TAWAS CITY WOMAN DIES AT DETROIT

Mrs. Nancy Colby Was A Resident Here For 60 Years

Mrs. Nancy Colby, aged Tawas City resident, died last Thursday at the home of her son, Hosea Funk, at Detroit. Mrs. Colby had resided in the city for sixty years.

Nancy Smith, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith, was born June 30, 1850, in New York. She came with her parents to Michigan, where they settled at Imlay City, Lapeer county. In 1872 she was united in marriage to Henry Funk and they came to Tawas City the following year. He preceded her in death in 1908. A number of years later she was married to P. O. Colby, who survives her.

There were three children, Hosea H. and Charles S. Funk of Detroit and Mrs. Ida L. Patterson, who died in 1928, seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The funeral services were held Saturday afternoon from the Tawas City Baptist church. Rev. Frank Metcalf officiated. Those who attended the funeral from Detroit were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Funk, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Funk, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Goss and Len J. Patterson.

Splendid Program Given at P.-T. A. Meet Thursday

The P.-T. A. meeting for the month of February was held at the high school rooms Thursday evening, February 8. In keeping with the month of February, the president, Mrs. A. A. Bigelow, called the meeting to order by the singing of patriotic songs.

During the business session Miss Worden explained the plan of free adult education as is being sponsored by the United States Government and announced the courses would be immediately available for those interested in this locality.

After the usual routine of business, the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the program committee, who presented the following:

Community singing; Piano Solo, "Fifth Nocturne"—Robert Fitzhugh; Talk on Founder's Day—Mrs. A. A. Bigelow; Piano Solo, Paderewski's Minuet—Miss Gulliford; Reading, Does Education Pay?—Mrs. Bing; "The Family Album" concluded the program. This feature proved interesting in that it perhaps brought back memories of bygone days in the lives of everyone present. The family album, it will be remembered, was the never-forgotten treasure to be shown guests during their visit. The album presented was a collection of pictures typical of every family album in that it reflected the highlights in the life of the family, the moments or incidents when hopes, ambitions, pride or effort had been realized. The characters shown were as follows: Little Sister—Mrs. J. R. Forsten; Little Brother—Roy DePotty; Twins—Miss Geraldine Gulliford, Miss Mary Lou Prescott; Sweet Girl Graduate—Mrs. George Leslie; Bride and Groom—Miss Margaret Worden, J. R. Forsten; Four Generations—Miss Frances Osborne, Mrs. Chas. Quick, Mrs. Will Leslie, Miss Thelma Brown; Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary—Eugene Bing; Mrs. Will Leslie; Pride—Mrs. Lu Bigelow; Family Group—Entire Group. Pictures were announced and interposed by Mrs. Dease, who gave well-chosen remarks concerning each one.

Award for attendance was won by the grammar room.

County Treasurer Receives Gas-Weight Tax Payment

County Treasurer W. H. Grant was in receipt Wednesday of $5,770.45 from the Auditor General's department. This is the balance of Iosco county's portion of the gas and weight tax up to July 1, 1933.

Accompanying the check was a letter from Auditor General John K. Stack, complimenting Iosco county on the prompt payment of taxes, in which he said, "It is certainly a pleasure to send this money along, notwithstanding the fact that we are in very bad shape financially, but in view of the splendid response from your county in taking care of your taxes, and especially your 1933 tax, we feel that we should go a little further with such counties who settle as you have."

WATERWORKS PLANS APPROVED BY STATE

Final Okeh of PWA Now Being Sought

The P.W.A. waterworks project for Tawas City has been approved by the State Board of Health and the State Inspection Bureau. G. H. Francis, of the Francis Engineering company of Saginaw, will leave immediately for Washington to personally present the plans to the Public Works Administration for final approval.

The project will comprise the construction of a complete city waterworks system. It is planned to sink wells to supply the water. These will be sunk at points to be determined by test drillings. The plans also call for a pumping station and the installation of mains and fire hydrants.

If approved by the Public Works Administration, work on the project will begin May 1, and the work will last four months. It is hoped to have the system in operation by the last of August.

DISCUSSIONS

I read with interest the articles in last week's paper by Henry Anschuetz and "J. E. C." and am very much on the same side of the question that these men are.

It seems to me that the big question now is relief and not more taxation upon those who are least able to pay. Some such law when we are back on our feet and people can get money to pay with might be a good thing. It does not seem sensible to start such a thing now when everybody is down and out. Anyway, the man over 70 is no worse off than those under that age where the circumstances correspond.

I do not quite agree with "J. E. C." about amending this law and making this $2.00 tax an honor tax where everyone of the age would be taxed that amount annually if they did not own any real estate. "J. E. C." states that such a law would even things up. I believe he overlooks the fact that the renter is a property taxpayer just as much as the property owner. The only difference is that the tax is indirect, while the property owner pays it directly. This is illustrated particularly in the big cities where there are millions in delinquent taxes and the owners losing their property because the renters cannot pay their rent. If there should be no property tax, rent would be mighty cheap—probably enough to take care of repairs and upkeep.

Even with the above exception, I agree with "J. E. C." that his would be a better law than the present head tax law—if he means that the money is to go for schools only. It would have another advantage—that of encouraging the owning of property. J. S.

NO CHANGE MADE IN CWA PROGRAM

In an interview yesterday, S. M. Vaughn, deputy civil works administrator, said, "We are continuing the C.W.A. program the same as before February 15 until further notice. Congress has made a new appropriation exclusively for Civil Works. After the details are ironed out, there will probably be some adjustments made relative to quotas, hours and projects, and it is understood that the program will gradually taper off during the next ten weeks."

