ENUMERATORS LIST 3,800 IN IOSCO CENSUS

March 1st Is Deadline For Payment of Head Tax

Approximately 3,800 persons have been registered by the census enumerators in Isosco county under the Old Age Pension Law. This is not the total number of people in the county who are subject to taxation under the law, many having not yet been registered. The registration deadline was set at January 15, but failure to register does not exempt anyone from payment of the tax.

The numbers registered in the various townships and the cities of Tawas City, East Tawas and Whittemore are as follows: Reno township, 231; Alabaster township, 190; Sherman township, 250; Baldwin township, 148; Tawas township, 381; AuSable township, 164; Grant township, 151; Wilber township, 146; Osceola township, 408; Burleigh township, 39; Plainfield township, 472; City of East Tawas, 639; Tawas City, 510; Whittemore, 190.

The Old Age Pension tax is payable to the township or city treasurer until March 1. Welfare dependents will not be taxed until such time as they have secured independent means of support. Failure to pay the tax is a misdemeanor.

So far, the number of persons registered in the state is approximately 2,000,000 and it is believed that about 500,000 more will be reported within the next month.

Ed. L. Williams, director of the pension bureau, recently said, "In view of the fact that the tax payments have started even before we have set up the machinery, I do not believe the law will be unpopular. Most persons seem willing to pay $2.00 a year, knowing that real estate taxes for the care of the indigent will be reduced and that they are being guaranteed an income up to $30.00 a month in their old age."

Twenty-five applications for old age pensions have already been received by Probate Judge David Davison. Each case must be investigated by the county welfare commissioner before action on it can be taken. Only persons who have been citizens of the United States for 15 years, and residents of Michigan for at least ten years, and who do not own property valued at more than $3,500.00 are entitled to receive pensions.

"From Headquarters" Gives Crime Detection Methods

A revelation of the inner workings of a metropolitan police force in tracking criminals is made in the Warner Bros. newest murder mystery drama, "From Headquarters," featuring George Brent and Margaret Lindsay, which comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Wednesday and Thursday, February 7 and 8.

The story opens with the murder of a millionaire Broadway play-boy and follows the search for the slayer through scientific investigations at police headquarters from the finger printing of suspects to their incision in the darkened third degree room.

The picture is not without its romantic angle, with the lovers placed in a most unusual situation, the lieutenant investigating the crime having been the sweetheart of one of the girl suspects until her love had seemingly turned to the play-boy later found slain.

New Musical Film Hailed as Unique, Tunesful Offering

"Let's Fall in Love," starring Edmund Lowe and the sensational new screen find, Ann Sothern, is coming to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, February 4-5-6.

Hailed as one of the season's most unique and tunesful musical offerings, the production has created much favorable comment. It is entirely different from the run of musicals which has flooded screens recently, as its music is worked into the story in a logical and convincing manner. Even without the music, it would still be an outstanding dramatic production.

The famous song-writing team of Harold Arlen and Ted Koehler composed the lyrics and score for the half-dozen musical numbers heard in the picture.

Supporting Lowe and Miss Sothern in "Let's Fall in Love" are Miriam Jordan, Tala Birell, Gregory Ratoff and Betty Furness.

LEGION HALL NOW COMPLETED

Contains Assembly Room, Kitchen, Gymnasium

Last Monday evening members of Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion, inspected their newly completed hall with the pleasure experienced when a desired object is attained after difficult and hard labor. It is true that there are a few minor details to be finished, but the real work is over. The local post now has a fine assembly room for meetings, a kitchen, and a recreation room or gymnasium. The project was started in October.

The Jesse C. Hodder Post was organized at Tawas City on December 18, 1919. The charter members of the post were W. Byron Mark, John Swartz, Percy Thornton, Elgin Gledin, Isadore Friedman, Robert Murray, H. Friedman, George Brabant, Russell Rollin, Louis Pfeiffer, Emil Buch, Leo Webb, John Webb, Grant Shattuck, and Martin Musolf. Within a few weeks the list increased to about 45 members.

At the first meeting after its organization the following officers were elected: Post Commander, Isadore Friedman; Vice-Commander, P. N. Thornton; Post Adjutant, Leo Brabant; Finance Officer, Virgil Hill.

In its early days the post was greatly hampered by lack of a suitable headquarters. Meetings were held at the Court House for a time; then the old City Hall was used. Both of the places were inadequate to the needs of the organization, however, and in 1923 the Tawas City Council presented the post with the old library building near the Court House. Members spent a great deal of time and money in improving the building, and for a number of years it was a very desirable home for the post.

At the annual school meeting held last July it was unanimously decided by the voters present to lease the abandoned Ward school building to the post as a permanent home. A full basement was immediately constructed under the building. Here there is a fine kitchen, with electric range and modern conveniences, and a large recreation room or gymnasium. Partitions were removed from the main floor of the building, making an excellent room for meetings, parties and dancing. This room has been completely redecorated and presents a very pleasing appearance.

All of this required many days of hard work for the members, especially for those who were keenly interested in the successful completion of the project at once. These men deserve a large amount of credit. The officers and members of Jesse C. Hodder Post are to be congratulated upon attaining an object aimed at for several years—a fine permanent home, suitable for all phases of Legion work.

Yacht Club Bridge Tournay Standings

The committee for the T. B. Y. A. bridge tournament requests that teams or members of teams who for some reason can not be present for a night's play report the fact, so that substitutions might be arranged for, or that they themselves arrange for substitutions. By doing this they will not be handicapped by the loss of four straight rubbers.

If, after the drawing is made on the night of play, the drawn opponents for a team are not present and the committee can not furnish substitutes, the team will be credited with no game, their money will be refunded, and their final score for the tournament will be based on the actual games played.

Mrs. Edwin Fry

Mrs. Edwin Fry, age 90 years and 24 days, passed away Saturday, January 20, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Beardslee, at Whittemore. Funeral services were held at the Whittemore M. E. church Wednesday afternoon, January 24, with Rev. H. Davis officiating. Interment took place in the Wilson cemetery.

Margaret Sinclair Meikle was born December 27, 1843, in Glasgow, Scotland. At the age of eight years she immigrated with her parents to Hamilton, Ontario. On October 13, 1862, she was united in marriage to Edwin Fry, and to this union 13 children were born. In 1880 they moved to Isosco county, where the deceased has resided since that time. In early womanhood she united with the Methodist church, and had always been a sincere Christian worker until the time of her demise. Her husband preceded her in death April 1, 1912.

She is survived by five children, Mrs. Margaret McLean, Mrs. Sarah Beardslee and Mrs. Adelia Lomason of Burleigh township, Mrs. Hattie Ross of Beaverton, and Edwin Fry of Littlefork, Minnesota; also one sister, Mrs. Mary Berdan, of Vienna, Ontario, 32 grandchildren, 29 great grandchildren, and a host of other relatives and friends.

Beautiful toiler, her work well done;
Beautiful soul into glory gone;
Beautiful life, with its crown now won;
God giveth her rest.

ROADMENGOTO LANSING MEET

Proposed Reduction in Auto Weight Tax Discussed

Members of the Isosco County Road Commission attended the hearing before the legislative council last Wednesday in Lansing. This meeting, as well as a meeting of the directors of the Northern Road Commissioners and the Michigan Association of Road Commissioners and Engineers held in the forenoon of the same day, was for the purpose of discussing the proposed reduction in the automobile weight tax.

The proposed reduction was discussed at great length not only by members of the legislative committee, but various other organization leaders presented much data for and against the idea of reducing this tax.

