In "Grand Old Girl' Those who revere the memory of some school teacher who has helped them on the way to success, will be particularly interested in the new May Robson starring feature, "Grand Old Girl," which plays at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, this Saturday, Sunday and Monday, February 23, 24 and 25. The picture is said to pay a striking tribute to the teaching profession. With Miss Robson in the role of an elderly high school principal, the story centers about a theme of un-selfish devotion to duty and gallant courage. Knowing that to do so may ment pension, the aged principal conducts a spirited one-woman cam-naign, to rid the town of a secret rinking and gambling place which threatens the moral welfare of her

Il Duce's demands for indemnities for Italian colonials killed on the borders of Italian Somaliland were politely, but firmly, refused. The Ethiopians, undismayed by the vast preparations Italy has been making, declared they would fight to their last drop of blood to preserve their independence, that they would not apologize or make reparations for what they maintain is merely defense of their own country. This puts Mussolini in an embarrassing position. He must either send an expeditionary force against the Ethiopians, or back down after mobilizing troops, and that would be a bitter pill reich. Hitler will also follow Poland's stand, and will have nothing to do with the French-sponsored eastern securities agreement "if it is to be based on mutual assistance," although he is willing to join an air pact provided it allows Germany an air force equal to Soviet Russia's. Hitler seems particularly anxious to avoid any agreement which would bind Germany to Russia and perhaps result in aiding Russia in event of war between that country and Japan.

From the tone of Hitler's demands he evidently did not entirely believe port that one of the 12 helium gas that France and Great Britain were not preparing some trap for him. The Hitler reply demands that Germany must be given absolute equality of armaments before anything else can be discussed, and that Germany will negotiate an air pact if her relations with Soviet Russia are considered, and if England, France, Belgium and Italy agree to consult each other before any action is taken. He also insists that the general question of disarmament is allied with the air pact and must be settled at the same time.

WITH the full approval of the administration, the army and navy are to receive $40,000,000 to carry out a program of national defense which will consist mainly of improved strongholds on the west coast and in the Pacific. The money, which will be shared equally by the two departments, comes from a $300,000,000 public works fund. Some of the navy's part will be spent along the Atlantic, but the greater part will go for shipyards, dry docks and bases on the Pacific coast, at Pearl harbor, Hawaii, and at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, which is a submarine base.

Nearly $11,000,000 of the army's share is to be used in beginning the construction of a great air base in Hawaii. The total cost of this base is estimated at $18,000,000. The decision to use most of the money in the Pacific was said to have been influenced by the fact that the fleet has been concentrated in Pacific waters during much of the past two years. Navy officials stressed before the naval committee, that facilities on the coast are inadequate. Japan is supposed not to be alarmed by this program, congressional leaders having given public and careful assurance that no "offense" is intended and that such propositions as the Hawaii air base would have been put forward even if Japan had not denounced the Washington naval treaty.

At a meeting of the army high command with the military committee of the house these plans for defense were threshed out thoroughly. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, recommended to the committee the purchase of 800 new armored and equipped airplanes at a cost of $90,000,000 to give the army the aerial armada of 2,320 modern aircraft recommended by the Baker aviation committee. These additional aircraft are necessary, Mac-Arthur said in a memorandum, to expand the new general headquarters air force to give it 900 fighting units, for its Pacific, Atlantic and central divisions.

Soon after this meeting the commanders of these three divisions were announced by Brig. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, head of the GHQ air force. Lieut. Col. H. H. Arnold, March field, Calif., was named commander of the first (Pacific) wing with the rank of brigadier general. Lieut. Col. H. C. Pratt, former assistant chief of air corps, was named commander of the second (Atlantic) wing at Langley field, Va., with the rank of brigadier general. Liuet. Col. Gerald C. Brant will command the third (central) wing, Fort Crockett, Texas, with the rank of colonel.

WHETHER he desires it, President Roosevelt will have to face an early test of his strength against that of bonus payment advocates, if present signs are read cor-

A NEED FOR SHOES

T WAS Napoleon who uttered that aphorism about an army "traveling on its stomach." Gen. Robert E. Lee, the great Confederate commander, knew that, too. But, looking at the foot-sore men in gray with whom he was invading Pennsylvania in the summer of 1863, he knew that they needed something else besides food. The footgear of most of them was battered and worn. Many were hobbling along barefoot. They must have shoes!