"It is expected that there will be no holdup for the present payrolls," Mr. Vaughn said. "However, there has been no release of funds at this time for the purchase of materials after February 15. Further orders may change this condition."

George Bouchard

George Bouchard, 27 years old, died in Receiving Hospital, Detroit, Wednesday night, February 7, at 11 o'clock from injuries suffered when his automobile was overturned in a collision with another car.

Funeral services were held Monday morning at the St. Joseph church, East Tawas. Rev. E. A. Kirchhoff officiated. Interment was made in the St. Joseph cemetery.

George Bouchard was born in Tawas City on July 14, 1907. For six years previous to his death he had been employed as a foreman at the Turnstead Manufacturing company in Detroit.

Besides his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. N. Bouchard of Tawas, six sisters, Miss Louise Bouchard of East Tawas and Mrs. George Fisher of Tawas township; six brothers, Leonard of Tawas township, Victor of Alabaster, Leo of Bay City, Fred of Flint, Lewis of Bay City, and Noe at home; his fiancée, Miss Jeanne Genest, of Detroit; also a host of other relatives and friends.

I cannot say, and I will not say that he is dead—he is just away. With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,

As he wandered into an unknown land, And left us dreaming how very fair It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you—Oh, you, how the mourner yearn For the old time step and the glad return;

Think of him faring on as dear In the love of there as the love of here.

Mild and gentle as he was brave—When the sweetest love of his life he gave To simple things. Where the violets grew Pure as the eyes they were likened to.

The touches of his hands have strayed As reverently as his lips have prayed, Where the little brown thrush that harshly chirped Was dear to his heart as the mocking-bird.

And he pitied as much as a man in pain A writhing honey-bee, wet with rain. Think of him still as the same, I say. He is not dead—he is just away!

IOSCO SCHOOL TEACHERS MEET AT EAST TAWAS

Annual Institute Held on Tuesday of This Week Well Attended

The county teachers' institute held at the Community Building, East Tawas, on Tuesday was well attended in spite of cold weather. About 75 teachers, representing schools in all parts of the county, were present. There were also a few school board members and visitors in the crowd.

The principle speakers of the day were Miss Myrtle Cowgill, County Nurse; Dr. A. J. Phillips, Director of Research for the Michigan Education Association; Orin W. Kaye, Superintendent of Schools, Paw Paw; Dr. Johnston, Director of Consolidated Health Department, No. 2 and Mr. Anderson, Sanitary Inspector.

Miss Cowgill spoke before the morning session on the subject of Our County Health Plans. In her talk she outlined particularly the work of the State Tuberculosis Association in its recent examinations and X-raying of school children. She stated that it was impossible to go so far with this work as was originally wished due to lack of funds. Cooperation with local doctors on the part of organizations such as the women's clubs, American Legion, etc., would make further work possible.

Dr. A. J. Phillips addressed both the morning and afternoon meetings, as did also Orin W. Kaye. The subject of the first of Dr. Phillips' talks was "The Legislative and Professional Program of the Michigan Education Association." In this speech he stated the aims and work of the Association. His address before the afternoon assembly was on the subject of "Reading Difficulties or Disabilities." He dealt especially with the problem of left-handedness in children as it affects their ability to learn—a subject he was well fitted to pursue, as he has made extensive research in the field.

Orin W. Kaye's speech at the morning session was "Headline Hunting for News and Views." In this very interesting talk he pointed out the dangers attendant upon the present day tendency among Americans to "think in circles of confusion," basing their conclusion on propaganda disseminated by prejudiced news writers rather than on sober fact.

Mr. Kaye's address of the afternoon, "America Looks at the Future," dealt with some of the causes of, and possible remedies for, the present depression, a question of great interest.

Dr. Johnston's talk, "Our Health Unit Plans," dealt mainly with the work of the Tuberculosis Association. He explained briefly the use of the tests for T.B. and the significance of the reactions.

In Mr. Anderson's address, "School Sanitation," he stressed the importance of cleanliness in school buildings and grounds as an element of efficient child training.

Both the sessions of the institute were enlivened by musical programs presented by the East Tawas School Band, and the music departments of the Tawas City, Whittemore, St. Joseph and Oscoda high schools, as well as group singing led by Superintendent Swanson of the East Tawas public school.

Joe Brown Plays Gob Role

In His Latest Comedy Hit

Joe E. Brown heads a cast of 1,000 gobs in his latest comedy, "Son of a Sailor," a First National picture which comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, February 20-21-22. The gobs are sailors attached to the U. S. S. Saratoga, an airplane carrier of the Pacific fleet, on which a large portion of the picture was shot. In addition to the regular members of Uncle Sam's naval forces, a score of motion picture gobs were also used.

The star's supporting cast for "Son of a Sailor" is one of the finest he has ever had. In important roles, are such screen notables as Johnny Mack Brown, Thelma Todd, Jean Muir—the new First National "discovery" who has been the cause of great enthusiasm and high expectations in Hollywood; Frank McHugh, Sheila Terry, Kenneth Thomson, George Blackwood and Myrna Kennedy.

