

N. E. M. Paved Roads Will Not End at Tawas Declares Gov. Brucker at Shore Road Banquet

OLD U. S. 23 WILL RECEIVE HARD SURFACE

Road Dedication Banquet Fills Hotel Iosco Dining Room to Capacity

"Tawas City will not be the terminal, but the hub of Northeastern Michigan's highway system," stated Governor Wilbur M. Brucker at a banquet held Monday evening at the Hotel Iosco when over 180 people of Iosco, Alcona and Ogemaw counties gathered to dedicate the new Shore road. Other speakers on the program besides Governor Brucker were Alfred Boomer, acting mayor of Tawas City (Mayor Edward Trull being seriously ill at Mercy hospital, Bay City), Frank Rogers, former state highway commissioner, now consulting engineer for that department, and Congressman Roy O. Woodruff.

The Shore road dedication being of general interest throughout this section, the banquet was one of the most important affairs ever held in Tawas City and while the banquet hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, many citizens were disappointed in not being able to secure tickets. Realizing that this might occur, no invitations were extended by the committee except to Governor Brucker, Congressman Woodruff and Mr. Rogers.

The principal speaker of the evening was Governor Brucker. After expressing his pleasure at being present to take part in the program, he gave some very important information relative to state highways, those of northeastern Michigan in particular. He assured those present that road building in northeastern Michigan would not stop with the completion of the Shore road to the Tawas, but that as state finances would permit the road would be extended to the west.

SUPERVISORS WILL MEET NEXT MONDAY MORNING

The Board of Supervisors for the county of Iosco will convene next Monday morning. The apportionment of state and county taxes will be the important work at this session.

MARX BROTHERS GO COLLEGE—LATE IN "HORSE FEATHERS"

If it's really a long, loud laugh you need, you can get your share of it when the Four Marx Brothers, more coconutty than ever, cavort about in "Horse Feathers," at the State Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

This time the setting is dear old Huxley College, with all four of the Marx-men determined to fight fiercely for their alma mammy against the threatening gestures of rival Darwin. Groucho is the college president, a post he has accepted because it seems the only way he can get his son Zeppo out of college. Zeppo has been a freshman for twelve years. Under Groucho's tutelage he wins his diploma, his letter in football, and the girl—one at a time, of course—after some of the most hilarious sequences yet seen on the screen.

Harpo and Chico Marx are as whimsically funny as ever. Harpo, as the town dog-catcher, working his way through college, chases canines, instead of girls. Now and then, however, he errs, but the girls are so pretty that it's quite the human thing to do. Chico is an amorous iceman and a football star in the rough—so rough, in fact, that even the referee naps when he starts through a broken field with a football under his sweater.

Pretty blonde Thelma Todd and Florine McKinney, a brunette, but equally as attractive, contribute the feminine interest.

IOSCOS NOSE OUT HALE TIGERS BY 6-5 COUNT

By cutting off a late-inning rally in the nick of time at Hale last Sunday, the Iosco County Independents nosed out the Hale Tigers by a 6-5 score. The Ioscos had scored three runs in each the second and fourth frames and led until the eighth by a 6-0 count. At this stage of the game, however, the Hale bats became active and five runs crossed the plate before the uprising was quelled. Rahl, of Hale, and Frank, of the Ioscos, were the opposing moundsmen, the former allowing nine hits while the latter yielded but five. Rahl struck out ten men, and Frank retired 13 by the same route. The line-up—

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The Twentieth Century Club held its first meeting of the year at the Horton cottage at Sand Lake, Saturday, October 1. A short business session with the president, Mrs. Jas. Mark, in charge, was followed by roll call, the members responding with "Summer Memories."

Miss Worden and Miss Cowgill then led the group in an hour of games and stunts which brought forth a great deal of merriment.

A most bountiful pot luck supper was served by the social committee.

In spite of the inclemency of the weather there was a good attendance, and a splendid time was enjoyed by all.

The next meeting of the club, on October 15, will be held at the City Hall.

PHELAN—HERRICK

Miss Luanna Phelan, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Phelan of this city, and James Herrick, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Herrick of East Tawas, were quietly married September 21st at Toledo, Ohio. The ceremony took place in the St. Francis de Sales Cathedral, with Rev. Robert Mahr officiating. They will make their home in East Tawas. Their many Tawas friends wish them a happy married life.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. John Durant: Just one year ago we parted, In a way that God thought best; But my love with you still lingers, And will until I'm laid to rest. We think of you in silence, No eyes can see us weep; But many a silent tear is shed, When others are asleep. What would we give to clasp your hand, To see your loving face, To hear your voice we love so well, That meant so much to us. Her Loving Husband and Children.

SCHOOL NOTES

High School

The students whose names are on the honor roll for the first month of school are: Martha Becker, Patricia Braddock, Robert Hamilton, Leonard Hoshbach, Arlene Leslie, Nathan Lincoln, Dora Mark, Arnold McLean, Vera Thornton, Ernest Wagner.

Our baseball team won its second game of the season when it defeated the Whittemore team by a score of 11 to 9. Both teams did some heavy batting, but the fielding of our boys was by far the better. We play East Tawas October 6 at East Tawas.

County Sunday School Convention Held at Hale on Tuesday

The Iosco County Council of Religious Education held their annual convention at the Hale Baptist church, Tuesday, October 4. The program was as follows:

10:00 a. m.: Worship and Prayer—Rev. Metcalf; General Study, "Supervision in Religious Education"—Bernard Coggan; Business—Financial Report; Study, "New Approach in Teaching"—Bernard Coggan.

1:30 p. m.: Study, "The Place of Worship in Religious Education"—Bernard Coggan; Resume of Year's Work—Divisional Superintendents; Offering, Music; Final Study, "Keeping the Modern Home Christian"—Bernard Coggan.

Divisional Superintendent's Reports

The divisional superintendent gave fine reports of the work that has been done the past year in the Children's Division, the Young Peoples Division and the Adult Division which included vacation Bible schools, rallies, institutes and week-end retreats.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Annabel Davidson; First Vice-President, Wm. Lattier; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Helen Shattuck; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Mae Dease; Children's Division Superintendent, Mrs. Luella Chambers; Young Peoples' Division Superintendent, Mrs. Kate Evans; Adult Division Superintendent, Mrs. Florence Price; Educational Superintendent, Rev. F. Metcalf.

Blonde Venus at State

Marlene Dietrich's latest starring picture, "Blonde Venus," comes to the State Theatre next week Friday and Saturday.

The picture, directed by Josef von Sternberg, who discovered the glamorous star three years ago, and has been in charge of production of her four previous English-language films presents her in the role of a woman who, to save her husband's life, accepts the love of another man.

At first, cold-blooded about the proposition, she soon finds she is in love with her benefactor. Her love for her young son, however, binds her to her husband. When her husband discovers the situation, he orders her from their home, and she is compelled to make a decision that leads to a highly dramatic climax.

Herbert Marshall, noted star of the dramatic stage, plays the role of the husband, with Cary Grant, promising young screen player, as the lover. Dickie Moore is the son.

REPORT OF COUNTY NURSE FOR MONTH OF SEPTEMBER

During September, Miss Myrtle Cowgill, county nurse, made 33 visits to schools. Health problems of the school were discussed with teacher and pupils. A graph showing the record for small pox and diphtheria immunization for every school in Iosco county was shown. Immunization was started in Reno, Sherman and Burleigh townships, also at Tawas City. 143 doses of toxoid were given, and 22 vaccinations were done by Dr. Johnston at these clinics.

Dr. Johnston and Miss Cowgill assisted with the chest X-ray clinic held by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association at the City Hall, Tawas City. 28 tuberculosis contacts and suspects had chest X-rays.

The nurse made 12 maternity home visits, 22 infant, 43 pre-school and 34 school home visits. The birth certificates coming from the State Department of Health each month are delivered by the nurse unless a recent call has been made in the home, in which case they are promptly mailed.

The September committee meeting was held at Oscoda with an attendance of 55, the Oscoda group being in charge of the program.

