Plans and specifications for the intercepting sewer and force main have been received and manufacturers have been contacted for prices on materials, Edward C. Schneider, engineer in charge of sewerage construction here, announced Wednesday.

The intercepting sewer, a part of the sewerage project begun last December, will be laid parallel to the D. & M. railroad tracks between Sherman street and Second avenue. It is hoped that work on the interceptor will begin within a week, Mr. Schneider said, but that will depend upon the arrival of materials.

Right-of-way for the intercepting sewer, parts of which will run through the gardens of August Libka and Martin Schlechte, has been secured, and arrangements have been made to compensate the garden owners for the loss of produce involved.

The intercepting sewer, 1,070 feet of 10-inch vitrified clay pipe, will end at the pumping station to be constructed in Second avenue between the railroad tracks and Second street.

From the pumping station to the sewage disposal plant there will be laid 2,667 feet of six-inch cast iron force main. Part of the force main will cross Dead creek and will be laid about two feet below the bed of the stream. A coffer dam will be built to dam up the water while this part of the main is being placed.

Approximately 10,000 feet of tile have been placed in the lateral sewers since work was begun last December, Mr. Schneider indicated. Lateral sewers are to be laid in five more streets. This work will be continued during the construction of the interceptor.

Construction of the sewage disposal plant, to be located near the D. & M. tracks between Seventh and Ninth avenues, will begin after the intercepting sewer and force main are completed.

Definite word has been received, Mr. Schneider said, that the Tawas City waterworks project application is still being considered by the Public Works Administration in Washington.

Users of Roads Should Pay For Maintenance

A gas tax sufficiently high for proper maintenance and construction compels the people who use the roads to pay as they use them. In this county where such a large percentage of all traffic is from out of the county an equally large percentage of the road upkeep is borne by those out of county cars. Should the gas tax be reduced, a larger percentage of the upkeep and construction will have to be taken care of by the local public.

The Federal government estimated that 7,000,000 outside tourists visited Michigan during 1933. Practically all of these were from states with a higher gas tax than Michigan has. Shall we reduce the gas tax and let our local people keep up the roads for foreign cars when Michigan already has a very low gas tax (three cents)? In this county there is no county road tax on property. The Iosco County Board of Supervisors unanimously opposes any reduction in the gas tax.

Tawas City B-B's Defeat Selfridge Flyers, 13 to 9

The Tawas City "B-B's" took the Selfridge Field Flyers of Oscoda into camp at the local diamond last Sunday by a score of 13 to 9. The game was interesting despite the fact that it was loosely played by both teams.

Tawas City opened the scoring in their half of the first frame by tallying three runs, and then doubled their score in the second by adding three more. The Flyers came to life in their half of the third to count their first marker, but the locals came right back at them in their half of the same frame and tallied twice. The B-B's then went scoreless until the seventh, and in the meantime the visitors gathered seven runs, three in the fourth and four in the sixth, to knot the count. The Flyers went into the lead for the first time in the seventh when they scored one run, but their lead was short-lived, as the locals came through in their half of the same inning for three runs. The Flyers failed to score during the remainder of the game, while the B-B's added two more runs in the eighth to give them a comfortable margin.

Bill Mallon pitched fine ball for Tawas City during the first seven innings, allowing eight hits and striking out nine men, but his wildness caused him considerable trouble at various times. He passed five men. Louis Frank, who relieved him, retired the Flyers in order in the last two frames and put a dramatic touch to the finish of the game by striking out five of the six men who faced him. The Flyers also used two hurlers, Hepler, who went seven innings, and Sadley, who finished the game.

Score by Innings— R H E
Flyers 001 304 100—9 8 16
Tawas City 322 000 32—13 10 6

WHITTEMORE CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO; DIES

Boy's Companion Escapes Injury As Pair Dash Across Street

Ellwood Bellville, three years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Bellville of Whittemore, was fatally injured about 2:30 last Sunday afternoon when he was struck by a car driven by Dorance Bellville, a cousin.

Ellwood was playing in front of the Ford garage with two little friends. Suddenly he started across the street toward his home, dashing directly in front of the approaching car. The accident was unavoidable, as Ellwood and one of his friends, Dale O'Farrell, who escaped injury, had darted out from behind a parked car. The little fellow was picked up by his father, and hurried to the office of Dr. E. A. Hasty. Later he was rushed to Omer hospital where he died about half an hour after admittance. J. C. Moore, coroner, having been called, death was pronounced as having been caused by a fractured skull.

Funeral services for the boy were held Wednesday, August 22, from the home. Interment was made in the family lot at Bay City.

To the Voters of the 28th District

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of State Senator in the 28th District on the Republican ticket, for the third term.

AUGRES WINS FIRST GAME FROM GLADWIN

Victors Now Lead In Race For Championship

AuGres, National division winner, is now one up in the fight for the championship of the North Eastern Michigan baseball league as the result of its 9 to 4 victory last Sunday over Gladwin, the American division representative in the "little world series."

"Lefty" Gardner, AuGres' ace hurler, is responsible for his team's head start in the race to determine the 1934 league champs. Gardner and Adams, Gladwin moundsmen, staged a fine pitched battle until the AuGres bats began to click in the sixth to break the tension after the lead had changed several times during the early innings of the contest.

Gladwin started the scoring in the game by putting a run over the plate in each of the first and second frames. AuGres came through in its half of the third to score three runs and go into the lead, but only momentarily, as the visiting Gladwin boys tied the count by scoring a run in their half of the fourth. Gladwin again took the lead in the sixth, when they scored their final run. AuGres retaliated in their half of the same frame with a three-run uprising, and then in the eighth followed up with another three-run upsurge to definitely settle the outcome of the first game in the series.

Both teams played raggedly in the field. AuGres having seven errors and Gladwin five. Although the vic-

Baptist Ladies To Stage Big Community Wedding

The Baptist Women's Society will stage a big community wedding on September 5 and 6 at the Community Building, East Tawas.

"Henry's Wedding" promises to be the most outstanding social, political and entertainment event of the season, according to members of the Baptist Women's Society. The most surprising thing about "Henry's Wedding" is that one single ceremony turns out to be a triple wedding. Two unusual features of the production are the "Beaus and Belles of Grandmother's Time" and the "Colored Brothers and Sisters of the Mystic Shrine," not to mention the girls' singing chorus which adds much to the beauty and pep of the whole affair.

The following committees are hard at work on plans for "Henry's Wedding":

General Chairman—Mrs. Isabelle Ferguson.

Cast—Mrs. Frank Dease, Mrs. Braddock.

Advertising—Mrs. Wm. Leslie, Mrs. Beebe, Mrs. Boomer, Mrs. Moeller, Mrs. Quick.

Ticket Committee—Mrs. Allie Bigelow, Mrs. Roy DePotty.

Props and Costumes—Mrs. Eugene Bing, Mrs. Campbell.

No one can afford to miss this big community event.

SECOND SAIL BOAT REGATTA NOW UNDERWAY

Program Opened Yesterday With Large Number Of Boats Entered

The second annual regatta sponsored by the Tawas Bay Yachting Association got under way at 3:50 Thursday afternoon. The first race was postponed nearly an hour and a half because of stormy weather.

The first cup race for class "A" boats was entered by 12 craft. In Dale, skippered by Carl Babcock of Tawas City, was first across the finish line, but because of the five minute handicap under which she was running placed second.

Wednesday morning four boats of the Tawas Bay Yachting Association, the Dale, the Gamble, the Sero, and the Duster, sailed to Point Lookout where they met a fleet of 11 boats of the Saginaw Bay Yacht Club, and joined in a free-for-all race to the State Park dock in East Tawas. The Louise, owned by George Nash of East Tawas, was also in the race, having made the trip to Point Lookout Tuesday night. The race was won by the Y-Not.

