

PONTINE MARSHES TRANSFORMED

Beets From Pontine Marshes.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THE Pontine marshes of Italy have changed face. From a wide expanse of almost useless land, they have been gradually turned into healthy farm lands.

Two years ago Premier Benito Mussolini gave orders that by October 28, 1935, all the stagnant waters of this region should be drained off to the sea, malaria should be eradicated, 4,000 farm houses built and populated with as many peasant families drawn from the crowded agricultural provinces of the North, and that three cities should rise in the deserted land: Littoria, Sabaudia, and Pontinia. The waste and flooded plain at the doors of Rome was to become a garden and supply the needs of the capital.

Where two years ago wild boars roamed in the broom thickets, you can see today the neat city of Littoria, so called to perpetuate this achievement. All the surrounding land is dotted by hundreds of bright, healthful farmhouses, whereas two years ago, peasants lived in primitive huts.

Twenty miles to the south, near the sea, Sabaudia, named in honor of the House of Savoy, to which Italy owes its political unity, is growing like a mushroom in the midst of a vast forest that will be its natural park. And at the foot of the mountains Pontinia will rise in 1935, recalling the Etruscan population that, 2,500 years ago, first settled and cultivated this land. This city has not yet been staked out, but the date for the inauguration has been settled.

This astounding transformation could not have been possible had there not been a silent preparatory engineering work. Since 1926 a consortium, with Senator Natale Prampolini, a very capable engineer, at the head, has been working steadily and without beating the big drum. One hundred and sixty miles of road have been constructed, 300 miles of canals excavated, five villages built in the marshy desert, and 270,000,000 lire (more than $23,000,000) already spent.

A huge canal, 85 feet wide, gathers the torrential waters at the foot of the hills and, skirting the lowland, leads them to the sea, 24 miles away.

Fourteen thousand men are at work today in the region. The hydraulic engineering work has been the indispensable premise to the colonization, an enterprise that has been entrusted to the great war-veteran organization, the Opera Nazionale Combattenti, and to those land owners who have the necessary grit and faith to follow the lead. The veterans will build about 3,000 farm houses and the land owners about 250.

Story of the Marshes.

We must go back in history a little to grasp the general picture. The Pontine marshes are a rectangular plain, about 175,000 acres in extent, which is hemmed in on two sides by the Lepine mountains and on the other two by the sea. But along the sea runs a dune three miles wide that prevents the waters from flowing to the sea. The region, therefore, is like a large shallow basin in which the water collects and cannot drain. Between the great dune and the sea lies a series of lagoons.

The old Romans partly solved the problem by digging through the dune a gigantic canal called the Rio Martino. The pretty legend attached to this name has been told—the legend of King Martino, who, for love of beautiful Ninfa, dug out this kind of Culbra Cut, but was defeated by the magic of the wicked King Moor. The unhappy young lady threw herself from the tower of Ninfa into the adjoining lake and became the evil spirit of malaria.

The fact is, that some unknown Roman gentleman called Martinus did the work and succeeded in getting the bulk of the waters to flow out of the lowland to the sea.

However, as the Roman empire declined and the barbarians invaded Italy, civilization fell to such a low ebb that the noblest knights no longer knew how to scribble their names. So small was the production of writing material that Roman classics were erased from precious vellum sheets to indite the contracts for the sale of pieces of land.

During that period public works were abandoned and the swamps reconquered freely over the seas and the Pontine coast had to be guarded by strong towers to prevent the men of Barbary from landing and putting the villages to sack and ruin.

To make things worse, nature also took a hand in the game. With that great pressure which causes the mountains to rise, the broad sand dune that runs along the sea was buckled and the bottom of the Rio Martino canal was raised a few feet toward the center of its course. The outlet of the waters was thereby closed off.

After the fall of the western Roman empire, the Pontine region that once had been well cultivated and livened with villas and cities again became a swampy and desolate waste.

Popes Tried to Redeem It.
Several attempts to redeem the land are recorded; kings and popes tried and failed. But the first with a modern turn of mind to accomplish something effective was Leo X.

That great pope (1513-1521) declared the draining of the region was a work of public utility and therefore expropriation was a justified procedure. He granted the enterprise to his nephew, Giuliano dei Medici, who made a good business of it.

Giuliano would invite the owners of the land, private persons or communities, to go into partnership with him in the enterprise. The owners, fearing large expenses, would refuse; whereupon Giuliano would expropriate for a song.

