UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS NOW BEING TAKEN

Donald A. Evans In Charge Of Enumeration In County

Work on the unemployment census in Isosco county began last Tuesday morning with Donald A. Evans of East Tawas in charge. This census, which is expected to furnish data on unemployment and living conditions, has been ordered by the State Relief Administrator, William Haber, under authorization of the F.E.R.A.

The sections of Isosco county which will be canvassed and the enumerators are as follows: Tawas City, Rolland Hebner; Tawas township, George Myles; AuSable township, Alex Elliott; Plainfield township, Lloyd Smith and Edward Cowan.

Field work is expected to last four weeks and the enumerators will work under the direction of 225 squad leaders and 10 area supervisors. All workers will be selected from county and municipal relief rolls and from files of the national reemployment service. State headquarters have been established in the vacant Durant Motors plant in Lansing.

To reduce the cost of the project, the survey will be conducted on a sampling basis. One household in five will be selected in cities of 40,000 population and over. All cities of from 3,000 to 40,000 will be completely enumerated. One city of every five under 3,000 will be selected in the state for a complete canvass and one township for every five in each county will come under the survey. Three "problem" counties in each peninsula have been selected for complete enumeration.

From data secured, standards of living of workers in small towns may be compared with that of city workers. Total incomes of gainful workers, rentals paid and occupational history information will be included in the data sought. All information obtained will be confidential.

Because of the fact that Michigan can furnish an analysis of the relation between industrial activity and population movements better than in many other industrial states, the Federal Relief Administration will watch the census carefully.

Reno Group Spends A Day At Farmer's Week

During the week of January 28 to February 1 all roads led to East Lansing where Farmer's Week was in full swing. We decided as we were farmers by birth and circumstance it would be a wise thing if the opportunity offered to see what other farmers are doing throughout the state. Mr. Kerr, our principal, having to make a trip to Lansing, kindly asked us to accompany him, and we readily accepted as we had never seen the college or the state capital.

Monday evening we left about six o'clock, pushing our way through drifted roads. We had no definite plans other than getting to Lansing for the whole day that followed. Our first stop was in Standish where we visited the new Summer Trails Inn. Here we discovered one of the finest hostleries in Michigan. From there we journeyed on to Bay City where we attended a show. About midnight we decided it was time to retire and went to the home of a friend where we discovered one bed for four of us. What a time! Two of the fellows had eaten hamburgs with onions and the other two decided to sleep the other way in bed, deciding that the smell of feet was no worse than onions. This retirement lasted only until two o'clock when we dressed and left for Midland and Mount Pleasant. Here we decided to go to the hotel and wash. We stopped in front of the hotel and found the janitor scrubbing the floor, so we decided to walk about town and warm up a bit. Our presence at 4:30 in the morning caused the night watchman some alarm, and we discovered this also and decided to leave. We did and he followed us to the edge of town. We left Mt. Pleasant at 5 o'clock for Lansing. At St. Johns the pavement became a glare of ice and while rounding a curve, we "took off" and landed in a nearby field after crossing a four foot ditch and several other unnecessary bumps. We

Merschel-Mueller

Miss Dorothy Merschel, daughter of Mrs. Elsie Merschel of East Tawas, and Martin Mueller of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mueller of this city, were united in marriage last Saturday, February 9, at the Zion Lutheran church. Rev. Ernest Ross performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a white and gold tunic over black skirt, and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Grace Merschel and Mrs. Herbert Wendt, wore turquoise blue gowns and carried American Beauty roses and sweet peas. The groom was attended by Herbert Wendt and Norman Merschel.

After the ceremony a dinner was served at the home of the bride's mother to fifty friends and relatives. Out of town guests included Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Speck and Mr. and Mrs. O. Burghart of Detroit, and Bernard Sargent of West Branch.

Mrs. Mueller is a graduate of the East Tawas high school, the Isosco County Normal, and Central State Teachers College of Mt. Pleasant. Mr. Mueller is a graduate of the Tawas City high school.

The young couple left Sunday for Detroit, where Mr. Mueller has employment. Their many Tawas friends wish them happiness.

Misener-Cooke

Miss Helen Misener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Misener of East Tawas, and A. B. Cooke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cooke of Zeeland, were united in marriage Saturday, February 9, at South Bend, Indiana.

Mrs. Cooke, a graduate of the East Tawas high school and of the Bay City Business College, has been employed at the Emergency Relief Administration office in this city for the past year and a half. Mr. Cooke is a member of the firm of R. G. Straight and company, Grand Rapids, office equipment dealers.

The young couple expect to make their home in this vicinity.

Twentieth Century Club

The Twentieth Century Club met in the new club rooms in the Davidson building on Saturday, February 2, with Mrs. Lydia Bing, second vice-president, presiding. The sum of $10.00 was voted toward the new library project.

The following program was presented: Singing from new song books; two musical selections—Grace Carleton Richards; Poetry Appreciation—Mrs. Giddings; American Poems—Mrs. Grace Mark.

This program was considered one of the best of the year. Mrs. Giddings' paper was very interesting and we learned many new things about poetry. Mrs. Mark recited six poems by American poets which were greatly enjoyed.

The annual meeting will be held on February 16th. Come and see what the club has accomplished during the past year. Election of officers also takes place at this meeting.

Tawas City and Oscoda Firemen Entertained By East Tawas Department

The East Tawas fire department were hosts to the fire departments of Tawas City and Oscoda at the Holland Hotel on Tuesday evening. Forty-one attended, including members of the departments and guests. It was the first meeting of this kind held in the county.

Dr. C. P. Klump acted as toastmaster. Short talks were given by H. E. Hanson, former assistant chief of the East Tawas department; Seth Jackson, of the United States Forest Service; E. Provost, chief of the East Tawas department; M. C. Musolf, chief of the Tawas City department; and Eugene Thompson, assistant chief of the Oscoda department. T. George Sternberg also gave a talk on better housing.

Arthur Dillon acted as chairman of the round table discussion after the banquet. The departments agreed to help out each of the other cities in case of necessity. The forestry department also volunteered the use of their equipment in case of any emergency. A committee including E. Thompson of Oscoda, Arthur Dillon of East Tawas and A. Frank of Tawas City will meet during the coming week to arrange a practical plan to be used if necessary for the cities to call in assistance from the other departments.

Seek Approval Of Three Road Projects In County

Isosco county road commissioners have listed three projects with the State Planning Commission at a total cost of $151,000. The principal item entails the expenditure of $110,000 for the resurfacing of all rural mail routes and other important roads and construction of a $5,000 bridge across Pine Lake at the Alcona-Isosco county line. The commissioners also would like to resurface three miles of the Beach road at a cost of $36,000, stone and tar to be used.

The State Planning Commission will study this inventory with attention to those from all other political units in the state so that it can present, on March 1, a comprehensive program to the proper authorities in Washington in the attempt to get Michigan's rightful share of the $4,880,000,000 public works fund. President Roosevelt soon will allocate.

KEFGEN TO SPEAK IN COMMUNITY HOUSE

Talk Will Concern Present Plight Of Schools

February has been designated as Education Month in Michigan by Dr. Paul F. Voelker, superintendent of public instruction. As a result, the public relations committee of the Michigan Education Association for Isosco county has secured Leslie P. Kefgen of Bay City to give an address in the Community House, East Tawas, on Wednesday evening, February 20, at eight o'clock.

Mr. Kefgen will speak concerning the present plight of Michigan schools due to the lack of financial support. The Arenac County Independent reported last week that unless immediate relief is given in the way of financial assistance is given the Omer, Au Gres and Standish schools, it will be necessary for these institutions to close very soon. The Independent also reported that the schools of Sterling, Turner and Twining cannot continue longer than March 1, unless aid comes previous to that time. It is evident, then, that the topic of the evening should be of interest to all.

Mr. Kefgen was superintendent of schools at Newberry, Michigan, at the beginning of the World War. He served in the aviation branch during the conflict. Since the war, he has been state commander and national committeeman of the American Legion, and has been recently appointed to the prison board of the state by Governor Fitzgerald. He is an excellent speaker, and has a vital message. All are invited.

East Tawas Indians Continue Victorious

The Indians are dealing in contrasts on the hardwoods now. Just nosing out Harrisville by one point in an overtime game last Friday night, the Tribe held a thirty-seven point margin over Whittemore on Tuesday.

Coming from a 4-4 tie at the first quarter, Tawas led Harrisville, 14 to 8, at the half. The Green and White basketballers came back strong in the last half, the fourth period closing with the score tied at 23 apiece.

Gehres of Harrisville opened the overtime period by making a shot from the field. G. Staudacher made a free throw good and Pollard sent the ball through the net for the two winning points.

Making a basket on the first tip-off, the Indians went on a scoring spree against Whittemore and gave the Scarlet and Gray invaders a sound drubbing—57 to 20.

The second team ran its total of consecutive victories to 16 by defeating Harrisville seconds, 25 to 11. St. Anne reserves 19 to 16 in Alpena Saturday night, and Whittemore seconds 24 to 14 Tuesday. Halligan and Small led the scoring in Harrisville with eight points apiece. The fourth quarter was played with three-man teams because the up-staters had no substitutes available. Fairfield was high point man against St. Anne with ten points and had eight points in the Whittemore game.

The East Tawas girls were nosed out, 5-4, in a hard fought game with the Whittemore sextet Tuesday. (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

LITERARY CLUB OBSERVES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

President of Women's Club Federation Speaks At Meeting

Seventy members of the Ladies' Literary Club of East Tawas and their friends met at the Holland Hotel on February 6 at 7:00 p. m. to partake of an excellent dinner and to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the club.

