Crack of Baseball Bat Is Heard in Many Lands

Even Britain Takes Up Our National Game.

Washington .- Baseball has invaded Great Britain, and the ancient reign of cricket is reported to be threatened. Scotland and England played their first international game recently, the Scots winning an easy victory of 24-3. Growing interest in baseball in Britain recalls the attempt of the Boston and Philadelphia teams to introduce the game abroad 60 years ago. Fourteen games played on British soil were courteously attended, but real enthusiasm was still reserved for cricket matches.

"The great American game has wandered far afield since 1839, when Abher Doubleday laid out the world's first diamond in a vacant lot at Coop-erstown, N. Y.," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"In both Canada and Cuba it is the favorite outdoor sport. The wiry little Cubans make excellent players, and many of our professionals are recruited there. They have adopted our slang together with the game, and shout 'ple bol,' 'homron,' 'fou bol,' with Latin excitability. In Sonora, Mexico, the stadium is superseding the arena. Enthusiastic fans fill the bleachers at Guaymas, although bull-fighting is continued out of respect for tradition.

Take Game Along.

"Wherever Americans have settled baseball is played. The Igorot boys of Luzon are keen supporters of their local teams. Entering the harbor of Pago Pago, Samoa, the first thing one sees through the palms along the shore is an immaculate baseball diamond. Puerto Rico and Hawaii have their enthusiastic fans. In Soviet Russia, American Ambassador Bullitt has ordered bats and balls from this country, and two embassy nines are ready to show Moscow how the game should be played.

'Even the deliberate East has learned to steal bases. Girls' schools in China and Turkey have their teams. "One writer describes a game he watched beside the Bosporus-'Fatima at the bat' on the diamond of 'Constantinople Women's college.

"Japanese schools and universities soon adopted the game. The intercol legiate contests are Japan's world series. The Meijl Shrine grounds-Tokyo's largest stadium-holds 80,000, and the crowd which gathers to watch Waseda play Keio rivals the throng at a Yale-Harvard football game. Professionalism has not yet reached Japan, so the sport which has replaced wrestling as the national game, remains a purely amateur one.

"It is fitting that baseball should re turn to England because one of its immediate ancestors was the English game of 'rounders,' The American version of 'rounders' was 'town ball,' or 'Massachusetts ball'-a New England favorite. 'Town ball' was played on a 60-foot square, the pitcher in the center, and the batter standing in the middle of one side. Teams varied from 14 to 20 players, none of whom were assigned definite positions. The resulting confusion was bewildering to ### spectator and player alike. Devised by Doubleday.

"For years school boys had played one-old-cat, and its more complicated forms-two-old-cat, three-old-cat, and four-old-cat. Abner Doubleday, a youth of Cooperstown, N. Y., is credited with combining these various games, drawing up a set of rules, and selecting the name of baseball. He devised the 90foot diamond and specified the position of each player, although his team consisted of eleven men.

"Doubleday had little time for the game which he invented. He entered West Point shortly afterward, and later fired the first shot from Fort Sumter in answer to the Confederate bombardment. At Gettysburg a statue commemorates his distinguished military service, but America remembers him as the man who invented her na-club of New York. They played on the Elysian fields in Hoboken, then a popular summer resort for New York's elite. Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Baltimore soon formed teams, but the game remained as amateur and aristocratic a sport as polo is today. "Baseball grew into a national game during the Civil war, when northern soldiers taught it to the men from the West and South. In the same manner our armies spread its popularity among other nations during the World war.

"Its universal appeal dates from the dawn of history. Throwing, running and catching, are as old as man. Greeks, Persians and Norsemen played handball. The Romans batted balls with a bandaged forearm. The Gilbert islanders wrap coconut shells with cord and hit them with an open palm. Archeologists in Egypt found a leather-covered ball over thirty centuries old. It is stuffed with papyrus, but the segments of its cover are sewn

Sees Decline in Fatal Truck Accidents

National Safety Council Reports Fewer Fatalities.

Cleveland, Ohio .- Following a report by the National Safety council that fatal accidents involving passenger cars have increased 38 per cent while truck accidents resulting in deaths have decreased 8 per cent in the past six years, R. W. Cass, research expert, predicts a further decline in truck accidents during the next few years with the development of increased structural and mechanical safeguards. An investigation of traffic accidents recently completed by Mr. Cass reveals than 85 per cent of the accidents were directly traceable to human failure while the remaining 15 per cent were divided between machine failure and road defects. "Of the 85 per cent traceable to human failure," states Mr. Cass, "a considerable percentage may be traced to tiredness, physical discomfort or sleepiness at the wheel. This figure will undoubtedly show a decline over the period of the next few years for two reasons. The first is through 'anti-sleep' regulation which already has been passed in approximately threequarters of the states limiting the number of hours which a truck driver may consecutively operate. The second is by increased attention of the

PETER FINDS VEERY

PETER RABBIT had spent a quiet day in the dear old Brier Patch. As evening approached he decided to go back to hear Melody the Wood Thrush sing again. Just as he drew near the Green Forest he heard from the direction of the Laughing Brook a song which caused him to change his mind and sent him hurrying in that direction. It was a very different song from that of Melody, yet if he had never heard it before Peter would have known that such a song could come from no throat except that of a member of the Thrush family.