Among four boats which came down from Alpena to enter the regatta are two of a class hitherto unfamiliar to Tawas Bay races. These are known as "star class" boats, and are distinguished by their long, slender lines. One of these boats was dismasted on the trip down to Tawas Bay, although both of them were brought under tow. The boat was repaired by Ernest Mueller of Tawas City in time for entrance in Thursday's race, but the high wind and extremely rough seas proved too much for her and she was again dismasted.

The prize for the regular Sunday afternoon trophy races for class "A" boats was won this season by the Dale. The prize was a set of running lights. The same prize was given for the "B" class winner, the Gull.

Our Only Sultan

Sultan of Sulu Is a Modern Ruler.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THE sultan of Sulu, the only oriental potentate ruling under the protection of the United States, has recently been bereft of all political power, although he still exercises religious authority over his Moro subjects in a little group of islands which are part of the Philippines. The new governor of the Philippines, Frank Murphy, decided not to appoint the sultan to the Philippine senate. Although the sultan seldom took his seat, the honor had been accorded him since the time of Gov. Gen. Dwight F. Davis.

"In real life the sultan of Sulu is not the amusing semi-savage that George Ade put into comic opera three decades ago, but a decidedly modern ruler of the Sulu archipelago, which forms a series of oceanic stepping stones from the Philippine group to British North Borneo," writes George M. Hanson, former United States consul at Sandakan, British North Borneo.

"Although he partly acknowledged the temporal sovereignty of the United States in 1899, and completely so in 1915, he retains some of the glamor and ascribed to him by the dramatist and remains locally a potentate to the native Sulus, or Moros. He formerly maintained at Maimbang, on the southern coast of the island of Jolo, a two-story frame 'palace' for himself and six smaller dwellings for his wives and retinue. In 1932 a storm wrecked most of the buildings.

"Purely religious, his title connotes nothing more than leadership of the Mohammedan church within the limits of his sultanate. The sultan of Brunel, British Borneo, the recognized 'royal highness' in the greater part of the territory, is inclined to regard him as a poor relation who pays tribute to Brunel; but nevertheless he is a full-fledged sultan and has authority of a sort over perhaps 300 small islands and that part of British North Borneo with administrative headquarters at Sandakan.

"In Borneo, as elsewhere, the British are good colonizers. They believe it is wiser to placate the Sulus on the Borneo side of the Sulu sultanate than to run risk of trouble; consequently they still pay tribute to the sultan and accord him military honors on his visits to Sandakan. He is given a salute of guns when he comes to collect his annual tribute, and is entertained for two weeks or more by British officials at Government house. Here he receives local native chiefs and other notables.

"Many Wives but No Children.

"The sultan prides himself on being an American, though his domestic arrangements have hardly been of a kind sanctioned in the United States. Under the Koran he may have four wives at one time; and, since he has power to dismiss a wife or divorce her by waving his royal hand, the limitation of number has not been irksome. It is said that in his day he espoused many wives. He has no children, however, and the Rajamuda, or heir apparent (muda is a Malay word meaning 'unripe'), is his younger brother. Although the 1915 treaty recognized him as the spiritual head of the Sulu Mohammedans, its terms were such as will eventually cause polygamy to be abandoned.

"Matrimony is somewhat casual among the Sulus, and it is not unusual for girls of thirteen, twelve, or even eleven to be claimed as brides. When I was United States consul at Sandakan, I had an amusing experience which impressed upon me the peculiarity of native marriage customs.

"Shortly before the sultan's visit to Borneo that year, a German landholder whom the British had ordered out of the country for the duration of the World war requested me to take charge of his rubber plantation near Sandakan. I agreed, since it was then my duty to take over representation of German interests, to go there on each pay day and check the accounts, but I declined to assume official control of the plantation. Thus I became for a short time 'master' of the Malay laborers, pending appointment of a permanent superintendent.

"Upon my arrival on the first pay day, the accountant, a Sinhalese from Ceylon, brought to my attention a plea from Alus, the house boy, who needed an advance of $10, Singapore currency, for wedding expenses. Alus' prospective bride, the intermediary explained, was Canapa, daughter of Samat, the chief tapper.

Canapa Was Too Young.

"Canapa was rather a little girl, and, it seemed to me when her mother presented her for inspection, much too young to be thinking of matrimony. I decided a little delay would do no harm. Although the mother, herself only twenty-four, argued that Canapa was 'long past eleven and ready to marry', I announced kindly but firmly that no girl under twelve could be married without my special consent.

"The mother asked if the wedding could take place when the girl was twelve. Not wishing to seem over-harsh, I assented. I even offered to take a photograph of the supplicants and to give them a print as balm for their disappointment. They eagerly posed for the picture and went away seemingly well pleased.

"On my next visit to the plantation, I sent for Canapa and her mother and gave them a print of the photograph I had taken of them two weeks earlier. They seemed very happy, and the mother asked again if Canapa could be married when she was twelve. Again I said yes, and told her to go ahead and prepare for the wedding. Alus also asked the same question, and I repeated my assurance to him. Canapa would be twelve at the full moon, which would occur, so he had learned from the accountant, on Sunday of the next week.

Entertaining the Sultan.

"A week after this episode the sultan arrived and received official entertainment at government house. I could not let the British outdo me in showing him the courtesy due his position and influence, and accordingly I invited him and his party to the consulate to tea. The guests included the sultana, the rajamuda, the sultan's minister, and several datus, or chiefs.

"I offered them cigarettes and handed the sultan a package labeled 'Egyptian Cigarettes, Turkish Tobacco.' He examined the package critically, and when he saw the hieroglyphics he was delighted. Egyptian cigarettes, he said, were made by the 'followers of the Faithful and not by Christian infidels.' I did not disturb his sublime faith, though I could have told him that those cigarettes were machine made in North Carolina from tobacco grown in Asia Minor.

And So They Were Married.

"While I was entertaining the sultan at the consulate, it occurred to me that it would be a fine thing to have him perform the wedding ceremony. This would be an unexpected honor to Alus and Canapa and no doubt would prove highly gratifying to all concerned. The more I thought of the idea the better I liked it. I would have the young couple come back with me to Sandakan on Saturday, and invite the sultan to another tea, where he could smoke his fill of Turkish cigarettes made by the 'Faithful' in North Carolina. The wedding of Alus the Bajao and the twelve-year-old Malay beauty, Canapa, would follow. The incident was all but closed.

"When I went to the plantation the following Saturday, the full moon that regulated Malay birthdays for the month had waned perceptibly. The accountant met me as usual, but no smiling Alus stood in the doorway to greet me.

"Where is Alus? I asked.

"He is here no more. He and Canapa live in the little house behind the rubber factory with Surinm, the kaboon (gardener), and they went to Sandakan today in the hope of getting to see the sultan."

"Living with Canapa?" I muttered.

"What do you mean?"

"They were married at the full moon, a week ago, as the tuah had said, and he is at this house no more."

"Married a week ago? Who married them?"

"Why you, Tuan; you married them."

"I married them! What are you driving at?"

"It was the full moon, Tuan, and Canapa was twelve. And so they were married, as the tuah had said. They sleep in the house of the kaboon, who is Canapa's uncle. Is not the tuah pleased?"

"Then the whole thing suddenly dawned. The accountant was right, and all my paternalistic plans for giving the house boy and his childlike fiancée a wedding of regal pomp and circumstance had come to naught.

"I had married them, however, unintentionally, but none-the-less certainly. Because of my inexperience with native customs in affairs of the heart, I had spoken fateful words too casually. The tuah had signified his consent and had fixed the time. That was enough."

West Point Cadets Get a Taste of Tent Life

EVERY summer as a part of the regular routine the third and fourth-class cadets at the West Point Military academy are given a chance to live in tents at Camp Clinton. Several members of the third-year class are here seen getting their tent ready for inspection.