TAWAS CITY DEFEATS E. T. MERCHANTS

Two Teams Stage Thrilling 4-3 Battle at East Tawas Last Sunday

Tawas City and the East Tawas Merchants staged another thrilling and well played game last Sunday at the East Tawas athletic field. The locals were victors by a 4-3 score.

Brown and St. Martin were the opposing moundsmen for the game and both performed nicely. Brown allowed nine hits, struck out five and gave five passes, while St. Martin yielded 11 safeties, whiffed six and passed two.

Tawas City was the first to score in the game, tallying one run in the fourth, followed by another in the sixth. The Merchants came back in their half of the sixth to tie the count. In the eighth, Stewart Roach's triple, with Swartz on base, followed by an overthrow at third, netted the locals two runs. East Tawas failed to make the grade in their two remaining times at bat, falling short by one run of tying the count.

Next Sunday, October 9, Townline will be the opponent of the Tawas City team at the local athletic field.

CITY CHILD HEALTH COMMITTEE TO MEET AT CITY HALL NEXT TUESDAY

The County Child Health Committee will meet with the Tawas City group at the City Hall at 2:00 p. m. on Tuesday, October 11. Mrs. Eugene Bing, local chairman, assisted by other local members, have planned the following program: Community singing, music by Mrs. Giddings; a play by children from the Immanuel Lutheran school; a talk on Red Cross welfare work by F. F. Taylor, local Red Cross secretary; a talk by Dr. T. H. Johnston, and reports by the various local chairmen of health and welfare activities in the county. Everyone is invited to attend this meeting.

"BLESSSED EVENT" REVEALS OPERATIONS OF COLUMNISTS

The ways and means by which the gossip columnist of modern journalism get their information are amusingly exposed in Warner Bros. picture, "Blessed Event," which comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, Sunday and Monday, October 9-10. Lee Tracy, famed Broadway star and wit, plays the role of a chatter writer which closely parallels that of a famous Broadway columnist.

The picture shows Tracy as the columnist, getting information, hints and tips from dozens of varied sources. He uses his friends and his enemies, his experience and his imagination; he relies on his luck and his intuition and not infrequently he puts two and two together and makes seven or eight.

Supporting Lee Tracy in "Blessed Event" are Mary Brian, Dick Powell, Allen Jenkins, Ruth Donnelly, Milton Wallace, Ned Sparks, Frank McHugh, Emma Dunn, Walter Walker, Edwin Maxwell, Tom Dugan and others.

EAST TAWAS SCHOOL NOTES

The Varsity "E" club of the East Tawas high school is sponsoring a bridge party next Friday, October 14, at 8:00, E. S. T., to be held in the American Legion hall. The Home Arts department will serve the luncheon, and the manual training department will furnish the prizes for first, second and low score. The purpose of the party is to secure funds for basketball equipment. The turnout for both boys and girls basketball this year will be extremely large and we are in need of more equipment in order to accommodate them all. The admission will be 25 cents per person. Tables, cards and refreshments will be furnished. The committee in charge is composed of Hosea Bigelow, Edward Doak, Howard Durant and Charles Edinger.

The Senior class was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Jackson Tuesday evening. The evening was spent playing games. First prizes in the different games were won by Miss Huhtala, the class advisor, and Gordon McGirr. Everyone enjoyed the games and the refreshments, and the class thanks Betty Jackson for the enjoyable evening.

The Seniors have elected the following officers: President, Howard Durant; vice-president, Arlene Curry; secretary, Alfred Johnson; treasurer, Ruth Alstrom; news reporter, Allie Frank; advisor, Miss Huhtala.

SHUT OFF SALE OF GUNS TO GANGSTERS

Thompson Arm to Be Confined to Military Use.

Washington.—Taught a lesson by the hundreds of gangster killings in the past six years, lawmakers throughout the country are considering ways and means of removing sub-machine guns from the underworld.

The first move in this direction has been taken by the single concern manufacturing the gun. Sale of the weapon has been forbidden except for military purposes.

But the damage has been done. The gangsters have the gun—hundreds of them—and only time and unrelenting vigilance on the part of police officers will serve to clean this potential source of sudden death from the haunts of the lawbreakers.

Brig. Gen. John T. Thompson is horrified at the use to which his invention has been put. Placed on the market in 1921, the guns almost immediately began to reach the underworld. More and more of the guns were diverted from the legitimate trade channels into this quarter, as the gangsters began to realize that here was a gun vastly superior to the automatic pistol and other old weapons.

For ten years there was no supervision over the sale of the guns.

When occasion arose, as it usually did after a gangland killing, of checking the ownership of a gun the quest always ended at the dealer who sold it. In most cases fictitious names were given by persons who bought the guns.

Not all of the guns, however, were acquired by gangsters through purchase from dealers. Thompson sub-machine guns have had a habit of disappearing from the hands of the police, bank and industrial guards, and other legitimate possessors and turning up with gangsters behind them. That is why the manufacturers have stopped selling to such persons.

In one case a fake company was organized specifically by gangland to obtain the guns in carload lots. It operated for several months before authorities discovered what was going on.

The gangsters obtained the guns "by hook or by crook." If one state made rigid regulations for the sale of all guns—as a number have in the past few years—the gangsters motored to an adjoining state, bought all they wanted there, and smuggled them across the border.

One of the first incidents calling attention to the use to which Thompson's invention was being placed was a mail truck robbery in Elizabeth, N. J., in October, 1926. Eight gangsters, armed with sub-machine guns, drove up to a mail truck and, without warning, turned one gun full on the truck. With another they laid a protective barrage across the street intersection, driving the populace to cover.

The guards in the truck didn't have a chance. One was killed, and three fell wounded. The bandits fled, abandoning one gun as they departed with about $100,000 of Uncle Sam's money which they obtained from the truck.

In the same month—in Chicago—came the Hymie Weiss murder. A gang leader and foe of Al Capone, he was shot down on the steps of a cathedral where he had taken refuge. The killers fired from an upper window of an apartment across the street, and Weiss fell dead with 12 slugs in his body.

In such ways has the Thompson sub-machine gun been put to use. Gangsters call it a "lawn mower," an apt name.

After the Weiss killing there followed a string of machine gun murders and holdups too numerous to mention. The "tigers" were biting in the underworld jungle. There is every evidence that such weapons were and are an essential part of every efficient gangster's equipment.

The infamous St. Valentine's day massacre in Chicago, when seven of "Bugs" Moran's gang were lined up

Strange-Sounding Names Puzzle to Ozark Visitors

Reason for Queer Titles Is Often Obscure.

Hollister, Mo.—The Ozark country, or at least that part of it known as the White River district, is a country of caves, coon dogs and hospitable folk, not to mention original and odd-sounding names. Visitors seldom fail to wonder at such names as Gobbler's Knob, High Lonesome, Loafers' Glory, Glad Joe, Virgin's Bluff, Naked Joe, Possum Trot and others no less characteristic.

Take Ava, for instance, the county seat of Douglas county. When, in 1871, James Halley was confronted with the important task of naming a town he went to his Bible for guidance and found in II Kings, 17:24, his inspiration; the town was duly named Ava, which in Hebrew means "overflowing."

Not all inspiration came from books. One of the highest knobs in Stone county bears the somewhat modern name of Naked Joe. Old settlers relate the story of a duel fought on this peak before the Civil war by two naked men, the victor of which was named Joe. Wild turkeys led to the naming of Gobbler's Knob.

Taney county was named after Roger B. Taney, a chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States for 26 years, whose decision in the famous Dred Scott case had such an important reaction in shaping events that led to the Civil war and whose wife was a sister of Francis Scott Key. Douglas county was named after Stephen A. Douglas, whose life also figured so prominently in pre-Civil war days. John Forsyth of Georgia, secretary of state of the United States, 1834-1841, lent his name

Four Mascots Given Free License Tags

Washington.—"Al," "Matt," "Buff" and "Jack Rags" are just plain dogs, but as far as the district government is concerned they rate high in canine circles. So high, in fact, that they were issued new tags without cost.

"Al" is the brown and white bull mascot of No. 8 Engine company. "Matt" is official watchman at the street cleaning department stables.