As he drew near, those beautiful notes seemed to ring through the Green Forest like a bell. As Melody's song filled him with the feeling of peace, so this song stirred in him a feeling of the wonderful mystery of life. There was in it the very spirit of the Green Forest. It didn't take Peter long to find the singer. It was Veery, who has been named Wilson's Thrush, and by some folks is known as the Tawny Thrush.

At the sound of the patter of Peter's feet the song stopped abruptly and he was greeted with a whistled "Wheeu!

most at once his bell-like notes began to ring through the Green Forest. Peter sat right where he was, content to just listen and feel within himself the joy of being alive and happy in the beautiful spring season which Veery was expressing so wonderfully.

DRINCE EDWARD island, a province of 88,000 inhabitants, has had only one divorce in almost 400 years. It is only 24 hours by train from Boston, and the inhabitants have adopted practically all American habits-except divorce. That is, they read American magazines and newspapers, buy American goods, see American motion pictures. The island is a popular American tourist haunt and it is said that practically all its families have relatives and friends in the United States. They are prosperous, the law admits of divorce, and only a percentage of the population have religious prohibitions against it. How then, or rather why, has this community escaped the well-known virus that so cuts into our marriage records?

William S. Dutton has quoted the governor of Prince Edward island as giving the explanation. He says:

Brain Working Upside Down Amazes Even Owner.

New York .-- Private William W. Lord, who has just finished an eight months' course in the quartermaster school at Philadelphia, has been assigned to the quartermaster corps at Mitchel Field, L. I., and his associates there now are discovering why Cornell university wrote to Private Lord two summers ago when he was stationed at Madison Barracks, N. Y., and asked him to bequeath his brain to the Burt G. Wilder brain collection when he died. Having a scientific nature, Private Lord readily complied; he drew up a will leaving his brain to the university, cerebellum, medulla and all. In civilian clothes, Private Lord dropped into the office of the New York Herald Tribune to demonstrate just why his brain was worthy of inclusion in the Burt G. Wilder collection. Plump, pink, perspiring, he sat down at a desk and asked for a pencil and paper.

"Now give me the name of a city," he said; "any one at all." Heads were scratched and finally some one thought of a city. Seizing a pencil in chubby fingers, Private Lord wrote:

Sacramento

As he inscribed the word, upside down and backward, beginning with the letter "o," simultaneously he spelled it out orally from the orthodox angle, beginning with the "S." "Now the name of a President," he ordered. "And also give me the name of some 'movie.'

Next, a President. Suggestions were offered and, without hesitation, spelling from one direction and writing from the other, the visitor set down:

пэтиЯ пвУ "The Hunchback of Notre Dame"

"This improves the penmanship," said Private Lord. "Will some one please give me a number in seven digits?'

A spectator suggested 5,732,846, and as Private Lord set the figures on paper upside down he commanded : "Now pick a headline out of today's newspaper."

"Nation Weighs Recovery Plea of Roosevelt," some one suggested. "Fourscore and seven years ago," intoned Private Lord. As he recited Private Lord's pencil flew over the paper rapidly, setting down figures and words alternately on separate pieces of paper, all upside down.

Long before he came to the end of the Gettysburg Address, Private Lord reversed his pieces of paper and disclosed what he had written. On one ing himself and not employ expert appeared "Nation Recovery Plea Weighs of Roosevelt."

"You see I deliberately changed the order of the words," he explained. On the other paper appeared the following column of figures. 523,656 111,737 521,111 764.145 215.543 121,311

Amazed at Himself. "Now add those figures up," said Private Lord, "and you'll find they come to the figure you gave me. There's something uncanny about this. I don't know myself how I do it." For the next few moments Private Lord relaxed by writing such words as "Mediterranean," "chrysanthemum," "typewriter" and "hippopotamus" upside down-sometimes from right to left, sometimes vice versa. He did not bother, however, to recite, merely chatting pleasantly with his admirers. "I had my brain examined by army specialists a little while ago and they told me I did this with my subconcious mind. I guess I must because don't bother to add up the figures I put down in that column a minute ago. They just come to me and they always add up to whatever number you select. "I didn't find out I had this ability till 12 years ago. I was a clerk in a Rochester hotel then and sort of dreaming I looked across the street and saw a sign which said 'Homeopathic hospital.' I had a piece of paper in front of me and all unconscious I wrote out 'Homeopathic Hospital' and then before I knew it I had written it backward and upside down-all the while thinking of something else. And ever since then I could write out anything at all from any angle without even thinking about it."