The tables were beautifully decorated with gold tapers and bowls of Sol D'Oria with maiden-hair fern. At the speakers table was a lovely three-tiered birthday cake in gold and green. The dinner menu also carried out the golden anniversary color scheme.

The program was opened by the club president, Mrs. F. E. Kunze, who with a few well chosen words, welcomed the guests. The minutes of the last anniversary meeting were then read by the club secretary, Mrs. W. A. DeGrow. Nyda Campbell Leslie, accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Giddings, sang a group of four songs.

Mrs. Kunze, acting as toastmistress, introduced Mrs. S. Anker and Mrs. J. G. Dimmick, who told of the organization of the club in January of 1885 by six women. Two of these women, Mrs. Julia Bissette of East Tawas and Mrs. Alice King of California, are living. Unfortunately neither was able to attend the banquet. They also told of former anniversaries and other activities of the club and concluded that though they had had no movies, automobiles or bridge in those days that had managed to have very good times indeed.

Mrs. Kunze read a message of congratulation to the club from Mrs. Bissette and the following poem: "Fifty Golden Years," written in honor of the club by Hazel Adell Jackson of Detroit:

Fifty golden years!—The clock turns backward
The eye of memory is keen tonight
We see again, in fancy, well-loved faces
With comradeship and gaiety alight
We see the noble few who had a vision
Of what each soul and mind must ever need—
And then they sought, in brave determination,
To fill that need, in word, and thought and deed.
We see them striving, striving, through the 80's,
And in the 90's following the gleam.

All registered scouts and their parents are invited. Howard Evans will be in charge of arrangements.

The next regular meeting of the P.-T. A. will be postponed from Monday, February 18, to Wednesday, February 20, when they will join with other organizations in a special program in response to a request by Dr. Paul Voelker, superintendent of public instruction, who has set aside February as Educational Month in Michigan. Leslie Kefgen, a Bay City business man and former state commander of the American Legion, will be the speaker of the evening. His talk will be on the crisis of Michigan public schools, with special emphasis on the financial condition. The East Tawas music department will furnish the entertainment. ## Irene Dunne Has Singing Role In "Sweet Adeline"

Ever since she has been in Hollywood, Irene Dunne has hoped for a chance to star in an operetta that would give her a chance to use her magnificent voice to best advantage. "Sweet Adeline," the Warner Bros. production, which comes to the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, February 17, 18 and 19, is the culmination of that hope.

"Sweet Adeline" gives Miss Dunne an opportunity to sing the beautiful music of Jerome Kern, who wrote the original operetta in collaboration with Oscar Hammerstein II.

"In spite of all the pictures I have already done," she said, "I feel that 'Sweet Adeline' is really my debut since it is my first chance on the screen in the sort of role that makes real demands on my voice."

Donald Woods plays opposite Miss Dunne, while others in the cast include Hugh Herbert, Ned Sparks, Joseph Cawthorn, Louis Calhern and Winifred Shaw.

Germany Studies Anglo-French Peace Proposals—Labor Rebuked by Roosevelt for Objections to the Auto Code—Governor Moodie Ousted From Office.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

CONTINENTAL chancelleries turned their attention toward a new plan designed to restore Germany to complete equality among European nations and to strengthen the shaky foundations of peace, as conversations ended between Pierre Laval, French foreign minister, and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary.

Germany will be offered a promise of repeal of the military clauses of the treaty of Versailles in return for re-entering the League of Nations. Such a concession would seem a victory for Hitler's campaign to restore Germany to its place as a sovereign power in Europe.

Another proposal arising from the negotiations greatly aids France's campaign for security. Regional defense pacts to provide the nations participating with reciprocal assistance in repelling an unprovoked air attack are part of the plan. France and Great Britain are willing to enter into such a series of pacts, and suggest that other European nations be invited to join. This signifies that either nation must rush planes to the aid of the other in the event of attack from the air. The pact will undoubtedly be concluded between Great Britain and France, no matter what action the other nations take, although no formal announcement has been made.

Some European diplomats are not at all certain that Germany and Poland can be persuaded to change the unreciprocated attitude they have so far manifested toward suggestions for their participation in an "eastern Locarno." Germany may be so strongly rearmament by this time that she will not be concerned whether her armaments are legalized.

This, however, is only speculation. Dispatches from Germany have indicated the reich's willingness to engage in any conversations proposed by the Franco-British formula, but she must first be assured of complete equality of status.

SENATOR BORAH of Idaho, always sternly opposed to action that might lead the United States into foreign entanglements, has surprisingly come forward with a demand that congress investigate the alleged religious persecutions in Mexico and persuade our neighbors to the south to cease them. The excuse for such proposed meddling is that some citizens of the United States may be among the "victims." Through its representatives in Washington the Mexican government calmly denies there is any religious persecution down there, and says all who obey the laws are permitted to worship as they please. If the Borah resolution carries, Mexico may well tell the United States to mind its own business. Representative Fish of New York followed Borah's lead by introducing in the house a resolution calling upon the President to take diplomatic steps toward abatement of what he declares is growing communism in Mexico. He said the communistic trend was directly connected with the alleged religious persecutions, and that entrenchment of communism in Mexico would seriously affect the United States.

THREE million pounds of steel in the form of a huge gate was slowly lowered into place at the Boulder dam, the great Colorado river was placed under control, and there came into being a new lake which will eventually be the largest ever made by man. In two or three years it will extend back 136 miles from the dam. By June 1 next it will contain about 3,000,000 acre feet of water or one-tenth of its capacity. Only one of the diversion tunnels remains open. It is on the Nevada side and through it will be permitted to flow only enough water to meet the needs of irrigation in the Imperial valley of California.

THE much-advertised benefits from Russian recognition have been rather less than satisfactory. Neither the wide expansion of trade which was anticipated, or the satisfactory settlement of debts materialized, and following a conference with Soviet representatives, Secretary Cordell Hull admitted that diplomatic dilly-dallying had come to an end.

Hull issued a curt statement that "certain diplomatic changes" had been ordered in Moscow. The acting naval attaché will be withdrawn, the consulate generalship will be abolished, and further reductions will be made in the personnel of the embassy, he stated.

The United States' action means a period of strained relations between the two countries, although not to the point of the United States government's withdrawing recognition. William C. Bullitt will remain as ambassador but there is little doubt that the United States will not proceed with construction of an embassy building, and that arrangements for creating consulates in other parts of Russia will be deferred.

RIOTING broke out in England as a protest against the new dole measure, despite an announcement by Minister of Labor Oliver Stanley that recent reductions in unemployment payments would be restored.

Thousands continued their protest campaign, demanding not only the restoration of relief cuts, but an increase over the scale of relief imposed before the advent of the unemployment assistance board last month.

Violent clashes occurred at Sheffield, where a mob of 10,000 battled with mounted police. At Glasgow during a discussion of the new relief concessions two councillors were thrown out of the council chamber and a band of unemployed men and women were also forcibly ejected.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT renewed the automobile code, with two changes designed to stabilize employment; but the American Federation of Labor, growing daily more dissatisfied with the government's policy, denounced the code extension, and President William Green said: "We will not accept it, recognize nor yield to it."

The federation's executive council bitterly attacked Donald Richberg, emergency council director, and Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the automobile labor board, asserting they are hostile to the American Federation of Labor. Wolman's board not long ago conducted elections in the Detroit area which revealed that less than 10 per cent of the employees were affiliated with the federation, and presumably for this reason Green and his aids were not consulted in the matter of renewal of the code.

The President lost no time in serving notice that labor would not be permitted to dictate administration policies. Extension of the code was welcomed by the Automobile Manufacturers' association, its officers declaring there would be steadier work in their factories and that winter unemployment would be greatly reduced. The changes in the code call for the introduction of new models during a 90-day period before or after October 1, and pay and a two for overtime work.

Two days later the President again fired back at the federation in reply to the federation executive council's demand that S. Clay Williams, administration board chairman, be removed at least until a cigarette code satisfactory to labor could be approved. Williams had been appointed after careful consideration, the President said, and there was no need for any controversy.

A resolution had been passed by the labor council asking William Green to seek the ouster of Williams as a foe of labor. Before he took the NRA post Williams headed one of the nation's largest tobacco companies.

AFTER less than a month in office Gov. Thomas H. Moodie was ousted by the North Dakota Supreme court. The court held Moodie ineligible on the ground that he had voted, and thereby established residence, in Minnesota in 1930. The constitutional provision requires candidates for governor to have lived in the state five consecutive years before election. His successor, Lieut. Gov. Walter H. Welford, will be the fourth governor in seven months. Last June the State Supreme court ordered the removal of William Langer, who had just been convicted of conspiracy to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers.

During his brief term in office, Moodie was in difficulties with the legislature, the lower house being controlled by the Nonpartisan party which was hostile to Moodie, who was the second Democrat ever to win the office.

WILLIAM MAC CRACKEN, former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, will spend ten days in jail, the Supreme court decreed, thus settling the right of the senate to punish for contempt. MacCracken was sentenced to jail by the senate when he failed to produce data requested by the senate air mail investigating committee. The District of Columbia Supreme court held the senate acted within its power, but the District Court of Appeals sided with MacCracken.

ORGANIZED labor in America now gives its full support to the International labor organization in Geneva. It was officially announced in the Swiss city that President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, will be the American member of the body. Leon Jouhaux, French labor leader, in a speech at Geneva, expressed the joy of labor representatives of all countries at the co-operation of American labor.

