November P.-T. A. Meeting Held Last Week Thursday

The Tawas City P.-T. A. held its November meeting at the high school Thursday evening, November 8th. After the usual business was disposed of, the meeting was turned over to Miss Myles, chairman of the entertainment committee. The program was opened by the high school girls' Glee Club, who sang two numbers, Calm as the Night (Bohm) and The Cuckoo Clock (Grant-Schaefer). Both were thoroughly enjoyed by the audience. Rev. F. Metcalf was then introduced and he talked about the seasonal subject of war and peace. Many ideas, worthy of further thought, were introduced by the speaker, who declared that education in the right direction was one of the means by which war might be abolished. "Civilization pitted against civilization meant chaos and we must choose either Christ or chaos."

After the meeting was adjourned the assembly went down to the lunch room where a light lunch was served by the social committee, Mrs. A. A. Bigelow, Mrs. Jas. Leslie, and Mrs. A. Boomer.

Purchase Northern Oil Company Service Station

Elmer E. Anschuetz and Ernest R. Schmalz have purchased the stock and retail business of the Northern Peninsular Oil company which had been operating during the past two years in the Dease garage building in this city. Mr. Anschuetz and Mr. Schmalz are both well known here. Mr. Schmalz has been an employee of the Northern Peninsular Oil company since the opening of its retail business here.

The business will be operated under the name of Huron Oil & Supply company. Announcement of the change appears on another page of the Tawas Herald.

A Message To Citizens Of Iosco County

The time is now here for the American Red Cross roll call and we hope Iosco county will go over the top as before. There are so many services for the Red Cross to perform outside of any government help as through F. E. R. A. that your help by enrolling is solicited. Care for the unemployed, the aged, the handicapped, the sick, or tonsillectomies, dental care, etc. cetera, will still come under Red Cross supervision. Flour and cotton goods will not be distributed through the Red Cross this year.

As soon as a date can be determined when a representative of the National Red Cross can be with us, a meeting for Iosco will be held, at which time representatives from every community will have the chance to decide what will be done with our share of Iosco county's funds.

May everybody boost and enroll now.
W. A. Evans, Acting Chairman.

To Voters of Iosco County

I desire to thank the voters of Iosco county for the splendid support I received at the November election, which resulted in my being elected to the office of Prosecuting Attorney. After all these years, to know that the voters have such confidence in me is indeed gratifying, and I promise you that your trust in me will be firmly kept and your interest in government maintained.
Respectfully yours,
John A. Stewart.

Mrs. George Baker

The community was shocked and grieved to hear of the death of Mrs. George Baker, which occurred at the Mercy hospital, Bay City, on November 5th after she had undergone a serious operation. Funeral services were held in the St. Joseph church, East Tawas, with Rev. E. A. Kirchoff officiating.

Besides three brothers, she is survived by six sons, Peter, Frank and Leo of Alabaster, John, Edward and William of Detroit, and four daughters, Pauline of Duluth, Minnesota, Matilda, Lulu and Margaret of Detroit.

Funeral services will be held in the St. Joseph church, East Tawas, on Wednesday, November 14, at 2:30 p. m.

$10.00 Reward

$10.00 will be given for any information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons found guilty of stealing drags, lamps and chairs from the Tawas township premises.
Township Board of Tawas
Township,
Ferd. Schmalz, Supervisor.

Card of Thanks

We sincerely thank the many friends, neighbors and relatives for their kindness and sympathy during the long illness and at the death of our husband, father, son and brother; the Jesse C. Hodder Post, American Legion, those who sent floral tributes, those who loaned cars, the singers, Rev. W. A. Gregory for his comforting words, and anyone else who assisted us in our hour of bereavement.
Mrs. Hilda Ulman,
Ruth Ulman,
Mrs. Anna Ulman,
Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ulman and family.

Queen Esther Circle Trip To Saginaw Is Described

November 9th was a red letter day for the girls belonging to the Queen Esther Circle in Tawas City. At three o'clock in the afternoon a jolly group distributed themselves into three cars driven by Miss Worden, Mrs. McLean and Mr. Gurley. The ride to Saginaw was enjoyable and ended all too soon.

At the Jefferson Avenue church we were met by Mrs. Holland and Mrs. Gregory who had preceded us the day before to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the Women's Home Missionary Society and were to accompany us home. At the church the tickets for the banquet were bought and then some of the girls disappeared to do some shopping.

The banquet was served at six-thirty in the Sunday school room. Everyone marched in two-by-two under a wisteria arbor. The room was decorated with Japanese lanterns and the programs were also Japanese lanterns decorated with the letters Q. E. C. on the front. The delicious banquet was deftly served by women and girls of Saginaw. During the banquet many yells were given by the various Queen Esther Circles. Miss Ethel Harpst of Cedar town, Georgia, was the speaker of the evening and as she had to make a train at Detroit at 11:30 she spoke before we left the tables.

She spoke about the work going on in Cedar town. Her talk was very interesting. After Miss Harpst left Mrs. Ford, the secretary for the young people, told us to go back upstairs for the program two-by-two as we came down.

Upstairs we had inspirational singing. The songs were all about the Girls' Golden Year which we are nearing. Then Mrs. Ford introduced the various leaders of the districts, also Miss Helen Pattinson, secretary of the Saginaw district, and Mrs. Fruit. Then Miss Pattinson talked about the Three Golden Projects. After this Mrs. Ford gave some statistics of how many circles and members there were last year and how many this year and we are glad to say there are more this year. Catherine Miller, who has been at Queen Esther camp two years, once as representative of her district and last year as Queen of her conference, told us what camp meant to her.

The Golden Years and the Golden Goals by Geneva Beaton showed us in story form what we are working for. All sang the Girls' Golden Year song next.

The event of the evening was the crowning of the queen—Miss Minnie Mae Murphy of the Flint district. Then after the benediction which followed the crowning everyone left. As we left Saginaw we all agreed that the evening had been wonderful and that we were all looking forward to Girls' Golden Year.

Wilber Man Sentenced For Illegal Hunting

James Thompson of Wilber township was taken Wednesday before Justice W. C. Davidson charged with having three illegal deer in his possession. He was ordered to pay a fine of $100.00 and costs, or serve a term of forty-five days in the house of correction. His car was confiscated.

East Tawas P.-T. A. Will Meet Next Monday Night

At the regular P.-T. A. meeting next Monday night, November 19, Dr. Gladys Kleinschmidt, newly appointed Doctor of the Children's Fund of Michigan for this district, will be the speaker and will outline their activities for the year.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club met in the city hall Saturday, November 3. The meeting was ably conducted by Mrs. Bing in the absence of the president, Mrs. Dease. During the business session the club decided to again help with the Red Cross roll call.

Mrs. Emmelle Mark then offered the following program: Singing—Michigan Federation Song; Report on Federation Meeting—Mrs. Campbell. This report was very well given and the members who attended this meeting could imagine themselves in Grand Rapids with her.

After a group of songs by Miss Elsie Ahonen, accompanied by Mrs. Nyda Campbell Leslie, club was adjourned to meet November 17 at the city hall, at which time the following program will be rendered: Roll Call—Current Events; Michigan Laws Relating to Women—Mrs. Anabel Davidson; Naturalization and Citizenship of Married Women—Mrs. Braddock; Music.

Notice

I appreciate the vote given me by the people of the county and will endeavor to perform the duties of the office of sheriff with fairness and impartiality and to the best of my ability.

AGRICULTURAL SHOW WILL BE HELD NOV. 22

Newly-Formed Society To Sponsor Event At East Tawas

Thursday, November 22, at the Community Building in East Tawas there will be held a seed, grain, and crop show for all farmers of Iosco county. This is sponsored by the newly-formed Tawas Bay Agricultural and Horticultural Society and the East Tawas high school agricultural department.

Premium money totalling $111.50 for general exhibits will be distributed, while $58.00 will be given out to 4-H prize winners. Premium lists may be received at the various drug stores in the county as well as through the schools. For special information contact H. T. Swanson, school superintendent of East Tawas who is secretary-manager of the show.

Sheave exhibits should be three inches in diameter, grain and seed exhibits should consist of four quart samples, potatoes of 32 tubers, and the other specified root crops should be six in number.

Exhibits must be at the Community Building by 11:00 a. m. Thursday, November 22, and cannot be taken away until after the evening meeting.

There will be some prizes for canned goods but due to the late preparation for the show this year expansion in this department will be stressed next year.

Meetings will be held at 2:00 and 8:00 p. m. Three speakers will come from Michigan State College and are Roy Decker, secretary-treasurer of the Michigan Farm Crops Improvement Association, A. G. Ketunen, State 4-H Club leader and Sylvia Wixon of the same department. The East Tawas high school band and Boys' Glee Club will put on some special numbers parts of which are from the recent minstrel show of the school carnival.

Soil testing will be done free with the Simplex Soil Tester, so bring in your soil samples. Take samples of soil from the entire depth of furrow slice and not from the top only. An average sample from several places in the field is best.

Other exhibits will include potato exhibits from the Gaylord potato show held last week, field run certified seed, certified grain, disease exhibits, and many others. Schools may also show their open classes in a unit.

Provisions for eating lunch will be made in the Community Building so please bring your lunch. We ask your full-hearted cooperation to take part in this show and to make it a success. Please talk it up as much as you can because this is your show.

A grain judging contest for Smith-Hughes high schools will be held at 4:00 o'clock of the same day.

Wade Lomas Left For Detroit, Where He Has Employment

D. Culter of Lansing spent Thursday in the city calling on friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin McCormick, Mrs. H. Joppick and Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Grossmeyer were called to Lansing owing to the death of Mrs. Grossmeyer's father.

Mrs. Wm. Boldt spent a couple of days in Bay City with her daughter.

Mrs. Wyatt Misener and Mrs. Oren Misener spent Tuesday in Bay City.