"Buff," an English shepherd, is mascot of No. 22 Engine company, while "Jack Rags" plays around the garbage transfer station.

against a wall and "mowed" down, brought to light many more facts concerning the machine-gun warfare among the cliques of the underworld.

A twenty-three-year-old girl, cruising on a pleasure yacht at Waukegan, Ill., a short time ago was shot when a machine gun sputtered from the shore, sending her to the deck and imperiling the lives of 19 other persons.

No one knows who did it. No one knows why. It was just another "tiger" loose in the jungle of the underworld.

67 "Betties" Fail in Claims to $2,000 Estate

Detroit, Mich.—Because none of the 67 "Betties" who claimed the estate left by Thomas F. Sheehan could prove their claims, the estate, amounting to $2,000, went to Mary Margaret Gilmer, a distant relative living at Martin's Ferry, Ohio. The Ohio girl, a seventeen-year-old orphan, had never even heard of Sheehan, who left a note, on his death, bequeathing his money to "Betty."

Federal Prisoners Farm 900 Acre Tract of Land

Lewisburg, Pa.—Two carloads of farming machinery arrived at the new northeastern federal penitentiary for use on the 900-acre farming tract connected with the governmental penal reservation. The machinery included tractors, plows, and other equipment.

to the county seat of Taney county. Ozarkians took their politics seriously enough in those times to name their county seats and landmarks after prominent public figures.

Gobbler's Knob is one of the smaller balds four miles from Hollister in Taney county.

There was humor in the name of Loafers' Glory for a second building in Taney county.

In many instances places were named with a descriptive significance. From Possum Trot, a valley in Taney county where these animals abounded, to High Lonesome, a ridge on a divide between Beaver creek and Swan creek in Douglas county that was particularly high and lonesome; Virgin's Bluff in Stone county, with its legend of disillusioned Indian maiden's love, each has its own particular story.

Concrete Ships Will Be Used as Breakwater.

New Orleans.—Six concrete ships, built by the United States shipping board during the World war, are being stripped and made ready for towing to Alvaro Obregón, Mexico, where they will be sunk as a breakwater.

Five of the ships, the Cuyamaca, Lumuri, Rosedal, Helena and Lathan, were built at Norfolk, Va. The sixth one, the Faith, world's first concrete ship, was built at Oakland, Calif.

For the last six years the ships have been tied up on the bank of the Mississippi river. They cost nearly $1,000,000 each. They are 300 feet long and have a 35-foot beam. The ships were not suitable for commercial operation because they carried 12 per cent less cargo than steel ships of the same tonnage.

Giant Concrete Link in the Lincoln Highway

STRETCHING 1,510 feet across the historic Turtle Creek valley just east of Pittsburgh, the giant George Westinghouse bridge forms one of the most picturesque links in the Lincoln highway, in addition to containing the longest reinforced concrete arch in the United States. This arch, (the middle one) is 425 feet long and clears the railroad tracks by 200 feet. The bridge, which has just been dedicated and opened to traffic, is a part of a five-mile improvement costing $4,000,000.

THE BEDTIME STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE QUACKS GROW UNEASY

PETER RABBIT doesn't like the very hot weather of midsummer any more than you or I do. He cannot go to the seashore or the mountains as we can, and just think, he has to wear a fur coat all the time! Of course in this respect Peter is not worse off than a lot of his neighbors. In fact none of them likes the very hot weather. So with the coming of the first cool days in September new life seemed to fill Peter. He loves the fall. Next to the spring he likes the fall best. But for two things he thinks he might even like it the best of all the year. Those two things are the parting with old friends who are leaving for the far away sunny Southland, or who are preparing to sleep all winter, and the fact that the fall brings the dreadful hunting season when men with terrible guns delight in spreading terror and suffering over the Green Meadows, through the Green Forest, along the Laughing Brook, around the Smiling Pool, up in the Old Pasture and even deep in the Great Woods.

"What Are You So Glad About?" Demanded Mr. Quack.

The fall is a busy time for Peter. You see there are so many friends to say good-by to that he is afraid that some will slip away before he sees them. The first of the cool days had already come and Peter knew by things he saw that it would not be long before many of his feathered friends started on their long journey. Everywhere he saw them in flocks now instead of in pairs, as he saw them in the spring. They were making up parties for the long journey, for they prefer to travel in this way. It is quite necessary, because you know there are so many young birds for whom this will be the first time to make the long journey, and they must be shown the way by the older birds. Then it always is much pleasanter to travel with company.

A great party of blackbirds flying over the Old Brier Patch reminded Peter that it was quite likely that certain other friends would soon be starting, among others, the Quack family, who had spent this summer in the pond of Paddy the Beaver. So the first chance he got Peter hurried over to Paddy's Pond deep in the Green Forest. He was half afraid that they might have left already, and he half hoped that they might decide to stay all winter. When he got there he found Mr. and Mrs. Quack and the ten young Quacks, now as big as their father and mother, still there.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" cried Peter. "What are you so glad about?" demanded Mr. Quack, swimming in close to where Peter was sitting on the bank.

"That you are still here," replied Peter. "I was afraid you might have gone away. Are you going to take that terrible journey again this year, Mr. Quack?"

"Certainly," replied Mr. Quack. "What else can I do?"

"Why, stay here all winter the same as I do," replied Peter.

"And what would we do when all the water has turned to ice, stupid?" demanded Mr. Quack.

Peter looked foolish. "I hadn't thought of that," said he. "Of course you have to go where the water doesn't freeze. Just the same I think it is dreadful that you have to take that terrible journey."

"It wouldn't be so bad if it were not for the hunters with terrible guns," replied Mr. Quack. "We don't mind the journey; it is the terrible guns. Have you seen any hunters near the Old Brier Patch yet?" Mr. Quack asked this anxiously.

"No," replied Peter. "This cool weather is sure to bring them out," replied Mr. Quack uneasily. "I almost wish we had started earlier, but we have been so happy here this summer that I cannot bear to leave until we have to. What's that?" Mr. Quack started nervously and stretched his head up to listen. All the other ducks did the same thing. It was only the snapping of a twig under Buster Bear's feet, and in a moment he appeared.

At once the ducks dropped their

THREE DESSERTS

THERE comes a time to all housewives when it is impossible to think of anything for dessert which fits the meal she is preparing. Keep a card index of desserts and pick out one that has not recently been used, for we all like variety even in desserts. It is not always the things that sound the best which turn out that way. After preparing food for some time one's judgment should be a good guide, after reading a recipe, as to its palatability; however, some times the strangest concoctions turn out well—so don't be afraid to try a new recipe.

A New Apple Cake.

Take one cupful of flour, a bit of salt, three tablespoonfuls of shortening, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-third of a cupful of milk, two and one-half cupfuls of apple sauce, juice of half a lemon, two egg yolks and one cupful of whipped cream. Rub the shortening into the dry ingredients, using butter, as it gives a better flavor, although any sweet shortening will be good. Pat out and line a pie plate. Mix apple sauce, lemon, egg yolks and bake until the crust is brown and filling firm. Cover with whipped cream or the whites of the eggs may be used as a meringue.

Simple Charlotte.

For this use the little nut cups about an inch high and two inches in diameter. Split lady fingers and line the cups, letting the cake come up an inch above the tops. Fill the cups with lightly sweetened whipped cream and top with a tiny macaroon or a cherry. One may use any color scheme for this light dessert.

Boston Cream Pie.

Beat the yolks of six eggs until creamy, add one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and add one cupful of sugar very slowly, beating well, then add two teaspoonfuls of grated lemon peel, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one cupful of flour folded after the beaten egg whites have been added. Sift the flour several times to make it very light. The layers will be very thin. Now to one cupful of whipped cream add three beaten egg whites. Sweeten and flavor and spread over the cake. Ice with a chocolate frosting.

heads and began swimming about again, for they did not fear Buster Bear. But it was very clear that they were uneasy, very uneasy, indeed, especially Mr. and Mrs. Quack. The young Quacks had had no experience with hunters, but they were uneasy, too. The truth is they were anxious to try their wings. They were looking forward to that long journey as something very wonderful. They were anxious to be on their way. Something inside was urging them to start for their beautiful Southland. It is often that way with the young. They did not fear because they did not know.

