RAM TRUCK WILL VISIT COUNTY SOON

Exchange Day Planned For Thursday, October 11 At Fred Latter Farm

A county ram exchange day will be held Thursday afternoon, October 11, beginning at 1:30, at Fred Latter's farm three miles north of Whittemore, one mile east on M-55, and one-half mile north.

The truck load of rams to be sent by the Michigan Pure Bred Sheep Breeders' Association has been selected according to standards set by Michigan's leading breeders. Most of the Michigan breeds will be included, but if special individuals are desired, it is advisable to place an advance order. This can be done through the county Agricultural Agent, or the Animal Husbandry Extension department, Michigan State College. Lambs and ewes will be brought only on special order. Sheepmen having pure bred rams to exchange are requested to bring them to the meeting.

The price of rams this year will be according to quality and age, and will be about the same as that of a year ago. Those wishing financial aid can arrange for it on exchange day. Assistance will be furnished by the Michigan Livestock Exchange, Detroit.

An educational program will be conducted at the meeting. This will consist of demonstrations in judging and breed type selection. Other timely topics, such as management of the flock during the fall season, early winter feeding, lamb grading, and ewe culling will also be discussed.

Further information concerning the exchange day meeting can be obtained from the county Agricultural Agent.

Child Health Committee Will Meet At Oscoda

The regular monthly meeting of the Child Health Committee for Isoco county will be held at Oscoda on Tuesday afternoon, October 9, at 2:30. Everyone interested in child health work should attend. An interesting program is being planned. Dr. M. C. Keteck, Children's Fund dentist for our unit, will address the group.

At the September meeting held in Tawass City the following program committee was appointed: Mrs. J. Harrington of East Tawass; Mrs. Duell Pearsall of Hale, Mrs. Wm. Davidson of Tawass City, Mrs. Roy Leslie of Whittemore, and Mrs. Angus Smith of Oscoda. The program for each month has been well planned by this committee. Plan to attend each meeting this year.

Our Children's Fund nurse for Isoco county, Miss Ethel Hoffa, has been at work since August 1. She is carrying on Miss Cowgill's work very efficiently and may we all give her the splendid cooperation that her work deserves.

School Notes

High School

The following students are on the high school honor roll for September: Vernon Davis, Isabelle Dease, Leslie Frisch, Philip Giroux, Leonard Hoshbach, Myrton Leslie, Marguerite McLean, Nelda Mueller, Mildred Quick, Frieda Witzke.

Our baseball team won two games during the past week, both games being with Whittemore. We defeated them at Whittemore by a score of 14 to 3 and then won again at Tawass City by a score of 11 to 2.

The enrollment of the violin classes continues to grow. There are now twenty-five pupils. The high school classes started this week while the grade groups will meet for the first time next week.

PCA Chief Is Enthusiastic Over Farm Loan Prospects

Returning from a conference in St. Paul attended by the presidents of all of the 88 Production Credit Associations of the Seventh Farm Credit district, Otto V. Klein, vice-president of the West Branch Production Credit Association, says he is enthusiastic over prospects for making this association a permanent and useful lending institution for the farmers of Isoco county and the other territory within this association, which includes also Crawford, Ogemaw, Oscoda, Alcona, Roscommon and Gladwin counties.

"I never realized until this conference, the volume of loans that these Production Credit Associations are making," said Mr. Klein. "It was

TAWAS BOYS DEFEAT LINCOLN SUNDAY, 8-1

Lixey Holds Alcona County Champs To Six Hits

Walter Laidlaw and his Tawass boys journeyed north last Sunday where they took Lincoln, the Alcona county champions, to town with a score of 8 to 1. The Tawass boys collected only eight hits off Medor, Lincoln's ace, but these timely hits combined with four free passes, excellent base-running, and taking advantage of every opportunity served to pile up a score too large for the opponents to overcome.

Mervin Lixey, performing masterfully on the mound for Tawass, proved too mysterious for Lincoln to solve. He allowed six well scattered hits and was in command throughout the game.

Next Sunday, October 7, the same team, a combination of East Tawass and Tawass City stars, will meet Mayville's fast team here. Come to Tawass City's ball park Sunday and help the boys to another victory.

Matthews Found Guilty Of Violating Conservation Law

One of the most interesting cases that will be heard at this term of court before Judge Herman Dehnke was disposed of here Wednesday when Edward Matthews of Oscoda, a commercial fisherman, was found guilty by a jury of catching and selling undersize white fish.

Conservation Officer Arthur Leitz of Isoco county found the fish in Matthews' possession on August 20. Leitz seized the box of apparently illegal fish and kept them in storage in Bay City until Wednesday, when they were used for evidence.

This is the third time Matthews has been arrested for similar offenses, but the first time he has been brought to circuit court. The other cases were disposed of in justice court.

PRESCOTTS TO RE-OPEN STORE TOMORROW

New Hardware To Be Under Managership Of J. L. Carroll

Saturday, October 6, will mark the reopening of the Prescott Hardware at Tawass City. It had been closed since 1931. Justin Carroll of East Tawass, formerly of Carroll and Mielock, will be in charge. Mr. Carroll is an experienced hardware man and is well known in the county.

The C. H. Prescott & Sons' hardware, one of the most complete hardware stores north of Bay City, was started as a general supply store in the late seventies when C. H. Prescott, Sr., began lumbering operations in this county. Established at a time when Tawass City consisted of merely a few rude shacks and a number of sawmills, and all freight was brought in either by boat or over the tote-roads from Alger and Standish, the store flourished throughout the years, and came to be an institution in the county.

The first location was what is now the Masonic Temple. At that time the store served mainly as a supply depot for the Prescott lumber camps. Becoming, finally, a general merchandise store handling dry goods, groceries, and hardware, the concern outgrew its first building, and a two-story brick structure was constructed. In later years the dry goods and grocery departments were taken over by other interests, only the hardware department remaining under the original ownership.

Mrs. Winifred M. Turner

Mrs. Winifred M. Turner died Thursday at her home in Detroit.

Mrs. Turner was born in Tawass City April 6, 1884, and had lived in Detroit most of her life. She was a member of Keystone Chapter, O. E. S.; the Northeastern Club and St. Mark's Methodist Church. She was the daughter of the late Ferdinand and Pauline Bischoff, of Saginaw.

Her husband, William J.; a son, Robert W., and ten brothers and sisters survive. The brothers and sisters are Adolph of Chicago; Fred E. Grayling; Robert and Mrs. Emily Koepke of Tawass City; Mrs. Howard Kelly, of Bay City; Mrs. Leonard Lafayette of Saginaw; and Mrs. Fred Mertz, Theodore, Henry and August Bischoff, of Detroit.

Funeral services were held at the William R. Hamilton Co. Chapel at 2 p. m. Saturday, with burial in the Grand Lawn cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bischoff and son, William; Mrs. John Koepke and Edwin Bischoff attended the funeral from here.

October P-T-A Meeting Held Monday Evening

The regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association for the month of October was held in the high school room Monday evening, October 1. The meeting was opened by assembly singing, and prayer by Rev. F. Metcalf. The usual business of the association was disposed of and the meeting was turned over to the chairman of the entertainment committee, A. E. Giddings.

Mrs. L. H. Braddock opened the program with a piano solo, "The Fleecy Cloud," by Mendelssohn. Mr. Giddings, with a few well chosen words, introduced the speaker for the evening, Dr. T. Luther Purdom. Director of Placement Bureau and Vocational Information of the University of Michigan. Dr. Purdom spoke about the personal adjustment problems of young people. His duties in the university have given him a wide experience in this particular line of work. He cited reasons for the need of the bureau, and he explained the future work in correcting difficulties. His plea was for parents to give the problem serious thought, in order to prevent the youth of today from entering institutions for the mentally sick. Everyone present enjoyed Dr. Purdom's address and agreed that it was regrettable more parents did not take the opportunity to hear him. Mrs. Nvda Campbell Leslie favored the association with a group of three songs—Alleluiah, by Mozart; They Call Me Mimi (Le Boheme), by Puccini; and the Scotch ballad, Annie Laurie, with Mrs. A. E. Giddings at the piano. This concluded the program and the meeting was adjourned to the basement where light refreshments were served by the committee, which consisted of the officers of the association.

Isoco County Supervisors Will Meet Next Week

The Isoco county supervisors will meet next Monday in statutory session. At this meeting appropriations will be made to run the county's business for the coming year and other important matters will come under consideration.

TRAP SHOOT AT FAIR GROUNDS BIG SUCCESS

Opening Of Duck Season Is Celebrated With Trap Event, Banquet

The Tawass Bay Sportsmen's Club shoot held at the fair grounds, Tawass City, Tuesday afternoon, October 2, as a part of the program of the second annual Duck Festival was attended by about 100 or more participants and spectators. The weather, moderately cool and only partly cloudy, was ideal for the event.

The $25.00 cash prize for the squad shoot was won by a squad representing Tawass City and East Tawass. Following is the line-up of the winning squad with individual scores and the total for the squad:

W. C. Roach, 21; C. T. Prescott, Jr., 20; Dr. J. LeClair, 19; Hugo Keiser, 18; Wm. DeGrow, 14. Squad total, 92 hits out of a possible 125.

The Mio squad, second highest in the contest, gave keen competition for the prize. Their score is as follows:

Carvel Nunn, 24; Carl Harrington, 21; J. H. Holmes, 18; D. J. McCormick, 15; Vern Nye, 12. Squad total, 90.

The Oscoda squad ranked third with the following line-up and scores: Charles Flanders, 21; Geo. Thompson, 20; Charles Hennigar, 17; Harold Swenson, 15; A. J. Goulette, 14. Squad total, 87.

Great interest was aroused in the Lewis class shoot by the large number of desirable prizes donated by business men of East Tawass and Tawass City. The large number and great variety of these prizes made possible a handsome trophy for every winner in his respective class.

Thirty-five contestants competed in the Lewis class shoot with the following scores:

Class A—Carvel Nunn, Mio, 24. Chas. Flanders, Oscoda, 21; Carl Harrington, Mio, 21; Roxie Roach, Tawass City, 21; Clifford Boomer, Tawass City, 21; E. D. Jacques, Tawass City, 21; Eugene Thompson, Oscoda, 20; C. T. Prescott, Jr., Tawass City, 20; Dr. John D. LeClair, Tawass City, 19.