Lee had selected Cashtown, Pa., as his concentration point. But Gen. Jubal Early, leading a cavalry raid into the Keystone state, sent word back to Maj. Gen. Harry Heth that the little town of Gettysburg abounded with footwear that might be had for the taking. Heth directed Pettigrew, one of his brigadiers, to look into the shoe situation at Gettysburg.

On the morning of June 30 Pettigrew was just about to enter the sleepy little Pennsylvania Dutch town when far to the south he saw a long dark column. Through his glasses he identified it as a large detachment of northern horsemen and, though reluctant to abandon the chance to get the much-needed shoes, he decided to retire.

When Gen. John Buford, commander of a division of Union cavalry, rode into Gettysburg a little later, the citizens told him of the men in gray who had approached the town and then retreated. He knew they would be back, probably in much larger force, but he decided to stand his ground.

They did come back the next morning-this time General Heth's entire division, to get those all-important shoes. So the battle of Gettysburg, the greatest battle ever fought on this continent, began. And the thing which determined that it would be fought near this little Pennsylvania town and make it forever famous was the need of Robert E. Lee's men for shoes.

HEY were getting ready to hold a dance at one of Ben Holladay's stage stations on the Overland trail. It wasn't a very big building so, to make room for the dancers, employees at the station had fitted their cots with hinges, swung them up against the side walls and strapped them there.

One of the stage passengers at the dance was a young New Yorker named George M. Pullman, Chatting with Henry Carlisle, a freighter, he happened to mention what an uncomfortable night he had spent, sitting up in a day-coach on a Lake Shore train from Buffalo to Chicago.

"Why don't the railroads build sleeping cars with beds in 'em?" asked Carlisle. "They've been trying to," answered Pullman. "Some of them have ounks along one side but they're awk ward and inconvenient.' "They ought to see what Ben Holladay's men have done and fix their bunks in the railroad cars like they do it here," Carlisle said, pointing to the cots strapped up against the walls. When Pullman went back east he remembered this conversation. He began experiments on the Chicago and Alton railroad that resulted eventually in perfecting the sleeping cars which now bear his name. Years later, when Carlisle retired from the plains to his home in Missouri, he received a pass which entitled him to enjoy a comfortable night's rest whenever he traveled on any railroad line over which the cars of George M. Pullman operated.

rapidly to 4,600 feet, its nose sticking up at a sharp angle and then slowly sank toward the ocean as the crew made frantic efforts to right the lurching craft.

As it hit the ocean the crew slid down ropes or dived into the heavy swells. Men swam through flame where flares had ignited oil and gasoline, others rescued companions whose lifebelts were lost or broken in long leaps into the sea. The sailors watched the ship crumble under the waves and at last disappear. Only two men were lost. Cruisers rushed to the scene and picked up the survivors.

BRUNO HAUPTMANN will die in the electric chair at Trenton, N. J., during the week of March 18, unless attorneys secure a stay of execution by filing an appeal. The prisoner showed no trace of emotion as the jurors announced their verdict and did not break under the strain until after Justice Trenchard had pronounced sentence, and he was returned to the cell. There, his iron will gave way and he sobbed as he sat on his hard iron cot. The jurors required more than 12 hours to reach their verdict. Two of the women were said to have held out for a recommendation of mercy which would have resulted in a life sentence for the man accused of the murder of the Lindbergh baby, but there was no mention of mercy when the verdict was read.

DRESIDENT ROOSEVELT eked out a close victory in the senate appropriations committee, when the amendment to cut $2,000,000,000 off the administration's $4,880,000,000 work relief bill was defeated by the close vote of 12 to 11. Administration forces scored another victory by the adoption of a compromise amendment to the proposal of Senator Pat McCarran for the payment of prevailing wages on all federal projects. Witnesses testified that McCarran's amendment would have increased the cost of putting 3,500,000 men to work by more than $2,000,000,000 and would have defeated the purpose of the bill.

McCarran did not press his amendment in committee when a substitute was offered, out insists that he will do so on the senate floor. The fight the American Federation of Labor is making on this point is expected to have considerable influence with a number

When notified that Der Reichfuehrer would make reservations, official British sources indicated that Germany must either accept or reject the agreement in its entirety, and stated partial acceptance would not be agreeable to Great Britain. All of which may be true, or it may be just the old horsetrading spirit which seems to break out in the best diplomatic circles.

