DELINQUENT TAX BILL INTRODUCED BY REP. HOLBECK

Taxation, both past and future, is one of the most important subjects to come before the present session of the legislature.

Thousands of citizens who have worked and saved for years in order to have a home in old age will find their beloved home sold for taxes this May unless something is done to stop it.

Just about when all hope was gone, we see a slight ray of light in the distance. Taxes for 1932 have been greatly reduced practically all over the state and especially in the rural communities.

The road bills passed at the last session of the legislature which provided that all roads be maintained from the gas and weight tax in the future have taken an immense burden off the taxpayer. In many counties the operation of these bills have reduced taxes over fifty percent. The peak is passed, taxes will steadily decrease from now on.

"If something could just be done about the unpaid taxes of the past, perhaps we could pull through in the future"—this was the thought I had in mind when I drew and introduced House Bill 98.

Under our laws and constitution we cannot cancel taxes once assessed but we can cancel fees and penalties and we can lengthen the time for payment.

This bill of mine provides that if the 1932 tax is paid by May 1st, 1933, then the unpaid taxes for 1930 and 1931 will be consolidated and placed in a separate account in the County Treasurer's office—all fees and penalties to be omitted—the property owner to be given the opportunity of paying these taxes in ten annual payments with interest at 4% on all unpaid amounts. The first installment to be paid July 1st, 1934.

The reason that the bill called for the payment of the 1932 tax was to encourage the payment of taxes and to take away the objection that many legislators have to anything approaching putting a premium on the non-payment of taxes, and the reason that the first payment on the old tax account was set at July 1st, 1934 was the thought that the property owner might have his hands full getting the 1932 and 1933 tax paid.

This bill as it stands may not be perfect and can and very likely will be amended, if, and where needed. It is now in the taxation committee. (Turn to No. 1, Back Page)

School Notes

High School

The committee chosen by the Student Council to make arrangements for programs has decided that one representative from each class should form a committee to plan entertainments. In this way, more people have an opportunity to gain experience by taking the responsibility of planning and presenting programs.

The twelfth grade civics class, which begins work next semester, will use a 1933 edition. This book is revised each year. Some of the features of the 1933 edition, which were not included in the 1932 edition, are the "Bonus Army," the "Lame Duck" Constitutional Amendment, the 1932 Presidential Election, and the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty with Canada.

The money received from the tuberculosis seal sale which was sponsored by the school this year was $40.35. This amount exceeds that of last year by $5.65.

The examinations in the high school will begin on Wednesday morning of next week, and will continue until Friday afternoon. The reports concerning the marks obtained will be on the report cards the next time they are issued.

The January meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held in the high school assembly room Thursday evening, January 12. About seventy patrons were in attendance. There was a worthwhile program and social hour. The fifth-sixth grade room won the custody of the flag, and staff for the ensuing month.

Music and Art Notes

The first grade has learned twenty-six songs to date, and the second grade has learned twenty-seven. These songs are constantly kept in review, so that any or all songs can be sung at a moment's notice by memory. These songs are about various subjects in correlation with school work and school activities—such as animals, birds, people, games, and holidays.

As notebook covers seem to be in demand throughout the grades, the first and second grades have been making covers. Grade one is compiling a Six Month Book, which will be added to from month to month. At least one picture each month will represent the outstanding event of personality which is noted in that month. The second grade covers will be used for the various school papers.

Marking the Social Calendar

JANUARY P. T. A. MEETING HELD LAST THURSDAY

The January meeting of the local Parent-Teacher Association was held at the school building Thursday evening, January 12, with approximately seventy patrons in attendance.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. A. A. Bigelow. The assembly sang two songs, "There Are Many Flags in Many Lands," and "Michigan, My Michigan," and then The Lord's Prayer was given in unison. After the secretary's minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved, the roll of the respective rooms was taken, and it was found that the fifth and sixth grades were to be the custodians of the flag for the ensuing month.

Mrs. J. A. Campbell, the chairman of the program committee for the month, introduced the following program:

Interpretative Song and Dance—An Old Fashioned Garden—Miss Betty Wingrove.
Group of Songs—Ho, Mr. Pine—That Wonderful Mother—O Mine—The Wren—Miss Elsie Ahonen.
Interpretative Song and Dance—The Waltz You Saved For Me—Miss Betty Wingrove.
Talk—Eugene Bing.

The committee was indeed fortunate to secure two entertainers of the quality of the Misses Wingrove and Ahonen. The two young ladies from East Tawas were certainly much enjoyed by the assembly. The speaker of the evening, Mr. Bing, had a worthwhile message which he gave in a worthwhile way. He spoke of the necessity of the cooperation of the home in order to make it possible for the school to reach a high degree of proficiency. The speaker also brought out the fact that the training of the mind is useless without the development of the body.

EIGHTEEN EXAMINED AT CHEST X-RAY CLINIC

Final report of the Michigan Tuberculosis Association on the chest X-ray pictures made of 18 Isosco county residents several weeks ago in the City Hall, Tawas City, indicates that one adult case of tuberculosis was discovered.

X-rays were taken of nine adults and an equal number of school children. No evidences of disease were noted in any of the children.

Financed by a former county appropriation and funds secured in the sale of Christmas seals, the X-ray photographs were taken by the Michigan Tuberculosis Association without charge.

WALLACE BEERY SEEN IN STAR ROLE OF "FLESH"

"Flesh," with Wallace Beery as star, will show at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, January 22-23-24. Beery has a powerful role, comedy and pathos giving him plentiful opportunity to display his versatile talents, in this story of the wrestling ring.

It will be recalled that Beery scored the biggest hit of his career in another drama of the sport world, "The Champ." In recognition of the popularity of this type of role, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer selected "Flesh" as his new vehicle.

The story's wrestling atmosphere invites a comparison between sport in other countries and the attitude of commercial promoters here. Beery has to fight his way to a square deal, even at the hands of Karen Morley and Ricardo Cortez, who have the leading roles in support of the star. Others of note in the cast are Jean Hersholt and John Miljan. Don't fail to see "Flesh."

64 ENJOY SECOND EVENING'S PLAY OF TAWAS BRIDGE TOURNAMENT

Sixty-four people enjoyed the second evening's play of the Tawas Auction Bridge Tournament held at the City Hall in Tawas City last Monday evening. Forty of these were from East Tawas and twenty-four from Tawas City. Increasing interest is being shown as the tournament progresses and other new entries are assured for the next meeting which will be held at the American Legion Hall in East Tawas Monday evening, January 23rd, at 8:15 Eastern time. New entries are invited and are not handicapped by their late entry.

The tournament committee especially requests that everyone be prompt in arriving in order not to delay the beginning of play. In event that there is an odd number of couples the last couple arriving may find themselves without opponents.

Five substitutions were made Monday evening for players unable to attend. The committee calls attention to the following which is quoted from the newspaper announcement of the tournament several weeks ago—"Final standing for each player will be determined by the percentage of rubbers won and lost. The percentage standing will be kept for each individual and will be based on the number of rubbers actually played by that individual." It is pointed out that the play of a substitute in no way affects the percentage of a missing player. Percentage records are being kept for all players including substitutes until it is definitely known that they will be unable to play the required nine evenings. The attendance of a substitute also does not count as an evening's attendance for the missing player.

Two partnerships are tied for first place. They are: Mrs. A. Barkman and Mrs. Wm. Rapp; and Mrs. Ira Horton and Mrs. Ray Tuttle. Third place is held by Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Prescott. Four partnerships are tied for fourth place. They are: George Lomas and Steve Youngs; Chas. Dimmick and Carl Siglin; Wm. DeGrow and Basil Vick; and Mrs. Rex Clark and Mrs. Wm. DeGrow.

The partnership percentage for those partners who have not played an equal number of times due to absence and substitution is determined by taking the average percentage of the two partners. The tournament is planned to continue twelve weeks from January 9th and there are only two more evenings on which new players may enter and still be able to play the necessary nine evenings in order to be eligible for prizes.

MRS. NELSON JOHNSON

Mrs. Nelson Johnson, a resident of East Tawas for 50 years, died at her home Monday, January 16. She was 73 years, 11 months and 26 days old at the time of her death.

Mrs. Mary Augusta Johnson was born in Olu, Finland, on January 20, 1859. She is survived by four sons, William, Oxel, Elmer and Fred and one daughter, Alene, five children having preceded her in death.

The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock, Eastern Standard time, at the Finnish Lutheran church, of which the deceased was a member.

EAST TAWAS HIGH CAGERS HANG UP NINTH STRAIGHT

East Tawas high's fast traveling band of Indian cagers hung up their ninth straight triumph of the season at Harrisville last Friday when the Indians turned back the strong Harrisville squad, 11 to 10. For the last three years East Tawas has only been able to defeat Harrisville by a mere one point margin on their own floor.

Captain George, flashy Harrisville guard, kept his team out in front during the first half, when he registered two "long toms" from mid-court. At half time the score was 7 to 5 in favor of Harrisville. Near the end of the fourth quarter Wilfred Bean looped a field goal and a foul shot to put the Indians one point ahead. "Tibby" Schanbeck again led in the scoring with seven points.

Both teams played strong defensive ball. The play of Co-captain Durant in warding off the Harrisville last minute rally was outstanding. On the front line defense Eddie Doak and Mat Haglund broke up the opponents' play time after time. It was hard for East Tawas to come with the size of the baskets.

MISS STELLA BARNUM

The funeral of Miss Stella Barnum of Whittemore, who passed away Sunday evening after several years of failing health, was held from the Methodist Episcopal church Wednesday afternoon Rev. H. Musgrave officiated.

Miss Barnum had lived at Whittemore all her life with the exception of a few years she spent in college at Bay City, and was loved by everybody. She had held several positions as bookkeeper in different business places, until she contracted the sleeping sickness following a severe case of the flu 13 years ago. Since then her health has gradually failed until five weeks previous to her death she took to her bed and gradually became weaker each day until death came to relieve her Sunday evening. She was a patient sufferer and never complained. Everything was done that loving hands could do in her last few days, and the floral tributes showed the esteem in which she was held. Her funeral was one of the largest ever held in the community.

She leaves her father and mother, two sisters, Mrs. John Barrington and Mrs. Celia Mills, besides a host of other relatives and friends. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

By order of the City Council, I have been instructed to extend the time on tax collections without the 4% penalty until February 10, 1933. Get busy.

GUN ACCIDENT IS FATAL TO EDWARD THOMPSON

Edward L. Thompson, an employe on the Fred Humphrey farm at Hale, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of a shot gun in the hands of a companion, Ronald Hutchins, while hunting Sunday morning in Plainfield township.