A Gay and Sparkling Romance at the Family

Sophisticated comedy at its best is presented in "By Candlelight," Universal's gay tale of Vienna and Monte Carlo, coming Sunday and Monday, February 18-19, to the Family Theatre, East Tawas. This sparkling screenplay features Elissa Landi, Paul Lukas, Nip Pappas, and Esther Ralston in leading roles, and tells of the complications which ensue when a maid and a butler, servants of the nobility, pretend to each other that they themselves are of royal blood. The philandering habits of Count Von Rommer, employer of the butler, bring about a series of ludicrous situations which keep the servant in continual hot water, though this very fact serves to make matters easier for the trifling master.

Much of the action of the picture takes place in the Prince's luxurious apartments in Vienna and Monte Carlo, and there are scenes at the famous gambling casino of the latter city, where jealous husbands increase the intensity of decidedly awkward situations.

Washington at Valley Forge

HERE is no finer example in American history of faith and pluck than that which was made at Valley Forge by the Continental army under its commander in chief, George Washington, in the winter of 1777-1778.

It is doubtful whether the sacrifice of the Continental army has ever been adequately realized, Arthur Weller writes in the National Republic Magazine. Half-starved, ill-clad, poorly sheltered, and in great peril, not only from the pangs of hunger and cold, but also from enemy attacks, they huddled about their campfires while the British under Lord Howe, at the "rebel" capital of Philadelphia, celebrated the taking of it with dances and other gala events.

Tracked March of Troops by Bloodstains of Feet on Ground.

In Marshall's Washington we find this: "At no period of the war had the American army been reduced to a situation of greater peril than during the winter at Valley Forge. More than once they were absolutely without food." What hardships were undergone can be deduced from the fact that only 5,000 out of the 17,000 who encamped there in December for that winter were fit for active duty. Clothing, no less than food, was scarce. Men wore each other's uniforms in order that the naked could be clad and take their turn at active duties.

One account tells of Washington, one cold morning, meeting his sentinel as the commander left headquarters, the Potts house. The sentinel was making vigorous movements with his hands and legs in order to keep warm. Noting this, Washington asked him if he had had his breakfast. Upon receiving a negative reply, Washington hurried the sentinel inside the house, and while he was being served a breakfast by Mrs. Washington, George Washington, with the sentinel's gun, stood guard outside his own house until the soldier's return.

Illustrative also of the conditions in the camp at beautiful, yet tragic, Valley Forge, so close to Philadelphia, so near the British, is the account of Washington's visit to a detachment of his own men. He had been keeping his eyes on the ground, apparently noting something interesting there on the snowy slopes. Upon drawing near to the chief officer of the detachment, Washington quietly returned the salute, then abruptly asked:

"How comes it, sir, that I have tracked the march of your troops by the bloodstains of their feet upon the frozen ground? Were there no shoes in the commissary's stores?"

To this the officer replied that his detachment was one of the last to receive shoes, also that the supply shortly after his detachment was reached had been exhausted.

Washington listened in silence, but his deep sighs showed with what emotion he heard this report. Turning to

GEORGE WASHINGTON WAS A DOCTOR

NOT well known, but authentic, is the fact that George Washington was really a physician. His knowledge of medicine prepared him to treat the illnesses of slaves on his own plantation. During his final illness, before other doctors were called in, he directed his own treatment, says a writer in Hygeia, the Health Magazine. As was customary at the time, he ordered himself bled. Shortly before he died, his breathing became easier and he withdrew his hand from a friend's and felt his own pulse. Washington thus evidently realized that the end had come and gave up hope; for immediately a great change came over his countenance and his hand fell lifeless to his side.

his men he said, his voice trembling, "Poor fellows!" Then he gave rein to his charger and rode rapidly away.

Valley Forge is more than a beautiful state park today. It is symbolic of something more than forced privations. It is a shrine that instills in all true Americans a deeper appreciation of the manhood and the sacrifice of those who were quartered there during the darkest hour of the Revolution. It is symbolic of a never-dying devotion to a cause and to a great commander that kept hope alive.

Tomb of WASHINGTON

THE tomb of George Washington at beautiful Mount Vernon is a national shrine. It is more, even, than that. It is a shrine of the whole world. Ships from every country in the world, when they sail up the Potomac past the tomb, dip their flags and toll their bells solemnly. And many of the biggest men on earth, kings, princes, Presidents, warriors, statesmen, make pilgrimages to this shrine of all humanity and lay so many wreaths at the tomb of Washington that often the barred iron doors of it are hidden under them.

Inaugural Ride Precedent Originated by Washington

IT WAS George Washington himself who set the courteous precedent whereby the retiring President rides with the incoming one to his inauguration, says a writer in the Saturday Evening Post.

Since 1797 this precedent has been broken only by the Adamses, both great, but cantankerous.

"The President of the United States comes in through the iron gates and goes out by the weeping willows," said Dolly Madison.

Since the fair Dolly's time, the side entrance by the willow trees has been closed. But only the route is altered. The sentiment remains.

Right Plates or Dishes for Soup

Fashion's Decrees Will Be Observed by Wise Hostess.

With the return to style of soup plates it is important for the homemaker to be acquainted with the different kinds of soups best suited to being served in them, and in bouillon cups, also called soup cups. The very name, bouillon, indicates the kind of soup originally intended to be served in these cups. The word is French for a clear soup or a beef broth. Fashion decreed for some time that all varieties of soup should be served in these bouillon cups, but now there is a return to the more proper method, of suiting the soup to the dishes.

The chief distinction in suitability of soups to serve in cups or in plates is their density. Clear soups, even though they may not be strained as is bouillon or consommé, but have some solid pieces of ingredients in them, are the sort to be served in cups. Cream soups and heavy soups such as chowders, oyster and other stew soups, etc., should be served in soup plates. When soup is in cups, there is the inference that they may be sipped as well as taken with spoons. Heavy soups cannot be so sipped, and there should be no hint in the way it is served that such an inconsistency is intended.