Bedtime Story for Children

JENNY AND MR. WREN ARE BUSY

JENNY and Mr. Wren were busy. Yes, sree, they were busy. If there were any busier little folks anywhere Peter Rabbit couldn't imagine who they could be. You see, every one of those seven eggs in that nest had hatched, and seven mouths are a lot to feed, especially when every morsel of food must be hunted for and carried from a distance.

There was little time for gossip now. Just as soon as it was light enough to see, Jenny and Mr. Wren began to feed those always hungry babies, and with hardly time for an occasional mouthful themselves they kept at it until the Black Shadows came out from the Purple Hills. Wren babies, like all other bird babies, grow very fast and this means that each one of them must have a great deal of food every day. A Wren baby often eats its own weight in food in a day, and all this food has to be hunted for and carried back and put into the gaping little mouths.

With seven such gaping little mouths you can imagine how busy the Wrens were. Hardly would Jenny disappear in the little round doorway of her sing. Of course they had to rest once in a while, but it was never for a very long time. Whenever she did stop to rest, Jenny looked worried. She had the care of that big family on her mind every minute.

So at last Peter gave up the idea of trying to find out from her certain things he wanted to know and hopped off to look for some one who was less busy. He had gone but a short distance when his attention was caught by a song so sweet and so full of little trills that he first stopped to listen and then hurried to look for the singer.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: Can you help me out? The inside of my home has been painted and the odor of fresh paint annoys me. What shall I do to take away the smell of the fresh paint? There are nine rooms in the house.

Yours truly,
I. M. CHOKING.

Answer: In a house of nine rooms use the following formula: Fourteen pounds of onions—slice fine; two pieces of garlic—crushed; then, mixed into the onions. Place about one and one-half pounds of this mixture in each room. That will take away the smell of fresh paint.

By the way—if the onions are too strong for you just put another coat of paint in each room.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Do you believe it is right to turn tramps away from your door? Truly yours,
MAY B. U. KNO.

Answer: By no means turn a tramp away from your door. Let him sit there as long as he wishes.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I read in a newspaper where you said: "The most disappointed man you ever met was a chap who has spent six months curing himself of 'halitosis' only to find out he was unpopular anyway. Can you tell me of any other fellow who could be as nearly disappointed as that one?" Truly yours,
I. M. NOSEY.

Answer: Yes; I once knew a fellow who took a bath and the next morning he looked all over the house for the Sunday papers. It turned out that it was Thursday. He wasn't disappointed because he couldn't find the Sunday papers, but his disappointment came when he found out he had taken a bath and it wasn't Saturday.

Dear Mr. Wynn: We are organizing a fishing club and we were told to have our camp on the Delaware river right across from Wilmington, Del. We were also told that fishing there is wonderful. Is it true that the fish, in that spot, bite so easily?

Truly yours,
ANN GLER.

Answer: I'll tell the world those fish bite. They are absolutely ferocious. Why you have to hide behind a tree to put a worm on your hook.

A MOTHER'S LOVE

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IN MY back yard a morning-glory vine Grows wild, and if I do not weed it out, It will destroy each pretty rose of mine, And spill the poppy petals all about.

Just so my love might grow on roots as strong And choke each pretty flowering thought you hold, I must take care! A mother's love is wrong That stifles the young bloom its leaves enfold.

Delayed by Ox Teams

A round century ago, railway locomotives in America frequently had to crawl for hours behind slow ox teams, or wait on a siding while a balky mule changed its mind. For approximately ten years after the first rails were laid down, their use was open to anyone who had a vehicle with flanged wheels, regardless of the type of motive power. Consequently the early trains were slowed down to the speed of an ambling team of oxen.

More $40 Executives Clear Writing Men vs. Women

© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

By ED HOWE

IN MY town we once employed only high-priced experts to manage the street railway; it was not believed an ordinary local man could handle so great a problem. But somehow the experts could not prevent a steady falling off in revenues, or increase in expenses, so a local man, at thirty or forty dollars a week, was given a trial. He turned out to be the most capable superintendent we had ever had. . . . There are thousands of big institutions in this country in need of the services of thirty or forty-dollar a week men in the management. One railroad official gets $165,000 a year, but in spite of his great ability, the income is steadily declining. Are some of our suffering big institutions being robbed by their own officials, through the payment of outrageous salaries?

In a book copyrighted in 1926 a selected list of forty men of considerable age and prominence wrote what is intended to be inspirational messages to the young. All of them, with two exceptions, are unnatural, not understandable, and in some cases, foolish. The head of a great university includes this in his message: "Take God's armor; hold your ground, tighten the belt of truth about your loins, wear integrity as your coat of mail, and have your feet shod with the stability of the gospel of peace; above all, take faith as your shield, to enable you to quench all the fire-tipped darts flung by the evil one, put on salvation as your helmet, and take the spirit as your sword." . . . I try to be honest and decent in my judgments, but to me this is dreadful stuff. It isn't beautiful, it isn't sensible; it has no appeal whatever—no excuse for existence. Yet ask ten average Americans to write for a large audience, and seven will attempt something like it. The writer quoted is probably an excellent man. In his private capacity no doubt his opinions are sound, helpful and interesting, yet when asked to write a message to mankind, he thinks it his duty to write nonsense. It is another of the American ways that cause so much astonishment abroad; no really creditable foreigner, asked to write a message for the young, would sign his name to such meaningless and foolish stuff as this.

Men are meaner than women, yet for the best interest of themselves and their families men try to get at the practical sense of things. Women refuse to do it. One of the most surprising things I have encountered in long years of reading is the statement that there has never been a woman philosopher. Why is it that in the long list of the specially wise there is not the name of a woman? I can see no natural reason why women should not be as wise as men, since they have lived as long, and experienced as much. . . . One explanation is women have fought the men instead of worked with them. Women do not always win, but the general goal of their sex is to make slaves of the men. Winning men work; winning women go in for society, amusements; play cards, dance, or do showy warfare work with funds provided by their victims. . . . The philosophy of every woman is further weakened by the gross flattery showered upon her when she is fourteen to twenty-five years old, and the false impression she thus gets of herself interferes with correct thinking when old and neglected.

The world has agreed for thousands of years that the most dangerous period in the life of men is that of wild oats—from sixteen to twenty-six. . . . So of course an author appears to say the dangerous age is between forty-five and sixty-five. . . . I believe we are all better behaved as adults than we were as savage children; and probably the most dangerous age of savage children is between twelve and seventeen.

I have known many years a woman who is good looking far above the average. As a child she was beautiful and retained it long after nature usually begins its ugly depredation. She was an only child of indulgent and well-to-do parents, but was never "spoiled," and isn't today. . . . I have also noted of her that she is intelligent. Ill-behaved people are always lacking in intelligence; some of them are cunning, as are thieving wolves, but sound intelligence is absent.

Brag, idleness, extravagance, have broken down again. It has happened many times before; it will happen in the future every time we become unbearable smart alecks, and Natural Law is compelled to whip us back to sanity.

The English, French and Belgians, are always saying we never paid our fair share of the war expense. I suppose they will finally demand, as their veterans become older, that we pay them pensions, in our liberal way. Possibly their old soldiers will beat their way to New York on American ships, thence to Washington on American railways, and camp on the Capitol grounds until a bonus and guarantee for the future is given them. (We have congressmen who would say there was a good deal of justice in such a demonstration.)

Pan American Road Steps Nearer to Realization

May Ultimately Link Alaska With Argentina.

Washington.—The longest road project in the world—the Pan American highway—moved another step nearer to realization recently when congress appropriated $1,000,000 to enable the United States to co-operate with Latin American nations in surveying and constructing this new link between the Americas. The sum of $75,000 was also provided for a continuation of reconnaissance surveys in both Central and South America.

