on whether the division commander would believe his story or Baker's. As yet he did not know what Williamson thought. The superintendent had heard a few of the bare facts on his way down the Mackenzie, but he had left headquarters before Baker's buying-out papers had reached there for his signature.

Haskell decided that the old officer had been favorably prepared for the story now; and he led into it gradually, shrewdly. Starting with the Midnight Sun robbery, he gave a detailed account of this last month, down to the hour when Pedneault stole the launch and joined Baker's venture.

"What hurts me the worst, sir," he added, with a consummate show of real sorrow, "is the refusal of these men to co-operate with me or let me help them. Maybe I'm at fault; I don't know. But by way of example, sir, if Corporal Hardsock had told me about needing gas and oil, he could have had every drop at the post. But he wouldn't tell me, he st— I mean, he took it. An Indian brought me word about him waiting at En Traverse lake for Baker. I figured Baker might need extra supplies or help, so with Whipple I went down there right away. We tried desperately to get in connection with Baker. Even shot signals for him to wait. But he scorned our offer."

"When I got back here," Haskell went on, "I planned to go up the Alooska and take him supplies. I wanted to put everything I had at his disposal. He's the best man-hunter in the country, and I felt he would get those criminals if anybody could. I didn't give a d—d—if you'll pardon me, sir—about him being so hostile to me personally. All I cared about was to help him run down those bandits. If they escape, it will be a blot on the splendid record here at Endurance. But, as I explained, Pedneault told me a lie about some trouble at an Indian camp, and ran off with the launch."

As he watched his superior's reactions, Haskell smiled to himself. His generous praise of an enemy was having its calculated effect. He was doubly damning Baker by praising him. He was gaining Williamson's sympathy, his approbation. He had beaten down the old officer's former prejudice against him, and had instilled a subtle hostility against Baker and the two deserters.

For moments afterwards Williamson made no comment. Surprised and alarmed at discovering this bad blood here at an important post, the old officer gazed silently down upon the purpling river.

Find Records of Stern Greek Law

Two pieces of pottery on which votes were inscribed which sent Aristides and Themistocles, Greek political and military leaders, into temporary exiles 240 years ago have been found in the ancient market place at Athens, Greece.

Citizens of Athens during the Fifth century B. C., were privileged under the constitution of the city to meet in public assembly and vote for the temporary banishment of any of the citizenry. If as many as 6,000 votes were cast in the ballot, the citizen receiving the largest number was exiled for ten years but not deprived of the enjoyment of his property.

At least eight Athenian leaders are known to have been ostracized.

Case of "Some Baby"

The sheriff in a small Indiana town had arrested a woman who was wanted for house breaking in a neighboring city. As there was a handsome reward offered for the guilty party, there was considerable speculation in regard to the possibility of the local officer's "bringing home the bacon." On his return from delivering his prisoner to the city authorities, the sheriff was questioned as to the outcome of his trip.

"Aw, there wasn't nuthin' to it," he explained disgustedly, "I thought I had her dead to rights but blamed if she didn't prove a lullaby."

It is a great deal of trouble to be openly unorthodox.

WARNING to PROPERTY OWNERS

TODAY a letter came to my desk that deeply impressed me. It was written by a woman—the mother in a typical American family. Her little home had been saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint, for which a part of their meager savings had been paid.

Those few gallons of fresh paint had so revived the appearance and enhanced the value of the property that the mortgagee had consented to renew the loan . . . and the little home was saved.

I could not help thinking of the thousands of homes and buildings that are shabby and unattractive today due to several years of neglected painting; of the millions of home owners who, because of reduced incomes and enforced economy, have been obliged to sacrifice painting for taxes, interest, assessments, to say nothing of food, clothing, heat and other essentials of comfort and health.

You have seen these paint-starved houses and buildings, as have I. They are everywhere about you. Perhaps your home is included.

Do you understand what they signify? Do you realize what will happen to wood or metal that is literally naked of paint if these houses and buildings face the attack of another season of rain, snow, ice, and frost?

Never in the history of our country has the situation been paralleled. Property owners face an added burden of expense amounting to millions of dollars for repairs and replacements next spring.

And the crisis, in my opinion, will be reached this coming winter when paint of four, five, and even six years exposure to the weather will be unable to resist the elements—when badly weathered wood and metal will be easy prey for rot, rust and decay.

Today the big question facing thousands of property owners is plain. It is "paint or pay." Either you must invest a little this fall in new paint or you must take the risk of paying many times the cost of paint to repair the damage done by rot, rust and decay this winter.

