Battle Being Waged to Save "Food of the Gods"

Plant Disease Threatens Cacao Plantations.

Washington. - "The fight being waged to save, from a destructive plant disease, the famous cacao plantations of Trinidad, West Indies, brings into the news an unusual, twofold industry," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

'Not only does the cacao bean supply the producers of candies and sweetmeats with a unique solid ingredient and flavoring, but it furnishes 'the makings' for a hot beverage, surpassed in world importance only by coffee and

"Chocolate was a gift to man's palate from the Western hemisphere," continues the bulletin. "Like tobacco, the potato, and a number of other plant products, it was taken back to Europe by explorers soon after Columbus opened the road to the New world, and launched on the way that has led to

"In trade circles today three terms are used: chocolate and cocoa, and cacao. The tropical tree which is the source of chocolate is called the cacao. In its leathery, cucumberlike fruit are cacao pods which contain cacao beans. But when the beans are roasted and ground, and much of the fat is pressed out, the remaining brown substance (ground to a dry powder), is cocoa. If the fat is not pressed out, the darker substance is chocolate.

"Credit for the manufacture of chocolate from the hidden seed of an unprepossessing fruit belongs to the original inhabitants of Mexico. In 1519 when Hernando Cortez invaded that country, he discovered that the cacao tree was widely cultivated. The natives had concocted a drink called 'chocolatl' or 'cacahuatl,' from which have come the name 'chocolate' and 'cocoa.' Frothing pitchers of chocolate were served by Montezuma when he entertained Cortez.

"Students of American native customs have estimated that the drink was in use 1,000 years before the arrival of Europeans. According to Mexican mythology the seed of the cacao tree was carried from a New world version of the Garden of Eden into Mexico by Quetzalcoatl, god of air. The fruit, it is related, was a favorite food of the gods. The great Swedish botanist, Linnaeus, christened the fruit Theobroma cacao, meaning in Greek Food of the Gods.

"Cacao was used as a means of barter and the payment of tribute by the Aztecs and Mayans. A man's wealth was often judged by the number of cacao beans he possessed. In Mexico a good slave could be purchased for "Its highly concentrated food value, low cost of production, and numerous uses have stimulated cacao cultivation to such an extent that now it is grown in practically all tropical countries. Once a Monopoly.

"As an international commodity, the cacao bean has grown in importance States alone, in 1933, imported 474,270, 000 pounds, valued at $18,739,000. The United States is by far the largest consumer, cacao ranking sixteenth in value on our list of imports. Ger- | beginning on July 28.

many, Great Britain, and the Netherlands follow in the order named.

"For many years the Spaniards of South America and of some of the West Indies monopolized the cacao industry. Chocolate was introduced into Spain by Cortez and his conquisitadores about the beginning of the Sixteenth century, but the process of chocolate manufacture was kept a secret for almost 100 years. In 1606, an Italian discovered the method of preparation. Shortly afterwards, monks and travelers spread the news throughout Europe. The Seventeenth and Eighteenth centuries found the popularity of the drink steadily increasing. Cocoa was established in England, as well as on the continent.

"Chocolate, however, was a luxury which only the rich could afford, since it sold for as much as five dollars a pound. Today, good chocolate can be purchased for a few cents a pound, and is consumed in one form or another by millions of people the world

Profile of Christ Is Found on Cliff

Tallulah Falls, Ga.-A camera has revealed something on the wall of Tullulah gorge that human eyes never had detected-a stone face in which many see resemblance of some painters' conceptions of Christ.

The photograph was taken quite casually with no thought it would show more than the usual panorama of gaping chasm and sheer precipice.

The discovery was made by Judge Ernest C. Kontz, of Atlanta and C. N. Crocker, bridge engineer of the Georgia highway depart-

"When the negative was developed," Judge Kontz said, "we found something we had not noticed at the time, a well defined profile closely resembling that of the Savior as we have come to know it through the paintings of the world's greatest artists. One can even find a suggestion of the crown of thorns."

fine paste was obtained. This was sometimes mixed with maize (corn) and flavored with vanilla and spices. The paste was molded into forms desired and allowed to cool. Modern preparation of the commodity is more scientific and thorough, but the principal steps taken are much the same.'

Egypt Will Develop Its Home Industry

Cotton Looms.

London.-Egypt, land of the pyramids, has joined the nations which are trying to develop home industry.

In many places the old-fashioned hand looms, which have been used from time immemorial to weave Egypt's fine cotton into cloth, are being replaced by modern machinery.

COPPER GETS DEGREE

Among those receiving the degree of bachelor of arts at the commencement exercises of New York university was Herman Schwartzberg, a patrolman in the city police department since 1927.