Thompson and Hutchins were hunting on the Stilwell land east of Smith creek. Hutchins stepped on a pile of brush and the gun was discharged, hitting Thompson in the breast. Hutchins hastened to the Humphrey farm for help, but death undoubtedly came instantly.

Edward Lee Thompson was born February 7, 1902. The deceased lived on a farm near Otisville, Michigan, until he was about 20 years of age, when he married Elsie Gifford. To this union two children were born, Mary, seven years, and Walter, five. At the time of his marriage, he moved to Flint where he lived about eight years, being employed by the city about six years of that time. Separating from his wife about three years ago, he went to Millington to live with his sister, Mrs. Wm. Wilson, coming to Hale with them about the middle of August, 1931. In October of the same year he went to work on the Fred Humphrey farm, where he has since made his home and through his kind, thoughtful disposition won a place in the hearts of the family and will be greatly missed by all.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his two children of Flint, his mother, Mrs. Sarah Thompson, and one brother, Wesley, both of Millington, four sisters, Mrs. Josie Wilson of Hale, Mrs. Hazel Stevenson of Saginaw, Mrs. Ruth Brett of Missouri, and Mrs. Hattie Phipps of Bad Axe, besides many other relatives and friends.

The funeral services were held from the Hale Baptist church. Rev. C. W. Harvey officiated. Burial was in the Hale cemetery.

I. O. O. F. CAGERS EASILY DEFEAT SAGINAW QUINTET

The Tawas Odd Fellows had an easy time defeating the Thomas Lunch quintet of Saginaw last Friday night at the Community Building, 43-32. The I. O. O. F. boys grabbed the lead at the start and never relinquished it throughout the game, although the Saginaw five outscored them in the second half. The Odd Fellows were leading at half-time, 26-14. The sharp shooting of Bingham was the feature of the contest. S. Noel refereed the game.

The first preliminary saw the Tawas City Independents go down to a 43-26 defeat at the hands of the East Tawas Merchants. The score remained close during the first half, but in the third and fourth periods the East Tawas boys, led by Wilson, staged a rally that steadily broadened the gap between the two teams.

Due to the popularity of the last Fat and Lean game, another of these contests was staged as the second preliminary of the evening. The Leans again emerged victorious, this time by a 14-7 count.

Excitement and thrills ran at a high pitch—immediately after the start Grant Shattuck made a hole-in-one; Andrew Christenson gained five yards on a line plunge; A. J. Carlson was called out on strikes; and Bill DeGrow was the "leans' under-covers man, was smothered under a deluge of fats—all this while Referee Stan Noel was playing checkers with the scorekeeper. The fats lineup included J. Moran, G. Shattuck, H. Hennigar, A. Christenson and M. Lixey, while A. Carlson, C. Kasichke, A. Lomas, T. Curry, Jr., and W. DeGrow comprised the leans' cast of characters.

TRUE STORY MAGAZINE TALE REACHES SCREEN

"Air Hostess," which True Story Magazine readers remember as the intimate revelations of a modern Venus of the giant passenger planes which ply the airways of America, has been brought to the screen by Columbia with a cast that features Evelyn Knapp, James Murray and Thelma Todd in principal roles.

"Air Hostess" lands at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, for a run of three days, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, January 25-26-27. Previous audiences have labeled it a high-powered action drama, abounding in high altitude romance. A thrilling tale of a twentieth century daughter of the skies flying blind into a love that looped-the-loop with her heart. A roaring romance above the clouds that side-slips to a crack-up and then zooms to a happy landing. A drama of our modern air-minded daughters.

Arthur Pierson, Jane Darwell, Mike Donlin and Dutch Hendrian in prominent roles complete the cast of the production which boasts some of the most marvelous aerial photography ever to reach the screen.

FAST TAWAS SCHOOL NEWS

Rev. Gregory gave an excellent address to the P. T. A. last Monday evening. He stressed the importance of the school teaching not any special religion but that there is an Almighty God or Creator; also the teaching of honesty, truthfulness and cooperation for a world citizenship and not confine it to their country, our own state or community; and to help students live for the present and not expect the future. Rev. Gregory showed he knew the problems of a teacher and proved by his remarks he was their friend and supporter.

A fine crowd turned out in spite of several conflicts. Special music was furnished by Helen Nielsen and Jane Weed. Miss VanHorn, vice-president, presided.

The next meeting will be a joint one with the Ladies Literary Club on Tuesday, February 14, when Dr. Henderson of the University of Michigan will be the speaker.

Our Government —How It Operates

By William Bruckart
BUREAU OF STANDARDS

AN ELDERLY guide at the Smithsonian institution, the wonder of wonders and storehouse of the interesting, was asked by a tourist on an occasion what the purpose of the institution was. His reply epitomized the place in these words: "It shows what people have done."

I am indebted to him, therefore, for the thought that the bureau of standards shows what people are doing. And there can be no more accurate description, albeit; to state fully its meaning and to comprehend its scope it must be expanded and expanded until one's mental processes grow foggy.

Some years ago, a friend of mine who has devoted many years to the public service as an expert in the bureau of standards, invited me to ride in his car to my destination at another point in the city. Upon entering his automobile I was surprised to find a veritable battery of taxicab meters operating in the tonneau of the machine. His explanation of their presence may be used to illustrate the type of work performed by the bureau:

"We never have known whether taxi meters are accurate. In other words, we have been unable to say positively whether persons hiring taxicabs are cheated by the machines that register the fare. By installing these meters and using this car normally, we get a test of them under all sorts and conditions of operation. The speedometer on the car is tested regularly so that we can check against it. We will know in about two months whether any or all of these meters give the public a square deal."

Such is one phase of the work done at the bureau of standards and all of it has as its end and aim, the making of this better world in which to live. Its accomplishments in this direction are endless, because those scientists are tireless in their pursuit of knowledge.

It will be impossible in a brief space to set out even a small portion or outline of the work done in the bureau, a place that to my humble mind contains more thrills than ever have been concentrated under one roof anywhere else in the world. But when one recalls that by persistent effort bureau experts have persuaded scores of commercial lines to do away with countless styles and types of products and to concentrate on standardized designs, all as means of reducing the cost to the consumer, some idea is given of the dollars and cents value of the work accomplished. Take for example, bolts and nuts. One can buy them anywhere in this land and if he calls for a certain type, that type will be supplied whether it is manufactured in the city of Pittsburgh or San Francisco.

Experiments have been carried on at the bureau for years respecting the best methods of heating homes and the best methods for steam production, always with the idea of economical operation in view. The same statement may be made concerning the manufacture of paper—writing paper, wrapping paper, paper for other specific uses.

A chemistry division operates one of the great laboratories of the country, testing, testing, testing. Thousands of chemicals that reach the public, ready for economical use and prepared to meet the everyday needs of one unskilled in handling delicate instruments, are better today because the scientist of the bureau of standards devoted many months to experimentation.

Development of the airplane has brought with it many and varied problems. The bureau has set about solving them. Some of them are mechanical, purely; others deal with natural forces. That explains why there is a gigantic wind tunnel in operation at every speed and at every angle and against propellers operated with certain horsepower behind them. The calculations arrived at enable engineers to know what weaknesses to avoid in plane construction.

And so it is, too, with tests made of such commonplace things as electric light bulbs. They are actually burned out. Tests are made with filaments of every known substance used for that purpose, and combinations of substances are tried. Manufacturers have the direct benefit of these experiments, of course, but the ultimate consumer gains eventually through lower prices on quality products.

Almost constantly experiments are carried on at the bureau with materials used for dyes, dyes for cloth, colors for paints, for inside and outside decorative purposes, for metals, etc. Their fastness must be known; the conditions under which they will fade are developed conclusively if they fade at all, and means of correcting that weakness are looked for. The scientists experiment with the cloth or the metal or wood, or whatever other base is used, to ascertain what results are brought about by a different foundation for the colors. When they get through with one job of testing, those men and women can be said to know the truth. But it seems that instead of the truth making them free, it merely starts them off again in search of something else that will be helpful in your life and mine.

HUGE PROJECTS ARE COMPLETED IN 1932

Engineers Push Conquest of Natural Forces.

Washington. — How man pushed ahead on many fronts in his conquest of natural forces during 1932 is shown in a bulletin from the National Geographic society, outlining some of the outstanding engineering achievements of the year. Despite financial difficulties, dams, bridges, tunnels and other significant works have reached completion or progressed in all parts of the world.

"Most important of the dams completed was that at Dneprostroy across the Dnieper (Dnepr) river, in the Russian Soviet union, about 150 miles north of the Black sea," says the bulletin. "Its construction was superintended by American engineers. The dam is 3,350 feet long and 146 feet high. The maximum capacity of its generators will be 900,000 horse power, which compares with the 600,000 horse power at Muscle Shoals.

"In the state of Bahia, Brazil, a huge power dam was completed and set to furnishing energy to the city of Bahia (Sao Salvador). The structure is 1,150 feet long and 131 feet high.

"Two widely separated projects on the North American continent made available large amounts of energy without the construction of dams. The first was on the United States side of the Rio Grande, near Eagle Pass, Texas, where, by gravity diversion, an 80-mile canal was supplied with water whose flow will produce electric energy before being used for irrigation. The second was the Beauharnois project, in Canada, a 15-mile power canal between Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis, on the south side of the St. Lawrence river near Montreal. The hydro-electric plant operated by the canal water will furnish energy to Montreal.

Colorado River Turned.
"At the site of the Hoover dam, on the Colorado river, between Arizona and Nevada, work on what will be the world's greatest dam, is more than a year ahead of schedule. For the first time, probably, in millions of years, a section of the bed of the Colorado river at the dam site is dry. On November 13 the stream was turned into a tunnel, bored in the canyon wall, and diverted for nearly a mile. On the site of the structure, thus left dry, the actual preparations are being made for laying the dam's foundation.

"In Europe, the Moselle canal, first planned 180 years ago, was completed. The 19-mile waterway is on the Moselle river, a tributary of the Rhine, in northeastern France, and connects Metz and Thionville.

"In the United States, the Illinois waterway, making possible barge service between Chicago and New Orleans, was completed.

"Africa's north-south transportation system was bettered during the year by the building of a 100-mile section of highway connecting Nimule and Juba, terminal ports on the Nile.

"Italy began work on one of the first express motor-truck roads to be built. It will connect Genoa, Milan, and Turin, tapping Italy's most important industrial district.

"In the United States five important federal government highways, opening up historic and scenic spots, were put into use: the Mount Vernon Memorial highway, from Washington to the home of George Washington; the Trail Ridge road in the Rocky mountain National park, one of the highest scenic roads in the world; the Cadillac mountain road on Mt. Desert island; a new scenic highway in Glacier National park and a scenic road along the crest of a portion of the Blue Ridge mountains in the Shenandoah National park, Virginia.