Even at the sacrifice of other things, have your house or buildings completely repainted now. No investment you can make will pay better dividends. And nothing you can buy will make you and your family feel so uplifted and cheerful.

If you cannot arrange to do a complete repainting job now, at least give the badly weathered places a coat or two of protecting paint.

Look especially, to the window sills, thresholds, outdoor porches and steps; the joints of porch railings and palings; the bases of pillars; the edges of eaves; the roof; the gutters and down spouts. These are the vital spots where water lodges—where ice and frost settle—where rot and rust attack first.

A few dollars' worth of good paint, applied now, will protect these vital spots—will tide you over this crucial winter. And it will probably save you a much greater expense for repairs and replacements next spring and summer.

Under existing conditions, you may be tempted to buy a cheap paint because of its low price. I hope you will not make this costly mistake.

Even on sound lumber, inferior paint is a poor bargain. But on weathered wood, which is very porous, such paint is worse than useless. It gives you a false feeling of security and leaves you without protection.

Prices of well-known, established brands of paint are now the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint can be purchased for a few dollars to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on your building.

Again I repeat, do a complete job this fall if you can. But at least do the vital exposed places before it is "too late."

Authorities Made Poor Guess, in This Instance

The hundredth anniversary of the death of Bolivar, the great liberator of South America from Spanish rule, uncovered a number of amusing yarns concerning this famous character.

The story goes that on one occasion Bolivar sent a messenger ahead to a small town where he and his party were to spend the night. In it the liberator directed the town authorities to have food and quarters ready for his men and horses and added that there should be for himself shelter, food, etc., etc., etc.

The town authorities promptly got everything ready except the three etc.'s, which troubled them considerably. "What," they asked, "did the great liberator mean?"

Finally one of them, aware of Bol-ivar's reputation with the ladies, decided he had solved the problem.

It happened, however, that he was wrong and three of the town's prettiest girls were sent home at the direction of the highly amused Bolivar.—Los Angeles Times.

Memory Came Back

La Fontaine, having attended the funeral of a friend, absent-mindedly went to call upon him a short time afterward.

"Dead? Impossible?" he exclaimed on hearing the sad news; then recollecting himself, he patted the servant's arm.

"True enough," he said. "I was there."—Golden Book Magazine.

HALE SCHOOL NOTES

The Plainfield Township Unit school district opened its schools Tuesday, September 6, with the following teachers in charge: For the town school, Otto W. Rahl, high school; Mrs. Grace Adams, later Elementary; Mrs. Violet Bielby, Early Elementary; Miss Helen Webb, Primary. For the rural schools, Miss Edith Gordon, Londo school; Miss Olive Greve, Kees school; Miss Goldie Shellenbarger, North school.
During the summer months, the Love school building was moved to the school grounds in town. The building has been redecorated inside and out and equipped with new heating system and septic tanks. We are very proud of the building, and much credit is due our board of education for the manner in which the school has been improved.
The recitation periods in the high school are of 45 minutes. This is a very important improvement as our students now have the same length of recitation as do the students of the larger high schools. Recitations in algebra, geometry and world history are being taught in these forenoon, and English I, English II, and high school geography in the afternoon.
On Friday afternoon, September 9, a tug of war between the freshmen and sophomore boys took place across the old swimming hole on Hale creek one mile south of town. The freshmen must have anticipated a ducking as they had all donned their swimming suits. At the crack of the gun the fight was on. The freshmen fought desperately and courageously for one and one-quarter minutes, when over the bank they went, to be pulled across the creek by their superiors, the sophomores.
Our baseball team defeated the East Tawas high school team, 6-5, Friday afternoon, September 16. The line-up was as follows: Douglas Clayton, pitcher; Richard Greve, catcher; Stanley Shellenbarger, first; Vere Nunn, second; Dale Johnson, third; David Stanton, short stop; Lee Bannister, left field; Lyle Follette, center field; Ira Scofield, right field. The boys made a good showing for their first game. Douglas pitched a wonderful game as far as hits were concerned. About the only Tawas players to reach first were either hit by the pitcher or walked. If Douglas could improve his form and control he would be a valuable asset to any team. All the boys showed good form at bat. The Prescott or Whittemore high school team will be here Friday, September 23. If you enjoy baseball, we would like to have you with us.
We have made some improvements on our baseball diamond and are quite proud of the result.
Our township had a 100% enrollment at the County Teachers' Institute Monday. Our teachers had planned a picnic dinner, and were honored by having as their guests Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Osgerby, Miss Margaret Worden, and Miss McLean from Central State Teachers College. Miss McLean was the principal speaker at the institute. An outdoor dinner had been planned, but Supt. Swanson of the East Tawas high school kindly offered the use of the domestic science room of his school, which was graciously accepted.
The enrollment of the respective rooms in the town school is as follows: High school, 39; later elementary, 39; early elementary, 27; primary, 24.