It was shown that any reduction in the weight tax will mean the loss of thousands of dollars to every county in the upper half of the state and many in the lower half. This is particularly true of counties like Isosco, which receive from the state annually much more than the amount that is actually collected within the county from the same source. For instance, the collection in weight tax in Isosco last year was $23,572.42, while the Horton Act requires the return of all of the weight tax to the counties, but not in proportion to the amount collected. Approximately $43,200.00 will be returned as Isosco county's share of the 1933 weight tax.

This money is returned under the Horton Act for the purpose of taking care of all Covert road bonds and township road bonds as they come due, in addition to maintaining all county roads. Any balance is used for improving the township roads taken over. There is no property tax for county road purposes. This accounts for the major portion of the property tax reduction shown in the (Turn to No. 1, Back Page)

LATE NEWS EVENTS

QUANICASSE, FEB. 1—John Swantek, Henry Abare, Charles King, Jr., and Lawrence King of Bay City, adrift on a huge floe of ice in Saginaw bay since yesterday afternoon, came ashore here this afternoon. Attempts at rescue Wednesday by the coast guard and airplanes from Camp Skeel were futile on account of the 40-mile gale and poor visibility. The four men, commercial fishermen, were fishing with nets through the ice on the bay about six miles from Bay City. The heavy southwest wind broke off a large cake on which the men were working, carrying it toward Lake Huron. The wind shifted to the northwest during the night, driving the ice back to this place, and the four men walked to shore.

GLADWIN, FEB. 2—Conservation Officer Russell Martin has been given complete authority over the field work for this district by the Department of Conservation. A new system has been inaugurated by the department which is hoped will give more efficiency and economy in game law enforcement. The state has been divided into four districts, with an officer in each having full responsibility and to whom local conservation officers and fire wardens are responsible.

HALE, FEB. 2—James Slosser, Plainfield township farmer, died last Sunday evening. Funeral services were held Wednesday. Mr. Slosser was well known throughout the county, having been very active in various farm organizations. He had held the office of township treasurer for several years.

TAWAS CITY, FEB. 2—During 1933 there were 17 deaths in Tawas City. The average age was more than 73 years, the youngest being 58 and the oldest 85, according to a statement made today by Justice W. C. Davidson. This high average age at which the deaths occurred is an outstanding record.

"Your secret?" Smif tried to speak brightly, but there was a load on her heart that seemed to weigh down her spirit. "I can guess what it is, and I'm glad if you're happy—ever and ever so glad, Stone."

She held out her hand which he regarded frowningly without taking.

"Sit down over there," she motioned to a chair on the other side of his desk, not rising to place it for her. Then he leaned his elbows on the blotter and bent toward her. "I wonder if you're as good a guesser as you think you are?"

Smif, too, leaned her arms on the desk, resting her head in her hands.

"I guessed last night," she said. "I'd never been certain before. I'd never seen her when she was not grotesquely fat. In her own house, she's charming, Stone."

"So that was the reason you went off with Susan Phelps and left me in the lurch?" he exclaimed petulantly. "That was a mean trick, when you knew I wanted to talk to you."

"How was I to know that?" Smif asked, annoyed at his unreasonableness. "You never even looked at me all evening."

"And a good reason I had for that," Stone declared. "It made me perfectly furious to see you sitting there wishing me on Mercy."

"Wishing you on Mercy?" Smif echoed his words helplessly. "Honestly, Stone, I don't know what you mean."

Before he spoke again he pushed the fittings of the desk irritably here and there. Then, with one sweep he showed them all aside and leaning across it, looked directly into her eyes.

"I mean I'm in love with you, Madly, foolishly, insanely in love with you. So much in love that I'm afraid to look at you in public for fear I'll murder any puppy who happens to be talking to you. Don't you know you are tractedly. "I've always been such a success in managing other people's affairs while I seem to be an awful fool about my own."

"Let's make it tomorrow, then," Stone said, taking up the telephone. "After that I'll manage your affairs for you. Ring three on this line, please?"

"Stone! Do you mean to say you have a party line? No wonder Miss Mercedes knew all your plans—"

"Hello! Is that you, Septimus? Tell Miss Mercedes I'd like to speak to her. Yes, it's Mr. Nesbit."

"Don't say tomorrow, Stone. I'll have to bring my sisters here—and Cousin Mab must be told—"

"She knows already," Stone interjected. "Lo, Mercy. Just wanted to make an announcement to you. You won't be surprised. You're such a clever girl—"

He grinned implacably at Smif and went on: "I'm engaged to Miss Lovely. . . . Yes, we're going to be married very soon. . . . Thanks awfully, I'll tell Smif that. . . . Yes, thanks again. . . . You're going to take Gregory's tip? His aunt is positively authentic and able to introduce you everywhere. I'll send him over to give you all the details." He hung up again, grinning companionably at Smif. "Just as easy as that. She knew it all the time, she says."

"Seemingly everybody knew it except me," Smif smiled back, thinking how young and handsome and gay he was. Happiness was already making a new man of him. "I don't understand why nobody took me into the secret. I suppose Pam knew it, and Susan and Eve—"

"Not Pam," he answered quite seriously, "she is too busy with her own affairs; but Susan of course—and I don't see anyone keeping anything much from Eve—"

What did it matter? Smif asked herself. She had always said it was easier to hide a conflagration than a love affair, only she had not meant that to apply to her own romance.

"I'm still not altogether happy about your neighbor." She nodded her head in the general direction of Rockmoss.

"You may be," Stone assured her. "You see, Madame Saitou, there's something I scarcely dare confess to you. You really are getting a left-over. I'm a jilted man. Mercy fell so in love with her own loveliness that she felt it should not be wasted on a mere country squire in 'ole Vihginny.' She's out for a title, and Greg, who's a good chap with a sense of humor and a lot of family feeling, has steered her up against one of his own relatives who will present her to the queen and the other assembled aristocrats and who is much in need of the ready. That's what we were conspiring about at dinner last night."

"When I was so unhappy," Smif said.

"I guessed that was what was the matter this morning," Stone cried tri-

Gloomy Future Forecast for Chain Store System

Decline in Sales Shown by Trade Commission.

Washington, D. C.—A gloomy future for the vast chain store industry in this country is foreseen by the federal trade commission in its annual report for the fiscal year 1932-1933.

Summarizing in the report the results of its exhaustive investigation of all phases of the chain store system, the commission found that the outlook for the industry, contrary to outward indications, is definitely gloom.

"Notwithstanding the general growth of chain store business as a whole and the increase in size and great success of many individual chains," the commission reported, "the tendency of most of the kinds of chains clearly appears to be (1) declining average sales per store, (2) decreasing business income per store, (3) decreasing turnover of business investment, and (4) declining rates of return on investment over the period of time covered by this portion of the inquiry."

The commission found a wide variation in the net operating profits of the twenty-six types of chain stores included in its investigation. The lowest rate of profit on sales was in the hat and cap chains, which showed an operating loss of 0.42 per cent. The highest rate was a profit of 11.46 per cent in the furniture chains.

"The study of chain store operations disclosed that a fairly substantial number of companies reported losses instead of profits from operations," the commission stated. "This condition existed in some measure in all of the 26 kinds of chains and involved aggregate sales of over $1,500,000,000, the losses totaling $13,934,074. These losses average more than $40,000 per company year, or slightly more than $2,000 per store year for the chains sustaining the losses."

The commission's report summarized also its detailed report to congress in results of an investigation into special discounts and allowances in certain types of chain.

"These studies," it was said, "were undertaken to determine the truth or falsity of assertions frequently made that chain store organizations hold an important advantage over independent dealers, because of the large discounts obtained by them on many items, which independent competitors were not able to obtain."