Railway Construction.
"Railways crept into new territory on five continents and in New Zealand. The longest new railway in the western hemisphere was opened in northern Argentina in August. A broad gauge line, it connects previously existing rails and affords a short cut between Tucuman and Mendoza. It is 189 miles in length.

"New railroad construction was practically at a standstill in the United States. Only 32 miles of new railway was constructed, while 1,380 miles of small branch line 'feeders' was abandoned.

"Most important rail development in the United States was the steady electrification of standard railways in suburban districts. Main line electrification was completed by one railway system between New York and Wilmington. Work is progressing between the latter city and Washington.

"The most important bridge to reach completion in the United States was the Jersey City-Newark viaduct, which is four miles long and crosses two rivers at a level to permit the passage of ocean-going ships. The structure became one of the most heavily traveled entrances to and exits from New York city. It is estimated that 20,000,000 automobiles will pass over it each year.

"Among other bridges completed in the United States were the Schuylkill river bridge at Philadelphia; the Westinghouse bridge near Pittsburgh; and the Rogue river bridge, near Gold Beach, Ore.

"The most significant land reclamation projects were carried on in the Netherlands, where the Dutch continued to rob the Zuiderzee; and in Italy, where thousands of acres of the once malaria-infested Pontine marshes, south of Rome, were drained and turned into farm lands."

Canned Brown Bread to Take Place of Hardtack

Missoula, Mont.—Rations for Uncle Sam's forest service employees in all parts of the United States and Hawaii, packed here each year for distribution, will contain no hardtack for the coming year, officials have announced.

The "army cake," formerly used by the rangers, will be replaced by canned brown bread, increasing the calory content of the foods packed for the forest workers. The can in which the bread is packed will be used as a coffee pot after its contents have been removed, lightening the rangers' equipment. Cans of hash, pork and beans, roast beef, fruit, coffee, and a bar of candy will be placed in each ration pack with the bread.

Women Pick Their Greatest Leaders of Past Century

Mary Baker Eddy Heads List by 3,000 Votes.

New York.—The result of a nationwide poll conducted for two months in an effort to ascertain whom American women consider the twelve great leaders of their sex born during the last 100 years was announced at a dinner held in the Vanderbilt hotel. Those chosen were:

- Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church. She headed the list by more than 3,000 votes.
- Jane Addams, founder of Hull House, Chicago.
- Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross.
- Frances E. Willard, founder of the Women's Christian Temperance union.
- Susan B. Anthony, suffrage leader.
- Helen Keller, deaf and blind author.
- Harriet Beecher Stowe, author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."
- Julia Ward Howe, poet and author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."
- Carrie Chapman Catt, suffrage leader.

Amelia Earhart Putnam, first woman to make a solo flight across the Atlantic.

Mary Lyon, founder of Mount Holyoke college.

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college and only woman representative to Geneva disarmament conference in 1932.

Of the votes cast Mrs. Eddy received 102,762, 3,615 more than were given to Jane Addams. Clara Barton was given 96,129 and Frances Willard 90,303.

In the accompanying list Mme. Ernestine Schumann Heink received the next largest number of votes after Mrs. Woolley. In the list were included Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the wives of two former Presidents, an author, and Anne Morrow Lindbergh. Likenesses of the women will appear in a frieze in the Social Science building at the Chicago World's fair.

44 Nations Reported as Off Gold Standard
Washington.—Thirty-three countries were listed by the Department of Commerce as having "officially suspended the gold standard" and the statement was made that eleven other countries, while not officially off the standard, "are practically in the same category."

The defection of Great Britain is generally considered the prime factor in putting many other countries off and holding them off the gold standard.

The thirty-three countries officially off the gold standard were named by the Department of Commerce as follows:

Denmark, Finland, Greece, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, United Kingdom, Spain, Japan, British India, Straits Settlements, Siam, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, Mexico, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Australia, New Zealand, Egypt, Palestine, Northern Rhodesia, Southern Rhodesia, Nyassaland, Mozambique and Canada.

The eleven countries "unofficially" off the gold standard are Austria, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Germany, Hungary, Estonia, Latvia, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Nicaragua and Venezuela.

American Heroines

Hannah Dustin

A WHITE woman who beat the Indians at their own game: that was Hannah Dustin!

In 1697 the little outpost of Haverhill, Mass., was still a frontier settlement, exposed to the terrible dangers of privation and Indian attack. Here lived the hardy young farmer Thomas Dustin with Hannah, his wife, and their eight children, the youngest a babe in arms. One night in March, while Thomas and the seven older children were absent from home, a band of marauding red men broke into his home, captured his wife, their baby and Mrs. Mary Neff, a nurse. A tiny baby is a nuisance on a long, arduous march through the wilderness. So the baby was killed before its mother's eyes before they left the village. The two women the Indians marched a three days' journey through the forest to their camp, on what is now Dustin Island, in the Merrimack river about six miles above Concord, N. H. There they were placed, together with little Samuel Leonardson, an English boy captured some weeks before at Worcester, in the care of an Indian family consisting of two men, three women and seven children.

During the long days that followed, while she dutifully performed the tasks assigned her by her captors, and endured their taunts and abuse with seeming patience, Hannah carefully laid her plans. The cruel murder of her baby had hardened her heart and rendered her capable of desperate measures. The boy Samuel was her tool. Under her instruction Samuel feigned great admiration for one of the Indian men. Surely it took great strength and skill to wield that tomahawk with such deadly effect! How was it done? The savage, with due pride in his prowess, showed him.

Eagerly Hannah received the relayed instructions. Then she picked four of the Indians as her own victims, assigned four to Mrs. Neff and three to the boy. Thus prepared she bided her time. And one dark night, when the Indian family slept soundly, the three arose, helped themselves to the Indians' weapons, and quietly and systematically went about the business of killing ten of them. One, an old squaw, they merely wounded; one, a fat Indian papoose, they spared.

Under cover of the darkness they fled the camp, making their way to the river, where they seized one of the Indians' canoes. Then, aided by the current, they made their way down the Merrimack to the English settlement nearer its mouth. At shortly after Hannah Dustin was reunited with her husband and her remaining children in their home at Haverhill.

"Mad Anne" Bailey

"MAD" she was, this husky woman eccentric, who lived to be eighty-two with a lust for revenge in her stout heart and donned a man's clothes to right her wrong in a man's way. For even in the lusty days of the late eighteenth century, when the mountains of Virginia were still frontier and harbored hostile Indians, no sane woman deserted her infant to live alone a man's life, and start her own private collection of Indian scalps.

The "madness" first descended upon Anne Bailey, then Anne Trotter, when her young husband, six feet and over in his fringed hunting shirt, fur cap and moccasins, fell victim to Indian cruelty at the Battle of Point Pleasant. She was but twenty-three at the time, and only ten years behind her when the news reached her, she was like one possessed. She turned her baby boy over to a kindly neighbor, discarded her soft woman's clothes for trousers and a hunting shirt, shouldered a gun and, with her horse, Liverpool, turned her back upon her home in Staunton. Thereafter, as "Mad Anne," she lived alone in a hut built with her own hands on the ridge of Covington mountain in Allegheny county. From this vantage spot she watched the movements of the Indians in the surrounding countryside. Many a time, mounted on Liverpool, she dashed into town to warn the settlers of an impending attack.

Her most famous deed occurred at Fort Lee near Charleston, W. Va., in 1792, when Anne was forty-nine years old. Here, for safety during an Indian attack, had gathered the settlers from the surrounding territory. The siege was a long one, and the powder supply had given out. "Mad Anne" volunteered aid. Mounting Liverpool she rode out, in full view of the attacking Indians, then, spurring the horse into headlong speed, she flew past their lines, onto Fort Union, now Lewisburg, where she secured powder and an extra horse. She returned, savior of the fort.

In middle age Anne married John Bailey, a frontiersman. But she remained the "man" of the household, and in her latter years, a hard-drinking, swearing "man," of whom the local Indians stood in awe. As an old woman she moved to a cottage on the property of her son, grown to manhood and affluence. She refused to share his house. Today a bronze marker on the highway between Hot Springs and Covington signifies the regard of the Daughters of the American Revolution for "Mad Anne" Bailey.

Man Abandons Farming to Pitch Horseshoes
Lamon, Iowa.—Because he can make more money pitching horseshoes than he can farming his 160 acres, Frank Jackson, state horseshoe champ and former national titleholder, has sold his farm and stock near here. "I can make lots more money pitching shoes than I can farming," Jackson told friends.

Albania's Progress

Where Old Tires Replace Leather for Shoemaking, in Tirana.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

ALBANIA, which recently celebrated the twentieth anniversary of its freedom, is Europe's newest kingdom. During the first Balkan war, on November 28, 1912, Albania notified the world that it no longer was a Turkish province. The Turkish flag was furled after waving over the Albanians for 400 years. Since its independence Albania has been, successively, a protectorate, a republic and a kingdom. The king was crowned in 1928.

Not long ago Albania's 17,374 square miles were without modern highways and railroads. Even Tirana, the capital, could be reached only by traversing almost impassable roads. Then came the war. Ruinous war creates, at least, roads. When in 1918 the big guns' thunder died away Albania, which had been at once a battlefield and a military corridor, found that she had accumulated the nucleus of a well-engineered road system and a knowledge of motor transport. Thus, instead of having slowly evolved through the steam age and into the gasoline era, like the rest of Europe, in a little more than a decade she leaped from medievalism to modernism, from horses to horsepower.

Today the Albanian government spends $200,000 annually in augmenting those war-born highways. The Albanian lowlander is being stirred to road-consciousness by a law which makes him personally responsible, either in labor or money, for the upkeep of 20 feet. Profound social changes confront him—him and the traveler. "I reined in my horse" is by way of being junked in favor of "I shut off the motor."

Picture of Transition.
Korca, which falls with Scutari, Tirana, and Gjinokastr (Argyo-Castro) into the first-line category of native towns numbering from 12,000 to 32,000 people, presents an interesting picture of Albania in transition. Modern buildings rise over ancient, cobbled alleys, and fortresslike property walls which guard occasionally glimpsed flower gardens, charming family retreats, somewhat in the Eastern style. Hay mountains, rolling along on ox-drawn wains, block Main street, to the despair of yelling chauffeurs.

The Moslem quarter is orientally decorous with black-veiled women. The Christian quarter is decorative with Europe's knee-high skirts, flesh-tint stockings, and bobbed heads.