MORTGAGE SALE

By reason of default in the payment and conditions of a mortgage made by Clarence Earl and wife, Ivah Earl, to Joseph Brabon, formerly of Tawas City, Michigan, dated March 23rd, 1929, and recorded March 25th, 1929, in Liber 22, page 611 of mortgages, in Register of Deeds office for Iosco county, to secure part of purchase price, upon which there is now claimed to be due by reason of such default, the sum of Five Hundred Dollars for principal, and no proceedings having been taken to recover said amount:

Said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction of the mortgaged premises, described as the South Half of Northwest Quarter, Section Twenty, Town Twenty-two North, of Range Seven East, Iosco County, Michigan, on the 8th day of October, 1932, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of the Court House in Tawas City, said county, to satisfy the amount due at the time for principal, attorney fee and costs.

Dated July 14, 1932.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by Walter E. Laidlaw and May Laidlaw, his wife, of the Township of Tawas, Iosco County, Michigan, Mortgagee, to Joseph Sempliner of the City of East Tawas, Michigan, Mortgagee, dated the 5th day of August, A. D. 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for the County of Iosco and State of Michigan, on the 6th day of August, A. D. 1919, in Liber 22 of Mortgages, on page 235, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal, interest and taxes, the sum of Six Hundred Ninety Dollars and Thirty-four Cents ($690.34).

No suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan, in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 6th day of December, A. D. 1932, at 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front or main entrance to the Court House building in the City of Tawas City, Iosco County, Michigan (that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Iosco is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due,

SAVE WITH SIX CYLINDERS

—with more than six you sacrifice economy
—with less than six you sacrifice smoothness

IF YOU'RE careful about the way you spend your dollars for a low-priced car, you'll be extra-careful about the way you count cylinders. Because if you count more than six, you're not going to get the lowest all-round motoring cost that is saving so many thousands of dollars for Chevrolet owners every day.

And if you count *less than six—you won't be any better off from a dollars-and-cents standpoint. Six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have, and still get Chevrolet's built-in smoothness. # Urge Creation of Saar into Independent State

What Will Happen When Control by France Ends?

Washington.—What will happen to the Saar?

As 1935, the end of the fifteen-year period for which the coal mines of the Saar basin were turned over to France, approaches, that query is bidding for an important place in European politics.

"Saar, which straddles the Lorraine-German border, almost next door to Luxemburg, is a region about two-thirds as large as Rhode Island and is famous for its mineral deposits," says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Famous Coal Region. "Before the World war when Lorraine was German territory, the combination of Lorraine iron deposits and Saar coal deposits made this region one of the outstanding steel production regions of Europe.

"Saar coal, perhaps, would still belong to Germany, if it were not for the efficiency of German troops who, while retreating in north France, destroyed coal mines that once yielded 28,000,000 tons annually. Because of this act, when the peace treaty was framed, diplomats attempted to compensate France by turning over Saar coal digging rights to France for a period of fifteen years—1920 to 1935. The German government also was called upon to compensate private mine owners in the Saar fields for their losses but these losses were not difficult to meet as most of the mines were the state property of Prussia and Bavaria.

"The transfer of coal mining rights to France, however, was not made without political and economic obstacles. The region could not remain under German control for the property rights of the French would not be assured protection, and the great German population and German property could not be placed under French control. The League of Nations, therefore, set up a governing commission composed of one Frenchman, one citi-

cal works and ceramic kilns. The city is an important railroad center. "Saarbrücken went to France ten years before our Declaration of Independence was signed. After the battle of Waterloo, the Allies took it and turned it over to Prussia. At that time the coal deposits were hardly known. Its present prestige may be

CONFESSION

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

The minister had something to say the other Sunday about confession, and I had just had a little experience with it myself, so that I was in a very sympathetic frame of mind to listen to what he had to say.

"An honest confession is good for the soul," who was it said it? It doesn't matter, for it has often proved itself true. "If we confess our sins," the Good Book says, "he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

From Genesis to Revelation there is a good deal said in justification of an open acknowledgment of our violations of moral law. There was a letter in the mail from an undergraduate whom I had never met, and whose name was not in any way familiar. She wanted to make a confession, she said. She had pretty regularly been violating a definite university rule, and she would never be quite easy in her mind until she had put the matter up to some university officer and if need be paid the penalty for her irregularity. If I thought she was foolish for writing me, I could throw her letter into the waste basket and forget that she had written me.