DISPATCHES from Bolivia, which must be taken with several grains of salt, indicate that the Bolivians are meeting with success in defending Villa Montes, their last important stronghold in the disputed Gran Chaco, and that the scissors-like offensive of General Estigarribia, Paraguayan commander in chief, is seriously menaced. It was reported the Bolivians, struggling desperately to relieve the pressure on Villa Montes, had defeated the Paraguayans in the Nancorainza sector "after three days of bitter fighting." This offensive, it was thought, might force Estigarribia's northern wing to retreat. FRANCIS BIDDLE and his national labor relations board took a hand in the controversy between the administration and the American Federation of Labor by offering a suggestion that section 7-A of the recovery act "should be clarified." William Green and his fellow leaders of the federation have long contended that the clause, guaranteeing employees rights to bargain collectively, should be enlarged to specify that the majority of employees should have the right to choose the spokesmen for all employees, and that company unions should be barred. The national labor board, which submitted a report of its first six months' work, defended the majority rule at length. As is well known, the administration desires section 7-A continued unchanged in the new NRA law which is Belgrano of the American Legion wanted to finance payment with a bond issue because the bank of which he is vice president receives $1,350,000 in interest annually on $45,000,000 worth of government bonds.

The American Liberty league also issued a statement applauding the President's stand against paying the bonus. The league said the Legion-backed Vinson bill to finance the bonus through the sale of bonds was "the lesser evil." but asked congress to defeat both it and the Patman measure.

"The President's opposition to immediate payment of the entire face value of the bonus certificates is based on sound principles and deserves to be upheld," the organization added.

NINE old gentlemen of vast dignity, comprising the United States Supreme court, conferred together for five hours Saturday. Then, through Clerk Charles C. Cropley, Chief Justice Hughes announced that there would be no decisions handed down on the following Monday. Nothing was said about the rest of the week, but it was assumed the ruling on the gold clause cases would not be handed down before February 18. It was thought by the well informed that the delay was due to the slowness with which the dissenters were preparing their views. Meanwhile anxiety over the matter, at least in government circles, was growing less daily. Attorney General Cummings spent two hours with President Roosevelt going over the plans which have been drawn up for immediate action in the event that the decision goes against the government. R OME and Tokyo were the chief bidders for the 1940 Olympic games, and it now appears that the Japanese capital is likely to be the winner. Count Soyeshima, representative of the Japanese Olympic committee, had an interview with Premier Mussolini in Rome and talked him into a swap by which Japan will use its influence to obtain the 1944 games for Rome. The count said that at first Il Duce was not inclined to agree to the shift but softened under the plea the Olympics would mean much to Japan's celebration of the three thousand sixhundredth anniversary of the founding of the empire.

Hauptmann looked haggard as he was brought into the courtroom to hear the verdict of the jury. His face was covered with a dark stubble of beard and his clothes appeared badly rumpled. As the jurors took their place in the box, he glanced at them, and must have seen that the verdict was unfavorable, for he was seen to slump in his seat for the first time, and thereafter he looked straight ahead while waiting for the judge to appear.

. . . A STRAY HORSE

PETER O'RILEY and Patrick Mc-Laughlin were busy at a spring near the head of Six-Mile canyon in Nevada, trying to wash out enough pay dirt to keep them in grub. As they toiled at their job a horseman rode up. He was another prospector, Henry Thomas Paige Comstock. He had turned his horse out to rustle for itself and the animal had strayed away. His search along the mountain slopes had finally been successful and now he was riding back to the little settlement, hopefully called Gold Hill.

Comstock glanced down at the contents of the Irishmen's "rocker." 'You've struck it, boys!" He exclaimed. "The only trouble is, that you've struck it on my land. You know I bought this spring from old man Caldwell. And I took a hundred and sixty acres here for a ranch."

O'Riley and McLaughlin protested at Comstock's "horning in" this way, but he made his bluff stick. So his name went on the location notice with theirs. Later he was to sell out his share for $11,000. But his bluff was destined to win him an immortality which he little dreamed of at the time.

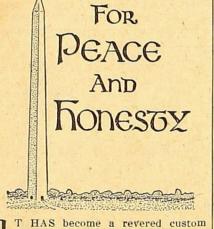

For the two Irishmen, panning for gold, had uncovered ore which assayed as high as $4,791 in silver to the ton. There, later was opened the world famous Ophir mine and there the greatest mining town this continent has ever known, Virginia City. The source of all these riches bears the name of the owner of the stray horse. It was the famous Comstock Lode.

the head of the long line of presidential leaders an enduring inspiration even to the present day. If he had the temper of a man, he knew how to use it and control it. When plotting army officers and scheming politicians sought to undermine his influence and his ability as a commander, he put his devotion to his cause above his personal feelings and turned the tide against them by his dignified forbearance and forgiveness.

