TAWAS CITY

STATE OFFICIALS WILL SPEAK AT ROAD BANQUET

The completion of the Shore Road to Tawas City will be fittingly observed next Monday evening with a banquet at the Hotel Isoco. Governor Wilber M. Brucker, Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner, and other state officials will speak. Rev. Frank Metcalf will be toastmaster.

The banquet is being given under the auspices of the Tawas City Improvement Association with the following committee in charge: H. J. Keiser, chairman, George A. Prescott, Jr., Rev. Frank Metcalf, M. C. Musolf and P. N. Thornton. Chairman Keiser reported Wednesday evening that 180 tickets had been sold which is the capacity of the hotel dining room.

Last Saturday afternoon, the last section of pavement was poured near Alabaster in the Tawas City-County Line section of the Shore road and within a few days it will be open to through traffic, giving the people in the territory along Saginaw and Tawas bays a hard surfaced highway to Bay City.

The Hilding Construction company, builders of the eight miles of pavement in Isoco county, gave their employees a banquet Monday evening at the Hotel Holland.

Local Team Goes to Defeat In 3 to 2 Battle

Tawas City and the East Tawas Merchants battled for 12 innings last Sunday before the Merchants eked out a 3-2 victory over the locals at the athletic field here.

Boulder and M. Lixey were the opponents in a real pitchers' duel that lasted throughout the nine regular frames and then went on to three extras. Boulder whiffed 15, yielded ten hits and passed three during the course of the game, while Lixey struck out 16, allowed nine hits and also passed three men.

Both teams settled down immediately at the start for a hard struggle and played splendid ball. East Tawas' winning run in the twelfth came when Boulder granted a base on balls with the sacks loaded forcing in a run. The locals passed up opportunities in the ninth and twelfth to win the game. In the ninth Swartz, first man up, tripled, but was caught stealing home after two men had failed in their attempts to score him. Again in the

"PACK UP YOUR TROUBLES" SATIRE ON ARMY LIFE

"Pack Up Your Troubles," the latest Laurel and Hardy feature-length comedy, which comes to the Family Theatre, showing Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, October 4-5-6, marks the second full-length attraction starring the popular laugh team.

Laurel and Hardy are a couple of misfit buck privates. Their pal gets lost in No Man's Land, and they are ordered to rescue him. Then they become entangled in a couple of tanks, and what happens is reported to be one of the many amusing highlights of the picture.

The title will undoubtedly bring to the minds of many people the refrain of one of the popular songs sung during the World War.

Prominent members of the supporting cast include Mary Carr, Donald Dillaway, Jacquie Lynn, little three-year-old "Our Gang" member, Muriel Evans, Grady Sutton, Richard Tucker and James Finlayson.

EMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH
Friday, September 30—Announcements for Holy Communion are requested to be made in the afternoon and evening.

Sunday, October 2—English service, 9:30 a. m.; German service, 11:00 a. m., together with Holy Communion. The choir will render a hymn at this service. A short congregational meeting will be held between the two services.

Monday, October 3—Choir rehearsal at 7:30 p. m.

Wednesday, October 5—The Ladies Aid will meet at the parsonage at 2:00 p. m.

L. D. S. CHURCH
10:30 a. m.—Church School. Harrison Frank in charge.
11:15 a. m.—Sacrament and Social Services.
8:00 p. m.—Preaching by the Pastor. Subject: "The Crown of Life—How Can We Find It? Not Lose It Again?" Text: James, Chapter 1, v. 12. "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him." M. A. Sommerfeld, Pastor.

IN MEMORIAM
In loving memory of Carl A. Look, Sr., who passed away one year ago this 3rd day of October, 1931—
Not dead to those who loved him,
Not lost but gone before;
He lives with us in memory still,
And will forevermore.
Sadly missed by his wife and children.

The Twentieth Century Club will open the club year with its first meeting at Sand Lake at the Horton cottage Saturday, October 1, with Mrs. Horton as hostess. The program is as follows:

Roll call—How do you do, where have you been?—Summer memories; report from district convention at West Branch—Mrs. Lucile Stevens. A pot luck supper will be served. Bring dishes.

AUDIE JOHNSON POST No. 211 ELECTS OFFICERS

At a meeting of Audie Johnson Post No. 211, American Legion, of East Tawas, held Monday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Post Commander—Jay Platt.
First Vice-Commander—Earl Gentry.
Second Vice-Commander—James Ford.

Post Adjutant—Joseph Barkman.
Post Finance Officer—Joseph Barkman.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Frank LaBerge.
Post Chaplain—Elmer Kunze.
Welfare Officer—Arthur Dillon.

S. H. PATTERSON

Samuel Homer Patterson passed away Saturday, September 24, at his home in Burleigh township, following a stroke of apoplexy.

The deceased was born April 28, 1860, in Barry county, Ohio. He came with his parents to Gratiot county when a child, and spent most of his life there. On December 24, 1882 he was married to Alice Moore and to this union six children were born, one dying in infancy. His wife died May 24, 1894. On April 27, 1888, he was married to Mrs. Ella Carriek. To this union two children were born, two dying in infancy. In 1926 he moved to his farm in Burleigh township, where he and his wife lived until her death September 2, 1930, and where he spent the rest of his life alone.

He leaves to mourn his loss three sons, Clyde of Pompeii, Roy of Grand Ledge, Homer of Lansing, and three daughters, Mrs. Florence Epper of Portland, Oregon, Mrs. Earl Jones of Flint, Mrs. Corey St. James of Whittemore; also a host of friends and neighbors who will miss him.

"THE STRANGE CASE OF CLARA DEANE" AT STATE

Wynne Gibson, the talented young actress who stepped from the musical comedy stage to success in the talkies by way of "Nothing But the Truth," "Ladies of the Big House" and "Two Kinds of Women," has her first big starring role with Paramount in "The Strange Case of Clara Deane," coming to the State Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

In this talkie version of Arthur M. Brilliant's brilliant stage hit, Miss Gibson attains to heights that will bring her great fame in the annals of the photoplay.

The story takes the audience over a span of about twenty years, and the gradual metamorphosis of the hapless Clara Deane through the years of trying circumstances is shown with all the production value, all the skill of advanced artistry in the use of make-up for which Paramount is famous.

The climax packs a terrific heart-wallop in a series of melodramatic incidents, with Clara Deane as the heroine. The ending is not the customary sugary one—but contains a satisfying modicum of happiness.

GOLF

One of the most interesting golf competitions held this year was conducted last Sunday at the Tawas Golf Club course when a best-ball tournament was held. First place was won by Robert DeLong and Robert Sheldon. Second place was won by Arthur Dillon and James Ruckman.

DeLong and Sheldon turned in a best-ball score of 82 for the 18 holes while Dillon and Ruckman turned in an 85. Best-ball competitions allow players of average ability to turn in some very creditable scores by playing in partnerships and recording only the low score of the partnership at each hole.

RAM TRUCK WILL BE AT LATTER FARM OCT. 6

Arrangements have been made to have the Michigan Purebred Sheep Breeders' Association ram truck visit the county and a stop will be made at the Fred Latter farm, three miles north and one mile east of Whittemore, on Thursday, October 6, at 9:30 a. m. This project, as formerly, is being sponsored by the Michigan State College Extension Department as a service in helping the county sheep men in the selection of high quality sires.

At this stop a regular sheep meeting will be conducted and discussions will be given on timely flock management practices. The fact that the rams are present makes this meeting of additional interest as these animals are used to show the various breed characteristics, and to show how to age, judge and handle sheep. Other important topics such as culling the ewe flock, lamb grading, flushing and breeding problems will also be taken up. This discussion is being given by the State Sheep Extension Specialist.

The rams on the truck this year will be of a very good quality and will be priced to sell. They have been carefully selected by the Secretary of the Purebred Sheep Breeder's Association and the extension specialist. Only the low down blocky type rams have been chosen. (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

C. C. of R. E. Will Meet at Hale, Tuesday

The annual convention of the Isoco County Council of Religious Education will be held in the Hale Baptist church on Tuesday, October 4th. Keep this date open and plan to attend this meeting as a splendid program has been arranged. Come and enjoy a day of sociability and spiritual uplift.

The following is a program of the meeting:

10:00 a. m.—Worship and prayer, Rev. Metcalf.

10:15 a. m.—General study—"Supervision in Religious Education"—Bernard Coggan.

11:15 a. m.—Business—Financial report.

3:00 p. m.—State Work. Bernard Coggan.

3:30 p. m.—Offering—Music.

3:45 p. m.—Final study—"Keeping the Modern Home Christian"—Bernard Coggan. This study will aim to tie together the home and church by a practical program of Christian home building.

4:30 p. m.—Closing song and prayer.

IOSCO INDEPENDENTS DEFEATED BY TURNER

The Isoco County Independents dropped a 10-1 decision to Turner last Sunday at Sand Lake. Errors played a big part in bringing about a one-sided score, the Icosos committing eleven of them to Turner's favorite animal was the wild cat, while Mrs. Brown amused herself with the camel. Miss Mott spent most of her time at the monkey cage until Mrs. Schuster hopped out of the kangaroo pen and created a panic in the zoo which did not subside for some time.