Howe About: Forgiveness Wedded Happiness Suspicious Characters

©, Bell Syndicate.-WNU Service. By ED HOWE

D URING a long life certain persons have been so unfair and unreasonable with me I am not able to forgive them; I cannot again trust or associate with them.

I have adopted this policy as the easiest and best way. If I had opportunity to punish them, I should not do so. I do not talk about them, or think of them when I can help it. I believe in all decency, but this is the best I can do with my enemies. Any suggestion that I love them is plainly silly to me; I cannot so much as forgive them. The best I can do is to let them alone.

. . . In 1816 a Frenchman made an estlmate as to happiness of husbands and wives in England. Out of every hundred thousand population, he concluded, only thirteen of the married were fairly happy. Of those passing for happy, he estimated the number at 3,325 per 100,000. Of those living in open hostility, he found 17,345; 13,279 of the secretly discontented, and 58,406 of the materially indifferent. Nearly 8,000 ran away or were divorced during the year. . . . Conditions are better in 1932 than in 1816. In my section there is a city of 500,000. I do not believe only 65 married persons in it are only fairly happy. In my own town there are 15,000 souls. According to this estimate, we have something like one and a half married persons who are fairly happy. I am certain we can do better than that. . . Here is more criticism of marriage far ### beyond reason or fact.

I know a man who married a second time. Within a day or two his wife began regulating him. "Now looky here, Alice," he said, "we might as well understand each other. I have recently secured, at great expense, trouble and humiliation, divorce from a woman who nagged me. I specially dislike nagging; I regard it as an insult, and it specially humiliates and angers me. If you cannot resist the temptation, let us part now, that I may avoid the life of shame from which I lately fled." . . .

Every criminal is under suspicion in his community before he engages in crime. Every man who will be arrested next week is labeled as a probability for arrest this week. People wonder how he makes a living; his habits are not the normal habits of the steady men of the community. We must tighten up on suspicious characters who have no visible means of support. Of my acquaintances I can make an accurate list of those IIable to be arrested; so can you. The cost of crime to the worthy majority is enormous and burdensome. I see men on the streets every day who should be promptly arrested as vathey violate the law as loafers, dead

DR. FITCH: "The facts are that it has always been hard for a few doubt-ing Thomases and skeptics to believe that old Mother Nature knows how to prepare and compound natural mineral waters in a way that cannot be duplicated in a laboratory. In the course of my studies I have found that those same doubts were expressed Two Thousand Years Ago, in the early days of natural mineral water therapy. The truth is that natural mineral water and natural crystals from such waters are as different from synthetic or artificial salts as day from night. And that's why the medical profession has always been in favor of the Natural Wat-ers — has always insisted that they are the one product of Nature that cannot be imitated successfully by man. People have tried for many, many years to make up synthetic concoctions to take their place but they do not have the same effect. The predominating chemical constituent of Crazy Water Crystals is sodium sulphate, but it is in its Natural State, and has a far different physiological effect than the synthetic salts made in a laboratory. When you buy salts for a few cents you get just what you pay for-a dose of salts. But when you use Crazy Water Crystals, you get undiluted minerals in their natural state, taken from natural mineral water by evaporation with nothing added."

writers to do the work. These books promise to be a guide as well as a stimulant to American youth. In a press dispatch, which quotes a personal interview with the distinguished financier, he says: "Life has been always interesting, but never easy."

Just so. Where life is easy and there are no hard problems to solve or serious risks to run, it scarcely can be called interesting. What gives zest to life and makes us feel that it is worth while are the seemingly insurmountable obstacles that meet us in the path of daily toil.

Retirement from an active life without very definite objects of service to which one may retire is seldom a wise course of action. Many a person loses all interest in life itself after the usual activities of a lifetime have been abandoned. Nothing is more interesting than to see a man or woman, past the three-score years and ten, busily engaged upon a piece of work which challenges all their strength. They truly know the joy of living. Many persons dream of the day when they shall have nothing to do. They imagine it to be a state of paradise, when actual experience has proven the contrary. People with nothing to do are always miserable. We do not envy Mr. Baruch his retirement but we do envy his creative ability in having something very definite and interesting upon which he may devote his energy the remainder of his days.

so wise and true as to be worthy of a place in the permanent philosophy of every fairly intelligent and honest man. I know of no American who may be credited with a greater number of such rare exhibitions than Abraham Lincoln. And the sentences I admire were cast in almost perfect form; nothing can be taken from them nothing added, without harm. Yet Lincoln was not a professional writer. He almost never went to school; of young men of today not one in a hundred had as poor a start as Lincoln. Of all Americans of large equipment I regard Ralph Waldo Emerson as perhaps the ablest writer. Lacking Emerson's enormous technical education, Lincoln was timid, and wrote sparingly. I can point out many specimens of folly in Emerson's writing; none in Lincoln's he intended for the public. Some of his private love letters were foolish, but these were intended for the fire. And no one should be criticized for folly in love.