The worst case befell the indolent community of Terracina. Following its refusal, Giuliano, at a relatively small expense, dug a short canal to the sea. The accumulated water that for centuries had remained dammed up behind the town ran off gaily and, in a very short time, Giuliano became the lucky owner of vast tracts of wonderfully fertile land on the outskirts of the town. The citizens of Terracina lived for years in lamentation! By this clever work Giuliano grew quite rich.

Two further attempts are worthy of record. One was that of Sixtus V, who, in 1586-1589, had the old water channel, the Flumen Antiquum, enlarged into a broad canal that in his honor was renamed Sisto. Two centuries later Pius VI called the hydraulic engineer, Gaetano Rappini, to avail himself of the modern technique for definitely resolving the problem. The old Applan Way, submerged for a thousand years, was given back to traffic, and along it a great canal was excavated that took the name of Linea Pia.

The pope, naturally much pleased with his accomplishment, had a tiny obelisk erected near Torre Tre Ponti, on which are engraved the words: "OLIM PONTINA PALUS—NUNO AGER PONTINUS" (Once the Pontine marshes—Now the Pontine fields).

Not many years later an earthquake gave a bad twist to the obelisk, and malaria drove away the people who had attempted to settle on the land; also, the Benedictine monks, for whom the pope had built a nice convent at Torre Tre Ponti, had to leave or died. The traveler could drive along the restored Applan Way, but in winter, on both sides of the road, large sheets of water extended for miles. This was the paradise of sea gulls, ducks, and geese, and of the Roman hunters who stalked the wild fowl while wading behind innocent-looking old horses.

Prampolini's Great Work.

Now an end has been put to all this. When the land owners were called by the government to unite in a consortium for planning and carrying out the final hydraulic drainage of the region, the government agreed to contribute to the huge expense the large share of 87½ per cent.

The actual work of road building and canal digging began in 1926 under Senator Prampolini's direction.

In the meanwhile, an effective organization was created, with the assistance of the Rockefeller foundation, to fight the malaria, because unless this enemy had been destroyed, it would not have been possible to conquer the land.

The first and most important experimental center was created in the old Caetani castle of Sermoneta. When the work was started, statistics showed that 95 per cent of the population were infected with the disease and that virtually no infant reached its first year without an attack of fever. Yellow little faces and sunken eyes stared at you in the medieval streets. Now new infections are practically unknown and pink and white little cherubs greet you.

After driving away the water and the malaria, the next step was to populate and transform the land. The government issued orders that by the year 1935, for the anniversary of the march on Rome, every acre of arable land, excepting woods, lakes, and certain tracts of lowland awaiting special work, should be colonized.

The government has offered financial assistance to the land owners in building, on every 30 acres of land, a house with stables, pig and chicken pens, and a baking oven. Money is loaned at 2½ per cent interest. If the owner refuses, his land is expropriated and the war veterans' organization undertakes the work.

Just the Thing for Small Girl

Pattern 1752

For the little girl who wears cotton frocks all year round, this design will be charming in a sturdy bright gingham, but the little ruffle will set beautifully in wool as well. Challis is a nice material for a little girl's dress, since it has a slight additional warmth and it washes beautifully. The ruffle at the edge of the yoke is not indispensable, as the back view shows. Any child who wears this frock will look at least an inch taller than she is, because of the long unbroken front panel—and little girls, like their mothers, have a yen for that, these days.

Pattern 1752 is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 8 takes 2¾ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

A Success

Johnny had been the guest of honor at a party the day before, and his friend was regarding him wonderingly.

"How was it? Have a good time?" he asked.
"Did I?" was the emphatic answer. "I ain't hungry yet!"—Toronto Globe.

Plum Puddings and Fruit Cakes

Delicacies That Should Be Prepared Some Time in Advance.

On the savory subject of Christmas delicacies an acknowledged expert writes as follows:

If you are going to have plum pudding for Christmas, now is a good time to make it up. It improves with age, you know, as the flavor ripens to that individual tang which comes from a blend of fruits and spices and possibly nuts.

The preparation of puddings may be an easy matter if you buy your raisins and dates seeded, your fruit peel already candied and your nuts shelled. Back in Pennsylvania, when I was a little girl, all these things had to be done ahead of time for the puddings and fruit cakes. And pleasant were the evenings then in front of the unromantic, but comfortable gas grate, while all of us children cracked hickory nuts, which our Uncle John had sent us from his Mercer county farm, and seeded the raisins and dates.