Class B—J. H. Holmes, Mio, 18; H. J. Keiser, Tawass City, 18; Harry Vreeland, Walled Lake, 18; W. S. Wixom, Walled Lake, 18; Chas. Hennigar, Oscoda, 17; A. J. Carlson, East Tawass, 15; Harold Swenson, Oscoda, 15; D. J. McCormick, Mio, 15; Justin Carroll, Tawass City, 15.

Will Establish Two Freshman Colleges In Isoco County

It was announced here yesterday that two freshman colleges will be established in Isoco county—one at East Tawass and one at Whittemore. Superintendent H. T. Swanson of East Tawass and Superintendent Howard Switzer of Whittemore were called Thursday to Mt. Pleasant, where they selected teaching staffs for the two colleges.

All students who have applied for admission to the freshman college are urged to meet Mr. Swanson at the East Tawass high school Monday, October 8, at 4:00 p. m.

General information regarding the Freshman College:

Name—These colleges are to be called Freshman Colleges. They are in no sense of the word Junior Colleges.

Formation—These colleges are formed under the auspices of the Federal Government.

Purpose—The purpose of these colleges is to provide one year of college education for students who

The Barretts of Wimpole Street Is Stirring Romance

In Norma Shearer's new picture, "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," playing at the Family Theatre, East Tawass, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 7-8-9, one has the pleasure of seeing three winners of the annual Motion Picture Academy Award appear together.

They are Miss Shearer, who stars as Elizabeth in the famous tale of poetic love; Freddie March, who plays opposite as the ardent Robert Browning, and Charles Laughton, most recent winner of the award, who shines as the diabolical father.

The performance of each is so finished, so smooth and rich that comparison is impossible. Never was there a more tender Elizabeth, a more poetic Browning, or a more demonic elder Barrett than these three present.

If you would see a great drama, which lost nothing in the transition from footlights to celluloid, see "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" at the Family Theatre.

Isoco County Normal News

The Isoco County Normal opened September 17th with the following enrollment: Ardith Anderson, Bad Axe; Ethan Burger, Barton City; Richard Bushey, Barton City; Alice Caswell, Oscoda; Blance Broun Cogan, East Tawass; Ernestine Cecil, Tawass City; Dorothea Deller, Harrisville; Clara Failor, Mikado; Violet Harwood, East Tawass; Pauline London, Glennie; Dora Mark, Tawass City; Jack Mark, Tawass City; Rosemary McKay, East Tawass; Susie Redmond, Curtisville.

The class organized on September 25th and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Violet Harwood; vice-president, Dora Mark; secretary-treasurer, Alice Caswell; class sponsor, Mrs. Reine Torrey Osgerby; press reporter, Pauline London.

Caravan Party

The Normal class and their guests, Miss Huhtala, Miss Rockwell and Mr. and Mrs. Osgerby, left immediately after school Thursday afternoon to follow the "caravan" to its end. The first stop was at the Indian cemetery, the second at the beaver dam north of Oscoda where many exclamations were made over the skill of the beaver, then the caravan wound in and out among the hills, and valleys until they came to the place which the caravan leader had chosen as the dining spot. Supper was immediately prepared. About dark the caravan began to retrace its way back to East Tawass. Although everyone was tired each voted the caravan "teachbook" a great success.

General Johnson Resigns and Richberg Rules the NRA—Textile Industry Board Named—The America's Cup Is Successfully Defended.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON steps out of the picture and the NRA is turned over to Donald R. Richberg and other "left wing" members of the

Donald Richberg

New Deal management. President Roosevelt announced the greater part of the reorganization plan for the national recovery body, naming first the policy making board, with Richberg as its chairman and Secretary Ickes, Secretary Perkins, Harry L. Hopkins and Chester Davis as members. A fifth member was yet to be selected, he to be the chairman of the new administrative board. Five other members of this latter body are S. Clay Williams, head of the Reynolds Tobacco company; Arthur D. White, president of Dun & Bradstreet; Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers; Leon C. Marshall, labor specialist; and Prof. Walton H. Hamilton of Yale. Two ex-officio members are Blackwell Smith, assistant general counsel of NRA, and Leon Henderson, chief of the NRA division of research and planning under Johnson.

The judicial branch of the NRA was still under consideration. Mr. Roosevelt indicated that its duties might be assigned to a special department of the Department of Justice.

The recommendations of the new policy making board are subject to the will of the President, but under the terms of the executive order these recommendations must be submitted to the President by the director. Thus, Richberg will have the final voice before the President himself approves or disapproves the board's decisions.

The board was further empowered to "promulgate administrative policies, to appoint, to employ, discharge, fix the compensation, define the duties, and direct the conduct of the personnel necessary for its administration, and to exercise all those powers heretofore conferred by executive orders upon the administrator for industrial recovery."

RESIGNATION of General Johnson, as accepted by the President, is not effective until October 15. Until then he will be busy compiling his final report and also, it is said, writing the story of his life. It was learned that he has been offered the management of industrial and labor relations of "a large group of midwestern manufacturers."

This is not the time or place to estimate General Johnson's achievements as administrator of the NRA which was largely his own creation. He certainly worked hard and accomplished much, whether for good or evil. His mistakes were admittedly glaring, and not the least of them was his recent assertion that during his administration he had been in close touch with Justice Brandeis of the Supreme court. As that tribunal will have to pass on the constitutionality of NRA before long, this statement created a sensation and was dismaying to the friends of Justice Brandeis. Of course, the "low down" is said to be that Johnson did consult the Justice when he was formulating the NRA and received some informal advice which he disregarded, and that later Mr. Brandeis told him he had better resign.

ORGANIZED business and the President are not at all satisfied with each other. Business leaders are nervous, and Mr. Roosevelt feels that they have too many "inhibitions" and are not doing what they should to aid recovery. The Chamber of Commerce of the United States, seeking a clear statement of the President's future intentions, sent him a list of questions on expenditures, budget balancing, currency stabilization and the government's part in business, politely requesting categorical replies. Mr. Roosevelt received the questionnaire with a smile and a joke, and there was no indication of his intention to answer it.

It was revealed in Washington that the President also received not long ago a set of resolutions adopted at a secret meeting of 120 leading industrialists and financiers. These men asserted that the policies of the New Deal, along with the uncertainties of the future, are throttling economic recovery in the United States. The resolutions were not intended for publication and the President made no mention of them in his press conferences.

Still another hard rap at the New Deal came in the form of a statement by the federal advisory council, composed of leading bankers. It was contained in a set of recommendations for the federal reserve system and severely criticizes the administration's monetary and economic policies, demanding a return to what the council considers sound principles.

The federal advisory council is a statutory body created by the federal reserve act to advise the federal reserve board concerning technical banking matters and general business conditions. It is composed of one prominent banker from each of the twelve federal reserve districts, plus a secretary.

SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR ICKES, as head of the federal public works administration, announced an ambitious family housing project for Chicago which, at a cost of $12,500,000, will abolish a "slum area" of 37 city blocks on the southwest side and replace demolished buildings with small apartment houses for 3,000 families. Condemnation proceedings were started in the Federal court in Chicago, and Mr. Ickes said if the property owners are reasonable in their demands the project will go through speedily. The area to be rehabilitated is inhabited now almost entirely by persons of Italian descent and, far from being a typical "slum," contains numerous neat, well-kept homes and several large apartment houses. The plan of the PWA for its rebuilding is very similar to housing projects in Moscow and Vienna, with the government supplying social and nursery facilities as well as dwellings. The work will be done through the federal housing corporation, which concern the government owns.

MISS GRACE ABBOTT, for years one of the government's most faithful and useful servants, has resigned her position as director of the children's bureau, to the grief of her associates in Washington and the regret of every one who knows about her fine work there. Miss Abbott now becomes professor of public welfare administration in the University of Chicago and editor of the Social Service Review.

AMERICA'S Cup remains in the United States and T. O. M. Sopwith, latest British challenger, goes home defeated and disgruntled. Harold S. Vanderbilt skipped the defending yacht Rainbow to four consecutive victories over Sopwith's Endeavour after the latter had won two races and seemed likely to carry the old trophy back to England. In the third race Sopwith flew his protest flag, claiming Rainbow had technically fouled Endeavour, but the racing committee refused to hear the protest because of a minor infraction of the rules. Sopwith was not the only person displeased by this action of the committee. In fact, general opinion was with him, and the races have left an unpleasant taste in the American mouth. However, it is probable the victory went to the better yacht, or the better crew, or both.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S request that the great textile strike be called off and that the workers be taken back without discrimination, after he had received and approved the report of the special mediation board headed by Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire brought to an end the bitter struggle that had cost 14 lives and millions of dollars. The union leaders ordered the strikers to return to the mills, and all the way from Maine to Alabama the looms hummed again.

The next step was the appointment by the President of a board to adjust disputes between the workers and the employers in the industry. He named the three veteran arbiters who served in like capacity as members of the steel labor relations board—Chief Justice Walter P. Stacy of North Carolina, Admiral Henry A. Wiley and James Mulenbach of Chicago.

The executive order stipulated that the board is "authorized and directed" to investigate wages, hours and other conditions in the industry to determine whether code provisions are being violated. If necessary, the board may refer its findings to proper governmental agencies for appropriate action.

The national labor relations board is made the court of appeal from any decision of the textile board. The board's findings are not subject to review by the executive branch of the government.

To start with, the board had the job of investigating numerous charges that some mill owners were discriminating against strikers. This alleged action so angered the union members that many demands for a renewal of the strike were sent in to the office of Francis J. Gorman, who directed the great walkout.

Meanwhile the leaders of the United Textile Workers went ahead with their plans to unionize the entire industry.

QUEEN MARY OF ENGLAND, accompanied by King George and the prince of Wales, went to Clydebank, Scotland, and there launched the largest steamship in the world, the 73,000-ton Cunard-White Star liner that was started four years ago. Breaking a bottle of Australian champagne on its bow, the queen christened the huge vessel "Queen Mary."