Later in the evening all guests participated in a "lying hunt." Mrs. Schuster brought back the most original specimen and was awarded the prize for telling the best story of the hunt. Mrs. Charters was a close second, and Mrs. Brown received honorable mention.

The unusual evening was enjoyed by all, and the club is looking forward to the May meeting when Mrs. George Christie will entertain at her home on the Prescott farm.

The Whittemore Past Matron's Club of the O. E. S. consists of the following active members: Mrs. Wm. Leslie of Tawas City, Mrs. Sarah Brown and Mrs. Ida Rahl of Hale, Mrs. Anna Thompson and Miss Ora Mott of Prescott, Mrs. Ellen Schuster, Mrs. Florence Curtis and Mrs. Winifred Charters of Whittemore. Honorary members are: Mrs. Carrie Dunham of Prescott, and Mrs. Sarah Johnson and Mrs. Greve of Hale.

JOAN BLONDELL IN HER FIRST STARRING PICTURE

In "Miss Pinkerton," a modern mystery thriller which comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Sunday and Monday, October 2-3, the management of the Family finds a series of reasons for elation.

It brings to full-fledged stardom Joan Blondell, one of the screen's most fascinating young actresses.

It brings to the screen the latest and most sensational literary effort of Mary Roberts Rinehart, one of America's really great women writers.

The scenes are laid in and about New York City and the title is given to the nurse because she is so clever or deductions in following the slayer while working as a nurse in the household.

Miss Blondell has the sensational George Brent for her leading man and a supporting cast consisting of Ruth Hall, Holmes Herbert, Donald Dillaway, Mary Doran, C. Henry Gordon, Elizabeth Patterson and Blanche Frederici.

JEHOL ONCE SUMMER RESORT OF MANCHUS

Taken From Mongolia to Make New Manchuria.

Washington.—"Jehol, scene of recently reported Japanese campaigns in Manchuria (Manchukuo), is one of the four provinces that since 1929, when Jehol was clipped from Inner Mongolia, make up the new Manchuria," says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

"Jehol, perhaps, was unknown to the average layman until it sprang into the spotlight recently in connection with the movement of Japanese troops. If modern newspapers had been printed two centuries ago, its happening would have been frequently in the headlines. It was the summer place of Manchu emperors. In some thirty magnificent palace buildings, some of the great Manchurian leaders were born, lived or died.

"The province is about as long as New York state measured from New York city northward to its northern border, and about as wide. It also lies nearly in the same latitude as the Empire state.

"For the most part the province is hilly. The Great Khingan mountains form its western border. The southern part of the province is almost devoid of vegetation. Hungry cook stoves and fireplaces have even stripped trees, roots, and bushes from the soil. In winter, it is a common sight to see natives raking the ground for bits of fire wood.

"Lack of transportation is, perhaps, one of the leading drawbacks of Jehol. No railroads enter the province; it has no seashore; and it has no large rivers. Roads are hardly more than mere paths over which animals and crude carts pass. In some regions automobile trucks link towns. Wooden seats for passengers are placed around the sides of the trucks. After the traveler thinks the vehicle is full to capacity, more passengers enter the vehicle and occupy as small spaces as possible on the floor. Ten miles an hour is a high speed on Jehol roads. An automobile ride reminds the experienced traveler of a voyage on a rough sea in a small boat, for the way usually consists of a series of boulders and holes. When Jehol awakens, about 80,000,000 tons of anthracite and 850,000,000 tons of bituminous coal will be ready for modern transportation facilities.

"Jehol city is reached after about 144 miles of rough traveling from Peiping. On the route the traveler frequently passes through typical villages of southern Jehol with their native inns of mud construction. A warm brick bed and a smoky lamp are all that the inn keeper provides. Millet cooked as rice, and buckwheat flour made into dough strings, bean curd and cabbage, are among the chief foods served to guests.

"The Jehol district exports hides, sheep's wool for carpet making, bristles, licorice root, and furs. When crops are good, some millet, sorghum, beans, buckwheat, cotton, tobacco and melons find their way to outside markets.

"Jehol city is but a skeleton of the city it once was. The six-mile wall

Scientists to Seek Buried City

Plan Long Trip Through the Jungles of Yucatan.

Los Angeles.—Lured by a hope of locating a mysterious city of the extinct Mayan empire, a party of six scientists soon will leave New York on a 1,200-mile trek through the jungles of Yucatan and Central America.

Lawrence T. K. Griswold, former Harvard archeology student, who, at thirty-one, already has spent 10 years in research among the mountain fastnesses of Peru and Bolivia, and the massed terrain of Central America, heads the expedition.

In Walker's Place

Joseph V. McKee, president of the board of aldermen of New York, who succeeded James J. Walker as mayor of the metropolis when the latter resigned rather than subject himself to Governor Roosevelt's decision as to his removal.

The expedition also will seek to record the life and dialects of five vanishing tribes, the descendants of the Maya's subjects thousands of years ago.

Griswold is one of the few men who can read the mystic picture writing of the Mayas. He clings to a theory that the Mayas were of Aryan, not Indian, origin; that they were tall, blue-eyed and perhaps bearded people, who crossed the Atlantic centuries ago. He believes that, with the labor supplied by a million enslaved native subjects, they erected the most elaborate civilization the new world had known until the coming of the Europeans in the Fifteenth century A. D.

Griswold said on a previous expedition to this area he sighted the lost city from an airplane, but the dense foliage made it impossible to land. It was distinguished by a huge palace, which he believes contains valuable records of the civilization he seeks to reveal.

In addition to Griswold, the personnel of the expedition will include Robert Penrose Chapman, son of the late Samuel Hudson Chapman, noted archeologist, who will be photographic director. Glen R. Kershner, veteran Hollywood cinematographer and member of the Donald McMillan polar expedition last year, will accompany the group to record the dances and languages of the native clans in sound films.

The California group will be joined in New York by five additional members.

Unemployed Man Builds Remarkable Telescope

Conneaut, Ohio.—Unemployed during the business slump, Frank Saunders has built a powerful telescope in his back yard.

He doesn't claim that he will startle the world with discoveries of new planets or solar system phenomena. He says the instrument was built to satisfy a desire to work with intricate mechanisms.

The telescope was built at a cost of about $30, but it was valued, upon completion, at more than $1,000. Saunders used odds and ends, including an axle, in constructing the instrument.

The 10-inch concave reflector would cost about $400 at an optical store. Saunders said, but he paid $7 for a piece of plate glass 1 1/2 inches thick, ground it to the required dimensions by hand, then silvered it himself.

Weird Religious Rites

Enduring Torture Is a Part of This East Indian's Religion.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service

MORE weird than the famous snake dance which was recently held by the Hopi Indians, perhaps, are the fire-walking ceremonies held by East Indians of the Strait Settlements.

This ceremony draws thousands of devotees to the ceremonial stage. The yard of the temple in which the main act is staged is thronged with people and the streets for many blocks around overflow with humanity. Hindus, Chinese and Malays make up the bulk of the audience but there are also tourists from many parts of the world to witness the spectacle.

The task of wending way through this seething mob is as difficult as that of finding a place in a New York subway express during the rush hour and vastly more unpleasant, for most of these human beings wear practically no clothing. It is with a thankful sigh of relief that one sinks into a chair on a balcony and looks down upon the throngs, composed chiefly of spectators.

There are several hundred devotees. Including a number of women. Some kneel and touch the earth with their foreheads, while others, more devout, literally grovel in the dirt. A few endeavor to crawl or roll completely around the temple, a task which would be difficult if the path was clear and covered with velvety moss instead of being rough, crowded, and thick with dust. Elderly men seen at the end of their strength when they complete their self-appointed penance, although friends accompany them and lift them over drains and other hindrances.

Many of those who have made a vow to undergo torture have prepared their bodies the preceding month by some form of penance and have refrained from eating for a day before the event. While these zealots are proceeding with their tasks, a bed of coals is prepared. Great piles of wood are burned to embers; then the ashes are raked into a nest bed about 24 feet long. At the end of the mass of live coals is dug a pool, which is filled with milk brought to the spot in earthenware jars. The images of the gods are then brought from the temple and placed near this pool of milk.

Dash Across the Embers.

When all seems in readiness, one hears the sound of drums and a stir of excitement sweeps over the crowds. This signifies the return of devotees from the Serangoon road temple, whither they go to complete final preparations. The next instant two men appear with a goat, one holding the frightened creature's head and the other a hind leg. Another man raises a scythe-like knife and in an instant the head is severed from the body. A fourth participant snatches the quivering, bleeding body and runs around the bed of coals, then disappears in the throng.