In the case of tobacco, according to the report, "the total amount of the sales of 134 manufacturers of tobacco and related miscellaneous commodities to these tobacco distributors aggregated just under 250 million in 1929 and over 285 million in 1930. The total allowances in the former year were $6,417,121, and in the latter year, $6,928,992."

Show Grocery Figures.
In the grocery chains the commission found that "the total amount of the sales of all the 457 reporting manufacturers of grocery and miscellan-ous related products to these grocery distributors amounted to 368.6 million dollars in 1929, and for the 464 reporting manufacturers to 351.6 million dollars in 1930. The total allowances in the former year were $6,306,213, and in the latter year, $6,439,514."

"The total amount of the sales of all of the 682 reporting manufacturers of drug and miscellaneous related products to these drug distributors," the report continued, "amounted to 140.3 million dollars in 1929 and for the 688 reporting manufacturers to 138.4 million dollars in 1930. The total allowances in the former year were $3,450,283, and in the latter year, $3,798,933."

In the eight years included in the commission's study, the report disclosed, "average business investment per company for all of the 26 kinds of chains was $1,503,901, the range being from a low of $92,789 for men's furnishings chains to a high average of $15,759,113 per company for department store chains. The average per store for all kinds of chains was $27,157, the lowest average being $5,547 per store for the millinery chains and the highest $830,213 per store for department store chains."

Fish Hear Whistle, Wiggle Back Home

Pasadena, Calif.—Nineteen goldfish that figuratively walked back home in response to a whistle were introduced to a skeptical public today by Mrs. J. H. Fertig of Pasadena.

The leading fish was Billy, a doughty old veteran of the pool Mrs. Fertig has in her back yard. Billy and his companions were swept away by torrential rains. Mrs. Fertig recalled her gardener, Harry Fraser, once boasted he could call Billy by a peculiar whistle. She summoned the gardener to prove it.

Fraser walked from puddle to puddle whistling. At the largest he again whistled. Up popped Billy.

Fraser, said Mrs. Fertig, retreated backward still whistling, and Billy, trailed by the 18 other goldfish, swam meekly back to the pool.

Big Mining Boom in Rockies Predicted

New Monetary Policies Spur Gold Prospectors.

Denver, Colo.—Mining authorities of the Rocky mountain region predict 1934 will see one of the greatest booms in many years.

With government monetary policies lifting prices of both gold and silver to levels making for profitable operation of many mines long closed down, production of the precious metals is expected to leap to new highs.

Already, despite the fact that coming of winter has held down activity, official figures reveal a modest boom. Production totals of Colorado mines for last year, reports showed, reached nearly $7,000,000 in value, a total far above 1932.

A considerable increase in production of silver was recorded, but gold production decreased slightly. Nevertheless, the fact the government bought the yellow metal at high levels resulted in an increase in value of the gold produced.

The gold-buying order of President Roosevelt resulted in one of the greatest prospecting rushes in state history—and not a few of the thousands who searched the mountains for gold were successful.

There was Charlie Starr, for example. Only a few days after the government order he revealed discovery of one of the richest lodes ever found in Colorado. Almost at the grass roots this long-time prospector and his partner, George Gilmore, found untold riches.

The Starr discovery, located near Mancos, Colo., was only one of many. In the Cripple Creek district, generally believed worked out long ago, several new discoveries were made. In the district around Starr's discovery dozens of new strikes were reported, many of them apparently of sufficient value to make their owners wealthy.

Effect of the boom was at once apparent. Receipts of newly mined gold at the United States mint here doubled and then quadrupled. New capital came into the state to be invested in mining properties. Equipment companies dealing in mining materials reported enormous increases in business.

The silver-buying order, which lifted the price of the white metal to 64½ cents an ounce, was expected to have an even greater effect. Certainly, authorities said, it will provide the stimulus for many new mining operations.

dent who attempts to take subjects in which he is uninterested or for which he is mentally unadapted. Unable to force himself to give the concentration to master these subjects, he worries continually, and at the approach of finals he attempts to drive his brain and will power.

"The result from a case of this kind is that the conscious mind is determined to carry on, but the unconscious mind rebels. The so-called nervous breakdown is a compromise. The individual 'saves' his face and the scorn of the world is changed to sympathy and solicitation. This is an unconscious evasion of responsibility."

Relaxation was cited by the psychiatrist as an aid to overcoming such conditions.

Court Fight Over $7.50 Calf Will Cost $1,500

Lewiston, Mont.—The story of how a calf valued at $7.50 eventually cost more than $1,500 has been written in court records here.

The Ford Creek Sheep company and Everett A. Wilson, a rancher, disputed possession of the animal and went to court. Wilson won the first verdict, in a justice court. An appeal was taken to District court, where a jury disagreed after a long, hard fight.

Opponents were preparing to resume their legal battle when the case was settled out of court. Court costs, litigation, attorney fees, juries, and other expenses are expected to run above $1,500.

Pertaining to Home Cooking

Highly Desirable Matter of "Scoring" With Food Prepared for Family or Guests Dependent on Methods Employed, and Ingredients.

Home cooking! How much we like the sound of these words. Yet I think most of us will agree that all home-cooked food is not 100 per cent perfect. I am going to write today in the interest of home cooking. I am going to discuss with you the possibility of "scoring" the food that you prepare for your table.

There are on sale at the moment ready prepared or partially prepared food products offered us at the grocery stores. We will begin with the ever popular biscuit doughs. Our judgment of a satisfactory product will be influenced by the type of biscuit to which we are accustomed. Some people like a biscuit very "short," and others prefer a biscuit which is slightly "puffy." The ingredients for both these biscuits are much the same, and our final results depend a good deal upon whether we drop the mixture, just pat it out, or whether we knead it a little bit before we form it into rounds.

The more shortening we use the less baking powder we will need. In any case we should not overdo the baking powder, as too much injures the flavor. If we are using what is known as a double action baking powder, we use only one teaspoonful to a cupful of flour. If we are using other types of baking powder, we use one and a half to two teaspoonfuls to a cupful, depending upon how light we like our biscuits, as well as upon the amount of shortening we use.

I am giving you the standard recipe today, which calls for a moderate amount of both shortening and baking powder. This same recipe may be used for fruit dumplings, shortcake and tea biscuits if we add additional shortening, and, if we like, a little sugar. Bread flour is usually used for biscuits, but we can get a very delicate, tender, hot bread with pastry or cake flour. Flour, baking powder and salt are sifted together. The shortening, which should be hard, is either rubbed in with the tips of the fingers or cut in with two knives or a knife and fork. A short-cut method is to chop the shortening in with a large chopping knife, using a wooden bowl, of course, for the mixing.

The amount of liquid necessary for biscuits depends somewhat upon the amount of shortening used, and also upon whether you are going to drop the biscuit or pat it out or roll it. In the latter cases just enough liquid to make the mixture hold together should be used. Working in additional flour is likely to make the resulting product tough. Biscuits need a high temperature for baking—about 450 degrees Fahrenheit, if you have an oven regulator or a thermometer, or an oven in which you cannot put your hand comfortably even for a moment.

Whatever method you use for mixing, or whatever ready-to-use product you buy, you should ask yourself these questions when you eat the biscuit:

- Are they tender?
- Are they a good color?
- Is the flavor good?
- Just a note in regard to flavor. If you use a saltless shortening, remember to add a little extra salt. Be sure that you do not get a "baking powder" taste, which is caused by an over-use of this leavening agent.

Baking-Powder Biscuits.