Here is progressiveness in the form of an athletic instructor, the local representative of a countryside system. And here is hidebound conservatism in the form of Albanian mammas who regard any sport played in running shorts and followed by a cold shower as a sure road to early death.

Then there is the story of the drapery of Lake Malilq. A nascent and ambitious government, wishing to reclaim thousands of acres of cultivable land, sold the concession to a company. Its foreign engineers cut sluices, and the first dredging machine ever seen in Albania was set up.

Now, some generations before, the lake had been created by torrents which had rushed down the hills, submerging several Tosk villages. One of these days, so said local Tosk tradition, Lake Malilq would recede, yielding back to grandsons the sub-lacustrine acres of their grandfathers.

Miraculously, as it were, Lake Malilq receded, revealing to the astonished Tosk peasants' gaze their long-lost chimney pots and ancestral lands. With cries of thanksgiving, they rushed upon the scene and started agriculture.

It is superfluous to depict their confusion upon learning that progress and not Providence had worked the miracle; that the lake bottom now belonged to a company—whatever that might be—and that they were actually trespassing on their own ancestral acres. That's all. But, should you ever visit the Lake Malilq region, don't praise land reclamation to the local Tosks unless you want to be mobbed.

Market Day in Korca.
Korca becomes transfused every market day. Thither troop several thousand peasants, each attired in the colorful costume of his native village. They have ridden or walked for a day over the mountains, hoping to sell a few measures of grain, a sheep, a horse, at the busy mart.

The horse market, Albania's largest, is closely packed with stamping beasts and gesticulating men. Every trick or test known to a county-fair horse deal is to be witnessed here.

Among advanced civilizations an automobile thief may possibly get a jail sentence. In more primitive Albania, where social conditions often recall those of the pioneer West, horse stealing means sudden death. And so deals in Albanian horse markets are concluded under the eye of a civic official, who issues to the purchaser a certificate which attests to his bona fide "buy."

Albania's mountain complex defies adequate description. To say that the Dalmatian Alpine system prolongs itself into southward-stretching ranges that form three of Albania's boundaries, and that this small kingdom, not as large as New Hampshire and Vermont together, contains numerous mountain chains, is to indicate the veriest elements of her topography.

Yet it is an "open-and-shut" country, to borrow the native name for a certain rug pattern. This consists of rows of diamond-shaped diagrams, end to end, running across the fabric. In likening it to Albania's topography, the diamonds may be said to represent her "open" spaces, while the touching apexes represent the almost "shut" defiles through which one journeys from luxuriant plain to plain.

Albania once was Shkuperia, the Land of the Men of the Eagle. If some ancient Greek or Roman tourist had exclaimed, "So this is Albania!" Shkupetars wouldn't have known what country he was talking about. Approximately nine centuries ago some foreigner, possibly finding "Shkuperia" an awkward mouthful, expanded "alp" or "alb" into "Albania," as a name descriptive of the country's white or snowy uplands.

Eagle and Arrows.
The Shkupetars' name for themselves goes back to the misty emergence of Balkan mountain tribes. As shkep is the native word for "rock," the name may possibly imply "rock-dwellers," or "highlanders." But Albanian tradition, based on Plutarch, offers a livelier derivation. The Greek biographer relates that when the Epirote king, Pyrrhus, was likened by his troops to an eagle, the monarch gracefully rejoined that they were his arrows which he used while soaring.

Thus ancient is the conception of the Eagle and Arrows, a device which, thousands of years later, was to appear on the consular arms of the United States. At any rate, the Epirotes seized on King Pyrrhus' compliment and proudly dubbed themselves the Shkupetars, or Sons of the Eagle.

Modern Albanians will tell you that they represent the most ancient race in southeastern Europe. Indeed, their language and tribal customs suggest remote origins. They are probably the descendants of the ancient Illyrians, who in turn derived from the Pelagvic root race, of which we catch echoes in Greek literature.

Albanian inns have not progressed much beyond, say, those of the Deadwood coach era. Often you avoid the inn and just sleep where you can.

Tirana Going Modern.
Tirana, the capital, reveals a picture of Albania westernizing herself. Broad, electric-lit streets neighbor fascinatingly hodgepodge bazaar alleys. A line of brand-new taxis, a row of pack mules, and a string of modern motor lorries throng the same square. Baggy-pantaloned Mohamudan chauffeurs have discarded their olden wand of office, the donkey-prodding stick, to wrestle instead with the tire pump. Far over the heads of an unheeding crowd, who are imbibing European drinks and discussing trade, the lone muezzin calls to prayer; but it is as the voice of one crying in the wilderness.

Not yet has this small-scale kingdom achieved a favorable trade balance. Its exports—dairy products, grain, hides, wool, asphalt, charcoal—total annually about $2,500,000. On the other hand, its import values in sugar, cotton and woolen fabrics, mineral oils, and machinery approximate double that amount. How offset the difference? The mountains are believed to be rich in minerals—gold, iron, coal, copper, and others—but the country has never been geologically surveyed. Oil talk and the actual production of oil in paying quantities and of requisite quality are in inverse ratio to each other.

Camera Catches a Rescue at Sea

The South American liner, Buenos Aires Maru, is pulling alongside. The fishermen were rescued just a few minutes before their vessel disappeared.

Golfer Responsible for Ball He Drives

New York.—A golfer is legally responsible when a ball he has driven injures another person, the appellate division in Brooklyn decided in upholding a Supreme court justice.

The defendant in the case was Tennis S. Fiero, who was sued on behalf of John Clifford Simpson, eleven, a caddy. While playing at the Pocatello country club at Middletown, N. Y., last August 16, Fiero's drive struck young Simpson.

Although the point was not involved in this case, the Appellate court said in effect that if young Simpson had been Fiero's caddy it would have been his own duty to watch out for the ball, but that since he was caddying for another player, Fiero was responsible.

Harvard Acquires the Earliest Dinosaur

THIS mounted specimen of Plateosaurus, the earliest of dinosaurs, has just been acquired by the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Harvard university. Discovered in Germany, it is the first mounted specimen to be obtained by any museum in the United States. The Plateosaurus is estimated to be 160,000,000 years old, and is regarded as the "ancestor" of Tyrannosaurus and other giant dinosaurs of later periods.

KIDDIES' EVENING STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE FOOLISH QUARREL

GREED doesn't pay. It never does. And yet some people never seem to learn this. Just take the case of Happy Jack Squirrel and his cousin, Chatterer the Red Squirrel. In the Green Forest were ever so many hickory trees, and there were more nuts than Happy Jack and Chatterer could eat in a lifetime. But both were so greedy that here they were quarreling over the nuts which the Merry Little Breezes had shaken down from the top of a tall chestnut tree.

Happy Jack claimed all those brown nuts were his because he had happened to be right under that particular tree when the Merry Little Breezes shook them down. Chatterer had been near enough to hear them as they rattled down and had come running over to get a share. At once Happy Jack had tried to drive him away. Chatterer had refused to go. In fact, at the sight of all those nuts on the ground Chatterer had at once decided that he would have all of them. You see he was quite as greedy as Happy Jack. Those brown nuts didn't really belong to either of them, and wouldn't until they had been picked up and hidden away. But Happy Jack and Chatterer didn't stop to think of this. Each was so greedy that he wasn't willing to let the other have a single one.

quarrel was about? You can depend on it that Sammy will be somewhere about when anything like that is going on.

At first Happy Jack and Chatterer were content to scold and call each other bad names. Then as they grew angrier and angrier they began to fight, each trying to drive the other away. Happy Jack, as you know, is a great deal bigger than Chatterer, but Chatterer is quicker and more nimble, and his teeth are quite as sharp as Happy Jack's. So it wasn't as uneven a fight as you might think. They forgot the brown nuts lying there among the leaves on the ground.

Then as They Grew Angrier and Angrier, They Began to Fight.

They forgot everything but their anger. They chased each other around the trees and up in the trees, all the time losing their tempers more and more.

Now their little cousin, Striped Chipmunk, wasn't far away, and of course he heard that dreadful quarrel. He pricked up his ears. Then he stole softly over to see what it was all about. Happy Jack and Chatterer didn't see him. They didn't see anything or anybody but each other. Striped Chipmunk watched them for a few minutes. Then he spied the brown nuts which the Merry Little Breezes had shaken down. His bright eyes sparkled. He chuckled.

"I suspect," said he, "that these are what they are quarreling about. How silly. How very foolish. These nuts belong to anyone who can get them. They are as much mine as theirs."

Without wasting another minute Striped Chipmunk stuffed the pockets in his cheeks with those brown nuts until he couldn't get another one in. Then away he scurried. Pretty soon he was back again. He paid no attention to his quarreling cousins, but stuffed his pockets again and was off to his secret storehouse.

Back and forth he scurried, working with might and main. He knew that once Happy Jack and Chatterer stopped quarreling and discovered him they would drive him away, and he would have to go because he was too little to fight.

Sammy Jay watched him and chuckled. The Merry Little Breezes

What is the greatest thing in life? The man of arms may say the strife. The man of trade may say the mart— Yet who takes money to his heart Will find her faithless, and the cheers Of victory mean some one's tears.

What is the greatest thing of all? The rich may say the castle hall, The proud may say the wreath of fame— Yet earthly glory fades the same As earthly wealth. There must be more. Than these in life to hunger for.

What is the greatest thing we find? The wise may say the learned mind, The fool his passions and delights— Yet life some sudden question writes Fools cannot answer, nor wise Do more than wonder and surmise.

What is the greatest thing? Not these Poor things that either pain or please. To love, to feel, to smile, to grieve, Not much to know but much believe— For, books or pleasure, wealth or strife, The greatest thing in life is life.

Champion Hen to Defend Her Honors

ANNOUNCEMENT having been made that the world's egg laying contest is to be held at Chicago's exposition this year, America's most famous hen and champion egg layer for the past two years is now in training for the event. Owned by George England of Ingleswood, Calif., the hen, known only by number as "33," holds the record of 330 eggs per year. A white leghorn, she has a score of cups to her credit and enough blue ribbons to cover the roof of her hen house. She will defend her title against hens from every state in the Union and six foreign nations.

One of the newest of Hollywood fashions is this black and white afternoon ensemble, showing a black crepe dress that features a modestly puffed-above-the-elbow sleeve which finishes with a tightly fitted cuff. Another new trimming note is seen in the white crepe collar that crosses to give a high bodice line continuing around from the back to a tied sash at the front of the normal waistline. The white silk embroidered turban hat that is worn with the dress is the latest contribution to millinery, as is the close-fitting over the hair and forehead polka dot veil. A short caplet of ermine completes the black and white effect.