Dental Bird

The crocodile, when it feels the need of the services of a dental hygienist, climbs out on the bank of the river in which it makes its home, opens its huge mouth invitingly and waits.

In due time a bird known as the Nile-bird comes along, sees the job waiting for it and goes to work. It hops into the crocodile's mouth and picks off all the leeches and other foreign forms of life which may be clinging to the tongue and cavity walls of the crocodile, and then departs. The reptile then closes its mouth and with not so much as a thank-you slides back into the water to accumulate another job for another Nile-bird.

These Bluejackets Have a Right to Be Proud

A mighty proud bunch of bluejackets are those aboard the scout cruiser Detroit, and equally proud is Capt. Nathan W. Post, their skipper. Their ship has just been awarded two of the highest trophies in the navy. One is the battle efficiency pennant, known to navy men as the mast ball. The other is the gunnery trophy for ships of her class. In addition to these two honors the Detroit also holds the anti-aircraft trophy presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Shopping Under Difficulties in Harbin

THE GRANITE STATE

Finishing New Hampshire-Made Hose

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—NYG Service.

NEW HAMPSHIRE might recently have been called the orchestra seat for the show produced by Nature—the eclipse, which drew thousands of visitors across her borders from many states.

Without the eclipse, however, New Hampshire is a magnet to visitors the year round. In the summer its mountains and lakes call vacationists from remote parts of the country, while in winter they are the scene of winter sports.

About two hundred and fifty years ago New Hampshire was separated from Massachusetts. The new royal province had then but four towns, which clung precariously to the seaboard; and if the usual rule of computing population in proportion to qualified voters be observed, there were perhaps a thousand souls in the census.

In a quarter millennium the state's population has come to number about half a million people, and has spread from the coast to the lakes and beyond the mountains to the Canadian border. The march has been toilsome. Subduing the forest was no easy task, and it is small wonder that so many of its acres, once cleared by the stern process of cutting and burning, have been permitted to resume their forest cover.

It is probable that Massachusetts was glad to be rid of New Hampshire, back there 250 years ago. They had not got on well with the royal governors who had lived in Boston. It was the first manifestation of a revolt against absentee landlordism which New Hampshire has always more or less maintained.

Mills on the Merrimack.

Down in Maine they speak of "the lordly Kennebec," but the Merrimack stands unmatched. Its boast is that it turns more spindles than any other stream in the world, for upon its banks stand the great industrial cities of Manchester, and Nashua; and New Hampshire has always looked with pride upon its centers of the textile world, from which its products have gone out all over the globe.

Time was when solid trains of cottons used to go from Manchester and Nashua north and west through Canada to the Pacific coast, and thence to the Orient, to clothe the "heavenly Chinese." But changing styles, slackening immigration, rayon, and what not have played havoc with New England's textiles, while the Orient has learned to make its own shirtings and the South now not only grows, but weaves, its own cotton. The miles of mighty mills at Manchester still run, but not with their former volume.

The Merrimack, however, like Old Man River, keeps rolling along; and so do the other streams which have New Hampshire originates and which have so greatly enriched New England. The Kennebec alone, of all the great rivers of this section, escapes New Hampshire paternity. The Connecticut, the Androscoggin, the Saco—these, with the Merrimack, make the great quartette to which the four states of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Vermont and Connecticut owe so much.

The story of the New Hampshire grants is an interesting one. Many a worthy figure in it, the redoubtable Ethan Allen being the most conspicuous. With him was a leading member of the Dartmouth faculty, and among them they attempted to set up a new state. They succeeded; but when they sought to incorporate into it some fifty towns of New Hampshire, that was "too much"; there was federal intervention, and both Vermont and New Hampshire withdrew within their present frontiers.

Switzerland of America.

Among the titles in which New Hampshire glories is that of "the Switzerland of America." In summer the mountains and valleys are thronged by the thousand. The Appalachian Mountain club visits them, piecemeal and sporadically, though their trails and their cabins have a call which should be as strong in winter as in summer.

The Dartmouth Outing club, however, has been by no means slow to make use of the winter months. This organization has its chain of cabins, also, which covers the territory from Mount Cardigan to Mount Washington, and its hikes, as described in the college publications, remind one of the heroic tales which Napoleon wrote upon the face of the Alps.

Increasing competition and changing economic conditions have caused a recession in New Hampshire's basic industries, but there can be no competition and there is no change in those gifts with which Nature has endowed the state. As a consequence, there are those who think that New Hampshire's future must lie wholly in the further extension of its recreational interests and in the further development of its water powers.

One of the largest of the country's manufacturers of sporting goods is set down in the foothills of the White mountains, and from his factory go forth thousands of baseballs to be sewn by the women of the community.

Women in organized industry are plenty enough in New Hampshire, however, but they have not come from the farms, at least not from New Hampshire farms where hand industry was to be found. With the concentration of New Hampshire industries in the cities, and particularly with the specialization of cities in the shoe and textile lines, came a swelling stream of immigration from the north attracted by the opportunities which the state's expanding mills provided.

Lots of Water There.

New Hampshire is not a dry state. At any rate, no inconsiderable portion of its 9,341 square miles is covered with water. Its lakes are innumerable, ranging from Winnepesaukee, with its 80 square miles of area and its 274 islands, down to the tiny tarn in front of the Crawford house where the Saco river has its source. All of these waters, highly protected by the state, teem with fish, and the prediction which Gov. Moody Currier made in his inaugural message a half century ago seems to have come true. The old gentleman was pleading for more generous appropriations for the fish and game department, and argued that it should be possible to make each acre of New Hampshire water area as productive as the average acre of land.

If one throws into the account the revenue in taxes and purchases made by the owners of the sportsmen's camps which have spawned so plentifully on the shores of New Hampshire lakes and streams, the governor is seen to have had his vision realized. The federal government also has not been neglectful and both the legislature and congress have established and maintain hatcheries which are modern and efficient—and some of them picturesque.

Has Excellent Schools.

New Hampshire has always laid great store upon education, and in less than fifteen years from the date of the first settlement schools were established in the earlier towns and contracts were made with imported teachers, who were paid at public expense.

The colony was but seventy years old when, amid the distress and distraction of the French and Indian war, the assembly made provision by taxation for meeting houses, ministers' homes, schoolhouses, and the salaries of schoolmasters. Endowed academies, sprang up within the following century, the first being the Phillips Exeter academy, which in 1931 celebrated its sesquicentennial and which stands in the foremost rank of preparatory schools in the country.

These institutions for the most part bore the mark of the standing order of Congregationalism. The Methodist school at Tilton, the Baptist school at New Hampton, the Free Baptist school at Andover still maintain more or less of their denominational affiliation.

The great church of St. Paul's, which was the first of that strong and notable chain of church schools in the East, together with the school at Holderness, still adheres to its Episcopalian faith, while St. Anselm's college, established by the Benedictine Order near Manchester, and several academies for girls attest the devotion of the Catholic church to scholarship in a state where it numbers at least a third of the total population.

At the head of all of New Hampshire's educational institutions stands Dartmouth college, no longer "the small college," which Webster loved and defended. Crowning the heavenly heights which spring upward from the Connecticut at Hanover, Dartmouth, with new buildings, an enlarged faculty, expanding endowments, and, it is good to add, the same old spirit, has come to rank with the great colleges of the country and is a source of constant pride to the state.

At Durham, one of the first settlements and near the sea, is the University of New Hampshire, it, too, enjoying an era of remarkable expansion and prosperity.

What Can You Do For The Pains Of Rheumatism?

Pain Ended In Few Minutes, This Way

It has now been discovered by thousands of rheumatic sufferers that the pains of that distressing disorder can be eased in as little as a few minutes... relief and comfort in almost as little time as it takes to tell!

Doctors advise two tablets of Bayer Aspirin taken with a full glass of water. Then a rest of a few minutes... and that is all. Pain is eased quickly—sometimes almost unbelievably.