In the near future the American Legion Auxiliary expects to hold a quilt and hooked rug show, featuring various booths with numerous articles for sale. They hope to have many beautiful quilts and rugs on display, and prizes will be offered for the best entries. Plan on seeing the articles at this bazaar before your Christmas packages are wrapped. Judges will be selected to decide the winning exhibits. Committees are being appointed and detailed information will be announced soon. Any one wishing to enter her choice quilt or rug please send or give your name to Mrs. C. L. Barkman, Mrs. Harry Pelton or Mrs. Iva Mallon. (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

Helen Hayes In Delightful Romance With Novel Twist

"What Every Woman Knows," Helen Hayes' latest starring picture which shows Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, November 18-19-20, at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, is a triumphal return for the star after a year's absence from the screen.

After one of the most successful seasons in the history of the New York stage in "Mary of Scotland," Miss Hayes came back to Hollywood for the immortal role of Maggie in Sir James Barrie's famous romance, and has reached new emotional heights.

Maggie's efforts to win a husband, although often declared to be a "woman with no charm," provide a strong theme for the plot. After she wins a man through a marriage contract, her life is devoted to building his success and guarding the happiness she has won through much difficulty.

Brian Aherne heads the supporting cast in the leading male role. Also outstanding in their performance of smaller roles are Dudley Digges, Donald Crisp and David Torrence.

Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the voters of Iosco county and assure them that I will continue to give the office of county drain commissioner my very best efforts.

News Review of Current Events the World Over

Nation Indorses President and the New Deal at the Polls— Democrats Gain Nine Seats in the Senate.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© by Western Newspaper Union.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT and his fellow New Dealers had every reason to gloat over the results of the elections, for, generally speaking, their policies and acts were endorsed by the citizens of the United States by what amounted to a real landslide. The Democrats gained nine seats in the United States senate; and on incomplete returns, appeared to have just about held their present strength in the lower house.

Outstanding among the many Democratic victories was that scored in Pennsylvania. That state had not previously sent a Democrat to the senate in a half a century, but this time Joseph Guffey, the party boss, rode roughshod over Senator David A. Reed, leading adversary of the New Deal, and sent him to the discard. Two other persistent critics of the administration who were retired were Senator Simeon B. Fess of Ohio, beaten by former Gov. Vic Donahey; and Senator Arthur R. Robinson of Indiana, soundly walloped by Sherman Minton. Hatfield of West Virginia, Walcott of Connecticut, Hebert of Rhode Island, Kean of New Jersey, Goldsborough of Maryland and Patterson of Missouri, all Republican senators, must give up their seats respectively to young Rush D. Holt, Francis T. Maloney, Peter G. Gerry, A. Harry Moore, George L. Radcliffe and Harry S. Truman, all Democrats.

Upton Sinclair, the extreme radical, had the fun of scaring California out of its wits with his EPIC campaign for the governorship, and at little or no expense to himself; but the national administration had turned him down and the Republican nominee, Gov. Frank F. Merriam, won by a handsome majority. So the wealthy "refugees" who make California their home decided not to abandon the state. Hiram Johnson, being the nominee of everyone for re-election, goes back to the senate.

Wisconsin remained true to the La Follette dynasty even though it had created a new "Progressive" party for its own uses. Senator Bob La Follette had been patted on the head by President Roosevelt, and John M. Callahan, the Democratic nominee for the senate, was not acceptable to the administration because he was a friend of Al Smith; so Bob came through with a big plurality over Callahan and John B. Chapple, the Republican candidate. To clinch the victory of the third party, Philip La Follette was elected governor again, defeating Gov. Albert Schmedeman, Democrat, and Howard T. Greene, Republican.

There was a crumb of comfort for the Republicans in the re-election of Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, who has condemned parts and espoused other parts of the New Deal. One other crumb, less comforting, was afforded them in Maryland where Albert C. Ritchie was defeated in his attempt to annex a fifth consecutive term as governor. He was beaten by Harry W. Nice, a Republican of Baltimore whom Ritchie defeated for the same place in 1919.

The old line Republicans succeeded in re-electing Senator Austin in Vermont and Senator Townsend in Delaware.

Illinois, New York and Massachusetts were among the states that were swept by the Democrats. In the first named they took five house seats from the Republicans, the defeated including the veteran Fred Britten. New Yorkers returned Dr. Royal S. Copeland to the senate and H. H. Lehman to the governorship by tremendous majorities. Senator David I. Walsh was re-elected in Massachusetts, and Jim Curley, three times mayor of Boston, was made governor.

In the main the Democratic campaign had been skillfully conducted under the leadership of Postmaster Jim Farley. A fight to oust the "ins" always is difficult, and the Republicans in their hearts had not hoped for much. They did not get even the little they had expected. For at least two years President Roosevelt is assured of full support by congress for whatever policies and experiments he may undertake, and the voters of the nation have told him to go ahead and do what he can to restore the country to prosperity.

SEVEN states voted on repudiation of prohibition and only Kansas, still stoutly Republican, remained dry. The others, all turning wet, were Florida, West Virginia, Nebraska, South Dakota, Wyoming and Idaho.

In Nebraska Senator George Norris succeeded in putting over his pet amendment to the state constitution providing for a small one-house legislature, and there is a belief that he will run for governor in 1936 to guide the experiment. Under the amendment, the 1935 legislature will pick a number of legislators—between 30 and 50—for its one-house successor. Annual salaries will be determined by dividing the number into $37,500.

FIRST of the administration chiefs to make a post-election speech, Secretary of Commerce Roper said over the radio: "We are not going to have a dictatorship to the left or an autocracy to the right."

He insisted that the Roosevelt recovery program contemplates the restoration of private profits and that, in fact, the government's essential revenues, through the income tax, are dependent upon private profits.

"As soon as future relief requirements can be determined," Secretary Roper said in announcing a new approach to the relief problem, "the major portion of these expenditures should be assumed by the states and localities, with federal assistance supplied only in those instances where the situation cannot possibly be met without federal aid. We need to discourage the growing tendency to 'let the federal government do it.'"

GASTON DOUMERGUE, utterly unable to make headway against the political schemers in the French cabinet, has resigned the premiership and returned to the retirement from which he was called last February to save the country from imminent civil war. The six radical socialist ministers, determined to frustrate his plan for constitutional reform, refused the premier's offer to postpone discussion of this scheme until after a regular budget was voted, provided the chamber of deputies first passed a three months' budget. Doumergue thereupon read his resignation, and at the suggestion of Edouard Herriot, leader of the Radical Socialists, the entire cabinet resigned.

President Lebrun immediately asked Pierre Laval, foreign minister, to form another coalition government, but he refused the commission. So the difficult job was turned over to Pierre-Etienne Flandin, a left Republican who was minister of public works in the Doumergue cabinet.

The crisis aroused fear of armed conflict in Paris between the Socialists and the so-called Fascist groups, for both these parties called on their militant elements to be ready for action. There was danger, too, that the meeting of war veterans and patriotic societies on Armistice day would be turned into an anti-government demonstration.

OFFICERS and crew of the Morro Castle are held to blame for the heavy loss of life when the liner turned, in the government's report on the disaster, but no attempt is made to fix the origin of the fire that took 134 lives.

"After a careful examination of the wreck and evaluation of the testimony," says the report submitted by Dickerson N. Hoover, assistant director of the steamboat inspection service, "it is not possible to state what the exact cause was."

Blame for the catastrophe is placed by the government also on the construction of the vessel itself.

FOR the information of those who are hazy as to what the Germanic Faith movement is all about, here are the nine commandments just issued for the neo-pagans, to replace the ten commandments of the Christian Bible:

1. Honor the deity, the World foundation.
2. Honor ancestors and grandchildren.
3. Honor the great of thy people.
4. Honor thy parents.
5. Keep yourself clean.
6. Be loyal to your people.
7. Do not steal.
8. Be truthful.
9. Help the noble.

SOVIET Russia celebrated the seventeenth anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution with a parade of the great Red army before the tomb of Lenin in Moscow, and at the same time the Comintern, or Third Internationale, issued by cable an appeal to the toilers of the world to unite in a common front against imperialist wars and Fascism.

BECAUSE of her personal achievements and not because she is the wife of the President, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has been awarded the second Gimbel prize of $1,000 and a medal for outstanding work for America. She will receive the award in Philadelphia on December 12.

Mrs. Roosevelt has requested that the $1,000 be applied toward sending a child suffering from the effects of infantile paralysis to Warm Springs,

UNDER the auspices of the National Association of Manufacturers, a drive has been started "to prevent labor union coercion," and all state legislatures, when they convene, are to be asked to enact six specific provisions "for the purpose of fixing the legal responsibility of labor organizations for their acts." The association says it is moved to this course because it believes the federal government is at last aware of the "terrorism" practiced by union members against other employees who desire to act.

The laws to be asked of legislatures are:

1. To make sympathetic strikes and sympathetic lockouts illegal.
2. To make both employers and unions equally responsible for the observance of contracts.
3. To make it illegal for any association of employers or employees to expel, suspend, fine or otherwise punish members refusing to participate in an illegal strike or lockout.
4. To make picketing illegal when it is carried on in such a manner as to intimidate or coerce employees or customers.
5. To declare illegal employment contracts requiring a person either to join or not to join any labor organization.
6. To require written consent of the employee before the deduction of any part of his wages for the payment of organization dues may be made.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT agreed to extend the automobile industry code until February 1 without changing its wage or hours provisions. The American Federation of Labor had demanded an immediate and drastic revision of the code, and this the President refused. Mr. Roosevelt, however, said he believes the code needs revamping, and he hinted that on February 1 he may demand that the industry stabilize employment and pay rolls.

"I have no hesitation in telling you," the President wrote in a letter to William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and Alvan Macaulay, secretary of the Automobile Manufacturers association, "that there are a number of matters connected with this code with which I have never been fully satisfied."