ACTING with startling rapidity, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration ousted a group of radical New Dealers, which Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said was "for the good of the service." Jerome N. Frank, Lee Pressman and Frank Shea and Gardner Jackson all tendered their resignations. The final fate of Fred C. Howe, Victor Rotnam and Alger Hiss still remain in doubt.

The bloodless purge of the group, known as favored proteges of Rexford G. Tugwell, was unexpected. Evidently signals were confused, because President Roosevelt in his press conference stated that he was uninformed of any such action, but later in the day, Secretary Wallace said the President was aware of the action before it was announced.

Wallace added, however, that Tugwell, who is in Florida, had not been consulted. It may be remembered that Tugwell's fight for Frank resulted in the discharge of George N. Peek as AAA administrator, and it was felt by some that it was to avoid possible trouble with Tugwell that he was not informed of the plan.

Agricultural Administrator Davis informed newspaper men that the order was necessary to preserve harmony. "There was mounting difficulty in getting things done," said Administrator Davis. "We believed things would function more smoothly if they were directed by men familiar with farm problems and having a farm background."

Wallace was asked if this statement applied to Tugwell. He hastily replied that Tugwell had an excellent farm background, which may be a distinct surprise to many.

THE first special federal grand jury to be called at Washington since the Teapot Dome oil scandals more than ten years ago, began investigation of the public works scandal involving an alleged conspiracy to use 200 miles of California redwood pipe in a Texas irrigation project that originally called for no pipe at all.

PWA Administrator Harold L. Ickes instituted the grand jury action. The plot centers around the $4,853,000 Willacy county (Texas) water control program to irrigate citrus orchards. Ickes claims the money was promised by PWA on the understanding that the Willacy project would be a gravity system requiring no pipe, and that after the papers were signed by PWA the plans were mysteriously altered to make it a pressure system and to use 200 miles of redwood pipe. According to the evidence to be placed before the jury, PWA officials and engineers, Texas politicians and lumbermen were parties to the conspiracy.

When the Willacy county matter has been sifted, the jury may investigate reported irregularities in other PWA projects, and may also start a new investigation of War department contracts.

POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES FARLEY will either have to resign his job as head of the Post Office department, or give up the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee if Senator Norris, Nebraska, succeeds in putting through a bill he introduced in the senate.

Norris would take the post office from Farley down out of partisan politics. The postmaster general would be appointed for ten years, and the present system whereby congressmen have an important voice in the appointment of postmasters would be abolished. All employees would be selected for "merit and efficiency" only. The chances of ever putting such a measure through congress are more than problematical. While Norris asserts that "congressmen ought to be tickled to death to be rid of the job," it is hardly likely that very many congressmen will be anxious to give up the "task" of handing out such political plums.

The administration moved hastily to introduce a counter bill which would provide that all postmasterships would be brought under civil service, and which would ban political appointments and open most of the jobs only to career employees in the postal service. The measure was introduced by Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, Wyoming, and was said to have the approval of both the President and Farley.

Only civil service employees of the postal system who have served in supervisory capacities or as post office inspectors, postmasters of first-class offices who have had at least four years of actual experience, or executives "of broad experience in private life" would constitute the class from which postmasters would be selected for offices having gross receipts of $1,000,000 or more.

SPEEDY police action was necessary to avert new bloodshed in Paris on the anniversary of the uprising caused by popular indignation over the Stavinsky scandal disclosures. Thousands of arrests were made as Communists sought to arouse the public to a repetition of the riots of a year ago, when 19 were killed in the Place de la Concorde. Police gave the Reds no chance to carry out their intended maneuvers. The most harmless looking individuals were escorted a few blocks and let go with farewell kicks, while those found carrying weapons were rushed into improvised concentration camps. Premier Flandin was hissed and booed by many fire-eating Nationalists as he attended memorial services in Notre Dame cathedral.

Persians Take New Name for Historic Kingdom

Revive "Iran," Once Designating Entire Region.

Washington.—New Year's day for the Persians, which is March 22, will bring to the ancient kingdom of Persia a new name—"Iran."

"Persia" was derived from the province of Pers, or Parsa, the seed from which the modern nation sprang. "Iran" is the ancient name for the entire geographical region, which includes parts of Afghanistan and Baluchistan. In recent times, however, "Iran" has been used as a secondary title for the Persian political unit. (It should not be confused with "Iraq," the similar name of the nation which borders it on the west.)

"Persians have always called their country Iran—'Land of the Aryans'—and themselves 'Iran,' says a bulletin from the Washington (D. C.) headquarters of the National Geographic society. "But at the same time they have looked upon Fars (the modern name for Pers) as the most typical Persian province, and even as the cradle of the Aryan race.

"The official change in name turns attention to the country as a whole, and emphasizes Iran's 3,000 years of strong nationalism. Its people have demonstrated again and again their ability to revive from major catastrophes.

Often Subjugated. "At different periods in its development Iran has been overrun and even subjugated by Greek, Arab, Turk, and Mongol armies; but the Iranian have clung tenaciously to their national characteristics and culture. Iran's two great poets, Firdausi and Omar Khayyam, helped to preserve the Persian language and national spirit through many troubled years. Firdausi's best known work, Shah-Namah, is one of the world's epics; and Edward Fitzgerald's translation of the Rubaiyat focused the attention of Europe on the culture of Iran.

"Iran, two and a half times the area of Texas, is covered by a network of modern highways, in varying degrees of repair, following ancient trade routes. Until 1931 Iran was a country without railroads, with the exception of a few extremely short stretches of narrow-gauge line. But now railway construction is progressing both in the north and in the south. Plans call for the meeting of these tracks within the next few years so that the fertile provinces bordering the Caspian sea in the north will be linked with the Persian gulf.

"Teheran, the beautiful capital city, is now reached by airplane, motor car, or camel caravan, but before long it will be included on the trans-Iranian railroad. The capital has a population of 320,000; but it is utterly unlike most of the modern capitals of the world of comparable size. Its wide boulevards, along which traffic is directed by helmeted policemen, lend an outward air of modernity to the city; but the lumbering caravans of camels and donkeys soon dispel the modern appearance of the main thoroughfares.

"Side streets of the capital are narrow, crooked, and dark, and add further to the popular conception of a typical oriental city.

Modern Buildings. "There is, of course, a section of beautiful modern buildings including the post office, the Imperial Bank of Persia, the legislative buildings of the Majlis (the Iranian congress or parliament), and the Pahlavi palace, home of his imperial majesty, Riza Shah Pahlavi, Shah-in-Shah of Iran.

"Until 1906 Iran was an absolute monarchy. In that year, the reigning shah was forced to grant a constitution, under which the national consultative assembly of Majlis was established. In October, 1925, this assembly voted to depose the young sultan, Riza Khan Pahlavi, then prime minister, was appointed to head a provisional government. In December of the same year, he ascended the throne as king. Under the present constitution, Iran's government somewhat resembles that

Hoax Starts Arizona Gold Rush

One of the most gigantic hoaxes in the history of Arizona was engineered by Charles Williams of Phoenix when he started a new gold rush. The miner came out of the mysterious Superstition mountains after he had been missing 85 hours. With him he brought 12 ounces of pure gold, which he said he found in a rich cache. Later investigation and assaying proved that the gold was dental gold and melted down coins. Williams has admitted his fraud. Left to right: Charles Williams; Ed Layton, prospector into whose camp Williams stumbled as he emerged from the mountains; and Officer Guss Dobrinski, inspecting one of the gold "nuggets."

Gold Prospectors Now Attending School

Ontario Mines Bureau Holds Classes for Novices.

Toronto.—The lure of gold in the northern Ontario bush brought 446 men and four women to the prospectors' classes held in Toronto by the Ontario department of mines. During eight days these men and women were taught how to recognize various minerals, how to make chemical tests and many other things which a prospector should know. In the afternoons field work, chemistry, spotting and allied subjects were discussed. In the evenings illustrated lectures on prospecting were held.

The Toronto lectures are part of a series held throughout the province since the beginning of winter. The series opened in Ottawa. Other towns on the itinerary include Marmora, Sault Ste. Marie, Fort Arthur, Fort William, Kenora, Halleybury, Kapuskasing and Kirkland Lake. The average attendance at the classes last year was 120.

Esperantists in Drive to Retain Leadership

Paris.—A campaign to counteract the growing popularity of other synthetic languages is being organized here by the headquarters of the International Association of Esperanto.

Special free courses in the language will be offered shortly in many countries of Europe. During two weeks next year a series of lectures will be delivered in the leading capitals of the world for the purpose of explaining the intellectual advantages of Esperanto.

Among international languages which are beginning to rival Esperanto here are Volapuk, Ido, Nival, Perfecto and Basic. The last one, originated by a Cambridge professor, is merely a reduction of English to a minimum vocabulary. It comprises only 850 words, which are supposed to do the work of 20,000 words.

Virgin Forest Will Be Saved in Pennsylvania

Washington.—In acquiring Pennsylvania's Tionesta forest, the government is preserving one of the most famous and interesting remnants of virgin forest in the East as a laboratory for science, according to the American Forestry association.

The 4,000-acre tract, recently approved for purchase by the National Forest Reservation commission, constitutes one-third of the original forest

Twelve children were born to the first wife, 15 to the second and 8 to the present wife. Thirty-two of the children are living and are scattered over eastern Kentucky. ## TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

SHOT OF DESTINY

IT WAS about as clumsy and unwieldy a weapon as one could imagine—that arquebus which European soldiers carried in the Seventeenth century. But no modern machine gun, rat-tatting out its swift stream of death, ever affected the course of American history more than an ancient arquebus, away back in 1609.