The fruit peel was cut into strips with scissors and then candied and carefully hidden, so that there would be enough left when it came time to make the puddings and cakes. The large puddings for Thanksgiving and Christmas were put into melon molds, which boasted tight-fitting covers. The smaller puddings for gifts and for later use in the winter were put into baking powder cans or into bowls. As they had no covers, greased paper was fastened over the tops with string.

Puddings may be steamed either in the regular steamer or they may be put on a rack in a kettle or in a pan which fits the oven. If they are steamed on top of the stove they should be kept covered, but this is not necessary if the oven is used. The oven, of course, must be kept at a low temperature, about 250 degrees Fahrenheit. When the puddings have steamed the required length of time they should be allowed to cool slightly before they are removed from the cans, bowls or molds, which may be then washed and dried, ready for the return of the pudding after it is cooled.

While a variety of fruits adds something to the flavor of the pudding, a plain pudding will taste very good indeed when served with a good sauce. It preferably should be flavored with brandy, rum or sherry. It is an old-fashioned custom, the sprinkling of the pudding of liquor before it was stored for later use.

Steamed Plum Pudding.

- 1/4 cup shortening
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 3 cups soft bread crumbs
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 - 1/4 teaspoon mace
 - 1/4 teaspoon clove
 - 3 eggs
 - 1/2 cup scalded milk
 - 2 tablespoons chopped orange peel
 - 2 tablespoons chopped lemon peel
 - 1 1/2 cup raisins
 - 1/4 cup currants
 - 1/2 cup chopped figs
 - 1/2 cup nuts, cut in pieces
 - 1/2 cup grape juice
- Cream shortening and sugar together, add bread crumbs, baking powder, salt and spices. Add beaten eggs and mix thoroughly. Add scalded milk. Add orange and lemon peel, raisins, currants, figs, nuts and grape juice to the first mixture and beat thoroughly. Fill greased pudding mold three-quarters full, cover tightly and steam for four hours. Serve with hard sauce.

English Plum Pudding.

- 3 eggs
 - 1 1/2 pounds seedless raisins
 - 2 ounces citron, cut fine
 - 1/2 cup chopped almonds
 - 3 sour apples, chopped fine
 - 1 cup flour
 - 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground cloves
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1 cup fruit juice
 - Rind of one lemon
 - 1 1/4 cups dried bread crumbs
 - 1 cup suet, chopped fine
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 cup molasses
- Soak fruits and almonds in the fruit juices overnight, then add the rest of the ingredients. Put in molds and cover tightly. Boil from four to eight hours, keeping covered with water and boiling the whole time, or steam. Serve with hard sauce. This recipe may be increased to make more puddings.

Carrot Plum Pudding.

- 1 pound flour
 - 1 teaspoon soda
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 2 teaspoons each of cinnamon, cloves, mace
 - 1 pound grated carrots
 - 1/2 pound suet, chopped
 - 1 1/2 pounds raisins
 - 1 1/2 pounds currants
 - 2 eggs, beaten
 - 1/4 cup molasses
 - 1/4 cup sirup
- Mix in the order given. Fill greased molds two-thirds full. Cover tightly with oiled paper. Steam five hours. This makes four puddings, each of which will serve five persons.

Wheat Smuggling New Border Worry

Patrol Overworked on North Dakota Boundary.

Fargo, N. D.—A new form of an ancient and often romantic criminal activity—smuggling, recently uncovered in a little North Dakota town near the Canadian border, is engaging the concentrated attention of an overworked border patrol. A secret investigation disclosed to government agents that within a few months 100,000 bushels of wheat had been smuggled into this country from Canada. The reason for the illegal operation was a chance to profit on high prices for wheat resulting from the processing tax. One man, operator of a grain elevator, has been arrested and is accused as a ringleader of the plot. Fourteen others, farmers and laborers, have pleaded guilty to the charge made against them, smuggling the grain.

The first arrest was that of Thomas C. Wildish, Ellsberry, N. D., elevator man, through whose establishment, government officials charge, huge quantities of wheat smuggled in from Canada were disposed of. Wildish, at present free on bond, is to be tried soon in federal court at Grand Forks. He is specifically charged with violating section 593 of the 1930 tariff act by aiding in bringing smuggled products into the United States.