Serving thin soup in plates is not a faux pas. The first return of style in serving such soup in plates was when glass soup plates appeared. Clear soup showed off the beauty of the glass most advantageously, and was served in it. Therefore the young homemaker need not have both cups and soup plates, but may, with propriety, use soup plates for all soups. The same cannot be said any longer of bouillon cups.

Clear soups must be of sufficient strength to make the watery liquid full flavored. Meat is the recognized essence to be imparted. Chicken, lamb, and beef broth are delicate and delicious when properly made. The fresh meat, of whichever kind, is covered with water brought to a boil and then allowed to simmer until the water has become rich in flavor from the meat juices. Salt and pepper are the condiments to use. If an onion is cooked in the water, no particles should remain in the soup when served. Also all fat should be skimmed off.

Consommé can be made from a combination of meats such as chicken and a ham bone, knuckle of veal and beef soup meat, etc. With the meat are boiled and simmered vegetables, such as celery, carrots, turnip; and the condiments of salt and pepper may be augmented with a very little mace and cloves, one blade of mace or one-eighth teaspoonful and four to six cloves are sufficient for four pounds of the combined meats and four quarts of cold water. Consommé is strained and may be clarified by straining through a cloth.

Harrison Fisher First in Portraying Beauty

The artistry of a French peasant maid who concealed her scantiness of hair with some ribbon was the odd inspiration that caused Harrison Fisher to draw the first of his long series of magazine covers idealizing the beauty of young feminine America. He was known as the "father of a thousand pretty girls," but he never married.

Rearred in Brooklyn, schooled at the Mark Hopkins institute in San Francisco, widely traveled in England and on the continent, Fisher knew the girl of the New York drawing room and of the western plains. He was born during the Garfield-Arthur period; he saw the fashionable world in coaches behind teams and in the side saddle; on bicycles, and in linen dusters, goggles and flowing motor veils and then in limousines. He felt the wild pulsation of the Spanish war, and lived through the World war well into an exciting period of readjustment. He knew Victorian England, and the England of Edward and George.

Fisher portrayed rather than interpreted. Thousands of drawings and illustrations that flowed from the point of his pen have been, for an interesting generation, far closer to the American home than the famed treasures hanging in museums abroad.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Mind Works Hard in Split Second

Right Perspective May Be Developed in Face of Death.

Four employees of a large building in New York recently dropped in a defective elevator from the fourteenth floor to the basement. They were fortunate enough to come through alive.

That was an experience worth learning something about. So the newspapers sent reporters to ask these people how it felt to take such a drop, to know you were dropping, and not be able to do anything but wait for the inevitable crash and probable mutilation or death.

"The whole thing seemed to take only a split second," said one of the survivors. "And," he added confidentially, "it was funny, but a lot of things seemed to shoot through my mind!"

We can imagine what those things were that shot through this man's mind in just a split second of time. Perhaps he had left home that morning without kissing his wife good-by. He might have been harsh with his boy. Or perhaps it was the word of appreciation that was well earned but which a perverse impulse prevented his giving that ran through his mind in that split second.

There can be no doubt that his experience in the elevator sent that man home a better husband and father—for a while, anyway. It raised him for a moment, a split moment to be sure, out of the treadmill of daily routine which shuts off our view from all but the road we are trying to "cover." It gave him for that split second perspective and a sense of values, the realization that what counts most in life is what is between us and those we love, and that the most precious moments are those in which we give something of ourselves to their happiness.

Lucky the person who could have that "split second" of revelation—and live to act on it.

Whose Fault?

When a Child Won't Study

"Kept after school!" And it isn't the child's fault, or the teacher's. His mother is to blame. How can a boy get his lessons when his senses are dulled day after day by dosing with sickening purgatives? When a child's bowels are stagnant they need help, of course. But not some drastic drug to upset the stomach, perhaps weaken the entire system; or form the laxative habit. NRA Parents are urged to use just the right, pure California Syrup of Figs. Be sure bottle says "California".

Here's a boy who gets good marks, has time and energy for play. He is never ill, hardly ever has so much as a cold. When he does show any symptoms of being sluggish, his mother knows just what to do. She gives him a little California Syrup of Figs—and that is all! It's a natural, fruity laxative that is agreeable to take, and its gentle laxative action comes from senna. ## No More Spotted, Streaked Clothes —since they started using Oxydol!

READ MRS. WILEY'S LETTER

Mrs. Helen Wiley, Camden, S. C.

"When my daughter said she thought she would give that new Oxydol a try, I prophesied a line full of spotted and streaked clothes. The directions for using it sounded too good to be true. But I had to change my mind! The work was so light and the clothes so white that we decided Oxydol was our soap for good!"

THE amazing new discovery of the world's most famous soap experts, the makers of Ivory—this new and improved OXYDOL does these things no other soap can do or has ever done: (1) Gets clothes clean in 15 minutes. Without boiling, without back-breaking rubbing. Hence—cuts washing time 25% to 40% in tub or machine, saving hours of labor. (2) Gets clothes 4 to 5 shades WHITER, by scientific Tintometer test, than any other soaps. Whiter in ONE washing than ANY other soap can get them in TWO to FOUR washings!

(3) Yet, due to the special mild protective elements it contains, it neither fades nor injures color or fabric. Even cotton prints and children's dainty frocks are safe. And—it's so kind to hands that you're amazed at its power to clean clothes!