SYNOPSIS

At the close of the Mexican war, Robin Kershaw, with his bride, rode into northeastern California. Here he found an ideal valley for cattle rais-ing. They christened it Eden Valley. Below Eden Valley is a less valuable Below Eden Valley is a less valuate tract which Kershaw's wife names Forlorn Valley. Joel Hensley settles in the lower half of the valley. There is bad blood over fences and water. Kershaw kills Hensley and the bloodfeud is on. By 1917, Rance Kershaw, his son Owen, and daughter Lorry are Nate all that remains of one clan. Tichenor is the sole survivor on the Hensley side. He goes to help Lorry in her car and finds her father has died of heart disease. Silas Babson, banker, schemes to control the irriga-tion and hydro-electric possibilities of Eden Valley. Nate tells Lorry he and Owen, Lorry's brother, met in France just before Owen was killed, and Nate promised that if he survived Owen he would look after Lorry as a brother might do. Babson makes legal application for the allocation of flood wa-ters to the Forlorn Valley irrigation district. With money advanced by Nate, Lorry clears up her indebtedness to Babson. Nate finds he is falling in love with Lorry. Babson discovers Nate is behind a rival power project. Nate tells Lorry he loves her. She admits she loves Nate, and they become engaged. Babson orders Joe Brainerd, editor of the local paper, to attack Nate as an enemy of the people. This Brainerd refuses to do. Nate comes to Brainerd's rescue financially. The ed-itor celebrates by punching Babson's head.

"Well," Joe Brainerd answered slowly, "I'm certainly glad you're my friend and not my enemy. Do you want me to spread the glad tidings of your contemplated philanthropy to Foriorn Valley?"

"No, keep that news bottled up. I want to have the people meet me with all the acclaim a Roman mob was wont to accord the entrance of the Christian martyrs in the Coliseum. I want Babson to lead them on to make fools of themselves, so I can show him up later for a false leader."

"Almost everybody here calls the other fellow by his first name. My name's Joe. May I call you Nate?" he said."

"The pleasure is mutual, Joe. You may."

They shook hands. And then Joe Brainerd glanced at the clock. "Excuse me, Nate. It's five minutes of three and I have just time to get to the bank and deposit this manna from Heaven. I'll fill your check in for six thousand"—and he did.

Babson glared at the editor as the latter came into the bank, but said nothing until Brainerd was about to depart. "Brainerd, this bank doesn't want your business! Close out your account." "Thanks for the information. I have puffing into the bank in response to the stenographer's summons, Mr. Rookby was crouching in his locked cage, while the demon editor strove to climb over the steel wire netting to get at him.

"Joe, you stop that," Mr. Rooney commanded, grasped the little madman by the seat of the trousers and jerked him down. "Boy, you ain't actin' right."

"You serve Babson's writs of attachment, you fat fool," Brainerd shrieked, and presented Mr. Rooney with a decoration commonly known as a mouse on the eye. Out of his good eye Mr. Rooney observed that his quarry was weeping with rage; so he folded Brainerd to his ample abdomen and carried the lunatic out of the bank, screaming and kicking, and secured him in the local bastile.

"It's war," Brainerd screamed, as Rooney turned the key in the lock. "Babson accused me of selling out. Selling out! Understand? He said I'd sold out! I'm free! I'll print the news, but—you watch my editorials. I'll sizzle like a Roman candle, because I'm free. I'm free, I'm free..." He was stretched out on a bench weeping childishly when Nate Tichenor came over and bailed him out. "The war is on," he sobbed. "The war is on, Nate, and I've fired the first gun."

Center was very apparent to Nate Tichenor when, having called upon Anson Towle, who combined with harness and saddlery and notary public the duties of local justice of the peace, he was informed that Babson had sworn to a warrant charging Joe Brainerd with assault and battery, malicious mischief and disturbing the peace, and that ball had been set at one thousand dollars in each case. "Better lower it, judge," Tichenor suggested amiably.

"That feller," his honor replied, "will stay in Bill Rooney's jail until somebody hands me three thousand." "Orders from headquarters, I suppose, judge."