"Caravans were trading over the ancient 'Silk Routes' between Asia and the Danube long before Europe ever heard of America. But despite amazing growth of transport in the Western world, to this day no wheel has ever rolled from North to South America—not even from the Rio Grande to Panama," says a National Geographic society bulletin.

"Yet for years men have dreamed of a great Inter-American highway which might connect Alaska with Argentina. Links of such a royal road already exist. Even over many regions in Latin America air passengers can look down on sections of such a highway, used by mules, trucks and motor cars. How to connect these separate links, how to bridge the gaps formed now by mountains and jungles, is the problem to which many governments in the Western hemisphere give increasing thought.

"Mexico, for one, is hard at work on her link. So swiftly has she pushed construction that the 800-mile stretch from Laredo, on the Rio Grande, to Mexico, D. F., has already been often traversed, and is to be officially opened as an all-weather road within a few months—to which function Secretary of State Hull has been invited.

Traffic to Mexico Grows.

"Incidentally, tourist traffic from the United States to Mexico has grown enormously in the past two years. In 1933 about 40,000 Americans visited Mexico. Traffic so far in 1934 is even heavier, and hotels are crowded. Formal opening of motor roads will vastly increase this.

"With a total length of some 12,000 miles from Alaska to Argentina, more than 4,500 miles, over a third of the proposed Inter-American highway, is now usable by motor cars in all weather, chiefly in the United States, Canada, Mexico and Panama. Some finished stretches are also in use in Alaska, Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Colombia, Ecuador, and Brazil. Although most of the roads which could be joined to form South America's part of any such great highway are already passable in dry weather, only insignificant stretches are usable in wet weather.

"Because of our own trade interests in Mexico and Central America, as sources of needed raw materials, and markets for our manufactures, the United States is most immediately concerned with the opening of the motor road from our southern border to Panama. This section is, in fact, the key to early completion of the whole project.

"At the request of the State department, the United States bureau of public roads, aided by highway engineers of the Central American countries concerned, has made a reconnaissance survey of the route from here to Panama. Of the 1,500 miles of highway through Central America, about 500 miles are open to all-weather traffic.

Needed Supplies for United States.

"The survey points out that a road through Central America would penetrate regions that could supply the United States with such needed things as rice, cinnamon, camphor, quinine, rubber, copra, vegetable oils, gums, hemp, etc.

"In further study of trade advantages such a road to Panama would bring us, made in co-operation with the Department of Commerce, the United States bureau of public roads' report says: "Though these countries, and the Caribbean region in general, have been regarded as high-production-cost areas, the cause of this is traceable primarily to lack of cheap transportation, and not to any inherent difficulties of resources, or man-power.

Hot Springs Girl Hailed as Prodigy

Hot Springs, Ark.—Hailed as one of the outstanding child prodigies of the age, Janet Grant, eight, of Hot Springs, has been invited to appear in recital in Washington by the International Art Forum.

Janet spurns jazz, concentrating on the music of the masters. At four and one-half she played Beethoven. At five she mastered Bach's compositions.

She is a master of both violin and piano, performing on both with amazing technique. Despite her unusual feats in music, she is a normal, unspoiled child. She weighs 90 pounds, is active, healthy and is advanced in studies as far as the normal fifteen-year-old.

Adequate highways connecting with the present short water hauls will do much to remedy existing deficiencies. These apply chiefly to agriculture, which will doubtless dominate this region for centuries to come; yet they also pertain to lumbering, with vast hardwood forests thus far undeveloped, and to mining, with mineral resources still undetermined.

"With the funds recently made available by congress, a definite location survey of the road as far as Panama, and a reconnaissance survey of the section from Panama to Argentina, will be made. Such a survey through South America would be highly useful to each country traversed, as a guide to future road-building programs."

Finishes His Fiftieth Reading of the Bible

New York Physician Is Proud of His Record.

New York.—Bible stories never grow old to Dr. William Woodward, osteopathic physician and bookseller of Yonkers, who recently completed his fiftieth reading of the Bible and celebrated his seventy-seventh birthday, at the same time.

Having no favorite passage, Doctor Woodward always reads the Bible from cover to cover, both the New and Old Testaments.

As a student of the Newton Theological institution in 1873, Doctor Woodward began reading the Bible. A friend told him biblical passages could be easily memorized if one read them over 25 times.

Although he had little success in committing the Scriptures to memory, he became so interested in the Bible he has continued reading it since that time.

By 1925 he had read it 40 times, and remembering that by 1934 he would complete his fiftieth year as a Mason, he decided to make his readings of the Scriptures correspond.

Although he reads leisurely, as a rule, he once finished the Bible in 18 days, devoting as many as 12 hours a day to it.

He regards the Bible as the word of God, literally true throughout. In his own words: "Too many people now, and especially in New York city, read the Bible solely to disprove its truths. If there were fewer hypocrites in the Christian church, there would be less talk about the inaccuracies of the Bible."

Among his varied achievements, Doctor Woodward looks with pride on his degree as doctor of osteopathy, his law studies, his editorship of the Charleston News, and his 60 articles for the Encyclopedia Americana.

Prehistoric House Sites Along Missouri Studied

Lincoln, Neb.—Following the cold trail, left centuries ago across the Midwest by ancient man, Dr. Earl H. Bell, of the University of Nebraska, and five assistants are using two and one-half months of the summer near Wynot, Neb., to study prehistoric villages.

They are studying the remains of seventy-five antique habitations, the latest clue to the riddle of the origin of tribes which roamed the prairies hundred of years before Europeans appeared.

Doctor Bell found the house sites last summer on a bluff overlooking the Missouri river. The land there never has been plowed and the depressions, two or three feet deep, show up plainly. Some are sixty feet across.

California Silver Mine Is Now Turning Out Gold

Randsburg, Calif.—One of the world's richest silver mines now turning to gold! To have produced $16,000,000 in silver in ten years, and now to develop gold ore that is running from $30 to $600 a ton, is a record belonging to only one mine in the United States. That is the Kelly silver mine in the famous Randsburg district, says H. F. Royer, general manager.

The mine was located in 1919 where for 25 years miners had tramped over rich outcroppings of silver ore in search for gold. On the first shipment of ore, the smelter company felt so doubtful about its value that they asked for a guarantee on the cost of smelting. That shipment of ore averaged from $300 to $500 a ton.

Later from one shaft, 22 to 17 feet, the mine produced $300,000, which was the richest silver ore ever sent to the smelters. And this whole development has been made on the original $2,500 outside capital and out of the mine itself.

Gold Miners in Brazil Can Sell Only to State

Rio De Janeiro.—By decree of the government all gold mined in the country will be purchased exclusively by the Banco do Brazil for account of the national treasury at the quotation prevailing at the time in the international market.

The government decree vests upon the Banco do Brazil all responsibility as to the purity of the metal purchased. Those engaged in the mining of gold in any form are required to file with the bank a monthly memorandum stating the quantity of metal extracted and the stock on hand. No gold can be offered for sale to private individuals and any who break the law are subject to heavy fines and imprisonment.

World Trade Made Gains in 1933, Says Geneva

Geneva.—World trade improved during 1933 for the first time since the depression started, statistics of the League of Nations showed. Volume was a shade greater than in 1932. Trade in raw materials increased 8 per cent and manufactured articles something less than 2 per cent. Trade in foodstuffs decreased 8 per cent because of the increased self-sufficiency of consumer nations.

There was a decrease in value of world trade, as compared with 1932. This was due to lower prices, as volume was greater.

Parts of Ancient Motor Do Farm Work for Texan

Temple, Texas.—Frank Beverly, Killen farmer, has put the parts of an ancient automobile at work doing chores around his farm.

A windmill, made from automobile parts, is the central unit in Beverly's machinery. It may be connected with a generator that charges six batteries, lighting his home and outhouses.

A second belt from a mill turns a washing machine, a third saws wood, and yet another powers a threshing machine.