I could understand the state of mind she was in. She was sensitive; her appreciation of right and wrong was still keen; the thing she had done weighed on her mind, and she wanted to feel free. I told her that we would forget the whole circumstance, provided that she in the future respected the regulation.

I had done Dayton a real injustice. I knew it and he knew it, and we had somehow drifted apart. It was not easy to acknowledge my error, but that was the only manly thing to do, the only thing that would relieve my

The Payne Whitney gymnasium on the campus of Yale university is nearly completed and will be one of the finest gymnasiums in the world. Its design won for John Russell Pope of New York a silver medal in the Olympic competition at Los Angeles. The tower of the gymnasium contains a roof solarium, boxing floor, fencing floor, and wrestling floor. There are two swimming pools in the building, as well as a large amphitheater and three rowing rooms.

All Around the House

Strong household ammonia will remove medicine stains on linen.

Mayonnaise mixed with finely diced celery makes a delicious dressing for plain lettuce.

If it is difficult to open windows, rub ropes with soft soap and sashes will run smoothly.

A little milk added to the water in which cauliflower is boiled will keep the flowers white.

Rubbers should always be placed on preserving jars before the hot fruit juice is poured in. If this is done there will be no danger of burning fingers.

If raisins are heated in oven a few seconds before putting into cake mixture they will not fall to bottom of cake.

Jam that has been stored too long becomes hard and sugary. If set in a warm oven until sugar melts it will be fit to use.

When canning fruits and vegetables now in season use only sound, ripe fruits and can if possible the same day they are picked.

Lemon sirup is made by adding two-thirds cupful of lemon juice to one cupful of sugar sirup. Strain, bottle and keep in refrigerator. One part of this sirup added to six parts of ice water makes a delicious drink.

What Illinois Has

On the Illinois River Above Alton.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

With the opening of the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago in 1933, the city and the state of Illinois will be hosts to thousands of visitors.

Not many decades ago all Illinois was forest-clad; her roads were Indian trails; her buildings tepees and pioneer huts.

Then the pioneers and woodsmen pushed from the east in growing numbers. They came in flatboats and covered wagons. Later they came by steamboat and railroad. Today the old routes of the earliest pioneers echo with the hum of airplanes.

Nature endowed the state with a fertile soil to nourish mankind and stored treasures of minerals beneath to feed man's machines of travel and industry. More than all, it blessed the state with a rugged, healthful climate, which plays so large a part in fixing the temperament and destiny of peoples and nations. What man has made of these factors is the story of Illinois today.

Glimpse it for a moment as from an airplane winging northward, over crisscrossed arteries of concrete and steel and water, with towns and villages knotting them into a network. Forests and orchards of fruit give way to somber mines of coal. The earth is carpeted for miles with waving corn. Cities and tall stacks of mills become thicker. There is a broad belt of green pastures alive with dairy herds.

Then comes a great, throbbing city under a pall of smoke, with humanity snuggling closer and climbing higher. Here acres of emerald parks intersperse drab-roofed squares, and finally a burst of graceful towers edges an inland sea.

Every village, every hamlet, has its story, some in the dim past, others in the thriving present. Traces of colonial days are few in Illinois, and towns show true to type, as one rolls over the smooth concrete highways. But each adds its mite of story, and there is no easier way to see them than by jogging north, over the aptly named Meridian highway, through the center of the state, 385 miles from southern tip to northern border.

From South to North. In the course of this journey the traveler will see the aspect of nature change as in few other states. In "Egypt"—so named by the pioneers because of its fertility—peacans, cotton, tobacco, magnolias, bald cypress, and lotus are growing; in the north sugar beets, hickory, tamarack, and forests of white pine brave the biting winter. Most of Kentucky and Virginia are north of Cairo, while Boston is farther south than Zion. In the south the frost is usually gone by the end of March; in the north it keeps the farmer guessing until May.

The proposed trip will be an easy one, for no other state has more miles of concrete roads. The automobilist who starts his car in New York, heads across the continent to Seattle, down the Pacific coast to Los Angeles, over the wide open spaces to New Orleans, and then back through Richmond and Washington, will have covered less than 8,000 miles that are paved with cement concrete in Illinois. In one year more paved highway was added than the distance from Chicago to Portland, Maine, and 2,500 men and 10,000 horses were employed at the task.

Cairo is both the southern tip and within a few miles of the lowest spot in Illinois, only 279 feet above sea level. It is a city rich in memories. There Gen. Ulysses S. Grant had his headquarters from September, 1861, to April, 1862.