EIGHT per cent boost in wages, amounting to more than $10,000,000 a year, has been granted their employees by the four big packing concerns of Chicago, Swift, Armour, Wilson and Cudahy, and their example is followed by packing companies in other cities.

The wage increases were granted as a result of negotiations between the companies and their plant labor conference boards. Whether the increases were the full demands of the workers or were compromises was not stated. The plant boards are established at all points at which the companies operate and they are composed of employee representatives, half of whom are chosen by the workers themselves and half by the managements.

MORE than two thousand persons perished in a typhoon that swept over the richest industrial section of Japan in which are situated Osaka, Kobe, and Kyoto. Thousands of others were injured, and the property damage was enormous, probably running above $100,000,000. The army's munitions program suffered a great setback, for scores of factories that were turning out guns and munitions were destroyed. Losses among the fishermen and farmers also were most serious.

MAXIM LITVINOV told the League of Nations assembly that Russia still hopes for the establishment of a permanent peace conference in which the United States is a participant, for the consolidation of peace movements. He asked the league council to obtain a report on whether the world disarmament conference could be resumed with a possibility of success.

EVIDENCE was presented to a grand jury in New York against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the former German machine gunner and journeyman carpenter in connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnaping.

Bruno Hauptmann

Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh flew from Los Angeles to give their testimony. The authorities considered they had an ironclad case against the suspect, who was arrested after he had passed a ten dollar note that was part of the ransom money handed over a garden wall by Dr. John F. Condon ("Jafsie") when the baby was supposed to be still alive. In Hauptmann's garage was found $13,750 of the ransom fund, his handwriting was found to be identical with that of the ransom notes, and there were many other facts plainly indicating his guilt. He explained his possession of the money by saying it was paid him by one Isidor Fische who later died in Germany, but this defense was said by the police to have been exploded.

The grand jury in New York indicted Hauptmann on charges of extortion, and when he was arraigned he pleaded not guilty. The detectives worked like beavers and found, among other incriminating evidence, $840 more hidden in the Hauptmann garage. This the prisoner admitted was part of the ransom money. The police said they expected the early arrest of two alleged accomplices of Hauptmann, one of whom was in Germany and the other on a liner bound for Europe.

New Jersey authorities expect to indict and try Hauptmann as the actual kidnap and murderer of the Lindbergh child.

SO FAR President Roosevelt has not revealed his plans for relief for the coming winter, but the executive committee of the United States conference of mayors on unemployment relief has made its recommendations to him. These are, in effect, that a permanent federal relief fund should be established preparatory to the creation of a nationwide system of unemployment insurance. The report says:

"This permanent unemployment work relief fund and program should include the following features:

"1—It should include all workers of all types.

"2—The governments, federal, state, and municipal, should draw upon those benefited from the fund for work on public work relief projects.

"3—Such benefited persons should be paid prevailing wage rates up to the amount of the determined benefits.

"4—The United States should be divided into regions for the purpose of fixing weekly benefits in accordance with the regional costs and standards of living.

"5—General administration and supervision of the plan and fund should be the responsibility of the federal government."

WHEN President Roosevelt's plan for a $75,000,000 "tree belt" from Canada to Texas, previously discussed in this column, was submitted to Controller General McCarl, that gentleman turned it down as an improper use of funds from the $25,000,000 emergency drought appropriation. The President, however, has not abandoned the project, though he told the correspondents he was in full accord with the controller general's ruling that emergency drought funds might be used for putting men to work planting trees, but could not be used for land purchases. He said the original plan of the administration was to begin the shelter belt project with $15,000,000 of drought money, and that some of this was to be used to purchase land.

The President said the shelter belt project, designed to protect the Middle West region from future droughts, would be carried out, but that the initial funds would have to be taken from sources not yet determined.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORY

by Vance Wynn © Public Ledger

"So Perish All Traitors"

THE two young men who registered at the Southern hotel, in St. Louis, many years ago, were well dressed and looked prosperous.

Also they seemed to be devoted friends. Charles A. Preller and Walter L. Maxwell were the names they inscribed on the book, and it later developed that they were Englishmen, having come from Liverpool to Boston and thence to St. Louis.

At all events they were inseparable companions, and their mutual devotion attracted the attention of the other guests of the house. Maxwell left the hotel first, saying that his friend intended staying a few days longer.

Also he suggested that he had some work to do in his room and did not want to be disturbed.

That was all very well, but when Preller failed to make his appearance after two days the management of the house thought it was time to investigate.

There was no response to the knock on his room door and it had to be forced.

It was opened and in it was found the dead body of Charles A. Preller.

His mustache had been removed, probably to change his appearance, and on his clothing was pinned a sheet of paper on which was written:

"So perish all traitors to the great cause."

The first and most natural move on the part of the detectives was to try and find the former companion of the dead man.

There was no special reason for suspecting that he had killed the friend to whom he seemed so devoted, but there was every reason for supposing that he might throw some light on the tragedy.

Did the two men belong to some secret society?

Were they being pursued by avengers? It was not easy to get on the track of Maxwell, but it was eventually learned that he had gone to San Francisco.

The chief of police of that city worked in unison with the chief of police of St. Louis.

In a few days he was able to report that a man who looked very much like the description of Maxwell had been seen in the smoking room of the Palace hotel.

Inquiry showed that this man had registered as T. C. D'Auger, of Paris. He talked with a French accent, although one day, in answering a question suddenly asked by another guest, he spoke perfect English.

Just when the police were planning to place him under arrest he left San Francisco for New Zealand.

He was captured there, but resisted extradition.

He seemed to have plenty of money and legal advice, but eventually the papers were signed by President Cleveland and the suspect was brought back to St. Louis.

For up to the time there was no convincing legal proof that he had killed Preller.

He denied the charge vehemently and defied the authorities.

But the police got to work and in the course of time they proved a number of things.

First it was shown that the handwriting on the note which was pinned to the clothing of the corpse in the trunk was that of Maxwell.

It corresponded exactly with the signature he had placed on the hotel register.

That demolished the theory that Preller had been the victim of the vengeance of some secret society. It was simply an ingenious idea of Maxwell to send the police on a false scent.

Secondly, they proved that Maxwell had gone to a barber shop after leaving the Southern hotel and had his beard taken off, and that after it had been done he turned to the barber and said:

"Do you think any one would recognize me now?"

Thirdly, they proved that he had purchased the trunk in which the body was found.

They produced the porter who had carried it to his room, and they had evidence that he displayed a big roll of hundred-dollar bills shortly after leaving the hotel.

This furnished the motive for the crime—the cold-blooded, calculated robbery of the man who had been his generous friend.

At the trial he was confronted by the druggist from whom he had purchased the chloroform which he had used to overcome Preller before murdering him.

There were no mitigating circumstances whatever, and the jury rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree.

Walks, Saves Postage

Walking 400 miles from London to Aberdeen, Scotland, to get his uniform and thus save the cost of postage, Guardsman Albert Lorrimer of the First Battalion Scots Guards, wound up by facing a court martial. He was charged with absenting himself from duty for five weeks. Lorrimer pleaded that when he reached home he found his grandmother dying and his father and brothers out of work, so he returned to London to hunt a job.

Science Changing "Girl-Boy" to Man

Dwarf Child Will Never Be Physically Fit.

Kittanning, Pa.—There is a long, uphill struggle ahead for Clara—now named Clarence—eekengost, the twenty-year-old dwarf whom surgeons are changing into a normal man.

The new science of the ductless gland treatments is being used with success, it was learned, and the physicians are confident that the "girl-man" will win the fight.

A physician familiar with the case said: "Clarence will never be completely normal. We believe, however, that gradually 'he' will improve physically. We have not changed his sex—such a thing is impossible. All we have done is to encourage the development of the patient's real sex."

The child is only 51 inches tall and unable to read or write, and has six normal brothers and sisters.

Cases Not Rare.
Changes from one sex to another, as in the case of Clara Schreckengost, are far from being rare, although seldom heard about outside of medical circles. Modern medical science has discovered that the change from one sex to another is the result of strange variations in the embryo or in imbalance in the ductless glands.

In such glands hormones are produced. They are responsible for the secondary sex characteristics, the masculine voice and beard of men, for instance.

If something goes wrong among the endocrines, a girl may grow more like a boy, and vice versa. This accounts for bearded women of the side shows and other like freaks.

For twenty years Mrs. Lettie Schreckengost has guarded her secret, even from her husband, Clark Schreckengost, a silent moody man of this Pennsylvania backwoods farming country.

"Better Off Dead."
And neither did Mrs. Schreckengost say anything when their family physician, kindly Dr. George S. Morrow, now dead, laid in her arms the malformed little creature who was to be named Clarence.

The ancient Greeks had a word for it, and a myth, to explain these thwarted children of Hermes and Aphrodite in whom the sexes were fused in a mystic union.

But to the country practitioner of two decades ago the Schreckengost offspring was a biological quirk and better off dead, according to the mother.

"He said that it would be more kindly to put it aside and let it die," Mrs. Schreckengost said.

"The doctor told me," she said, "that it might be either a girl or a boy, and asked me how I would dress it. I said I would dress it like a girl."

"He said I ought to call it by some name that would fit either a girl or a boy, like Francis, or Frances. So I said I would name it Claire and if it developed like a boy, I would leave off the E."

And though it was no secret in this rural neighborhood that Claire was somehow different, a girl she remained, in habits and dress, until the first of a series of remarkable operations in the West Penn hospital at Pittsburgh this summer disclosed the fact that the E could, with propriety, be deleted from her name; that Claire was of masculine persuasion.

St. Louis.—Everybody knows the stork brings babies, but who brings the baby storks?
Mr. and Mrs. Stork of the St. Louis (Zoological) Storks, would like to know the answer to that one, for they are a disappointed couple these days.

Ever since last spring, Mrs. Stork has been industriously preparing a nest in the big outdoor cage in Forest park. But now the nesting season is over and there are no offspring. Mr. Stork seems pretty sad. However, that may be just his natural expression.

When Should an Old Man Stop Work?