Thick 3-inch Suds in Any Water

OXYDOL is specially fitted to water conditions in each district where it's sold. The OXYDOL you get here already contains just the right amount of water-softener to fit the water you use. You can see the results in the suds. OXYDOL multiplies 500 TIMES in suds! Makes rich 3-inch suds in any water, hard or soft! And OXYDOL is economical. By actual test, a regular 25c package will do the work of 8 to 10 cakes of bar soap or 2 to 3 times as much flakes!

SPLENDID PROGRAM

The regular meeting of the Hale P.-T. A. was held at the M. E. church on Tuesday evening, February 6, with a record attendance.

During the short business session Mrs. J. K. Osgerby of East Tawas presented the C. W. A. plan of adult instruction classes being organized throughout the county.

Entertainment for the evening was furnished by Mrs. Osgerby and members of the County Normal class, who presented a delightful program of music, readings, and two one-act plays—all rendered in a most pleasing manner, reflecting much credit on both performers and instructor.

After the program refreshments were served by the hospitality committee, and all departed for their homes feeling that they had spent a most enjoyable evening.

The P.-T. A. wishes to express its appreciation and extend best wishes to Mrs. Osgerby and her students.

Miss Luella Follette has gone to Detroit for an extended visit.

Sherman Peters and Miss May Getchell of South Branch were married on Saturday of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Townsend. Rev. Byler of South Branch was the officiating clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Peters will make their home at Bay City.

All the teachers of the Plainfield township schools and several P.-T. A. members attended the teachers' institute at East Tawas on Tuesday.

LIDA LARRIMORE
Author of Our New Serial
"Mulberry Square"

The charm, delicacy and spontaneity of "Tarpaper Palace" won for Lida Larrimore the warm admiration of a host of enthusiastic readers, and brought to her the almost universal acclaim of the critics. In "The Wagon and the Star" Miss Larrimore wrote another love story that proved even more popular than its predecessor, a story about the sort of pleasant people all of us would like to know. The New York Times, always critical, referred to it as: "A book that satisfies that tender mood that wants lightness and youth and beauty; that wants to be stirred by the heartaches of love and its charm."

Then came "The Silver Flute," another charming romance with quaint and lovable characters, that was hailed as the best this talented writer had produced.

And now it is "Mulberry Square," undoubtedly her best up to this time. A romance that is intensely human, and a human story that is a romance. A story that satisfies the tender mood that wants lightness and youth and beauty, that wants to be stirred by the heartaches of love and its charm.

Fiction is not the only field in which Lida Larrimore has turned her talent to good advantage. She has twice written prize winning plays, and also has had several musical compositions published.

"Mulberry Square" will appear serially in these columns, and every reader will enjoy every chapter.

Howe About:

War and Debt
Temperance Plea
Farming Situation

© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

By ED HOWE

THE people never had any sense; I haven't much hope for the future, either as to myself or others. Once they kept a war going on thirty years. . . . You may say we have more sense than that now. I am not so sure of it. Our last war was conducted on so magnificent a scale that the world became bankrupt in four years, and we had to quit; whereas it is related Frederick the Great paid for his wars as he went along. When he quit, he didn't owe a penny, and had no pensioners to move on his capital, and threaten to take it. Boys coming on soon supplied Frederick with more farmers; food was produced again in a year. . . . But a war debt constantly increasing and drawing interest, will ruin anybody.

I have noted that many people who annoy me, occasionally turn out to have a good deal of sense. One man sent me pamphlets daily for weeks, but finally the pamphlets were made into a book called "Toward Liquor Control." I have read the book. It was written by a number of rather notable men employed by the Rockefeller foundation to look thoroughly into the problem of liquor control, and make a report about it.

The book is one of the best written, most sensible and important I have ever read. It includes a review of our general American shiftlessness in public affairs, and which has finally almost bankrupted us morally as well as financially. I recommend the book to everyone who believes a little in common sense and decency, and in preserving the little civilization we have managed to achieve.

The book is a plea for temperance not only as to intoxicating liquors, but in everything else. We are very intemperate in our eating, in sex matters; in all phases of public affairs. In education, religion we must become ashamed of our intemperance, or we shall be humiliated before the world more than we have been lately.

Not less than 88 per cent of our industrial workers are hampered by improper diet; of all money spent by their families on food, 78 per cent is mispent, either on improper or too costly or otherwise uneconomic dietaries. This disgraceful percentage holds in everything else we do.

Americans became so rich we reached the Coal Oil Johnny stage in extravagance and shiftlessness, and we must do better, as Coal Oil Johnny did in the poor house.

Although he said a poor-house diet would kill him, after living so long on terrapin and turkey, it actually resulted in better health; actually assisted in restoring him to sanity and industry.

When I was a boy, and my father farmed and preached the old gospel, we occasionally had a horror. Once a farmer drove into Pole creek after a rain, and was drowned. His horses drowned with him.

It was terrible, but we didn't have excitement often. Once a man had nose-bleed for days, and constantly grew weaker, as nothing could be done to stop it. We all went over to look at him; everyone was excited. Once a man was bitten on the thumb by a rattlesnake. He had cut down a hickory tree, to get the nuts, and the accident happened while he was picking them up. The man put his thumb in his mouth, and sucked the poison out! We talked about that for days. Another time a farmer came home from town drunk, and everybody ran over to his house to suggest a remedy. One woman suggested that he drink a pan of milk. She had lived in a town in Indiana, where we all came from, and knew about such things; and the man got well.