Let us recall some of his words, midst our world troubles and misunderstandings, written to his friend, Benjamin Harrison:

"My first wish is to see war, this plague to mankind, banished from off the earth."

"Of all the animosities which have existed among mankind, those which are caused by difference of sentiments in religion appear to me the most inveterate and distressing and ought to be deprecated. I was in hopes that the enlightened and liberal policy which has marked the present age would at least have reconciled Christians of every denomination so far that we should never again see their religious disputes carried to such a texts." "It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world; so far, 1 mean, as we are at liberty to do it; for let me not be understood as capable of patronizing infidelity to existing engagements. I hold the maxim no less applicable to public than to private affairs, that honesty is always the best policy."

"Promote then as an object of primary importance institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge. In proportion as the structure of a government gives force to public opinion, it is essential that public opinion should be enlightened."

"As a very important source of strength and security, cherish public credit. One method of preserving it is to use it as sparingly as possible, avoiding occasions of expense by cultivating peace, but remembering also that timely disbursements to prepare for danger frequently prevent much

Scorch Marks From To Remove Linen

It is almost impossible to remove scorch stains from linen or woolen materials. However, the following method often works on linen: Rub the spot with a freshly cut onion. Later soak the material in a solution of cold water and a little peroxide. Then wash the garment in the usual way.

Speedy Army Tanks

The United States army now has a new tank, weighing eight tons which, in demonstrations, has reached a speed of more than 60 miles an hour. It is built "caterpillar" style for difficult travel as well as ordinary wheels for use on more level ground. These new war machines are 1234 feet long, 61/2 feet high and 7 feet wide. It takes four men to operate one of them. The tank was first used as an instrument of war in the World war and had a speed of 6 to 7 miles an hour.

Only the intervention of a United States marshal and forty deputies averted a massacre when residents of the marsh, feeling themselves cheated of a livelihood, rose up in arms against the invaders and protested with weapons and fire. The 'Cajans, as they are now called, were mobilized by marshals and gladly went to their homes 200 miles distant. They are shown preparing to leave the place for the journey home.

THINKS 1944 HENS WILL BE IMPROVED

Expert Predicts Bigger and Better Birds.

By Prof. W. C. Sanctuary, Poultry Dept., Massachusetts State College. WNU Service.

The average hen will live longer in 1944 than the hen of today, and she will probably lay more eggs and be better looking. Progress which has been made in the past ten years warrants predicting still more improvement during the coming decade. Since 1924, the average egg production has been increased, egg size has been improved and general appearance of the birds has been improved, as a result of careful breeding methods. But while these progressive steps have been made, the death rate of laying birds has increased, until that is the principal problem facing the poultryman to-

"wear" longer, and stand the strain of heavy egg production, a program of breeding for longevity is being offered to Massachusetts poultrymen. This is the third in a series of poultry management projects presented to poultrymen by the state college poultry department. The first of these was centered around producing healthy pullets; the second was designed to keep the pullets healthy in the laying house. And now the third campaign is being launched, to focus the attention of poultry breeders on the importance of selecting birds for their vigor, stamina, and longevity. Like the other two, this project is co-operative in nature, with the college offering all the available up-todate information on the subject, with the poultrymen keeping certain records which will provide valuable data for further study of the problem.

Scalding Is Replaced by

Wax in Poultry Dressing How that attractive appearance is given roasters by the modern poultry dressing establishment is explained by Prof. E. L. Dakan, chairman of the poultry department of Ohio State university.

Recently, he explains, a new system has been installed by many of the modern plants. The chickens are no longer scalded to loosen their feathers. They are dipped in a specially prepared wax.

The chickens are suspended on a carrier and bled. The carrier dips them into warm water to loosen their feathers without injuring the flesh. Leaving the water bath, the wing, tail and other larger feathers, are pulled as the birds are drawn along. They pass on through a drying tunnel into the wax bath, leaving that to pass through cool air to speed hardening of the wax. Girls standing by the carrier strip wax, feathers and all, as the chickens pass before them.