"You fixin' to get yourself into jail for contempt o' court?" Nate leaned across Towle's desk.

"Yes, I am. And what are you going to do about it, you brainless invertebrate? You're not holding court now, are you? The limit of bail to be set in such cases is five hundred dollars on each charge. Here's fifteen hundred dollars, and you take it and give me an order on Bill Rooney to release Joe Brainerd, or I'll go over to the jail, hog-tie Rooney and take Joe

Brainerd out of jail myself." Probably no man in Forlorn Valley knew less of the law than this village justice of the peace; but he had heard of the Hensley clan and here was the last of that tribe of killers glaring at him so ferociously his Honor trembled. "Well, rather than git into a row with you, young feller, an' have to kill you in self-defense," he decided, "T'll set the bail at the minimum figger. Case comes up for trial at ten o'clock tomorrer mornin'." Babson a message tellin' him to lay off Joe Brainerd or he'd git himself in trouble."

trouble." "You should read up on the law. You can't fine me for contempt alleged to have been conveyed in a mere suspicion on the part of your Honor. I shall not pay the two dollars and what is your Honor going to do about it?" A guffaw went up from the crowded courtroom, nor could all of Bill Rooney's pounding on a table quiet it. As an officer of the court, i.e. balliff,

Mr. Rooney felt that his own dignity had been more or less assailed by Nate Tichenor when the latter had so adroitly managed to upset that of the court. "You just wait a minute, Tichenor." Bill Rooney's voice was as honey. "I'll just fan you, young feller, an' see if you're carryin' a gun without a permit don't go in my jurisdiction." "I am carrying a gun, Mr. Rooney, so I'll spare you the effort of searching me and produce my gun at least one second before you produce yours." Bill Rooney went white and then pink; he wet his lips, and his glance flinched from Tichenor's and rovéd over the courtroom. Then the deputy sheriff had a brilliant idea. "It happens I ain't wearin' my gun this mornin', Tichenor."

Before the words were fairly out of his mouth he was gazing down the barrel of Nate Tichenor's pistol. "Stand up, turn your back on the crowd and lift up your coat-tails," came the ringing order.

Tichenor advanced upon the deputy sheriff, thrust his gun in the official midriff and, with his left hand, unbuckled a belt at Rooney's waist and removed a pistol in a holster. Then he walked up on Judge Towle's dais, broke his own pistol and exhibited a single empty chamber to the gaping crowd.

"An empty pistol is not a more lethal weapon than any other piece of hardware and when worn in a shoulder holster or under the coat-tails, doesn't come under the head of concealed weapons. Here's your gun, windbag"-and returned the wretched Rooney his pistol. "This weapon of mine, which you thought was an army automatic, is the latest model air-pistol. It shoots a tiny pellet that will kill a bird, and I bought it recently to practice pistol shooting by killing blue-jays around my ranch." He turned his back on Rooney. "And now, fellow citizens, you know how brave Mr. Rooney is-in his mind. And you hr, Rooney is—in its mind. And you know just what peculiar thoughts occasionally flit through the mind of your justice of the peace. Your local law mill is in bad shape and ought to be reorganized." He moved down the aisle toward the door, and Joe Brainerd followed. "Nate," said Joe Brainerd. "As one dam erected there. In that way MISS Kershaw and I, with our ranches upstream from that dam, will always be assured of an abundant supply of irrlgating water."

"Exactly. But if Forlorn Valley taps the stream above your ranches, Miss Kershaw, you, and the Mountain Valley Power company will be out of luck. Then, too, the reservoir of the Mountain Valley Power company would never have sufficient water to fill it and your company would be deprived of the ability to manufacture power."

"I don't know the law in the premises, Joe, but this is what I plan to do. I'll attend that mass meeting, listen to what is said and, if it appears to be the sense of the meeting that an irrigation district shall be formed and the water supply secured from Eden Valley creek up in the Handle, I'll tell the people to forget all that bother and expense, that I'll put in a dam on the Mountain Valley Power company's property at my own expense, provided they will enter into contract to purchase water from me and provided, of course, that we can come to terms. My plan is economically sound, and I think they'll be glad to entertain it." "I hope so, Nate, but before you commit yourself in public I suggest that you make certain of your rights. If I were you I'd consult some eminent firm of attorneys whose specialty for six thousand dollars. It's on a San Francisco bank, and as soon as it has gone through clearing I'll give you my check for what I owe the bank and then clean the balance right out. I wouldn't keep tin money in a bank I know is going to bust."

"So you've sold out to Tichenor," Babson jeered.

Little Joe Brainerd's face grew red; he swelled like a turkey gobbler. "You insulted me yesterday and I poked you twice for it," he screamed. "Now you've insulted me again and I'm going to clean up on you." Then he leaped. In reality, he bounded like a tennis ball clearing the railing and landing beside Babson's desk.

