Tawas - Gladwin Baseball Game Rained Out Sunday

The Tawas-Gladwin baseball game cheduled for last Sunday was called off on account of rain after only two innings had been played. The score then stood at 4-3 in favor of Gladwin. Not having gone the required five innings under such circumstances, the game will have to be played at a later date.

Joe Noel was responsible for the locals' three runs in the first inning when he slammed out a long home run with Cunningham and Davis, who had walked, on base. His hit dropped in the middle of the river which bounds the Gladwin diamond in cen-ter field. A hit by Walrath which bounded into the river for a home run with two on base tied the score given Sunday evening at eight o'clock at the local Zion Lutheran church. Supreme Court Kills NRA and Farm Mortgage Moratorium Act-New Dealers, Congress and Business Uncertain About Future Action.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Supreme Court of the United States shook the New Deal to its very foundations. In the first and most important, read by Chief Justice Hughes, the heart was cut out of the NRA, for the court ruled that the entire code structure of the act was invalid, the code making provisions being an unconstitutional delegation by congress of its au-with the government's legislative functions. By the ruling the exercise of congressional powers over commerce was definitely restricted to interstate commerce, or to such activities as have a provable direct connection with interstate commerce. The court held that no economic emergency could justify the breaking down of the limitations upon federal authority as prescribed by the Constitution or of those powers reserved to the state through the failure of the Constitution to place them elsewhere. Next in importance was the decision read by Justice Brandeis, holding unconstitutional the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act. This law provided for a five year moratorium in the case of collapse of efforts to scale down a farmer's debts to a figure that would enable him to pay off his mort-gage. The court held that under the Fifth amendment to the Constitution private property could not be taken without just compensation. There has been no previous instance, the court said, where a mortgage was forced to relinquish property to a mortgagor free of lien unless the debt was paid in full.

Chief Justice

In the third decision President Roosevelt's dismissal of the late William E. Humphrey from the federal trade commission was held illegal because the President did not remove Mr. Humphrey for the statutory grounds of inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office, but, as the President stated, because their minds did not meet upon the policies or administration of the commission. The court held that trade commissioners' terms are fixed by law.

THERE was consternation and confusion among the administration forces in Washington, and no one could say immediately just how much the New Deal had been damaged or what could be done to repair the damage to its structure. Donald Richberg, chairman of the national industrial recovery board, after a White House conference, issued a statement saying that "all methods of compulsory enforcesuspended.

The question of the constitutionality of the Wagner labor disputes bill, passed by the senate, was raised by the NRA decision. The opinion was widely expressed that collective bargaining now cannot be enforced in any business enterprise by federal statute.

In the senate demands were voiced to recommit to the committee on agriculture the amendments strengthening the AAA. Senator W. E. Borah said that the NRA decision clearly raises the question of the validity of much AAA procedure.

Business was as confused as congress and the administration after the killing of NRA. Heads of many large employing corporations intimated they would not make wage reductions or lengthen the work hours just because the way was open for such action, but always there was the qualifying statement, "It depends on what our competitors do." The big concerns would prefer to maintain the code hours and wages, but the smaller merchants and manufacturers, who were hardest hit by the code requirements, might depart from them enough to demoralize prices.

Among the dozens of national trade associations whose officers urged members to maintain wages and otherwise to continue the status quo are those of the automobile manufacturers, automobile dealers, chemical industry, retail dry goods dealers, cotton manufacturers, cement makers, oil industry, wholesale grocers, and grocery chain store distributors.

Harper Sibley, recently elected president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, called upon American industry and business men to preserve for the present wages and work hours established under the NRA.

Instead of cutting wages Standard Oil company of New Jersey and the Tide Water Oil company announced an increase of 5 per cent in salaries and wages, effective June 1.