Machines Will Replace Hand | The object is to enable Egyptians to supply the type of cotton best suited to Egyptian needs.

In spite of comparatively cheap labor, which can be obtained in Egypt, the government has found it necessary to put a tariff on all imported cotton goods. This is said not to affect British goods, which because of their grade and price are not suited to the Egyptian market. It is aimed primarily at Japanese competition. The Japanese, it is stated, can produce exactly the grade of cotton material required by Egypt at a price which, despite the expense of transportation, makes it impossible for ever comparatively cheaply produced local cotton to hold its own. Hence the expansion of the local industry. Enormous progress in the industry is reported. For the moment efforts are being made merely to make Egypt self-sufficient insofar as her cotton good needs are concerned. Eventually it is hoped to be able to export Egyptian-made cotton to Egypt's neighbors, which are great cotton users. Palestine, Irak and Arabia are sit uated geographically so as to make it more to their advantage economically speaking to buy Egyptian cotton if available. Apart from the fact that the Egyptian cotton has a reputation for unequaled fineness, it is considered that Egyptians are better able to produce the type of goods required by their neighbors than other nations.

The value of agricultural land, already said to be among highest priced areas in the world, is rising. Already scarce, it is becoming scarcer on account of industrial development. The country, officials say, is on the verge of enjoying an unprecedented boom. Comparative freedom from political trouble at the moment is aiding in the

He went into one Madera grocery and offered the dust in payment for food for himself, his wife and their five children. The store refused to take it.

It was the same in other stores. Finally he went to the county welfare department. "What am I to do?" he asked. "My family and I cannot eat gold dust and we'll starve before I can send it to San Francisco and wait for a government check to come back."

Finally H. M. Scott, welfare officer, furnished Walter with cash from his own pocket and sent the gold dust to San Francisco. Walter agreed to reimburse him from the returns.

Howe About: SUCH IS LIFE—Call Out the Militia!

Russia Begging Big Business Men

@. Bell Syndicate.-WNII Service.

By ED HOWE

THERE are actually a good many sensible features in the present Soviet government in Russia. The idea that no public official should receive more than $150 a month is sound; so is the habit of promptly punishing officials when they are dishonest or negligent. . . But the determination to live by Communist principles will wreck Sovietism. Communism is so palpably weak in so many respects it cannot succeed. The objection to the teaching of Karl Marx is it will not fit human needs. The poor man is entitled to justice; but so is the man who refuses to remain poor. And in the human experiment there has never been found a tribe of men wherein the majority were willing to remain in perpetual poverty. Nature provided means for all to become wellto-do, and the better specimens of men will not consent to forever remaining uncomfortable when comfort abounds and may be easily attained by not unreasonable effort. I may not be here to see the end of the Russian experibe given up there. Like whisky, it is a fool; it will not stand practical trial.

Negroes are very disagreeable in bothering whites for gifts. I have spent the present winter in an apartment house in Miami, Fla., and have ants. An old fellow living nearby is a negro maid come in; he does his own enjoy his indignation. I have been man brave enough to rebel in a good . The poor whites are as ed States during the past winter has been displayed in begging campaigns. Everyone is apt to be a little prejudiced when discussing his own case, and it really seems to me I do my share in proper giving, but the American system of begging seems to me disgraceful. Much of it is racketeering; the selfish business of boss beggars who hide behind the scenes and browbeat timid citizens into engaging in charity campaigns they do not themselves believe in. Ask any American what he is most disgusted with, and he will probably tell you it is committee begging. The smart French do none of it; the Germans and English very little. It is an American weakness; one of many we all disapprove of, but do not quit. Instead of quitting, the nuisance is becoming worse every day; leaders in it are trained as others are trained to become stenographers, doctors, lawyers, machinists, to pull teeth, and receive large incomes from the dishonest business.

There is more than the usual complaint lately about big business men. A new charge is they do not their wives and children with reasonable efficiency. . . No American does; specially foolish women and children are as common among the poor as among the well-to-do. The manner in which American women muss up their men has been the wonder of foreigners since the foundation of the republic; Americans no more assert themselves in their homes than they do in politics. And look at what the politicians have done to them. . . . Americans need a lot of reform in a lot of ways.

I find I can't stand good times; my greatest mistakes have been made dur-And I cannot ing good times. . appreciate now that times were very good when we agree they were at their best. Times are always hard; we must constantly save and be careful.