He disclosed both in his letter and in a separate formal statement that he is launching an investigation into working conditions and wages in the industry, with especial attention to the workers' annual earnings.

FOLLOWING a week's conference with agricultural economists from 40 states, officials of the Department of Agriculture and leaders of the AAA, the bureau of agricultural economics has issued a bulky report forecasting generally improved conditions for the farm industry during the coming year. Here are the chief points in the predictions:

1. Greatly reduced supplies of most farm products will be seen, which, with improvement in consumer purchasing power, will probably bring a higher level of farm income during the first half of 1935, this despite low foreign demand for American farm products.
2. Farm production will be larger than this year's unusually small production.
3. This year's higher prices may tend to stimulate excessive planting of some crops not under production control next year.
4. Continued improvement in demand late next year will depend primarily on recovery in the durable goods industries.
5. "A small improvement in the purchasing power of farm families may, in general, be expected."
6. Prices of goods used in farm production are expected to average somewhat higher, at least until June, 1935.
7. The farm credit situation "will continue to show gradual improvement above the bad conditions of the past several years."
8. Next year's wheat crop is expected to result in an export surplus, with prices hanging close to an export basis.
9. Substantial advance in prices of meat animals is expected, with no material expansion in live stock numbers sighted before 1936.
10. Next year's wool clip will be the smallest in several years, with prices dependent on world production.
11. "A generally favorable" outlook is seen for poultry raisers, with prices remaining at seasonably high levels until next summer.

FRANCIS J. GORMAN, head of the United Textile Workers' committee that directed the recent strike, in a letter to George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile institute, said that union labor would be glad to co-operate with the industry in developing new markets for the output of the factories.

He declared that after controversies had been ironed out by the federal board named as a result of the strike, representatives of the two sides could "begin conferences looking toward the improvement of the industry."

Mentioning the increased competition from Japanese goods and other factors which caused demand for American textiles to fall "millions of yards" below production capacity, he said:

"A part of the purpose of the conferences which I have in mind would be to create joint employer-union machinery for the expansion and extension of the textile market. Such a program would be in furtherance of the interests of workers and employers alike."

Queer Tricks Are Played by Some Erratic Rivers

Eccentric Rio Grande Leaves Farmers in Lurch.

Washington.—Residents of north and central New Mexico received a jolt recently when the Rio Grande, source of water for their crops, suddenly left them in the lurch by drying up completely into a path of sand.

"Dwellers near the peaceful Potomac or steady Hudson, accustomed to relying on rivers as dependable landmarks, flowing in routine way from source to mouth, are in for disillusionment," says the National Geographic society. "No feature of nature is more capricious than some rivers."

"This sudden drying up is an old trick of the Rio Grande, which, with only one large tributary, the River Pecos, tries to flow from the Rocky mountains over 2,000 miles to the sea across open valleys and arid desert. In winter and spring, melted snows swell this United States boundary stream until in places it leaves its banks; but in summer, in many sections, it evaporates in its sandy bed."

One of Bad Habits.
"Dwindling is just one of the bad habits of the eccentric Rio Grande. Swinging in great curves over the low flood plains, it often changes its course, shifting land between Mexico and Texas."

"Another perverse river is the changeable Hwang Ho, which has shifted its course through China many times. Its mouth on the Yellow sea, once south of the Shantung peninsula, now lies north of that promontory, 250 miles from its former outlet."

"Roundabout windings of a river add numerous miles to its course. Although an airplane trip direct from the source of the Seine to its mouth covers only 250 miles, the river, because of its meanderings, actually traverses 482 miles.

"Broad windings of a river form wide curves, so-called 'oxbow loops.' In flood time, a swollen stream will sometimes cut across the neck of one of these loops, and flowing in a new channel, shorten its course by as much as fifteen miles.

"Rivers erode their banks unevenly. Often one bank remains many times higher than the other. The Volga's right bank in its lower portion is cliff-like, while the left bank is low and subject to floods. For this reason, the Volga's lower course shows over thirty towns built on the high right bank to a mere handful on the low left bank.

Streams That Disappear.
"Although the sea's deposits on coasts sometimes cause rivers to seek new outlets, many rivers, on the other hand, push coast lines out into the sea, linking islands to the land with sediment."

"A stream eccentric in its flow is the Garonne, a river of southwestern France, formed by two torrents. One of them rises like any other river, flows along normally like an ordinary stream, and then drops mysteriously into the earth to flow underground for two and a half miles before emerging. Kentucky's Mammoth Cave and Virginia's Natural Bridge are thought to be the result of like subterranean tunneling. In Greece, rivers quite commonly disappear into caverns and reappear miles distant.

"Rivers vary not only their length but their volume. Broken dams and levees, raging waters dotted with roofs of drowned houses tell the tragedy of floods on the Mississippi and other rivers. The Hwang Ho is nicknamed 'China's Sorrow,' because of its frequent inundations which drown thousands of peasants crowding its low basin.

"Tidal rivers possess interesting phenomena in tidal waves, or 'bores,' which sweep in periodically from the sea. As these waves ascend the nar-

Doukhobor Sect Will Remove to Mexico

Plan to Dispose of Property in Western Canada.

Winnipeg, Man.—The Doukhobor sect of western Canada, center of many stormy controversies precipitated by its fiery leader, Peter Veregin, is preparing to abandon its rich holdings in Saskatchewan and move to a new "promised land," it was revealed here.

Veregin, the spare, mustached Messiah of the colony of 8,000 persons whose farmlands are among the most productive in Saskatchewan, was in Winnipeg, ostensibly negotiating for migration of his tribe. He was reticent and uncommunicative regarding the Doukhobors' plans, refusing to comment on a report that they would move to a tract in Chihuahua, Mexico, for which it is known he has been negotiating.

Veregin did reveal, however, that the Doukhobors were ready to dispose of their 25,000 acres of land "lock, stock and barrel," possibly the culmination of a hectic series of clashes with governmental restrictions that were marked by nude parades and arrest of Veregin himself.

and barrel," possibly the culmination of a hectic series of clashes with governmental restrictions that were marked by nude parades and arrest of Veregin himself.

Veregin, the Sheistkof (Christ) of the pacifist sect, salaamed by all of the faithful, served 18 months in prison on a perjury charge and barely escaped deportation to Russia. He had complained loudly against restrictions that prevented other Doukhobors from all parts of the world from coming to Saskatchewan at will.

It was expected that if the colony moves to Mexico thousands of members in Russia and delegations from Germany, Persia and other countries will join them. Mexican immigration laws are comparatively lenient.

The area in Mexico to which the tribe may move is known as the "La Junta Lands," near San Antonio, and consists of 1,000,000 acres.

The Doukhobors' present holdings are valued at more than $1,000,000.

Mexican War Engineers

Built Stanch Causeway

Austin, Texas.—Texas highway engineers have a high regard for the United States army engineers of Mexican war days. They have just discovered that some of the causeway work of Gen. Zachary Taylor's forces is still in good state after being undersea for years.

The causeway across Boca Chica at the extreme southwest limit of the United States has been buried in sand and water for years. A recent gulf hurricane changed the water line and brought the old military causeway to view.

It was built upon piles. Most of the posts were cypress. The good condition of the cypress posts after years caused little surprise, but the engineers were astounded to find that the trunks of palm trees had also been used and also were in good preservation.

Sale of House Reveals Data of War Mystery

London.—Sale of Tom-Na-Monachan, mystery house of Scotland, near Pitlochrie, has resulted in the piecing together of data which has furnished an amazing spy story.

The mansion was purchased by a rich Turk, Iskendar, shortly before the World war. In the course of business a Mr. Blank of Glasgow called. Iskendar seemed interested to know that Mr. Blank spoke French and promised to send him to Paris to take a position. The Turk changed his mind, but

Whisky Snake Story Has New Dressing

Mystic, Conn.—Fish story No. 9,999,999!
Bill Henshaw has a water snake, tamed by a drink of whisky, that fetches him frogs for bait.
He came upon the snake one day, he related, in the act of swallowing a frog. Bill wanted the frog for bait and poured a gulp of rum down its throat to make it cough. Later he felt something flapping against his boot. It was the snake back with another frog—for a drink.

rowing channel of a river, they form a steep wall of water towering many feet high. The Wye and the Severn in England, and the Seine in France, have small bores. The Hangchow bore on the Tsiangtong river, China, is one of the most famous of the river bores.

"The Upper Nile, between Khartoum and Gondokoro is sometimes blockaded with floating vegetation called sudd, from an Arabic word meaning 'block.' In flood times, additional sediment often causes the mass to grow 25 miles long. Its interwoven reeds, vines, and bamboos form a great carpet so strong that elephants and rhinoceroses can walk across the Nile on it."

HOW TO SHOOT

By Bob Nichols

Shooting Editor, Field and Stream

EVERY year in the United States when the hunting season rolls around, more than 7,000,000 healthy boys and robust men take to the field, gun in hand. Reports of hunting accidents begin drifting in to the newspapers. Some come back blinded by a careless load of shot from a friend's gun. Others come back with hands and arms and legs blown off. Some never get back alive.

The pity of the whole bloody business is that there was almost never a hunting accident yet that wasn't caused by somebody's needless, foolish carelessness. The only plausible excuse for the accident might be where a hunter faints in the field and falls on the muzzle of his gun. All other accidents are inexcusable.

So far as I can remember, I have never yet met a really good shot who was careless with his gun, loaded or unloaded. Every good shot knows that once or twice during his life his gun may go off unexpectedly. He's always ready for it when it happens. His accidentally let-off load plows harmlessly into the ground, or up into the air, where it can hurt no one.

Merely from the practical standpoint, it is smart to be careful with your gun. You will be invited on enjoyable and successful hunting parties much more often, where the careless man with a gun never gets a second invitation. Careless gun handling is simply bad shooting manners. You make everybody near you nervous and uneasy. You get yourself disliked. Real sportsmen have nothing but anger and contempt for you. Be careful and gentlemanly in your gun handling and you will have much more pleasure hunting, have more good friends—and, important point, you may live longer.