When the Illinois Central railroad pushed across the state, Cairo, satisfied that the Ohio river never could be bridged, saw itself a metropolis where trains and boats would always meet. Charles Dickens was one who bought a lot in the city of dreams. Before he crossed from England and made the journey west to see it, the temperamental river had moved and it was far beneath the water. He blamed Cairo, and Cairo has never forgiven him for what he wrote.

Cairo a Transfer Point. Few of the graceful old river steamers remain, both rivers have been bridged, and Cairo lives in another age. It is a transfer point between water and rail for the government barge line to New Orleans and, in winter, the northern terminal. A single tow of long, squat barges with a powerful tug can carry the grain produced on 18,000 acres. They bring up the products of the Southern states and of distant lands—sugar, coffee, bauxite, sulphur, burlap, sisal—and carry back the grain and manufactures of the Middle West. Like the pirogues and flatboats from Illinois, which 80 years ago drifted down the river with flour, smoked meat, and corn juice "moonshine," these steel barges plod eight miles an hour—no faster than Marquette paddled in his birch canoe. But the rattle of the electric truck has replaced the song of the roustabout, and one closed-fleet of barges carries the freight of a dozen splashing river boats.

The highway leaves Cairo, curving through the Ozarks. Back in the hills, families are living in primitive log cabins. "Egypt's" fields of cotton, which dare frost but escape the boll weevil, change around Anna into orchards of apples, peaches, and pears and beds of asparagus and strawberries.

Beauty spots are preserved as state forests and parks. Bald Knob, 1,030 feet high, crowns a hardwood tract. Another reserve contains the only stand of short-leaf pine in the state. Fern Cliff park has a wealth of fern-covered boulders and waterfalls, and in Giant City park nature has lined great square rocks like streets. At Tunnel Hill the Illinois Central has bored a 7,000-foot tunnel as part of the 169-mile cutoff between Edgewood, Ill., and Fulton, Ky.

Crucible clay of the highest grade comes from around Carbondale, north of Anna, and 54 of the 102 counties in Illinois produce coal, most of which is mined in adjacent Franklin and Williamson counties.

Through the Coal Fields.

Marion, where Robert G. Ingersoll studied to be a lawyer and where Gen. John A. Logan made the speech which kept southern Illinois in the Union, is 19 miles east. Near it is the town once known as "bloody" Herrin. Politics has changed and the barber shops and stores now have signs in their windows, "This place will be closed at noon for prayer."

Benton is farther north, over a straight seam of coal from 7 to 14 feet thick, estimated to contain two and a half billion tons. It is the center of vast mines, five of which in different years have held world records for production. Orient No. 2, at West Frankfort, often bringing to the surface between 14,000 and 15,000 tons a day, is one of the largest coal mines in the world. It is electrically equipped, and its lock rooms and baths for miners, a requirement under the state law, could have a regiment from black to white without overcrowding. The deepest bituminous mine shaft in the country, more than 1,000 feet, is near Assumption.

Adventurers searching for gold have settled continents, but the lasting prosperity of nations rests on structural material and baser ores—coal, iron, oil, copper, limestone, and the humble clay and sand. Pennsylvania and West Virginia, and in some years Kentucky, produce more coal than Illinois, but they rank below it in untouched deposits of bituminous.

Our automobile highway now crosses the almost-forgotten trail followed by Col. George Rogers Clark in 1778. Patrick Henry sent this youth of twenty-five and a band of Kentucky frontiersmen to establish the vast Northwest territory as part of Virginia. They came down the Ohio and unfurled the Stars and Stripes, for the first time in Illinois, over Fort Massac, now a park.

Grain and Oil.

Fields of wheat and oats alternate with corn, and oil replaces coal under the surface, as the road runs north through Centralia. Oil was discovered in Clark county 26 years ago, and once the state produced more oil than Pennsylvania. It still produces some 6,000,000 barrels a year, but it is as a refining and distribution center that Illinois is most important to the oil industry. The pipe line radiate to the Atlantic, the gulf, and Canada from Wood river and Roxana.

One of these lines follows the old trail of the covered wagon between Vincennes and Cahokia. The first mail in Illinois came along this route in 1805. Towns were spaced off every 25 miles, which then was a good day's journey.

At Olney is one of the five game havens in the state and the home of the late Robert Ridgway, formerly curator of the division of birds in the United States National museum, and a world authority on these feathered creatures. With 365 varieties, he rated Illinois rich in bird life.