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

The retirement of Dr. William Holland Wilmer by Johns Hopkins university has furnished the metropolitan press with an interesting subject for debate. The question at issue seems to be, was the university justified in thus retiring the ablest eye clinician in America? Dr. Wilmer was born August 26, 1863, which would indicate that a man should be retired at seventy regardless of his mental or physical fitness. Doubtless retirement affords relief from detail duties and routine work incident to a professional career. The question still arises, however, should one be retired from active service when there still remains the unquestionably efficient service of many future years? Or, to put it in another way, should the public be deprived of professional service at

The question still arises, however, should one be retired from active service when there still remains the unquestionably efficient service of many future years? just the age when experience would make that service all the more valuable? In other words, just when should an old man stop work?

Let us remember that much of the finest work in art and literature as well as in medicine has been accomplished by those who labored most effectively far beyond the age of seventy. Some business concerns have a rule that a man must stop work at sixty-five, others at seventy. The reason advanced is that room must be made for the younger men. Other business concerns refuse to employ a man who is over thirty-five years of age. In one case, known to the writer, a member of a certain firm was thus retired and went to England, where he established a rival business which proved a great financial success. The better part of wisdom would have been for that American firm to have kept that man on its payroll.

Is it not true that no organization is competent to say just when a man should stop work? Does it not depend entirely upon the man himself? Some men are old at forty, others young at seventy. Should not efficiency decide the issue? A man without a job is not only unhappy, he is miserable. Many a man has "passed out" shortly after relinquishing active work.

The man himself, however, is not the only one concerned. Public health demands the best judgment that experience can afford. In business the wisdom of those who have successfully weathered the storm is far more valuable than the opinion of the young man just about to set his sails afloat. In literature and art we want more of that "better self" which Michelangelo gave to the world at eighty. What shall be done with the old man? Would it not be better if we would let him decide for himself, provided he is still mentally and physically fit?

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

WINDOW screens, like the windows themselves, need attention. They do not show dust and dirt as the panes of glass, but they accumulate dust just the same, and this seeps through the meshes when the wind blows, and a film settles on the things in the room. There are several ways of keeping the screens clean, different methods being suited to varying conditions, such as situation of rooms, whether the screens are inside or outside the house, and the location of house is such that a hose can be played on the screens. In city houses built in rows this is not often feasible, while in suburban homes it is.

The hose-cleaning method is recommended when possible. Shut the windows opening on the side of the house where the hose is to be played. Play the hose well on each window, especially the half where the screen is, since the force of the water will project the dust on the screen through it and against the window. It is only when the window is spotless that the screen will be clean for the reason just given. By this method both screens and windows are beautifully clean after the washing.

If screens are easily removable, as on inside windows, they can be taken out and washed in the kitchen sink. Dry well before replacing. Inside screens require much less care than those outside because they are not exposed to the dust from roads and driveways all the time. When windows are closed they are protected. On the other hand there is on cleaning days some dust raised indoors even when modern cleaning appliances are used. This dust

Nail in Dam Marks River's Water Level

Riverton, Ind.—Thirty-seven years ago, Dave Taylor, veteran ferryman, drove a large nail in the Wabash river dam here when the river reached its lowest level.

During the dry seasons in the past 25 years Taylor has compared the river's level with that of 1897. The best he was able to do was to feel the nail under water.

Recently Taylor went to the dam and saw the nail. He said the water would have to drop only one-half inch to reach the 1897 level.

New Deal Homes for the Indians

The United States government has at last taken a hand in the affairs of the Indian tribes of eastern Oklahoma, comprising one-third of the entire Indian population of this country. The government has undertaken to build homes, on land purchased from farmers, which shall be a great improvement over the hovels now occupied by these poverty-stricken redmen. Our illustration shows, above, one of the dilapidated houses, and, below, an example of the modern dwellings that will replace them.

HERE IS PATTERN FOR THAT FROCK

ROYAL REPOSE

"I'm sorry to keep grumbling, Mrs. Higgin," said the boarder, "but really I cannot sleep in that bed another night."

"I'd have you know," was the landlady's haughty rejoinder, "that that bed is fit for the prince of Wales."

"Ah," replied the other, "that explains why it has only three features."—London Humorist.

Suitable Sidelight

"I want my photograph taken, please," said the man.

"Certainly, sir," said the photographer. "Would you like a carte or a cabinet?"

The man thought hard.

"It doesn't matter whether there's a cart or a cab in it," he answered. "But if you could manage to put in a railway truck, I should like it, because I'm a porter."—London Answers.

PATTERN 9929
If you know you must have a new frock but are undecided as to just what it should be, this pattern will make up your mind for you. It is the kind of a frock everybody always likes and looks well in—even if she does weigh an ounce or two more than she should. That long rever is a wonder-worker—it silms at the same time it gives smartness—and the V front and back just below the beltless waistline is another flattering detail. You will probably want to make this frock of a sheer cotton.

Pattern 9929 may be ordered only in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric, and 5/8 yard contrast.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

R. D. Brown received a full supply of the licenses used for hunting and trapping, also deer licenses, this week. D. I. Pearsall has shipped several truck loads of stock to Detroit this week. Mrs. R. B. Stevens of Bay City was a guest of Mrs. Ross Webb last week. The Blooming Flower class of the Baptist Sunday school were entertained by Miss Bernice Earl at her home last Saturday afternoon with a wiener roast. It was Bernice's birthday, and she was presented with pretty gifts from her classmates and teacher, Mrs. R. D. Brown. Outdoor games were played during the afternoon. The second meeting of the P.-T. A. for this year was held in the high school room on Tuesday evening. The program numbers by the primary department were enjoyed. The program for this year will be grouped around the subject of Reading and Reading Material. Mrs. Osgerby, who was the speaker, gave an excellent talk on this subject. How the love of reading should be taught from infancy on, and the value of a love of reading in the long leisure hours of the people of today under the new industrial program were discussed at length by the speaker. Routine business was cared for in the business session and the tennis court talked of for some time will soon be a reality. The next meeting, on the invitation of Miss Goldie Shellenbarger, teacher, will be held in the Kees school. A model farm made by the primary children was put on exhibit, and lunch served. Leo Kocher and a group of his little friends who had been invited to help him celebrate his birthday last Wednesday spent a happy afternoon in play and enjoyed the dainties served at the lunch following the games. Miss Leleh Morrison, who is a student in the Bay City Business College, spent the week end at her home at Five Channels. Mr. and Mrs. Alva Deering and baby of Flint were week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Ewing. The post office at Hale, after being in third class for 12 years, was on July 1st reduced to fourth class. In a third class, or presidential office, the postmaster receives a stated salary based on sales and an allowance for rent, office expense, and clerk hire. In a fourth class office the postmaster's salary is based on his percentage of cancellations of stamps only. The quality of service to the public is expected to remain unchanged. Mrs. Arthur Johnson and little daughter of Whittemore were Hale visitors on Tuesday. Mrs. A. E. Greve and Mrs. Petteys were in Tawas on Tuesday in attendance at the meeting of the Council of Religious Education. Mrs. Mary Clement, who has been ill for several weeks, was in West Branch on Tuesday, accompanied by her family, for X-ray pictures by Dr. Jardine to determine the cause of her illness. Friends of T. G. Scofield tendered him a surprise party on Thursday evening of last week—his birthday. Four tables of cards were played and refreshments served. A pleasant evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Labian and children and Miss Doris Syze of Flint were week end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Nunn. Mr. and Mrs. Deuell Pearsall, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Murray and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Peck attended a birthday party given in honor of Thomas White at his home in Tawas City on Wednesday evening of last week. Mr. and Mrs. John Brandal and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fleming left for Flint on Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming have been visiting Mrs. Fleming's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Brandal. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rome's Forums

Rome had many forums. The one most familiar is the Forum Romanum, but several of the other great Fora of Rome were those of Caesar, Augustus, Nerva, Trajan, Vespasian and the Forum of Appii, which was largely used as a stopping place for pilgrims or others journeying to Rome.

Corkwood

While true cork is not found in this country, some varieties of trees with light, porous wood have been named corkwood. These are principally found in semi-tropical swamps of Florida and Texas and muddy sloughs in southeastern Missouri. The buoyant wood of these trees is utilized for floats and toy airplanes.

Summing It Up

Hemlock

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Ulman and family spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Binder. Hazen Warner, who has been visiting in Flint, returned home. Raoul Herman of Oscoda was a caller at the Chas. Brown home on Friday evening. Mrs. Brown accompanied him home and spent from Friday until Sunday with her daughter, who has been ill. Chas. Brown, Mrs. Russell Binder and Thomas Frocks drove up on Sunday, and Mrs. Brown returned home with them. Mrs. Amelia Bamberger is entertaining her daughter from Detroit. Mrs. Will Herriman spent Monday and Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. Teuben Smith. On account of the storm September 26 Mr. Holbeck could not appear at the Grange meeting. However, we expect him to be with us on October 10th at our regular meeting. This meeting will be open to everyone, and all are invited. Mrs. Louise McArdle spent the week end in Tawas City with her mother, Mrs. Jane Chambers. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Fraser and daughter of East Tawas spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. Fraser. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Teal of Hale spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brown. Chas. Katterman was a business caller in Tawas Friday. Mr. and Mrs. George St. James spent Sunday with Mrs. George Bamberger. George St. James of Reno and George Bamberger called on Chas. Brown Tuesday evening.

Mazatlan, the Pearl of Mexico is set on a silver beach, fringed by coconut palms. Here the Mexicans and friendly natives help to make it one of Mexico's most attractive cities. Back of it lies volcanic mountains, towering thousands of feet above green valleys studded with crystal lakes; vast fields of wheat, acres of corn and wheat and sugar cane; great groves of coconut palms; cypress trees, wide as streets, that were 6,000 years in making, and carpet stretching 20-foot talons toward the city.

Blushing Bird Bride

The paradise tern has been termed the blushing bride of the bird family, because when a female of this species accepts the advances of a suitor the white feathers on her breast change to a brilliant rose color. After mating and the bride becomes absorbed in raising a family, the gay bridal attire becomes more and more subdued until finally no trace of the lovely rose coloring remains.

Toads Oddly Hatched

The eggs of the surnated toad, of Dutch Guiana, are picked up by the male, one by one, as soon as they are laid, and imbedded in the skin of the back of the female. Here they remain from 75 to 85 days, at the end of which time they are hatched and come forth from their mother's back not in the polywog stage but fully grown toads. From 60 to 70 young toads may be hatched in this way at one time.