Never keep a shotgun loaded about the house. Never leave shells where childish hands can slip them into the gun. Never point an "empty" gun at anything you do not wish to KILL.

When loading your gun in the field, never slip the shells in until you have looked through the barrel to see that there is not a bit of cleaning rag or other obstruction. Obstruction in the barrel will burst your gun on firing.

If you should fall in the field, again open your gun and look through the barrel. You may have filled the muzzle with mud, or snow, either of which will burst the gun on firing.

Never cross a fence with your gun cocked, or with the safety off. Put your gun through the fence muzzle first and lay it on the ground. Never stand it up against the fence. You may jar it down as you clamber over. Hundreds of careless gunners have crossed fences—and the Great Divide—at the same time.

When you meet friends or strangers in the field and stop to chat and pass the time of day, break your gun if it is a double barrel—let the other man see that it is safe. Other types of guns, shove the safety on, and let the friend or stranger see you do it. This is only careful courtesy.

Never get into a car with a loaded gun. Never load your gun while still in your car. Never permit anyone else to have a loaded shotgun in the car you are in.

Never shoot heavy loads in an old gun that was manufactured long before the modern high-pressure loads were invented. To do so may result in having your hand or face torn off. Consult your local gun dealer about what loads your gun will stand. He should be able to tell you.

Never shoot at game on a level through brush that you can't see beyond—your partner or another hunter may be there. Think before you shoot. You have more time than you imagine. Never hesitate to call another gunner down for carelessness. Call him down hard. Every real sportsman will applaud you.

Be careful! You'll never be a good shot until you're a CAREFUL shot.

Napoleon Was a Failure as Writer, Record Shows

Eighteenth-century documents recently brought to light establish the little-known fact that Napoleon Bonaparte, before he became a military conqueror, had a burning ambition to become a great writer, writes J. P. Bowles in the Golden Book Magazine, who says that he spent seven years in vain efforts to write successfully and, finally, in chagrin, gave up with the remark: "I no longer have the petty ambition to become an author."

Between the ages of seventeen and twenty-four, the documents disclose, Napoleon made nine separate attempts to gain a career as a writer.

In one of the two short stories there appears the following significant sentence—the last sentence of the second story: "To what lengths," exclaimed Napoleon, "can the mad desire for fame carry a man?"

Treadmills Still in Use
Treadmills operated by horses, oxen and other animals are in use in many countries. In the United States such mills are used comparatively little, but in some sections of the South, treadmill power is used for simple power production. In Cuba treadmills are still used for grinding sugar cane. All through the Orient they are used for raising water, for gristmills and similar uses.

"Road of God"

In Jerusalem's Streets Are Carvings From Days of the Crusaders.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THE exploits of the Crusaders have stirred alike the imaginations of young and old ever since they made their armed pilgrimages to the Holy Land almost a thousand years ago.

Nearly all of us have heard something of the story of the Crusaders. We know that centuries ago our ancestors marched out of Europe into the East and founded there a kingdom which endured for nearly 200 years—from 1099 to 1291 of our era. And the Crusaders left traces which can still be seen.

Because the tombs, chapels, and watchtowers, the castles that defended this first eastern front, and the fortified harbors on the islands were isolated in lands under Turkish rule until the World War, few visitors have been able to examine them closely, except in Jerusalem itself and at the accessible points on the coast.

Now one may make the trip in the steps of the Crusaders, with all the anticipation of an explorer of fabled lands. The start is from central Europe where the first Crusaders turned their backs on their homelands, to follow their Via Dei, "Road of God," the trails that led to Jerusalem.

Such a modern explorer plays the part of a hunter. Time and weather during some 700 years have almost obliterated the remains left by the warriors of the Cross; often their buildings had been utilized by the Moslems for mosques. It is necessary to look for clues by the way, to follow traces into some not easily accessible places, and to discount most of the legends that the people of the countryside always have on tap for the traveler.

In Trieste, Italy, for example, a broken arch is pointed out as the "Arch of Richard," with the explanation that the English king dwelt in the stone house beside it when he was made captive on his return from the Holy Land. The arch, however, is Roman work, and although Richard may have occupied the house, if he was ever in Trieste, he certainly did not plan the fortification of the old city of Ragusa (now Dubrovnik), down the Dalmatian coast, as legend relates.

Gateways to the East.

On the other hand, in the neighboring city of Venice, at the southwest corner of the main structure of the basilica of San Marco, nearest the two columns, there is a group of four porphyry figures in armor. Few visitors notice it, but it is a relic of the Crusaders brought from their seaport of Acre by the Venetians.

Venice itself was one of the gateways by which the hosts of Crusaders sought the East. Others took ship from Brindisi, to cross to the Dalmatian coast, an "arch" of their day describes a "whirl" that showed the danger of embarking upon the crude galleys, or dromonds, that felt their way from coast to coast without aid of compass and chart:

"The fleet was ready at Eastertide, and they embarked at the port of Brindisi. Among all those ships, we beheld one suddenly break in the middle without any cause. Nearly 400 men and women were cast into the water. . . . Only a few survived, and those lost their horses and mules in the waves, with much money."

This happened during the First Crusade, when multitudes were hastening toward Constantinople (now Istanbul), the halfway point in their great venture. It was the first movement in Europe of men in a mass directly toward the East.

When they left Venice or Brindisi, or the broad Valley of the Danube, they ventured into what was to them an unknown world. Only leaders had an approximate idea where Jerusalem lay.

Route Through the Balkans.

"A barren land," one of the Provençal relates of the Dalmatian coast route, "both pathless and mountainous. It was winter by then and we saw neither birds nor beasts for three seven days. We wandered through low-hanging clouds so dense that we were able to feel them and often to push them away from us as we moved."

Today you speed over the rolling hills of the Balkans in a railway carriage with a dining car attached. Crossing a frontier means no more than showing your passport. But the main body of Crusaders, led by Godfrey of Bouillon, plodding through the "im-mense and indescribable forests," had to fight or barter for their grain and oil and cattle; they had to build rafts at rivers and sometimes to manage without rafts.

"Then we came," one relates, "to the swift river Demon, which is rightly named. For we had to watch many of our people, wading across step by step, swept down by the current. We could not save them. If the knights had not brought up their great battle chargers to aid those on foot, many more would have perished."

No wonder that these first Crusaders, coming out of the Balkan valleys, beheld with amazement the mighty walls and towers of Constantinople, with its domed basilicas and marble palaces!

At this halfway point the almost exhausted hosts of marchers were furnished with adequate supplies by the Byzantine emperor. What was more important, they found out where they were, and obtained guides who knew the route ahead of them.

But across the blue line of the Bosphorus the hostile Moslems lay in wait for them, and the rabble who had marched under Peter the Hermit were almost annihilated within two days' travel of the shore. The better-armed host of Godfrey and the other barons, however, fought their way to the plateau of Asia Minor. It was mid-summer, and the Crusaders from the northern regions—the Rhinelanders, Texans and Franks—had their first experience of the scorching heat of the arid eastern highlands.

Across Asia Minor.

The exact route they followed across Asia Minor is uncertain. It is clear that they must have passed to the east of the Olympus heights (Ulu Dag), and to the east of the dark Sultan Dagl. The Turks who were fleeing before them increased their suffering by driving off most of the cattle and burning the scattered villages.

"We were pursuing them," a chronicler relates, "across the desert, in a land waterless and uninhabitable, from which we barely came out alive. Hunger troubled us constantly and we had almost nothing to eat except the thorns (wheat or barley) that we pulled off and rubbed between our hands. The greater part of our horses died, so that many riders became foot soldiers. Some rode oxen, and in this extreme need goats, sheep and dogs served to carry our baggage."

At Konja (Konya), however, they found fertile land and ample food. They learned also how to make skins serve to carry water.

Aided by the welcome appearance of a river, they crossed the remainder of the plateau land to Heraclea (now Ereğli) in safety. It had taken many of them a year and a half to journey from their homes to this gateway of the Holy Land. Perhaps a quarter of a million, perhaps more, had taken the oath to make their way from the hamlets of Christendom to Jerusalem.

They were camped this autumn under the mountain barrier of the Taurus (Toros) range. Here they encountered their allies, the Christian Armenians of the mountain strongholds, who must have looked upon this host of road-weary warriors as a miraculous apparition. And here the host of the first Crusaders broke up, some galloping down through the ravine known as the Cilician Gates to the plain of Tarsus, while others wandered off to set up an independent kingdom in Edessa (now Urfa) among the Armenians.

On to Jerusalem.

The greater part made a circuit to the northeast, to cross the Taurus range. Apparently they felt their way through a gorge. "We entered," a chronicler explains, "a defile of the devil, which was so lofty and steep that we hardly dared to pass ahead along the path. Horses fell bodily and one pack animal dragged another with it. The knights beat themselves with their hands for grief in this place; some sold their shields, helmets, and body armor for whatever they could get. Others threw away their heavy armor and marched on. And so we passed through the accursed mountain and came to a city called Marash (now Maras). The inhabitants came out joyfully to meet us. There we all had plenty."

At this first sight of the green plain of Syria the land-hungry Normans ranged far afield making conquests, sword in hand, with all the eagerness of miners staking claims. It was the threshold of the Promised Land.

Here lay the mighty city of Antioch (Antioche). The Crusaders laid siege to it and took it after a struggle of eight months. With this citadel behind them, the road down the Valley of the Orontes toward Jerusalem lay open.

They had crossed the Asia Minor plateau, but other armies of Crusaders hastening after them failed to do so. Some were cut to pieces by the Suljuk Turks, others lost their way or were betrayed by the Byzantines.