Returning to the north-to-south highway, we come to Vandalia, due north of Centralia. Here is the old State Capitol building of 1820-1837, later a county courthouse, and now a museum. Its architecture of a past age contrasts with the drab two-story buildings around the Vandalia city square.

SUCH IS LIFE—The Ingenious Peddler

zen of the local region, and three non-French and non-German members. The commission is directly responsible to the League council.

"Saar took its name from the Saar river, a winding stream which flows through the western part of the region. While coal is the district's most famous product, the river banks are covered with vast fruit orchards and vineyards. There are also farms, but agriculture is not a major Saar industry. On the picturesque hills, here and there dominated by ancient castles of Roman days, are thick forests which form the basis of another important industry.

Prussian After Waterloo.

"The coal mines now being worked lie about ten miles to the northeast of Saarbrücken, a city of some 125,000 inhabitants who are employed in many industries. Saarbrücken's skyline is studied with the smokestacks of blast furnaces, metallurgical establishments of many kinds, machine shops, chemi-credited to the development of the steel industry which thrust it to the front among the important European mineral regions owing to its location near the Lorraine iron deposits.

"Recent reports indicate that there is a growing movement in some parts of Europe to urge the creation of an independent Saar state under the protection of the League of Nations. If no change is made from the original provisions of the treaty, however, in 1935 the people of the region will decide by popular vote whether to live under the French or the German flag."

List of Yanks Serving With French Completed

Volunteer Combatants Named After Much Work.

Paris—After much difficulty and a special trip to Sidi-bel-Abbes, the French and Air Association of American Volunteer Combatants in the French Army, 1914-'18, has completed preparation of a list of the American volunteer combatants who were killed fighting for France during the World war.

This list has been prepared especially for the American graves registration service in Europe and shows that of 90 Americans who served at the front in the Foreign Legion 40 were killed. Seven others died of wounds or as a result of having been gassed.

Sixty-eight of the 180 American pilots in the Lafayette Escadrille and the Lafayette Flying corps were killed, most of whom are buried at the Lafayette Escadrille memorial at Garches, near the port of Saint Cloud. In securing this information all of the dossiers of the foreigners who fought in the French ranks during the World war were examined. This was a difficult task, as all of these dossiers are filed away at the Foreign Legion headquarters at Sidi-bel-Abbes in Algeria.

All of the volunteers from North and South American countries are listed under the general heading of Americans, which made it doubly difficult to sort out the men from the United States. There is some confusion in mentioning this organization with another composed of former American civilian welfare workers during the World war, called the Association of American Volunteers with the French Army, the members of which did not enlist in the French army or wear a French uniform. The French and Air Association of American Volunteer Combatants in the French Army, 1914-'18, is, therefore, always mentioned by its full name and complete title.

Disappearance of Judge Still Remains Mystery

Two-Year Search for New York Jurist Unavailing.

New York.—Two years ago Supreme Court Justice Joseph Force Crater sauntered casually out of Haas' restaurant, 332 West Forty-fifth street, Manhattan, stepped into a taxicab, waved a jovial farewell to the friends with whom he had been dining, and drove off into oblivion.

Not only have the police been unable to find any trace of him, dead or alive, but they have been unable to locate the taxi driver or cab in which many of his friends believe he took his last ride.

But whatever his fate, he left behind him a baffling mystery that already has taken its place beside the mysterious disappearance of Dorothy Arnold and Charlie Ross.

Intensive Search Futile.
Never in recent years has there been so intensive or so futile a search for a missing person. Coming in the midst of the investigation of charges that District Leader Martin J. Healy had accepted a $10,000 bribe for obtaining George W. Ewald an appointment as city magistrate, it created a political sensation.

The attorney general's investigation into the Healy-Ewald charges was extended to cover other charges which were sent from various sources to the attorney general affecting higher and lower courts. The attorney general dug deep into the Crater disappearance in an effort to learn whether his mysterious absence had any connection with the judicial probe. He could find none.

The police, personal friends and members of the family of the jurist were equally unable to find any reason why he should vanish. The board of aldermen offered a reward of $25,000 for information as to his whereabouts. Mayor Walker offered $5,000 reward. Other rewards were offered by the newspapers.

It was estimated that in all some $250,000 was spent in running down will-o'-the-wisp clues in various parts of the United States, Canada, Mexico and Cuba. The search is still on.

Legally Justice Crater is still alive. His wife, Mrs. Stella Crater, still clings to a tenuous hope that he may actually be so.

If he is alive, a secondary mystery is how a man with such unusual characteristics can remain undiscovered after his photograph and description have been spread so widely throughout virtually the entire civilized world.