"Henry! Help, Help," Babson Shrilled to His Satellite.

"Henry! Help, help," Babson shrilled to his satellite. "Call Bill Rooney," he ordered his stenographer. Then he went down under the impact of Joe Brainerd's furious onslaught, whereupon the editor crawled him and hammered him until his fists hurt him, after which he grasped Babson by the throat and bumped his head against the floor. He was like a desperado of the olden days who, having cleaned out a barroom, could not be happy until he had shot out the lights. He had landed heavily twice on Henry Rookby when the latter interfered, and when Deputy Sheriff Bill Rooney came

"If you're scheming to send Joe Brainerd up for six months without the alternative of a fine I'd advise you to change your mind. And how's that for contempt of court?"

The case was called at ten and at ten-thirty, when Silas Babson, the complaining witness, had not appeared, Nate Tichenor, acting as Brainerd's attorney, rose and moved Anson Towle that the case be dismissed for lack of evidence. "Take my word for it, your Honor, neither Mr. Babson nor any of his witnesses will appear. Mr. Babson has—as I assumed he would—thought it over and decided to let bygones be bygones. The message your Honor carried to him from me yesterday evening was very convincing." Nate "Fined two dollars for contempt of court. Case dismissed." when "Will the court please state in what manner I have been guilty of contempt." "You're intimatin' that I carried SI "B

"Well, that fool justice of the peace had it coming to him for trying to take up the Babson cudgels against you. I concluded to strike another blow for the editor. As for Bill

Rooney—well, I hold an ancient grudge against Bill. At school I used to carry a gun for Owen Kershaw. The teacher found it out and told the principal, who ordered me to leave it home. I propued heaving I thought acadedit refused, because I thought I couldn't afford to risk obedience in those days; so the principal told Bill Rooney on me. Bill was the night watchman then, so he frisked me, took my gun away from me and gave me a firstclass thrashing. I hesitated at making reprisals until I should be older and stronger, when I planned to give Bill a thrashing with his own belt. Today was my first opportunity." "Your clan had a reputation for cold-blooded courage and ferocity, Valley Nate—and you've revived it. So today you're a hero in Forlorn Valley, but when you organize to deprive this valley of the water from Eden Valley creek you're going to be the most hated man in this county." "We "But I'm not going to deprive For-

Tests Show Women Lead Taking Hints, but Men Found Better at Reasoning

If women do not reason as well as do men they are better at taking hints with the result that they may more nearly approach the achievements of men. This is one conclusion drawn from a series of reasoning tests given 384 students at the University of Michigan by the university psychology department, reported in the British Journal of Psychology. Using students in the beginning psychology course as subjects, they were divided into two groups, one of which received some general hints on what not to do when solving the problems presented. The second group received no suggestions. The hints were given in connection with one of these problems and it was solved by twice as many individuals as the other problem.

Because the suggestions were in general advice against depending on habitual patterns of thought and blind persistence in attempting to solve best done when the hints are given, it is concluded from the experiments that the type of reasoner most successful in problem-solving is the one who can suppress or inhibit his habitual line of thought to allow free play of new ideas and thought patterns. The women students were regularly poorer than the men in problem reasoning, even though all the problems were not of a "mechanical" nature, which might be more favorable to men; Those in the group receiving suggestions, however, raised their solving average markedly, apparently benefiting comparatively more from the hints than did the men in the same group. The men's scores in this group rose is water law."

The following morning Tichenor was in San Francisco and, acting upon the advice of his attorney, he sought the offices of Messrs. Brooks, Gagan and Brooks. Gagan received him and listened without interruption while Nate outlined the situation.

"I know all about that Eden Valley proposition, Mr. Tichenor," he then announced. "A Mr. Sllas Babson, of Valley Center, interviewed me on the subject recently, but he did not retain us. In fact, certain aspects of the advice I gave him appeared to conflict with his own opinion of the situation."

"Well, he's liable to be around later to retain you, although I hope to restrain him by employing peaceable and profitable measures. Meanwhile, I haven't any business for you, save to outline for me the legal rights of Miss Kershaw and the Bar H Land and Cattle company in the premises. I'll pay your fee for that, so please fire away."

"You can win any suit filed against you with the exception of a condemnation suit," Gagan said.

"I was quite certain of that before I called upon you, but merely desired to have an expert verify my suspicions, A non-riparian community-Forlorn Valley-is about to form an irrigation district on the strength of a promise of the state water commission that it will allocate to the proposed district the storm, flood, freshet, or so-called waste waters of Eden Valley creek. Miss Kershaw and I make beneficial use of all of the overflow waters of Eden Valley creek every spring, and no waters are waste waters until after they have flown over our lands. The irrigation district purposes tapping the creek near its source in the public domain and appropriating the flood or waste waters before such waters have flowed over our lands.