Auction sale of furniture at Mrs. Rachel Galbraith store, Tawas City, Saturday, January 21, at 1:00 p. m. Wm. H. Hartley, Administrator. adv

Albert Humphrey of Hale and Miss Leah Sutton of Omer were married Wednesday, January 11, at Bay City. They are spending a few weeks at Harrison and other Michigan points.

Miss Lucy Stevens of Bay City is visiting Hale friends this week.

Frank Dorcy returned from Saginaw Saturday, where he has been employed by the Consumers Power company assisting in repairing the main gas pipe across the Saginaw river.

William Green, five miles west of Hale, lost his home and most of the contents late Monday afternoon by fire of unknown origin. The fire spread so rapidly that they could save only a few things on the ground floor. The sympathy of friends is expressed in a concrete form by a subscription paper to aid him in his misfortune. There was no insurance.

Another wood-bee was held in our neighborhood last week Tuesday when the friends and neighbors of G. W. Teed turned out with their saws and axes and got up his winter's wood. Dinner was served at noon at Dell Kesler's. Mr. and Mrs. Teed had both been quite ill with the flu, and appreciate very much their neighbors' kindness. It is such things that make life seem worth while in these times of great depression.

The Masonic order sponsored a dancing party in their club rooms Friday evening, January 13th. Lunch was served by the O. E. S. and a good time was had by all present.

Another one will be held Friday, February 3. Admission, 35c to dance. Get your invitation on time from the local committee so you will not be disappointed.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS

Monday, January 9, 1933

The Board of Supervisors for the county of Isosco met at the Court House in the city of Tawas City, on Monday, January 9th, A. D. 1933, pursuant to a recess from October 14, 1932.

Board called to order at 10 o'clock a. m. by Chas. L. McLean, chairman, who ordered roll call. Present, Supervisors: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, Hull, Laidlaw, Latham, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner. Quorum present.

East Tawas, Michigan
January 7, 1933

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors:

This is to certify that Lyman McAuliff has been appointed to represent the Mayor of East Tawas on the Board of Supervisors.

J. G. Dimmick, City Clerk.

Moved by Tanner, supported by Louks, that Mr. McAuliff be given a seat on the board. Motion prevailed, and Mr. McAuliff took a seat on the board.

Mr. Hopperstead, maintenance engineer of the State Highway Commission, appeared before the Board in regard to a Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan to be used for unemployed labor in Isosco county, the work to be done on Federal Aid and State Trunk line roads. After consideration of the proposition, which appeared satisfactory to the Board, it was moved by Louks, supported by Tanner, that we take a recess until 1:30 p. m. Motion prevailed.

Afternoon Session

Board called to order at 1:30 p. m. by Chas. L. McLean, chairman. Present Supervisors: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, McAuliff, Hull, Laidlaw, Latham, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner.

Moved by Tanner, supported by Nunn, that a committee of five be appointed to report on the R. F. Corporation loan and to report to-day. Motion prevailed and chair appointed Supervisors Brown, Hull, Louks, Carlson, and Latham. Committees ordered to their respective duties, balance of board to be at case, subject to call of chair.

Called to order at 4:30.

Whereas, the County Road Commissioners of Isosco County, by application to the State Highway Commissioners, desire to participate in unemployment relief program by loan from Reconstruction Finance Corporation as outlined by Mr. Hopperstead:

Be It Hereby Resolved: That the Board of Supervisors agree to back up and reimburse County Road Commission not to exceed 15% of the proposed expenditure of $40,000 to be made for labor on State Trunk lines in Isosco County. Be it further resolved: That the funds for the project be taken from County Poor Funds, as we believe that this project would relieve the Poor Commissioners from giving a large amount of temporary relief.

Signed—Frank Brown, A. J. Carlson, E. Louks, J. A. Hull, E. W. Latham.

Moved by Brown, supported by Hull, that report of special committee be accepted and adopted. Carried. Yes: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, McAuliff, Hull, Laidlaw, Latham, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner—15. No: 0.

Moved by Brown, supported by Dutcher, that we take a recess until tomorrow morning at 9:30. Motion prevailed.

C. L. McLean, Chairman.
E. E. Dease, Clerk.

Tuesday, January 10, 1933

The Board of Supervisors met at the Court House in the city of Tawas City on Tuesday, January 10th. Board called to order at 9:30 a. m. by C. L. McLean, chairman. Roll call. Present Supervisors: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, McAuliff, Hull, Laidlaw, Latham, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner.

Mullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner. Minutes of Monday's session read and approved.

To All County Clerks:

By action of the State Advisory Council of Health on November 10, 1931, pneumonia was removed from the list of diseases designated as dangerous and communicable by the State Department of Health.

Expenses for the care of an indigent case of illness, not a communicable disease, are paid by the township, city or village. Expenses for the care of indigent cases of dangerous communicable diseases are paid by the township, city or village and reimbursement is made by the county. Therefore, in the future, the cost of the care of an indigent case of pneumonia should be borne by the township, city or village.

Below is a list of dangerous communicable diseases. The medical care of indigent cases of these diseases must be paid by the county. Tuberculosis, measles, cerebra spinal meningitis, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, small pox, diphtheria, glanders, whooping cough, rabies syphilis, gonorrhea.

Kindly convey the above information to your county Board of Supervisors. Yours very truly,
C. C. Slemons, M. D.,
Commissioner.

Moved by Laidlaw, supported by Nunn, that the communication be received and put on record. Motion prevailed.

Communication from Wm. Sedgeman, Sealer of Weights and Measures, was read.

Moved by Tanner, supported by Pelton, that the communication be received and placed on file. Motion prevailed.

In the matter of the depository banks for the county treasurer's deposits. Moved by Tanner, supported by McAuliff, that this matter be turned over to the Finance and Apportionment committee and that they report this afternoon. Motion prevailed.

"She has an inflamed throat and can't talk about it."

If you need any cement, we have a few barrels on hand.

Piggly: "Is my face dirty, or is it my imagination?"

Kit: "Gee, but that date last night was fresh!"

Kat: "Why didn't you slap his face?"

Kit: "I did, and take my advice—never slap a guy when he is chewing tobacco."

Wiggly: "Your face isn't; I don't know about your imagination."

We are still selling scratch feed for $1.00 per 100 lbs. Can you beat it?

If you want No. 1 coal, under 3% ash, long flame, use our Red Pepper lump.

"Can you give her the luxuries to which she has been accustomed?"

"Not much longer. That's why I want to get married."

Manager: "I hear you and the leading lady are on the outs."

Electrician: "Yes. It was one of those quick change scenes with the stage all jark. She asked for her tights and I thought she said 'lights'."

Diner: "I see that tips are forbidden here."

Waiter: "Lor' bless yer, mun, so was the apples in the garden of Eden."

TELEPHONE BRINGS AID TO INJURED CHILD

An actual incident, reported to this company

The small daughter of a Michigan family, playing in the basement of her home, was painfully and critically injured.

Her mother, hearing the child's screams, and seeing what had happened, dashed frantically to the telephone and called the doctor. The physician arrived without delay, and through immediate and skillful medical attention, was able to treat the child's injuries successfully and prevent serious complications.

In such emergencies, just one telephone call for assistance may be worth more than the cost of the service for a lifetime.

Wednesday, January 11, 1933

The Board of Supervisors for the County of Iosco met at the Court House in the city of Tawas City, Wednesday, the 11th day of January, A. D. 1933, pursuant to a recess from Tuesday, January 10. Board called to order at 9:30 a. m. Roll call. Present Supervisors: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, McAuliff, Hull, Laidlaw, Latham, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner—Quorum present.

Minutes of January 10th read and approved. Committees ordered to their respective duties, balance of board to be at ease subject to call of chair. Called to order at 12:00.

Moved by Tanner, supported by Brown, that we take a recess until 1:30. Motion prevailed.

Afternoon Session Board called to order at 1:30 by Charles L. McLean, chairman. Roll call. Present Supervisors: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, McAuliff, Hull, Mielock, Laidlaw, Latham, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner.

Communication from Isabella county in regard to so-called Michigan Plan of apportionment. Moved by Tanner, supported by Dutcher, that the communication be received and placed on file. Motion prevailed.

Moved by Brown, supported by Tanner, that the chair appoint by committee of three to draft a resolution in regard to money in the State Treasury of Michigan that should be distributed to the National Forest in the State of Michigan. Motion prevailed. The chair appointed Supervisors Schneider, Britt and Schmalz.

Whereas: We, the county Board of Supervisors of Iosco County, assembled at the county court house, Tawas City, Michigan, this 11th day of January, 1933, understand that an act to distribute amounts received from the Federal Government as proceeds from the United States National Forest in Michigan under an act of Congress approved May 23, 1908 (35 stat. 260) provision was made for paying to the State of Michigan 25% of the money received from the National Forest reserve in the state, the following being a copy of one of the provisions of said act of Congress:

"That hereafter 25% of all money received from each forest reserve during a fiscal year, including the year ending June 30th, 1908, shall be paid at the end thereof by the Secretary of the Treasury to the state or territory in which the reserve is situated, to be expended as the state or territorial legislature may prescribe for the benefit of the public schools and public roads of the county or counties in which the forest reserve is in. More than one state or territory or county the distribution to each from the proceeds of said reserve shall be proportional to its area therein," and

WHEREAS, the sum of Ten Thousand One Hundred Ninety-seven and 25/100 Dollars ($10,197.25) has been received from the Secretary of the Treasury on account of the National Forests in the State of Michigan which should be expended for public schools and public roads in the counties in which such National Forests are located. Therefore, be it enacted by the legislature of the State of Michigan:

Section 1. Distribution of appropriations made by the United States government from the receipts on the National Forest in Michigan, all sums heretofore received or that may hereafter be received from the United States on account of an Act of Congress approved May 23, 1908 (35 stat. 260) shall be expended as follows: 75% for public schools and 25% for public roads in the counties in which the national proceeds of the National Forest shall be proportional to its area therein, as of June 20 of the fiscal year for which the money is or was received.

Section 2. State Auditor to Transmit Warrants to County Treasurer. He shall be the duty of the State Auditor to transmit, within a reasonable period after receipt of the money from the Federal Government, his warrant on the State Treasurer to the County Treasurer of the respective counties for the sum that may be due in accordance with this act, which sum or sums are hereby appropriated out of the State Treasury from the amounts received from the United States Government pursuant to the aforesaid Act of Congress.

Section 3. Duties of County Board. It shall be the duty of the County Board of each county receiving such money to use the portion allotted to public schools to aid in maintaining those school districts that may be situated within or near the National Forest and the portion allotted for public roads shall be used in the construction and repair of roads within or near the National Forest, so far as practicable.