By this time the uninitiated might be feeling desperately ill, but with no possible chance of escape, for the crowds are now in a frenzied state and it would be unsafe to leave one's refuge. The staring eyes of the devotees seem glued upon the idols at the other end of the path of glowing embers. Finally the priests who hold back the devotees begin to lash them with whips, and one by one they make a dash, barefooted, across the red-hot coals into the pool of milk. Each participant wears a short covering of cheesecloth stained yellow by saffron water, and each carries in his hands, clenched above his head, a twig of green from a tree supposed to possess curative properties. The wrists are tied together with yellow amulets. If the person is pure, the amulet will remain unbroken.

The priests sometimes strike a devotee several times, and then give the wrists a stinging blow before releasing him. Not one flinches, nor do any appear to have felt the cut of the whip. Some run and some walk slowly through the coals. The women seem much calmer than the men. Some of them carry babies in their arms.

Legend of Draupadi.

A legend seems to be at the base of the origin of this ceremony. The Pandus—five brothers who reigned in former Hastinapura, 60 miles from modern Delhi, had one queen, Draupadi, the deity invoked at this festival. These five kings had some cousins who envied their position. Duryodhana, their leader, conceived a plan whereby he could obtain the coveted kingdom. He invited the Pandus to a gambling party at his palace and through trickery won their kingdom.

Duryodhana then sent for the queen and endeavored to disrobe her in public. A higher power protected her chastity by making her garments unending. Through sheer exhaustion, Duryodhana finally gave up his attempt to disrobe Draupadi, who then untied his turban and vowed that she would not retwine it until her enemies had been destroyed, and then she would bathe in fire as a proof of her chastity. A war followed, and when the Pandus were the victors Draupadi performed her vow. So today she is worshiped as one of the seven goddesses of chastity, and even the mention of her name is enough to "wipe away all sins."

Walking through fire has become a custom for the curing of bodily ills or the overcoming of other calamities. Faith in the efficacy of these ceremonies is absolute. Suppose some member of one's family has suffered a serious illness, over which the medical man seems to have no power. One makes a vow to perform Treemiri or Tai Pusam and the recovery begins at the end of the ceremony. Or suppose one is filled with gratitude for blessings which have been bestowed or is desirous of having favors vouchsafed in the future. Again a vow is made to walk on fire or decorate the body with needles thrust into the flesh, and all will be well.

To the Hindu god Subramanya, son of Siva, the Tai Pusam vows are made. This three-day ceremony takes place in Singapore in January. Weeks in advance the participants prepare themselves by abstaining from the routines of life.

The first day of the ceremony the silver car, which is the palanquin of the image of the god, is brought forth from its shelter in the courtyard of the Tank road temple, dusted and polished, then drawn to the South Bridge road temple, where it remains under a canopy until the third day. On the car is a throne-like seat for Subramanya.

Martyrs of Subramanya.

On the second day the difficult part of the vow is performed. Although the devotees begin early in the morning, it is usually late afternoon before all have had a chance to become self-made martyrs. The participants—men, women, and children—gather in the grounds of the temple and bathe in a well the water of which has been blessed previously by the officiating priest.

The image of the god is garlanded with flowers, most intricately and artistically arranged, and showered with offerings of rice, bananas, coconuts, betel leaf, and other delicacies. The vow-maker is now closely surrounded by his friends, who chant passages from the Vedas, here and there inserting in unison the cry of "Aro Hara." Next, powdered ashes, which may or may not be prepared to relieve the sensitiveness of the skin, are dusted over the body. The flesh is sometimes pounded with the edge of the land, causing the skin to rise.

Within eyeshot sits a Tamil clad in a loincloth and silver pins. Two temple officials, one on each side, prepare the martyr for his three-mile pilgrimage to the temple on Tank road by thrusting pins into his flesh. His chest, his back, his forehead, his arms and thighs, are entirely covered with small, shining V-shaped pins. He seems almost in a state of coma and his eyes roll in their sockets until at times only the whites are visible.

The observer finds himself also in the midst of another group, watching the priests thrusting long spearlike needles through holes in the metal laths of a fanlike arch over another devotee. These needles, which are from two to three feet long, have to be fastened securely in the flesh of the chest and back in order to hold in place this heavy metal canopy. Through his cheek is thrust a silver skewer, which protrudes an inch or more on each side of his face.

that surrounded the imperial estate no longer protects magnificent palaces, but the ruins of them.

"The summer palaces were built in the early part of the Eighteenth century. The place was struck by lightning in 1820 and the emperor, believing the occurrence a bad omen, deserted it. It was not occupied again until 1860 when Emperor Hsien Feng fled there from Peiping. He lived less than a year after his arrival, completely demonstrating to the satisfaction of the imperial family that evil spirits inhabited the place. On two later occasions when Manchu rulers fled from Peiping they found other sanctuaries than Jehol."

SPEAKING ONE'S MIND

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men,
University of Illinois.

Balcom believed in speaking his mind whenever a subject came up for discussion. It seemed to him not quite honest or truthful to do otherwise. He felt that unless he told the whole truth about a proposition as he saw it, he was temporizing. So he never held back, he never subdued his feelings or said less or expressed it less heatedly than he was feeling at the time when he was expected to speak. If he felt that he had been done an injustice in any case he said so, if he disliked anything or anybody he spoke out. There was no uncertainty as to how Balcom felt about anything or anybody which or who might be up for discussion. So you can see from these statements that he was seldom, if ever, a diplomat.

"I believe in saying just what I think," he was wont to say, "and putting things to 'em straight." It never occurred to Balcom that one might safely think on some subjects without feeling called upon to express everything he thought, that one might have strong feeling without giving full expression to it.

Bacon and Kent had a difference of opinion as to the proper procedure in a matter in which they had a common interest. They had been friends for twenty years and had very close co-operation in their work; but each felt that the other had done him an injustice, had not been quite fair or open in his conduct, and there was irritation on the part of both. When they met to talk over their differences each spoke his mind, which meant that each one said all the sharp, cutting, nasty things which had been rankling within him for weeks. It did no good, this frankness. It did not cure the difficulty or heal the wounds which had been made by their misunderstanding. Could they, for a half hour, have buried their animosities, could they have inhibited feelings and kept back the cutting, galling words, they might have settled their difficulties amicably and have strengthened the friendship which had existed for so many years; but as it was they spoke their minds and said all the personal nasty things to each other that anger stimulated, and their friendship will never be the same again, for a thing once said is beyond recall.

Comets Go Tail-First

The gaseous matter of a comet's tail is of such composition that it is repelled rather than attracted by the sun. Thus it is that all comet tails point away from the solar king. Consequently after a comet passes the sun, it proceeds tail-first. Comets are composed of three parts—the nucleus, the coma, and the tail.

CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

JOLLY, round, red Mr. Sun was just going to bed behind the Purple Hills as Peter Rabbit stole into the Old Orchard. It was just that beautiful hour between daytime and nighttime when the little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest who have been busy all day are beginning to get drowsy and are thinking of going to bed, while those who have been sleeping all day are getting sleepy-winks out of their eyes and are thinking about filling empty stomachs. The Old Orchard always is very pleasant at this hour. Peter likes to steal up there and sit chit-chit!" Once more Sooty raced high overhead shouting joyously. "He looks like a swallow anyway," declared Peter, "but if you say he isn't one I suppose he isn't. If he is a swift he is well named, for he certainly is swift enough in the air. I guess I don't know much about him." "I guess you don't," declared Johnny Chuck, if you call him a swallow. The trouble with a lot of people is that they don't know anything about their neighbors and just guess at things. You've known Sooty by sight a long time, haven't you?" "Ever since I can remember," replied Peter. "Summer wouldn't be summer without Sooty cutting up and racing around up in the air. But I've never seen him close to, or sitting still, and I've never thought much about him. He never before seemed to me very interesting." "Huh!" exclaimed Johnny Chuck. Everybody is interesting if you take the trouble to get acquainted." (© 1932, by T. W. Burgess.)—WNU Service.

Peter Turned to Look at Johnny and Was Puzzled at the Look of Disgust on Johnny's Face.

for a while near Johnny Chuck's doorstep to chat with Johnny Chuck while they watch the first of the Black Shadows steal among the trees and listen to the good-night twitters of the feathered folk and the beautiful evening song of Brownie the Thrush. "Chitter-chitter-chitter-chit! Chitter-chitter-chitter-chit! Chit, chit, chit, chit!" Peter put his head back to look up. Over the tops of the trees raced a black form, this way, that way, turning, wheeling and then with rapid wing beats racing straight ahead, all the time shouting joyously. It was a bird, of course. Flitter the Bat is the only animal who can fly, and he cannot fly anything like the darting little black form Peter was watching. It was Sooty the Swift.

"Sooty gets more fun out of flying than anybody I know of," declared Peter. "Just listen to him! He shouts just for pure joy of using those queer little wings. I know how he feels. He feels just as I do when I race around and kick up my heels just for pure joy in being alive. Sometimes I wish I could shout then, but you know I can't, because I haven't any voice for shouting. Just listen to Sooty! He isn't much to look at, but he seems to have more fun than any bird I know of unless it is Skimmer the Swallow, and then after all, Sooty is a swallow himself."