Relief comes so fast because of the peculiar quick-dissolving property of Genuine Bayer Aspirin. The tablets you take dissolve almost INSTANTLY in your stomach. And thus you get practically instant relief. The fastest, safe relief—it is said.

Scientific Advice for the Short in Stature

News for short men. Do not despair, for you may yet add a cubit to your stature, if you but lie down. Height, says Dr. Carroll E. Palmer, increases slightly in the reclining individual. The increase varies with height and sex, and is somewhat greater in men than in women.

The observed extension was sometimes as much as one inch. Doctor Palmer came upon this odd phenomenon in the course of an investigation at Johns Hopkins for the purpose of finding a basis of comparison between the height tables of infants.

Ways of the Kurds

Kurdistan is a province in Persia inhabited largely by Kurds, a race of wild and lawless people. Kurds also are found in Turkey and Russia, where they live in the mountainous regions and mix brigandage with their nomadic traits. There are approximately 800,000 Persian Kurds, 1,650,000 Turkish Kurds, and 50,000 Russian Kurds. Although the Kurds are a wild and somewhat primitive race, they take great pride in their ancestry, many families tracing their descent back to the Omayyad caliphs. Sinna, the capital of Kurdistan, is famous for its beautiful rugs, some of which bring handsome prices.

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation. But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better in every way. You will never need to take another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way. Syrup pepsin isn't expensive.

D. 1919, in Liber 22 of Mortgages, on page 235, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due, at the date of this notice, for principal, interest and taxes, the sum of Six Hundred Ninety Dollars and Thirty-four Cents ($690.34).

No suit or proceedings at law or in equity having been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. Now, therefore, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute of the State of Michigan, in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that on Tuesday, the 6th day of December, A. D. 1932, at 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, at the front or main entrance to the Court House building in the City of Tawas City, Isosco County, Michigan (that being the building where the Circuit Court for the County of Isosco is held), of the premises described in said mortgage, or so much thereof as may be necessary to pay the amount due, as aforesaid, on said mortgage, with the interest thereon at seven per cent (7%) and all legal costs, charges and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law. Which said premises are described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situate in the Township of Tawas, in the County of Isosco, and State of Michigan, as described as follows, to-wit: The West half (W. 1/2) of the Northeast quarter (N.E. 1/4) of Section Twenty (20), Town Twenty-two (22) North, Range Seven (7) East, containing eighty acres, more or less, according to Government Survey. Dated at Detroit, Michigan, September 6th, 1932.

Failing Sight—When a person passes forty he enters a period of failing sight, according to the better-vision institute. Forty-two is the average age at which eyes begin to lose their ability to adjust themselves easily to varying focal ranges. Up to that age most eyes, with or without the aid of glasses, can accommodate themselves to variations in the range of vision, but after that age such accommodations are increasingly difficult to make.

REGISTRATION NOTICE
For General November Election
November 8th, 1932
To the Qualified Electors of the City of Tawas City, State of Michigan:

Notice is hereby given that in conformity with the "Michigan Election Law," I, the undersigned City Clerk will, upon any day except Sunday and a legal holiday, the day of any regular or special election or primary election, receive for registration the name of any legal voter in said city not already registered who may APPLY TO ME PERSONALLY for such registration. Provided, however, that I can receive no names for registration during the time intervening between the Second Saturday before any regular, special, or official primary election and the day of such election.

The last day for General Registration does not apply to persons who vote under the Absent Voters' Law. (See Registration by Affidavit.)

Notice is hereby given that I will be at my office
Wednesday, October 19th, 1932
the twentieth day preceding said election, as provided by Part II, Chapter III, Public Acts of 1931, from 8 o'clock a. m. until 8 o'clock p. m. on said day for the purpose of reviewing the Registration and Registering such of the qualified electors in said City as Shall Properly Apply therefor.

Notice is hereby further given to the Qualified Electors of this City that I, the undersigned Clerk of said City, will register qualified electors who may apply at my office on any business day in the year up to and including Saturday, Oct. 29th, 1932—Last Day for General Registration by personal application for said election.

The name of no person but an ACTUAL RESIDENT of the precinct at the time of registration, and entitled under the constitution, if remaining such resident, to vote at the next election shall be entered in the registration book.

Registration by Affidavit

Sec. 10—Registering of Electors: Any absent voter, as defined in this act, whose name is not registered and who shall claim the right to vote by absent voter's ballot at any election or primary election, may at the time of making application for absent voter's ballot, present to the township clerk an affidavit for registration which shall be in substantially the following form:

Affidavit for Registration
STATE OF MICHIGAN,
County of.....

I,....., being duly sworn, depose and say that I am a citizen and duly qualified elector of the.....Ward of the City of.....and State of Michigan; that my postoffice address is No.....Street....., or R. F. D. No....., P. O.....;

I am not now registered as an elector therein and that I am voting by absent voter's ballot at the election (or primary election) to be held upon the.....day of....., 193.....

the application for which ballot accompanies this affidavit; that I make this affidavit for the purpose of procuring my registration as an elector in accordance with the statute; that I make the following statements in compliance with the Michigan Election Law: Age.....; Race.....; Birthplace.....; Date of Naturalization.....; I further swear or affirm that the above questions concerning my qualifications as an elector are true and correct to the best of my knowledge and belief.

Signed.....
*Taken, subscribed and sworn to before me this.....day of....., 193.....
My commission expires....., 193.....

Notary Public in and for said County, State of Michigan.
*Note—If this acknowledgment is taken outside of the State, the Certificate of the Court that the person taking the acknowledgment is a notary must be attached.

Upon receipt of such affidavit in the time specified herein, the clerk shall write in the registration book the name of the applicant together with the other information required by this chapter and such applicant shall thereupon be deemed to be duly and properly registered.

Registration of Absence by Oath.
If any person whose name is not registered shall offer and claim the right to vote at any election, or primary election, and shall UNDER OATH, state that he or she is a resident of such precinct and has resided in the CITY TWENTY DAYS next preceding such election, designating particularly the place of his or her residence and that he or she possesses the other qualifications of an elector under the constitution; and that, owing to the sickness or bodily infirmity of himself or herself, or some member of his or her family or owing to his or her absence from the City on public business or his or her own business, and without intent to avoid or delay his or her registration, he or she was unable to make application for registration on the last day provided by law for the registering of electors preceding such election, then the name of such person shall be registered, and he or she shall when permitted to vote at such election. If such applicant shall in said matter, wilfully make any false statement, he or she shall be deemed guilty of perjury, and upon conviction, be subject to the pains and penalties thereof.

Provided, That any city may provide by its charter or by resolution approved by a majority of the members of its legislative body for the registration of such sick and absent voters on the last Saturday preceding any election or primary election at the places of voting in the several voting districts of such city, instead of on election or primary election day.

Provision in Case of Removal to Another Precinct

Any registered and qualified voter who has REMOVED from ONE ELECTION PRECINCT of a Ward to another election precinct of the same Ward shall have the right, on any day previous to election day, on application to the City Clerk, to have his or her name transferred from the registration book of the precinct from which he or she HAS REMOVED to the registration book of the precinct in which he or she THEN RESIDES. Such elector shall have the right to have such transfer made ON ELECTION DAY, or Primary election day, by obtaining from the board of inspectors of election of the precinct from which he or she HAS REMOVED a CERTIFICATE OF TRANSFER, and presenting the said certificate to the BOARD OF ELECTION INSPECTORS OF THE PRECINCT IN WHICH HE OR SHE THEN RESIDES.

In every such case of transfer the City Clerk or the Board of Inspectors issuing such certificates shall cause opposite the name of such elector, to be entered in the column headed "Remarks" in such registration book, the words, "transferred to precinct number..... (giving the number)", together with the initials of said clerk or some member of the Board of Inspectors of Election, as the case may be, and the date of the transfer.

W. C. Davidson, City Clerk.

UNCOVER WORKSHOP
50,000 YEARS OLD

Washington.—Discovery of a great Solutrean workshop in the foothills of the Pyrenees in southern France is announced by the Smithsonian institution.