Section 4. This Act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage. Be it Resolved; that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to Senator Carpenter and Representative Holbeck and the Representatives involved.

Signed—Frank Schneider, Elmer Britt, Ferdinand Schmalz. Moved by Schmalz, supported by Laidlaw, that we adopt the resolution. Carried. Yes: Britt, Brown, Carlson, Dutcher, McAuliff, Hull, Mielock, Laidlaw, Louks, McMullen, Nunn, Pelton, Schmalz, Schneider, Tanner—15. Nays: 0.

Dorothy's Mother Proves Claim

Children don't ordinarily take to medicines but here's one that all of them love. Perhaps it shouldn't be called a medicine at all. It's more like a rich, concentrated food. It's pure, wholesome, sweet to the taste and sweet in your child's little stomach. It builds up and strengthens weak, puny, underweight children, makes them eat heartily, brings the roses back to their cheeks, makes them playful, energetic, full of life. And no bilious, headachy, constipated, feverish, fretful baby or child ever failed to respond to the gentle influence of California Fig Syrup on their little bowels. It starts lazy bowels quick, cleans them out thoroughly, tones and strengthens them so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. Millions of mothers know about California Fig Syrup from experience. A Western mother, Mrs. J. G. Moore, 119 Cliff Ave., San Antonio, Texas, says: "California Fig Syrup is certainly all that's claimed for it. I have proved that with my little Dorothy. She was a bottle baby and very delicate. Her bowels were weak. I started her on Fig Syrup when she was a few months old and it regulated her, quick. I have used it with her ever since for colds and every little set-back and her wonderful condition tells better than words how it helps." Don't be imposed on. See that the Fig Syrup you buy bears the name, "California" so you'll get the genuine, famous for 50 years.

SUCH IS LIFE—A Suggestion to Dads!

Re-Open Ex-Kaiser's Famous Old Chapel

Last Divine Service Was Marriage of Princess.

Berlin. — The ex-kaiser's former chapel atop the imperial castle in Berlin, after being closed for almost 20 years, has been opened to the public. The last divine service held in the chapel was in May, 1918, on the occasion of the marriage of Princess Victoria Luise, the kaiser's only daughter, to the duke of Brunswick, descendant of the dukes of Cumberland, archenemies of the Hohenzollern dynasty. The chapel is located beneath the fine cupola crowning the imperial castle on Unter den Linden, a familiar sight to every American tourist who visited the German capital. The chapel and cupola rest on the giant portal on the west side of the castle modeled after the famous Constantine arch in Rome. To give the massive portal the necessary foundation 3,000 bulky wooden piles were rammed into the swampy earth. The castle as well as the greater part of the German capital is built on marshy land formed by the rivers Spree and Havel. Sixty-Five Feet in Diameter. The octagonal chapel measures 65 feet in diameter, soaring 160 feet from the floor to the inner top of the cupola. The altar, a present of the Egyptian viceroy, Mehemet Ali, is made of a brownish yellow alabaster. The massive altar roof, resting on six pillars, is carved out of one piece. The altar crucifix is inlaid with numerous semiprecious stones. Ten costly candelabras are supported by antique Roman pillars excavated in Pompeii. More than a hundred pictures, representing Biblical scenes and Prussian rulers, decorate the walls. The history of the chapel is comparatively new. While the oldest parts of the castle go back to the days of the renaissance, the chapel and cupola were added in the years 1845-1853 according to the designs of the Prussian King Frederick William IV and the famous German architect Schinkel. Within its walls many a church service was held in the presence of the royal family, surrounded by a glittering entourage. Whenever a new Prussian diet or reichstag was elected the new members assembled in the chapel in the presence of the kaiser to attend divine service. All the kaiser's children were confirmed in the chapel. The confirmation of Prince Joachim of Prussia cost the job of Julius Pruewer, one of Germany's leading orchestra conductors. At that time he was organ player in the cathedral and in this capacity he conducted the choir singing at the ceremony. After the prince had been confirmed the emperor and his family wanted to remain alone in the chapel to partake of the holy communion. The onlookers in the gallery did not budge, keeping their opera glasses glued on the imperial family. The emperor ordered Pruewer to have the choir sing a chorale till the last onlooker had left the chapel. The chorale was sung three times in succession; the audience did not stir. The conductor, instead of blindly obeying the orders of his imperial master, gave up the fight with his majesty's subjects because of the sore throats of his singers. The onlookers were finally pushed out of the chapel by a host of imperial flunkies. Pruewer was summarily dismissed. Last Event a Wedding. The last time the chapel showed unwonted splendor was for the wedding of the kaiser's only daughter, Princess Victoria Luise, to the duke of Brunswick. The wedding put an end to a feud of long standing between the houses of Hohenzollern and Cumberland.

That was in May, 1918. Then came the World war and nobody set foot in the chapel except the charwomen and an occasional flunky until in December, 1918, a number of grimy, hungry sailors, rifles slung over shoulders and red badges fixed to their arms, stealthily climbed through one of the windows of the chapel. They grabbed a valuable embroidered altar cover and disappeared by way of the castle roof. That was in the days of the German revolution when the walls of the imperial castle shook with the discharge of the guns and the crackle of machine guns and rifles continued all day long. The Red marine division had taken possession of the castle and imperial stables, which they made their headquarters. After the Red mutiny was quelled and peace was restored parts of the

THE HABIT OF EATING

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK Late Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Eating is a very necessary process as human beings are now constituted and to attain the most beneficial results it should be a regular one. It is an expensive habit at best, and made more so by the intricate and almost infinite processes by which food is now prepared. It isn't always the original cost that is to be taken into consideration; it is the transportation and the passing of products from one hand to another until it reaches the man sitting down to a meal, that have to be considered.

We were guests at the Grays' not long ago. We arrived in the late afternoon a while before dinner and just as Mrs. Gray had returned from a luncheon. It was the day on which Mrs. Gray's luncheon club met and so an opportune time to discuss gustatory matters.

"We had the most delicious luncheon," Mrs. Gray announced almost before she was seated, "fruit cocktail at the outset and I'm sure by the way it tasted that Grace must have a private stock. There were blueberry muffins—they simply melted in one's mouth. She had a new kind of salad—prunes stuffed with Roquefort cheese. I've never tasted anything more delicious." We got all of it finally, and I presume that all the Grays sitting about listening had a distinct gnawing of the stomach and a stimulation of the salivary glands as they listened to the recital. At dinner, which I thought quite adequate to satisfy both taste and hunger, food was the sole topic of conversation. It was so throughout our visit—food all the time; nothing but food. The habit of eating had so obsessed them that they thought of nothing else.

Declares Bald Eagle Is Unjustly Given Bad Name

Audubon Head Comes to Bat for National Emblem.

New York.—Condemning a recent widely circulated press release which in effect defamed the bald eagle, emblem of our national independence, Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, president of the National Association of Audubon Societies, stated:

"It is unfortunate that recent publicity concerning the bald eagle has been calculated to detract from the character and reputation of this stately and picturesque bird which long has been the emblem of our country. While the story in question indulges in no deliberate misstatement of facts, yet the emphasis placed upon some of these is both unfair and misleading. The fact that Benjamin Franklin and John James Audubon questioned the wisdom of this choice of the bald eagle to be our country's emblem should in no wise create any misgivings in the minds of patriotic, bird-loving citizens. Even though we are reminded by them that the bald eagle's diet is not at all times admirable, and that he will rob the fish hawk on occasion, we would, on these same grounds be led to malign the character of many of our wild birds and mammals whose lives, for the most part, are ruled by the law of the jungle.

"When a beautiful and accomplished actress captivates her audience with the grace and power of her performance, they are not curious to know what she has had for dinner: it may have been corned beef and cabbage! In like manner we admire the bald eagle when, in the beauty and majesty of his noble form and powerful flight, he soars aloft into the blue empyrean; or from his aerial or beetling crag or towering pine he surveys the world beneath, or sallies forth in quest of daily food. At such times he seems to rise above the menial things of earth and thus becomes a symbol of valor and of power which constitutes him no mean emblem of our country."

William James once advanced the theory that few human beings ever work up to their fullest capacity. Vast energy resources are hidden by the habit of fatigue obstacles which we never break through. It is possible that we possess not only a second wind but a third and a fourth. "In exceptional cases we may find, beyond the very extremity of fatigue distress, amounts of ease and power that we never dreamed ourselves to own, sources of strength habitually not taxed at all because habitually we never push through the obstruction, never pass those early critical points," James says.

One Sure Way to End Coughs and Colds

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

SYNOPSIS

Owen Landis, young inventor, has developed an extraordinary "silencer," which is stolen from a safe in his laboratory. He tells Wally Markham, his chum, the only person, beside himself, knowing the combination of the safe, is Betty Lawson, with whom the inventor is in love. A plaster cast of a woman's footprint, found beneath the window of the laboratory, fits one of Betty's shoes. Betty tells Markham Herbert Canby, posing as a "promoter," had driven her home the previous night, and that she had dozed in the car. The safe in the bank at Perthdale is blown open and looted, the noise of the explosion being heard. Satisfied that his "black box" is in the hands of crooks, Landis, with Markham, goes to Perthdale. Three strangers, claiming to be business men of Louisville, are the only possible suspects. Markham and Landis decide to follow them. At St. Joseph's commissary, Landis is driving west, with Betty Lawson and her father as guests in the car. Markham's car is stolen and wrecked. He cops another, and they go on. At Copah they meet Betty who explains the reason for her and her father's journey. A conversation between Canby and the three Louisville men convinces Markham and Landis they are on the right track. The commissary of the Cinnabar mine is robbed and two men killed. Again there was no sound. At Brewster they learn of the arrival of Canby and his party. William Starbuck, mine owner, tells them of Canby's crookedness. They meet Canby. He tells them he is in the West on business connected with his mine, the "Old Quavapai." Betty and her father are with him as guests. Landis and Markham are assaulted on the street by knife-wielders, but beat off their assailants.

"If you are out on the Topaz road, stop at the Little Alice. I'm going out there shortly."

The invitation was accepted, conditioned upon their driving that far.

As they were taking the roadster out of the hotel garage Landis asked what was to be the program for the day.

"I want to take a shot at trying to find out what Canby did with those two unaccounted-for hours yesterday morning."

The "shot" was fired methodically by making inquiries on all the roads leading out of Brewster, and it led to nothing until the round brought them to the road over which they themselves had driven in. Here, at a cottage, Markham stopped the car, saying, "There was a light in this house when we came by yesterday morning; I noticed it. It's only another of the wild chances; but we'll ask."