Fourteen Plead Guilty. United States District Attorney P. W. Lanier, in charge of the prosecution, said the government plans also to proceed against all elevators shown to have purchased smuggled wheat. Punishment for conviction of violating the tariff act is a sentence up to two years in prison and a fine up to $5,000.

Passing of sentence on the fourteen farmers and laborers who pleaded guilty was deferred. The men admitted either taking part in the actual grain smuggling operations or having a part in the conspiracy. All of the smuggling transactions took place in Townier county, North Dakota, near the Canadian border. Most of the smuggled wheat was marketed in the towns of Hansboro and Ellsberry.

Mr. Lanier said that the government's investigation of the wheat smuggling conspiracy would result in 25 criminal prosecutions and in added vigilance on the part of the customs patrol. This service already is responsible for stopping many other forms of smuggling, an activity which officials admit never has been completely checked.

Smuggling Centuries Old.

At every port of entry and along every international boundary line smugglers have plied their trade for centuries. Because it is the first on record, the North Dakota wheat smuggling case is of extraordinary interest, but otherwise it is merely another instance of an ancient illicit trade.

The United States and every other commercially important nation have been faced with a startling increase in smuggling since the World War. During the prohibition era the problem was made a thousandfold more complex for the authorities of this country, but illegal liquor was only one of the items brought secretly across our borders. In 1920 and for several years thereafter one of the gravest problems of our border patrols was in stamping out the smuggling of aliens. At one time it was estimated that for every foreigner who entered this country legally, one and sometimes two were smuggled in illegally. Stories of this form of smuggling were sensational in the extreme. The smugglers who dealt in human beings were, and are, for the most part ruthless cutthroats, whose only concern is the money they get from their "clients"; what happens to the latter is of little interest to the smugglers.

Tables Turn, Older Men Now Get Jobs!

Cleveland, Ohio.—The old complaint of older men that "young fellows always get the preference" when jobs are given out has given way to the exact opposite.

That was the conclusion reached here by Y. M. C. A. officials after an employment survey of the city. Those making the survey reported that the older men are now being given first choice. Reasons given by employers for the change in the trend were listed as follows:

The fear that young men may be radical; the desire for older and experienced men, and the difficulty of training youths who never have had steady jobs.

WHY GO TO COLLEGE?

By

LEONARD A. BARRETT

With the return of autumn many young people have resumed their studies in our colleges and universities. In spite of the "hard times" the number enrolling for the freshmen classes is surprisingly large. We frequently hear the question, asked in all seriousness, how is it possible for so large a number of graduates to "land a job?" The question implies that the ultimate purpose of an education is obtaining a job. Is this a correct assumption? What is the purpose of an education? Why go to college?

A hasty survey of the facts reveal that a very large number of persons holding responsible positions in the business world never saw the inside of a college building. It is also true that many persons holding college degrees are absolute failures in the economic world. Two partners in an important industry experimented with their pet

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

It Is Easy to Note the Beauty of Curved Lines in This Fine Old Stairway.

FRONT stairs have always been one of the decorative architectural features of a house. Winding stairs are the most graceful because a curve is the line of beauty. In early American mansions curved or circular stairways were in high favor. Sometimes there would be two such staircases one above the other mounting up from the first to second story, and then from second to third with a break in the ascent on the second floor for the stretch of hall. This led to a position just above where the first stairway began and here the second staircase started.

Stairway and Air Currents.

In many houses one flight of stairs comes above another in the main hallway. However this arrangement has its drawbacks as houses built on such a plan have difficulties to contend with in heating. Warm air rises, and the heat is partial to the top floor, to the detriment of the warmth of lower ones. This was one of the chief reasons for many home builders not having the circular open staircases as described, and having stairs to the third floor either inclosed or positioned elsewhere in the house.

Speaking of inclosed staircases, they are not put in fine houses except for back stairs or those which serve for both back and front stairs from second to third floors. These box stairways have no decorative merit whatsoever. They are purely practical. This is their redeeming feature. In some old farmhouses, such stairs were built in order to conserve heat on the lower floor. It will be noted, however, that even in those old dwellings in which there is any attempt at architectural beauty, there are open front stairs leading from tiny front halls, which halls are scarcely more than vestibules. There are doors at right and left of the stairs. These lead into living rooms.

Staircases With Landings.

Stairways with landings are favored. These break the climb without interfering with the ornamental appearance. In fact this is accented decidedly when a broad landing has a window from which there is a good view, or which lets in sunlight. Sometimes where such a landing is broad, a chair or settee is on it where one can rest, or sit and enjoy the view. Such landings are favorite places for grandfather's clocks.