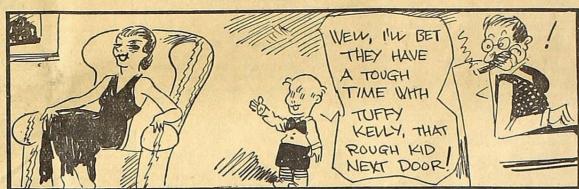

A traveler says that when an American picture play is presented in Germany, the lingering kisses, the bravery of the Western heroes, the nobleness of the heroines, attract whistling from those in the audience. . . . The Germans are making fun of us. . . . Have we not reached an age when we should recover from some of the conspicuous follies which attract contemptuous criticisms in older countries?

The great Goethe had 14 Great Worries in his life, and was often in complete despair, but at last left much to his credit. All the great have staggered along in the same way; so worried by women they had little time left for anything else.

As it is, always has been, and always will be, there have been some quite remarkable men; perhaps it is idle to speculate upon what greater thing they might accomplish if less hampered with love.

It seems to me managers of the professional charities should issue a card of thanks to those Americans who have kept out of the bread lines, and helped a little in relieving the misfortunes of others. During an exceptionally hard winter a man who maintains his family respectably, and does not bother his neighbors for assistance, is an especially good citizen. He should receive an occasional kind word of appreciation, instead of daily insults from professional charity workers that he is a stingy brute who does not Do His Duty.

Drive on Signboards.

Preliminary plans for the drive are being mapped out by the Forty-second Street Property Owners' and Merchants' association, headed by Julius G. Kugelman, president of the Mill Factors' corporation and the Broadway association. One of the first moves of the campaign, according to Mr. Kugelman, will be directed against signs which detract from the attractiveness of the streets." The Forty-second street association believes that no sign should extend more than one foot beyond the building line, and it will fight to make its views prevail not only in the altering of present signs which violate this proposed restriction but in the erection of future electrical or metallic signs.

Recently, leading officials of the association undertook a survey of the 'sign situation" in the Forty-second street section, and as a result of "representations" made to offending merchants some 56 of the most blatant signs have been eliminated-either torn down or "subdued," according to Edward W. Forrest, executive vice president of the association and field marshal of the campaign.

Objectionable Dance Halls Close.

Two objectionable dance halls have also been persuaded to close their doors, according to the same authority. There are plenty of these "halls" left, particularly along Forty-second street from Fifth avenue west, however, and the association proposes to train some of its heaviest fire upon them in the near future. Within the last year or so some of these "dime-adauce" places have been crowding "right up to Broadway" on the busy cross street

Mr. Forrest reported progress in the effort to eliminate peddlers and other solicitors on the street and told of the moves made to get the co-operation of magistrates in this work. One man, known as a "king of the razor-blade peddlers," has moved "at least temporarily" to another part of Manhattan after having been fined three times, he announced.

Leaders of the "clean-up" campaign make no attempt to disguise the fact hat their chief motive is to build un trade to something like the status it enjoyed before the section began to fall into such disrepute.

OUR EDUCATED YOUTH By

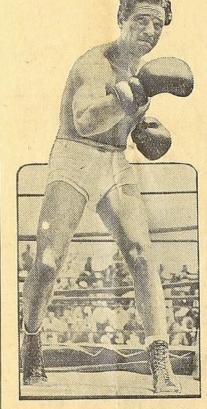

LEONARD A. BARRETT

Thousands of young people annual ly are graduated from our universities and colleges. Many of these receive advanced degrees which indicate they have been prepared for specialized lines of activity. The professional schools also have turned out a large number of doctors, engineers, dentists, and many others intent upon different professional careers. It is always a thrilling experience to witness a large group of young people receiving the degree for which they labored from four to six years, and in some cases, even longer. We do not forget the sacrificial devotion of parents who made this opportunity possible for their children. In some cases young people have themselves worked their way through college. They perhaps appreciate their education more than those for whom plenty of money was furnished through the college course. When we work for something we want, we appreciate it more than if it is given to us without any effort on our part.

The question arises, however, what of the future? What will become of all these young people with their diplomas justly earned? Will they find some work to do in their chosen field of activity? Will all the doctors and engineers find jobs waiting for them? A review of the condition of our economic life during the past few years readily convinces us that such is not the case. In one of our large cities, where the CWA was active in furnishing work for the unemployed, could be found men who held degrees from colleges, and in some instances, advanced degrees from foreign unversities. A diploma from an accredited college does not guarantee a position. Preparation for a career is one thing, the realization of one's ideals in that career is quite another thing. Many other requisites are essential to suc cess besides a college degree. Doubtless one of the most valuable experiences one learns in college is adaptability and perseverance without which no success is possible. The greatest lesson one learns in college is: how to work; how to adapt one's self to unusual and discouraging environments. The cultural advantage of a college education is most valuable, providing it prepares the student to meet the real issues in life. "Wisdom is the principal thing, therefore get wisdom, said the wise man of long ago.