A woman answered their knock, and Markham began the well-worn formula. "Pardon me, but we'll be grateful if you would answer a few questions for us, if you can. You were up early yesterday morning, weren't you?"

The woman nodded. "I was—all of that. My baby was sick."

"Do you often notice the passing of cars?"

"I couldn't very well help it, could I—living that close to the road like this?" Then, pointing to the roadster, "I saw that car, or one just like it, go by a little after day, yesterday morning."

"Quite right; and we were in it. Was it the only one you saw?"

"No, there were three more; big cars, all just alike. Two going into town, and one coming out. I was sitting by the window."

Landis saw a possibility in this and caught at it.

"Could you—can you remember the times when these three cars, just alike, went past?" he asked.

"Not just; but I sh'd say it was somewhere near three o'clock when the first one went by, going on to town."

"Could you see this big car well enough to tell us how it looked?"

"It was a fine, closed car, painted a kind of light yellow; a limmyzeen, they call 'em, don't they?"

Markham nodded. "I suppose you couldn't see the people in it, could you?"

"Only that there was two of 'em in the front seat; a man and a woman."

"Exactly. Now the next one, when did it come along?"

"Maybe a half hour or so after that. It was going the other way. It looked like the same car. Anyway, it was the same color."

"And the third one; which way was it going?"

"It was going in, and it was a big, yellow car, too, just like the others. I saw it good."

"Could you see the folks in it?"

"I could see only the one man, driving."

"An extraordinarily good witness, that woman," Markham commented, when they drove on; adding, "That was a happy thought of yours, Owen—timing those three cars. Where does it land you?"

"I think you know. The three cars just alike were one and the same car. And the man driving it all three times was Canby."

"Check! The next question is, why did he double back after he had left the professor and Betty at the hotel?"

"Wait," said Landis; and after a brow-knitting pause, "I'm trying to remember. Coming over last night you repeated for me the talk you overheard between Canby and the three in the Copah garage. Didn't you say something about Canby's meeting the others, as agreed?"

"You've got it! He did say just that. That's why the Fleetwing hasn't shown up in Brewster; they've left it somewhere along the road, and Canby picked them up and brought them in. We're framing the puzzle up, a bit at a time. I—hello—here we are at the Little Alice. Shall we stop?"

"Have to, won't we? If Mr. Starbuck sees us, he'll think it queer if we drive past without stopping."

Markham parked the car, and as he was doing it, Starbuck came out.

"You are just in the nick of time to have a noon snack with us," was the mine owner's greeting. "Come on over to the mess shack and meet the staff."

This was their introduction to the engineers' and officer men's mess; and after the meal Starbuck took them in hand and showed them through the mine.

After they had tramped for what seemed like miles in the network, Starbuck halted them in a well-lighted heading where the chattering clamor of the air drills was deafening; and the silence, when the drills stopped, and the miners began to unlimber and drag them back from the heading, was almost painful.

"This is our main lead," Starbuck explained, when the stoppage of the drill clamor gave him leave. "It's what the old miners call a 'true fissure' vein, and they have a belief that such veins grow richer the deeper you drive." Then, "They are aiming to load the holes and fire, and we'd better move out."

As they were walking down the main tunnel, Landis said, "You spoke of the old-time miners; do they have many superstitions?"

"Oh, not more than men of other callings, I reckon. But in that heading we've just left, we've had a curious case of 'miner's nerves.' The men began to say they could hear the ticking of a 'death watch' when the drills stopped. We didn't pay any attention to it at first; but after a while, when the men in that heading began to take time off on one excuse or another, we investigated. The ticking could be heard at times, but it was probably only the trickling of water in some underground cavity, or so we concluded."

"Talk Fast and Talk Straight, if You Want to Go On Living!"

As they came out of the mine, Markham asked the location of the Quavapai. Starbuck pointed the road toward Lake Topaz.

"It's on the other side of the spur in the next gulch. If you are going that way, you'll see the dump as you pass the mouth of the gulch."

They saw it, hanging like a huge gray beard from the mountain side, but a turn in the gulch hid the mine buildings. The side road was barricaded against traffic, and beyond the barricade they saw a man with a gun.

"What do you make of that?" Landis asked.

"No visitors need apply. I wonder what Canby has up his sleeve in there?"

"Time may tell. What do we do now. Go on hunting for the Fleetwing?"

Markham made a sign of assent. "I'd like to know where those three men left it, and why. Also, why Canby went out to meet them."

They stopped at the hotel to glance over the register in search of the three names Markham had copied from the record in St. Joseph. The names did not appear, and, as they were driving out of the hotel grounds they met Canby driving in, not in the yellow limousine, but in a sport roadster. The other occupant of the single seat was Betty Lawson. Canby seemed not to see them, but Betty did and she waved to them.

"You see," said Landis gloomily. "I see that you are taking it lying down," Markham returned in a half growl.

"You think I wouldn't break in if I had an opening—that I don't care enough? Good Lord, Wally, I'd give the best ten years of my life if I could go back to where I stood with Betty before I began to bury myself in this cursed invention of mine!"

He choked up at that, and when he went on, "Show me an opening, Wally, and I'll walk into it if I—I is gaping on the other side of it! That's how much I'm taking it lying down!"

"Um; that sounds more like it," was Markham's gruff approval, and he drove on.

Before they had gone far, Landis, looking back, saw a small car following; a car that was apparently having trouble making the grades, since, however slowly they drove, it never overtook them. After a time Landis spoke of the struggling filver.

"That Lizzie seems to be making hard work of it," he said, when, on one of the reverse loopings, they could see it across the intervening gulch. It was stopped, and two men were apparently doing something to the motor.

Markham gave the halted car only a passing glance. "This is the gulch where we saw the fire night before last," he pointed out. "Suppose we climb down there and have a look."

They got out and scotched the wheels with stones. The descent into the gulch was down a precipitous slope. Before they had gone very far they came upon what appeared to be a rough trail, with crushed and broken bushes to mark its course.

"What's been happening here?" Landis asked. "More rock rolling?"

"Looks like it; we'll find out when we get to the bottom."

At the bottom of the gulch they found themselves in a boulder-strewn stream bed; and, turning to the left, they struggled upward toward the place where they had seen the fire. It was in a dry stream bed that they came suddenly upon the thing they were searching for—the remains of the fire. Wedged in the bottom of the gulch was the wreck of a large car crushed into a shapeless heap of junk, and with everything burnable blackened and destroyed.

"Now we know what made the scarred trail," said Markham. "That car ran off the road and came down here and burned up. Is it the Fleetwing?"

Before Landis could reply, there came a vicious spat on the face of the rock beside which they were standing, followed by the crack of a rifle. They ducked behind the boulder, and at that there was another report and the clang of a bullet upon the iron work of the wrecked car.

"What the—?" Markham choked, grabbing for his pistol. But Landis was cooler.

"Easy," he counseled. "It's those fellows up at the filver. Don't waste your ammunition. The automatic won't carry half that far."

"D—n!" gritted Markham. "We're penned up here like rats in a trap!"

"No trouble about getting out of it, with all these rocks to dodge around."

Worming their way cautiously among the boulders, they were soon out of range from the road above, though the unseen rifleman kept on firing, but the bullets went wild. After they reached a hollow that was out of sight from the marksman's position, Markham looked apprehensively at the bare slope they would have to climb to reach their car.

"We'll have to go farther," he panted. "We can't scramble up there in plain sight."

"I don't mean to," said Landis. Then, in a sudden upblaze of passion, "I've had about enough of this d—d ambushing business, haven't you? There is good cover on this other side of the gulch. We'll climb out that way and see if we can't do a little of the ambushing ourselves!"

As he had pointed out, there was foresting enough on the western slope of the gulch to afford fairly well-concealed stalking cover, and as they toiled up through the undergrowth, Markham was striving to flog his estimate of his boyhood chum and college mate around to the new point of view. He had always thought of Landis as a dreamer, a thinker, a student—as anything but a fighting man.

But here was an entirely new development. The dreamer, pale of face, to be sure, but with his jaw out-thrust and the light of battle in his widest gray eyes, was storming up the steep ascent at a pace that made his heavier follower pant and blow. Thus it came about that Landis was the first to step out of a thick growth of little spruces at the level of the road. Markham burst out of the cover a moment later, and what he saw was a further proof that a lifelong friendship may not reveal the whole man, even to his closest intimate.

The small, dusty, rattletap car was standing as they had seen it from the opposite side of the gulch. Beside it were two men with their hands above their heads in deference to Landis' covering pistol, and at their feet lay the rifle with which one of them had been firing into the gulch. Before Markham could get his breath, Landis was grilling the pair snappily.

"What did you fellows mean by firing at us when we were down there? Talk fast and talk straight, if you want to go on living!"

"G—g—great Scott!" stammered the taller of the two. "Are ye meanin' to say hit was you—all down yonder in the gully?"

"You know d—d well it was! What's your game? Who sent you here to kill us off? Talk quick!"

"Fore Gawd, mister, you got us all wrong! We ain't aimin' to kill nobody! I thort you was a b'ar; so help me, I did! They told us, down along, that we might meet up with a b'ar comin' through these mountains, and when we looked down yonder, we shore thort you-all wuz one, didn't we, Jeff?" appealing to his mate. "Good gray! You don't reckon we'd shoot at a man, knowin' it wuz a man, do ye?"

At this point Markham took a hand. "Where are you fellows from?" he demanded.

"We're from Tennessee. Been to Utah, seein' if hit wuz a fittin' country for white folks. Hit ain't, and we're aimin' to go back where we come from."

"Did you stop in Brewster?"

"Didn't stop only long enough to buy us some grub."

FARM POULTRY

DISCOVERS WAY TO REDUCE EGG COSTS

Cod Liver Oil Recommended by Expert Poultryman.

By A. R. Winter, Poultryman, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Better egg production, less feed requirement per dozen eggs, and less mortality will result from feeding the farm poultry flock cod liver oil.

In a test, 220 Rhode Island pullets were divided equally in two pens and started on test on October 1, 1929. Both pens were fed the same basal all-mash ration, housed under similar conditions, and managed the same. They were given rape pasture yards during the fall and cinder yards on the south side of the house during the winter months. The small hen doors were always open so that the birds could go outside the building at any time irrespective of weather conditions. One pen was fed cod liver oil and the other pen was not.

The birds receiving the cod liver oil produced 7,142 eggs from October 1 to April 1. Birds in the pen not receiving cod liver oil laid 6,061 eggs in the same period. The feed required per dozen eggs for birds receiving cod liver oil from October to the next October was 7.37 pounds. Those not getting the oil required 7.45 pounds of feed per dozen eggs. The loss in weight for birds fed cod liver oil was 210 pounds, and for birds not getting the oil 272.5 pounds.