This open-air factory where craftsmen of approximately 50,000 years ago fashioned tools and weapons out of flints and quartzite extended over several acres and now is covered by a forest. J. Townsend Russell, collaborating archeologist of the Smithsonian staff, made the discovery while passing through the forest over a rain-washed cart track. His attention was drawn to some obviously man-made flint flakes, and soundings made through the area revealed the width and extent of the ancient workshop. It is within a few miles of the cave of Marsoulas where the Smithsonian Institution and the University of Toulouse are conducting a joint archeological enterprise.

Step in Cave-Man Culture.
The workmanship of the Solutrean artisans represents an important stage in human culture—the acme of the chipped-stone industry and the transition to the stage when stone tools and weapons were fashioned by grinding. It is the second stage in the chronology of cave-man culture. The culture is distinguished by the so-called "laurel-leaf" blades of stone knives or daggers. Pieces of flint were beautifully flaked on both sides to produce sharp-cutting edges. The ancient workmen made large, thin spearheads, scrapers and saws by the chipping process, at which they had acquired great skill. These artisans presumably were cave dwellers, although there may already have been some specialization of craftsmen.

Toward the end of the Solutrean period came the revolutionary discovery of the possibility of making tools by grinding instead of chipping. This was one of the great transition points in human culture, but resulted for a time in a marked artistic deterioration while the new method was being perfected by many generations of tool-makers. The site discovered by Russell is believed to mark a transition stage from the Solutrean to the succeeding Aurignacian period.

Twenty-One Soundings Made.
Russell made twenty-one soundings through the forest. Below a level of humus varying from about sixty centimeters to more than a meter in thickness was a layer fifty centimeters thick, consisting of quartzite pebbles and flint nodules of poor quality tightly packed with earth. This area had been superficially quarried from the surface. Artifacts and debris of manufacture were found in this level, as well as in the lower part of the humus. In one sounding a considerable quantity of flints was found where the quarry layer appeared to have been dug into deeper than elsewhere. The stone had been thrown aside so as to make a cuplike depression, whose borders were covered by only a few centimeters of humus.

Despite the extent of the workshop, Russell reports, the yield of the station is meager and the proportion of worked flints and finished tools is only about 15 per cent of the whole.

In the nearby cave of Tarte, Russell reports finding traces of a hitherto neglected Aurignacian industry in poor quality quartzite. Two layers of artifacts were found, but the form of the quartzite articles was limited by the poor quality of the material, and no particular form was recognizable. They may have been made in the nearby workshop. The possibility is suggested that even the cave man had his cheap and his expensive artifacts. The Tarte material consists mostly of crude choppers and scrapers, stones retouched on one side only.

Victim of Heat Freezes

His Ears With Dry Ice
Chicago.—Karl Marvin froze his ears while the temperature stood at 97 degrees. Like hundreds of thousands of other persons, Marvin was seeking ways to get relief from the heat. It occurred to him that it might help to put ice on his head. He tried regular ice, but it melted and the water ran down his neck. Then he thought of using dry ice. A few minutes after he had applied the dry ice, his ears began to burn and turn white. A doctor informed him that they had been frozen.

USE A POWER OR LOSE IT

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Late Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Brown, who has been proud of his ability to do athletic stunts, hurt his shoulder a few months ago. The doctor to whom he went gave him some simple directions about what he was to do to get him into shape again, told him not to use his arm too strenuously while the joint was inflamed, and let him go. Brown followed his directions, favored the arm whenever it was possible, and since his job involves mental rather than physical activities, used the muscles on his left side very little. He was surprised one day when he caught a glimpse in a mirror of the back of his shoulder to see that instead of a round vigorous muscle, there was only a depression where the muscle had once been. Not having been used for several weeks, it had atrophied. And the distressing part of it all lay in the fact that having lost the power, it took a great deal longer to get it back than it did to lose it.

I was the lightning typographer for a time in the printing office in which I worked to earn my living while I was in college. I could carry on a running conversation, fill my "stick" accurately and rapidly at the same time, as any typewriter can. I knew the case perfectly. That was a long time ago. I hardly know where a letter is now; I would set a line of type hesitatingly if I held a "stick" in my hand, and if I had to employ the less used letters I would grope about as I might try to find, in a dark room, a lost collar button. The power and skill which I once had is gone because for a long period of time I have not used it.

These are largely physical or mechanical things to which I have been referring, but what is true of them is equally true of spiritual or intellectual things. One has only to neglect moral obligations to discover how much easier it is entirely to ignore them. Once slip and it is hard to get back. Unused power is weakened or lost. © 1932, Western Newspaper Union.

Expert Studies Effects of Chess on Children

Leipzig.—Whether or not playing chess affects the formation of the skull, and especially that of the skull, is at present being investigated by Dr. R. Grau of the Institute for Ethnology and Anthropology, at the University of Leipzig. Doctor Grau is lucky for he has at his disposal the most unique material for his studies—namely, the entire population of the little village of Stroebeck, province of Saxony, known as the "chess village," where the royal game has been played now for close to 1,000 years. In Stroebeck chess is played in every house by young and old. Chess even forms part of the obligatory curriculum at the Stroebeck school.

Rare Metals in Oregon Is Hard Problem for Inventors

Medford, Ore.—Billions of dollars worth of complex metals lie in the ground of southern Oregon—but the master key for their extraction is lacking.

"Southern Oregon has more rare metals than any other district in the world, besides large quantities of the commonly used commercial metals, but they are all mixed together," declared one expert.

These rare metals sell from $19 to $75 an ounce. The mining of them remains as a challenge to the metallurgical world. They are so mixed with each other and with baser metals that their full value never has been properly appreciated.

But it is agreed among mining authorities familiar with the region that the chemist, or metallurgist, who devises a process of separating the precious metals not only will build himself a great fortune, but will cause Oregon to become the most important mineral producing state of the Western hemisphere—or perhaps of the world.

Millions of dollars in placer gold already has been taken from southern Oregon soil and millions more will be taken. A vast project financed by eastern capitalists and calling for development of the rich Mount Emily and Grave creek deposits on a 50 year basis was recently launched.

Large quantities of gold have been taken from "pockets," or from oxidized free milling ores. But as soon as these ores went below the oxidized zone complex sulphides were encountered and were rejected as too complex or refractory to treat.

The experts declare that southern Oregon holds vast deposits which compound together chrome-iron, gold, platinum, paladium, iridium, osmium, ruthenium, tantalum and other rare metals. Ores that ran from 10 to 20 pounds of tantalum a ton have been reported.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

A cloth dipped in vinegar and rubbed over the kitchen stove before it is blacked will remove all the grease that may have accumulated on it.

Powdered alum sprinkled in the crevices of upholstered furniture will exterminate moths.

Strong soap suds and hot water will remove stains from pewter that has become discolored and dark.

When using flour as a substitute for cornstarch when sugar is used, mix the flour and sugar together, and the flour will not curdle.

To keep steel bright, dip a piece of rag in a little kerosene, then in fine ashes, and rub the steel briskly for a few minutes. Then polish with a clean, dry cloth and dry fine ashes and you will be delighted with the result.

Denver Boy is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child and at the first sign of constipation, give him a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments, such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. For over fifty years, leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. C. G. Wilcox, 385 1/2 Wolf St., Denver, Colorado, says: "My son, Jackie, is a prize winner for health, now, but we had a lot of trouble with him before we found his trouble was constipation and began giving him California Fig Syrup. It fixed him up quick, gave him a good appetite, made him sleep fine and he's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days, taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

He tilted the Browning muzzle downward and steadied himself to run a burst at the rear canoe. But that craft darted up alongside the leading boat and loomed there, protected against his machine gun by their nearness to Joyce. With sullen faces upturned, the bandits watched the maneuvering plane, waiting for Alan's next move, defying him to touch them.

Buzzard had banked in a neat hair-pin turn, had dropped down to six hundred feet and was flying back past a hundred yards off the vertical, so that Alan could fire down at them diagonally and double his concentration by ricocheting bullets off the water. It was a superb position. Alan could have killed those five bandits and sunk their canoes in half a minute. But he dared not fire a shot.