FASHIONED FOR LARGER FIGURES

PATTERN 9948

Nothing works quite the magic on the larger figure like a deep cape and slender paneled seamings—and these are the fashion points found in this charming model. The cape is large, scalloped and gracefully flared, and follows the surplice line of the bodice closing. A snug hip yoke and the aforementioned panels keep the figure straight below the waistline. For afternoons in warm weather, georgettes and chiffons are lovely—in colorful prints or monotones. For very dressy occasions lace would be ideal, and for mornings use dimity, swiss or voile.

Delegates to County Conventions

There shall also be elected as DELEGATES to the County Convention of the several political parties as said ward, precinct or district is entitled to under the call of the county committees of said political parties, which number will be indicated by the number of blank lines printed on the official primary ballots used at said election, under the heading "Delegates to County Conventions."

The Board of Primary Election Inspectors shall certify to the County Clerk the names of the electors so elected as delegates, naming the political party upon whose ballots such electors were elected. The County Clerk shall notify by mail each person elected as such delegate and shall certify to the chairman of the committee of each political party of the county, the delegates elected by such political party as delegates to the fall and succeeding spring county convention.

The name of the candidate for delegate to the county convention shall not be printed upon the official primary election ballot, but one or more such names may be placed on each ballot by printed or written lines noted thereon by the voter, or the names may be written in by the voter.

Procedure in Case of Tie

As provided by Sec. 223, Chapter 7, Part III, Act No. 237, Public Acts of 1931—In case two or more persons have received an equal number of votes for delegates to the fall county convention and failure to elect is caused thereby, the Board of County Canvassers shall appoint a day for the appearance of all such persons before the County Clerk, for the purpose of determining by lot among such persons, the right to such office.

Suggestions Relative to Voting

SEPARATE BALLOTS for each political party will be provided. The elector must name the political party of his choice when asking for a ballot and in marking his ballot must make a cross in the square to the left of the name of each candidate for whom he desires to vote, and can vote for only one candidate.

After the ballot is prepared it should be folded so that the initials of the inspector below the perforated corner will be on the outside.

Notice Relative to Opening and Closing of the Polls

Election Revision of 1931—No. 410—Chapter VIII

Sec. 1. On the day of any election the polls shall be opened at seven o'clock in the forenoon, and shall be continued open until six o'clock in the afternoon and no longer; PROVIDED, That in townships the board of inspectors of election may, in its discretion, adjourn the polls at twelve o'clock noon, for one hour, and that the township board in townships and the legislative body in cities and villages may, by resolution, provide that the polls shall be opened at six o'clock in the forenoon, and may also provide that the polls shall be kept open not later than eight o'clock in the evening of the same day. Every qualified elector present and in line at the polls at the hour prescribed for the closing thereof shall be allowed to vote.

W. C. Davidson, City Clerk. Dated July 27, A. D. 1934.

Lawyers on Witness Stand

The Code of Ethics of the American Bar association says that when a lawyer is a witness for his client, except merely as to formal matters such as the attestation or custody of an instrument and the like, he should leave the trial of the case to other counsel. Except when essential to the ends of justice, a lawyer avoids testifying in court in behalf of his client.

Protected With Pitch

Noah's Ark is described as "pitched within and without" to guard it against the floods. According to Pliny, the early Greeks, too, preserved their ships with a preparation of boiled wax, after which "neither the sea nor the wind nor the sun can destroy the wood thus protected."

The Word "Mother"

The word "mother" comes from the Anglo-Saxon "moder," but the root goes far back to the dawn of language, and a similar root is found in India and among many peoples. The first use of the word "mother" is not known.

Who Lamed the Animals?

The story of how prehistoric men first domesticated animals is not known.

They may grow singly or in patches. A few varieties grow as far north as Massachusetts and Minnesota; others are found in Utah, Colorado, Florida, etc. Several have become popular house plants.

Culture

Culture pearls are genuine pearls whose growth is induced. The principal difficulty in producing such pearls is that they frequently have a flat surface on one side where the pearl has been attached to the shell. However, a method has been devised whereby the pearl grows into the mantle of the oyster without touching the shell, and pearls of this type resemble natural pearls so exactly that the difference cannot be discovered except by cutting the pearl open. Culture pearls of this high type can be used in jewelry and string for necklaces just as natural pearls can be.

The board of supervisors granted the petition unanimously and amidst cheers and rejoicings. Babson's speech, in rebuttal to Gagan's, proved to be the masterpiece of his career. He read to the meeting the law under which the district proposed to operate—read it right out of the Code of Civil Procedure, too—and pooh-pooed the idea of a slick metropolitan lawyer trying to frighten honest and intelligent men with crazy bugaboos of unconstitutional law that was and for some years had been embodied in the code. "If this law was unconstitutional," he yelled, "it's unconstitutionality would have been discovered before the bill was even submitted to the legislature; and if it hadn't been discovered then the legislature, a majority of whom are practicing attorneys, would have discovered it; and even if the legislature had, unbelievably, failed to discover it, the supreme court, whose duty it is to pass upon the constitutionality of our state laws, would long since have discovered it. Pooh-poo and a couple of what-nots for the mighty Mr. Gagan! We are not to be frightened by men of straw."

The project moved forward without delay. Sixty days from the date of the approval of the petition by the board of supervisors the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district had come into legal existence, by a very substantial majority of the residents in the area to be irrigated. Silas Babson, tired, but happy and triumphant, was its president, Henry Rookby, who owned ten acres in the district, was the secretary, and the Bank of Valley Center was the depository of the funds of the district.

Within two weeks after the district had come into official being, the state water commission obligingly allocated to it the flood waters of Eden Valley creek. A bond issue was got out within a week; within two weeks the state board certification committee had certified the bonds as legal investment for trust companies and savings banks and, by unanimous vote, Silas Babson was given the job of disposing of them to the highest bidder. A New York house wired in a bid of ninety-one, and after devoting a month to the task Babson decided this offer was one point higher than he could secure locally, so the district closed on the offer and, with the receipt of the money, proceeded at once to spend it.

Although Babson took measures to apprise himself of the return of Nate Tichenor to Eden Valley, his scouts brought him no news of the latter's arrival, although as a matter of fact Tichenor had returned some four months after his departure. He came in over the mountains to the south in a four-passenger cabin plane and landed in the meadow just below the Kershaw ranch-house. Lorry was in his arms before he was half way up to the house.

"Well, I'm all cleaned up in the East," he told her. "How far have you progressed in the settlement of your father's estate?"

"All ready to close as soon as I can find the money to pay the state and federal estate taxes. They aren't nearly so much as I had feared they would be. The cattle, of course, were appraised at the low price existing on you the money to pay the taxes. How soon can you marry me?"

"In about three minutes, if we had a license and a preacher handy." "Justice, long delayed, maketh the heart sick," he orated. "Likewise marriage—after you've made up your mind. You skip right into the house, climb into your Sunday dress, throw a few things in your old straw suitcase and meet me here in ten minutes. We've just about got time to get over the mountains and into Reno before dark. In California we have to announce our intention to get married and then wait for three days, in case we decide to change our mind. My mind is made up, so we'll take our trade to Nevada and avoid annoying delays."

"You're a man after my own heart," Lorry cried joyously, and came into his arms. He held her close, his finger under her chin, tip-tilting her sweet face toward him, the while he appraised her hungrily, comparing her with the girls of her age in the world he had known before the homing instinct had brought him back to Eden Valley. He thanked God she wasn't soft, that she had high courage, initiative, and the power of instantaneous decision in an emergency; that hers was the old, fierce, unquestioning loyalty that was his own heritage. A man could rely on her always (he told himself), know always exactly where she stood. She was incapable of fibs, evasions, or the tears that camouflage little feminine deceptions. Her code was a masculine one, but of a quality rare enough in this decadent generation—the code of a gallant gentleman, plus that of the very finest of her own sex. Yes, she had character, courage, humor, self-reliance, capabilities of extreme self-sacrifice, tenderness, helplessness—an angel with a touch of the devil in her. . . . Well, better a touch of the devil than a trace of the cat.