Beneficial results are obtained by feeding cod liver oil in the spring, summer, and fall months as well as during the winter.

U. S. Is Keeping Tab on Tuberculosis Eradication

A summary of progress in eradicating tuberculosis from poultry is being issued monthly by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture. The summary includes the results of inspection of poultry flocks in the 11 states doing systematic work in detecting and eradicating tuberculosis of poultry. These states are Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota, and Wisconsin. In addition there are reports for 10 other states in which veterinarians engaged in testing cattle for the disease also inspected poultry. The report includes the tabulated results of post-mortem examinations of flocks and fowls affected with tuberculosis, as shown by clinical test.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Crooked Breastbones

The cause of crooked breastbone is due to lack of lime and phosphorus in the rations, which are said to make bone or give it strength. Others say that making birds go on the roost too young will cause the deformity. The probability is that both conditions contribute to the defect; so feed given young birds should contain a sufficiency of these elements which should be contained in most commercial chick rations.

Fatten Before Marketing

Chickens and turkeys grow in relation to the amount of feed they consume. Large frame, good blood bloom and healthy condition are essential to successful fattening. Worthless birds should not be sent to market, but should be destroyed whenever they are found in the flock. Hold the birds until they are fully feathered, if possible. Fatten all poultry for two to three weeks before marketing.

Late Chicks Handicapped

Chicks hatched after the first of May are usually a poor investment. Especially is this true of the slower maturing, heavy breeds. At this season the parasites of the chicken have had an opportunity to multiply. The chick is handicapped by becoming infested with these parasites early. An earlier hatched chick gains resistance with age before the parasites become so numerous.

Warm Hen House Needed

Old Biddy and her tribe can help out a lot if they are provided with proper housing and are properly fed. If you want to keep up egg production during the winter you need a warm and well-ventilated poultry house. To maintain such a hen house requires tight walls, doors and windows; ventilating flues; and limited overhead space. A straw loft is an excellent way to get rid of the air space overhead and may be the means of saving many of your flock.

Limestone Valuable

Limestone grit which is rich in calcium or lime carbonate is valuable and will prove a good investment. It supplies the mineral salts and feeds the lime ducts for shelling the eggs and enriching the yolk. It is responsible for stronger limbs and more rapid growth of baby chicks when regularly fed the parent birds. When hens are deprived of calcium they often draw on their bodily reserves and layer's cramp follows, as well as weakly chickens.

Romantic Origin of Package Medicines

Some of the most interesting romances will be found in the march of industry; for back of nearly every product which gains public acceptance is the very human story of somebody's ideal, ambition, ingenuity, enterprise, disappointment, struggle and final achievement of the goal of success.

The privations and hardships which accompanied the early years of the development of package medicines are an important part of the history of our nation. The public seldom appreciates the doubt, the ridicule, the ostracism and the enormous financial risks which were suffered by the early pioneers in medicines. Their faith, determination and pioneering spirit were responsible for developing and bringing to our medicine shelves those well-known package medicines which afford economy and convenience, and which are so essential to our everyday lives.

Today we take our family remedies for granted as naturally as we accept the air or sunshine.

Most package medicines were originally prescribed by that beloved individual, the memory of whose self-sacrificing life is most beautiful—the old family physician. Being prescriptions of merit which produced results, they survived. They became much in demand and consequently much prescribed by their originators. Perhaps the demand grew so rapidly that the old doctor found himself unable, with his limited equipment, his modest kit, to fill the need. Often he, sometimes assisted by his kinsmen or friends, prepared to meet the demand by a quantity production, that the meritorious prescriptions might receive the widespread use which their popularity justified. Then came years of toil, hardships, risks, struggles; with life's earnings and life's efforts invested. Eventually the laboratory and the machine entered the picture, and every invention of a modern world was utilized to increase perfection, production and distribution. And every invention of a modern world was utilized to increase perfection, production and distribution of the medicines.

Whether an individual package medicine has been on the market for scores of years, or whether it is the more recent product of medical research, a large proportion of package medicines in general are based upon solid scientific knowledge, and deserve the confidence of the public. Proprietary remedies which can ease human suffering, mitigate human distress, or add to human health and physical efficiency, at a price within the reach of the poor man's pocket-book, are indeed worthy adjuncts to American life, as well as American commerce. "They can be safely relied upon," as Lord Bacon expressed it. "to tune the curious harp of man's body."

JOBLESS LIVE IN PIPES

The residence of fifty of the unemployed of Oakland, Calif., has been established along an estuary where large concrete pipes have been piled. There is a pipe for each one of the fifty men, and with one end covered, the tubes, six feet long, and almost as large in diameter, provide fairly adequate bedrooms.

The tide regularly brings in wood for the community fires, and the men take turns "rustling" provisions and doing the cooking.

CLASSICAL HOOFER

Waiting for an elevator in a downtown business building was a Western Union messenger boy. While he waited his feet swung into tap dancing, then a bit of classical movement.

"Boy, you feel good today," remarked a fellow-waiter for the elevator.

"Yeah, just practicin' a bit," the boy replied. "I'm a professional dancer when I'm not hopping out with messages."

"Oh, is that so? What's your specialty?"

"Well, I do some tap dancing, but I'm a whiz at adagios!"

The Pessimist

Everything in the world is a failure to the man who doesn't know and can't understand.

NOW! EASE A SORE THROAT INSTANTLY

Feel Rawness, Irritation, Go At Once

These Pictures Tell You What To Do

Remember Only Medicine Helps A Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes.

Results are among the most extraordinary in medical science. On doctors' advice, millions are following this way... discarding old-time "washes" and "antiseptics." For it has been found that only medicine can help a sore throat.

Simple To Do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice—as pictured above. If you have any indication of a cold—before gargling take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. This is to combat any signs of cold that have gone into your system. Keep on taking if cold has a "hold." For Genuine Bayer Aspirin will not harm you. Your doctor will tell you, it does not depress the heart. Get a box of 12 or a bottle of 100 at any drug store.

Reduces Infection, Eases Pain Instantly. Gargling with Bayer Aspirin will do three things: Relieve soreness at once. Allay inflammation. AND—reduce infection; which is the important thing in fighting a sore throat.

It requires medicine—like BAYER ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout America are prescribing this BAYER gargle in place of old-time ways. Results are quick and amazing.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For they dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles. Watch this when you buy.

NO TABLETS ARE GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN WITHOUT THIS CROSS

NEXT WASHDAY

So economical—TRY IT in tub, washer, dishpan

YOU'LL say its economical, too, when you see how long one big box of Rinsol lasts. That's because you only have to use a little Rinsol to get a lot of the thickest, liveliest suds you ever saw... in any kind of water.

Rinsol is equally good in tub or washer. Dirt loosens and floats right off in its creamy, cleansing suds. You don't have to scrub or boil the wash. Rinsol does a complete job—just by soaking. This saves the clothes from being scrubbed threadbare; saves your hands from getting red and washroom, too. Rinsol's active suds speed up dishwashing—make all cleaning easier. Try Rinsol in your tub or washer—and dishpan. Get the BIG box.

A quartet chosen from the Boys' Glee Club, consisting of Vernon Davis, Melvin Groff, Leonard Hoshbach, and Marshall Lickfelt, sang for the assembly program last Friday. They sang "The Arkansas Traveler."

Seventh and Eighth Grades

We enjoyed a program held in the high school assembly Friday afternoon.

Richard Ziehl, Robert Bradley and Marion Lickfelt were absent due to sickness.

In looking over the records for spelling we found only one person, Emma Sawyer, who has had a perfect spelling paper for the past week. Evidently the pupils were too busy studying for mid-year exams to give any attention to spelling.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Interesting book reports were given on Friday by Charles Cecil, Junior Fowler, Vernon Blust, Margaret Davis, Florence McDonald, Dorothy Blust, Eugene Wegner, Herbert Cox and Allan Miller.

Betty Davis and Ruth Clark had perfect spelling papers every day last week.

We are proud to have the flag in

Third and Fourth Grades
The following third grade people had perfect spelling papers this week: Alton Hill, Peter Pfeiffer, Marie Ulman and Leona Ziehl; the fourth grade: Robert Gibbons, Mary Sims and Harold Wegner.

Mable Ulman, Junior Musolf, Eugene Lickfelt and Elna Herman were absent this week.

Richard Clark, Rosalie Lindbloom, and Genevieve Putnam will enter the "A" group in reading.

Wayne White, Lvie Huches, and Harry Rollin are absent this week.

Anemoscopes Highly Sensitive

Most of the weather vanes—more commonly called wind vanes or anemoscopes—employed by meteorologists have the general shape of an arrow, but vary widely in some of their details. Lake Dwellings

The name "lake dwelling" is applied to human habitations built usually upon foundations of piles or posts, but also constructed of trunks of trees, brush, earth or stone, and erected on the shallow borders of lakes, rivers and other inland waters. These structures abounded in Switzerland and adjacent parts of Italy, France and Germany in the Stone and Bronze ages, but are known to have existed in many other parts of the world.

I feel that this measure, if it becomes a law, will save thousands of homes and bring hope where almost all hope has gone. We must leave no stone unturned to save the homes of this country. A nation without homes is not a nation, and sooner or later will go down to ruin.

I feel there is hope, a lot of hope in this present legislature. The members are very much in earnest. Politics will be forgotten and many measures will be passed that will help to bring us back to normal conditions once more.

The people of my district will be glad to learn that I was appointed on the General Taxation Committee, one of the most important committees in the House.

Explaining Sympathy
Sympathy is in great degree a result of the mood we are in at the moment; anger forbids the emotion. On the other hand, it is easiest taken on when we are in a state of most absolute self-satisfaction.—Lew Wallace.

Priest Became King
John Casimir, member of a Polish family, but who had been a priest in France most of his life and had risen to the dignity of a cardinal, was summoned to the throne of Poland in 1648. He reigned 20 years with his nation in constant warfare.

A FABLE — yet true

A man was one day hunting in a forest. A terrible storm came up. He looked about for shelter, but there was none. It began to rain in torrents. So he crawled into a hollow log. It fitted snugly. The rain lasted for hours. The water soaked through the wood. The log began to contract. When the storm was over the man could not get out.

He strained with all his might. But the log held tight. Exhausted, he gave up. He knew he would starve to death.

Like a drowning man he saw his whole life flash before him, especially his mistakes. Suddenly he remembered that he had not taken his children to see Harold Lloyd in "Movie Crazy."

That made him feel so small that he was able to crawl out of the log without difficulty.