The Civil war was going on then, and an occasional soldier came home on furlough with tall tales to tell, but we had no such terrors as I hear of every morning and evening now, when I get the papers. Somewhere the other day the members of a family were eating supper, when an airplane fell on their house. The house and seven persons were burned up, with the neighbors looking on; all they could do was to save the house next door.

In my day, farmers were at least steady men; now they are rioting, a thing I never heard of even town men doing until I was a man grown.

We were poor people, but always had plenty. Now farmers say they are starving. Millions of them actually have starved in Russia, because town men take what the farmers raise. In my boyhood we hardly ever saw a town man; specially they didn't come out carrying guns, and tell us what part of our corn we could keep, and what part they wanted to support the government's N. A. B. D., which means a new and better deal.

I have long observed that when I am out of condition, I can get prompt results by eating less; by missing a meal or two, and behaving better in other respects. . . . There are a few things the bulk of the people have never learned. One is that they must be their own doctors, their own philosophers—their own relief bureau. A great scientist says that nothing in the study of the stars, of the soul, of the old Greeks, has interested him as has the study of his own body; of regulating it, subduing it, getting blessings instead of curses from it.

PETER GOES HOME WITH A SAD HEART

PETER RABBIT held his breath. He didn't know that he was holding it, but he was. Perhaps you have done that same thing when you were very much excited. Most everybody does. Would Nimbleheels succeed in getting away from Hooty the Owl? Peter couldn't be sure, but it seemed that Hooty had barely missed the last time he struck. And Peter was sure that the jumps of Nimbleheels were growing shorter. The wonderful little jumper was growing tired. Peter felt sure of it. How could it be otherwise?

How Peter did wish that he hadn't asked Nimbleheels to show him how he could jump.

"It's all my fault," thought Peter. "If Hooty does catch Nimbleheels I shall blame myself as long as I live. Yes, I will. It is my fault, it is all my fault. They are getting nearer the Brier Patch, but I'm afraid they won't get there in time. Oh dear! Oh dear!"

For the time being Peter forgot that he himself was anything but safe sitting out there on the Green Meadows in the moonlight. His whole thought was for little Nimbleheels who was so bravely jumping for his life.

Every once in a while the sharp snap of Hooty's bill would reach Peter and send little shivers up and down his back. He had heard the snap of that bill before more than once, and never without shivering.

Presently a dark cloud passed over the moon just as Hooty made an unusually quick turn and struck more fiercely than ever at poor little Nimbleheels. A Black Shadow hid them for a minute or two, and though Peter strained his eyes he couldn't see what was happening. When Black Shadow had passed on and the Green Meadows were once more flooded with moonlight Peter stared eagerly at the spot where he had last seen Nimbleheels and Hooty. Neither was to be seen.

Hastily Peter looked this way and that way. Disappearing toward the Green Forest he saw what looked like a floating shadow. It wasn't a shadow. Peter had seen it too often to be fooled even for a minute. It was Hooty the Owl. Peter's heart sank.

"Hooty is going home to the Green Forest, so he must have caught Nimbleheels that last time," thought Peter sadly. "He caught little Nimbleheels

A Little Garden

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SHE has a little garden Upon her window sill. She waters it at evening When all the world is still; A narrow box of beauty That holds the humblest blooms, And yet it feeds a spirit That lives in little rooms.

There is no sweeping vista To bless her city eyes. The walls are thick around her. They shut away the skies. But souls that crave the woodlands Must have a bit of green, And so above her garden, The neighbors see her lean.

She has a little garden As lovely to her sight, As are the flowering acres That grow for your delight; And in the dewy twilight; When pale stars shine above, I know God gives her garden The blessing of his love!

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

YOU TELL US, PROFESSOR!

"OUR histories seem to be little more than the elaborately recorded misbehavior of males."

It's the men who make the trouble in the world; the women contribute the peace and order!

That was the pronouncement of Professor Wheeler of Harvard recently before the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Oh, yes, Professor Wheeler is himself of the masculine gender! He is just broad-minded and modest, when in these words he attributes the world's troubles entirely to men:

"Throughout the ages the aggressiveness, curiosity, unstable intelligence, contentiousness and other anti-social tendencies which the male had inherited from his ancestors have kept society in a constant turmoil."

But before we succumb entirely to the professor's blandishments, let him finish:

"But without him there would be no progress! If this were a woman's world, peace and order would reign, but society would make no advances! It is the restless, dominance impulses of the male that furnish the necessary stimulus to progress. Female societies are harmonious, but incapable of further development. They remain stationary!"

When a man admits the superiority of the "weaker sex" in any way, one might know there is a catch to it somewhere!

"Peace and order but no progress"—indeed! Well, professor, we don't mind that at all. In fact we're quite willing to stand by your estimate of the effect of the two sexes on the world. We're perfectly willing to accept peace and order for our part. Only we can't quite figure out what you mean by "progress" and "advancement." How can there be progress without order? The history of the world and its strife and turmoil and man-made wars tells the story. It was in the peaceful intervals that the progress was made.

Very good, professor—you tell about the influence of women. We're perfectly willing to have it your way!

Romans First to Use Silver as Currency

Republic silver coinage was first coined in Rome about 268 B. C. Soon after the end of the Pyrrhic war, the obverse showed a helmeted head, symbolizing Roma, the reverse the Dioscuri, or heavenly twins, charging on horseback to right. The values were indicated by "X" for the denarius, "V" for the quinarius and "IIS" for the sestertius. These marks of value were usually behind the head of Roma.