"Huh!" It was Johnny Chuck. "Huh!" exclaimed Johnny again. Peter turned to look at Johnny and was puzzled at the look of disgust on Johnny's face. "Huh!" exclaimed Johnny Chuck once more. "For a fellow who goes about as much as you do and pokes his nose into other people's affairs as much as you do, Peter Rabbit, you know mighty little about your neighbors. Whoever told you that Sooty is a swallow?" "Why—why—why, I don't know that any one did," replied Peter slowly, looking more puzzled than ever. "I didn't have to be told. Any one can see that he is a swallow just to look at him."

"Huh!" Johnny Chuck seemed very fond of that exclamation. "I suppose any one can make themselves see what they want to see if they don't use their brains enough to find out other things. Sooty isn't a swallow, and never will be a swallow. He belongs to another family altogether. He's a swift. That's what he is—a swift."

Peter didn't know just what to say. Johnny Chuck spoke as if he knew exactly what he was talking about, and Peter had to admit to himself that he really didn't know a thing about Sooty. "Chitter-chitter-chitter

SOME SWEET THINGS

THERE are many people who do not enjoy a meringue. The following pie is made with the eggs folded in and makes a filling like sponge cake:

Lemon Sponge Pie.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter with two of flour, add the well-beaten egg yolks of two eggs, the juice and rind of a lemon. Mix well and stir in one cupful of milk, three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, and fold in the beaten whites. Pour into an uncooked pastry shell and bake until firm.

Sweetmeat Wishes.—Put one-half cupful of candied orange peel, one cupful each of dates, figs, walnut meats and candied cherries through the meat chopper, add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and knead until well mixed. Toss on a board dusted well with powdered sugar, roll out to one-fourth inch in thickness and cut into small rounds with a cutter. When stiff frost with a plain orange icing and decorate with bits of cherry and citron.

Orange Squares.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water. Add one-fourth cupful of chopped nuts to the gelatin, add one-fourth cupful of orange juice, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and the grated rind of an orange. Boil together one cupful of sugar and three-fourths cupful of hot water to the soft ball stage, remove from the heat and add the gelatin, stir and cook for ten minutes. Pour into a pan and sprinkle with four tablespoonfuls of chopped nutmeats.

Fig Pudding.—Cream one-third of a cupful of fat with one cupful of sugar. Add the beaten yolks of two eggs, one-half cupful of milk added alternately with two cupfuls of flour sifted with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Fold in the beaten egg whites. Bake in a quick oven. Cut into rounds or oblongs, place a spoonful of whipped cream over the top and place a stemmed fig on each. Serve with a lemon sauce.

COOKIE DAY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHAT day's cookie day
Up your way, hey?
Our day's Saturday
Up our way.

You ought to see the fixing,
You ought to see the flour,
You ought to see the mixing,
It takes about an hour,
You ought to see the batter,
You ought to see the pan,
It's really quite a matter
For anyone to plan.

Talk about Monday,
And Tuesday, too,
Talk about Wednesday,
The whole week through,
Talk about Thursday,
And Friday some,
But Saturday's cookie day,
Um, um, um!

Burns and Scalds

A burn is the effect of dry heat of 140 degrees F, and over, a scald being the result of moist heat of over 120 degrees F. Clinically there is no distinction between them. Death usually results when one-third of the total area of the body is affected, however superficially.

WHITTEMORE

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Morrish are spending a few days on their farm.
Mr. and Mrs. George Sheppard and three children of Cincinnati, Ohio, are visiting relatives here.
Mrs. Bessie Paradise and children of Rogers City spent the past week here with relatives.
Edward Graham and Arden Char- ters were in Standish Monday night.
Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Stelter spent Saturday in Bay City.
The first meeting of the P. T. A. will be held at the high school Monday night, October 3, at 8:30 o'clock. Everybody is cordially invited to attend.

Warren Curtis, who is continuing his work in business administration and higher accountancy at Ferris Institute this year, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curtis. He speaks very highly of the Ferris school faculty and students, even though he is suffering a certain amount of embarrassment doing pledge work in Sigma Alpha Delta fraternity. He says he never saw so many trousers to be pressed.

Mrs. Ernest McCreedy and children of Pinconning were callers here Saturday.

The funeral of Frank Patterson, who was found dead in his cow barn last Saturday, was held from the M. E. church Tuesday afternoon. Rev. George Smith officiating. It is thought that Mr. Patterson went to milk Friday evening and suffered a stroke, as he was found along side the cow. The milking stool and pail were found lying by the body.

Glen Cataline of South Dakota is visiting his father, Adolph Cataline, and other relatives. Glen says to give him good old Michigan any time.

Rev. and Mrs. George Smith spent Wednesday at Bay City.

Those from here who attended the funeral of Miss Constance Tennis at Turner Monday were: F. L. Stelter, Mr. and Mrs. John Bowen and daughter, Mildred, Mrs. H. Jacques and daughter, Marion, Mrs. Chas. Schuster and daughter, Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chartiers and daughters, Glade and Lois, Mrs. Roy Leslie, Mrs. John O'Farrell, Mrs. Thos. Shannon, Misses Clara, Ella, and Esther Fuerst, Lois Freel, Marjorie Common, Gladys Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bellville, Mrs. Theodore Bellville, Mrs. Alton Smith, and Rev. Geo. Smith and daughters, Eva and Dorothy.

Elgin O'Farrell spent Sunday at Pontiac.

Marguerite Thompson of Prescott spent the week end with Elaine Partlo.

The community was grief-stricken last Friday when word came that Miss Constance Tennis, 19 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tennis of Turner, had passed away at Hurley hospital, Flint, after a short illness. Constance, or better known as "Connie," had attended Whittemore high school one year and while here made many friends. She was one of the star players of the basketball team here. She later attended Ferris Institute and then entered Hurley hospital to train for nurse, and would have graduated next year. Her funeral was held from the Turner M. E. church Monday afternoon. Rev. Ethay Bray, assisted by Rev. George Smith and Rev. Griffith, officiated. It was the largest funeral ever held in the community. The staff of nurses, numbering 35, together with the superintendents and several doctors, all dressed in their uniforms, attended the funeral in a body. Eight nurses, all classmates, acted as pall bearers.

HEMLOCK

Mrs. Reuben Smith and daughter, Celia, called on her daughter, Mrs. Will Herriman, Wednesday afternoon.

Paul Brown had the misfortune to break his leg below the knee while working on the county road Thursday. He was taken to Dr. Weed's office by his nephew, Harvey McIvor, where he had it set.

Mayor Harry J. Nelson and wife, Mrs. G. Thomas Oliver and daughter, Miss Dorothy, all of Bay City, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kuehn and two children returned to Ann Arbor after spending some time with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Binder.

Callers on Paul Brown last week were Henry Durant, Mrs. Lambert and sons, Sam and Charles, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Biggs and Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Miller.

Will and Frank Hantz are in Detroit, called there by the illness of a sister.

Edward Sagen was at Saginaw on business Monday.

Mrs. Louise McArdle and daughter, Mrs. John Katterman, spent Friday afternoon with Mrs. John Burt and Mrs. Reuben Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown of Tawas City spent Sunday with their brother and sister, Paul Brown and Mrs. McIvor.

Adam Birkenback has gone to work at the forestry planting trees. Russell Binder and Miss Leona Brown were supper guests and spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Katterman.

A katterman from here attended a party at Prescott Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Popp of Logan spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Youngs.

Orville Youngs and Allan Herriman spent the week end at Flint. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Binder and son, George, spent Sunday with Theresa Binder and called on John Mathieson.

Gladys Smith of Sherman spent the week end with Theresa Birkenback.

Mr. and Mrs. Delos Snyder entertained relatives from out of town over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Curry called on Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brown Tuesday evening.

Harvey McIvor and Harold Latham left Thursday for Detroit and Fraser to spend the week end.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School

The Michigan Education Association meeting for this district will be held at Saginaw on October 20 and 21. Our school has had a one hundred per cent membership and attendance at this meeting for several years, and it is hoped that the same record will be maintained this year.

Word has been received from the Department of Public Instruction at Lansing that the school will be inspected this year to determine whether or not it should be kept on the accredited list of the University of Michigan. We trust that the results of the inspection will again prove satisfactory.

The seniors recently held an election with the results that the following members received office: President, Dorothy Roach; vice-president, Robert Hamilton, secretary, Martin Zollweg; treasurer, Sylvia Koskia. The class also decided to use caps and gowns again this year. These will be rented of the Inter-Collegiate Press of Kansas City.

An election was held in the high school Friday to select members for the student council. The following were the successful candidates: President, Nathan Lincoln; Senior Representative, Gertrude Bessey; Junior Representative, Herbert Zollweg; Sophomore Representative, George Cholger; Freshman Representative, Billie Roach.

Our baseball team won its first game of the year Friday, when it defeated the Alabaster team on its home diamond by a score of 16 to 8. Our team was composed of practically new players: Quick, Mallon, and Louis Frank being the only ones of last year's team back for duty. The game was almost even for the first eight innings with our boys leading 8 to 5. In the ninth inning we made eight runs while Alabaster made three.