For Crater's appearance was such as would attract attention anywhere. Although he was six feet tall and weighed 185 pounds, his head was so small that he wore a 6 1/2 hat. With all his bulk, he had a long, thin neck, and wore a size 14 collar.

Crater was appointed to the Supreme court bench on April 8, 1930, by Governor Roosevelt to succeed Joseph F. Proskauer.

Spending the summer of 1930 with his wife at Belgrade Lake, Maine, where they had been going for 15 years, Crater received a telephone call on August 2 and told his wife he was going to Manhattan on important political business.

Never Saw Him Again.
On August 4, 5 and 6 he was in his chambers in the New York county courthouse, according to his personal attendant, Joseph Mara, son of John Mara, Tammany leader of the twenty-third A. D. On August 6, Mara said,

Justice Crater spent most of the morning tearing up papers and putting others in a brief case and in four cardboard boxes.

Then he sent Mara out to cash two checks totaling $5,100. Mara returned with the money and helped the jurist carry the boxes of papers and the brief case to his apartment at 40 Fifth avenue, Manhattan. He told Mara he was "going up in Westchester for a swim" and would be back the next day. That was the last Mara ever saw of him.

But he did not go to Westchester that afternoon and his movements have been traced that night up to the time he entered the mystery cab. At 6:30 he purchased a theater ticket at the theatrical ticket office of Joseph Grainsky in Times Square. Then he went to the Forty-fifth street restaurant.

In the restaurant he dined with William Klein, attorney for Shubert brothers; a show girl named Sally Lou Ritz, and her parents. They left the restaurant with him and it was to them he waved farewell after he stepped into the taxicab.

Red Ants Fill Signal, Halt Trains in Texas

Marshall, Texas.—Ants—common red ants—stopped traffic on the Louisiana division of the Texas & Pacific railroad for a time, much to the annoyance of everybody.

Passenger train No. 24, eastbound, encountered a red light near Scottsville and halted. Trainmen were unable to find the cause. Train No. 26 had the same trouble.

An investigation revealed that ants had worked into the signal box and formed the contact. Many ants had been electrocuted, breaking the current and causing the signal to remain red.

England's "White Horses"

There are three "White Horses" in England, one in Berkshire, one on the downs three miles east of Westbury in Wiltshire, and a third at Lulworth near Weymouth in Dorsetshire. On the top of the White Horse hill in Berkshire is a magnificent Roman camp, complete as if left only a few years ago, and on the downs at Westbury the earth works are as perfect as any could be found in France from the World war. As these two horses are only a few miles apart, with their camps, there seems good reason for believing the legends told of them to be founded in fact. There is no doubt that battles were fought in that section. The Dorsetshire horse was cut to commemorate another event.

Two Great Expositions Are Planned by Paris

Paris.—Two great world expositions are planned for Paris during the next five years, a first World's Labor fair, in 1935, and the second International Decorative Arts exposition, in 1937. They will be followed by a third International Colonial exposition before 1940.

Modern decorative arts, particularly in furniture, interior decorating, jewelry and architecture, have changed so rapidly that the lines which existed in 1925, the epoch of the first arts exposition, are sadly out of fashion.

The labor fair is intended to revive the trades and corporations of other centuries, to re-establish the bands of each branch of industry. It will also revive the great labor fetes of the European calendars of the days of kings and serfs—the annual harvest fetes, grape picking parties, and other celebrations which went out with the revolution.

Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1118 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way.

Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

Perfect No Trump Hand Dealt Player

Buffalo, N. Y.—Mrs. George C. Lehmann was dealt a perfect bridge hand in a recent game with her husband and two other players.

Mrs. Lehmann kept a straight face when picking up her cards and with no trace of emotion bid a grand slam at no trump to the astonishment of the other players.

The unusual hand contained every ace, king and queen in the deck, together with one jack.

Lost at Sea for 115 Days

Drifting helplessly for 115 days in a disabled 30 foot fishing boat, B. A. Riggs of Dutch Harbor, Alaska, was picked up off Point San Luis, Calif. He was weak from hunger and exhaustion after nearly four months of wandering over the seas, during which, he said, he was once driven by the wind to a point only 900 miles from Honolulu. The photograph shows Riggs on the bow of his boat.

Nile River Water Will Engulf Temple of Isis

Was Erected to Isis, Goddess of Fertility.

Cairo, Egypt.—Again one of those extraordinary coincidences between the super natural mythology of ancient Egypt and happenings in the land of Pharaohs in the present day has come to startle believers in the occult. When the late Lord Carnarvon, who, with Howard Carter, brought the relics of Tut-ankh-Aman's tomb to light, died as the result of the bite of an insect, mystics pointed to the fate of the great archeologist as the fulfillment of a dire prophecy. The modern world considered the death of Lord Carnarvon as merely a strange coincidence.