In that year Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec, accompanied a war party of Hurons and Algonquians against their enemies, the Mohawks of the Iroquois Confederacy. They found them on the shores of the beautiful lake which now bears the French explorer's name.

Champlain saw the Mohawks getting ready to shoot their arrows. He leveled his arquebus, which he had loaded with four balls, and aimed straight at one of the three Mohawk chiefs in the forefront of the enemy's line. As the gun roared, two of them dropped dead and the third was seriously wounded. Amazed to see their chiefs killed so quickly, the Iroquois warriors fled.

Champlain could not have realized it then, but his was truly a "shot of destiny." For this was the first contact of the Iroquois with the French and their hatred for these white men dated from that day. It made them allies of the English and in the long struggle between England and France for domination of North America, the aid of such warriors, perhaps the most ferocious on the continent, played a decisive part in favor of Great Britain.

"ON TO RICHMOND!"

EARLY in June, 1861, the editorial column in the New York Tribune declared "THE NATION'S WAR CRY: Forward to Richmond! Forward to Richmond! The Rebel congress must not be allowed to meet there on the 20th of July. By that date the place must be held by the National Army."

Composed by Fitz-Henry Warren of the Tribune staff, it was run by order of Charles A. Dana, then managing editor. But, because the "Tribune was Horace Greeley and Horace Greeley was the Tribune," everyone believed that he had originated it.

Day after day it appeared. Soon the whole North had taken up the cry, "On to Richmond!" By the middle of July the government could disregard it no longer.

Gen. Irvin McDowell was ordered to advance with his raw, untrained troops. The result was the battle of Bull Run on July 21 when the Union forces were utterly routed with a loss of nearly 3,000 killed, wounded and missing.

The disaster was a terrible blow to the North. Greeley published a signed statement declaring "the precise phrase 'Forward to Richmond!' is not mine, and I would have preferred not to iterate it." But he was blamed for it, nevertheless. His bitter enemy, James Gordon Bennett of the Herald, said that the Tribune editor should be tried for murder because he had sent all those brave young boys to their death. Greeley was so overwhelmed by it all that he was prostrated for six weeks with an attack of brain fever.

Later he rose to heights of editorial influence perhaps never equaled by any other man. But by many Americans he is still remembered as the editor whose slogan precipitated a great disaster to our arms and to our pride.

A LITTLE MORE GRAPE

ON FEBRUARY 23, 1847, Gen. Santa Anna's Mexicans broke through the lines of Gen. Zachary Taylor's American army at Buena Vista and were about to cut off one flank. Then a little battery and a few Kentucky volunteers, commanded by Captains William Tecumseh Sherman and Braxton Bragg, swung into action. For a few precious moments they held up the Mexican advance.

General Taylor, coming on to the field, saw what they were doing. Yanking off his old straw hat which he (the most un military of heroes) wore, he swung it over his head.

"Give 'em h—l, Captain Bragg!" he shouted.

A few hours later Santa Anna's hosts were in retreat. Soon the United States was ringing with the praises of Gen. Zachary Taylor, "The Hero of Buena Vista." The next year the Whigs selected him as their candidate for President. They needed a good slogan for the campaign and his remark to Captain Bragg provided it.

"Elegance" of language was considered very important in that squeamish era. True, Taylor was known as "Old Rough and Ready" to his soldiers, but the Whigs were a bit dubious about the use of "h—l" in their slogan. So the partisan newspapers edited his remark on that historic occasion. They substituted "A little more grape" for that questionable word, meaning that Captain Bragg should blast the Mexican enemy with grape-shot. It was a good slogan. It sent Zachary Taylor to the White House.

Place Statue in Ice Jam as Villagers Pray

ALL types of boats, in the way of the St. Lawrence river ice jam, were crushed and rendered useless, as shown here. Father Bourget of the Roman Catholic church at Hogansburg, N. Y., ordered the statue of St. Peter taken out of the church and placed between the ice jam and the Indian village of St. Regis, while the villagers gave prayers of thankfulness that the river was receding. The inset shows a picture of the statue of St. Peter.

PETER DISCOVERS SPOOKY

PETER RABBIT had been startled by a voice as he was passing a certain big apple tree in the Old Orchard. The voice had seemed to come from that big apple tree. Peter stopped short and stared up through the branches of the tree. Look as he would he couldn't see anybody. There wasn't a leaf on that tree and he could see all through it. Peter blinked, felt foolish, very foolish indeed. He knew that had there been anyone sitting on one of those branches he couldn't have helped seeing them.

"Don't look so high, Peter. Don't look so high," said the voice with a chuckle. This time it sounded as if it came right out of the trunk of the tree. Peter stared at the trunk, then suddenly laughed right out. Just a few feet above the ground was a good-sized hole in the tree, and poking his head out of it was a funny little fellow with big eyes and a hooked beak.

"You certainly did fool me that time, Spooky," cried Peter. "I ought to have recognized your voice, but I didn't."

Spooky the Screech Owl, for that is who it was, came out of the hole in the tree, and without a sound from his wings flew over and perched just above Peter's head. He was a little fellow, not more than eight inches high, but there was no mistaking the family to which he belonged. In fact he looked very much like a small copy of Hooty the Great Horned Owl, so much so that Peter felt a little cold shiver run over him, although he had nothing in the world to fear from Spooky. His head seemed to be almost as big around as his body, and he seemed to have no neck at all. He was dressed in bright reddish brown with little streaks and bars of black. Underneath he was whitish with little streaks of black and brown. On each side of his head was a tuft of feathers. They look like ears, and some people think they are ears, which is a mistake. His eyes were round and yellow with a fierce hungry look in them. His bill was small and almost hidden among the feathers of his face, but it was hooked just like the bill of Hooty.

As Spooky settled himself he turned his head till he could look squarely behind him, then brought it back again so quickly that to Peter it looked as if it had gone clear around. You see, Spooky's eyes are fixed in their sockets, and he cannot move them from side to side. He has to turn his whole head in order to see to one side or the other.

"You haven't told me yet why you look so unhappy, Peter," said Spooky.

QUESTION BOX by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I was to a vaudeville show last night. In one of these acts a fellow with a terrible voice sang a song. Although he sang it badly the melody still haunts me. How do you account for that?

Sincerely,
K. OTTICK.

Answer: That is easily explained. The reason the melody haunts you is because the singer was so bad he probably murdered the song.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am a man forty-five years of age. I am single. I do not chew, smoke, drink, swear, dance or gamble. Do you think I will live to be ninety years of age?

Yours truly,
A. MARVEL.

Answer: You probably will. But, if you don't do any of the things you mention, why do you want to live forty-five years longer?

Dear Mr. Wynn: I arrived in a small town, one day last week, and I had a heavy grip. I saw a tramp at the station and thought I would have him carry my bag for me. I asked him if he wanted to make a quarter. He said "no" and walked away from me. How do you account for that?

Yours truly,
SAYLES MAN.

Answer: He probably had a quarter.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I was in New York last week and saw a lot of plays. Why do the managers produce plays which are so "raw"?

Yours truly,
Q. PONN.

Answer: The managers know the newspapers will "roast" them.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I smoke 60 to 70 cigarettes a day and my doctor says this habit will affect my brains. Do you agree with him?

Yours truly,
SIG ARR.

Answer: No! If you had any brains you wouldn't smoke 70 cigarettes a day.

COOKING WITH COCONUT

NOW that the fresh coconuts are in the market it is the time to use some of the good recipes that are being worked out by industrious housewives. To prepare the coconut pierce the eyes with an ice pick and let the milk drain into a cup. Now place the coconut in the oven for a few minutes to become hot, then crack it and the meat will come out nicely without sticking to the shell.

Orange Coconut Creams.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of coconut milk and one-fourth cupful of water. Boil to the soft ball stage, 236 degrees Fahrenheit, stirring only when necessary. Cool and beat like chocolate fudge. Add flavoring, using two teaspoonfuls of orange juice and one-half teaspoonful of grated peel; mix well with two cupfuls of freshly grated coconut. Mold with the hands, taking a tablespoonful at a time. Roll in coconut and set aside to harden. This recipe yields about one and one-half pounds.

Fresh Coconut Candy.

Take one cupful of coconut milk, add three cupfuls of sugar and put on to boil; cook ten minutes after the boiling begins then add all of the grated coconut and cook five minutes longer. Beat until it is cold, pour out into greased baking sheets and cut into squares.

Coconut Cookies.

Take one cupful of fresh coconut, add to two-thirds of a cupful of butter and one and one-third cupfuls of sugar creamed, add two beaten eggs, one-half cupful of chopped raisins and sift together one and one-half cupfuls of flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg and one-half teaspoonful of cloves. Add the dry ingredients alternately with one-fourth cupful of coconut milk.

TRUE GHOST STORIES

By Famous People

Copyright by Public Ledger, Inc. WNU Service.

By CONNIE MACK Baseball Manager.

CONNIE MACK as he sat in his office with its many windows, through which streamed sunshine and light, did not seem to be a figure about which the eerie could hover. Robust for his years, his face ruddy from outdoor life, he seemed rather a tall tower which pointed to things as definite as north, south, east and west. Yet he had a strange tale to relate about a visual prophetic omen.

"In the fourth game of the World series in 1920, the Philadelphia Athletics played the Chicago Cubs on a Saturday at Shibe park in Philadelphia," he began.

"In the last half of the seventh inning the score was 8-0, in favor of our opponents.

"I dreaded not only the impending loss of the game, but also the trip to Chicago, which would have to be made if we lost. The picture of the train already made up flashed across my mind. The train seemed to be coming toward me. The image was vivid and portentous.