In order to have white gloves look right they must be kept of pristine whiteness. If the wearer wants to look well-groomed, she has to keep this in mind. CHEVROLET Year after year, it's been the same story: Chevrolet FIRST with the NEWEST and BEST! Chevrolet leading-others following. Chevrolet out in front with the latest proved advancements. Self-starter! Sliding gear transmission! Streamlined design! It was Chevrolet aggressiveness and progressiveness that forced all low-priced cars eventually to adopt these and other major improvements. And now, this year, comes the climax of Chevrolet's engineering leadership: the Knee-Action ride! This newest of motoring sensations is a marvel of smooth, easy, gentle motion. No other ride in the world can even compare with it. It makes Chevrolet far and away the best riding car in the low-price field.

Have you noticed how America has taken to the Knee-Action ride? In the first 6 months, demand for Chevrolet cars sent production to the highest total attained by any automobile during 1934.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle rais-ing. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water for irrigation. Kershaw kills Hensity and the blood-feud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are all that remains of one clan. Nate Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, banker, schemes to control the irrigation and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate tells Lorry he and Owen Kershaw, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed. They became buddies, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. Babson, determined to se-cure Lorry's lake-site and Nate's damsite, makes legal application for the allocation of flood waters to the Forlorn Valley irrigation district, which he organizes. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson dis-covers Nate is behind a power project which threatens to ruin the banker's

He was possessed of a warm feeling of elation as he motored up to the Circle K and in a field below the ranch house found Lorry with her cowboys working in the branding corral. She wore the traditional boots, overalls, shirt, and hat of a cowman. She carried a four-strand thirty-foot calf rope of braided rawhide and bestrode a buckskin horse that knew his business.

Tichenor climbed up on the fence and watched her work; he thrilled with professional pride as her small loop went under the belly of each victim and curled up and over the legs of the calf as the little animal went forward; he observed how gently she laid him down, saving undue strain on her riata, and dragged him through the soft loose dirt to the fire. Rube Tenney, working a calf along the fence below Nate, said out of the corner of his mouth as he passed:

"Ninety-two calves so far today and she hasn't missed her cast yet."

It was long since he had sat on the top rail of a corral fence, comfortable in his shirt-sleeves, and looked at good stock! Long since he had done any shooting and fishing, long since his knees had gripped anything save an academy-trained horse.

He resolved definitely not to give it up. When the world wearied him he could always come back to Eden Valley and enjoy the society of people who had mastered the great art of silent companionship.

Lorry had waved her riata at him as he took his seat on the fence; thereafter she paid no attention to him. She was busy. So he sat on the fence for an hour, dreaming, remembering, planning. Finally he saw a horse standing, with drooping head, outside the corral. A riata was coiled on the saddle.

"My horse, Lorry?" he called to the

"Whenever you get your job of dreaming done with," she called back. He climbed down, cinched the saddle tighter, and swung aboard. "Ride him, cowboy," Lorry cried joyously, and as if this was a signal, the horse went into action. Tichenor stayed with him for six jumps, then sailed off into space and lit on his hands and knees in the soft dirt; whereupon everybody laughed long and joyously at his discomfiture. A dozen feet away the horse was standing, gazing curiously at him.

Lorry rode up to the fence and looked at him. "What happened?" she asked sympathetically. He picked himself up, furious with embarrassment and glared at her. "I've been away a long time. I'm soft. I can't grip 'em like I used to," he mumbled, and caught up the horse. The brute tried to throw him again, but this time Tichenor stuck, and the horse, deciding he had had the worst of the argument, jogged sedately away to the corral gate, swung into it for Nate to slip the wooden latch, pushed it open with his shoulder, pushed it shut again and sidled humbly up to the latch for his rider to slide it home again. Tichenor shook out his loop, found an unbranded calf and roped it meatly around the hind legs. Lorry smiled her approval and before her smile his anger and embarrassment melted and he smiled back. "Nate, I bet Rube a hundred dollars you'd ride him straight up and stay with him. You rode him straight up but you didn't stay with him-so you lost a hundred dollars for me." "Why didn't you bet Rube another hundred I'd miss my first calf." "I did," she confessed sadly. "I'm out two hundred on you." "Go bet him two hundred more I can rope ten straight." She called her bet to Rube Tenney.

"Taken," the superintendent yelled back. "And another hundred he misses one calf in the first five."

"Take it," Tichenor urged. Lorry took it and he won both bets for her,

"First time I ever knew a man to lay off ropin' nine years an' come back with his old-time skill," Rube Tenney complained.