And now those conversant with Egyptian mythology point to the forthcoming submergence of the temple of Isis, ancient Egyptian goddess of fertility, which is so oddly linked with the mythology of the goddess. For the mysterious temple of Isis, which is located on the most beautiful island in all Egypt, Philae, seven miles south of the great Assuan dam, will be completely submerged when the Assuan reservoir, now being enlarged, is filled by the annual flood waters of the Nile. And as the waters of the Nile annually recede from the flood stage, this great temple, one of the most beautiful ruins of antiquity, will, as if having imparted to the waters the fertility which the ancient Egyptians believed was in the power of the goddess to bestow, again for a season, appear in its former glory.

Isis, the patron goddess of the Pharaohs, was the goddess of nature and fertility, and the greatest goddess of Egypt, who, with her husband Osiris, legend relates, dwelt when on earth on the fruitful island of Philae. Osiris was a kind and beneficent god. He was the first to teach his children, the Egyptians, how to grow barley and wheat and how to make wine. He also built banks along the Nile to prevent it from destroying life and property at flood times and constructed irrigation canals to make richly productive the barren lands near the Nile valley.

In addition to being worshiped as the god of agriculture, Osiris was looked upon as having the same powers as Hep, the divine keeper of the Nile. When the mineral impregnated waters of the great stream made fertile the lands along its banks so that the crops grown thereon were bounteous, offerings were made him by the priesthood in the temple of Isis.

Boys Mixed Up at Birth May Get Right Parents

Berlin.—A mother's recognition of familiar features of a son twelve years old may restore to her her rightful boy in place of the child given her by mistake at the time of his birth.

Frau Marie Donk of Gladbach, Germany, has a suit on file to force Frau Mathilda Beuth to exchange sons born 12 years ago in a maternity clinic. The prospects for the exchange are favorable, but the happiness of the boys, in finding natural parents whom they do not know, is being considered.

We are progressing well in our Bookkeeping class in which there are thirteen members.

We are proud of the up-to-date equipment in our commercial room. Each student is provided a desk with three drawers. Four new Underwood typewriters bring our number to twelve.

Music and Art Notes
Both the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs have been doing some nice work. The Girls' Glee Club, especially, has some fine part-work and harmonizing to its credit.

The senior high art class has completed designs in pen and ink drawings. There are some exceptional designs, and most of the work was very neat.

The seventh and eighth grades have been divided into three sections for project work in music. Each section will have a month to complete its work, outside of school. We are making instruments of the ancient peoples which were known by three stages of development—the drum, pipe, and lute. Each division has one of these classes to work on.

The fifth and sixth grades have just completed some moulded crayon notebooks, in rectangular design.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
The following pupils of the eighth grade have had perfect spelling lessons since school began: Betty Holland and Effie Prescott. In the seventh grade Thelma Herman has had no errors in her spelling paper since September 6.

We have had several pupils absent the past week. In most cases illness has been the cause, but even this is to be regretted.

The seventh and eighth grades voted to use their recess period for study this year, and they seem to be making the most of it.

Some very artistic posters have been made in art class in our room. Now we are going to try our skill in making some of the primitive musical instruments. Our room is divided into three sections and each section makes one type of instrument. You will hear about our project again.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
We are making attractive notebook covers of moulded crayon work in art class. We will use these covers for our geography notebooks. The sixth graders have begun work on their notebooks and the fifth graders will soon begin theirs.

Our room has had no absences so far this year.

Health inspectors for this week are June Brown, Herbert Cox, Allan Miller, and Martin McCormick. June Smith is board captain for this week.

Betty Davis, Norma Malcolm, and Charles Cecil have had perfect spelling papers every day this month.

Third and Fourth Grades

An interesting surprise was given us last Friday when Junior Musolf and Hugh Prescott, dressed up like Indians, demonstrated for us how the Indians make their fires, how they make their wigs, and how they shoot their bows and arrows. They also gave an Indian war dance.
Our new fourth grade health inspector is Mary Sims and the third grade inspector is Marie Ulman.
We were sorry that Richard Prescott was hit in the eye and couldn't be with us Tuesday.

Primary

Dorothy White and Ruth Westcott visited in our room last week.

Richard Sievert is visiting at Fort Wayne, Ind., this week.

Ralph Hill was absent Tuesday of this week.

Leland Harris has moved to East Tawas.

(We have a daily newspaper in our room.)