"Simultaneously, with the flash of the picture, Simmons came up to bat. The game changed in our favor in the last half of the seventh inning. He hit a home run. Then Foxx batted, and they went right down the line until they came to the pitcher. The pitcher was replaced by a pinch-hitter.

"Then we started at the top of our batting order. When it came to the seventh batter, Jimmy Dykes, the score was a tie. The bases were filled. Jimmy made a two-base hit, driving in two runs, leaving two men on bases.

"Boley, the eighth batter, struck out for the second out. Then came the pinch-hitter, and he also struck out, making the third out. The score was 10-8 in our favor. We had won the game.

"In the fifth game excitement was widespread. President Hoover was there. In the first half of the ninth inning the score was 2-0, in favor of our opponents, the Cubs.

"As defeat faced me, the image of the train already made up again flashed through my brain the same as it had the day before. I gave myself time to think. Might the image of that train be an omen and might there follow events similar to yesterday's game? Was there something psychic in that image?

"Strangely, and simultaneously, with that image the game turned in our favor. Bishop lined a hit over third base; Haas hit the second ball pitched for a home run which tied the score.

"After Cochrane went out for the second out, Simmons made a two-base hit. Foxx was walked purposely. Then Miller hit a two-base hit, driving in the winning run, and we had won the ball game, 3-2."

By SOPHIE KERR Authoress.

"THE only time I ever felt anything psychic was at The Hague," stated Sophie Kerr, the authoress. "Most of the time I am very matter-of-fact," she continued.

"One day while I was sight-seeing at The Hague I was guided into several buildings. My guide did not tell me where I was going or where I was until I had looked about me, and until I had been moved by the atmosphere of the different buildings.

"When I entered one building I exclaimed, 'I don't like this place. I have the sense of unspoken horrors being committed in this place.'

"There was nothing in the room to tell me where I was, but if ever I could feel the unspoken story of past events I felt it then. I was oppressed by a sense of unknown horrors. I felt the agony of horror upon horror. Radio-like waves with messages must have come to me.

"For, after a few minutes, the guide said, in a dull unemotional monotone. 'This is the Museum of Torture at The Hague. This is the empty room where condemned prisoners spent their last hour before their death. In the other parts of the building you will find a collection of all the instruments used to torture prisoners in former times.'

Phenomenon on Lakes

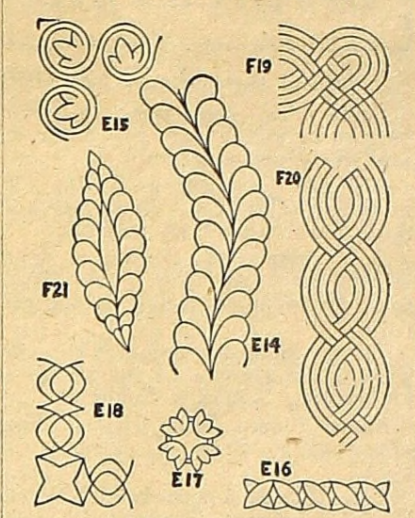

A peculiar phenomenon which occurs on the lakes of Switzerland is the seiche, a rise and fall in the mean level of the water caused by changes in the atmospheric pressure, writes F. M. Hartley, Jr., New York City, in Collier's Weekly. On the Lake of Geneva, which is 223 square miles in area, the level frequently rises on one side and falls on the other from one to six feet, and the resulting fluctuations cause the whole lake to swing from shore to shore for a period of from 35 to 72 minutes.

The Dachshund Pup

In choosing a Dachshund pup one well known authority states that the prospective purchaser should insist that the animal possesses a long, level head, rather low set ears, long body with well-arched loins, deep chest, big bone and short legs, the natural crook in which must show no signs of "knuckling over" forward since that spells unsoundness.

A Good Rule

In Shanghai

Bargain Day at a Shanghai Shop.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

EVERY day, all day, and far into the night, famous Nanking road, which leads westward from Shanghai's Bund, later to become Bubbling Well road, is packed to overflowing with traffic. Especially is this so in the afternoon when offices are closed and workers are homeward bound.

Only a score or so years ago Bubbling Well road was a favorite place for leisurely driving in the cool of the late afternoon. The wealthy then rode in handsome carriages behind trotting horses in charge of finely appareled coachmen and grooms.

But the city, too, has grown up along this street that was once largely residential and a country drive. Large department stores, clubs, recreation halls, towering apartment houses, churches, a Y. M. C. A., and commercial houses of all sorts have risen on every side. At night the road looks like a well-lighted Broadway, with its profusion of neon lamps and moving electric signs.

In this westward movement and growth, business and religious structures have halted their march only to preserve space for the race course and public recreation grounds, and have left this small green island of sport and relaxation in their midst. At the time the club was established it marked the outward fringe of the city.

Wherever the Englishman has come to the East, he has brought his sport with him, and he could hardly suffer to see the race course and the other places of recreation disturbed by business.

The Shanghai races claim a great deal of attention. About the Far Eastern coasts the Shanghai sweepstakes have always been an important topic of conversation in the spring and autumn, especially among British ship officers. Each is always sure that his ten-dollar ticket is the one that is going to win the grand sweep of more than $200,000 Mex. Even the banks and offices declare half holidays when the semi-annual race meets are being held.

Shanghai has also provided parks and gardens where people may loiter and parents may take their youngsters for a happy outing and toy-boat sailing. Motorists may enjoy a spin over an excellent short circuit of fine road into the countryside known as the Rubicon road.

Sharp Contrasts in Streets.
To the new visitor to Shanghai the street contrasts are vivid. On the wide streets are window displays worthy of any Fifth avenue store; on cross-streets shops are hung with brightly-colored flags, covered with Chinese ideographs, telling of bargains, sales, and the nature of the goods supplied. Nearby a street vendor shovels the wares contained in the packs or portable kitchens that swing from the ends of his shoulder pole.

Modern talking cinemas, presenting the latest films, and some high-class Chinese theaters debouch their gay throngs; tenements close their board fronts, darken, and are still, except for a few who try to snatch a little longer working time away from the night.

Bright limousines unload a group of people at some large hotel along the Bund to attend a formal dinner; other people are frequenting wealthy Chinese restaurants. A mission is giving soup and religious teaching to a queue of hungry souls.

Chromatic signboards proclaim the world's most advertised articles of trade. What matters it if two Chinese women are bawling loudly beneath a radio sign, or that outdoor Chinese barbers are scraping their patient victims in the shadow of a wall that bears advertisements of the most highly recommended shaving preparations?

Large, efficient schools and colleges rise in stately edifices; in a single room of an alley youngsters are shouting over and over, at the tops of their voices, the lists of characters they are learning.

flageolet and hopes for one more customer for his pickled fruits before he goes wearily to bed.

A woman beggar, carrying a poorly dressed babe, holds her hand out toward an ermine-wrapped lady who is carrying a Pekingese dog.

Day or night, summer or winter, life glimpses on the street are as diverse and fragmentary as these words I use in trying to suggest them. But all summarize Shanghai.

Activity on Waterways.

Turning from streets to waterways, one can also observe ceaseless activity on the Soochow, Siccawei, and other creeks, as well as on the Whangpoo river.

At one time Soochow creek was a stream of much greater size than it is now, but through the years it has become silted and much canalized. Thousands of Chinese craft and houseboats animate this creek, which cuts a sinuous path down through the city and joins the Whangpoo at the northern end of the Bund.

Vegetables, rice, and other products that supply Shanghai's heavy demand for food supplies and goods for transshipment are brought in from the country districts and from Soochow way, where the creek connects with China's historic Grand canal. Some of the goods that are discharged from steamers at Woosung are also brought down to Soochow creek on smaller boats and unloaded into warehouses along the waterway. Thus a constant stream of traffic flows under several bridges that span the creek and its banks always present a busy appearance.

And the Whangpoo! More than thirty-five million tons of foreign shipping cut muddy furrows up the Whangpoo in a year, according to Shanghai's clearance papers. Hundreds of junks move up and down the river with the tides and winds. Some of them are heavy Ningpo junks, high sterns colorfully painted with the Phoenix and other symbols, transporting poles and timber from Foochow. Other junks are engaged in coastal trading, but many of them form the large fishing fleet, or do lighterage work between Shanghai and the mouth of the river at Woosung.

Large ocean liners and freighters lie at dock along the water front. The Japanese shipping companies have considerable berthing capacity along the Hongkong settlement front, and American and other shipping concerns have established wharves and godowns farther up the river, on the Pootung side, across the Whangpoo, above the city. Lumber ships, tankers, tramp steamers, and warships lie in midstream. Ships of many flags look to Shanghai's trade.

Launches, lighters, and sampans maneuver about, along with ferries and large flat-bottom river boats that transport numbers of Chinese up the Yangtze. Even women beggars comb the waters and hover around ships to salvage in nets food scraps or anything else of use thrown overboard. There could hardly be a more diversified grouping of ships in any waters.

Statistics show that the harbor has accommodated as many as 156 merchant vessels and 22 warships at the same time, besides, of course, large numbers of miscellaneous smaller craft.

Projects to Improve the Harbor.
Despite the figures on ship movement, there is much to be desired of the Whangpoo harbor, as Shanghai looks toward her future.

The mouth of the river has a tendency to silt up and also to form shallows along the channel, and thus to make it difficult for ships of deep draft to pass even at high tide. Extensive labor on the part of the Whangpoo conservancy board has made improvements in the harbor, so that pace has been kept with the growing need.