Music and Art Notes
During the course of the year thirty minutes each week in each grade is devoted to the study of Music Appreciation. Through this we not only come to know the best in music, but we learn the history of music as it has developed through the ages, and of the great masters and their music.

Music appreciation consists of rhythm work in the lower grades, to give the child a "feeling" for rhythm. This we work out in rhythmic games. Marching, skipping and clapping are rhythmic responses to music, which little children must learn to correlate with music in order to keep perfect time.

In the later elementary grades we study music of different countries, and how each type of music differs. This includes folk music, religious music, and music involving mood, color, rhythm, and tont.

In the junior high school we traced the development, through the ages, of our modern instruments. We have studied the modern symphony orchestra, and we shall learn what each instrument looks and sounds like, and to what class in the orchestra it belongs.

The first and second grades have been doing rhythm work to the accompaniment of the piano, such as, marching, skipping, and clapping, to given accents.

The fifth and sixth grades have studied the beginnings of ballads. A ballad is a complete story in song, and had it not been for these ballads the customs and lives of the people who lived so long ago would have been lost, for there were no printed books or telephones then to relay the news of the day, which the minstrels used as the 'story' of their song. In various countries, these minstrels were called by different names, but their songs were resung and handed down from generation to generation, and in different localities are sung differently due to the additions of various minstrels.

The third and fourth grades have been studying Indian instruments and songs to correlate with their study of Indian life and Indian lore. The Indians used drums of various sizes and the flute which was made for tribal dances and religious occasions, and the flute for wooing purposes.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
Effie Prescott, Janet Keiser and Richard Ziehl have been absent on account of illness.

The following have had perfect spelling the past week: Seventh grade, Margaret Fox and Myrton Cett; eighth grade, Grace West-

Both classes in American history have written tests at the close of each chapter. We find these written lessons help us to remember facts better.

There seems to be not a little rivalry between the two grammar classes in this room in drills to tell parts of speech. It is difficult yet to say which class will carry off the honors.

We have enjoyed the nature poems and stories in our readers. Many of the pupils in the room would like to form a Nature Study Club, which may be done later.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
The boys and girls are interested in watching a miniature chemical rock garden grow. Betty Davis made the garden from coal, salt, and blueing.

Both the fifth and sixth grades are working on posters for hygiene. These posters will illustrate the health rules we have learned so far this year.

The fifth grade decided to memorize the poem "September," by Helen Hunt Jackson. Each pupil was given an opportunity to recite the poem to the class. The class voted to deem who used the best expression, etc. Myrle Bowen won the vote.

Third and Fourth Grades
The following third grade pupils received perfect spelling papers last week: Roy DePotty, Lee Gregg, Richard Prescott and Leona Ziehl. Harold Wegner was the only fourth grade pupil who received perfect papers last week.

Jack Bradley and Nona Rapp were absent Monday and Tuesday of this week.

Primary
Wade Miller has moved to Flushing.

Dorothy White and Ida Koepke visited in our room Friday afternoon.

The second grade Art class is making a booklet of our town.

The second graders are earning stars in spelling this month. Carter Miller, Ruth Giddings, Marian Clark and Betty Nelson have the most stars so far.

Expression of Contempt

"To show the white feather" is synonymous with "to show cowardice." The proverbial expression arose from the circumstance that a white feather in the tail of a gamecock is a certain sign that he is not thoroughbred.

History Repeats

A man named William Shakespeare was fined in a midland court for game trespass. It was for a like offense the greatest William Shakespeare was forced to fly from his midland home.

Cecil McGirr was home from Mt. Pleasant for a few days' visit. He left again Sunday to re-enter the Normal College to continue his studies on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Giegling of Grayling were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Stevens of Bay City were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Webb Sunday.

Miss Lucy Stevens of Bay City is visiting Hale friends for two weeks.

The Isosco County Sunday School Convention will be held at the Hale Baptist church Tuesday, October 4. The morning session will open at ten o'clock. Bernard Coggan, of Lansing, member of the state staff of Sunday School workers, will be the principal speaker on the program, assisted by local workers. The meeting will be well worth while. You are cordially invited to attend.

Richard Greve had his wrist broken accidentally on Sunday. Dr. Hasty set the bones.

Hale Tigers will play the Isosco Independents on the local ground Sunday, October 2, at 3:00 p. m. This will be the last game on the home diamond this year, so get out and help. Admission to all, 10c.

The game for last Sunday scheduled with the East Tawas Merchants turned out like the one earlier in the season—they failed to live up to their agreement. This seems like mighty poor sportsmanship. At least it does not speak very well for East Tawas Merchants.—R. D. Brown, Manager, Hale Tigers.

HALE SCHOOL NOTES

Our P. T. A. is tendering a reception for the teachers this Friday evening. A pot luck luncheon and a program are being planned. Everyone is invited.

Glenn Rogers, son of Oren Rogers, entered the ninth grade here Monday, September 26.

We have recently received new texts in high school geography, Elements of Physical Geography, by Hopkins.

Prescott high school defeated our ball team here last Friday by the score of 3 to 2. We do not feel so bad about it because Prescott is a twelve grade school and has an enrollment of about 90.

Richard Greve had the misfortune to break his left arm. Our baseball team has been greatly weakened as a result.

Our High School Club organized as follows: Douglas Clayton, president; Dale Johnson, secretary; David Stanton, treasurer.

The tenth grade, our seniors, recently organized as follows: William Rahl, president; Wilma Allen, secretary, Norma Dorcey, treasurer.

RENO

Galen Robinson, two daughters, Hazel and Beverly, of Tawas City were Sunday visitors at the Bentley ranch. Mrs. Robinson, who has been staying with Mrs. Bentley, returned home with them.

MORTGAGE SALE

By reason of default in the payment and conditions of a mortgage made by Clarence Earl and wife, Ivah Earl, to Joseph Brabon, formerly of Tawas City, Michigan, dated March 23rd, 1929, and recorded March 26th, 1929, in Liber 22, page 611 of mortgages, in Register of Deeds office for Isosco county, to secure part of purchase price, upon which there is now claimed to be due by reason of such default, the sum of Five Hundred Dollars for principal, and no proceedings having been taken to recover said amount:

Said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction of the mortgaged premises, described as the South Half of Northwest Quarter, Section Twenty, Town Twenty-two North, of Range Seven East, Isosco County, Michigan, on the 8th day of October, 1932 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the front door of the Court House in Tawas City, said county, to satisfy the amount due at the time for principal, attorney fee and costs.

Dated July 14, 1932.

Joseph Brabant, Mortgagee, (Joseph Brabon) 21656 Woodward Avenue Ferndale, Mich. Business Address: Tawas City, Michigan. 12-29

MORTGAGE SALE

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of a certain mortgage made by Walter E. Laidlaw and May Laidlaw, his wife, of the Township of Tawas, Isosco County, Michigan, Mortgagees, to Joseph Sempliner of the City of East Tawas, Michigan, Mortgagee, dated the 5th day of August, A. D. 1919, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for the County of Isosco and State of Michigan, on the 6th day of August, A. D. 1919, in Liber 22 of Mortgages, on page 235, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal, interest and taxes, the sum of Six Hundred Ninety Dollars and Thirty-four Cents ($690.34).

No suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan, in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 6th day of December, A. D. 1932, at 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front or main entrance to the Court House building in the City of Tawas City, Isosco County, Michigan (that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Isosco is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due, as aforesaid, on said mortgage, with the interest thereon at seven per cent (7%) and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law. Which said premises are described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the Township of Tawas, in the County of Isosco, and State of Michigan as described as follows, to-wit: The West half (W. 1/2) of the Northeast quarter (N.E. 1/4) of Section Twenty (20), Town Twenty-two (22) North, Range Seven (7) East, containing eighty acres, more or less, according to Government Survey.

Dated at Detroit, Michigan, September 6th, 1932.

SAVE WITH SIX CYLINDERS

—with more than six you sacrifice economy
—with less than six you sacrifice smoothness

IF YOU'RE careful about the way you spend your dollars for a low-priced car, you'll be extra-careful about the way you count cylinders. Because if you count more than six, you're not going to get the lowest all-round motoring cost that is saving so many thousands of dollars for Chevrolet owners every day.

And if you count less than six—you won't be any better off from a dollars-and-cents standpoint. Six is the smallest number of cylinders you can have, and still get Chevrolet's built-in smoothness. And built-in smoothness saves you money. It guards against the insidious workings of excessive vibration. It holds repair bills down to rock-bottom. So—if the car is a Chevrolet Six—you'll SAVE!

ESPECIALLY AFTER 5,000 MILES
What's more important—you'll keep on saving. There's nothing temporary about Chevrolet economy. It lasts! Especially after 5,000—10,000—15,000 miles, when the cost of operating other low-priced cars goes up, Chevrolet's cost stays down. More economical to start with, Chevrolet is more economical still, after long usage!