HERE'S SMART WAY TO "SLENDERIZE"

PATTERN 1853

It is so much pleasanter and simpler to look slender, than to get slender, that half the time it is not worth while to go through all that bothersome business of diet and exercise. At least not until the resources of a smart, slenderizing frock like this have been exhausted. You could easily take off ten pounds and not get anything like the satisfactory results this skilfully cut gown gives. The surplice, the jabots, the double points in the skirt, all are carefully calculated to contribute graceful slim lines as well as chic.

Pattern 1853 is available in sizes 84, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 86 takes 3¾ yards 39-inch fabric and % yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address all orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

THERE WAS STILL HOPE

Picking Florida Strawberries in January.

NEW national playground and game refuge comes into being with the passage by congress of an act setting aside an area of 2,500 square miles of the Florida Everglades as the Everglades National park. This romantic region is a retreat for many nearly extinct birds and a wide variety of animal life found nowhere else in America. Such creatures as the giant ibis, the Everglades kite, the white heron, the alligator, crocodile and manatee are all found there, yet they are being slowly exterminated.

Likewise in this amazing region there now exists a plant life of wild and superbly beautiful palms, orchids, bromeliads and fascinating climbing lianas. But, like the bird and animal life, these colorful glades and hummocks have been threatened with destruction from fires, often left by careless hunters and others. Now the protecting hand of the government is to be raised in time to save them.

Set apart, preserved, and made accessible as a national park, this area will be visited in time by millionsmillions eager for subtropical adventure, but adventure under American skies, amid American customs, and the comforts and excellent direction extended to all by the governmental supervision of the national park service of the Department of Interior. The leading citizens of Florida and many residents of other states urged this important and needed project, which of course is for all the people of the nation.

Florida's map resembles no other state's. In all America there is no terrain so unusual, yet often so uniformly monotonous, as one sees enroute from Pensacola to Key West. From Jacksonville a small boat may cruise all the way down to the last big key, and even far out to the reefs on the way to Havana, broadly speaking, in sheltered waters.

Shore lines of keys and islands alone measure about 1,000 miles. Certainly, nature gave the map-makers a real job when she designed Florida. Today's map, evolved through generations of pucker-browed cartographers, differs much from one issued in France as late as 1750, showing high mountain peaks in the Everglades!

Prepared by National Ceographic Society, Washington, D. C.-WNU Service. out of one lemon," and her statement, after seeing the size of the fruit, is not to be doubted. For the Convenience of Bugs.

Another strange plant is the Monstera deliciosa. It grows a queer, cucumber-shaped fruit. An interesting characteristic of this plant is the big holes in its leaves, like a lace pattern. One wit suggested that nature provided these holes so that bugs may pass from one side of the leaf to the other at their convenience. The big fruit has a spicy flavor suggestive of apples and bananas.

In his haste to clear land for the sites where new homes and towns now stand in south Florida, man of necessity destroyed much of the original growth of cabbage palms and the dense hummock jungles, with their many trees, strangler figs, and undergrowth of ferns. But for the botanists bringing in beautiful flowers, trees and shrubs from all over the tropical world, and the richness of the muck soil, these newly settled regions of Florida would be unsightly in their bare ugliness.

Instead, now painted against a background of green grasses many of which are also imported, and now against backgrounds of stucco houses and garden walls, one beholds the riotous brilliance of many-hued bougainvillaea, named for a great French admiral; the Saharan oleander, the gorgeous flowering cassias from Siam, the flame tree of the Caribbean, the red-flowered hibiscus, the poinsettia, and a host of others. Here, too, is the sacred bo tree from India, the remarkable psychotria from the Comoro islands, which carries bacterial nodules in its leaves instead of its roots. From such exotic immigrants of the vegetable world many small plant oases are forming in Florida. About them there also gather many kinds of tropical insect pests, and tiny animals that feed on the plants. So here, to care for these imported plants and trees as well as the vegetable gardens and citrus orchards of Florida, an intensive science of tropical entomology is being fostered. This work against citrus canker and other pests is of measureless value to the whole nation. Follow the equator around the world, and in many cities near it one may

Exotic Plants Flourish.