It is not the Whangpoo, however, which causes the greatest concern in planning for the deeper-draft vessels of the future, but rather the sand bars in the Yangtze mouth. The fact that five billion cubic feet of sediment debouch into the sea each year to pile up in the river mouth presents no small problem.

GIANT SERPENTS

The Smithsonian Institution in Washington is in possession of evidence that sea serpents as large as the biggest of living land snakes once swam in the offshore waters near the present site of the National Capital. This is in the form of a single fossil vertebra of backbone joint, picked up on Belvidere beach, Va. By comparing this one bone with those of living serpents, the United States National museum has estimated that the Virginia sea serpent must have been about 25 feet long and thick in proportion, which would be a very good size even for a python today. Remnants of contemporary sea dwelling serpents almost as large as the Virginia specimen have been unearthed in New Jersey and Alabama.

The "liquid test"

...it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

SYNOPSIS

Ben Elliott—from "Yonder"—arrives at the little lumbering town of Tincup accompanied by Don Stuart, old, very sick man, whom he has befriended. He signals his coming by defeating Bull Duval, "King of the river," and town bully, in a log-birling contest. Nicholas Brandon the town's leading citizen, resents Stuart's presence. He tries to force him to leave town and Elliott, resenting the act, knocks him down. Elliott is arrested. He finds a friend in Judge Able Armitage. The judge hires him to run the one lumber camp, the Hoot Owl, that Brandon has not been able to grab. This belongs to Dawn McManus, daughter of Brandon's old partner, who has disappeared with a murder charge hanging over his head.

CHAPTER III—Continued

Without stopping even for his cap Ben stepped out and crossed to the men's camp. He did not burst into the place, but opened the door casually and slipped inside.

In the center of the room, close by the heating stove above which socks hung from drying racks, stood Bull Duval. His cap was tilted on his head, he leaned backward from his hips, in his uplifted right hand was a quart whisky bottle nearly full and his voice belted the words of a woods classic.

In the far end of the room a half dozen men were huddled. From several upper bunks concerned faces watched the Bull. The men were clearly afraid, certain that this hilarity was only a prelude to a melee in which heads would be broken and bodies bruised.

The swaying of Duval's body, as he moved to the measure of the ballad, brought him facing the doorway.

Ben Elliott stepped forward two or three paces and stood watching him. His gaze was steady, and in his eyes danced a warning flame. The Bull broke short his song.

"Good day, Mister Elliott!" he said heavily, in mock respect. "I heard you was th' new boss at Hoot Owl and likely you're lookin' fer good men. Here's one, Elliott. Here's th' best man you'll get a chance to hire until th' next blue snow!"

Ben, heedless of the increased tension which showed on the faces of the onlookers, crossed the floor slowly.

"You want to work for me, Duval?" he asked.

"Think I come over to spark you?" the other countered insolently. "Have a drink!"

He extended the bottle, holding it in his great hand, grinning at Ben.

"In the first place, I don't want to hire you," Elliott said. "In the second, there's no hooch allowed in this camp."

He snatched the bottle, swung and sent it crashing against the stove. For a brief moment the hiss of its contents against scorching metal had the place while the Bull's head thrust slowly forward and his small eyes grew red with rage. His lip drew back, exposing yellow teeth.

"Will you walk out, Duval?" Ben asked. "Or do you want me to throw you through the door?"

"Throw me out?" Duval cried thickly. "Throw me out? Why, kid, th' best day you ever seen you couldn't—"

He got just that far in his boast. His hands had knotted into great fists, his body swayed, but before he could strike that first blow or fall into that initial clinch or carry out whatever plan of attack had formed in his truculent mind, knuckles bashed into his lips, driving the words back into his teeth.

It was a hard blow, with everything Ben Elliott had from knuckles to ankle put behind its drive. The savagery with which he struck threw Ben off his own balance, but hard as he had hit, quick as he had been, the blow was not enough to put Duval down.

He closed with a roar, one great arm clamped about Elliott's waist, the other hand smearing across Elliott's face, shoving Ben's head backward as the fingers sought the eyes. Ben twisted away from that menace of gouging, strained against that crushing embrace and struck hastily with both hands. But the Bull's chin was safe against his own shoulder, his forehead burrowing into Elliott's chest for protection and not until Ben lifted his knee with a drive like that of a piston did Duval let go.

He reeled backward then, cursing inarticulately, panting and heaving forward again from his spiked stance on the rough floor as he struck with all his might. His blow went home, a stinging, crushing impact on Ben's cheek bone and Duval's great weight followed, bearing the other to the floor, flat on his back. The Bull spread arms and legs in a smothering sprawl as he went down but before he could pin Ben close and helpless he was wriggling, threshing over, eluding a hand which clawed for his throat, grasping Duval's leg, lifting, straining, finally throwing him off, lurching to his knees and then got to his feet, pitching forward off balance as he ran, and coming to a halt against the bunks.

He faced about sharply to see Duval standing, blood on his mouth, bent forward, arms hooked and extended, like some great jungle creature stirred to killing fury.

Elliott did not try to elude him.

With a grunt he charged, head down, one arm before his face, the other drawn back, and when he struck the sound was like that of a club on a quarter of beef. The blow spun Duval half about and the next rocked him. He grappled for Ben, but Ben was gone. He rushed for Ben but Ben sidestepped and struck Duval as he lurched past.

The Bull gave up trying to close. He struck out, now, with renewed savagery as they stood toe-to-toe for a moment. He dodged a brace of drives which, it seemed, would have felled a horse, so great was the effort behind them, and then, fainting, sent in a slashing uppercut.

The great fist landed squarely on the point of Ben's jaw, lifted him from his feet and sent him reeling, clawing the air, over on his back again.

Elliott was dazed by that blow. Bells clanged thunderously in his ears and lights flashed and flickered before his eyes but as he crashed down to the floor Bird-Eye's voice, shrill and frantic, cut through the fog that had folded over him:

"Th' boots! . . . Th' boots!"

Boots, yes. Bull Duval did not fling himself on his prostrate adversary, this time. Erect, he strode forward two measured paces . . . three, and on the fourth he bent backward from the hips, lifted his right foot and raked it out before him; raked those many spikes in the sole straight at the face of his fallen adversary.

But his river boot only swung across the place where a face had been. One lone spike ripped the skin over the cheek bone; a companion left a bright red trace. Ben had jerked his head sideways, moved it that quarter inch which left his face still a face and not a mass of raw flesh ribbons.

Duval teetered on his left foot, hopping for balance and cursing because he had missed, as Ben, reeling to his feet, shouted:

"Keep out! My fight!" He had seen, as he came erect, Bird-Eye Blaine leap for the wood box and grasp the heavy iron poker. "My fight!" he repeated and his hoarse voice was commanding.

Bird-Eye fell back, clinging to the poker, lips moving. It was Elliott's fight, indeed. He had seen many men fight before, had Bird-Eye Blaine; born to a rough life, he had lived it fully. He had seen countless battles but never had he witnessed such a fury as Ben Elliott loosed then.

He drove out with both fists, heedless of defense, blind to Duval's counter offensive. He shouted as he struck. He used a knee to break another hold, he bit when Duval tried to throttle him with the grip of both hands. He danced as the Bull sought to trample his feet with his river calks, and all the time he was striking. Again and again his hard knuckles found their mark.

A bench went over as they waltzed into it. Their combined weight, crashing against the bunks as Duval tried desperately to clinch again, smashed an upright and sent men in the upper deck scurrying. Dust rose thickly. The sink was ripped from its place as Ben drove the Bull into it with a body blow, and a chair was wrecked as Duval caught by another punch, went over it backward with a crash.

Ben stood still, spread legged, breathing hard, hands swinging in a swift rhythm of rage.

"Get up!" he panted. "Get up! I've only started!"

Duval rolled over, his back to Elliott, and shoved himself to his feet. Not until he had risen and faced about did he see Elliott. Then he closed with the other move. Then he closed with another of those flying rushes, with one drive pinned Duval against the wall, with another sent his head crashing against the window frame.

The Bull gave a bubbling roar and tried to grapple. His hands were struck down. He swung mightily, slowly, and missed, and as he went by, off balance, a chopping stroke on the back of the head felled him.

Again Elliott waited.

"Get up!" he cried thickly. "Get up, Duval, and take the rest!"

The other started to move, looking over his shoulder with one eye that remained open. He saw a tall, supple young man, hair awry, shirt ripped open from neck to belt, cheek bleeding. His jaws set, stand there swinging one fist as though the knuckles were wild to strike again. He sank back to the floor, shuddering.

On that Elliott relaxed and moved close.

"Enough?" he asked, sharply, prodding the Bull with a toe of his pac.

Duval moaned and shook his head. He made as if to rise again and Ben stepped back, giving him every chance. A mutter arose behind him.

"Finish—th'—!" a man cried.

But the boss at Hoot Owl would not do that. He asked no odds.

The Bull did not get to his feet. He started to, drew one knee beneath him, heaved and then sank back to a hip. He swore heavily and hung his head, propping his torso by both great hands spread wide on the floor.

"Through, Duval?" Ben asked and it seemed as though his bruised and battered face tried to twist in a grin. The other gave no intimation of having heard. "There's more on tap. Or have you got enough?"

And then, when no reply came Elliott stooped, grasped the Bull's shirt in his hands and half lifted him.

"Let go!" the man blurted. "Let go or I'll—"

He tried to twist away, tried to strike Ben's legs, but his strength was gone, beaten from his great body. He was dragged across the floor, river boots trailing over the boards, straight to the doorway. With one foot Elliott kicked open the portal and with a heave flung Duval, the Tincup terror, into the trampled snow outside.