It was in that space of hopeless deadlock that Joyce came through. Alan saw her make him some slight sign, a mere gesture which the bandits, leering up at him, did not see. He read the meaning of that gesture; Joyce was preparing for some sudden action; she was signaling him to be ready!

Without a whisper of warning, so swiftly and neatly that the bandits looked around in dazed bewilderment, she half-rose in the canoe, dived headlong over the gunwale, and disappeared.

It came so suddenly that for moments Alan himself hardly comprehended what she had done. When he did realize that she had given him his splendid chance, his finger tightened on the trigger and the Browning leaped into play.

For twenty seconds, till there was danger of Joyce reappearing, he flailed and swept the two canoes with a rain of bullets. He scorched one man, who jumped and yelled. The deadly hail drove them pell-mell in terror of their lives, into shelter of the nearest fags. Fifty feet from where she had dived, Joyce reappeared a moment, cast a frightened glance back, tossed the disheveled hair from her eyes, swam a stroke or two, and then flipped under again like a young otter, making for a soggy reed bed on the other side of the lake.

"Low! Fly low!" Alan shouted into Buzzard's ears. "Sweep low over 'em! They'll try to get her again if we don't force the fight now!"

With rifles snarling at them from fags below, with white puffs of smoke drifting away on the breeze, the plane banked and dived; and less than four hundred feet high, it soared over the bandits, its third time, its last and fatal time.

Nearly flung out bodily by the quick wrenching maneuvers, Alan braced himself and hung grimly to the Browning and ran a burst at the fags that the bandits were firing from. He killed a man; he saw the criminal fling up his arms and stagger and fall face downward in the reeds and water. With another burst, enfilading those fags from a side angle, he would have wiped out the other four.

But that chance was not given him. The thunder of the engine suddenly slackened, the motor spluttered and died; in place of the throbbing roar Alan heard only the swish of struts and hum of wires. In the sudden quiet he heard Buzzard's cry of consternation and saw his flight partner turn a white face toward him; and he guessed the engine had been put out of commission by those snarling rifles in the fags below.

The next instant, with those rifles still blazing away, a tremor seemed to hit the plane, as though other bullets had struck it. It lurched violently, its nose and right wing dropped, and it started a steep side-slip. With a gesture of sickened despair at this second mortal blow, Buzzard cut off ignition and battled with stick and rudder-bar to keep the plane from plummeting into the bog under keel.

Two-thirds of a mile from the bandits, it fell heavily into the water on one wing and pontoon, rocked a moment uncertainly, righted itself and floated—but disabled, useless, out of the battle.

Before the spray from the plane's heavy fall had fairly settled, Alan was on his feet, stripping off helmet and jacket, looking back at the fags where the bandits lay hidden and the reedy bog where Joyce had found a temporary refuge.

For a moment, numbed by this sudden crash of all his plans, he stared hopelessly across that watery thousand yards. The launch was stranded, miles away; Pedneault and Bill were both out of the reckoning; the plane was disabled; the bandits were free to recapture Joyce and escape in their canoes. In the space of five minutes his whole venture had come to nothing.

From the bandit's covert to the bog where Joyce was hiding was a scant two hundred yards. Whatever move he tried, he must act swiftly. In a very few minutes, when those men recovered their wits, they were going to seize their advantage; they were going to whip across, beat through those fags and find her again. She would never flit out of their hands a second time.

Whirling on Buzzard, he demanded sharply: "You can't taxi back there? Can't get me close enough to use the Browning?"

"Can't taxi a foot. Motor's out. They hit something; that's why the engine konked on us. Think the wire to the timber box is cut."

"How long—us to fix that?"

"Take us an hour."

Even as Buzzard spoke, Alan saw the bandits rise up yonder in the fags and start shoving their canoes into the water. They were going to dart across and recapture Joyce.

At the sight of that, his last hesitancy was swept away. Snapping around to the fuselage cubby, he jerked out the frail canvas canoe and unfolded it. Buzzard had been thrusting pliers, wrench and tape into his pockets, but now he stopped and stared wide-eyed at his partner.

"Good Lord! You don't intend . . . ?"

"What else? Stand here and watch them hunt her down?"

"Across that open water? Right into their rifles? Them shooting into you from cover? Alan, don't! For God's sake, don't try that!"

Alan jammed the last thwart-prop into its notch, lifted the canoe one-handed down upon the water, flung in the paddle and jumped down upon a float.

"Hand me the Browning and the cartridge webs. Come alive! Don't you see they're starting across to get lied he might get to the fags. Once there, once the Browning leaped into play, he could smother those rifles in a few seconds.

The bandits had been shoving their heavily laden canoes back through the fags to the open water of the pond lying between them and Joyce. But when they saw him skirling away from the plane, they stopped and watched him for a few moments until his intention became unmistakable. Alan saw them hold a quick council. And then, as though realizing how deadly that open water stretch was, how impossible to cross in the face of four rifles, they pulled the canoes back and secreted themselves in the fags and coolly waited.

When he was still two hundred yards from the reed patch and nearly six hundred from the bandits, they opened on him. A rifle boomed dully like a caribou Winchester, and its heavy bullet ricocheted off the water a dozen feet to his left. Another barked at him. A third kicked up spume a little nearer. Then the fourth, a sharp-cracking Savage, spoke out. Better aimed, in the hands of a deadly marksman, it sent a bullet so close past Alan's ear that involuntarily he winced and bent lower.

The second bullet splintered a hole through the blade of his paddle, up-lifted for a stroke. Its third, still closer, struck the water between paddle and canoe, ricocheted off, spun endwise and tore through the fat side of the canvas craft, missing the middle thwart by an inch. The fourth, elevated a little, sang past in air, harmlessly, but with a murderously close wh-a-ang that jerked a gasp from his lips.

His left hand felt numb and paralyzed. Glancing down at it, he saw the blood start spurting—falling in crimson splashes upon the white canvas. And then he saw that his ring finger, almost completely severed, hung by a mere shred of skin.

With one glance he realized his finger was beyond any surgery to restore. The dangling thing hampered his grip on the paddle. As though its loss was of no consequence in these moments of life and death, he took firm hold of it and pulled it off. The pain came then, in darting throbs that shot to his elbow and made him shiver.

As he gripped the paddle and turned his eyes ahead again toward the thin patch of reeds, he was hit a second time, by the sixth and last bullet of the 'breed's magazine. For a second he was dazed, so dazed he could not realize where he had been struck. Then he felt a pain like a hot iron pressed along his forehead; and something warm and crimson began trickling down into his eyes, half-blinding him.

The Savage did not shoot again just then. The 'breed was evidently reloading and lowering his elevation sight. In the comparative silence, Alan became aware that Buzzard was hoarsely shouting at him. Dimly he heard the pleading frantic yells:

"Back away! For God's sake, back away! They'll kill you. Alan! Look across. To your right. Something like cover. . . . Back away, swing over there!"

Sickened by pain and bullet-shock, Alan scooped up a handful of water and dashed it across his eyes, so that he could see. Glancing north, vaguely wondering what cover Buzzard meant, he saw a little reed bed two hundred yards distant. As he glanced at it, he saw that it was dry ground, standing a foot above water. A swan nest there, a huge structure of willow sticks and reeds and tussock heads, almost completely covered it.

Backing off a few dozen yards, he turned the canoe and flung his whole strength into reaching that swan nest.

The three bandits, knowing he was hard hit, seeing the wobbly, erratic course of the canoe, came bursting out of the fags with eager shouts to finish him off.

A bullet, striking a few feet short, ricocheted off the water and tore through the prow. Alan laid the Browning down flat on the bottom to keep the precious weapon safe; and thrusting his boot against the jagged hole, he tried to stop the spout of water that was rapidly flooding his craft. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

But He Dared Not Fire a Shot.

Joyce? Why shouldn't I go after them on open water? Larry Younge did once. Hand those things down!"

"All right, then," Buzzard gave in. "But if you're going . . ." He seized the second paddle, caught up the light rifle which had been Joyce's and flung a leg over the cockpit edge. "I'm in on that, son."