Makes Good Record

In progressive contract, a game is made when one side bids and makes a trick score of 100 points or more in one hand. In addition to the trick score the premium for game is 300 points if not vulnerable and 500 points if vulnerable. The side having the higher score after four deals gets a bonus of 250. If both sides have exactly the same score, each of the four players receives a bonus of 25 points.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER DISCOVERS SOMETHING STARTLING

NOT far from the Old Orchard grew a thorn-tree which Peter often passed. He never had paid particular attention to it. One morning he stopped to rest under it. Happening to look up, he saw a most astonishing and startling sight. Fastened on the sharp thorns of one of the branches were three big grasshoppers, a big moth, two big caterpillars, a lizard, a small mouse, and a young English sparrow.

Do you wonder that Peter thought he must be dreaming? He couldn't

"You're wrong, Johnny Chuck. You are altogether wrong."

Imagine how those creatures could have become fastened on those long, sharp thorns. It was a dreadful sight. Somehow it gave him an uncomfortable feeling. He didn't want to stay around there, yet it was hard to tear himself away. However, finally he did and hurried over to the Old Orchard, bubbling over with desire to tell someone of the strange and dreadful thing he had seen in the thorn-tree and to try to find out what it meant.

Sitting on his doorstep under the big apple tree in the far corner of the Old Orchard he found Johnny Chuck and at once hurried to tell him the strange news. Johnny didn't interrupt once. When Peter had finished his story, Johnny quite frankly told him that never had he heard of such a thing, and that he thought Peter must have been dreaming and didn't know it.

Now, Peter knew that he hadn't been dreaming. He knew that he had seen with his own eyes that dreadful sight in the thorn-tree and he grew quite indignant with Johnny Chuck for doubting him. But Johnny persisted in refusing to believe and repeated that he was certain Peter must have dreamed it.

Do YOU Know—

That the first wearer of a top hat was John Hetherington, who strutted the streets of London in 1797, and created such excitement that he was arrested for disturbing the peace. The summons accused him "of wearing in a public thoroughfare a tall structure of shiny lustre, calculated to frighten timid folks."

"You're wrong, Johnny Chuck. You are altogether wrong. Peter hasn't been dreaming at all," said Skimmer the Swallow, who lives in a hole in the tree just above Johnny Chuck's house and had been sitting where he overheard everything.

"Well, if you know so much about it, please explain," said Johnny Chuck rather crossly.

"It's simple enough," replied Skimmer. "Peter just happened to find the storehouse of Butcher the Shrike. It isn't a very pleasant sight, I must admit, but one must give Butcher credit for being smart enough to lay up a store of food when it was plentiful. When you come to think about it, I don't know why one who eats that kind of food shouldn't store it up the same as some others store up other kinds of foods. Of course, those things won't keep long, but they will keep from one meal to another, and probably that is all Butcher wants."

"Who is Butcher the Shrike," demanded Peter. "He's new to me."

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN . . .
The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:
A friend of mine told me he knew a married woman 53 years of age who sleeps in the same room with cats. Do you believe this?

Truly yours,
X. ACKTING.

Answer: Sure, I believe it. Your friend probably is referring to Mrs. Katz.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I live in a town and to go to work I must take a ferry over the river. Why doesn't the city government build a bridge?

Yours truly,
MRS. SIPPE.

Answer: They're afraid it will make the people cross.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am eight years old and am in the fourth grade in school. I have to write a story about a "Southern Planter." What does the teacher mean by a "Southern Planter?"

Yours truly,
I. PUPIL.

Answer: A "Southern Planter," my child, is an undertaker who operates only in the South.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
There is so much talk about "Society" changing in the last twenty-five years. If this is true, can you describe the change?

Yours truly,
I. M. A. CLIMBER.

Answer: Twenty-five years ago you married into "Society." Today you divorce into it.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
On my recent trip through the West the train stopped at a little town in Arizona. The conductor of our train pointed to a rough looking man on the platform and told me that the man he was pointing at had killed twenty men. Do you think cowboys are really as bad as that?

Truly yours,
O. PINSPACES.

Answer: No, I don't. In fact the fellow you saw in Arizona was not a cowboy but a taxi driver from the East who was in Arizona on his vacation.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I gave my son, who is twelve years of age, a job to break a big rock which was in our back yard. He hammered away at it for four hours without any result. I took the hammer and broke the rock with the first blow.

Dress for Morning

This dress of soft green wool striped in a lighter shade and trimmed with matching silk duvetyne revers, belt and scarf, is an excellent choice for mornings in town.

YOU AWAY?

By ANNE CAMPBELL

YOU'VE gone away? Ah, no, you are still here
In every room that treasures your sweet grace.
I linger in your chair and feel you near.
Your mirror seems to miss your absent face.
The curtains meet the breeze, their creamy lace
Waving like phantom arms to bid you come.
Your loved books wait in their accustomed place.
Outside there is the town's familiar hum.

You've gone away? Ah, no, you could not go
Beyond my heart's pavilion. You are there
With the bright lamp of friendliness aglow.
Sending its beams to light me up life's stair.
You will be with me whether joy or care
Is my companion in the days to be.
Absent or present, you are everywhere!
You are away, perhaps, but not from me!

Mother's Cook Book

THE VERSATILE BANANA

AS the banana is a fruit always on the market, it is a constant source of comfort in time of emergency when a hurry-up dish is necessary.

Banana Whip.

Cook three mashed bananas in a double boiler with one-third of a cupful of sugar and one tablespoonful of lemon juice until scalded. Add a few drops of vanilla, a pinch of salt, and cool. Whip one cupful of heavy cream until firm, then add the banana mixture gradually. Set aside to chill. Serve piled high in sherbet glasses with chopped pistachio nuts for garnish.

Banana Tapioca Cream.

Peel and scrape three bananas and cut into slices. Prepare a custard by scalding two cupfuls of milk with three tablespoonfuls of tapioca and cook until the tapioca is clear. Add two egg yolks mixed with three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-third of a teaspoonful of salt. Cook for two minutes, cool and add a few drops of vanilla. Beat the egg whites until stiff, adding three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a tablespoonful of lemon juice. Pour one-third of the custard into the serving dish, cover with bananas, add more custard and more bananas. Pour the remaining custard over the remaining egg whites and top the dish. Garnish with banana slices.

Boston Banana Cream Pie.

Break a large egg into a measuring cup, add softened butter (two tablespoonfuls), fill the cup with milk. Turn into a mixing bowl, and beat with one and one-half cups of flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in two layer pans. Whip a cupful of cream, sweeten to taste, flavor with almond, and spread over the layers, cover with sliced bananas. Top the upper layer with cream sprinkled with chopped nuts.

Banana Pancakes.

Mix and sift three-fourths of a cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Beat one egg, add one cupful of banana pulp, one-half cupful of milk and two tablespoonfuls of butter. Beat until smooth. Cook on a hot griddle. Serve with currant jelly.

POULTRY

COMMON MISTAKES CHECK EGG YIELD

Pullets Neglected When Care Is Most Needed.

By H. H. Ald, Poultry Extension Specialist, University of Illinois.—WNU Service.
Eight common errors are largely responsible for the wormy, nonlaying pullets found among millions of farm chickens along in the fall of each year. During the summer months many farmers are not "egg conscious," and consequently neglect the care of the birds when they may need it most. As a result of this neglect, the pullets are so stunted that they fail to produce the number of eggs that might ordinarily be expected of them. Pills and worm capsules administered as cure-alls seldom give satisfactory results in these cases, and the poultryman finds that efforts to remedy the mistakes are expensive, difficult and generally disappointing.

Among the common mistakes listed are: Empty feeders, empty water troughs, dirty brooder houses without roosts, lice and mites in the brooder house, old contaminated range, outdoor feeders seldom moved, no clean shade provided and sick birds allowed to remain in the flock.

Probably the greatest error in poultry management, as far as feeding is concerned, is failure to use the type of feeder most satisfactory for range conditions and growing pullets. The outdoor feeder should be larger than that used in the brooder house and so constructed that it will not only prevent waste and contamination of the feed, but will also keep the contents dry. For each brooder house there should be at least two good-sized feeders. Many poultrymen use one for the grain and the other for the mash.

Failure to move the feed hoppers is also a common error. Unless the feeder is placed on a wire platform, the ground around it will soon become badly contaminated with poultry manure, and the chances of chickens picking up disease and parasites are increased greatly.

Like the feed, the water should be protected from contamination. Cleanliness around the drinking trough is extremely important. A good plan is to place the trough on a low, wire platform so that the birds can not scratch in the mud caused by spilled water. Furthermore, the troughs should be filled often and regularly so that there is always plenty of water at all times.

Supplement Forage Feed to Pep Up Laying Hens

When hens are forced to forage for their feed they get less to eat. Since eggs are dependent upon feed, and less feed is eaten, naturally fewer eggs are produced. Furthermore, the hens are not able to keep in such good condition of flesh and a molt is likely to result. As the sun is hot, the birds will stick pretty close to the shade and will not look very far for food—they will get only enough to keep themselves going.

It is just as essential to keep an egg-laying mash before them now as it was in the winter if eggs are to be expected. A grain ration, of course, is fed in addition—about six to seven pounds per 100 birds per day. If hens are not in good condition of flesh, a pound or two more per 100 should be fed.

Poultry Squibs

Blackhead is an infectious disease which annually kills a great many young turkeys.

Under ordinary circumstances a young turkey hen should lay from 40 to 50 eggs during the normal breeding season.

Succulent green feeds are greatly relished by poultry. They stimulate appetite, keep the digestive systems in good order and add bulk to the ration.

It is a good plan to make a feeding crate into which larger, or more developed birds cannot enter; this allows the weaker ones protection while feeding.

To fatten turkeys increase the amount of feed gradually, thus discouraging the tendency to roam.

The old poultry stock on the farm constitute by far the most serious source of disease contaminations for the young stock.

Ralph Merritt's henhouses at Pembroke, Mass., are two and three stories high. He discovered that the hens living in the upper stories lay larger and better eggs than those on the ground floor.

Hawaii has a species of goose that never goes near the water except to drink, yet has webbed feet.