A half hour later Bull Duval, who had washed his bleeding head and face in the horse trough against the shout of protests of Bird-Eye Blaine that it would be unfit thereafter for his teams to drink from, shoved himself erect and wiped trembling hands on his mackinaw.

The door of the van opened and Elliott emerged. He walked straight to the bully and examined his visible injuries critically.

"Fair job," he said, as though to himself, and grinned. "A fair job, Duval. But remember this: if you ever set one of your feet in this camp again, or on any operation where I'm in charge, I'll give you a licking you'll remember!"

The Bull whimpered.

"I know when I got enough," he said and his one serviceable yer blood-shot eye searched Elliott's countenance. "I . . . I didn't mean no harm," he whined. "I was drunk."

"No, you weren't drunk. If you'd been drunk I wouldn't have hit you. You knew what you were doing. Now, Duval, why'd you come out here this morning? Who sent you?"

Duval looked away.

"Nobody," he said weakly. "I got drunk. But . . . but if you're needin' a man, I can work for a better man than I am."

Ben shook his head.

"No use, chum. You're going to tell me why you came and who sent you. Was it Brandon?"

"No"—evasively.

"Sure? How much did he give you to come here? Or are you on the payroll to do such chores?"

"H—I, he didn't—"

"You're a worse liar than you are a fighter by a mile or two, Duval. Mine was a good guess, wasn't it? What were his orders?"

"Well, he said if I didn't that he'd—"

"Good! That's all I want to know. There's the road. And you can take this little message with you to Brandon: Tell him that he needs to send more and better men here the next time. And as for you: I hire no men who can be hired to fight another man's battles. Make tracks, Duval!"

It was a week later.

Old Don Stuart, propped on pillows in the narrow, cell-like room of Joe Piette's hotel, listened to the colorful account that Bird-Eye Blaine, with many gestures and considerable profanity, rendered for him of what had transpired at Hoot Owl since Ben Elliott had taken charge of the operation.

" . . . 'nd so he's got th' mill crew a-wurkin' their blessid heads off for him 'nd 's got that ragged-pants gang av beet-weeders 'nd hay pitchers that passes fer a loggin' crew doin' more'n they've evir done in their lazy loaves before!"

"Good," gasped Stuart feebly and tried to smile. "Good boy. But . . . he's young and . . . alone against Brandon. It'll be . . . that hard nut he . . . was lookin' for."

"Harrrd?" Bird-Eye glared at him. "Harrrd! Th' harrrer they come th' better pleased he is! Sure 'nd he's a glutton fer work, Donny! 'Nd th' saints, they have a finger into it, too, him a-comin' just whin they'd got pore owd Able licked. It'll be a tough fight or I'm a bad guesser, but d—n me eyes, what a fighter th' lad is!"

A restless light appeared in Don's eyes and his thin old hands fidgeted nervously with the blankets.

"A tough fight. . . . Oh, he don't know . . . Bird-Eye, what he's up against." He struggled to sit erect and his eyes shone brightly with an odd sort of desperation. "If Brandon can't . . . drive him out . . . one way or another . . . he'll kill him." He gasped and swallowed, evidently making a great effort to talk rapidly. "I'm a coward, Bird-Eye. . . . Been a d—n coward . . . for years. I've been . . . afraid to tell . . . while I lived. Now . . . I'm afraid to die with it . . . on my soul!"

He panted and Blaine looked in alarm at his friend as these last words took on significance for him.

"Lay back, Donny. Dawn't git yourself excited, by . . . Coward? Naw, ye're no coward!"

He grasped the sick man by the shoulders and tried gently to force him back on the pillows but the old fellow resisted.

"Can't die. . . . Can't . . . with it on . . . my soul!" he gasped and lifted a face stamped with strange appeal to the little man.

"Get . . . Paper."

Bird-Eye stood back, solemn and worried, scratching his head.

"Somethin' troublin' ye, Donny?" he asked soothingly.

The other made a feeble gesture with one hand.

"A man's got . . . to fight fire with . . . fire. Brandon'll get him . . . unless he . . . unless . . ." He put a hand to his throat and moved his uplifted chin from side to side as though strangling. "Want to write . . . a letter, Bird-Eye. Get . . . paper. Fight . . . fire with fire!"

This was obviously no whim of a sick man. His necessity was not clear to Blaine but the other knew old Don was gripped by a burnin', conviction and hastened to ease his mind.

"Lay back, Donny. Be still, now! I'll get ye things, but kape quiet, mon, kape quiet!—Saints, but 'e upset a mon carryin' on so, ye do!"

He hurried down the stairs, secured writing materials and, from the table in the little office picked up a mail-order-house catalogue. With these he ascended to the sick room again, taking the steps two at a time.

"Here ye are! Book to write on, paper, envelope, pencil. . . . I'll sit by ye, Donny."

Stuart did not start to write at once. He sat staring straight before him in quandary, and then lifted his gaze to the little man who stood at his bedside.

"I'd like to be . . . alone, Bird-Eye," he said in a faint whisper. "I've been alone . . . with it so long . . . I think better alone."

The other shrugged.

Keeshonden Thought Great

Granddaddy of All Poms

Except for his silver-gray coat of black-tipped hair and his greater size, the Keeshonden too closely resembles the more popular Pomeranian to question their relationship. It is not at all unlikely that he is the great granddaddy of all Poms, which the Germans prefer to call "toy spitz." Previous to their reduction to present-day diminutive proportions, the Pom appeared in size more nearly approaching the 18-inch shoulder height of the Keeshonden, writes an authority in the Los Angeles Times.

Both descended from the Siberian strains of northern dogs . . . prick-eared and carrying bushy tails over the back . . . originated in Germany. The Keeshonden is established as one of that country's oldest breeds, dating back to the year 1552.

Identical are the characteristics of faithfulness, intelligence, watchfulness . . . their wariness of strangers and friendliness to those they love. Their wedge-shaped fox-like head is framed in a lion-like bushy mane. The nose of the Keeshonden is black, shining from a dark-masked (but not black) muzzle, and the dark eyes, rimmed with light-colored hair. The tail, carried in a curl to right or left over the back, is white tipped. In profile he is a square dog.

Hardy and able to withstand all kinds of weather, he readily adapts himself to any environment.

For Baked Apples in Sirup

Dainty That Never Seems to Lose Popularity Will Be Found to Be Vastly Improved by the Addition of the Flavor of Maple.

Maple sirup and maple sugar have always been favorite edibles and ingredients of cooking. With cool days our appetites demand richer foods. The most popular use of maple sirup, of course, is with hot griddle cakes for breakfast. Maple sugar is used in many home-made candy recipes. But there are many other interesting dishes which include maple flavoring.

A delicious variation from the usual style of baked apples is to use maple sirup instead of white sugar for the sweetening. Try this and see if it isn't delicious:

Pare and core as many apples as will stand in an ordinary baking dish.

- 1 cup maple sugar
- ½ cup cold water
- 1 thin slice of butter for each apple

Mix the water with the maple sirup, and pour over the apples. Place one of the bits of butter over the top hole of each apple. While the slice is thin, the surface should be large enough to cover the opening. Then as the butter melts under the oven heat the rich liquid will drip down over the outside and the inside of the apple. Baste the apples frequently with the sirup and water and bake until the apples are soft when pierced with a fork, but not so tender that they become shapeless. Serve hot or cold in the same dish. Or if preferred transfer the apples to individual glass sauce dishes and pour over each apple some of the amber liquid.

Apples baked in maple sirup have a peculiarly delicate quality. There is no decided taste of the maple sirup, but the blending of the apple juice and sweet sap supplies an unusually delicious and different flavor. The buttery surface of the apples will make them have a suggestion of brownness if the oven is hot after the apples are left uncovered in the oven.

Tub and Telephone.

If you have just started washing your clothes when the telephone rings, you may be tempted to leave the machine running while you answer the call. It is wise to stop the machine before you leave it, however, as sometimes you chat fifteen minutes! Five to seven minutes is long enough to wash most garments. Fifteen minutes is needed only for very soiled pieces. Washing clothes too long may tend to tangle and even wear them unduly.—Good House-keeping Institute.

EVEN GOOD FRIENDS "HAVE WORDS"

IT'S TRUE! I'LL PROVE IT!

Controversy always follows the introduction of any new scientific discovery. But no discovery in years, probably, has caused so much heated discussion as this one. See what happened to these two Nebraska housewives.

OH EDITH, I SIMPLY CAN'T GO IN TOWN WITH YOU. I'VE AT LEAST 2 HOURS WASHING YET

STELLA, IT'S SIMPLY RIDICULOUS TO TAKE SO LONG FOR SUCH A LITTLE DAB OF CLOTHES. HERE, LET'S USE THIS SPECIAL SOAP OF MINE— OXYDOL— AND WE'LL FINISH UP IN A JIFFY.

OH, THAT'S JUST ANOTHER GRANULATED SOAP, ISN'T IT? I'M USING ONE OF THOSE ALREADY.

THAT'S WHERE YOU'RE WRONG. OXYDOL'S AN ENTIRELY NEW KIND OF GRANULATED SOAP FOR OUR HARD WATER. JUST 15 MINUTES' SOAKING DOES THE WORK, NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING— AND IT GETS CLOTHES SHADES WHITER, TOO.

15 MINUTES' SOAKING? EDITH, YOU'LL RUIN MY CLOTHES! THAT SOAP MUST BE TWICE AS STRONG AS THE ONE I'M USING. AND I SUSPECT IT'S FADING MY COLORS!