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoons fat
2 to 1 cup milk or water
½ teaspoon salt

Mix and sift the dry ingredients and rub in the fat with the fingers or cut it in with a knife. Make a hole in the flour at the side of the bowl and add half a cupful of liquid. Add enough more liquid to make a soft dough. Roll on a metal surface or oilcloth until one inch thick. Cut into rounds and bake ten or twelve minutes in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit). This recipe makes ten medium-sized biscuits.

Fruit Rolls.

Biscuit dough
2 tablespoons softened butter
½ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup chopped raisins

Roll the dough one-quarter-inch thick, spread with the butter and sprinkle with the sugar, cinnamon and raisins. Roll like a jelly cake, cut in three-quarter-inch pieces, place close together in a greased pie tin, and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) fifteen minutes.

Apple Dumplings.

Shortcake dough
Apples
Sugar
Butter
Cinnamon

Pare, halve and core the apples. Divide the crust into five parts; roll each piece until large enough to cover the half apple. Place the apple on the crust and sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon. Fold the crust over, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees Fahrenheit) until the apples are soft. The dumplings may be steamed thirty to forty minutes in a closely covered steamer.

Tragedy of Long Ago Revealed by Accident

Geologists in a newly found cave in a limestone quarry at Bishop Middleham, Durham, England, have pieced together the astonishing story of a family which perished there 400 years before Christ. There were eight people in the family, and they all used the cave as their home. The men stood well over 6 feet high. The family's milk probably came from cattle and goats, the remains of which were found near the cave. There were badgers and wolves in profusion for the men to hunt with fine bone spears. The "kitchen" was at the back of the cave. Marks of smoke on the stone show where the fire had been. The family lived happily, but they died together in the cave which had been their home. The roof collapsed without warning, and for 2,300 years their bones lay under the stone. The cave was hidden until a modern quarryman fired a shot, which revealed the entrance to it.

a dream come true? Even as a child, I told my mother I meant to marry the girl in the miniature." His eyes held hers. He was bending nearer and nearer. The effect was hypnotic. With an effort Smif wrenched her gaze away. "The very first day I saw you it was all I could do to leave without telling you—"

Mercy.—She must think of Mercy.—She had promised to help her—and maybe Mercy was a prey to the feelings that were tearing at her now. To save herself, she fixed her attention on his mouth. That had been the feature she had held in doubt when first she saw him. Tender, sweet—why had she ever questioned it? And then it smiled and Mercy was forgotten.

"Oh, Stone," she cried softly, "I never knew I liked your mouth before—but I love it."

"I'm glad, I'm glad you do," he murmured, as it sought hers. And as their lips met passion leaped like an electric spark from the one to the other. If it had been unrecognized before, even Smif was aware of it now.

For a space time stood still.

"Darling," Smif said, "I can't—we mustn't. Don't you see? It wouldn't be honorable. Mercy paid me to help her to marry you. How can I go to her and tell her I'm going to marry you myself instead?"

"We'll refund her money," Stone said, lazily content to wait for what he now knew was his. "Even you couldn't force me to marry that piece of perfection. And you don't have to tell her anything. I'd love to do it. Hasn't she made me go in fear of captivity for years? I'll call her on the telephone and tell her we're going to be married. When are we going to be married, dearest? Tomorrow?"

"Oh, I don't know," Smif cried dis-umpantly, "when Eve warned me that something was wrong and that I'd better stay at home and comfort you—"

Just then two thoughts struck Smif so simultaneously that she could scarcely say which was first.

Stone must never know of her disappointment or her hurt at her brother's broken faith.

And was there any chance that she was wrong in her supposition that he was the buyer of Loveylea? The mere thought set her trembling. She must know and at once. She was in a panic at the possibility.

"There's only one thing needed now to make me quite content—" she began.

"And that?" Stone asked.

"That Bill-Lee should sell us Loveylea."

"By jove, haven't I told you? When that was my secret!" Stone exclaimed. "I wrote Bill-Lee that I wanted to give it to you for a wedding present—"

"Wasn't that rather taking things for granted?" Smif inquired mildly.

"No," Stone wagged his head solemnly. "I didn't tell him you were going to marry me. It might have been some other fellow. It was plain they'd be after you in swarms before long. Just cast your mind back to that fool Blanton. Anyway, I asked your brother to keep it a dead secret, because I wanted to surprise you."

Smif's cup of happiness was now running over. Bill-Lee wasn't a cad and a cheat and ungrateful. She looked back at her lover with shining eyes. He would never know what a wedding present he was giving her.

The dogs rose and stretched. Then seeing the tableau, stood on their hind legs and pawed jealously at their master and mistress.

PLANE TO FLY AS BIRD FLIES

Inventor Convinced He Has Solved Problem.

The dream airplane of every pioneer of flying since Leonardo da Vinci—a machine which can reproduce, in their utmost delicacy, all the motions of a bird—is awaiting, at Farnborough aerodrome, in England, a day in the near future when it will make its first demonstration flight before an audience of experts from all countries, states a writer in News of the World.

The secret of this wonderful new development in man's conquest of the air lies not in range of engine power, nor in any new aerodynamic principle, such as the rotor or windmill plane, but in the birdlike flexibility of the wings themselves.

The idea of a flexible wing—or to be more technical, the variable camber wing—is not new, but the difficulties of putting it into practice have hitherto proved insurmountable.

To vary the camber of an airplane's wing while in flight means to alter the direction of the air flow over the wing surface, resulting in an increase or diminution of the lifting power and retarding forces.

The effect of such manipulation of the shape and curve of the wing is to give the aircraft a wide range of speed—the ability to climb rapidly and descend slowly without the attendant disadvantages of slow speeds when proceeding in normal and level flight.

Birds have the power of adapting the shape and curve of their wings for rapid or slow flight, and it is the close study of their movements that has enabled Signor Ugo Antoni, the inventor, to achieve what had come to be regarded as a practical impossibility.

He experimented with airplane wings. To vary the surface of resistance to the air-flow of the wings—varying the camber—would achieve his purpose, and give to flyers a higher range of speed and safety than the aircraft of today could afford.

This would have to be done by a mechanism of some sort—but a mechanism that would have to be installed inside the wing itself, be so light as to be negligible in the construction of the wing, and sufficiently strong to pass the rigid stress-tests imposed by the authorities.

The mechanism would also have to be controlled by a lever in the pilot's cockpit.

Now Signor Antoni claims that he has evolved this mechanism. He has, he says, triumphed in his lifelong quest of the real bird airplane, and he has gained the serious interest of the leading aeronautical experts of the world.

The Household By Lydia Le Baron Walker

This Handsome Sofa Is One Suited to the Incoming Styles.

IT IS interesting to note that the vogue for ultra-modernistic furniture is passing. This does not mean that it is gone, nor that no more pieces will be made. Far from it, but that a new style of furniture is beginning to put in its appearance with no uncertain sound, and as this style advances, what we have termed modern no longer will be the latest thing. It will become a past vogue, and finally be old-fashioned. This is the fate of all pronounced styles. The modernistic has had a full-time run.

While the vogue termed "modern" features simplicity of line, it is an austere simplicity, in which straight lines and sharp angles are characteristics. In it, is a grand gesture of eliminating curves. But now that curves are again finding favor, as so notably instanced in individual costume, these graceful lines are coming into their own in furniture also. In art the curve is known as "the line of beauty." So it is with an assurance of a rightful place in decoration that the rounded lines return.