Best of all: you can save with six cylinders, and not sacrifice one important advancement. You enjoy Free Wheeling, Syncro-Mesh gear-shifting, roomy Fisher bodies. Considering these facts—do you honestly think it's wise—or economical—to keep that old car any longer?

"Lucile is the Happiest Girl"

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years, mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Western mother, Mrs. H. J. Stoll, Valley P. O., Nebraska, says: "My little daughter, Roma Lucile, was constipated from babyhood. I became worried about her and decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in the West."

Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

Is Most Spectacular of Federal Agencies

Bureau of Investigation Is Least Advertised.

Washington.—One of the least advertised and yet most spectacular of all federal agencies is the bureau of investigation of the United States Department of Justice. To most casual citizens the bureau is just a name, if it is known at all. The credit for famous cases in which the clinching evidence against an international thief, a defaulting banker, or a confidence man on the high seas was furnished by an agent from the bureau is generally given the police.

The bureau agents, credited as being the ace detectives in the United States and American possessions, avoid the limelight. Although every agent is trained in law and accounting their work is highly secretive. Publicity is avoided as in contrast to the courting of publicity by most investigating bodies.

Some of the most dramatic crimes, made famous in play and story, come under the jurisdiction of this body. Their field includes crimes on the high seas, treason, violation of the national banking and bankruptcy laws, thefts from interstate shipments, bribery, crimes on Indian reservations, escaped federal prisoners, civil rights, and domestic violence, and all others not assigned to a specific agency.

In two fields, especially, the Department of Justice agency is the protector of civil rights and liberties. As a co-ordinating policy agency the bureau aids in the capture and conviction of thousands of state and national laws. At Washington the most complete fingerprint bureau in the world is maintained for the aid of all police agencies.

Not only are the prints of federal violators maintained but the prints of any fugitive wanted by any police department for any crime from leaving the scene of an accident to robbery with a gun are kept. A free "posting" system, by which any police chief can have the fingerprints of a fugitive placed on file is maintained. The prints of every arrested man is checked each time against the files and co-operation given the corresponding police chief.

The arrest and conviction of Gene Elms for murder is a case illustrative of this work. On February 7, 1931, the bureau received from the police department at Tulsa, Okla., the fingerprints of Gene Elms with a notation that he was wanted for the murder of a police officer. Checking the files it was ascertained that two days previously a fingerprint card was received from St. Paul, Minn., stating that one Raymond Parker had been arrested for investigation. The two prints were identical and Elms was tried on the murder charge in Oklahoma and sentenced to life imprisonment. Another murder suspect was arrested through the same system as a result of leaving the scene of an automobile accident.

The other field in which the bureau comes most in contact with business and civic leaders is in the investigation of all bankruptcy frauds. Practically the only protection legitimate business has against the confidence man and swindler who avails himself of the loopholes in the bankruptcy laws, the bureau investigators are constantly busy checking the schedules of bankrupt petitioners. Thousands of dollars in hidden assets have been returned through this agency.

All violations of the national banking act come under the jurisdiction of the bureau. One of the most noted Chicago cases of recent years was the arrest and conviction of John E. Malloy, assistant cashier of the Lawrence Avenue National bank. Malloy misap-prative is never given up by the Department of Justice investigators. One of the longest successful searches ended in the arrest and conviction of Grover S. Elam, a bank embezzler from the First National bank of Highland, Wis.

The bank failed in 1931 and an investigation by the bureau showed $50,000 unaccounted for. Elam was indicted, but because he was suffering from a bad gasoline burn a warrant was not served pending his recovery. In the meantime he disappeared. Special agents of the bureau of investigation instituted a search for him and a few weeks ago he was located in Chicago under the name of Albert S. Nagel and is being returned to Wisconsin for trial.

The bureau has been in existence for 24 years and comprises 22 field offices located throughout the United States and its possessions. In each office there is stationed a staff of trained investigators under the supervision of an investigator in chief. The national director of the bureau is J. Edgar Hoover, with the Chicago office being in charge of W. A. McSwain.

King of the Future and His Sister

This attractive little brother and sister are grandchildren of the king and queen of the Belgians, and the little boy may some day succeed to the crown since he is the only son of the present heir to the throne, Prince Leopold, duke of Brabant. The photograph was made by special permission of the children's mother, the duchess of Brabant who, before her marriage, was Princess Astrid of Sweden. The boy is Prince Baudouin, who was two years old on September 7, 1932, and his sister is Princess Josephine Charlotte, who is five years old.

propriated funds and showed up in Milwaukee, claiming to have been the victim of a holdup in the bank. Through the reconstruction of practically the entire ledger system of the bank his story was proven false and Malloy was sentenced four years in prison and fined $5,000 on a charge of making false entries and embezzling $59,960.

Martins Make Home in Traveling Crane

Longview, Wash.—For three successive years two martins have made their nest and raised their families of young birds in a closet on a hammer crane on the Long-Bell Lumber company dock, totally disregarding the fact that the crane travels up and down the dock a distance of a half mile a day. The mother and father birds show no annoyance when workmen enter the closet—more than 50 times daily—and fondle the young fledglings.

The martins as believed to be a species known as "coffee birds," native of Brazil.

U. S. Finds Stone Walls Do Not a Prison Make

Washington.—The federal government is becoming more inclined every day to trust prisoners and place them in un-walled camps instead of prisons.

The prison division of the Department of Justice reports that in the two and a half years since the establishment of the un-walled camps 6,678 persons have been confined in them. Although the guards are unarmed, there have been only 161 escapes from such camps. Of those 131 were recaptured.

Modern Contract Bridge

By Lelia Hattersley

No. 20.
Jump Over-Calls
HANDS stronger in honor-tricks than the 1½ to 2½ shown by simple over-calls should preferably be indicated by take-out doubles or jump over-calls. A jump over-call is a defensive bid higher than necessary to cover the adverse declaration. It indicates more than 3 honor-tricks with a strong two suiter or a powerful single suit.

While a jump over-call is not strictly forcing, because the opponents have opened the bidding, it is a strong plea to the partner to raise, if possible, or to keep the bidding open if he has about one honor-trick.

A jump over-call of three over an opponent's suit shows the same trump strength as an original bid of three. Such bids discount the necessity of trump support from the partner.

Bidding the Opponent's Suit
If you are new to the forcing system, you may receive a shock some time when an opponent opens the bid with one spade and your partner calmly overcalls with two spades. Do not be alarmed at this apparent slip of the tongue.

What your partner is telling is that he has an exceptionally strong hand of freakish distribution with control of at least the first trick in the adverse suit.

This over-call in an opponent's suit is a forcing bid, the only absolute forcing bid which can be made by a player whose side has not opened the bidding. At a low stage of the bidding it is not a slam signal, nor does it necessarily show, as it would at a higher stage, that the bidder holds no losers in the adverse suit. While it might indicate that the bidder was void in the opponent's suit, it could be made by a player holding the adverse ace and one or more small cards. For example, say that South were to deal and bid one heart when West held:

S-A K 6 3 H-A 8 D-K Q J 6 4 3 C-None

A takeout double would not show the great strength of West's hand nor absolutely assure him that his partner will keep the bidding open until a game is reached. But an over-call of two hearts will accomplish this purpose.

Take-Out Doubles

A double of one no trump or of a suit bid of one or two is a take-out or informatory double if it is made at the first opportunity to double and before the doubler's partner has made a declaration (a pass is not a declaration).

Minimum requirements for a take-out double are:
Three honor-tricks divided in three suits or Three honor-tricks divided in two suits with a fair biddable suit.

The forcing system makes no distinction between values for take-out doubles of suit and no trump bids, except to advise that in the latter doubles the 3 honor-tricks required should be slightly reinforced.

A sharp warning is sounded, however, against making a take-out double when vulnerable unless your 3 honor-tricks are backed up either by strong intermediates and plus values or by a quite powerful "escape suit."

Theoretically, a take-out double of an opponent's bid announces a hand of general strength, somewhat on the order of a no trump, with no adequate biddable suit. But take-out doubles are often advisable even though you have a suit, and quite a strong one. Such strategic doubles occur when you are in the defensive position, and hold 3 or more honor-tricks, but have not a sufficiently dominating suit or the two-suiter type, required for a jump over-call.

Responding to a Take-Out Double

While a take-out double is not strictly speaking a forcing bid, when your partner makes such a double you are practically obligated to take him out by bidding your best suit no matter how poor it may be. The only contingency by which you are relieved of this responsibility is an intervening bid from the opponent at your right. If, after a take-out double from your partner, this opponent raises his partner's declaration or makes some other bid, you are no longer obligated to bid. Any declaration which you make in such a case shows strength.

Unless, however, an opponent bids after your partner's take-out double, you should bid no matter how weak your hand. When you are forced to respond to a take-out double with abject weakness, it is usually best to discourage your partner from carrying on by naming a minor suit, preferably the club suit.