THAT'S THE GREAT THING ABOUT OXYDOL, STELLA. IT POSITIVELY WON'T FADE ANYTHING. EVEN THE SHERREST COTTON PRINTS. YET IT WORKS TWICE AS FAST AS OTHER SOAPS.

THAT'S SILLY! I DON'T BELIEVE IT!

IT'S NOT SILLY— IT'S TRUE! AND I'LL PROVE IT. JUST WAIT 15 MINUTES AND SEE. NOW LOOK! HOW'S THAT FOR SUDS IN HARD WATER?

15 MINUTES LATER

NOTHING BUT OXYDOL FOR ME AFTER THIS, EDITH. THERE'S NO NEED TO SCRUB THESE CLOTHES— BUT ARE YOU POSITIVE IT WON'T FADE COLORS?

YOU KNOW THAT PRINT DRESS OF MINE YOU THOUGHT WAS NEW? I'VE WASHED IT 14 TIMES IN OXYDOL SO FAR. NO SCRUBBING MEANS THE GOODS STAND UP LONGER, TOO!

YOU'LL BE ASTONISHED, LIKE I WAS WHEN YOU TRY THIS NEW WAY TO WASH. READ THESE FACTS.

MADE BY a patented process, New and Improved Oxydol dissolves instantly and completely in hard or soft water, and does these things:

- Gives thick, 3-inch suds, rich as whipped dairy cream.
- Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains—in any water—2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.
- Sets up a unique "soak and flush" washing action. 15 minutes' soaking loosens dirt out so it flushes away—without scrubbing or boiling.
- You save long hours of washboard drudgery. You get clothes 4 to 5 shades whiter without washboard wear and tear. And yet, due to its special formula—OXYDOL is safe. Absolutely safe to hands, colors, fabrics!
- Get new, improved OXYDOL from your grocer today. Money back if you don't have the whitest, sweetest wash ever. The Procter & Gamble Company.

WE'RE SAVING SOAP MONEY, TOO—THERE'S MORE SOAP IN OXYDOL PACKAGES!

GUESS WHAT! THE REGULAR PRICE OF CALUMET BAKING POWDER IS NOW ONLY 25¢ A POUND!

YES, AND THE NEW CAN IS SO EASY TO OPEN!

picked ourselves up from different points within the car and climbed out to see what damage was done, and found nothing wrong except a few bumped shoulders and heads and the discovery of a woman's stocking in our car. We drove through a lane and onto the pavement and proceeded once more toward our goal. It was just "sun-up" when we arrived in the capitol. We drove around the capitol grounds and over to see the ruins of the Hotel Kerns. We went to Hotel Downey and washed up so as to present a not too "hay-seedy" appearance. We then visited the capitol building, from the basement to the top of the dome. Some of the fellows wanted to get acquainted with the place before coming down to help make laws. We next visited the state office building, which included the museum. Dinner time, and we enjoyed it a great deal after all the strenuous exercise of the forenoon.

We then drove to the college and registered. We visited the campus and returned to the capitol to watch the legislature convene at 2 o'clock. As we entered the capitol building we were met with the tragic scene of the death of Emery Root, manager of the Adrian branch office of the secretary of state. He was stricken in the elevator and died in the corridor. We then attended the session of the senate and had a fine visit with Senator Carpenter. After the senate adjourned we attended the house of representatives where we heard a debate on the Minimum Wage Bill for Women and Children. From there we returned to the college where we watched the rifle shooting contest being held. At five o'clock we left for home by way of Owosso, Saginaw and Bay City. We surely enjoyed our adventures on this trip. We found that here in Taft there is plenty of snow compared with the other portions of the state.

While at the college we saw the potatoes of the McLaughart boys of Sterling on exhibit, also the pen of lambs of the Wright brothers of Standish and of Fred Letter of Reno. While wandering about the exhibit hall we came across Milton Bergeron of Sterling, who was spending the week at East Lansing.

Alabaster Wine One and Loses One
The Alabaster girls' team won a hard fought contest from the fast-moving Prescott team Tuesday, February 12. Helen Furst and Dorothy Martin "clicked" well in the forward positions, and our guards, Rhea Oates, Helen Roiter and Mildred Wickert had evidently never heard the word "stationary." The center division was capably taken care of by Bereneice Baker, jump center, and Martha Bowen and Dorothy Benson as running centers. The Hoover sisters, Katherine and Bernice, and Lois Summerville were the Prescott stars. The final score was 13 to 12 in favor of Alabaster.

The Alabaster boys' team displayed some clever basketball and kept the Prescott boys on the jump every second. Joe Martin, Jim Oates, and Wayne Wickert showed the fans they knew what it was all about, while Jim Brown and Otto Nicander looped in some long shots to hold the rangy Prescott players to a 17 to 16 score in Prescott's favor. The score was tied when the final whistle blew, but the winning point came by way of the free route.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hardy and daughter, Audrey, of Bay City spent the week end at the home of Mrs. Flossie Benson.

Mary Benson of Detroit spent the week end at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Michalski, daughter, Phyllis, and son, Clarence, were in town Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Martindale and family, Mr. and Mrs. D. MacDougal, Mrs. G. Martin and daughter, and Vernon MacDougal spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Benson.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wettergren of Detroit spent Sunday afternoon at the Benson home.

The dance and card party given by the Seniors at the Alabaster school Saturday, February 9, was a great success. Progressive pedro was played. Ladies first prize was won by Helen Roiter and low prize by Mrs. E. Gentry. Men's first prize was won by Charles MacCormick and low was won by Walter Furst.

Chancery Notice

State of Michigan, the Circuit Court for the County of Iosco, In Chancery. Hazel Groth, Plaintiff, vs. Martin Groth, Defendant.

Present: Nicholas C. Hartingh, Circuit Court Commissioner.

Dated January 15, 1935.

Nicholas C. Hartingh, Circuit Court Commissioner for Iosco County, Michigan.

John A. Stewart Attorney for Plaintiff Business Address: Tawas City, Michigan 7-3

The turning of the century brought truly, The glad fulfillment of their happy dream. We see them as they strive to give to many The noblest thoughts of many a noble heart. We see them as they study well, and ponder, How best these thoughts of wisdom to impart.

They worked and strove through days when much discouraged, Yet never lost the sight of that fair gleam, That led them on and on, through brave endeavor, Nearer and nearer to a goal supreme. With loyal thoughts, and kindly, for companions, They took their way, though foot-steps grew more slow, Till, when their first great lesson gladly mastered, Their trail was blended with the sunset glow.

We look to them tonight for inspiration, For faith and hope and strength to keep on high The shining banner that their thoughts have woven, And on their valiant courage to rely.

To you whose vision banded minds To share your best with neighbor and with friend, We pray your spirits may go marching with us, Till we, like you, shall find the rainbow's end.

Mrs. R. G. Schreck read messages from Mrs. Eugene Hanson, Mrs. Georgia Hanson, Miss Amanda Hamilton, Mrs. H. R. Hadcock, Mrs. Margaret Temple Smith, and Mrs. W. H. Price.

Miss Grace Richards rendered three piano selections which were very much enjoyed by the audience.

Mrs. Sears R. McLean, guest speaker, president of the Michigan State Federation of Women's Clubs, was then introduced and she, after paying tribute to the club founders and wishing for the club a continued success in their activities, told of her recent trip to Washington, D. C., to attend the General Federation meeting. She gave a fairly detailed account of the various meetings and talks which were arranged there, giving the club women an excellent idea of the work the General Federation is doing. Mrs. McLean told of the Cause and Cure of War Conference from its beginning in 1925. At the conference eleven women's organizations represent more than half of the women of the United States.

Mrs. Pennycaker of Texas, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt were named and described as being three of the most representative and outstanding women of today. The World Court was a subject of very vital interest to the General Federation meeting. The International Federation of Labor was shown to be to labor what the League of Nations is to politics.

Following Mrs. McLean's talk the Club Collect was read in unison and the meeting concluded by all joining hands and singing Auld Lang Syne.

The regular meeting of the club will be held next Wednesday afternoon, at which time the East Tawas high school debating team will debate on the topic "Federal Aid For Schools."

The keynote address of the Democratic party state convention, held in Detroit January 31, was delivered by John Dolfin, Jr., of Muskegon. He said in part: "We have heard the critics of the public schools, including the governor of the state, center condemnation upon the so-called extravagance of the schools. These critics ignore the fact that schools have already economized over a period of years, operating with a 45% decrease in the income of former school revenues; they ignore the fact that school costs have been lowered more greatly than those of any other branch of government; they ignore the fact that the educational program of the state has been cut to a point where standards are being dangerously lowered."

Mr. Moyer, a representative of the Camp Publishing company of Ypsilanti, took the individual and class pictures of the Seniors Tuesday. The above company has done this work for the Senior classes of the school for several years.

"Famous Remarks" Mrs. Forsten: "Goodness, John! Where did you get that lighted red lantern?" Mr. Forsten: "I picked it up. Some careless person left it near a hole in the road."

Flower Seller: "Cent apiece, Mister, ten for a dime." Mr. Giddings: "Correct, you may sit down."

Miss Crosby: "Arnold, what is a synonym?" Arnold: "A synonym is a word you use when you can't spell another."

"How busy is the little fly Who doth improve each minute. He sits upon the student's head, And wonders what is in it."

I gazed into his dark and glowing eyes. His lips were saying those three wonderful words I had waited for so long. I could not believe it, and yet it was true. Again he said, fulfilling the dream of my life, "No geometry assignment."