STATISTICS SHOW USE OF TOBACCO ON THE INCREASE

Are we a tobacco-smoking nation? Let's look at the record. Using the late war as a favorite starting point for all comparisons nowadays, we find that in prewar 1916 we smoked 8,000,000,000 cigars and 25,000,000,000 cigarettes. In 1930 we smoked 6,000,-000,000 cigars and 120,000,000,000 cigarettes. In 14 years we had lost some of our liking for cigars, but had acquired nearly five times our previous taste for cigarettes.

Examining the record more closely. we find that the war itself, blamed for many things, was plainly responsible for doubling our consumption of cigarettes in three years-from 25,000,000,000 in 1916 to 53,000,000,000 in 1919. From 1922 to 1930 the consumption of cigarettes in the United States again more than doubled-55,000,000,000 annually grew to be 120,000,000,000. The woman smoker had come into her own.

Three subsequent years of depression have been felt by cigarette makers, production falling to 103,000,000,-000 in 1932. The use of cigars dropped to about 5,000,000,000.

We have considerably less than 100,000,000 persons in the United States of smoking age; but if we take that number for convenience we find a per capita consumption last year of 50 cigars and 1,000 cigarettes. We also used up three pounds of chewing or pipe tobacco per capita. Are we a tobacco-consuming nation?' Fifty cigars, 1,000 cigarettes, and three pounds of tobacco for each and every one of us, is the answer. For every person we does not smoke, someone else consumes twice the average quantity .- Howard Florance in Reviews of Review, and World's Work.

Swamp Reclaimed

A few years ago a region in Italy known as Littoria was an uninhabited swampland. The government has since reclaimed it by draining the marshes and today it is all being farmed with 60,000 families living on it in modern farm homes. Littoria was received into the Italian empire recently as its ninety-third province.

Feather Pulling

Feather-pulling pullets should be separated from the rest of the flock for a few days until they forget the habit. Keep the pullers in separate pens and feed them meat scrap to the extent of 10 per cent of their feed for a week, then reduce to 5 per cent. See that the meat scrap is absolutely free of taint of any kind. The habit is common where birds are housed too closely and have insufficient exercise to keep them busy. This is a vice belonging to idle birds.

Poultry Notes

During wet weather, hens should be kept in the laying house until the afternoon, as most eggs are laid by noon or shortly thereafter. Poultry netting should be put under the roost poles to prevent the hens from coming in contact with the droppings.

Sunshine is as necessary for laying hens as it is for growing chicks because they use a large amount of vitamin D through weeks of intensive laying.

Quality eggs mean clean eggs, and to this end keep plenty of clean straw litter on the floor of the poultry house every day in the year, and likewise keep the nests clean. . . .

When England recently boasted that its people ate an average of 152 eggs a year it was brought out that Canadians consumed just twice as many.

At least eight feet of space at the feeder should be provided for every 100 chicks.

"Ave course, Donny," he acquiesced. "Ave course. Oi'll come back when ye're finished."

He went downstairs, rubbers thumping on the treads, but he stood at the bottom a long interval, shaking his head in misgiving and muttering to himself. Then he turned about and crept back as softly as a cat. On the upper landing he seated himself leaning against the thin partition of matched boards. which separated him from the sick man.

A half hour, perhaps, Bird-Eye sat there growing cramped and chilly in the draughty hallway. Then he leaped to his feet with a little cry. From within had come a long, retching gasp, a sharp creak of bed springs, a thud on the floor. Blaine burst into the room. The catalogue was beside the bed. Old Don lay half doubled forward, face in the blankets, one limp hand swaying slightly as it dangled over the edge.

"Donny! Donny, b'y, what's up?" He raised the limp figure, laid it back, stared hard at the face which now seemed so peaceful and then ran excitedly down the stairway in frenzied search of Joe Piette.

In the room was confusion after Doctor Sweet answered the hasty summons. The doctor felt vainly for a pulse, touched the shrunken breast of the old cruiser and then turned away with a significant shake of his head.

The usual things were said and then Bird-Eye and the physician were alone in the room. The little Irishman's eyes brimmed with tears but behind these was an intent look as of one who impatiently awaits opportunity to pursue a specific purpose, and when the others trooped down the stairway he closed the door and returned hastily to the bedside.

"Sure 'nd where is ut?" he asked beneath his breath, riffling the leaves of the bulky catalogue, shaking folds out of the rumpled blankets.