"Once a year, for six years past, I've roped daily for a week in the rodeo held at Madison Square garden," Tichenor confessed. "The first time I tried it was on a private bet. I was in a box with a lot of society wasters and there was a rich smart Aleck there I didn't like. So I honeyed him into a bet of ten thousand dollars I could rope and hog-tie a calf in twenty seconds.

"Why, that's slow. I can beat that," Lorry challenged.

"Not on a borrowed horse, with a borrowed rope and an educated calf, Lorry. The crowd thought I was part of the show when I rode out in a top hat and dress clothes and tied the critter in fourteen seconds."

"Did you collect the ten thousand?" the practical Mr. Tenney queried. "I did."

"I'll bet you ten thousand I can beat your time. We're about finished with this bunch so we'll let all but four out of the corral and haze the others with their mothers down the field about a hundred yards. Then Rube shall open the gate and we'll start a calf from the other end of the corral straight for his mother. The gate shall be the dead line, and the second the calf is through it he's yours to rope and tie. I noticed the other day you carry a stop-watch. How about it, neighbor?" Lorry asked.

"Give me a tie rope," was all he said, and handed his stop-watch to Rube Tenney. The calf, a husky youngster about two months old, then went out the gate for all he was worth.

Tichenor Stayed With Him for Six Jumps

Forty feet beyond the gate Tichenor's rope settled over his head and stopped him; even as he stopped, the man was going out of the saddle; crawling up along the rope, he flopped the calf, tied him and rolled him over; then Rube Tenney inspected the tie and pronounced it perfect. "Fifteen and a fifth," he announced. "Good fast work, Nate."

They rode back into the corral and watched Lorry haze her calf out. As his tail cleared the gate post she snagged him; like Nate she lit running, flanked the calf expertly and tied him. Tichenor came down and rolled the little animal over twice. "Nothing wrong with that tie," he announced. "By crikey, you're strong."

"Give the lady ten thousand dollars." Rube Tenney ordered. "Fourteen flat. An' you've traveled a long way for a lickin', mister."

Nate Tichenor, using the flat of his saddle for a desk, wrote out the check. "Thanks," the girl said casually, and waved the check to dry the ink. "Easy come, easy go. I have no qualms at nicking you, Nate. I competed with the best men in the country at the Pendleton round-up last year and took second money. Came away from that show with eleven hundred dollars and met the September payroll."

"You're a man's woman," he told her feelingly. "I've never had more fun losing ten thousand dollars."

"And I've never had more fun winning it. You're a true blue sport, Nate, and a true blue sport never knows a regret." And she laughed and tore up the check.

He had no reply to make to this. Half angry and half prideful, he sat his horse, looking down at her with a queer, intense light in his eyes, seeing which Rube Tenney gathered his cowboys together and rode off with them toward headquarters. When they were out of hearing Nate Tichenor spoke:

"Lorry Kershaw, I've never loved a woman before, but I love you." Tichenor knew the ghost of old Rance Kershaw was coming between him and his desire. "I understand, Lorry,' he said, final-

"Well, I'm good at waiting, but I certainly do crave the job of taking care of you." She smiled up at him. "Well, I have resented your valet," she admitted, slyly. "What does a valet know about taking care of a man?" He dismounted, squatted on his heels in the shadow of the corral and motioned her to sit beside him. "Tell me anything except how much money you have," she suggested presently. "I'm not interested in that." "Lorry, I'm the proprietor of a big dream. As a half-owner in a bond and brokerage house in New York I've made money enough to retire on now.

But I'm too young to rust out, so I'm going to put over one big deal before I quit. Lorry, I'm the Mountain Valley Power company." She stood up, gazing down at him reproachfully. "So you were the Santa Claus that gave me twice what my land was worth, were you?" Her tone was cold. "That was your nice little method of conferring charity, was it?" "Well, it was a good price, Lorry, but the land was worth that to me.

Had anybody but you owned it I would have haggled and made a couple of hundred thousand dollars. But it wasn't charity. I wasn't in love with you when we closed that deal. That's happened since and I don't know why. I only know I'm glad it's happened, even if nothing should ever come of it. Sit down please. You can't pick a fight with me merely because I declined to take advantage of your ignorance of the value of what you held, plus your acute financial embarrassment." She sat down.

"You and I are not popular in our little world," he went on. "I don't know how you feel about it, but that knowledge has always hurt me. My heart is here, where my people lie buried. I've wanted to do something big and constructive, accumulate a lot of money and employ it wisely-in this country. I-I want neighbors. I want to be thought well of." He waved his hand toward the east. "I don't belong in that country and I don't like it. I want to live here and you might as well know it now."