Occasionally when your partner makes a take-out double you may have reason to encourage him with a strength response. In view of the fact that your partner's take-out double promises a minimum of 3 honor-tricks with, if vulnerable, some additional value, you should always, if possible, make a strength response when holding as many as 2 honor-tricks.

There is only one type of hand with which it is permissible to leave your partner in a take-out double. This is a hand of sufficient defensive strength to insure setting the opposing bid. (©, 1932, by Lelia Hattersley.)—WNU Service

Indistinct Message That Had Daddy "Sitting Up"

An Indianapolis man was accused to receiving a telephone call from his ten-year-old son each afternoon. The call came as usual on a recent day.

"Hello, son, how is everything at home?" he began.

The reply was indistinct, but sounded as if the boy had said: "Mummy's bad sick."

Startled, the man held the receiver more tightly. "She is? What's the matter with her?"

"I don't know. She only ate half a carrot and now she's eating grass."

This information was more startling than ever. The man had sudden visions of his wife having lost her mind and parading through the yard, gnawing at grass.

"Listen, son, talk louder. Did you say mother was sick?"

"Naw," came the disgusted reply, "not mother—bunny."—Indianapolis News.

New Cascades Entrance Visitors to Washington

Proclaimed to be one of the most beautiful sights in Washington, the recently completed cascades in Meridian Hill park are attracting many visitors. Thirteen basins catch the rippling waters and cast myriads of dancing lights into the afternoon sun; a circulatory system returns the water to the starting place.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

His gray eyes, which through forty years of self-sacrificing service, had looked upon human weakness and hardships and heroisms, were filled with a profound sorrow. What cut him to the quick was this blow at his faith in Alan Baker. He had always liked Alan, had trusted him as he trusted few men; and had fought for his promotion. He, who had given forty years of his life to the service at a miserable salary; who with his brother officers of the old guard had unselfishly watched other men of their generation carve out fortunes in timber, ranches, land and mines in the developing West—he had thought of Baker as of one to carry on that tradition and spirit of loyalty to the Force.

Now, according to Inspector Haskell's account, Baker had quit because his commission last fall had not come. At the beck of a higher salary he had tossed aside loyalty and his invaluable work here in the North. He had made a miserable failure of a patrol, had imbued the other men with insubordination, and then bought out.

Stern and impartial, Williamson could not help feeling that Haskell, though a newcomer and not fully experienced yet, had been fair, and more than fair, in this trouble with Baker and these other men. Baker had certainly had a fearful moral lapse from the man he used to be. Without doubt his failure to get commissioned had set him brooding and had worked a pernicious harm on a once-superlative man.

As he looked thoughtfully at Haskell, Williamson considered it very creditable of him to praise a man who had done him so much injury. And he thought it showed exceptional stuff in the inspector to remain in service, to stick with his hard thankless work here in the North, when he had come into a large inheritance and might be leading a pleasant life in Ottawa. Playing no favorites whatsoever but trying to give every man his just dues, the old officer felt that his former uncharitable opinion of Haskell had been entirely wrong, as wrong and misplaced as his faith in Alan Baker.

Presently, in slow decisive tones, he said: "You did right to demote Baker after that patrol. It was foolhardy of him to split his detail. Constable Young over there will pay the price of that mistake for the rest of his life. And about those other men, I think the rough sledding you've had with them is easily explained. Baker was in charge before you came; he was rather lax on discipline so long as the work got done. One of the things urged against him when he was up for commission was the fact that he was too familiar with his subordinates. When you came and insisted on stricter discipline, I presume they resented it. The faults is theirs, not yours. I'm backing you to the limit against them and against Baker, too, if he tries to stir up any further trouble."

Haskell drew a deep breath. His story had gone across handsomely. In half an hour of skillful talk he had accomplished more than Baker could match in a month of labor and heavy expense and danger.

For Alan and Featheroff at MacMillan's trading post after their discovery of the catastrophe, the waiting was the worst of it—the long hour after hour of grim, self-enforced delay.

"We've got to let them get out of timber country into the open Thal-Azzah," Alan spoke to Buzzard, who was looking to his experience and leadership in this fraught crisis. "There we can be sure of sighting their canoes. They'll have no shelter there, when we drop down on them. We'll make ourselves give them a fifteen hour start on us."

It was his cold man-hunting wisdom that spoke; but all his being clamored to start instantly, flinging himself against those men and tearing Joyce away from them before twilight fell.

He forced himself to go up to the trading store and cook a meal, for they had eaten nothing since dawn.

He remembered the little automatic Joyce always carried; remembered the hard bulge of it that time he lifted her down from the window. Knowing her spirited pride, her passionate nature, he had fearfully imagined her choosing a proud escape from her horror.

When he and Buzzard had forced themselves to eat supper and were putting the things in order again, as though for Joyce to come back and find, they heard a far-away drone miles down the Big Aloooska. A breeze whipped the faint sound away for several minutes. When they caught it again, the sound was clear and unmistakable. They once had heard that same low thrifty drone approaching across En Traverse lake to destroy their plane and stop their venture.

Alan rose up, with an expression on his face that frightened Buzzard.

"It's Haskell. He's coming to smash us. He didn't quit with that one attempt. I don't think—even if he knew that you and I are all that stands between Joyce and a horror—I don't think he'd hesitate a second. Buzzard, you stay here. I'm going down to the landing. I don't want you to be involved in—I suppose it'll be called murder."

He went out through the trading hall and down to the landing, and crouched there behind the machine gun. With his hand on the spade grip, training the weapon down river, he waited.

But, as he listened to the launch tearing wide open up the treacherous Aloooska, he grew convinced that Whipple never would or could drive it at so demoralized a clip. Frank Pedneault was the man behind that wheel.

Uncertain, in a dilemma, he reasoned: "Haskell might have forced him to make the trip. But Ped would never throw himself into it like that, he'd never risk his life that way, unless it was something he felt like putting all his heart into."

Lifting the binoculars, he focused them on the first bend below. When the launch came tearing into sight and thundered on up toward the post, he saw at a glance that it carried but one man—a man with his hat jammed low on his eyes and a dead pipe in his teeth.

Swinging the launch around in mid-stream like a toy, Pedneault gently nosed it in beside the plane. "Thank Lord, you're here, Alan. . . . Was afraid you'd be gone."

"Ped! What are you doing up here? You're on some patrol?"

"Patrol h—!" Pedneault panted, breathless and excited. "I caught onto your idea. Elizabeth told me about it, too. She's aching for you to win out. Larry and I talked it over. I said, 'By Lord, I'm going, Larry! I'm going to be in on that with Alan and Bill!' So I euchred the launch away from Haskell, pitched off, and streaked for here. Brought you some extra gas if you need any."

Alan was staggered.

"Good Lord! And you've deserted, too, Ped!"

"But I couldn't miss out on a trick like this, could I?"

Alan winced. Here was Pedneault mixed up in his trouble. Like an eager wolf-hound whom his master has left behind, Ped had chewed his collar and come along on the hunt.

"Where's Bill and Joyce?" Pedneault's face grew long, his eager excitement sobered down. He decided it was better to say nothing just now about Dave's suicide. Alan had enough anxiety preying on him.

"I'm thankful for that gasoline," Alan said. "And for you throwing in with us, Ped, at the price you'll pay. But I don't see how you can help. We can't carry a third person on this trip. I'll have to have room to work the machine gun—"

"Then I'll go in the launch."

"You can't make it. Above the Aloooska forks there's twenty miles of low water that you can't get through."

"I can make it now. I know what the launch can do. After all these heavy rains, draining down that left fork from the Thal-Azzah. . . . Look there—" he pointed at the water stage on a pier—"that's eighteen inches higher than when we made our first patrol after them. I can get through; and once I'm in those deep-water channels of the Thal-Azzah—"

"All right," Alan agreed. "You'll be a mighty big help. If they put us out of it, you'll be in position to carry on with them. Let's go up to the post and make our arrangements. You'll be leaving ahead of us."

Meeting Buzzard in the trading hall, he introduced Pedneault and explained. They went on back to the kitchen and worked out their plans.

Pedneault was to leave at dawn in the launch. Then the plane would leave at ten o'clock. Passing Pedneault just inside the Thal-Azzah, the plane would fly on ahead, locate the bandits and bring them to bay. The two craft would thus close in together for the battle.

There was but one hitch in the plan. All three men were aware of it, but no one mentioned it. Those bandits had Joyce with them; they could and would use her for protection. How could they be swept with a machine gun's deadly spray when she was with them?

It was something which had to be left to luck or fate.

Alan gave final instructions: "If anything happens to the plane, don't try to fight those five men by yourself, Pedneault. Swing wide of them, go on east to that big lake I mapped for you, and join Bill there. Then the two of you fight them to a finish."

"One other thing. I don't want Buzzard or myself to be charged with murder. You're in service, Pedneault; you'll not only be on a legitimate patrol, but you have the power to deputize us as special constables. We'd better put that down in black and white."