The incoming style in furniture harks back to the early Nineteenth century when directoire and empire fashions were in evidence. Also American modes were evolving from the Settler type to the early American, although this latter name is sometimes made inclusive. That was an era when fanciful notes were struck. Lyre tables were highly prized, and have lost none of their desirability during the interim. Swans stretched their long and gracefully curved necks to form supports for tables, arm decorations for sofas, and arms for chairs. Snakes, which by their supple length lend themselves admirably to decorative purposes are also present occasionally.

The legs of chairs, tables, etc., have both concave and convex curves. Arms of sofas and chairs are apt to round outward. Sometimes the sofa arms curve both ways, leaving a deep hollow just above the seat, in which tubular pillows are fitted.

The new vogue reverts to the classic. In this, as in every renaissance, the influence of the preceding fashion is felt. The two, however opposed, become somehow in a measure combined. The best in the last style is retained.

JAPAN'S HEIR

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Japan celebrated with characteristic jubilation the birth of an heir to the throne of the oldest dynasty of the world. The press reports that the processions were composed of persons from all ranks of social life marching all night long toward the royal palace. Besides the glitter of the procession, prayers were offered by millions of Buddhists in gratitude that a mikado was at last born in the imperial household. The present Mikado and his empress have four children, but they are all daughters. Now that a son has been born to them, the one hundred million Japanese point proudly to the fact that he is to be the one hundred and twenty-fifth mikado.

The birth of the future mikado, however, suggests several intensely interesting questions. What conditions of international relations will he face when he assumes the reign of power? How efficient will be his defensive warfare? Will his navy control the Pacific? How much additional territory will Japan possess if her population continues to increase at the present rate? She will need territory larger in area than any possible stretch of the imagination could be acquired. One of the most subtle questions might be: Will Japan by that time accept the ruler she now so proudly acclaims, or will she be a republic? Stranger things than these have happened in the rise and fall of nations.

Moreover, will there be a Japan when the new ruler reaches his majority? A silly question? Not quite so. It may be a very visionary bit of writing, but if fancy is given free play, could we say that it is altogether impossible for Russia and China to unite in arms against Japan. China hates Japan, and Russia possesses organized man power. Could Japan withstand such an attack? By common consent she could not. What then would become of Japan and her new mikado? Who knows?

Youth Wins 111 Contest Awards in Nine Months

Boston, Mass.—Contesting, it appears, is America's newest hobby.

Ralph Stueber of Boston is the publisher of a new magazine designed to keep contest addicts in close touch with contests throughout the land.

Volume 1, No. 1, of this novel publication reveals that one Massachusetts youth, entering every contest he heard of, won no less than 111 contest awards during a nine month period; that 40 families in New York earn a living by contests, and that several experts do nothing but promote contests.

Contests listed offer a variety of prizes ranging from electric refrigerators, Irish terriers, trips to the West Indies, and the like, to cash awards such as the $20 offered by Massachusetts Society of the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for the names of cat abandoners.

"Curse-Ridden" Tomb Is Visited by 100,000

Death of Writer Recalls "Tut" Superstition.

Washington.—The death in London of Arthur E. P. B. Weigall, writer and Egyptologist, who entered the tomb of King Tut-Ankh-Amen shortly after it was opened in 1923, has recalled the superstition in regard to "Tut-Ankh-Amen's curse," believed by the credulous to pursue those who had a part in uncovering the Pharaoh's last resting place. A communication to the National Geographic society from Dr. Maynard Owen Williams, who, as correspondent for the National Geographic Magazine, entered the tomb with Mr. Weigall, tells of the many persons who have gone into the Tut-Ankh-Amen burial chamber, hewn from the limestone cliffs near Luxor, Egypt.

Tourists View Chamber.

"The official opening of the inner chamber was on February 18, 1923," writes Doctor Williams. "Prior to that time, probably a dozen workers and supervisors had been in and out of the chamber containing the king's mummy, though none of them then knew that the shrines, sarcophagus and rich coffins had actually survived 33 centuries of grave robberies. On the 16th a score of Egyptian officials visited the tomb, and on the 17th a party of about ten Egyptologists entered. On the day of the official opening the queen of the Belgians was the honor guest, and went in with a group of about a dozen companions and officials. On the following day nine foreign correspondents were admitted, including Mr. Weigall and myself.

"Soon after this the tomb was temporarily closed; but after the art objects had been removed and protected, the tomb with its sarcophagus and mummy was opened for visits by the public. Probably 100,000 visitors in all have entered the tomb. Twelve thousand visited it during two months in 1926.

"The finding of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb became world news. Thousands of columns of newspaper space were devoted to it in every country. Never before in history had an archeological discovery so captured popular interest.

"Business men throughout the world heeded for the right to use these 3,300-year-old designs for gloves, sandals, jewelry and textiles. One American silk manufacturer established a scholarship for study of the designs.

Museum Holds Treasures.

"The incomparable treasures from Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb, whose salvage and preservation required years of arduous work, are now mere exhibits in the Egyptian museum at Cairo, where they occupy several galleries in the crowded show house founded by Mariette Pasha.

"Soon after the tomb was closed at the end of the 1923 season, Lord Carnarvon, who had backed a thankless task which led to a brilliant discovery, died as a result of an insect bite and pneumonia, and soon movie producers in Berlin began a film, 'Pharaoh's Revenge,' based on the theme of evil spirits. In regard to the suggestions of malevolent influences, Mr. Weigall, although a scientist, declared that he 'kept an open mind.' He devoted to the subject a fantastic chapter in his volume 'Tut-Ankh-Amen and Other Essays.'

"Such curses as were inscribed in Egyptian tombs were designed to scare away possible tomb robbers; but at Thebes the very men who dug the underground chambers for the dead and prepared the sarcophagi for the royal mummies sometimes tunneled under the site. Thus they were ready to break through the floor and the base of the sarcophagus and so withdraw the mummy and its jewels. The upper surfaces of the royal sepulcher would give no hint that the body had been taken away."

Hale News

A party of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Londo last Friday evening—a birthday surprise for Mr. Londo. A pleasant evening was spent in dancing and card games, and lunch was served. With the congratulations and best wishes of friends another milestone passed for "Herb," as he is known in the home community.

Miss Blanche Gordon of Hale and Fred Cooper of National City were married at the Baptist parsonage at Prescott by Rev. C. W. Harvey on Sunday, January 22. The young couple are making their home at National City for a time. We join with their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes. James Slosser, who was stricken two weeks ago with paralysis, passed away on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Mr. Slosser had been in failing health for several years but the last few months had been improving. Owing to a weak heart and lowered vitality, however, there had been little hope for his recovery. The funeral services were held in the M. E. church on Wednesday afternoon, with interment at Evergreen cemetery. Mr. Slosser had been a resident of Hale for nearly thirty years and had always taken an active part in community affairs, serving as township treasurer, and secretary of the local Gleaner organization, which office he held until his death. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved wife and family in their time of sorrow. Obituary next week.

Mrs. F. E. Edmonds of Bradford, Pa., was called to Hale by the critical condition of her father, James Slosser.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shellenbarger underwent a mastoid operation at the Mercy hospital, Bay City, on Tuesday. Mr. Shellenbarger reported the operation successful on his return. Three other children of the family have had their ears treated and lanced in Bay City during the past two weeks as the result of flu. One son, Ross, has been very ill with pneumonia. The family seems to be having more than its share of illness and we are glad to report all the sick ones improving.

James Mark of East Tawas, Worthy Grant Patron of the Michigan O. E. S., and Mrs. Mark were guests of Hale Chapter at their regular meeting last Thursday evening. Lunch and a social hour followed the business session.