"Go on. I'm listening, Nate."

"You're going to marry me, sooner or later, and I want to know if you'd have any objection to living here six months of the year?"

"A little bit shorter than I care to consider, but I can stand it." "Lorry, you're a darling. Well, I've found a way to popularize both clans. When the Mountain Valley Power company's dam is in, I'm going to sell water cheap to Forlorn Valley. They're irrigating from deep wells over there."

"Those people are a miserable lot, Nate. I was blackballed out of the women's club in Valley Center."

Colors of Male Birds and Lizards Serve to Frighten Off Their Rivals

It's long been a popular idea that in | the animal world the gay coloring of the male is bestowed upon him to attract a mate. This isn't really so, says Dr. G. Kingsley Nobel, curator of experimental biology at the American Museum of Natural History, for the brilliance of his dress serves rather to frighten away rivals than to attract the lady of his choice.

These conclusions reached through laboratory research, differed so widely from the views of Darwin and the majority of scientists that Doctor Noble deemed it desirable to re-study the problem under natural conditions. The United Clay Mines corporation, through its vice president, C. W. Hall, generously offered to help his field studies by placing at Doctor Noble's disposal a house in the New Jersey pine barrens, where the fence lizard, Sceloporous undulatus, was abundant. The male of this species bears on either side of his body a handsome stripe of blue which is nearly continuous with a spot of the same color on the throat as distinguished from the female which has little coloration. "The males, as the season progresses," writes Doctor Noble in Natural History Magazine of the American Museum of Natural History, "becomes extremely pugnacious and establishes himself in a definite territory. If another male is dropped into that territory, the first tenant either goes into a full display, compressing his sides until his gorgeous blue stripe stands out in shimmering brilliancy, or else he dashes forward in most violent attack. If the trespasser is a female the male never displays. This difference in behavior observed at frequent intervals shows that the bright colors of the male fence lizard are employed to bluff possible rivals into withdrawing from a fight. The adornment of the male is not wedding finery but a gladiator's vestment."

Lucky Reptiles

The teeth of serpents and crocodilians as a rule are perpetually renewed, new ones growing out to replace the old as fast as they are worn out and disappear. This is believed to be largely responsible for the remarkable longevity of some of these creatures.

"So was my mother."

"I've never been invited to a party or a picnic or a dance or a barbecue, even by the people who come up here to picnic and fish and hunt on our ranch. I want no credit from those people, Nate."

A break in her voice caused him to glance sharply at her. Tears were rolling silently down her cheeks.

He gazed moodily down Eden Valley and watched the last rays of the sun gilding the crowns of the scattered pines. Yes, the people of Forlorn Valley had always been free to use Eden Valley for a playground.

"They can't come to Eden Valley any more," he decided aloud. "I'll put a sign up on the gate that leads from the open country to the Bar H." The mountaineer was speaking now. wouldn't have truck with your enemies, Lorry.'

She leaned over, put her arm around his neck, drew his face down and kissed him. "I do love you, Nate. And we're sufficient unto ourselves, aren't

He held her so close to him she could hear his heart thumping with the fierce joy that possessed him. He was happy at last; the thought came to him that never again would he be lonely. Nevertheless, he had dreamed a big dream and he recoiled from the prospect of abandoning it.

"We needn't be friendly with them, darling," he resumed, "but we can sell them water, make a lot of money out of them and save them a lot of money. And it's not altogether their fault that we've been ostracized. You've got to admit we weren't a wholesome crew."

"We'll ruin them," she cried, passionately, "and when they've been ruined we'll run cattle over their farms. Nate.'

She was still recalcitrant, for she had been wounded deeply, and women do not forget their wounds as readily as men do. "I'm not interested, Nate. I am not my brother's keeper.'

"I rather thought you might urge me to be nice to them," he complained a little sadly. And he went on to sketch the situation as he had conceived it, the girl listening alertly and forbearing to interrupt him. At the conclusion of his statement she said:

"Very well, Nate. I'll get religion and love mine enemies; they've struck me on one cheek, but for your sake I'll turn the other. But I'll not forgive Silas Babson. Nate, he killed my father just as surely as any Hensley ever killed a Kershaw or any Kershaw ever killed a Hensley. You said a moment ago you wouldn't have truck with my enemies. Well, that Babson is my enemy. Are you going to have truck with him?"

get the water and you know Babson's their bellwether. He'll run the show."

"He mustn't run it with you. You'll run that show. I'll not have you playing second fiddle to a man that isn't fit to shine your boots. That's final."