"What are you after, Bird-Eye?" the doctor asked.

"Ah! Here ut be!"

On his hands and knees, peering beneath the bed, he uttered that ejaculation and, reaching far under, rose to his knees with a sealed envelope in his hands.

Across the face was a scrawl, written with an indelible pencil. Blaine scowled as he tried to make out the words, got to his feet, and moved across the room to hold the envelope closer to the light. Doctor Sweet bent over it beside him.

"Ben Elliott," the latter read aloud. "Open this when the nut gets too hard to crack."

The doctor scratched his mustache. He turned his face to meet Bird-Eye's startled gaze.

Emory Sweet looked grimly into the other's face "Old Don has taken the long trail," he said. "Dead? . . . Dead !" Brandon's voice on the query pinched up a bit. And on the repetition of the word it fell, hollowly, with a finality which might have indicated sorrow, dismay or amazement. But none of these three was reflected in his face. In his dark eyes was just one expression: Relief. Relief! Relief from suspense, from worry; relief from dark and haunting fear! "You don't say! So the old fellow's gone !" His voice was even now, colorless, assured, as was normal. "Well it was to be expected, I suppose. Were you with him, Doctor?"

"No; he died alone." Brandon drew a breath as one will who has asked an important question and received a pleasing or reassuring answer.

"Talking couldn't have helped a man in his condition. He . . . He didn't visit with anyone, did he?"

A queer hesitancy crept into his manner on this as though he shrank from knowing the reply and Doctor Sweet turned to Bird-Eye Blaine inquiringly. But Bird-Eye did not look at the doctor. He was staring at Brandon and as that individual's gaze, following the doctor's, encountered his, the Irishman's lips twitched into a bitter smile.

"So ye're after wonderin' whut pore owld Donny said on his deathbed, are ye?" he demanded and with this challenge stepped down from the stairway and crossed the floor slowly toward Brandon. "So ye're worryin', now, over whut he moight 've said, eh?" He laughed, a dry and mirthless laugh, and came to a halt a pace from the man who was so powerful in Tincup. "Worrying?" Brandon countered

"You're either drunk or steadily. crazy, Blaine!"

"Mebby !"-with a sharp nod. "Mebbe both. But old Donny wa'n't. . . He didn't do talkin', Misther Brandon. Rid yer moind av that worry. Sure, nd he didn't talk to a soul av what was on his moind whin he knowed he lay dyin' . . . No talk ! 'Nd he wrote ut fer one who'll make ut so hot that ye'll wish ve was sizzlin' in hell!" With a sweeping gesture he thrust the envelope close to Brandon's face, so close that the man jerked his head backward sharply.

"He wrote ut !" Bird-Eye cried triumphantly. "'Nd may th' saints speed th' day whin 'Misther Elliott puts to use th' thing owld Donny had to tell !" On the ground, enemy troops charge over the top. Advancing but a few steps, they suddenly stop in their tracks. Some fall to the ground, others stand rigid as though hypnotized. So immediate is the effect of the gigantic blinding beams of light focused on the charging troops by the defending army. Is this the way cities will repel the attacks of enemy airmen and troops in future wars? Will such walls of blinding light, like the death rays recently proposed by the scientist Telsa, be the means of making be stationed on different nights at countries invasion-proof, and thus different sections covering a large make war futile and put an end seen and it sent him completely to pot. to it?

These are the questions French military men, it is reported, are talking about ever since they recently completed tests on a device invented by one Edmond de Christmas which generates blinding flashes of light of millions of candle power.

lamp it may be as much as 150 feet in diameter. This immense reflector thus casts gigantic blinding flashes of light miles into the sky. The device is of light weight, easily movable and reported to be of simple construction. The material that burns so brilliantly is a carefully guarded secret. In defending a city from air raids and bombardment the lamps would to the actual whereabouts of the city. For troops smaller models of the De Christmas lamps are being considered. A hand lamp variety has been tested out. Instead of bullets and grenades, the charging soldiers would focus their lamps on the enemy troops, rendering them blind. Of course the enemy, too, might get hold of such lamps. Planes might carry a modified form and use them to light up vast areas of land below to reveal troop and munition position. If such lamps should be developed to the extent where the attacking country could get nowhere and both sides would be impenetrable, wars some believe, would be futile and there would be no more .- Washing ton Post.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

The right liquid laxative dose gives the right amount of help. When repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

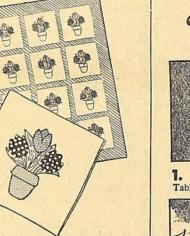

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, natural laxatives that form no habit — even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will clear up a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. Every druggist has it.