The United Textile Workers, 350,000 in number, threaten to strike if any many and Belgium. mills cut wages. And there is also a chance that 450,000 bituminous coal miners will go on strike because there is no wage agreement with the operators and a scale conference collapsed. The liquor business was thrown wide open without any federal regulation except that exerted by the Treas-

THREE unanimous decisions of the ury department in the collection of taxes. Officials of the federal alcohol control administration said that the Supreme court's NRA ruling took away from the FACA every iota of control it had over the distilling busi-

> A CTING with surprising suddenness, the senate passed the Copeland-Tugwell food, drug and cosmetic bill, which had been modified to meet the objections of Senators Clark, Bailey and Vandenberg. Dr. Copeland said he believed it would get through the house without difficulty. President Roosevelt favors the measure.

> The bill greatly increases the scope of the 1906 food and drug act, in the definitions of adulterated or misbranded articles, and provides penalties of a year in jail or a $1,000 fine for viola-

It was designed originally to permit the secretary of agriculture to order wholesale seizures, which would permit the destruction of a business, if he deemed the articles in question adulterated. As amended, however, only a single article may be seized pending a court hearing. Exceptions may be made if there is "imminent danger" to public health.

Originally, also, the bill provided severe penalties for publishers and radio broadcasting companies, as well as advertisers, for violations of regulations to be laid down by the Department of Agriculture. This was changed so that no publisher, radio broadcasting company, advertising agency, or other medium for the dissemination of advertising may be deemed to have violated the "false advertising" provisions unless they refuse to furnish the name and address of the advertiser.

FRANK C. WALKER'S present job as head of the division of allotments and information in connection with the work-relief program is not so important as had been expected, and probably by the end of the year or earlier he will be able to delegate his duties to others. Then, according to current rumors, he will enter the President's cabinet as postmaster general, to succeed Jim Farley. Mr. Farley has defi-

There has been a lot of talk about Mr. Farley's alleged ambition to be governor of New York. Melvin C. Eaton, Republican state chairman, dares him to run for that position.

ONLY nine states of the Central West will send delegates to the "Grass Roots" convention of the Republican party which opens June 10 in Springfield, Ill., but the meeting will nevertheless be rather national in scope, for it will be attended by unofficial delegates from other states and by national leaders of the party. It was believed that Harrison E. Spangler, national committeeman from Iowa, would be made temporary chairman and as such would deliver the keynote address. Others on the tentative program for speeches are Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri and secretary of agriculture in the Hoover cabinet, and Edward Hayes of Decatur, Ill., former national commander of the American Legion.

The keynote address, according to reports, will take inventory of American affairs under the Roosevelt New Deal and indicate the trend of the party in opposition. Mr. Hyde is to talk on the Great Emancipator at the Lincoln tomb in Oak Ridge cemetery, and Hayes is expected to deal with the theories of the Republican party on constitutional government.

HAWAII was treated to a magnificent display of American naval power in the Pacific that continued through two days. First the forty planes that had taken part in the mid-Pacific maneuvers returned and the entire armada of 225 planes participated in an aerial review. Then the vessels of the fleet returned and moved to Pearl Harbor, the great naval base, which they all entered in a crucial test of the harbor's capacity as an anchorage. The navy's largest submarines were with the battleships and cruisers, and there were 700 marines on the target ship Utah.

Navy Memorial day in Japan, the thirtieth anniversary of Admiral Togo's destruction of the Russian fleet, brought forth a pamphlet from the navy's propaganda bureau which made significant allusions to the United States. It said:

"Then Russia was the rival and the danger. Today that is changed. We have had to face in another direction. We are confronting another great sea power which is increasing its navy with Japan as the target.

"We need a navy sufficient to protect our sea routes to the continent of Asia and to face the menace in the direction of the great ocean. That is why Japan demands parity with the greatest navies. If Japan's just and reasonable demands are rejected by the powers, causing failure of the efforts to reach a new naval agreement and leading to a naval construction race, the responsibility will not be ours. In such case the only thing for Japan to do is to resort to resolute measures for self-protection."

averted, the prospects for such a settlement are not bright. Under pressure from Great Britain and France, Mussolini consented to recognize the league's jurisdiction over the quarrel and agreed to arbitration. But immediately thereafter Il Duce told the chamber of deputies in Rome he would not allow Germany to make of Ethiopia "a pistol perennially pointed at us in case of trouble in Europe" and asserted he was ready to take the supreme responsibility to sustain by every means Italy's position in east Africa. He alluded bitterly to Britain and France, and indicated that he believed that Ethiopia was perfecting its army with the help of European powers inimical to Italy.

But Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, resentful because the infants have been removed from their charge and home to a special hospital across the street, refused to attend the festivities. The five little girls, who are in good health and growing rapidly, were displayed briefly and were permitted to crow or cry into the radio microphone.

NANNY MEADOW MOUSE IS WORRIED

NANNY MEADOW MOUSE was worried. Yes, sir. Nanny Meadow Mouse was worried. Nanny is a home body. In the first place, most of the time she has a family to think about and care for. There are babies in Nanny's snug little home most of the time. What with helpless babies and headstrong, half-grown children eager to get out in the Great World and show how smart they are, and fully grown children already setting will risk her own life for her babies sary risks. The most precious thing anybody possesses is life. To risk this for something which at best is nothing more than pleasure is the most foolish thing in the world. Nanny and how necessary it is that a young Meadow Mouse who would live to a good old age be carefully trained.

One of the first things to be learned is the foolishness of taking unnecesup homes of their own, Nanny has real cause for worry. You see, no one knows better than she what a lot of dangers surround a Meadow Mouse any time, but she is far too wise to risk it for any other reason.

"If you lost your life you've lost everything," is a favorite saying of Nanny's, and when you come to think of it, it is exactly so. Sometimes Danny Meadow Mouse laughs at her and tells her that the older she grows the more timid she becomes. That doesn't trouble Nanny at all. She simply smiles and says nothing. She knows it is true, but she also knows that this added timidity is because of increased knowledge of the dangers of the Great World, and that the more timid she is the less likely is she to feel careless. "A Meadow Mouse cannot be too timid," says Nanny, and in that she is more than half right.

Danny Meadow Mouse is different. He doesn't have the care of those

ENTREE OR MADE DISH

THOSE who plan meals are often L confronted by the problem of what to serve to add variety, "pep," or to fill a vacant place in the menu. Something is needed that is different, tasty, while at the same time it fits in with the other dishes which compose the meal.

In bridge, when in doubt, lead trumps-in food planning, when in doubt, add a dish which appeals. The following are a few which may be useful; they may be varied by using different fruits or vegetables. Orange Fritters.

Take one and one-fourth cups of pastry flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, mix well and add four tablespoons of evaporated milk and seven tablespoons of water, one beaten egg-beat until smooth, or about two minutes. Take two seedless oranges, remove all fiber and dip each section into the batter. Have deep fat hot enough to fry a cube of bread a golden color in a minute, then drop in the fritters a few at a time; cook for five minutes, drain, sprinkle with sugar and serve. Lobster Croquettes.

Take two cups of chopped cooked lobster, mix one-fourth of a teaspoon of salt, the same of mustard, a dash of cayenne and add to the lobster. Prepare a white sauce, using two tablespoons of butter, three of flour, onehalf teaspoon of salt and a cup of milk. Add the cooked white sauce to the lobster, mold into balls when well chilled and fry in deep fat, using a hotter fat than the above. Forty seconds for the browning of the bread is the right amount. Name of Ponce de Leon Featured in Geography

Famed Spanish Explorer Hero of Caribbean.

Washington. - Excavations beneath the Cast Blanca in San Juan, Puerto Rico, have revealed ancient foundations, once part of Ponce de Leon's palace. The present structure, though popularly known as his residence, was built a few years after his death.

"Modern biographers have neglected Juan Ponce de Leon," says the National Geographic society. "He is mentioned only occasionally in the documents and records of his day; but the events of his life are written deep in the geography of the New world he helped to create. His sturdy figure stands in sculpture in the city square in San Juan and again in St Augustine. His name appears on every map of the Caribbean. There is San Juan, capital of Puerto Rico; Ponce, the second town of importance in the same island; and Ponce de Leon bay cut into the southern tip of Florida.

Port of Riches.