The Sunshine Club spent a happy day as the guests of Mrs. John Kocher last week Wednesday. The guests, 14 in number, enjoyed a bounteous chicken dinner and an afternoon of contests and games. The club meets semi-monthly among its members.

Alabaster

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gauthier and daughters of Flint and William Simmons spent the week end at Mr. Simon's home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Erickson left Sunday for a visit in Lansing.

Alvina and Selma Schindler and John Huber of Bay City were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. J. Schindler on Sunday.

Mrs. Edna Doby of Detroit is visiting her father here.

Mrs. E. H. Lundquist was pleasantly surprised last Wednesday afternoon when a large group of friends helped her in the celebration of her birthday. Mrs. W. Brown received the house prize and Mrs. A. Benson received high score prize.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Behn are entertaining the former's cousin and uncle from Detroit.

Claude Benson is visiting in Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Adrian McLean of Oscoda were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lundquist last Wednesday.

Miss Dorothy Benson spent the week end visiting in East Tawas.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Wickert and children visited in Hale Sunday.

Mrs. Arthur Benson and Mrs. Edward Anderson have spent the past week in Ann Arbor.

Miss Elizabeth Martin of Tawas City spent the week end at the Martin home here.

Mrs. Julius Benson was agreeably surprised by a number of friends last Sunday, the occasion being her birthday anniversary.

There is to be a special board meeting at the Community church next Monday evening. Everyone is urged to be present.

Alabaster School Notes

Girls Lose, Boys Win at Harrisville After a very hard fought game the Alabaster girls lost to Harrisville last Friday evening on the Harrisville floor, 15 to 14. Of the two Harrisville forwards, Teeple and Basil, the former scored all of her team's points, while of the Alabaster forwards Mary Martin scored three points and Elna Furst 11. Alabaster players—H. Furst, i. c.; N. Rescoe, c.; L. Johnson, g.; R. Lundquist, g.; A. Christenson, g. Referee—Hazen "Kiki" Cuyler.

The Alabaster boys defeated the Harrisville boys by a close margin, 20 to 19. During the first half it did not seem as though our boys had trailed out after their long ride. They quickly crept up in the last half, but the game was most tense as the score was often a tie. Cuyler also refereed this game.

The boys basketball players are having their turn now. They were entertained Wednesday evening at a big chicken dinner.

Reno News

A terrific windstorm from the northwest raged here for over twenty-four hours. It began with a dash of rain Saturday night; then turned to snow with a sudden drop in temperature, accompanied by a powerful wind which raged with unabated fury all day Sunday and Sunday night. Monday the mercury played around zero all day, though the high wind had partly subsided. Tuesday the weather was somewhat milder, with skies clear and roads very icy. January goes out amid high winds and low temperatures.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

BUSTER BEAR IS PIGGISH

NOW, wouldn't you suppose that when there is plenty for everybody, everybody would be contented and happy? But often, altogether too often, it isn't so at all. The more folks have, the more they want. And there are other folks who, no matter how much they have, seem to think that others may be having something better, and instead of making the most of what they have, go about trying to get what their neighbors have.

It seemed, it really did, that there were enough of those queer three-sided little brown nuts under the beech trees for everybody to have all he could eat, and that that beech-nut picnic that beautiful October morning should be the merriest, happiest kind of a picnic. But it wasn't. No, sir, it wasn't. The reason was the piggishness of Buster Bear.

"These Nuts Are Mine, All Mine," He Roared.

When Buster arrived under the beech trees and saw so many others gathered there for the very same purpose that had brought him there, he right away let selfishness get the best of him. He was greedy, was Buster Bear. He was so greedy that he couldn't bear to see anyone else get a single one of those little brown sweet nuts, although he knew well enough that he couldn't eat all of them to save his life. Right away he began to growl, and you know his growl is deep and grumbly-rumbly and not at all pleasant to hear.

Those who were nearest him moved off a little farther, but went right on picking up those brown, sweet little nuts. Buster Bear growled more and his growl was deeper and more grumbly-rumbly. All the other little people looked at him anxiously, but kept right on hunting for those brown sweet little nuts. Then Buster Bear quite lost his temper.

"These nuts are mine, all mine," he roared.

Then he ran at Lightfoot the Deer.

WITTY KITTY

Lightfoot bounded away, but not far. He knew that Buster Bear could not catch him, and he had no mind to leave those nuts. Then Buster rushed at the Gobbler family and all the Gobblers scurried away, each in a different direction, but they didn't go far. Then Buster rushed this way and rushed that way wherever he saw anyone picking up nuts.

Mrs. Grouse merely darted behind a fallen tree and the minute Buster's back was turned she was scratching over leaves in search of nuts again. Sammy Jay and Redhead the Woodpecker merely flew up in a tree. Chatterer the Red Squirrel and Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and Unc' Billy and Mrs. Possum climbed the nearest trees. But they were back on the ground again as soon as Buster had turned away.

Peter Rabbit, who was hiding near to see all that went on, had to laugh. He couldn't help it. There was great big Buster Bear so piggish that he wanted all, yet getting hardly a taste because he was spending his time chasing his neighbors. It often is that way with piggish people. In trying to get more than their share they fail to get what they might have as well as not.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES

By JEAN NEWTON

ON "THE GOOD OLD DAYS"

"IT IS the Thursday Lecture; in one sense, a day of public shame; the day on which transgressors who have made themselves liable to the minor severities of the Puritan law, receive their punishment. At this moment the constable has bound an idle fellow to the whipping-post and is giving him his deserts with a cat-o'-nine-tails.

"Ever since sunrise Daniel Fairfield has been standing on the steps of the meeting-house with a halter about his neck, which he is condemned to wear visibly throughout his lifetime; Dorothy Tally is chained to a post at the corner of Prison-lane, with the hot sun blazing on her matronly face, and for no other offence than lifting her hand against her husband. Such are the profitable sights that serve the good people of the New England village to while away the earlier part of lecture-day.

That is a "bit" from one of Nathaniel Hawthorne's sketches of life in old New England. He goes on to describe an aged couple, John Proctor and his wife, Elizabeth, passing, in a company of other condemned prisoners, on their way to the execution place on Gallows Hill. "If there are two old people in the whole country," he says, "who seem to have led a true Christian life, it is this very pair. Yet it was sworn before the worshipful Chief Justice that they affrighted children in the nighttime." So to the gallows the good old couple go.

If you know anyone who casts a longing eye on romantic pictures of former times, who thinks we are unfortunate to be living in this day and age—anyone who decries modern times as giving less opportunity for happiness than "the good old days" of some period in the past—tell him or her to read up on the life of that period, not in dry history books, but in such pic-

Howe About:

He Quit Smoking Satisfaction Hidden Treasure

By ED HOWE

WHEN a boy I lived in Salt Lake City, and one of the points of interest was Lion House, where Brigham Young wrangled with twenty wives. Lion House is now a social center, where seventeen capable instructors teach literature, art, home economics, one wife at a time, etc. This social center is sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, as is also a very creditable monthly magazine called the Improvement Era. . . . In which I read that one day a man called on the good Doctor Kellogg of Battle Creek, when the following conversation took place: "I am sixty-five years old, and doctors tell me I have only a year to live. What do you think about it?" "What's your name?" "Charles S. Keene." "What do you do?" "I'm vice president of the American Tobacco company." "Smoke?" "Yes; ten or twelve cigars a day." "Well, quit that, and I'll promise you three or four years longer." (Mr. Keene quit, and lived twenty years; is now, in fact, a nuisance to his friends begging them to quit smoking.)