"Dear little outlaw, I love you so," he murmured, and kissed her a dozen times. "Make it snappy. Time and visibility wait for no pilot."

Half an hour later, as they roared upward in great spirals to gain altitude before crossing the mountains, they looked down on Eden Valley; to that tragic creek winding its silvery way through the green meadows, to the little black dots that were Lorry's cattle and the little white dots that were the home-made headstones, chiseled from native granite and marking the graves of all the Hensleys and Kershaws that had gone before.

"I wonder what they're thinking of—up yonder?" the girl shouted in his ear.

He pretended he did not understand her.

"I've been so busy I couldn't get started on that new house I planned," he shouted back, "but we'll tackle it the minute we get back."

So she knew he had, at last, left his dead and his old bitter memories behind him; and there, above Eden Valley, as her little hard, calloused, capable hand closed over his, she dropped hers also; she shed happy tears in the knowledge that never again would hard work, penury and loneliness be her portion. The sun was setting on Eden now, but when, for them, it should rise again on Eden, the serpent would be gone.

In June of 1927 the news spread through Forlorn Valley of the return of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Tichenor to Eden Valley. Shortly thereafter huge trucks laden with lumber and building materials came through Valley Center from Gold Run, bound for the old Circle K ranch. Immediately Crenshaw, the manager of the Valley Center lumber yard, motored up to the Circle K to see Nate Tichenor and ask for a share of this new business. He had been received courteously and told that no orders for lumber or building material could be given him because Silas Babson was one of his heaviest stockholders.

When Crenshaw returned to Valley Center he informed the local chamber of commerce of the projected outlay of a great deal of money in Eden Valley. Nate Tichenor and his wife had merged their ranches, the old Bar H headquarters were to be razed and the old Circle K log ranch-house was to be given over to Rube Tenney and his family, after the Tichenors had erected on the Circle K a country home that was to cost not less than a hundred thousand dollars. There were stables and kennels to be erected also, grounds to be laid out and flowers planted. The lunatic Tichenor was even going to build a nine-hole golf course and a huge swimming pool. Crenshaw thought that the payroll for labor necessitated in these operations should go to Valley Center, so the vice president of the chamber of commerce called upon Tichenor to suggest it.

"Forlorn Valley in general and Valley Center in particular wishes to forget the past and be friendly with you, Mr. Tichenor," he stated. "As proof of that feeling I call your attention to the fact that we gave you the use of the fresher waters of Eden Valley creek this spring when we found we couldn't use them ourselves, owing to the necessity for concreting our diversion canal. We didn't have to do that, but we desired to make a friendly gesture."

"My dear man, I ordered those flood-gates opened myself and I had men guarding them with rifles so that nobody would close them until our lands had had their annual soaking. That's the sort of friendly gesture I made to Forlorn Valley. I was on my honeymoon at the time and didn't want to bother with the law, so I just went back to the old Eden Valley custom. It worked. And I'll engage no labor from Valley Center or Forlorn Valley. I do not like anybody in that section of the county. And here's another message you can take back with you; within two years I'll own every acre of Forlorn Valley that is included in the irrigation district; I'll fence it and run cattle over it. At least the wells will supply drinking water for my cattle. And when the farmers in the district have been dispossessed there will be no further necessity for the thriving town of Valley Center, so it and its chamber of commerce will disappear; Valley Center will then be a ghost town, inhabited by ghosts."

The vice president of the chamber of commerce was irritated but he was also amused. "Is there no way in which we can escape this horrible fate that awaits us?" he pleaded in mock distress.

"Yes, there is," Tichenor replied seriously. "Get rid of that buzzard, Babson, and start doing your own thinking. Show an inclination to be fair and I'll meet you two-thirds of the way toward an amicable adjustment of this water war. Continue to permit Babson and his paid newspaper to print lies about us and ridicule us, and I'll smash you. And after I've smashed you I'll buy up the pieces and own the district. I tell you, when I get through with the state of California that state will be out of the business of giving away water it does not own and that document Babson got from the state water commission will be perfectly worthless."

His visitor gazed upon Tichenor humorously. "What a long tail our cat's got," he murmured.

"Oh, I'm only a common little bobcat now," Tichenor replied easily. "Wait until I develop into a tiger—and then watch my tail swish!"

CHAPTER XIII

The Forlorn Valley Irrigation district proceeded at once to the task of concreting its huge diversion canal. The job was completed by November first. Almost from the beginning the diversion canal ran half full and Lake Babson commenced to take form. The snowfall was unusually heavy that year also, but spring came early and the run-off due to the melting snow commenced about the middle of January.

This was the season of overflow in Eden Valley creek, the season of God's gift of free irrigation to the Circle K and the Bar H, and Nate Tichenor, watching the water's rise, knew that in another twenty-four hours the fresher would be on, so he and Rube Tenney and half a dozen armed men opened the floodgates, in defiance of the ditch-tender's protest and the flood roared on down Eden Valley. The ditch-tender immediately mounted his horse and rode down to Valley Center to report this act of vandalism to Silas Babson, who motored into Gold Run and, as president of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district, petitioned the judge of the county superior court for an order restraining Nathan Tichenor, et al, from interfering with the orderly diversion of the flood waters of Eden Valley creek to the canal of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district.

To Babson's vast amazement the judge declined to issue the restraining order. "I hold, Babson," he informed the latter, "that the law under which the state water commission has been empowered to allocate to non-riparian owners the flood or waste waters of riparian owners, is unconstitutional and that, hence, Forlorn Valley has no legal right to the flood waters of Eden Valley creek."

"If You Do You'll Go to the Pen," Babson Warned.

tional and that, hence, Forlorn Valley has no legal right to the flood waters of Eden Valley creek."

"Why hasn't our Supreme court declared the law unconstitutional?"

"Because nobody has carried a water fight up to the Supreme court."

A week had gone by since Nate Tichenor and his men had opened the flood-gates up in the Handle and as yet Babson had not been able to secure legal relief. Upon his return to Gold Run, therefore, he called upon the sheriff of the county and requested that official to take half a dozen of his deputies and guard the employees of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district against attack by Nathan Tichenor et al, when the former closed the flood-gates in defiance of Tichenor's dictum. In the interest of peace the sheriff consented and the following day the gates were closed without interference from Nate Tichenor and his men. Indeed, not one of them appeared to protest the closing of the gates.

The next morning Nate Tichenor dropped in at the Bank of Valley Center and said to Babson:

"I merely dropped in to tell you, Babson, that while you were scurrying around a whole week seeking an injunction against my wife and me you couldn't get our lands had a grand soaking from that week's overflow. We would have liked another week of it, but when you brought the sheriff and his deputies around I concluded it was the part of wisdom to be satisfied with the water we had already received. But as summer advances I warn you we'll have to have our legal share of that water and if we do not get it I'm going to put a couple of hundred pounds of dynamite under that concrete diversion dam of yours and blow it out."

"If you do you'll go to the pen," Babson warned.

"Only my kind forbearance has kept you out of it. Do not forget Pitt River Charley. You do not know where he is but I do. I may bring him back to testify against you."

"You couldn't convict me."

"Perhaps not, but I can shake public confidence in you, you smug hypocrite. You realize, of course, that when the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district was formed and a deed of trust on all of the lands embraced in the district was given, with a San Francisco trust company as trustee, to secure the bond issue the district floated, all of the first mortgages and deeds of trust on lands within the district given to your bank to secure prior loans have now become second liens against those lands. You realize, do you, that if the Forlorn Valley Irrigation district should go bust the foreclosure of the deed of trust given by the district will automatically wipe out the second liens held by your bank?"