"Ponce de Leon probably sailed westward with Columbus on his second voyage in 1493. On their way to Hispaniola t(he island of Haiti) they coasted past the shores of Puerto Rico, giving the young soldier a first glimpse of his future home. Trained in the Moorish wars, John Ponce was successful in subduing the natives of Hispaniola, and was shortly made governor of Higuey, the island's eastern province. From his headquarters on the east coast he could look across the Mona channel to the blue peaks of Puerto Rico. Rumors of gold, hidden in those mountains, lured him across the channel. There he found rich lands, friendly Indians, and the promised gold. With this newly acquired wealth it was easy for him to secure appointment as governor of the island. To him it was truly 'Puerto Rico'-'Port of Riches'-and so he

"By enslaving the Indians and exploiting the island's natural resources, John Ponce soon amassed a fortune. He built and fortified the town of San Juan, erected a magnificent palace overlooking the harbor, and ruled his lands sternly. His first ally in all campaigns was a remarkable dog named Bercerillo. This bloodhound was more feared by the Indians than was his master. It was a great blow to John Ponce when Bercedillo was killed in an encounter with the Caribs of Guadaloupe.

Sought Fountain of Youth.

"A change in political parties deprived the governor of office. New rumors had reached his ears, not of gold this time, but of a fountain of youth, which the Indians said was on the island of Bimini, to the north.

"So John Ponce fitted out three ships and sailed forth on his romantic search. He cruised past the Bahamas, found no spring, but discovered the Bahama channel, a route used thereafter by Spanish treasure ships. Steering north and west he reached the coast of Florida on Easter day, naming it for 'Pasqua de Flores.' Ponce de Leon had a lively imagination, and chose romantic names for the lands he discovered. He probably landed first near the St. Johns river, then coasted south around the peninsula and north, perhaps as far as Pensacola. When he sighted the Florida Keys, he christened them the 'Martyrs.' He also found and named the Dry Tortugas, where his men caught 170 turtles in one night! Nowhere did he find the spring that he sought, but the legend persisted, and before long there was scarcely a puddle or stream in Florida that had not been bathed in by optimistic Spaniards and Indians. "When Ponce de Leon reported his discoveries to Ferdinand he was appointed governor of Florida, and commanded to found a colony. For seven years he was delayed by wars with the Caribs; but in 1521 he sailed out of San Juan harbor with two ships San Juan."

The boy had been caddying for Judge Murray while the officers loaded with men and supplies for a permanent settlement. Good fortune had deserted him, however; hostile natives attacked the party as soon as they landed, and Ponce de Leon was wounded before they could regain their ships. He died soon after they reached Cuba, and was buried in the city of

Service Lives Up to Motto "Always Ready."

Juneau, Alaska.-"Semper Paratus-'Always Ready" motto of the United States coast guard, is most effectively carried out in the Alaska division of the service.

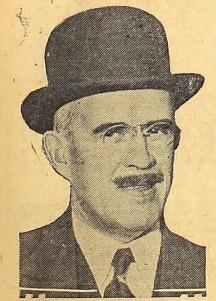

Guardsmen are prepared, day and night, to rush food to starving villages, administer justice in remote communities, rescue crews of icebound whalers or tend sick and injured at remote Eskimo outposts.

Each of the five coast guard boats cruising in and out of rocky fjords or through ice floes is a store, post office, police court, battleship and hospital, all in one.

The story of Alaska is associated closely with the coast guard, for in 1867, when Secretary of State William H. Seward bought the vast territory, It was the old cutter Lincoln that was sent to survey the new possession.

Many thrilling rescues in the far north are part of coast guard history. In 1884 the old, cutter Bear saved the lives of Gen. Greeley and his men-the same general, now ninety-one, who was given belated recognition this spring by congress for his Arctic explorations.

Another dramatic rescue by the Bear was that of the crew of the foundered whaling ship Napoleon, in 1890. Information of the Napoleon's plight, scribbled in Eskimo on a piece of board, was passed from village to village, until it finally reached the Bear.

The coast guard brought the first reindeer to Alaska from Siberia in the '90s and under its watchful eye the Pribilof island seal herd has increased by more than ten times in the last 25

One cutter will make two hasty trips to Point Barrow this summer, carrying supplies to government employees at that remote station. Two will follow the Bering sea seal herds to protect them from poachers. The others will patrol villages and aid fishermen and shipping, if needed.