Sometimes where there is enough space, stairways branch to right and left about halfway up, and enter the second floor from both sides of a hall.

theories. The one employed a college trained man, the other, one who had only a high school course. Both were given the same task to perform. The one with the limited preparation won over the college man four to one. The college trained man developed an ego complex in his college days which placed him at a great disadvantage in the daily marts of trade. The high school trained man had developed confidence and assurance, due no doubt to the fact, he was compelled to work his way through his limited course of study.

Why go to college? Not for the purpose of a degree and certainly not for a job, but rather in order to obtain that discipline of mind and body which enables a man to hold a job when he gets it. Without this discipline education may become more of a curse than a blessing.

With night schools offering professional courses and with the advantage afforded by correspondence courses, no young person need be deprived the privilege of an education, even though he may not have the time or money to go to college. If he be enrolled as a student in a college let him see to it; that he learns not only the facts of his chosen field, but also, how to use these facts in contacts with other people after he leaves college. Dogs Have Topknot
Many dogs of the Mexican hairless variety are crested with a topknot and carry a tuft of hair at the tip of the tail. In others it is bristly and upright. The eyes, lashes, are yellow, hazel or dark, bordered with pink or dark rims. Like that of an impatient race horse, the nervous tremor of the muscles and sinews is characteristic. Not classed for any particular utility, he is considered, however, a good hunter of rabbits and rats. His owners attest that his intelligence, brightness and affection more than repay that tolerance of his unpropitious appearance.

Edison Disliked Decorations
Upon Thomas Edison's second trip to Europe the French Telephone company offered him a decoration which required that he wear a long sash. But the Ohioan flatly refused with the assertion that he couldn't "stand for that." Persuaded by his wife, he did however consent to wear the little red button of the League of Honor. But whenever he saw any American approaching he would slip the button into his pocket for fear, as he said, "they might think I am trying to show off."

Blonds Always Win
That men have always preferred blond hair is supported by a number of facts in history. One of the best indications is that in the heyday of wigs it was the blond ones that were at a premium. The dark wigs were cheaper and made of horse or goat hair while the blond wigs were made of human hair.

Much has been said about the "meanest man" and a splendid example of his type was exemplified in the sneak thief who crawled in a window of the Brown warehouse last week where household goods had been stored temporarily and stole the family sheets, a pair of white lead and other articles. Tracks leading away were found and the thief is hereby warned to return the stolen goods or settle for same.

Next Saturday morning, November 24, at 9:00 a. m., the beginning of a children's Christmas program will be made, to be completed and given at Christmas time. Any children in the vicinity of Hale that wish to take part are requested to be at the town hall at nine o'clock Saturday mornings. It is to be hoped that this will also be the beginning of regular instructions for children in preparation for confirmation.

A brother of J. K. Osgerby of East Tawas, who was spending a few days at the Kelly home and enjoying the hunting season, was accidentally killed last Saturday morning. The news of the tragedy reached the village and the doctor and other county officials were on the scene within a few minutes. Mr. Mortenson of Long Lake, driving his coupe to Hale, overtook Mr. Osgerby returning from hunting and offered him a ride. He stated he had only a short distance to go and declined, and in some way stepped in front of Mr. Humphrey's truck hauling gravel. He was taken to the Omer hospital but only lived one hour. Thanksgiving Day. This sale is the only means by which the Michigan Tuberculosis Association secures funds by which to carry on its good work. The sale this year will be conducted by the pupils of the public schools.

Mention was made last week that both Senator Carpenter and Representative Holbeck have signified their intentions to support the proposition to raise $25,000,000 in the state per year for school purposes in addition to the primary fund. We are pleased to state this week that the governor-elect, Frank D. Fitzgerald, also favors state support of the public schools to the same extent at least. He said in part at a conference in Jackson November 5: "From the best information available this equalization fund should be $25,000,000, making a total of $40,000,000 when added to the amount received through the primary school fund."

We are busy practicing for a Thanksgiving program.

The third graders are learning the poem, "Thanksgiving Day," for language.

Primary Room
Gary Smith has gone to Canada. Marion Bing, Ruth Westcott, and Jack Smith had perfect spelling lessons all last week.

The second graders illustrated the story, "The Stone in the Road," and are making a movie of it.

We are working on a Thanksgiving program which we plan to give together with the other grade rooms.