Food and Mental and Physical Work

DURING the World war, nations found it necessary to conserve their food resources, and experiments were conducted to learn just how much food an individual needed to do his mental and physical work properly.

The Nutrition laboratory of the Carnegie Institution conducted experiments which gave very interesting information.

Balanced or "all round" diets were used. One squad of ten subjects received 3,000 calories (heat units) of food daily, the other only 1,800 calories, through a period of two months. Mental addition showed the full ration squad to gain through practice double their accuracy in the first month, while the reduced ration squad had increased their accuracy only half at the end of two months. The reduced ration squad also made 50 per cent more errors than the full ration squad at the end of the second month.

Similar differences in memory appeared between the two squads, but the reduced ration squad actually "went back" in the memory test, during the course of the second month.

Using the tuning fork, and also sensitivity to electric currents, showed the reduced ration squad had gone backward.

In commenting on these brain tests, Dr. Donald C. Laird, Colgate university, believes that it is the better general physical condition of the full ration squad that gives them the superiority rather than any real damage to the brain of the reduced ration squad.

What about the physical or body tests?

In a "steadiness" test made by tracing with a pencil between two parallel lines, the squad on reduced rations not only made more mistakes but showed less improvement in two months' practice than the full ration squad did in the first month.

Strength of grip was decreased 8 per cent by the reduced diet, the left hand being more affected than the right.

Speed of eye movement was reduced 5 per cent in the reduced diet group. Finger movement was also reduced in the reduced diet group.

What do these experiments teach us?

They teach us that the body can adjust itself so that life is not endangered by the reduced diet, but it can readily be seen that mental and physical ability are certainly lessened.

Physical Examination at School

YOU may have a youngster starting off to school for the first time. If you have sent other children to school you are acquainted with some of the regulations and have learned that these regulations have all been adopted to help your child.

If, however, this is the first time you have sent a youngster to school try to remember that regulations are for the good of the majority.

One of the regulations is that your child must be examined by a nurse, doctor and dentist.

Instead of becoming indignant about this because you have had your child under the care of a child's specialist, be wise enough to take advantage of these examinations by those who see and examine your child from a different standpoint than that of the specialist.

While food is the most important point in the health and safety of children, and our children's specialists save thousands of lives yearly, there is the general physique or structure of the child, the way it stands or sits, its walk, the straightness of the spine, the condition of the teeth as to straightness, the presence of little cavities in the teeth, the shape of the mouth and face, the condition of the nose and throat and many other things about youngsters that school nurses, dentists and doctors have learned in their experience with thousands of children.

The very fact that you object to this complete examination which means the removal of the child's clothing so that the back and spine may be examined, will get your youngster off on the wrong foot at school. He may get the idea that he should have a little different treatment at school than that given to other youngsters and may have trouble adjusting himself to the other youngsters.

And as you know, it is this adjusting of children to regulations, to the rights and privileges of other children, that keeps them from being "odd" and possible mental cases in the future.

Instead of objecting to it, make sure that your child gets this thorough examination.

Engineers Seem Unable to Find Ideal Light

Patents galore have been granted to electrical engineers for detail improvements in the two basic inventions for lighting purposes—the incandescent lamp and the arc light, both of which were invented more than fifty years ago.

Since then there has been an urgent need for a light with all the colorfulness of the arc, the simplicity of the incandescent lamp, and of vastly greater efficiency than either the arc or the bulb.

For years, hosts of engineers have been working on this problem. True, they have brought out a great number of special and novel types of light sources, but the universal electric illuminant is only now being approached, in the form of a recent sodium lamp.

Yet, even this lamp, which is all that the many great engineering staffs can show for years of work and fortunes spent in "research," though five times more efficient than the incandescent lamp, is still a far cry from the basic invention called for.—H. Olken in the Scientific American.

Pure Natural Mineral Water May Help

MILLIONS FIND IT VERY BENEFICIAL

For over 2,000 years the great mineral waters of the World, given to us by Mother Nature, have proven themselves very beneficial in the treatment of "rheumatic" aches and pains, arthritis, sluggishness, certain stomach disorders and other chronic ailments.

It has been estimated that Americans alone have spent $100,000,000 a year in going to the mineral wells and health resorts of Europe. Over $1,000,000 of these foreign mineral waters are imported annually into this country to help suffering humanity.

But it isn't necessary to go to Europe to find fine natural mineral water. We have many marvelous mineral waters in our own country—many excellent health resorts to which you can go for the mineral water treatment for "rheumatic" aches and pains.

Most surprising of all, however, is the fact that today you can make a natural mineral water in your own home at a tremendous saving in expense. For Crazy Water Crystals bring you, in crystal form, healthful minerals taken from one of the world's fine mineral waters. Just the natural minerals. Nothing is added.

All you do is add Crazy Water Crystals to your drinking water, and you have a great mineral water that has helped millions to better health and greater happiness.

A standard size box of Crazy Water Crystals costs only $1.50 and is sufficient for several weeks thorough treatment for rheumatic pains. Crazy Water Co., Mineral Wells, Texas.

Traveling Goat-Herding Dog Always Welcomed by Ranchmen of Rio Grande

The overlord of the goat ranches of the Big Bend region of the upper Rio Grande border is a wandering dog which first made his appearance hereabouts several years ago. Where the dog came from is a mystery. The first time he was seen in the remote section was when he showed up one morning at the goat corral on a ranch near La Jitas crossing of the river, notes a Terlingua, Texas, correspondent in the New York Times.

The dog took charge of the flock when the animals were turned out of the corral and all day long he herded them like a veteran. He was so efficient in the work that the Mexican herder left the flock entirely in the dog's charge. After staying at the Hernandez ranch for a few weeks, Pancho, as the dog was called, disappeared and appeared next at another goat ranch 15 miles down the Rio Grande. Pancho again took charge of the flock of goats and soon came to be what was apparently a fixture in each day's herding routine. Tiring of this particular job, the dog made his way to another ranch where he assumed full leadership in taking care of the goats.

The wandering of Pancho has continued year after year until he is now known to ranchmen up and down the river for a hundred miles. He is always accorded a warm welcome when he arrives at a ranch, and his faithful herding of the flocks is so well recognized that the goats always are placed in his full care. Pancho is an adept in protecting the kids and even full-grown goats from attacks by wolves and Mexican panthers. He has to his credit many victorious encounters with these predatory pests.

Memorial to a Donkey

Along the wild southern California coast at Carpinteria a trailer sagged under the weight of a granite tombstone, rattling across the desert behind a motor car, on its way to the grave of Cinnamon Pete. Pete was a donkey—just an ordinary donkey. But he became famous because he was so clever at stealing hay, when farmers were paying $80 for it at Virginia Dale, Calif. Eventually the farmers subscribed a fund to feed Pete—it saved them their fences, which the donkey used to kick down in his determination to get at the hay. Now they have given him a memorial in imperishable stone.

See Britain's Past in Heraldry Show

Relics of History Opened to Public for First Time.

London.—For the first time in history the public was admitted to the sacred precincts of the college of heralds, when that institution held an exhibition here to celebrate the four hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the granting of its charter by King Richard III.

The Herald, Clarenceux king of arms, Lancaster herald, Rouge Dragon pursuivant, under the direction of the hereditary earl marshal of England, are inextricably linked with the spacious days of British history, when men were all brave and jousts and tournaments occupied that place in public affection now filled by ball games and the gridiron. Even today the college is an extremely busy institution, particularly when a coronation or some other magnificent state function is in prospect. Its everyday work calls for the qualities of artist and lawyer, poet and magistrate, master of ceremonies and arbitrator.

Heraldry is a fine art which is also an exact science, and it is one of the duties of the college to direct and control the design of the crests and coats of arms with which the most newly created lordings wishes to emblazon his automobile and household silverware. Further, the college renders indispensable service to students of history, chivalry and genealogy, with its ancient records and its deep knowledge of precedent and custom.