It seemed strange to Pedneault, who had sworn in half-breeds and Indian scouts and dog-team drivers on emergency occasions, to be swearing in his former officer commanding in so lowly a capacity. He wrote out the formal authorization: James A. Featheroff; status, special constable temporary; capacity, aviator. Alan McCleod Baker; status, special constable temporary; capacity, scout and machine gunner.

At the earliest hint of dawn they went down to the landing, inspected the launch and lashed Joyce's light canoe on the stern half-deck. Pedneault shook hands with them, slipped into the wheel seat, and set out alone, a solitary figure, up the Big Aloooska.

Waiting, nervous and jumpy, as both had waited for zero hours in France, Alan and Buzzard stalked about the unutterably lonely post.

At nine o'clock, drawn down to the landing, they went over the plane for the third time, and Alan mounted the machine gun in the cockpit. When their zero hour came, he towed the craft out into midstream, held it there while Buzzard warmed the spluttering motor; and then, sending the canoe spinning with a kick, he sprang up into his seat.

Buzzard lifted the plane out of the river, climbed to five thousand feet, and headed into the northeast.

CHAPTER XII

The Swan Nest

Thirty miles above the Aloooska forks, they caught up with Pedneault. When he saw that all was going well with him, Alan turned his glasses ahead again, sweeping the dozen waterways within vision. He picked up two tiny black objects creeping up a broad blue channel ten miles into the Thal-Azzah.

Signaling Pedneault that they had sighted the canoes, Buzzard slowed down to stalling speed. Pedneault answered back that he understood and they saw him open out the launch till a long narrow V-wake of white froth stretched behind it. Then, winging on ahead, they closed in for the battle.

As they drew near and Buzzard dropped to a couple thousand feet, Alan began to make out figures in the two craft. His heart leaped as he counted six persons. Nearer still, he distinguished a slender girlish figure in the prow of the lead canoe. They must have found that gun on Joyce, or else she had clung to her faith that he would save her.

Half-raising, Alan glanced back westward to find how near Pedneault was. A puzzled expression crept over his face as he failed to glimpse the launch in either the Aloooska branch or the broad blue channel. With a premonition of disaster clutching him, he whipped up the glasses, focused on the connecting creek, and caught the big boat in clear vision.

The thing he saw brought a cry into his throat.

The craft was not moving. It lay on its side, half out of water, hopelessly stranded. Either from reckless piloting or from an accident no man could have averted, Pedneault had struck a mud bar hidden under the treacherous muskeg water; and now the scarlet-and-gold launch, lodged solidly in the muck by the momentum of its headlong dash, was out of the battle for good and all. Pedneault could not even go and help Bill.

Alan tore his gaze away from this disaster. It was all up to him and Buzzard now. Pedneault was out, the launch was out; Bill was a hundred miles away, and alone.

Visit to Vik in Norway

In the ancient Hardanger village of Vik in Norway, the tourist will find an epitome of many of the attractions in this region. It is one of the oldest and most picturesque. Here will still be found some of the old turf roof cottages. The turf is laid on several layers of birch bark and is absolutely watertight. Spinning wheels and looms will also be found in some of the homes. The church is a typical peasant church of pre-Reformation days and one of the first of its kind. It has ancient frescoes and carved furniture, all the work of local talent. An ancient leather collection bag, fixed to the end of a long stick, has a small bell attached, to wake the sleeping worst.

RIGHT TO BOAST OF GOLDEN WALLS

Philadelphia Home Owners Have Distinction.

Philadelphia's reputation as a city of homes depends largely upon those many miles of streets which are lined with little houses of brick and frame. Possibly the title is a little in doubt nowadays, since so many apartment houses have sprung up wherever there is space for them, both in the downtown district and around the parks and the city's circumference.

But among the thousands of little dwellings are many that can claim an unusual distinction. Built of brick made from local clay, they have in their walls a calculable quantity of precious metal. The proud home-owner, if he lives in the right sort of house, may point with pride and remark to the envious visitor: "That's gold in them partitions." And though he can't spend it, he has it and owns it, hoarded beyond reach in the burnt blue clay which was laid down here 100,000 years ago by a benevolent glacier.

It has been calculated that some Philadelphia-made bricks contain enough gold to cover their surface, if it could all be extracted and beaten to the incredible thinness of gold leaf. But such gold bricks would not be worth much. By calculation of experts at the Academy of Natural Sciences, who are offering an exhibit of Philadelphia's mineral resources in a Chestnut street window, a typical ton of the gold-bearing blue clay contains about 70 cents' worth of the precious metal. And it would cost much more than that to get it out.

Home-owning Philadelphians have no need to envy, however, the operative character who dreamt that he dwell in marble halls. Marble halls might prove less comfortable than a little house of Philadelphia brick, and it sounds well to say to visitors that the typical Philadelphian protects his lares and penates behind walls of gold. The gold may not be immediately apparent, like other attractions of Philadelphia, but it is there—Philadelphia Ledger.

Artificial Heart

A Vienna physician, Doctor Eisenmenger, has perfected a machine or "artificial heart" that pumps the blood when the real heart stops. By use of this new apparatus persons apparently dead have been brought back to life. It keeps the blood circulating for a while although the heart has stopped. The machine is designed to apply alternate pressure and suction to that part of the chest containing the heart, so that blood is alternately sucked into that organ and forced out again, simulating approximately the normal circulation maintained by the heartbeat.

Sophistication is sought by many, but they don't want their appetite to become so.

WARNING

to PROPERTY OWNERS

TODAY a letter came to my desk that deeply impressed me. It was written by a woman—the mother in a typical American family. Her little home had been saved from foreclosure by a coat of new paint, for which a part of their meager savings had been paid.

Those few gallons of fresh paint had so revived the appearance and enhanced the value of the property that the mortgagee had consented to renew the loan . . . and the little home was saved.

I could not help thinking of the thousands of homes and buildings that are shabby and unattractive today due to several years of neglected painting; of the millions of home owners who, because of reduced incomes and enforced economy, have been obliged to sacrifice painting for taxes, interest, assessments, to say nothing of food, clothing, heat and other essentials of comfort and health.

You have seen these paint-starved houses and buildings, as have I. They are everywhere about you. Perhaps your home is included.

Do you understand what they signify? Do you realize what will happen to wood or metal that is literally naked of paint if these houses and buildings face the attack of another season of rain, snow, ice, and frost?

Never in the history of our country has the situation been paralleled. Property owners face an added burden of expense amounting to millions of dollars for repairs and replacements next spring.

And the crisis, in my opinion, will be reached this coming winter when paint of four, five, and even six years exposure to the weather will be unable to resist the elements—when badly weathered wood and metal will be easy prey for rot, rust and decay.

Today the big question facing thousands of property owners is plain. It is "paint or pay." Either you must invest a little this fall in new paint or you must take the risk of paying many times the cost of paint to repair the damage done by rot, rust and decay this winter.

Even at the sacrifice of other things, have your house or buildings completely repainted now. No investment you can make will pay better dividends. And nothing you can buy will make you and your family feel so uplifted and cheerful.

If you cannot arrange to do a complete repainting job now, at least give the badly weathered places a coat or two of protecting paint.

Look especially, to the window sills, thresholds, outdoor porches and steps; the joints of porch railings and palings; the bases of pillars; the edges of eaves; the roof; the gutters and down spouts. These are the vital spots where water lodges—where ice and frost settle—where rot and rust attack first.

A few dollars' worth of good paint, applied now, will protect these vital spots—will tide you over this crucial winter. And it will probably save you a much greater expense for repairs and replacements next spring and summer.

Under existing conditions, you may be tempted to buy a cheap paint because of its low price. I hope you will not make this costly mistake.

Even on sound lumber, inferior paint is a poor bargain. But on weathered wood, which is very porous, such paint is worse than useless. It gives you a false feeling of security and leaves you without protection.

Prices of well-known, established brands of paint are now the lowest in fifteen years. Enough good, dependable paint can be purchased for a few dollars to protect all the badly weathered surfaces on your building.

Again I repeat, do a complete job this fall if you can. But at least do the vital exposed places before it is "too late."

Moths in Fur Collar
There are several methods that can be followed to get moths out of a fur collar. A simple one is to place the fur over a warm radiator, on top of a lighted gas oven with a very low flame. The moths will come to the surface and may be brushed off. Place the garment in the sun for several days.

and individuals of undesirable conformation or ones unsound in any respect have not been taken. Many of the individuals selected come from some of the best flocks in the state and are good enough to be used on purebred ewes. The rams consigned are owned by breeders throughout the state and are sold with registration papers and proper breeding guarantees. In 1931 one hundred thirty-four rams were sold off the truck for forty-nine different breeders and this group of rams represented nine breeds.

The most common breeds carried on the truck are the Oxford, Hampshire and Shropshire. Extra animals of each of these breeds will be offered for sale at the close of each meeting. Rams of other breeds should be ordered in advance as should special individuals of the above breeds. Advance orders will be given careful attention and the rams selected will be delivered at the time of the meeting. Several sleep men in the county have already placed orders and by so doing will be given special preference in the selection of their rams. The purchasers of rams in previous years have been well pleased with the results.