REASON FOR DISSENSION

Mrs. Woop had died, and dad wanted to put up some sort of memorial to her. A stained-glass window in the local church being suggested, dad agreed, and left all arrangements in the hands of the minister.

At length the window arrived, and was fitted into position, and dad, in an unusually excited frame of mind, went out to view it.

The minister escorted the old chap into the church, and, with a flourish, indicated the window, which depicted an angel.

"How do you like it?" said he. Dad gazed at it thoughtfully. "No good," he grunted.

Does Away With "Awkward Age"

PATTERN 1978

This is a frock for what used to be called the "awkward age"—the years between eight and sixteen. Styles like this have made it one of the most attractive feminine ages. The model is as young as youth, but designed with the skill of a woman's dress. Look at the front of that bodice with its nicked vest lines emphasized by cleverly placed buttons! See the way the panel idea is prolonged in the seams of the skirt! Don't you like the sleeves?—they can be short or long. And please don't overlook the back view, with that nice pointed yoke.

Pattern 1978 is available in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 3 1/4 yards 36-inch fabric and 3/4 yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Use of Title "Junior"

According to Emily Post's Etiquette, "Junior" always means the son or grandson of a man of the same name and "Second" means the nephew or cousin of a man of the same name. The son of a "Junior" of the same name is called "Third." It is improper for a man to continue adding "Junior" to his name after the death of his senior, or to call a boy "Third" if either the "Senior" or "Junior" has died.

Mortgage Sale

Whereas default has been made in the payment of the moneys secured by the mortgage executed by Elmer Streeter and Catherine M. Streeter, his wife, and in her own right, to the Rose City State Bank, a Banking Corporation of Rose City, Michigan, dated June Tenth, 1927, recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for Isoc County, Michigan, on the 23rd day of June, A. D. 1927, in Liber 24 of Mortgages on page 377, and

Whereas the amount claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice for principal and interest is Five Hundred Eighteen and 49/100 ($519.49) dollars and Twenty-five dollars as an attorney's fee stipulated for in said mortgage, and no suit having been instituted in law or in equity to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, whereby the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become operative,

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power of sale and in pursuance of the statute in such case made and provided I will foreclose the said mortgage by sale of the premises therein described at public auction to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Tawas City, County of Isoc, State of Michigan, (that being the place of holding the Circuit Court for said County of Isoc), on the Fourth day of February, A. D. 1935, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, which said lands and premises are described as follows:

A piece of land in the Northeast Quarter (NW 1/4) of Northeast Quarter (NE 1/4) (or Lot 2) of Section 6, Township Twenty-three North (23N) Range Five East (5E) described as commencing at center of Highway, 3 chains, 27 links, North 48 degrees East of intersection of center of Highway and East line of Right of Way of Detroit and Mackinac Railway, thence Northeast along center of Highway 5 rods, thence at right angles Northwest 9 rods, thence Southeast parallel with Highway 5 rods, thence Southeasterly 9 rods to place of beginning, County of Isoc, State of Michigan.

Dated: October 30, 1934.

HARVEY A. CHAMBERLAIN, Receiver of the Rose City State Bank, Rose City, Mich.

Melvin E. Orr, Attorney for the Receiver, West Branch, Michigan.

Notice of Mortgage Sale

Default having been made in the terms and conditions of payment of a certain mortgage dated July 19th, 1917, made and executed by Mabel M. Colvin of Burleigh Township, Isoc County, Michigan, to J. C. Weinberg & Co. of Prescott, Michigan, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Isoc County, Michigan on the 23rd day of July, A. D. 1917, in Liber 22 of mortgages on page 155, and assigned by assignment dated the 11th day of May, 1918, to the First National Bank of Bay City, said assignment being recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Isoc County, Michigan, on the 16th day of May, 1918, in Liber 2 of assignments on page 234, and again assigned to the National Bank of Bay City, a Federal Banking Corporation, by assignment dated October 24th, 1932 and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Isoc County, Michigan, on October 28th, 1932 in Liber 25 of mortgages on page 174. There is now claimed to be due on said mortgage for principal and interest One Hundred Sixty-eight and 85/100 Dollars. And no suit or proceedings having been had to recover the amount claimed due or any part thereof, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, at the front door of the Court House in the City of Tawas City, Michigan, (that being the place where the Circuit Court for the County of Isoc is held) on Saturday, the 26th day of January, A. D. 1935, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, eastern standard time. The premises are described in said mortgage as the east half of the east half of the northwest quarter of section twenty-two, township twenty-one north, range five east, Burleigh Township, Isoc County, Michigan.

Dated October 27th, 1934.

Meaning of "California"

If the name of the Golden State were reduced to its Spanish interpretation, it is very probable that the aggressive advertising of its climate would be largely nullified, for literally "California" is a combination of two Spanish words meaning "hot furnace," writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. The Spaniards, who were the first white men to explore the state, gave to it this name because their interest was not in the cool verdant lands of the seacoast, but in the hot arid sections of the interior where it was believed gold was to be found.

RED CROSS RELIEF GIVEN TO VICTIMS IN 103 DISASTERS

Tornadoes, Fires, Hurricanes, Floods, Epidemics, Make Record of Year

A history of the disasters in the United States in any year is written annually by the American Red Cross, according to Chairman John Barton Payne, commenting on the report for the year ending June 30, 1934, which has just been issued in Washington. "Because of the charter provision which places upon the Red Cross the responsibility for disaster relief, our chapter and staff workers are notified of all calamities of storm and fire and flood," he continued. "The emergency period may prove to be brief, in cases where the victims have their own resources to draw on. While it lasts, however, whether it brings the immediate need of food, clothing and shelter for the homeless, or entails a program of investigation and rehabilitation, the Red Cross is the official director of all relief."

A great variation in type, and a wide geographical distribution, characterize the 103 disasters reported last year. Tornadoes, hurricanes, hailstorms and other storms made up almost one half of the total. Especially numerous were the tropical storms which swept in from the sea to the Atlantic and Gulf Coast region. There were 21 storms of this type, establishing a new record for frequency.

Next in number to storms were disasters of fire, the report shows. Red Cross aid was given following 25 fires in the United States and insular possessions. The most spectacular was the Chicago stockyards fire, where Red Cross workers arrived shortly after the fire started, administering relief until the emergency period passed, giving first aid to about 1,000 persons.

Floods caused serious damage in some sections, 17 calling for Red Cross relief. Three explosions were reported, and three epidemics of malaria and typhoid fever. A school bus wreck was one of the year's tragedies for which Red Cross funds were needed for relief and rehabilitation.

"Technique acquired by the Red Cross in these disasters and the hundreds of others we have handled is at the service of the public," Chairman Payne said. "To make this possible the disaster relief service has issued a manual containing instructions for chapters interested in advance preparations for emergencies. Disaster institutes were held last year in 28 strategic locations, to enable Red Cross and civic workers to formulate plans for possible disaster emergencies in their communities."

The Quebec Mystery

ONE morning in the spring of the year, Mrs. Caroline Poirier, of St. Canute, in the Province of Quebec, roused one of her neighbors and said with much agitation that she was unable to get into her home or rouse her husband.

She had been spending the night with a friend nearby, and said that her husband, who had been working on the repairs to a church at St. Jerome, nine miles distant, was expected home some time the previous evening.

The police were summoned, the door broken in and the husband found lying on the floor dead.

His body bore three knife wounds, and it was quite evident that there had been a life-and-death struggle.

Beyond the disordered appearance of the room there were no clues to indicate who the culprit might have been.

The strange part of it was that nothing had been taken from the house, so that the murder could not have been for the purpose of theft.

Mrs. Poirier was naturally distracted, and went about the work of settling up the estate like a woman in a trance.

The man, who had led a dissipated life, died practically penniless, but he did leave an insurance policy of $2,000 in favor of his wife.

Isidore Poirier had been a contractor and builder in a small way, and he had married Cordelia Viau, the handsome daughter of a farmer, after a whirlwind wooing.

They had no children, but for some years after their marriage they lived very happily.

At the end of that time the woman seems to have conceived an aversion for her husband.

The reason for this, according to one of the commentators on the affair, is that she was a masterful woman and he was a man of "very common mold."

The gossips had it that she was enamored of another man, one Samuel Parslow, a carpenter who worked for her husband.

At all events they were seen together very much, and he paid her marked attention.

Indeed, on the night when the murder had occurred the two were together.

But that in itself did not necessarily connect either of them with the crime.

Mrs. Poirier was the organist of the village church, while Parslow was a member of the choir.

That fact might well have explained their frequent meetings.

In the meantime, the authorities were working hard to trace the movements of the dead man prior to the murder.

It was ascertained that he had been working that very day at St. Jerome. The people of the village informed them that he had left there in a carriage, saying that he was going home.

Other persons living on the road between the two towns testified that they had seen him pass with the team. One of them said that a woman accompanied him.

Unfortunately, this person was not able to give a very good description of the woman.

At this stage of the investigation the agent of the insurance company which had insured the victim appeared to say that Mrs. Poirier had personally taken out the insurance, had carried on all of the correspondence, and was particularly anxious at the time to be sure that she would get the money, no matter what might have been the cause of death.

The authorities determined to take the bull by the horns, and both Mrs. Poirier and Parslow were arrested. They were placed in different cells, and each told a story that conflicted with the other.

The evidence was circumstantial, but it was shown that the woman had gone to St. Jerome and had brought her husband home on the night the tragedy was supposed to have occurred.

Both were found guilty, and sentence of death was at once pronounced. In spite of the fact that the woman had been shown in anything but a favorable light, petitions were numerous and presented to the governor general urging him to show clemency to the female convict.

He declined to interfere, saying that the law must be permitted to take its course.

When the noose was prepared Samuel Parslow was so limp that he had to be literally carried to the platform. Not so the masterful woman.

She walked up the steps with a firm tread, and as she reached the executioner, exclaimed:

"Be quick; that is all I ask."