The "X" on the denarius is found on all coins for many years after 217

B. C. The mark "XVI" occurs on a small group struck about 150-145 B. C. Later the "X" with a bar across appears. After about 110 B. C., marks of value are usually absent from silver.

There is no doubt that the earliest silver coins of Rome are those showing the Dioscuri, followed by others showing Diana driving a biga or chariot. These appeared about 217 B. C., and later the money designers took up the spirit of the changing custom and used the reverse to depict historical events. Through these pictured events it is possible to determine the date of issue of the coin.

Make this lip test

LOOK at them . . . and your cheeks, too, without make-up. Do they possess the natural glow of health, which comes from a sufficiency of rich, red blood? If they do, make-up is simple. . . . If they don't read on . . . you may find one of the reasons why your skin is not clear and rosy.

You cannot have red lips, rosy cheeks, energy and cheerfulness if your blood is in a run-down condition. Lack of hemo-glo-bin, the red coloring of the blood, may also indicate a weakened condition of the body . . . loss of strength . . . poor appetite.

S.S.S. is not just a so-called tonic but a tonic specially designed to stimulate gastric secretions, and also having the mineral elements so very, very necessary in restoring a low hemo-glo-bin content. If your condition suggests a blood tonic of this kind, try S.S.S. Unless your case is exceptional, you should soon notice a pick-up in your appetite . . . your color and skin should improve with increased strength.

S.S.S. is sold by all drug stores in two sizes . . . the larger is more economical.

Plan Two Flights Into Stratosphere

Army and Geographic Society Will Co-Operate.

Washington.—Two stratosphere ascents to the highest point to which it is practicable for a balloon to lift a man, will be made in the United States during the coming summer in the hope of clearing up problems of the upper air that are still puzzling to science. It was announced by the National Geographic society and the United States army air corps, sponsors of the project. The balloon, with a capacity of 3,000,000 cubic feet, will be the largest ever constructed. It is estimated that it will rise to a height of more than 15 miles above sea level.

The first ascent will be made in June by Capt. Albert W. Stevens, noted aerial observer and photographer of the army air corps, who conceived the project, and Maj. William Kepner, balloon expert of the army air corps. If this flight is successful, the same balloonists will make a second ascent in September, in order to check observations under similar conditions.

Scientists as Advisers.
To advise in regard to the scientific plans and equipment, and to direct studies of the data collected, Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic society, has formed a committee of outstanding American scientists.

The huge balloon to be used in the ascents will have a gas capacity five times that of the bag in which Commander Settle established his 11½-mile record last November; and nearly three and a half times that of the Soviet balloon which in September rose more than 12 miles above the earth.

The exact point at which the balloon will take to the air has not been selected, but it will probably be in the northern great plains region. Such a choice, it is pointed out, will give ample room for drift to the northeast, east, or southeast and a landing in open country, so that the bag can be salvaged.

The completed plans for the flights are due to the efforts of Captain Stevens, who has gathered data during the past 11 months directed toward the use in stratosphere flights of the largest balloon which it is practicable to construct, and an ascent to the highest point to which it is believed possible for man to rise in a gas bag, with hope of a safe landing. The mere attainment of altitude, however, is not a primary object of the ascents. It is desired to reach the greatest attainable height above the earth in order that conditions there can be observed.

Captain Stevens has penetrated the lower levels of the stratosphere by airplane on numerous occasions and also has served as observer on a number of army balloon ascensions. During his high altitude flying he has collected much scientific data. In a flight over Dayton, Ohio, in October, 1928, he reached an altitude of 39,150 feet and obtained the only complete record of thermometer readings ever made in America, showing on the same day the "temperature gradient" in the region from the earth to the stratosphere. Other such records of temperatures, from the earth to an altitude of approximately 80,000 feet, is one of the objectives of the 1934 ascents. Such data will be extremely valuable in weather studies.

Trap Stratosphere Air.
Another project of importance will be the trapping of samples of stratosphere air at several levels. These specimens will be analyzed and studied later in physical and chemical laboratories.

The preliminary "agenda" for scientific data to be collected during the ascents, contains 14 other items varying from high-level photography and the ascertainment of the electrical condition of the air at various levels, to cosmic ray studies and efforts to determine ozone concentration. The mysterious ozone layer of the upper air which some scientists assert is all that saves life on the earth from destruction by ultra-short light rays, is thought to lie far above the highest point that can be reached by a manned balloon. It is hoped, however, that evidences of an increasing ozone content of the air can be detected 15 miles up.

In order to house the many instruments and automatic recording devices that will be taken aloft, the balloon will have attached to it a spherical gondola of light metal 9 feet in diameter. This diameter is 2 feet greater than that of the gondolas used by Professor Piccard and Commander

DEVELOPS NEW RAY

Prof. E. O. Lawrence who, with Dr. M. Stanley Livingston, has developed a new ray more penetrating than either X-rays or radium. This ray is made of neutrons, the most disruptive substances known to science. The ray is a flow of 10,000,000 neutrons a second, coming from a lead window. Although just a baby in the ray class, and potentially the most dangerous ever produced, it has great possibilities both for experiments and for building up the heavier chemical elements out of the lighter.

Settle, and will provide a cubic capacity more than twice as great.

The instruments, many of them designed and modified by Captain Stevens as a result of trials during high altitude flights, will be largely automatic, leaving observer and pilot free to take care of the many activities in the gondola that will require personal attention. A number of tiny cameras, using motion-picture film, will automatically and tirelessly "read" dials and clock faces simultaneously at frequent intervals.