"Well, how are you going to prevent it, spitfire?"

"If you do I'll not marry you." "Threatening me, eh? Don't you realize none of my clan has ever been driven?" She dodged that terse thrust. "I'll compromise with you. Be nice to the Forlorn Valleyites, if you wish, but smash Babson. I want him smashed."

she added with quiet vehemence. "But if I humor you, little wildcat, I'll have to smash the Bank of Valley Center, and when the bank's smashed all the depositors will be smashed with it." "You don't truly love me," she chided him, petulantly.

"I can give up my love. I've lived twenty-nine years without it and I can live some more.'

Again she put her arms around him and drew his face down to hers. "Why, we're feuding again, sweetheart," she murmured softly. "Have it your own way. I'd rather have you than the scalp of Silas Babson"—and she sealed that pronouncement with kisses.

"You win, Lorry. You can lead a mule to water but you can't make him drink, I'll smash Babson for you. And I have an ancient grudge against that rat Henry Rookby, too, so I'll knock him out of the best salaried position in Valley Center."

"What's wrong with Henry Rookby?" "Once, when I was about sixteen vears old, I walked around the block in Valley Center to avoid coming face to face with your brother Owen. Rookby saw me do it, so he followed me and twitted me about it. Implied I was afraid of Owen. Then he went back and talked with Owen and I saw the pair of them smiling in my direction. So I didn't avoid the meeting after that. Rookby would have liked to see a killing, I imagine, just to vary the routine of his dull life. So I bent my gun over his right shoulder-up between the shoulder and the neck-and knocked him flat on his back. And I said to him: 'Rookby, if you want a killing, say so and I'll kill you. I'm not looking for Kershaw-yet,' " "And what did Owen say?"

DISEASE IS FOUND IN POULTRY YARDS

Rotation or Cropping Will Prove Helpful.

By Dr. Robert Graham, Chief in Animal Pathology, College of Agriculture, Uni-versity of Illinois.—WNU Service.

Disease organisms, worms and coccidiosis germs which are found in contaminated soil and constitute the greatest menace to poultry production can be controlled only by proper management, including the rotation or cropping of poultry yards.

No medicine will correct the ailments caused by "chicken sick" ground, notwithstanding the claims of remedy venders to the contrary.

All intestinal and parasitic diseases of chickens, as well as contagious germs such as coccidiosis, are spread by the droppings of infected fowls. Thus the soil of many poultry yards becomes an incubator or seed bed for the propagation and spread of these diseases.

To overcome the development of disease germs, poultrymen who hope to reap a profit from their efforts must rear their chicks on clean ground and plow, cultivate and crop the old chicken yards. Rotation of the poultry range so that it is used but once in every four years is a profitable practice on farms where this can be done.

In cases where extensive rotation of the poultry range is not possible, keeping the chickens out of the yard until the ground can be plowed and a new seeding gets well started is helpful. For summer planting, a combination of oats and rape makes a satisfactory mixture. An ordinary farm disc is probably the most satisfactory tool to use in working the poultry yard, although a plow may do just as well. The latter implement, however, tends to bring to the surface the contamination which has been plowed under the previous year.

Clean Incubator Before It Is Placed in Storage

At the close of the hatching season, when we are in the rush work of caring for brooder chicks, feeding the growing flock, with possibly garden work or perhaps bees to care for, we are apt to overlook the necessity of cleaning and properly caring for the incubator before storing it away. A little carelessness at this time may mean delay and expense at the beginning of next hatching season, says a poultryman in the Indiana Farmer's

As soon as the last hatching is over it is time to prepare the incubator for storing. Drain the pipes, if the incubator is a hot water machine; and be sure that all the water drains out. Clean the lamp flues, and boil the burner in soda water. Brush out the egg trays and the nursery trays, cleaning them thoroughly of down and dirt. "I do not see how I can very well Wire screen may be washed in lukewarm soapsuds. After the machine have to form an irrigation district to has been thoroughly cleaned inside and outside, spray all the interior parts with some good disinfectant, then store in a dry, safe place until needed again, when it will be ready for duty without delay or unnecessary expense.

Using Feed Troughs

Small feed troughs are more desirable than the large hopper-type of feeders. With the small trough-type of feeders fresh feed is put out several times a week, which the birds will eat better than stale feed in the large type of feeder. Plenty of feeding and watering space is conducive to good production. A trough 4 feet long at which the birds can feed from both sides will feed 30 hens. At least three feeders 4 feet long should be allowed for each 100 birds. One-half inch of drinking space is allowed per hen. Grain can best be fed in a trough when trouble is experienced in keeping the litter clean. Both Leghorns and dual purpose breeds are trough fed thin grains at the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture at Fayette. The grain is fed twice a day regulating the amount of grain given. The system of feeding grain is more satisfactory than feeding grain in dirty litter .- Hoard's Dairyman.