Alan fended him back with an arm. "Stay here! That's what I mean! You can't help—out there. If you'd go, if they'd sink the boat, we'd both be out. Get busy on this plane. Fix it. You've got her rifle to fight 'em away from you. If they put me out of business, you can whip down and get Pedneault and fly over to join Bill. You three can carry it on with them."

He pushed off Buzzard's restraining hand, skirled away from the plane and headed west toward that acre of thick fags where the bandits had been driven to cover.

Pliers in hand but his work forgotten, Buzzard climbed upon a wing to watch the outcome of that fearfully uneven battle.

Alan's goal was a little patch of reeds three hundred and fifty yards from the bandits. It was a miserable place to fight from, when those four rifles yonder would be snarling at him from perfect hiding. The patch was merely a few yards square; the reeds, only a couple of feet high, were so sparse that one could see through the clump; and the approach to it across that open water was a gantlet of death.

But it was all the cover Alan saw, and it was better at least than nothing. The reeds meant that the water there was shallow enough for him to plant the Browning. By paddling up fast with the canoe bow-on, he be-

Benefits of Sanitary Science to Human Life

There has been no increase in the life span. It is probably the same today, even in Europe and America, as it has been during the entire historical period. As individuals we have no greater capacity to enjoy a long life today than had our ancestors, not to mention the mythical age of the Old Testament patriarchs. On the other hand, the average duration of life has greatly increased during the last century as the result of the application of sanitary science. Extraordinary gains have indeed been made, not, however, in making more centenarians, or even more nonagenarians, but rather in bringing more people safely through the hitherto dangerous period of infancy and having them survive into childhood, early adult life and maturity. The average duration of life, or as it is often called, the expectation of life, is, consequently, today eighteen years more than it was a century ago.—Louis I. Dublin in Current History.

Redouble of a Take-Out Double

WHEN your partner's original bid of one has been doubled, you may sometimes be justified in answering the opponent with a redouble. Such a redouble signals to your partner that you hold the remaining balance of honor strength and that your side is in a position to exact a profitable penalty because the fourth hand must be practically a blank.

The announcement of strength conveyed by such a redouble is never based on distributional tricks or on assistance for the suit partner has named. It has to do solely with a holding of exceptional honor strength, at least 3 honor-tricks. When you have 3 honor-tricks and can account for at least 2 1/2 in your partner's hand, (the 2 1/2 required for his original bid) it becomes apparent that the 3 honor-tricks shown by the doubler must be practically the only strength which his side possesses. In the main, redoubles of this type work to best advantage only after partner has opened with a no trump, and of course they are most profitable when the opponents happen to be vulnerable.

Rebidding After Making a Take-Out Double

When you have forced your partner's bid with a take-out double, unless his response is higher than necessary, regard it with extreme pessimism. Keep in mind that his bid, being merely a compulsory response to your own double, means nothing at all. As you have no means of knowing whether or not your partner's response was made on strength just short of a jump response or on a "bust," you are usually in a dilemma after receiving a minimum response to your take-out double. It is unsafe with a really strong hand to pass such a response, and equally unsafe to raise it unless reasonably sure of your ground. To give even one raise after a partner's minimum response to your take-out double, you should have exceptional trump support with about 5 assisting tricks—6 is a better margin of safety when vulnerable.

When Your Partner Has Been Doubled

When your partner's suit bid has been over-called with a take-out double by the next opponent, if you have normal trump expectancy with a total of four or more assisting tricks, give the maximum raise which your hand affords.

A thoroughly sound bid at no trumps, or in some other suit, can of course be shown. But do not venture a weak take-out, which might be doubled and fare badly in this position. If your partner's bid was at no trump and you hold about 2 1/2 honor-tricks, your best recourse lies in a redouble, as previously explained.

When a player has made a bid which has been doubled by the adversary on his left, passed by his partner and by the next adversary (for a penalty) he can, if in serious difficulties, send out an S O S to his partner. This call for help is made with a redouble, which his partner must never read as a strength signal but as a cry: "Rescue me from this predicament."

The rescue redouble is seldom used when a player has opened with a suit bid, but is often resorted to by a no trump bidder to call for his partner's help. The partner should bid his best suit.

Penalty Doubles

It is most important that the penalty double should never be confused with the take-out double, because the latter calls on the partner of the doubler to make a bid, whereas the former says:

"Partner, leave me in. I am sure that I can set the bid or I should not have doubled. We will collect extra penalty points for every trick that our opponent falls short of his contract."

Rarely should you interfere with your partner when he makes a penalty double. Remember that a bid of more than one no trump can never be doubled except for a penalty, but that a suit bid of one or two may be doubled for a take-out.

There is but one type of penalty double which the less experienced player should use with any degree of latitude. This is what is known as a "free" double. The free double occurs when an opponent's bid, if successful, would give him the game whether or not it was doubled.

Because a bid is rated as "free," however, is no reason why it should be rashly or injudiciously doubled. On a doubtful double of any bid, the percentage is against you owing to the increase of trick values. When the outcome is a close question remember that the odds are greatly in favor of the bidder should he redouble.

To safeguard the doubler the forcing system provides the two trick rule:

Any penalty double must be based on the expectation of setting the opponent two tricks.

Completed to Oscoda, to Alpena and to Mackinaw City, connecting with the west shore highway—giving a hard surfaced highway completely around the "rim of Michigan"; that other road paving projects here would go on.
Gov. Brucker said that there had been many rumors about the future of old U. S. 23, but like rumors in the old army days—the most of them were untrue. He assured them that old U. S. 23 would continue as an important part of the state highway system; that this road was now being prepared for hard surfacing as far as Iwining, and that this work would continue until the road was completely hard surfaced. He said "It is not my object, nor that of the highway department, to hurt any person or section. We are striving to make these highways build up all of northern Michigan."
He announced that the highway department would advertise this week for bids on the construction of the four miles of gravel road north of Hale in Federal Forest Project No. 6, also one and one-tenth miles on the north side of the AuSable river which will complete this project to the county line.

Governor Brucker told about the new $9,000,000 road program and emphasized its importance at this time in furnishing employment to the people, and its value to the state because of its greater purchasing power now. He said that one-third more roads could be built now than could previously have been constructed with the same amount of money.

In opening his address, Governor Brucker said, "When I think of the out-of-doors, I think of Tawas Beach. Here as a boy I spent many happy days while on outings each summer with the choir to which I belonged in Saginaw. Your bay and cities have wonderful advantages as a recreational center and the Shore road will open it for the appreciation of the world."
Rev. Frank Metcalf, toastmaster, opened the program by calling on Acting Mayor Boomer. Mr. Boomer welcomed the guests in behalf of the Tawas City Improvement Association and the city. He thanked the governor, the state administrative board and the members of the state highway department for the interest they had taken here and expressed the people's deep appreciation of the benefits which would be derived from the Shore road and other road projects in the county.

Mr. Boomer was followed by Michigan's veteran road builder, Frank Rogers. Mr. Rogers expressed his pleasure at again visiting Tawas City. He assured those present that he had retained a keen interest in the highways in this section since the days when old U. S. 23 was built as a state reward road. He told of the difficulties and mistakes made in those days and how much they had learned since in the way of constructing better and more permanent paved highways.
Congressman Roy O. Woodruff, who immediately preceded Governor Brucker in giving his address, told of the wonderful possibilities of northeastern Michigan as a summer playground for the nation and of the value of good roads as an asset to the state. That he had "eternally"—and infernally (the last two words were supplied by Governor Brucker) been urging the highway department to build more paved highways. Congressman Woodruff made his address brief, saying, "This is the governor's day," and that he should have the opportunity to do the speaking.

During the program a number of beautiful violin solos were rendered by Edward Martin, Jr. He was accompanied at the piano by his sister, Miss Elizabeth Martin. A piano solo was given by Miss Geraldine Gulliford, teacher of music at the Tawas City public school. The program was closed by Mrs. Nvda Campbell-Leslie who sang "Home, Sweet Home." Mrs. A. E. Giddings was accompanist.
Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Martin, the Tawas City Improvement Association and those who co-operated deserve high commendation for the fine success of the Shore Road Dedication Banquet.