Gapes is a disease which attacks domestic poultry and many species of wild birds. In fowls it is more frequently observed in young chicks.

HOW TO SHOOT

By Bob Nichols
Shooting Editor, Field and Stream

MANY upland shooters delay their shooting proficiency by months, and even years, by neglecting to learn how to mount their guns. They watch good shots perform and get the idea into their heads that the gun is thrown or jerked to the shoulder in a convulsive, spasm-like movement. Which only goes to prove again that the hand is sometimes quicker than the eye.

The good shot has gone through that movement so many thousands of times, both in "dry" shooting practice as well as in actual firing practice, that he seems to make the movement in a flash. Actually he does accomplish it in what seems to be a flash, but instead of being a jerky, convulsive move it is a deliberate and well-timed motion.

Recently on one of the well-known skeet fields in the eastern part of the country, I observed a beginner stop shooting because of a sizable lump he had raised on the under side of his right jaw. I asked him what seemed to be the matter, never doubting for a moment that he no more knew what was the matter than Adam knew how to avoid apple-eating women.

He told me his gun was kicking him. Ridiculously wrong reason, because he was shooting a 20 gauge automatic, and the slight kick of this little gun is as gentle as a lamb. I knew what his trouble was. But I was interested to know whether he could come anywhere near analyzing his own mistake. I pointed out to him that his bruise was under his jaw bone where no self respecting gun should ever raise a bump. Then I told him what he had been doing. He was simply, and stupidly, throwing his gun stock up against his shoulder and jaw with such uncontrolled and convulsive force that he was literally rattling his own teeth.

Such a trick may sound funny. But it wasn't funny. It was just a rather pathetic illustration of how easily the beginner goes wrong in trying to imitate what he thinks are the motions the good shot makes.

Good gun mounting, as the crack shot does it, is a gradual blending and co-ordination of two major adjustments. Seen in slow motion it would be something like this: As the target flashes into view, the gun begins to rise to the shoulder and to the cheek. The head remains erect. The eyes now have the target clearly in focus. The gun keeps rising carefully, deliberately. And all the while it is rising it is pointing—instinctively—closer and closer to the target's line of flight. During this interval the eyes are conscious only of the target. They are not yet conscious of the gun. The trained hands are instinctively taking care of the gun. Gradually the gun stock settles firmly, but gently, against the shoulder—never shoved back against the shoulder with force that not only disturbs the shoulder support, but also causes the gun muzzle to wobble! Now the eyes begin to take command of gun as well as target. As the butt-stock settles into the shoulder (never out on the arm!) the head inclines forward slightly to cheek the rising comb. Now in the last split second comes the finer adjustment, eyes and hands working together—and in a flash the trained trigger finger has let off the shot. That's real wingshooting!

During the last fine adjustment of sighting, I estimate that the eyesight is concentrated about 30 per cent on the gun, 60 per cent on the target, and 10 per cent on the immediate area around and in front of the target. Shoot with both eyes open, of course, always. The best upland shots I have ever seen all shoot with both eyes wide open. You need the full power of both eyes to see your game distinctly and to judge angles, distances, and flight speeds accurately. Nature gave you two eyes for this very reason.

But learn first to mount your gun gently, then "pointing-ly"—then "aiming-ly." Don't jump your gun up spasmodically and then try to find your target with your eyes glued at the barrel breech. Take it easy. You may be slow at first. But begin doing it right, and speed will come with practice.

Conservation Commission Denied Regulatory Power

A court decision of far-reaching effect was recently handed down by Judge Frank A. Bell, in the Marquette County Circuit court. He said that the state conservation commission had no authority to regulate the manner in which any unprotected animal could be taken and that the commission had no right to establish closed seasons on them. This means that mink, coyote, wolf, fox, skunk, porcupine, house cats, red squirrels, weasels, owls, hawks, crows, starlings and blackbirds can be taken at any time of the year, in any manner so long as it does not conflict with general game laws, but that any order issued by the commission in conflict with the general game laws is out, and need not be obeyed.—Detroit News.

Housewife's Idea Box

Coffee Instead of Milk in Cake Baking

Did you know that you can use coffee instead of milk in making cakes? The coffee will give the cake an unusual and pleasing flavor. But remember to use a little less coffee than you would milk, and remember also that your cake will not be so rich and that it will dry out faster than if milk were used. The coffee is worth trying, however.

THE STORY FROM THE BEGINNING

She turned to wave her hand before she entered the path to the back door, opened it in response to a soft, cushiony:

"Come in!" The kitchen was gay with blue and white checked gingham curtains at the plant-filled windows, a blue and white linoleum on the floor, blue pots and pans arranged on the shelves. Spotless town, if ever there was one.

"Glad you've come, Miss Prue. I cut that bakoy for you. Wasn't that Rod Gerard with you? I wonder what's keeping him in this part of the country so late in the season."

"He is looking after his timber." "Lors! I hope he and Calloway won't get into trouble again. Len's been jealous of Roddy since they were boys, when little Milly Gooch, the circus folks' kid, was always turning down Walt and Len for him. Len thought 'twas because Rod's folks were rich and a fine family, but what did the child care for that? She just about worshipped Roddy. Then there was bad feeling between the two before Len went west. He gets terrible ugly if he's crossed. I'm afraid he'll get the best of Rod, who's easy-going."

"Why not warn Mr. Gerard? He could escape before anything rough happens to him. It's good flying weather." "Now, Miss Prue, don't you make fun of Rod." "I'm not making fun of him; on the contrary, I am thinking of engaging him as my legal adviser."

"Then you've got another think coming to you." Prudence wheeled. Her eyes widened as they met the dark, near-set eyes of Calloway, leaning against the door frame.

"Understand, Miss Schuyler, that if I cut your timber, I deal with you, with you and no one else. Gerard will keep out of my business or I'll know the reason why. He stepped between me and a girl once before—and it's for the last time."

Prudence regarded him from under sweeping lashes. "Just why are you inflicting me with the story of your young life?" Even the bald spot of Calloway's head went crimson. "You won't get anywhere wisecracking with me. You'll come round sooner or later to wanting me to handle your timber—they all do—and when I do it, I won't stand interference from anyone. Get that?"

Prudence never before had realized her capacity for fury. "I get it. Now get this. There will be no interference when you cut my timber, Mr. Calloway, for you won't cut it. I have already contracted with Mr. Gerard to do it."

"Gerard! Gerard get out lumber! That's a joke. Don't run away with the idea that because he can pilot a plane he'd stick to anything that was work. He dances and games his days away. He'd run at the first touch of winter. As for managing a crew, his poor flabby muscles would make a fine showing in a lumber camp. They—" "They are rather out of condition," agreed an icy voice behind him, "but, flabby as they are, I don't take that wallop sitting down, they can chuck you out."

Rodney Gerard's face was white, his eyes were afire, as he caught the surprised Calloway round the waist and by sheer force of arms and knees rushed him outside.

He returned and banged the door shut. He leaned against it, dusted one hand against the other, and observed somewhat breathlessly:

"Saw his red car here and came back. Business seems to be opening with a whang, partner."

For the third time in ten minutes Prudence rearranged the egg-shell cups on the butterfly table, lifted the silver skittle-ball kettle to make sure that the wick of the spirit lamp on its brazier-like stand would flame at the touch of a match. She glanced at the banjo clock. Only five minutes since she had looked before? Unbelievable. Time was creeping on hands and knees. The knocker? She glanced at the clock. Not time for her brother. Who could it be?

She went slowly through the hall. She ought to be prancing with eagerness at the prospect of a caller. She wasn't. Since the family scandal she dreaded to meet new people. She opened the door.

She knew at once, from Si Puffer's description, that the tall woman facing her was Mrs. Walter Gerard. Large blue eyes, large floppy hat, large patterned gown, perfect accessories. The village women were right, she was a "nifty dresser." She extended a white gloved hand.

"Good afternoon, Miss Schuyler. I am your neighbor, Mrs. Gerard, and this is my darling daughter Jean."

She drew forward a thin little girl in a soft pink frock who had been standing behind her. The child curtsied demurely. She had puckish dark eyes, pale, unhealthy skin, short hair.

"Won't you come in?" "Try as she would, Prudence couldn't infuse warmth into her invitation. She Prudence Schuyler comes from New York to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, whose health has been broken by tragedy. The second day on her farm Prue falls from the barn loft into the arms of Rodney Gerard, rich young man, who lives at High Ledges on the neighboring farm. There is at once a mutual attraction between the two, but Prudence decides to maintain a cool attitude toward him. She suspects men since her sister's husband ran away with her brother's wife, Len Calloway, a rival of Gerard, tries to buy the timber off Prue's land, but she dislikes his conceited attitude and contracts with Rod to dispose of the trees.

hated the suave voice, hated the way the woman flicked her eyelids, hated her smile, hated the flutter with which she settled into the wing chair. The child sat primly on the ottoman beside her, her eyes darting about the room like a ferret's.

Mrs. Walter Gerard babbled: "So delighted to have a woman of my own kind near. Of course, our house is full during the season, but that isn't like having a neighbor. We hope that you will come often to High Ledges. What is it, dear?"

She inclined her head for the child's whisper. "The idea! No, no, of course not, Jean. She wants to prowl, Miss Schuyler, to see things. She is so intelligent. My cousin, the ambassador, says that she is the brightest child he has ever met. What an adorable skittle-ball kettle! Heirloom?"

Prudence wanted to snap, "No. Auction room." Mrs. Walter Gerard was so blatantly a person to whom family background would matter enormously in her estimate of a person, but she couldn't deny her father's great-grandmother.

"Yes." "Lorzon! In action, Mrs. Gerard bent over the kettle. "It looks like a Paul Lamerie."

"It is." "But, my dear, don't you realize that it is a museum piece? That man's fame as a goldsmith has reached the ends of the earth. Fancy using it!" She settled back in her chair. "As I was saying, my brother-in-law is a bachelor; in consequence, I am never at a loss for young company."

Her wink fired Prudence with an unholly impulse to scratch her. "But he's such a butterfly. He fits from flower to flower, never settles to one girl. A quite natural attitude for a rich man who has been pursued all his life, don't you think so, Miss Schuyler?"