Laved by the sun-warmed, mysterious waters that swirl ceaselessly about trade winds that breathe life upon it, Florida is like a giant hothouse. It forms to the imaginative eye a big experimental farm for all America. From 51 foreign lands plants and trees strange to us have been brought here to take up a new home and many are already adapted to our use. From Surinam to Singapore Uncle Sam's explorers have searched the nooks and crannies of the tropical world. As men in Bible times went "Hard work, pushing your invalid forth in quest of camphor, incense and myrrh, so these dauntless botanists have hunted, found and brought to Florida various exotic plants and trees whose fruits we may use as food or medicine. At the home of one famous American botanist in Coconut Grove Dr. David Fairchild was served a vegetable lunch all picked from plants with odd names utterly unknown here > two decades ago. Here is the jackfruit of Ceylon; and the macadamia, a fine table nut from Australia; the chayote vine from the mountains of Guatemala, which bears the favorite vegetable of the Indians of that land; here is Livingstone's garcinia, a delicate maroon-colored fruit discovered in East Africa by the great missionary; here is the capote, or chewing-gum tree, from Yucatan, and the lychee, or favorite fruit of South China; here, also, are, of course, mangoes, papayas and avocados, and the chaya of Central America whose young shoots are as delicate as spinach. In pioneering vegetable gardens one sees the popular taro and yautias, reminiscent of hillside taro patches in Hawaii; the manihot, chief food to millions of tropical peoples, who eat it as we do potatoes; great bushes of 'pigeon peas" from the West Indiesthe pea which, when ripe, forms an ingredient in that famous Bahama Islands dish, "hoppin' John."

Besides these, there is the famed m'chopo or Zulu fig (Ficus utilis), from whose bark Congo women make their dresses; the candlenut-tree from Polynesia and the lebbek tree from the avenue planted by the khedive in honor of the Empress Eugénie when she visited Egypt.

Here, also, is the Limono ponderoso, or giant lemon. One sees it thriving near Miami, but not as yet on a commercial basis. It is literally too big. A woman who had some growing in her garden told a visitor she "made | the Peninsular state.

see botanical gardens, maintained as show places only. But there is no other region even approaching south Florida in size where tropical and subtropical plant life is cultivated on so vast a scale, with strict quarantine and funds for fighting parasites, experimenting with new varieties, and raising their culture to a commercial scale.

Besides the culture of new plants, there are costly private ventures in animal husbandry, reforestation, intensive farming, and group efforts at more efficient picking, packing and marketing methods. From that admirable institution, the Florida department of agriculture, at Tallahassee, there issues a steady stream of bulletins and periodicals on what and when to plant, how to raise it and sell it at a profit-and; just think, alleged humorists used to call native Floridians "crackers."

Tung Oil Industry Growing.

For decades we have used "wood oil," brought from China and other foreign countries for use in our paint and varnish industry. In China, besides its-use in soap-making and for waterproofing, settlings of the burned oil make the "India ink" of commerce. Is it surprising to know that we import the oil from the tung nut to the tune of $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 annually?

Now, as one approaches Gainesville and in the neighborhood of Green Cove Springs, Florida, long rows of tung or wood-oil trees may be seen flourishing here as in a similar latitude in China. They grow in the most unlikely looking ground and their oily proclivity repels insect life.

Some years ago American consuls in China, co-operating with our Department of Agriculture, introduced the seeds of this tree. True, this industry is only in its infancy. Yet it affords another example of Florida's value to the nation as an experimental plant laboratory that will one day not far distant stand out in the development of home industry.

Among exotic fruits that have found a foothold here is the avocado, often called "alligator pear." In old days South Sea sailors called it "midshipmen's butter."

Years ago this fruit was first brought to Florida from Mexico. Since then other selected varieties have been imported. Tons of this healthy, valuable table delicacy are now shipped to northern and midwest markets from

Beyond Comparison in Quality, Construction, Appearance and Price With Any First Quality Tire Made

THE way to create a TIRE SENSATION is to give the people what they want, and Firestone has done this with the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

As millions of people visited the Firestone Factory at the World's Fair last year, we asked this question-"What do you value most in a tire?" They answered-"Give us Blowout Protection, Non-Skid Safety, and Long Wear, at a moderate price." This was a big order, but Firestone has a habit of giving car owners what they want when they want it.

We knew there was only one way to build Quality and Value into a tire at a moderate price, and that was by volume production. We built the greatest tire ever made to sell at these low prices. Car owners are profiting because we found out what they wanted and found the way to give it to them.

The new Firestone Century Progress Tire IS EQUAL OR SUPERIOR to any first quality tire built, regardless of name, brand, by whom manufactured, or at what price offered for sale.

Doubts About Sphinx Photographs of the Sphinx taken from many different angles show that the head is remarkably negroid in type. This discovery raises a doubt. as to whether this wonder of the world was really built by Khephren, successor to Cheops, as now believed.

Certified Milk Certified milk is milk that is certified by a medical commission as having been produced under supervision, according to strict standards which permit a maximum bacterial count, as a rule of not more than 10.000 per cubic centimeter.