Stresses Value of Tradition.
"In times when many disruptive tendencies are at work the value of tradition is brought home to those who have the stability and continuity of our civilization at heart," said the foreword to the catalogue of the commemorative exhibition, and that sentence may help to give some understanding of one of the most amazing and fascinating shows ever seen in London.

The college of heralds is so old—it was probably in existence long before its charter was granted in 1848—that it refers to centuries as lightly as others speak of years. In this exhibition were seen pedigrees of the Fifteenth century which trace the origin of the Saxon kings back to Adam and Eve. This magnificent vellum makes the intriguing suggestion that Adam "died of the goute."

Earl of Lemonade Recorded.
The college of heralds touches at so many points in the history of these islands that it was not surprising to see a prayer book of King Charles II, lent by King George; while near by was the pedigree of Admiral Lord Nelson, and signed in the admiral's own shaky hand. This tree is of very modest size, compared with some of the vast charts which were on display.

The negro slave, Henri Christophe, who became king of Hayti, created a nobility of his own which included two peers with the high-sounding titles of "the Duke of Marmalade" and "the Earl of Lemonade." The original register of arms of this exotic nobility was in the exhibition.

Among grants of arms was the draft of a grant to John Shakespeare of Stratford-on-Avon, father of the poet, and an interesting note in defense of his granting these arms by the garter king of arms of that day, when it was claimed that they too closely resembled the arms of Lord Mauley.

Of particular American interest was the picture of Herald's proclaiming the Peace of Versailles in 1783, by which the independence of the thirteen colonies was recognized by the mother country.

Avoidable Murders,

By

LEONARD A. BARRETT

Accidents by automobiles seem to be on the increase. Fatal injuries caused by automobile accidents in 1933 numbered slightly over $50,000, and deaths amounted to 29,900, an increase of 700 over the previous year. Occasionally, one hears of an insurance company cancelling the double indemnity payable on death by accident. The premium on accident insurance has also increased due to the additional hazards involved. We are not surprised at this when we read in a recent city report that during the "first five months of 1934 there were 540 fatalities, or 106 more than in the corresponding period of 1933."

Upon examination of exhaustive reports on automobile accidents occurring last year, one is astonished to discover that the majority of these accidents are not caused by mishaps to old or second-hand cars, but to new cars.

Oriental Touch

There is an oriental feeling in this white crepe-tunic dress for afternoon wear. White dotted navy blue belt and lacings through the buttons are a strong color accent. The hat, bag and shoes carry out the white navy color scheme.—From Milgrim.

Bad brakes or weakened parts of old cars are frequently blamed for these misfortunes, but investigation has proven this is not true. If the blame cannot be placed on the condition of the car itself, where else shall we look for it? There is only one other source, and that is the driver himself. Undoubtedly most of the accidents are caused by haste. Speeding, when the way is clear, is not so much at fault as haste to pass another car, or to beat a red light. Many persons try to save ten minutes of time with no definite idea in mind what they will do with that ten minutes after they have saved it. Just the idea of "getting there" is at the basis of most of our troubles. Poor judgment may also be put down as a contributing cause which prompts one to take unnecessary risks. Downright recklessness is a serious fault. This spirit of indifference to consequences may be caused by drink or certain abnormal mental conditions. Doubtless there are some persons from whom the privilege of driving a car should be taken away. The fact that in the majority of our states any person, regardless of fitness, may drive a car, in itself presents a very serious hazard. The public should at once be spared the danger from irresponsible drivers.

Is the remedy for this menace to be found in legislation? Increased police vigilance may help some, but with the increased traffic it seems impossible to make this efficient. Watch the other fellow—take no chances, seems to be the wiser course.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

IT IS a good idea for children to have small allowances. Pin money was the name given to allowances which were meant to be spent on trifles. This was when pins were scarce, and women wanted money with which to buy them. Pins were not considered essential, but desirable luxuries which indicated income above the necessities of life. To have pin money was a mark or evidence of riches. Today with pins a common commodity and necessary articles, the term pin money has been superseded by that of allowance.

I have dwelt on the name pin money, partly because mothers can help their little folk to earn their allowances by picking up pins. When I was a little girl I was given a penny for each six pins I picked up off the floor. Pins from anywhere else could not be included. Needles counted a penny each. They were scarcer and considered more dangerous to have where they could be trodden on, and perhaps broken. You can imagine how clear the floors were kept from both pins and needles, and how we children revelled in the days when the seamstress or the dressmaker came to the house to work. Today vacuum cleaners can be damaged by gathering up pins and needles, so why not let the youngsters earn some pin money by keeping the floors free from pins and needles, and thereby help fill their wee purses or banks with the proceeds of their labor?

Mother's Helpers.

Mothers can make their little folk feel they are making money and this is so like grown-ups in the business world, that they rather relish the idea. At the same time she can be getting the youngsters to help her in her housework. For example I know of one mother who used to put a penny on the window sill of each bedroom where she wanted the beds made. The penny went to the child who made the bed in the room. I can assure you the beds were made early in the day. The mother inspected the work, and commented on it favorably when the beds were well made, and made suggestions of how to improve the making when she was not satisfied. She did not find fault, but made helpful suggestions, such as telling the child how to smooth the under bedclothes well to make the spread smooth, etc.

There are always some tasks for little hands to do and they will be willing hands if they get some remuneration for their labor. After all this is one way of helping children to learn what it means to be self-supporting. It is a method which works to the advantage of the employer, who is mother in this case, and the employees, who are the children.

The Worker and Her Work.

Once upon a time when there was no depression at the moment, a great thinker, John Ruskin, wrote "No amount of pay can ever make a good soldier, a good teacher, a good artist, or a good workman." It is a saying that contains an undeniable truth. It is not pay which makes any work good, although good work is worth good pay. Just what good pay is depends upon the age or era. For example, in the World War prices soared to phenomenal heights. In the recent depression prices were extremely low. Just now there is the gradual return to the normal. But whatever the pay for the work, its excellence should not be influenced. The worker should endeavor to reach a high level of excellence and maintain it.

The underlying idea in the saying quoted is easy to find. There is a personal equation in all work whether it is craftsmanship, cooking, carpentry, plumbing—and so through all trades and arts. The worker decides whether he will do his or her best, or whether it shall be good only when the pay is high. The crudity of making the money value the criterion of excellence is recognized in a moment. And yet there are persons who slight their tasks unless pay is high.

"Courting Mirrors" Among Antiques in Alden Home

Duxbury, Mass.—Two "courting mirrors" used by the Pilgrims when they wanted to ask young women to marry them are among the treasured antiques at the John Alden home here.

They hang in a bedroom of the three century old house.

In those days, when a young man was about to propose, he carried a "courting mirror" to her home. When he was admitted he laid it on the living room table. If she picked it up and looked into it during his visit, it was her way of accepting him. If she did not gaze into it, the young swain was out of luck.

The John Alden house is the only one in existence in which any of the original Pilgrims lived.

FILTHY HOUSE FLY MENACE TO HEALTH

Millions of deadly disease germs are carried on the house fly's body, mouth parts, feet and wings, and dropped, rubbed, or washed off by the fly on foods, drinks, wounds, or on the eyes, lips, or hands, of children and adults. They are also deposited in the fly's feces (fly specks) or through regurgitations (fly spots). In this way the house fly contaminates and infects everything with which it comes in contact. Ohio's Topography
The most peculiar feature of Ohio's topography is a low, flat ridge called a watershed, which winds across the state from the middle of the western boundary to its northeast section. On a farm, seven miles west of Mansfield, upon the actual divide at an elevation of 1,265 feet, stands a barn from whose eaves the rainfalls flow from one side into the Lake Erie basin and from the other into the Ohio river basin.