I met an angry, disheveled, man today, and asked: "What's the trouble?" He replied: "I'm not being treated right; I'm not satisfied." And I said: "I have never known anyone who was satisfied; you are no exception. Calm down; you are neglecting your work to express indignation, in addition to bothering others."—I do not visit graveyards, except to attend the funerals of special friends, but I should like to see there finally a tombstone bearing this inscription, as representing the man buried: "In Memory of a Man Who Is Satisfied"—I am almost satisfied at eighty; I hope to be entirely so within a few years. I've had my chance at the best there is in the best country in the world; in the most modern civilization. And I am not as tired of natural tasks as I am of the excited arguments of foolish men unreasonably dissatisfied.

As far back as I can remember, men have been looking for Captain Kidd's hidden treasure. So far they haven't found a penny.

Captain Kidd was a pirate, and worked so steadily at his trade it is believed he had no time left for wine, women and song, and therefore buried his treasure.

Lately the searchers for buried treasure have been encouraged: a pot of buried money was actually found in a Texas cotton field, put there by a kidnaper; so another boom in seeking treasure is on. Where did Samuel Insull, Ivar Kruger, bury their ill-gotten gains?

One pot of gold found in some hundreds of years of search (and that containing only a few hundred dollars) is not much encouragement for buried-treasure workers. Thieves at the end of their lives are nearly always poor; they have no treasure to bury. Only honest, capable and industrious men are able to maintain strong boxes.

Early Winter Molt

Pullets that go into winter quarters early and lay heavily often go into a winter molt and check production. It is the careful poultryman who can keep them going throughout the winter without pause. Early hatching has become common among the commercial poultrymen, and it is not uncommon now to see pullets in late summer in 50 per cent production, some hatched last December and January. These pullets lay heavily in the fall and early winter when prices are highest.—Ohio Farmer.

Laying Conditions

It is comparatively easy to determine laying conditions. The comb of a laying hen is bright red and enlarged. The eye is bright and gives the head an appearance of alertness. The vent is enlarged, soft, pliable, and free from yellow color. The pin bones are spread apart, and there is considerable depth between the pin bones and the rear of the keel bone. The abdominal region of a laying hen is wider than of a nonlaying hen.

Poultry Needs Sunshine

The best source of vitamin D is the ultra-violet rays of sunshine, if plenty of it is available. It is especially important that the sun strikes the heads and feet of the birds. To make the most of the winter sunshine the poultry house windows should be open on sunny days. There must be enough windows open so the birds can get into the sunshine without crowding. One open window in a poultry house does not provide enough light to supply the amount that is really needed.

Wheat as Feed

Wheat is regarded by many feed experts as the best staple grain for poultry and where egg production is the main object it is undoubtedly of first importance. There are two main classes of wheat, the hard wheats with high nitrogen content, and the soft, starchy grains, generally a third lower in nitrogen. It is claimed that a hard wheat with a gluten content of from 12 to 16 per cent is a better flesh former and egg producer than is a soft, starchy wheat.

POULTRY

VITAMIN G NEEDED IN POULTRY FEED

Green Leaves, Milk Products Get Eggs That Hatch.

Vitamin G, one of the more recently discovered vitamins, is of great importance in poultry rations, says A. T. Ringrose of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Experiments which are being conducted at the college show that the presence of this vitamin in the ration of the young chick reduces losses by death, and promotes growth; in the ration of the laying hen, it aids in the production of eggs that will hatch.

Mr. Ringrose says that in experiments with laying hens on rations low in vitamin G, few eggs hatch, or less than 10 per cent of the fertile eggs. Eggs from hens that are few enough vitamin G hatch 70 per cent or more.

Green, leafy alfalfa; milk and milk products are the most practical sources of the vitamin, he says. Dried skim milk and butter milk are of equal value, and dried whey, or milk-sugar feed is one and a half times richer in the vitamin than dried skim milk. However, he points out that alfalfa is only one-half as rich in vitamin G as is milk and that it is fibrous and slightly unpalatable, and for these reasons should not be used as the only vitamin G supplement.

For production of hatchable eggs, Mr. Ringrose says that 10 per cent of dried skim milk in the breeder mash will supply enough vitamin G. When alfalfa is added, the quantity of milk may be reduced.

The same proportion of dried skim milk in the feed mixture, he says, will supply the needed vitamin G for growing chicks.

Advise Count Chickens Before They Are Hatched

Contrary to the old maxim "Don't count your chickens before they hatch," Dr. Morley A. Jull, in charge of the United States Department of Agriculture poultry research, advises poultrymen to do that very thing, and do it intelligently. Poultry research and practical experience have determined the methods required to insure a high proportion of hatchable eggs and the hatching procedure that will get the best results from good eggs. By applying these methods it is possible to make a reasonably accurate estimate of results to be expected.

Doctor Jull lists the factors on which the poultryman should base his counting in advance of hatching. They are: (1) Take care in mating birds to assure good fertility; (2) feed the breeding stock on a well-balanced diet that favors production of hatchable eggs; (3) carefully select the eggs for hatching, rejecting small eggs, oversized eggs, and irregularly shaped eggs; (4) provide a reliable incubator, place the eggs in the trays correctly and turn them frequently. With such precautions hatching is not much of a gamble.

Bronchial Irritations Need Cresote

For many years our best doctors have prescribed cresote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creamulsion with cresote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creamulsion is powerful in the treatment of colds and coughs, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creamulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creamulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creamulsion on hand for instant use. (adv.)

American and British Motorized Trains

HERE are three types of the motorized trains that are fast coming into use. At the upper left is the Texas and Pacific two-car train running daily between Fort Worth and Texarkana, Texas. It is equipped with two twelve-cylinder motors burning gasoline. In the middle is Britain's first streamlined railroad car, run by the Great Western railway between Reading and Slough, with a single 130 horse power motor burning heavy oil. At the right is a photo-sketch of the Burlington Zephyr, the "last word."

CARRIER PIGEONS FAIL

The use of carrier pigeons has not been attended with any great degree of success by the members of the Royal Canadian Air force in forestry patrol. Birds were carried on airplanes with the hope that they would prove valuable in case of emergency. Several birds were released 500 miles from home, but a small number reached their objective point. They had encountered an electrical storm and were lost in the struggle. Those that did get through were very late. In another test one bird reached the home cote, but it had lost its message.

Man From the North

By TESS FULTON

© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate
WNU Service

POLLY read the letter and tossed it carelessly to her roommate. "Darling, here's a chance for one of your infernal practical jokes," she suggested, her cold eyes hiding in their darkness a faint twinkle. "That's from Allan Dyer. I met him last summer up North. He was good looking enough but a bit rusty in appearance—said he was camping on the lake and he looked it; and besides, he was poor. The man who interests me is the boy who can pay the waiter's check without looking as if he wondered how much it left him."

Carol smiled as she picked up the letter. "Your bright idea, icy one, is for me to carry on your correspondence with him; is that it?"

"He writes an interesting letter, and you can string him along; and when I go up there next year, I can have him to play around with."

"Polly, you're heartless!"

"Mebbe so, little one, but this is a heartless age."

Carol mused over the letter. It was chatty and interesting, and suddenly she decided to answer it. Polly informed her, immediately, that Allen had never seen her handwriting, so the hoax would work.

Carol wrote the reply, employing some of Polly's characteristic phrases, amused and pleased herself at the way her letter shaped itself.

A week later, Allan's reply came, and Carol learned something of his life. It seemed he was working in a lumber camp, and the letter told of his life there.

The letters began to interest her keenly, although she took care to keep the discovery from Polly who found the letters only mildly interesting and soon stopped reading them.