Germany Planning War, France Is Told

Paris Newspaper Points Out Preparations.

Paris.—"Germany today possesses the most powerful war-equipment machine on the earth."

This statement, printed in the semi-official Temps, did not surprise Frenchmen.

The Temps also declared that Germany could launch over twice as many trained and armed men as France in battle.

Temps served to confirm the belief that, behind a screen of commercial enterprise, the reich has been assembling the fastest airplanes, sturdiest artillery and deadliest gas.

"Like it or not," one of the leading aviation columns here said, "the Germans in 1933, just as in 1932 and in 1931, are ahead in the science of aerodynamics. They have borrowed the best features of all nations."

But figures are more convincing than editorial opinion. Temps offers three "incontrovertible proofs" that prove, it declares, "intensified production of materials for an offensive war has been speeded up in the past few months." These are:

One—The significant rise in stocks on the Berlin exchange of concerns equipped to produce war materials.

Two—The increase in imports of raw materials subject to use for manufacturing war materials as betrayed by German foreign trade statistics.

Three—Sudden expansion of personnel in plants equipped to produce war materials.

Germany actually possesses twenty aircraft factories against eight in Great Britain, it is pointed out, which affirms that within six months the industry could produce more airplanes than it did in 1918—namely, more than 2,500 monthly.

As regards aircraft, the Temps says: "Lufthansa has just ordered from Junkers fifty-three motor planes, of a type easily convertible into long-range bombers."

"Heinkel has been asked to turn out 100 heavily armed combat planes, to go faster than 300 kilometers an hour, carrying two observers and bombs."

"Bayerische Motoren-werke is building 100 700 h. p. motors of a new American type."

In the Rhineland, it is pointed out, despite the limitations set by the Locarno pact, air fields have been elaborated near Barmen, in the Wupper; near Gelsenkirchen, at Pirmasens; at Dinglinghem, Baden; at Rastatt on the Baldenau, and at Kintzig. These new fields, it is claimed, are in direct violation of the Locarno pact.

Corn Stalk Gas Tested to Light Farm House

Ames, Iowa.—The time may not be distant when rural homes will be lighted and heated from the waste products of the farm, early experiments at the field station of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate.

An experimental plant has been erected on a farm near the station for production of gas manufactured from corn stalks as the raw materials of fermentation.

The goal for which engineers are striving is construction of a farm plant capable of producing 200 cubic feet of gas suitable for burning as fuel or for lighting purposes daily.

Such a plant would utilize from forty to fifty pounds of shredded corn stalks a day and would be installed at an approximate cost of $300 to $500, exclusive of equipment for distribution within buildings.

"Such plants would be especially beneficial in the West, where coal is expensive and illuminating gas unobtainable," commented P. Burke Jacobs, chief of the station.

"Utilization of certain vegetable wastes for generation of gas, either on the farm or from a central plant located in a small community which is not served by illuminating gas, would simplify the 'farm waste' problem in so far as such districts are concerned."

Sultan's Stolen Wealth, Gone Years, Is Found

Istanbul.—Ten tablecloths embroidered with real pearls, a basin of silver and gold, and a jeweled needle-case disappeared many years ago from Abdul Hamid's treasures.

An informer recently denounced one Nouri Bey as having the precious objects. Police found them and removed the treasures to the old museum.

Now Nouri Bey is suing the museum for restitution on the grounds that he had possessed the jewels and gold for more than 20 years.

92-Yr.-Old Woman Known as "Mother of Mayors"

Booneville, Ind.—Mrs. Elizabeth Heinze Nester, who recently celebrated her ninetieth birthday, is known as the "mother of mayors." Her oldest son, John F. Heinze, was elected mayor of Booneville in 1905. Her second son, Fred Heinze, was named mayor of Tell City in 1909, and in 1929, her third son, Floyd H. Nester, was elected mayor of Booneville.

NOW, THEN

Mr. Pester—Well, I have entered the two hundred mile automobile race for novices.

Mrs. Pester—All right, if you want to risk your life, go ahead. But if you get killed, don't come whining to me for sympathy and say I didn't warn you.

Both Right

"Isn't that a nice car Mr. Neddore bought?"

"It's a huff, mother," said Elsie. "You mean a flivver, dear."

"No; I heard his wife say he just went away in a huff."

WINTER JOY

"I wonder why we always feel more cheerful as winter draws near."

"I don't know, unless it's because by that time we are looking forward to holiday cigars and our Christmas neckties."

CONVERSATION

"What a gossip that woman is. She is always talking about somebody."

"Yes, let's stop her and see what she has to say."

Broad-Minded

Mr. Newrich (touring in his new car)—Where are we now?

Chauffeur—Half-way between Paris and Marseilles, sir.

Mr. Newrich—Don't bother me with niggling little details. What country are we in?

SLOWPOKE

"Isn't Jack ever going to propose?"

"I guess not, he's like an hour-glass."

"How's that?"

"The more time he gets the less sand he has."

TODAY'S QUOTATIONS

Friend—Has your wife lost much weight?

Mr. Stocksabonds—She has fallen off about three points but conditions are favorable for a sharp recovery.

Just Verdict

The man who had just returned from France was relating a thrilling experience.

"Yes," he said, "an Apache sprang at me in one of the streets of Paris, snatched my pocketcase of notes, and bolted. The gendarmes chased him, and, when cornered, he leapt into the river—"

"Ah!" said a listener. "Guilty, but in Seine!"