She was intimating what Si Puffer had said, that Rodney Gerard was in terror of being married for his fortune. Did the woman think that she needed warning? A crash saved Prue's reputation for courtesy. Jean had been investigating the sugar bowl. The child scowled down upon it.

"Gee, it made me mad to drop that!" Her mother folded complacent hands. "Darling daughter shouldn't touch things until she is better acquainted. She is interested in everything, Miss Schuyler."

"Uncle Rod calls me K. K., his K-urious Kid." Jean interrupted in a high voice. "He comes to see you every day, doesn't he?"

The elfish eyes interrogating her brought a wave of color to Prue's face, the rush as of many waters in her ears. Mrs. Gerard anticipated her answer.

"How amusing that you should have imagined that, darling. Your Uncle Rodney is an indolent, good-natured boy; perhaps he might allow himself to be monopolized—for a time. You have a brother, dear Miss Schuyler?"

"If she calls me dear once more I'll throw something at her," Prudence told herself furiously. Aloud she informed smoothly:

"Yes. I expect him at any moment." She deliberately looked at the clock. Never in her life had she been so rude, but never before had she had such occasion, she excused herself.

"Coming today! Happy girl! I'll run away, you must be busy. You will come to High Ledges when we return in the spring, won't you? We close the house soon, so I am afraid—" "Uncle Rod isn't going," Jean announced.

"Rodney not going!" Mrs. Gerard's suave voice shrilled. Her face reddened unbecomingly. Her blue eyes hardened; then she laughed and winked.

"This darling has the strangest fancies, Miss Schuyler. You won't forget me, will you?" She extended her white-gloved hand, showed her long teeth in a large smile, and started along the herring-bone brick path with a springiness bordering on juvenility. Her daughter lingered to whisper hoarsely:

"I know why Uncle Rodney isn't going back to the city. He's goofy about you." She stuck her tongue in her cheek and ran.

Prue's eyes smoldered as she watched mother and daughter enter the luxurious maroon touring car.

"Horrid woman," she thought passionately. "I wager that you are a scold, a hypocrite, I feel as if my heart and soul had stumbled into a nettle patch. They are all prickles."

She crossed to the window and tried to concentrate her attention on the road by which her brother would come, into bed, and tomorrow you'll be rested and refreshed and I will show you everything."

"That program sounds good to me." He laid his hand on her shoulder and rose. He was tall and pathetically thin, but he held his head, with its thick, dark hair, with royal dignity.

"Everything's going to be all right now, Prue. Already I feel stronger. I will go up as you suggest. Say good afternoon to—here he is now," David Schuyler added, as Gerard entered.

"I have been ordered to bed by my tyrant, so I'll say 'thank you' for bringing me from the train, and obey." He offered his hand with cordial friendliness.

"Let me give you my arm. Those steep stairs look tricky. If she will promise to be good we'll let your sister trail along."

From the hall Prudence watched the two men as they slowly mounted the stairs. Tears blinded her. David looked so frail, so weary, as if too strong a wind might blow him away. She shut her teeth hard in her lips. It was her job to see that a strong wind didn't touch him. One didn't stop to question when the most precious person in one's life was in danger; one did things. She wasn't much good if she couldn't stand between him and trouble.

Someone knocking! Another caller? Why had the neighbors started to be friendly today of all ways when she wanted to devote herself to her brother's Prudence put her arm under her brother's while Gerard steadied him on the other side. They led him to the wing chair in front of the fireplace. He sank into it and closed his eyes. Her breath caught in a strangled sob. He looked up and smiled.

Prudence dropped to her knees beside him. "David, it is wonderful to have you here. You—you put the heart into the house. We'll have the happiest time, and you will gain in weight and health every minute with the milk and eggs and chickens fresh from the garden. I'm some farmer already, am I not, Mr. Gerard? Why, when did he go?"

"I suspect that he slipped out when you and I forgot there was anyone else in the room, Prue."

"I'll bring him back, pronto." She straightened the foot-cushion, dropped a kiss on the top of his head, picked up the silver kettle. No sign of Gerard in the dining room. She opened the kitchen door. He was perched on the corner of the pine table, his hands clasped about one knee as he talked to Jane Mack. Wonder of wonders! Macky was smiling!

"Tea is served in the club car!" Prudence announced in a stentorian tone, as she reached for the teakettle on the range from which to fill the silver one in her hand. Gerard seized it.

"Let me buttle. I'll feel like an outlander at this family reunion unless I can help."

In the living room Prudence seated herself on a low stool beside her brother's chair. She answered his questions to the accompaniment of the purr of steam from the kettle, the crackle of the fire, the tinkle of silver on china. She concluded:

"The evening I arrived I racked my brain for a name for these acres we have inherited which would make our coming seem like a new deal. I seized a word which has been hiding in the dark recently, pulled it out into the light, and named the place Prosperity farm. Get the psychology? I christened the car Success—so that it never will fail to get me to my destination—but I can't decide what to call the poultry. They've just got to lay eggs for me and I must resort to autosuggestion."

"What's the matter with Nickels?" "Grand! Picture me scattering corn, calling, 'Nickels! Nickels!' A little action this morning! Eggs, Nickels, eggs!"

After tea Gerard carried the tray to the kitchen. Prudence could hear the faint rumble of his voice as he talked to Jane Mack.

"The impossible has happened! Macky's granite heart has been chipped at last, David," she confided.

"Gerard certainly has an engaging manner. What do you know about him?"

"Nothing, except that even in the late era of frozen assets the bulk of his fortune remained fluid. Mrs. Si is my authority. That woman is a regular Who's Who for this village. The fact that he is rich tells me all I want to know."

"All rich men are not alike, Prue. You and I have been unfortunate in some we have known."

"David, do you think that I will ever forget the result of Julie's marriage to a playboy? She was the sweetest big sister a girl ever had, and she died of a broken heart. Forgive me, Dave, forgive me," she pleaded, as his head dropped back against the chair and his eyes closed.

She caught his hands tight in hers. "Why, why did I bring that up! We'll forget it. It's behind us. You've had a long, tiresome day, David, why not go to your room, then I'll tuck you er? She opened the door. Her breath caught in a little gasp as she confronted Len Calloway.

"Good afternoon, Miss Schuyler. May I come in?" He entered the living room without waiting for an answer.

Prudence resented his assurance. "I can't talk business now, Mr. Calloway. My brother has just arrived and I want to be with him."

"I won't detain you but a moment. I came to ask once more if you will give the contract for cutting your timber to me."

"I have already told you that I have arranged with Mr. Gerard to do it." TO BE CONTINUED.

By Sheer Force of Arms and Knees Rushed Him Outside.

History of House Cats Dates Back to the Ark

The long, colorful history of the house cat had its dawning in the Ark—that is, if one is to take the word of Damire, the great Arabian naturalist who wrote of animals in the Eighth century of the Hegira, according to a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

"When Noah entered the Ark his family represented to him that the mice would devour all their possessions; whereupon the patriarch addressed a prayer on the subject to Allah, who in response caused the lion to sneeze a full-grown cat from its nostrils—the result being that the mice were not only kept in order during the Deluge, but were impressed with that timidity that has made them lurk in holes ever since."

Notwithstanding the learned Arabian's ingenious account, more recent scientific investigation indicates that the Egyptians were the first to domesticate the cat—a species of the African wild cat.

The life of the cats in the Valley of the Nile would seem to have been a bed of catnip, figuratively if not literally. They enjoyed high privileges in being held sacred to Isis and to Pasht. In fact, cat-headed deities were not uncommon in the Egyptian Pantheon.

Mistreatment of the cat was a base crime in those days. Diodorus related that a Roman soldier who had killed a cat barely escaped with his life from the hands of the infuriated people.

Nation Needs Youth to Lead It, Says Editor

There is more strength in the wealth of youth than in the bankruptcy of old age.

That is the basic philosophy of Miss Viola Ima, dynamic attractive twenty-three-year-old leader of the American Youth movement, and editor of Modern Youth, the magazine which is called the voice of the younger generation. The slogan of this magazine is "no author can be over thirty."

Miss Ima quite by accident arrived in Washington at the time when four different student groups were holding conferences. She attended each conference in order to get the ideas of various groups.

"The interest of the students in national and international affairs is important," she stated, "because it shows that American youth is awakening."

"But a youth movement in America must not depend upon students. They never get anywhere while they cling to their student-like grudges and fight among themselves."

"They are bound by college walls. They lack the intelligence to see that all youth is as lost and frustrated as they are. The noncollegiate youth has a stamina, and a comprehension of reality which the student lacks. In order to accomplish anything, all classes of American young men and women must band together."

"In European countries all leaders look to youth. This is not true in America because American young people are not organized. Their lack of organization explains their lack of influence in government."

Miss Ima believes that one of the first steps toward the education of American youth to a sense of its own responsibility is the establishing of a central bureau in Washington.

"Into this bureau young people from all over the country can bring their ideas and can form a constructive policy."

"As editor of Modern Youth, I have read over two thousand manuscripts from young people all over the country. From these I have formed a five-point plan, which I believe is the philosophy of intelligent youth today."

"We believe in peace, in the education of boys and girls for the world of reality, and in social solution for the problem of vagrant young people."

Miss Ima has traveled around the world three times. During her travels she has attended economic conferences in all countries.

"I am against such terms as 'radical' and 'conservative,'" she said.

ROYAL RELATIONS

King Edward VII of England was married to Alexandra, daughter of King Christian IX of Denmark. Her sister Dagmar was the wife of Alexander III of Russia. Their son, the murdered Czar Nicholas II, was a second cousin to the present English King George V. The resemblance between the two cousins was remarkable.

Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action. It gently helps the average person's constipated bowels until nature restores their regularity.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use.

Fictitious Value Given to Table Delicacies

The menu of some of the meals that once graced the imperial dinner table in the land of the czars included calves' ears, palates of real baked in ashes, pigeon tongues, bull's eyes, cheeks of herring and salmon lips, says the Detroit News.

Broadmindedness, even on matters of diet, is a virtue. One strongly suspects, however, that such culinary remnants must have won their rating as delicacies solely on the basis of scarcity. It was only because a calf has only two ears, surely, that these were reserved for the Russian nobility and denied to commoners.