Slowly a personal note crept into the letters. Before she realized it, the same mood was upon her.

"Here's a nice situation!" Carol told herself one evening. "Writing Polly's letter to a chap who evidently is thinking of her tenderly, while I'm beginning to think of him the same way! I'll drop him!"

But she found it much easier to say than to do it.

Polly left for a two weeks' trip for her firm, and with her bright, somewhat cynical presence absent from the room, Carol found it easier to dream and muse over the man to whom she was writing.

Polly had been gone only a few days when Carol went to the door to learn from the maid that "A man from the North" would like to see her.

Carol was stunned. "But she isn't here, Kate!"

Kate grinned. "He said if Polly wasn't here, he liked to see any friend of hers."

Carol thought a moment. "Send him up, Kate," she said with decision, but her mind was fluttering.

Carol went to the window. A long, powerful-looking roadster was at the curb. "It can't be Allan," she told herself.

The door opened into their living room, and a man, brown of face, and almost filling the doorway, faced her.

"I'm sorry to learn that Polly is away, but glad that you are here." His gray, fine eyes were friendly. "You see, I'm right from the woods, hungry for a good time, and I hope you will run around with me a little—some plays, dances, etc."

Carol laughed inwardly as she thought of the joke on Polly.

They did play around—a gay, gorgeous week. He seemed to have plenty of money that he spent freely but wisely, and he certainly was good company.

"Oh, this is awful!" Carol moaned one night, as she tossed her evening dress aside. "I'm in love with him and he's in love with Polly! And when Polly gets here—Gosh! what a mix-up!"

She saw no solution, but one came the next evening. They were at a corner table in one of the delightful places he knew. He had been musing a bit.

"Carol, I was lonely up North at the camp. You see, my father owns the business, and I was up there winning back after a bad dose of pneumonia. The letters that came, so cheery, amusing, pulled me out of dark hours; I made up my mind that the girl who wrote them should play with me and be with me all the rest of my life. Now are you willing?"

Carol ceased to breathe. "But—my dear—how did you know I wrote the letters? I—really—"

A strong, steady hand lay upon her trembling one. "Through a friend I learned that Polly had gone on a business trip, but the letters came from your address just the same; and besides, the last of the letters sounded to me—well—as I know you now," he said gently.

"But Polly—" she began. "The point of it is—do you care a bit for me?" he said quietly. The somewhat dizzy world around her cleared. She was looking into the strong but tender face of the man she loved. She let her hand turn and clasp his. "Of course I do, Allan. I have since your first letter arrived."

School Notes

High School

The following pupils have been placed on the honor roll for last month: Phyllis Bigelow, Patricia Braddock, Ernestine Cecil, Vernon Davis, Isabelle Dease, Albertine Herman, Leonard Hosbach, Arlene Leslie, Arnold McLean, and Ida Mae Nelem.

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold its regular meeting in the high school auditorium on Thursday evening, February 8. An interesting program is being planned by the committee. Mrs. E. Dease and Mrs. A. E. Giddings. Everyone is urged to attend.

Two new classes have been organized for the second semester. Advanced arithmetic takes the place of advanced algebra and advanced civics supplements the economics of the first semester for the seniors.

Some of the seniors expect to begin work soon upon a play which will probably be presented sometime during March. This drama, "Moon Shy," is interpreted by ten characters, seven girls and three boys. The characters are as follows: John Brugger, Clifford Boomer, Louis Frank, Ernestine Cecil, Jean Myles, Ruth Cholger, Dorothy Davison, Mary Krumm, Annie Metcalf, and Evelyn Pott.

J. C. Wuerthner, representative of the Underwood Typewriter Company, serviced the typewriters Wednesday. Dr. Dourman E. Lichty of the University of Michigan will lecture over W. J. R. Sunday evening at six o'clock. His subject will be, "Prophylaxis for Childhood Diseases."

Seventh and Eighth Grades

The following pupils have been neither absent nor tardy during the first semester: In the eighth grade—Lucille DePotty and William Prescott; in the seventh grade—Charles Cecil, Ruth Clark, Emma McCormick and Eugene Wegner.

From the eighth grade, Lucille DePotty, Myrton Leslie and Emma Sawyer, and from the seventh grade, Betty Davis and Norma Jean Musolf have had an average of "B" or above for the first semester.

Fifth and Sixth Grades

Those who have not been tardy or absent during the entire first semester are: Leonard Brown, Margaret Davis, Ellen Malcolm, Marion Musolf, Nelson Thornton, Herbert Ziehl, James Brown, and Junior Featheringill.

Those who are on the semester honor roll are: Marion Musolf, Marjorie Musolf, Mary Sims, and Harold Wegner in the fifth grade; Dorothy Blust, Margaret Davis, Martha Herman, and Allan Miller in the sixth grade.

Third and Fourth Grades

The following pupils have been neither tardy nor absent during the first semester: Roy DePotty, Alton Hill, Janette Koepke, Howard Sholtz, and Marie Ulman.

The following pupils were on the honor roll for the first semester: Warren Hughes, Richard Prescott, Marian Clark, Betty Jane Ferguson, Ruth Giddings, Lyle Hughes, Betty Nelson, and Jack Smith.

Primary Room

On the honor roll for January are the following: Marion Bing, Dorothy Dease, Maurice Hayes, Donna Moore, Elsie Rollin, Gilbert Sievert, Gary Smith, Dorothy White, Gay Young, Maxine DePotty, Neil Libka, Willard Musolf, George Smith, Norma Lou Westcott, and Wayne White.

The following have been neither tardy nor absent during the first semester: Marion Bing, Maurice Hayes, Wayne Hughes, Rhea Ulman, Maxine DePotty, and George Smith.

The second grade has been working on an Eskimo scene for the sand table for language to summarize their study of Eskimo life. They have also made Eskimo booklets. They learned an Eskimo song in music class.

The first grade dramatized the stories, "The Boy and the Wolf" and "The Billy Goats Gruff" for language the past week. They also studied the poem, "The Rock-a-by Lady," by Field.

Neil Thornton is back at school after having been absent several days.

taxpayer's receipts for 1933. However, if the proposed weight tax reduction goes through it will be necessary to raise money by taxation to take care of Covert and township bonds, which will mean that taxes will be greatly increased on all property. This increase will be outside of the 15-mill limitation, since under the law the 15-mill amendment does not prohibit raising taxes in excess of the 15 mills to pay obligations made prior to 1933.

It must be admitted that right now the idea of weight tax reduction is popular. Any tax reduction is. As a matter of fact, no tax at all would be still more popular, but that does not mean that it is the thing that the people really want. Some arrangement should be made whereby the person who drives an old car a few miles a year may have a chance to do so without paying a high license fee, but in favoring a general reduction of the weight tax let us all beware lest we burden ourselves many times more than the relief we get, to say nothing of little or no road maintenance.

It is reported on good authority that the A.A.A. (an insurance organization) plans to submit to the voters this fall an amendment to reduce the gas tax to two cents. If this amendment goes through it will mean a return to property tax for roads or no maintenance at all. It will mean the cutting off of the funds that mean a lot to the welfare of many of our citizens today. It will mean voting down the funds that are contributed largely by the large cities to help maintain the roads in the poorer sections of the state.

The County Road Commission obtained a check from the Auditor-General for $11,000.00, covering the 1933 April payment of the weight tax. A promise was also made to send a check for an additional $5,700.00 to the commission as soon as the county treasurer's check for the balance of Isoco's state tax is received in Lansing. This money is to be used by the Road Commission in paying a part of the 1933 Covert bonds. This provision was made by the Horton Act, in replacing the property tax.