They went down the stairway together after closing the door softly behind them, Bird-Eye muttering imprecations on the head of Nicholas Brandon. And even as Doctor Sweet emerged from the dark mouth of the narrow stairway, the front door opened and Brandon himself entered the hotel, stamping new snow from his feet. Others were there, Piette, the drummer, the mill hands; two or three more. But Brandon's attention centered only on the physician.

"There's somethin' in ut Donny'd carried secrut fer long!" he whispered hoarsely. "Ut's to do with Brandon, with fightin' fire with fire, or I'm th' worst guesser in th' woods !"

SYNOPSIS

Ben Elliott-from "Yonder"-arrives at the lumbering town of Tincup, with Don Stuart, old, very sick man, whom he has befriended. He defeats Bull Duval, "king of the river," and town bully, in a log-birling contest. Nicholas Brandon, the town's leading citizen, resents Stuart's presence, trying to force him to leave town and Elliott, resenting the act, knocks him down. Elliott is arrested. He finds a friend in Judge Able Armitage. The judge hires him to run the one lum-ber camp, the Hoot Owl, that Brandon has not been able to grab. This belongs to Dawn McManus, daughter of Brandon's old partner, who has disappeared with a murder charge hanging over his head. Brandon sends his bully, Duval, to beat up Ben, and Ben worsts him in a fist fight and throws him out of camp.

with an iron absolutism. He may have had a deserved reputation for being a strong man, a resourceful man. But tonight, alone in his office, remembering the words and looks and gestures of Bird-Eye Blaine, a lowly employee of an insolvent venture, seeing again the flash of that letter waved before his eyes, he was no commanding figure. He was a frightened man, a haunted man, battling to retain a hold on himself.

CHAPTER IV

Ben Elliott had been on the job at Hoot Owl just two weeks. Able Armitage was with him for the night. Ben was tireless, it seemed. Since the beginning he had labored daytimes, schemed until late at night, and now he spent another hour with Able, trying, as he said, to make every dime look like a dollar.

"Now, say !" His face took on a curious smile as they finally folded their papers. "I haven't had much time to think about anything but patching up this outfit and getting it to function, but through it all one thing's kept bobbing up so often it's got my curiosity on its hind legs. "Who was McManus? What about

Sam Faxson? Where does the little girl you're guardian for come in?" "Little girl!" Able said, startled and then smiled. "Why, Dawn is-" "I keep hearing about these men Mc-Manus and Faxson and how Brandon is trying to beat you down so he can cheat the orphan child. How about it party hit straight out for the camp and couldn't find hide nor hair nor sign of Mac. A couple of old trailers agreed that somebody had gone down to the river below the camp the night that Faxson was shot. The Mad Woman is swift at that bend and never freezes. The trail seemed to go right to the edge of the stream and the accepted theory was that McManus, realizing what he'd done, had drowned himself. The fact that nothing has ever been seen or heard of him since

Two Species of Peafowl;

Can Endure All Climates In a bulletin of the New York Zoological society it is pointed out in an article by Lee S. Randall, curator of birds at the New York Zoological park, that Solomon is credited as the first owner of the peafowl or peacock outside India. The peafowl, while a native of India and Java, is readily adaptable to all climates. The readiness with which the peacock has accepted the conditions of captivity in all sections of the world and in all kinds of climate, Randall says, has made them so common as to cloud our appraisal somewhat, but the fact remains that it is difficult to find a bird to excel them in beauty of form and coloration. "There are two species of peafowl, the Indian, or blue, and the Javan, or green," Randall says in the society's bulletin. "The Indian fowl is a native of India and Ceylon. It keeps to the low country, seldom going above 2,000 feet. Although it is naturally accustomed to the steaming heat of such localities, it nevertheless has the ability to endure, without discomfort, temperatures well below zero Fahrenheit. It is this adaptability which has allowed the bird to be enjoyed in most countries of the world. The male Indian peafowl is characterized by the deep blue neck and breast, the long, delicate and wonderfully 'eyed' train formed by the upper tail coverts, and the fanlike crest on the head. The female is a dull gray in general with the neck and upper breast iridescent