Probably the greatest of gustatory prizes of present-day America is the terrapin, which, being about the size and appearance of a common mud turtle, sells in the markets for around $4 a terrapin.

Yet there was a time, before the Civil war, when the slaves of Virginia and Maryland went on a hunger strike because their owners fed them terrapin, which was plentiful and cheap, until they no longer could bear the sight of this essentially humble creature.

Miss Ima believes that one of the first steps toward the education of American youth to a sense of its own responsibility is the establishing of a central bureau in Washington.

IT OFTEN CAUSES "HARSH WORDS" I'M TRYING TO HELP YOU! THAT'S AN INSULT! Controversy always follows the introduction of any new scientific discovery. But no discovery in years, probably, has caused so much heated discussion and had such far reaching effects as this one. See what happened to these two Kansas housewives. OH EDITH—I PITY YOU WITH ALL THAT WASHING TO DO. I WASHED YESTERDAY AND I WAS DOG-TIRED LAST NIGHT. WHY, WASHING'S NO JOB FOR ME AT ALL, JANE, YOU DON'T MEAN TO TELL ME YOU STILL RUB AND SCRUB CLOTHES. OF COURSE I USE BAR SOAP AND SCRUB MY CLOTHES! HOW DO YOU DO IT? WITH THIS HARD WATER, TOO! WHY, I JUST SOAK THEM IN OXYDOL SUDS—AND SAVE ALL THE WEAR AND TEAR OF SCRUBBING AND BOILING. I SIMPLY WON'T USE THOSE STRONG GRANULATED SOAPS. THE ONE I TRIED PRACTICALLY RUINED MY COLORED DRESSES. BUT DON'T YOU KNOW? OXYDOL FLUSHES DIRT OUT IN 15 MINUTES' SOAKING—BUT IT WON'T FADE A THING OR HURT YOUR HANDS. 15 MINUTES! WHY, EDITH, THAT'S AN INSULT TO MY INTELLIGENCE. DON'T EXPECT ME TO BELIEVE THAT! I TELL YOU IT'S TRUE! I'LL SHOW YOU—JUST WATCH THOSE SUDS FOR 15 MINUTES. 15 MINUTES LATER: ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING AND THOSE CLOTHES ARE WHITE AS SNOW! IT'S MARVELOUS, EDITH—I'LL GET OXYDOL TODAY—IF YOU'RE POSITIVE IT'S SAFE! LOOK! THIS LITTLE PRINT DRESS OF MARY-JO'S IS JUST LIKE NEW—AND I'VE WASHED IT A DOZEN TIMES! OXYDOL REALLY SAVES CLOTHES. YOU'LL BE ASTONISHED...LIKE I WAS—WHEN YOU TRY THIS NEW WAY TO WASH. MADE by a patented process, New and Improved OXYDOL dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things: Gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps. Sets up a unique "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes' soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling. You save long hours of washboard drudgery. You get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter without washboard wear and tear. And yet, due to its special formula—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, fabrics! Get new, improved OXYDOL from your grocer today. Money back if you don't have the whitest, sweetest wash ever. The Procter & Gamble Company.

Eligibility—In order to be eligible a student must be a high school graduate. He must satisfy the welfare director of his county that he is financially unable to attend college.

County Normal graduates and students having had a year of college are ineligible.

Examinations—Each student shall take a final examination at the end of the term in each subject. These examinations shall be prepared by the head of the department in the supervising college and shall be equal to those given at the college.

Credits—Full credit will be given for the work done in Freshman colleges if the student passes his subjects successfully and if he meets the entrance requirements of the institution to which he wishes to transfer at a later date.

Quantity of Work—Each student in the Freshman college shall be expected to do the same amount of work that a Freshman student in the supervising college does in the same length of time in that class.

Note—A college class carries forty clock hours per term, more if partly laboratory work.

TAWAS CITY NEWS

Miss Margaret Stepanski left Friday (today) for a couple of weeks' visit in Detroit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. John King attended the funeral of the former's father, F. M. King, of Millington, on Saturday of last week, and are visiting relatives for a week before returning to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. White and sons, Billy and Gene, of Royal Oak spent the week end in the city with Mrs. White's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Clark. Mr. Clark, who has been ill for several months, is greatly improved.

The portions of Mammoth cave most frequented by visitors are lighted by electric lights. But miles of the less accessible sections remain very much as they have always been.

Open Letter to the People of Iosco County

We who are privileged to live and enjoy the wonderful things Iosco county has for us seldom, if ever, stop and think whether our neighbor is a Democrat, Republican or Prohibitionist, and it is a good thing that we do not. It makes no difference. In fact, it does not matter whether our local township, city or county government be one party or another as we are all striving for our common good. May it always remain so. Party politics should never enter into local governments such as cities, towns or schools—yes, even county offices. Who is it that would say that because a man was a Democrat he would not make a good county officer or because he was a Republican he would not make just as good an officer? May it always be that way. In these small northern counties we all know one another and should decide the qualifications of the candidates without party labels.

It so happens that I am a candidate for County Clerk and that my name will appear under the head of the Democratic ticket, but I give you my word of honor that should I be elected to that office partyism will have nothing to do with the service I shall give you.

My time and my pocketbook will not warrant a big campaign, or a lot of "ballyhoo," so I am using this method of appealing to your fair judgment. Let us have a clean, honest and fair administration of the office without politics.

I was born in Tawas City, have lived in the county all of my life, and have been a property owner for 25 years.

by a representative of the University of Michigan, Dr. L. Luther Purdom. Dr. Purdom spoke to the high school pupils concerning some of the factors which tend to cause success or non-success in life.

Report cards were given out Wednesday throughout the school. Seventh and Eighth Grades

We are sorry to lose Betty Davis, who is moving to Battle Creek this week.

This room had no tardy marks in the month of September.

The eighth grade arithmetic class is studying square root.

Report cards were given out Wednesday noon. The following pupils in the eighth grade had an average of "B" for the month of September: Norma Musolf, William Murray, Betty Davis, Ruth Clark, and June Brown; in the seventh grade—Kathleen Davis.

Third and Fourth Grades

The following people were on the September honor roll: Evelyn Colby, Maxine DePotty, Rosalie Groff, Lou Libka, Neil Libka, Willard Musolf, Harry Rollin, Hugo Wegner, Wayne White, Ruth Giddings, Lyle Hughes, Phil Mark, and Betty Nelson.

The third graders played store for their number work Tuesday.

Dr. Purdom visited our room Monday morning.

We had our pictures taken Tuesday morning.

Primary Room

Peter Cunniff, who has been absent several days because of illness, is back at school.

Gilbert Sievert and Jack Smith had perfect lessons in spelling all last week.

Neil Thornton and Gay Young were absent Wednesday.

On the honor roll for September were the following: Beverly Bigelow, Allen Brown, Peter Cunniff, Charles Curry, Dorothy Hill, Norma Jean Hill, Neil Thornton, Raymond Westcott, Marion Bing, Dorothy Dease, Donna Moore, Nora Jean Mueller, Elsie Rollin, Gilbert Sievert, Gary Smith, and Gay Young.

interesting to me, and I am sure it will be interesting to the people of this whole section to know that the Production Credit Associations in this state have loaned $658,072 up to the first of the month. For the whole district the loans made to these farmers was $3,638,000 approximately.

Another fact in connection with these PCA loans is that the farmers of this district have paid back over $265,000. This means that our members are determined to see that our associations are kept in good standing so that they can continue to make loans for all legitimate purposes, not only this year, but for every year to come.

Under the new order just issued by the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank the West Branch Production Credit Association is authorized to make loans up to $500.00 without first submitting papers to Federal Intermediate Credit Bank. This means that the farmer may make an application with Jesse Sibley, Jr., Whittemore, or William Latta, Whittemore, and as soon as the inspection is made and the papers signed by the applicant the money is available in cash, thus enabling the West Branch Production Credit Association to close loans within two to three days from the time the application is made, and in some cases the same day application is made.

A practice shoot will be held at the fair grounds at 2:30 Sunday afternoon, October 7, for the purpose of selecting a squad to represent the club at Rose City, October 14. All who are interested are urged to be present.

Dr. Paul Voelker Warns Of Gas Tax Amendment

Dr. Paul F. Voelker, Superintendent of Public Instruction, has attacked the proposed constitutional amendments limiting the weight and amending taxes with the declaration "that passage of the amendment will deprive schools of $5,500,000 annually."

"While it is true that no part of the gasoline or weight taxes goes to the schools," Dr. Voelker pointed out, "it is also true that the proposal to amend the constitution of Michigan by limiting the amount of tax that will be levied against the weight of a car and its gas consumption, contains a rider to the effect that some two cents per gallon and the 35 cents per hundred pounds of weight shall be in lieu of any other taxes." This can mean nothing else than that the schools will be deprived of $5,500,000.

The superintendent claimed passage of the amendments will shut out part of the sales tax, will shut out all possibilities of a manufacturer's tax on gas and automobiles, and close all avenues to an income tax based on gas, oil, and automobiles. The above is taken from "Michigan Roads and Airports."

Differences in Height The little cartilages between the vertebrae of the spinal column in the human body diminish in size during the day because of the weight or pressure that is upon them. In some individuals the difference in height between day and night may be as much as one-quarter to one-half an inch.

Arenac District

TO THE VOTERS:

Having received the nomination for Representative of the Arenac District on the Democratic Ticket, I would appreciate your vote and influence at the November 6th Election. My residence is in East Tawas and I have been a taxpayer for 25 years, any rumor to the contrary notwithstanding.

Should I be elected in the coming election, it will be my ambition to give service to the District that will reflect credit to the citizenship which I would represent.

My campaign is on until the day of election, and I shall endeavor to meet personally as many of the voters as possible in the next few weeks.

ELECTRICITY is cheap when it brings Freedom

Electric service in the home has loosened the bonds of needless housework—has freed the housewife from tasks that were tedious, wearying and aging—and brings a new day of convenience, economy and added hours of freedom for pleasanter things.

Best of all—electricity does all these things for a few pennies a day. Does more things. Does them better than ever, and cheaper than ever.

Electricity in the home today is at the lowest price in history. Its many penny-priced services are worth dollars in better home living.