Air's Composition

The colorless gas which we call the air or atmosphere is a mixture of several gases, about 77.08 per cent being nitrogen, 20.75 per cent oxygen, 0.95 per cent argon, 0.003 per cent carbonic acid gas, 0.001 per cent hydrogen and water vapor, averaging 1.20 per cent. It also contains minute quantities of the rare gases, helium, krypton, neon, niton and xenon. A cubic foot of air under average conditions weighs about .08 pound, or an ounce and a quarter.

Mati Hari Sent to Death by Comrade

"Mlle. Docteur," Dying, Confesses Betrayal.

Berne, Switzerland.—On her death bed Anne-Marie Lesser, notorious "Mlle. Docteur," German spy, revealed how she betrayed the glamorous World War spy, Mata Hari, to her death before a French firing squad.

"Mlle. Docteur" died alone in a sanatorium near Zurich, where she had been under treatment for the narcotic habit. For she had taken drugs to deaden her memory.

Her doctor in the sanatorium was the only person to whom she talked and after her recent death he disclosed for the first time her astonishing story. It was a confession of a woman who stopped at no crime to gain war secrets for Germany.

Doctor's Story.

Here is the doctor's story:

"Do you think, doctor, that I should be arrested if I went to France?"

"Certainly not," I replied, "the question would not even arise."

"I should like to go to France," she said, "to see once more all those places where I used to go. I should like also to see Mata Hari's grave; she was one of my victims. I engaged her and it was from me that she obtained all her instructions."

"But one day she told me that she did not want to continue the work. She had had enough or she was afraid, I don't know which. But she wished to be released from her promises."

"For anyone who has trodden that path there is no possibility of retreat. I should not have been able to release her even if I had wanted. I should have been suspected at once. I threatened her, but without success.

"Yes, I had her executed. As was customary, I arranged that the French should receive all the necessary evidence for her arrest."

"And now, doctor, I am going to tell you something which I alone know."

"For a long time, for a very long time, I envied Mata Hari's fate. Her death was easy, I am going to tell you why.

An Easy Death.

"She was condemned to death and was waiting for the end in her cell when a man came to her and said in a low voice:

"Fear nothing, Mata Hari, everything has been arranged for your escape. You will have to go before the firing squad, but that will be a mere formality, the bullets will pass above your head."

"Pretend to be dead, our men will put you on the pier and transport you out of France on a wagon."

"Mata Hari smiled gratefully, and went to what she believed to be the last to be a mock execution, and smiling received the rifle bullets in her heart. She had an easy death."

Anne-Marie began her career as a spy when she was sixteen when, described on her passport as a student at the Beaux Arts of Geneva, she appeared in a little French village in the Vosges which was going to be the scene of certain military maneuvers.

In 1914 there arrived at Brussels a splendid creature with a French name bearing only a vague resemblance to the little student of the Beaux Arts of Geneva.

The beautiful "French woman" was not long tugging to know a young lieutenant, Rene Austin.

In the intervals of love-making she painted little pictures, which she sent, via Switzerland, to Berlin, where her chiefs, removing the oils, found underneath tracings of fortresses, guns and gunpits.

Wives Too Expensive for Most Moslems

Belgrade.—The prices paid for wives by the Moslems of south Yugoslavia have fallen heavily.

Prices for wives used to be high because there was a shortage of suitable women. But many women have gone to south Yugoslavia. Numbers of them are actually prepared to bring a dowry to their husbands instead of having to be "bought" from their families.

Also, farm product prices have fallen and made it impossible for most men to support more than one wife.

Liberty or License

By

LEONARD A. BARRETT

There is an important difference between liberty and license.

By liberty we mean, "exemption from external restraint — freedom." In government it means, "freedom from political usurpation; the condition of a people which participates in the making of its own laws." License means a special grant of privilege, like the right to conduct a certain business, operate an automobile, conduct an entertainment or show. The distinction between these two terms is not always clearly understood. We find them seriously confused in many of our public addresses and press articles. Perhaps it is quite important that this distinction should be emphasized these days when the problem of freedom is being challenged by many writers.

Far be it from the spirit of this article to criticize the NRA or any aspects of the so-called New Deal. It is impossible, however, not to notice, with considerable alarm, the daring assaults hurled at those in executive authority who argue that the New Deal will result in the complete destruction of that liberty for which our fathers fought and died.

Much of the writing directed toward this end, however, fails to recognize the distinction between liberty and license for which this article pleads. License fails to recognize a moral imperative. A license to operate an automobile does not imply a moral obligation to avoid unnecessary risks. So far as the license is concerned, I can drive 70 or 40 miles an hour, just as I please. True, my license may be revoked, if I disobey a law, which limits my speed, but my license has nothing to do with that. Or, again, my neighbor's house may be on fire. While I am under no legal obligations to notify him of that fact, the very nature of the freedom of choice implies a moral obligation to do so. Liberty implies a moral obligation to live and let live. License may give me the right to conduct a certain business, but liberty limits the methods and motives which may seriously affect the physical and economic condition of the other person.

License to do as I please, regardless of others, and liberty which safeguards the rights of others are two different things. The latter is what we have inherited from our forefathers. Let us not lose it.

The Household

CLOTHING hangers require correct use for best service. It is not enough that the clothes are put over their branching arms. They must be so put on that they hang straight from the shoulders. If the frock or coat does not fit the hanger it is almost better not to use a hanger at all for the garment will bulge in odd places where the ends of the hanger-arms push out the material. When a garment remains long in such a peculiar position, it is difficult to restore the right shape even with good pressing. The textile is stretched out of shape and has to be coaxed back by steaming with a hot iron pressed down over a wet cloth. A tailor's services may be required, and all for the lack of a moment's attention to putting the garment on the hanger in the correct way.

If a coat hanger is rightly used, it will save trouble and time otherwise needed in pressing garments. So why not let your coat hangers give you the best service?

After garments are put on hangers properly they must not be crowded together in a closet. There are more ways of pressing clothes than with a flatiron. One of them is to hang them so close together that they press against each other and crush materials badly. So don't crowd hangers on rods. Some day soon I shall tell you about various rods, poles, arms and devices on which to suspend garment hangers in closets. Some of them keep the hangers sufficiently far apart from one another to eliminate crowding.

Hints on Dyeing.

The home dye pot will work wonders in changing colors of textiles to make them look like new and different fabrics. Now is the time to make it prove itself beneficial in supplying what would appear like new frocks, or it may be different draperies, cushion covers and such upholstery materials as can be taken off and put into the dye pot. To get good results the dye must not only be the right kind for the material, silk requiring silk dyes, etc., but the color must be sufficiently darker than the color to be changed, to insure hiding faded places, stains, and spots. It is because there is difficulty in doing this in some instances, that makes dye houses advise black, which is a sure hue as far as concealing defects in colors is concerned.

It is wiser for the home worker to pick out a tone which is sufficiently dark for her purpose than to experiment, unless she is perfectly willing to redye the article. However, if she is willing to experiment she can often get stunning effects in what are known as "off-colors," those exquisite hues of artistic beauty not on color charts.

Problems in Decoration

Assembling a room is, after all, quite like assembling a costume. To have things which go together you must analyze before you buy. Consider these questions: Are you starting anew or combining new furnishings with those you already have? Does your room lack color and design? Has it a preponderance of colors with no theme to draw them together? Or is your room, perhaps, of the type widely known as the "too-taupe" room? You can easily relieve the drab monotony of this one tone by hanging colorful chintz curtains at the windows. Then make a slip cover for a chair in the same chintz and place it opposite the windows, across the room. Bring out some of the warm hues of the draperies in lamp shades and accessories, and before you know it your room will really begin to live!—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Another woman, almost blind and incurably so, offered the healthy parts of her own eyes so Mrs. Muir might see again. Why Liquid Laxatives are Back in Favor

The public is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that the right dose of a properly prepared liquid laxative will bring a more natural movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. A child is easily given the right dose. And mild liquid laxatives do not irritate the kidneys.

Doctors are generally agreed that senna is a natural laxative. It does not drain the system like the cathartics that leave you so thirsty. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a liquid laxative which relies on senna for its laxative action.

You can always get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at any drug store, ready for use.

SYNOPSIS

Prudence Schuyler comes to Prosperity Farm, inherited from her uncle, to make a new life for herself and her brother, David, his health broken by tragedy.

CHAPTER VII

With sighs of relaxation Gerard and Armstrong, in the tweeds in which they had come from a long day in the woods, settled into deep chairs before the fire in the library at High Ledges and lighted their pipes.

"I'll say I started something when I set out to thin my woods!" Gerard said. "I thought that all that was necessary was to chop down a few trees and there we were."

Puffer stood in the doorway. He chuckled. "Howdy, Jim! Don't have to ask how you two are, Rod. Kinder beat out, ain't ye?"

Gerard pulled himself stiffly to his feet and drew an inviting chair nearer the fire. "All right, old-timer, shoot."

"No use beatin' 'bout the bush. I've been to every village within a hundred miles an' I can't get a man to work for ye, Rod. They're afraid of Calloway. I guess we're up against it, all right."

"We can't be up against it, Si. That timber must be cut. I'll find some huskies somewhere who haven't sold out body and soul to Len Calloway. Do we need skilled lumbermen, Jim?"

"No. Skilled labor would save time and money, but with you and Puffer and me to boss a crew we could get the wood out."

Patch, the butler, appeared at the door. "Miss and Mr. Schuyler."

Gerard doubted his ears. Prue here! He heard Jean's ecstatic, "Oh goody!" as he crossed the room to welcome the girl and her brother. His lips tightened at the hostility in her eyes as they met his.

"This is a clear case of thought transference. How did you know that we need your advice and your brother's at this very moment, Prue? Come over by the fire, Dave."

Schuyler laughed. "How you all conspire to spoil me! We are not so neighborly as we seem. We were driven here for shelter."