Poultry Notes

In the summer time, geese must have access to shade and plenty of water, as they cannot stand the hot sun.

Georgia figures its annual poultry production at $40,000,000, live stock $72,250,000, and dairy products at $20,-000,000. People of the United States eat about an average of three-fourths of an egg apiece each day, while Canadians average one egg a day. From five to five and a half months are required for a Leghorn to reach

If one is feeding milk (liquid) to his chicks he must be careful about flies. Flies are the intermediate host for tapeworms, and where there are flies there are apt to be tapeworms.

Hatcherymen pay $15,000,000 for the eggs they use, 6,250 carloads of them. This price represents a premium of $6,000,000 over the price of regular market eggs.

WITH KNIFE AND FORK

Yes, I believe you can eat your way to health just as surely as, and a good deal more agreeably than, you can eat your way into the tender mercies of the undertaker. You can eat your way to charm and social popularity and success. It is impossible for anyone who is fatigued, rundown and living at half-speed to be charming or beautiful or entertaining. To be these, demands good health, and good health demands a system in perfect balance, free from poisons unfatigued .- Wm. Howard Hay, M. D., in Cosmopolitan Maga-

DR.W.E.FITCH TALKS ON MINERAL WATER

Tells Why It Is Often Helpful for "Rheumatic" Aches and Pains

EUROPEAN SCIENTISTS CONFIRM OPINION

Recently William Edward Fitch, M. D., member of the International Society of Medical Hydrology and author of that comprehensive book "Mineral Waters of the United States and American Spas" spoke as follows on a program over the National Broadcasting System:

"Drinking a mineral water is not like drinking an ordinary water, for in addition to the virtues and therapeutic value of the water itself, the combined minerals, some of which are in such infinitesimal proportions as almost to defy man's limited power of analysis, produce systemic changes which affect disease profoundly. . . . In Europe, of course, mineral water treatment has been known for thousands of years, and is universally accepted. . . . I am happy to have contributed in a small way to the spread of knowledge of this form of treat-ment in our own great country, for here we have the same needs as Europe's population—the same diseases, the same suffering, the same problems—and bountiful Nature has provided the same form of treatment-natural American mineral waters sparkling and bubbling from the earth, ready and able to end serious and painful disease."

When we think of what Dr. Fitch has said of the real value of mineral waters—and then think how very few people can afford to travel to America's mineral water resorts—it is very important to know about Crazy Water Crystals, and the happiness they have brought to millions suffering from "rheumatic" aches and pains and other chronic ailments. Crazy Water Crystals are just precious minerals crystallized from a great natural mineral water-a type of mineral water that has built one of America's greatest health resorts, to which 150,000 people flock every year. You just mix Crazy Water Crystals with plain water, and make a great mineral water at home

ANCIENT HEBREWS CALLED FLY "DEVIL"

According to good authority, the ancient Hebrew term "Beelzebub," or "prince of devils," is closely identified with the Hebrew word for "flies." The alternative spelling for "Beelzebub" is "Beelzebul"; "Zebul" is for "Zebel," sometimes used for "dung." Enough is known of the breeding habits of flies to appreciate that the term is entirely appropriate. The house fly is the fil-thiest of all scavengers, and truly satanic in the vengeance with which it spreads disease germs. Protect your home against these bacterialaden pests by using clean, convenient, inexpensive Tanglefoot—the most effective fly exterminator for 50 years. I think the public is entitled to have this information, which will furnish all of us something definite and authentic on which to base judgment and will automatically remove the discussion from the realm

Article in the Detroit News under date line October 14, 1932, credited to Mr. Donald McGowan, containing this sentence. containing this sentence: "It was this statute that made the average "life" sentence something between ten and fifteen years. In recent years the average has been rising steadily." Soon—"STAMBOUL QUEST," "OPERATOR 13."

2. A compilation made by the then Commissioner of Pardons and Paroles on August 26th, 1930, giving the number of lifers paroled during 1921 to 1926, inclusive, as 35, and that from January 1, 1927 to August 26, 1930, as three. 3. Report in the Detroit Free Press of an address made at Ionia on August 13, 1930, by the Governor on August 13, 1930, by the Governor of the State, pointing out that life prisoners released during the period 1921 to 1926, inclusive, had served an average of ten years, but that, by holding the number during the last preceding three and one-half years down to three he had been years down to three, he had been able to raise the average to 13 years.