"Dave and I have been to the village to barter eggs and poultry for groceries. Just as we reached this drive, Success belied her name and passed out. I didn't dare let Dave sit in the cold car—it is beginning to snow—while I probed for internal disturbances; he flatly refused to leave me in the dark road—he had the escaped convict on his mind—so here we are. Now that he is warm and comfy, perhaps you will come out with me, Jim, and help diagnose the engine trouble."

Gerard spoke to the man who had been laying wood on the fire. "Patch, tell Judkins to look over Miss Schuyler's car. When he has it in shape, let me know."

He turned to Prudence. "Your arrival is uncannily opportune, partner, Jim, Si, and I have struck a snag."

chopped off his own head by a stupid move? Whatever the explanation, the fact remained that she was still relying upon the original plan for getting out her timber.

"Jim, suppose no one here will work for us? What shall we do?" Gerard's recent satisfaction burned up in anger. She was deliberately ignoring him. He cut in:

"We'll have to hire men from outside the state. I'm going to New York tomorrow to try my luck there."

"New York!" David Schuyler repeated thoughtfully. "What sort of men do you need for the work in the woods, Rodney?"

"Husky lads. Jim will do the head work and Si and I will drive the crew," Gerard answered. "We need men who can swing an ax and cut us as we direct," Armstrong elaborated.

"You said you were going to New York to look for them. I have been thinking—"

"If you have a suggestion, for Pete's sake, don't hold out on us, Dave!" "It may not be worth the breath to state it, Rodney. I was wondering if some of the men at the Rescue mission might not fit in. They're a rough lot, but there are about twenty of them who are devoted to me. If they came, I could keep them straight while they worked, I think, but where would they live? The villagers wouldn't take them in; I wouldn't ask it."

Gerard did a sum in lightning calculation. "They could live in the big cattle barn down by the pond. I'll have bunks built, wood stoves would heat it, and get a cook from New York to feed them. Whoops! I believe you've solved the problem! I'll pay any wages you say—providing, of course, my partner approves the plan."

Prudence shook her head. "The plan is all right, but you must make allowance for the fact that Dave believes that his boys like 'all God's chillen got wings' when they are exposed to the right spiritual conditions."

Her brother's fine eyes were alight with enthusiasm. "You're wrong, Prue, they have more sporting spirit than you think. Most of them never have had a chance. Suppose we set three or four permanently on their feet and incidentally get the timber out. Wouldn't that be worth while? What say, Gerard?"

"I think it's keen. Give me a letter to the head of the Rescue mission and I will go to New York tomorrow."

"Don't spike our plan, Prue, with fear for me. I must be sure that the boys understand the proposition. Don't make an invalid of me. I'm through with that. I'm going."

"Of course, if that's the way you feel about it, Dave, who am I to stand in your way?" "Glad you realize your unimportance, Prue." Her brother smiled at her. "Shall we go tomorrow, Rodney?" His voice had the eagerness of a boy's about to fare forth on an adventure.

"Yes, perhaps you'll come and see us off?" Gerard's eyes were on Prudence. Jean caught his arm. "You couldn't take me, could you, Uncle Rod? This house will seem awful big without you." She swallowed hard.

"Let Jean come and stay with me." "Oh, Uncle Rod, may I stay with Miss Prue while you're away? I'll be as good as gold."

"Do you really want her?" For the first time since she had entered the room Gerard felt that Prudence looked at him. "Just a moment, K. K. Do you really want her, Prue?" "Of course I want her."

"Okay then. Come over and see off your brother, Prue, then Jim will drive you and Jean back to the red brick house."

"The car is in running order, sir," announced Patch. "Then we must go at once, Dave. Jane Mack will think we have been held up by that prisoner who escaped day before yesterday. I wish you success, Mr. Gerard, but just wait till you see Terry McGowan and Shance O'Shea. I tremble to think what the villagers will say when they see that colorful and hear that profane aggregation which you are planning to hurl into their unsuspecting midst."

"I guess if you an' Rod can stand them, Dave, the rest of us can," encouraged Si Puffer. "Most of us are all-fired sick of Calloway and his tootin'." His father was a big man in the community, but the son—well, whatna mean is, I don't wonder that Milly Gooch—"

"Gorry-me, I guess I better get a move on and measure that cattle barn right off so's we can get those bunks in."

As he left the room, Gerard turned to look at Prudence, who was talking gaily with Jim Armstrong. Something in the bend of his friend's head tightened a band around Rodney's heart.

what may be fun to you may prove a knockout for him?" Prudence twisted free and asked with suspicious sweetness: "Suppose I am not flirting?"

"Dark, isn't it? Pitch-black roads must be a state of Maine specialty," Prudence commented, as she bent forward to look through the windshield against which an occasional big snowflake splashed and melted.

"We'll keep you informed as to progress. I'm glad you asked Jean to stay with you. That girl is growing a soul."

"Curious that she has so little love for either of her parents. Usually a child adores one of them."

"Have you heard anything about her father which sounds lovable? As for her mother—she is the type of know-it-all females who fires me with a desire to hurl something at her, preferably something that will squash. Know the urge?"

"To a quiver. It's wonderful to hear you laugh again."

"It is a sound to which you will get accustomed from now on. When I opened my eyes this morning, it seemed as if I emerged from a smothering fog into light and life—full, vigorous, courageous life—with a renewed assurance of the indestructibility of the human soul. Through the corridors of my mind echoed the fragment of a verse I haven't thought of for years: "Lengthening roads that wind through dust and heat to hilltops clear. Hilltops clear! I awoke on one this morning. Here we are. Those lighted windows in the red brick look like brilliant eyes watching for us. Nice old house."

"Suppose I Am Not Flirting?"

"I love it. Always feel like patting it as I pass."

David Schuyler turned as he stepped from the car. "It helps to hear you say that, Prue. You don't know how troubled I have been that for me you gave up your friends and work in the city to come into the country. If you had been discontented—"

Prudence laughed. "I'm discontented! Somebody once said, 'Tragedy is chic but discontent is dowdy.' Now, I ask you, can you think of me as being dowdy?"

"I can think of you only as being the best little sport on earth," her brother commended gruffly. David wouldn't think her the best little sport on earth if he knew how tight and choky her throat was at the thought of his making the trip to the city. Suppose it were to undo all the good that life in the country had accomplished. Prudence asked herself the next morning, as, before breakfast, she ran down the stairs. She stopped in amazement as Rodney Gerard, David, and Jane Mack stepped from her shop.

"What in the world—have you changed your plans?" she demanded, and drew a quick sigh of relief. "What has happened? You three look—"

"Can't Rodney come to tell me of something extra to pack, Prue, without turning your eyes into huge interrogation points?" David Schuyler demanded with assumed indignation. "Of course, but—"

"I'll be seeing you, Dave. Prue, be sure that he wears his warmest coat. Keep me posted, Miss Mack." With the last request Rodney Gerard closed the front door behind him.

Prudence looked from her brother's amused eyes to Jane Mack's flushed face. "What are you to keep him posted about, Macky?"

"Mr. Gerard knows that I'm kind of anxious about that prisoner who's on the loose, an' with no man in the house—"

"Forget it!" David Schuyler interrupted. "Look over my bag and see if I have everything I need, will you, Prue?"

Excitement over the trip was certainly doing David good, not harm. His eyes were brighter, his face less careworn. Prudence decided an hour later, as standing between Jim Armstrong and Jean she watched Rodney Gerard's plane take off from the landing field which had a double runway, east-west, north-south.

Jean slipped an arm in Prue's and one in Armstrong's as they crossed the field which bordered a pond. Prudence commented upon the lure of ponds in general and this one in particular. "What a place to skate!" she exclaimed in conclusion. "Perhaps Uncle Rod will have a skating party for us. Ask him, will you, Miss Prue?"

"We'll wait until the timber is cut before we ask for parties. You understand, K. K., don't you, that the object of your uncle's trip to New York is to be kept a deep, dark secret?"

Jean scowled. "Do you think I'd tell? I'm not dumb if I'm not pretty. I—well, for crying out loud!"

He had approached the front door of High Ledges. Prue's eyes followed Jean's as the girl stopped short to stare at the man at the top of the steps.

He was of medium height and slimly built. He might be forty-five, though he looked thirty-five. His sleek black hair was gray at the temples; his eyebrows were not much heavier than his clipped dark mustache; high cheek bones added to the impression of enormous eyes. His lips were full and red. Jean sniffed. "Wouldn't you know he'd appear just as I was getting ready to have some fun!" She looked at Prudence through tear-filled eyes. "In case you don't know, that's my father."

Walter Gerard urbanely introduced himself. Prue noted the puffiness under his eyes, the unsteadiness of his hands. She recognized his type. She had had one like him in the family. TO BE CONTINUED.

Sandow, the Strong Man, Was Weakening, When Boy

The world's most famous strong man was Eugen Sandow, who, while he lived, was the strongest man on earth, says a writer in the Kansas City Times. He died in 1925. Sandow did not always have an extraordinary physique. Born in Konigsberg, Prussia, in 1867, he was in his youth a weakling, and his family many times despaired of his reaching manhood.

His father, a jeweler, believed travel would improve the boy's health, and the two visited a number of foreign countries, among them Italy, where Eugen, then sixteen, became interested in the statues of Greek and Roman demigods. If they had had such wonderful bodies, Sandow reasoned, why couldn't persons of the present age? He believed physical training was the answer, and he immediately began a course of such development, using dumbbells and weights. He studied anatomy, and within a few years he was rewarded by the growth of his muscles. No longer a weakling, he gave private exhibitions to his friends, who marveled at the change.

Sandow was 5 feet 8 1/2 inches tall and weighed never less than 196, nor more than 200 pounds. His chest, normal, was 52 inches; expanded it was 61 inches; his biceps measured, flexed, 19 1/2 inches; calf, 18 1/2; ankles and wrists were relatively small, fingers well shaped and well cared for.

Bakeries Rank Ninth Among Canada's Trades; Are Paid $15,000,000 in Wages

The days when every thrifty housewife baked her own bread have gone into history. In the early settlement of Canada home bread making was almost universal, but now there are comparatively few localities which are not served by the commercial bakery. A return issued by the Canadian government bureau of statistics indicates the commercial importance of the bread making and allied industries. Statistics were gathered from more than 2,800 firms, not including hotels, restaurants and public institutions which bake their own bread. The industry is found to rank ninth in value of products made and fifth in the amount of salaries and wages paid; the capital invested amounts to nearly $50,000,000, and over $15,000,000 is paid in wages and salaries. The consumption of material, most of which is produced in Canada, amounts to $23,431,275. The products are classified as: Bread, valued at $40,110,843; pies, cakes, cookies and pastry, $9,978,733; and buns, $2,463,042. To produce these quantities of food required more than 1,000,000 pounds of butter, nearly 5,000,000 dozen eggs, over 3,000,000 barrels of flour, over 8,000,000 pounds of fruit and about the same quantity of lard, and 25,000,000 pounds of sugar.

POULTRY FACTS

FOWLS LOSE HEALTH WHEN PUSHED HARD

Vitality of the Birds Must Have Consideration.

By E. S. Dearstine, North Carolina State College Poultry Department—WNU Service. The evolution of the fowl from a jungle bird laying 15 eggs a year to the modern hen laying up to 300 eggs in the same period is a monument to poultry science.

The fowl has been transformed from a partially herbivorous bird to one which will utilize large quantities of animal protein in egg manufacture. The birds' bodies have probably changed in adapting themselves to the new diet.

Unfortunately, however, the tendency of the industry has been to stress increased production without taking sufficient consideration of fowl vitality. The question of mortality is now a major concern of the industry and much thought and investigation must be spent before the problem can be solved. The problem is complex, as there are so many reasons for birds dying early.

A recent study of the causes of death in 4,440 fowls showed deaths were caused by the following conditions in the percentages listed: Diseases of the digestive tract, 15.9 per cent; intestinal parasites, 11.6 per cent; respiratory diseases, 9 per cent; tumors, 8.4 per cent; germ borne diseases, 7 per cent; diseases of the glandular organs, 6.9 per cent; constitutional diseases, 6.5 per cent; abdominal diseases, 5.4 per cent; protozoan diseases, 5.4 per cent; nervous diseases, 4 per cent; accidental deaths, 3.6 per cent; diseases of the circulatory system, 1.3 per cent, and cutaneous diseases, 5 per cent.

This study brought out the fact that much of the work of reducing mortality will fall upon the individual poultryman to use better methods of flock management and of controlling the spread of disease.

Easy to Induce Turkey Hens to Use Box Nests

Make laying coops for turkey hens with no bottom so the nest will get the moisture from the ground. Make the dimensions 4 by 4 feet and high enough with a one-slope roof, advises a writer in the Indiana Farmer's Guide. The entrance should be 14 by 14 inches. The four sides are made of building lath and nailed on just like a wall to be plastered.

Locate the coops about 100 yards from your residence in a circle some distance apart. The hens watching others, especially on bad days, will learn to use these coops. This being about far enough away so the chicken hens will not disturb the nesting by scratching it out of place. After forming a trashy nest, place a nest egg as a turkey hen likes the looks of an egg before she sits on the nest, even the first time.

The openings in the coop are very important as peep holes, as the turkey hens always keep a sharp lookout while on the nest, and will not go into a dark place to make their nest.

Limber Neck in Chickens

Limber neck among chickens is a condition caused by poisoning which is characterized by a paralysis of the neck which makes it impossible for the chicken to raise its head from the ground. It is usually associated with putrid or spoiled meat in which poison producing organisms are growing, or of fly maggots which have bred on such material. Treatment for this ailment is rather unsatisfactory, but 3 or 4 teaspoonfuls of castor oil, if given during the early stages, is recommended. Limber neck occurs frequently on farms during summer where dead chickens or animals are overlooked by members of the farm family and decomposition sets in. Dead animals and birds should not be buried, unless buried very deep, for maggots work their way to the top of the ground and chickens will eat them and thus get limber neck.

In the Poultry Yard

Once a pullet stops laying it takes two or three weeks to get her started again. Hens that are fed a small amount of cod-liver oil, about 2 per cent of their ration, produce eggs containing more copper and iron.

The belief that the greater number of eggs a hen lays, the poorer the quality of the eggs, is not upheld by tests.

Chickens can be made to grow faster as a result of crossing desirable strains, and fast growth improves their meat.

Growing chicks require calcium as a bone-building material, obtainable in easily digested form from chick size oyster shell.

If there is any doubt about the quality of the eggs to be sold, they should be candled and graded and the undesirable kept at home.

Object to Postcards Censorship of illustrated postcards is asked by the E. N. I. T., the Italian government agency in charge of tourist propaganda. Some Italian cards, it says, are too gaudy, and many are so inartistic that they give such an incorrect impression of Italy that they keep tourists away.

If you tire easily

Why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition? Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve. S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-globin up-building. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be misled by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Blend Chimney Color
Frequently, a chimney seems to cut a house in parts. It is important, in painting a small dwelling in an attractive color scheme, to make the chimney an integral part of the picture. It may be painted with either stucco or concrete paint.

Medieval Royal Crown
A medieval royal crown of pure gold and intricately designed was found under the pavement of the public square in Copenhagen, Denmark. With it were a golden chain and crucifix.

Making Emery Wheels
Emery wheels can be made by mixing about one ounce of shellac to a pound of emery. Use finely powdered shellac and add a small portion of rosin, a piece about the size of a walnut, to an ounce of shellac, and a piece of old vulcanized India-rubber about the same size, to give toughness. These are well mixed and melted together.

Germs and Antiseptics
There is no one antiseptic that will kill all kinds of germs, says a well-known pharmacologist.

Races Have Odor

It is quite possible that other races can detect the odor of the white race. Denker, in his "The Races of Man," refers to the fact that certain travelers have asserted they could recognize a population by its odor. The author admits that some ethnic groups have their specific odor, which gets fainter with scrupulous cleanliness, but never disappears.

Chinese Jews

The only known Chinese Jews have lived in Kalfung, China, since 1163 A. D. For several hundred years, they kept their colony apart from the Chinese. Today, however, after numerous generations of intermarriage, the few who are left have almost entirely lost their original racial characteristics.—Collier's Weekly.

Water Must Be Distilled

No natural water is sufficiently pure for the use of boilers on modern ocean liners. Although many of the larger vessels such as the Europa, Olympic, Conte de Savoia and Majestic use upwards of 500 tons of water every 24 hours, every drop of it must be distilled.

Vieux Carre of New Orleans

The Vieux Carre of New Orleans is that section of the town whose limits correspond with those of the original city as laid out by La Tour and Panzer in 1720. It was destroyed by fires in 1788 and 1794, and rebuilt mainly in the Spanish style.

Mrs. Maud Mitchell Mount, 91, 13 miles east of Asheville, N. C., is named for Prof. Elisha Mitchell. In 1857, while determining the height of the mountain, he lost his life when a fall from a precipice. The body of the scientist is buried at the summit.

Large Tree Cuts A survey of a 400-acre Georgia Alabama tract in Louisiana and Texas has a total of 4,000 acres of tung groves from which valuable oil is extracted.

Wet Moon

A wet moon is a new moon having one horn much lower than the other, resembling a tilted bowl. It is erroneously believed to be a sign of wet weather.

The normal moon above will support a weight of 100 tons without breaking, but its strength being almost equal to that of cast iron.

Oil's Effect on Leather Leather's flexibility depends to a large extent on the incorporation of oils during manufacture and upon their fate in the finished product.

Under Soviet Rule One-third of all the members of the white race are under the rule of the Russian Soviet.

Red Rubies From Burma The best deep red rubies come from Burma.

The Turnspit Dog

Up to about 1800 in England and France, the hardest working member of large households was the turnspit dog. In a revolving, treadmill-like cage, hung from the ceiling and attached by pulleys to the spit before the open fire, these dogs would run from two to three hours at a time, turning the meat while it roasted.—Collier's Weekly.

Naming Wall Street

Wall street owes its name to Peter Stuyvesant, who in 1652 as governor of the little Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam ordered a palisade built on the site to protect the town from invasion of the English. The last of the wall was removed in 1690 and both sides of the street were quickly built up.

Earthquakes in Ireland

Ireland has been visited by many severe earthquakes. Among the first ones reported was one in the year 1118. Other important earthquakes were August, 1734; June, 1821; November, 1880; August, 1892, and November, 1893. The last one recorded was on June 27, 1906.

Men Did Women's Work

In ancient Abyssinia the women folks thought it was improper for them to do the washing and sewing, so they had their menfolk do those two little jobs whenever it was necessary.

The Cheapest Comfort You Can Buy

Good Lamps Cost Less Today Than Ever Before in History

These student or reading lamps of the reflector type are more than a comfort, they are certified by the Electrical Testing Laboratories of the Illuminating Engineers Society. By enabling you to see without strain they safeguard your eyes and add immeasurably to the joy of living.

Test this lamp before you buy—sit down beside it with conditions the same as those under which it will be used—see how it really lights up the book or magazine—note that the shade is large enough to hold the correct size of bulb; that it is deep enough to hide the bare lamp and wide enough to spread the light. Then note how the reflector distributes a moderate light throughout the room, thus providing the general illumination so necessary in preventing eye strain.

The simple beauty of the hand decorated parchment shade will appeal to you and the shapely dignity of the base and stem will convince you of the quality and care used in fabricating this appealing line.

And price! The lamp illustrated with shade and base complete with 7-foot cord and socket connection is but

$4.95

Why not give your eyes a treat—the proper lamp may save you many times its cost in optical treatments.