Peanuts Are Popular

The history of peanuts in America is an interesting one. Up to the time of the Civil war a few peanut plant were grown in gardens in Virginia and the Carolinas for family use and as curiosities. During the war the sol diers found the nuts to be excellen food, with the result that in the years following the end of hostilities the acreage assigned to them steadily in reased. But it was not until the pea aut thrasher, the mechanical peanul picker and the s'eller were inventehat they were grown and harvestein a large scale

CONVENIENCE is another of the Seven High

Points of "High-Power" Perfection oil stoves.

Although the word "convenience" means many things to many people, to housewives it means cooking without fuss and worry. Lighting a High-

Power burner is simple, and you get action at once.

The stove's generous square top provides ample space for those extra utensils which are in constant demand while you're doing a rush cooking job.

When not baking, the grates over the two oven burners also provide emérgency cooking space.

With a Perfection stove it is not necessary to dash back and forth from stove to kitchen sink; since plenty of space is available on top of the grates.

You will never understand, though, just how convenient these stoves are until you see one in action.

So call us today. Ask to see a "High-Power"

OR more than ten years, this familiar Red "OK" tag has been a symbol of sound, dependable used cars and of outstanding used car values. Great numbers of people in this community have learned that the way to get a better used car is to visit this organization and buy a car with the "OK" that counts.

We are very discriminating about the cars we take in trade, accepting only popular makes and models. We are even more careful in preparing these cars for public sale.

Every car must pass a rigid, systematic inspection before it is awarded our Guaranteed "OK" tag. All features are carefully checked by factory-trained mechanicsbrakes are adjusted, upholstery cleaned, the car made to look like new, and all mechanical parts reconditioned to provide the finest and most dependable performance.

Yet you pay no more for our Guaranteed "OK" used cars because we do a large volume of business and can afford to give you more for your money. See our fine stock of used cars-today! Not only will you get a better used car value but you will also get a better deal on your old car in trade.

Light Thrown on Phenomenon of Ambidexterity.

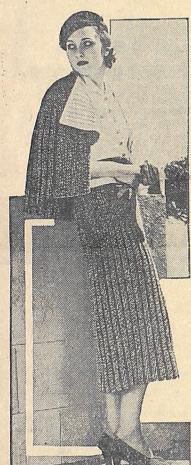

London .- A former deputy commissioner of London's metropolitan police once half seriously suggested that a police car should be perpetually parked before 45 Hans place-so often did Scotland Yard require the services of the man who lives there. This man, also known as the "unofficial counsel to the C. I. D.," is Sir James Crichton-Browne, author of some novels based on paradoxes of legal medicine and serious works on nervous diseases, and vice president of the Royal institution.

Just 27 years ago he concluded a lecture on "Dexterity and the Bond Sinister," at the institution with the words:

A representative of the Daily Mail having recently read a report of the lecture through and failing to grasp it entirely called at 45 Hans place, thinking to catch Sir James napping. In one way he did, for Sir James had just been celebrating his ninety-fourth birthday. In another way, he didn't, for when he left he took with him an elucidation of the lecture of 1908 which, in the Daily Mail, reads in part as follows-an epic of its sort:

"Ambidextral culture, useful enough in some specially employed persons, must on the large scale tend to con-

"Right-handedness is woven in the brain and so is left-handedness, and to change the pattern you must unravel the tissues. My conviction is that as regards left-handedness it is well to leave well alone.

"I am interested to note, therefore, that our London school doctors who have been investigating the teaching of left-handed children have come to the same conclusion as that at which I arrived so long ago. Their memorandum just presented lays stress on the serious danger that may result from pressure in correcting left-handedness in children when it is either natural or well established.

"There are cases of genuine and permanent ambidexterity, notably that of Lord Baden-Powell, that benefactor of his country, who is accustomed to use both hands interchangeably.

"It has never been suggested that left-handedness or ambidexterity is indicative of any mental defect or incompatible with the highest intellectual power or with genius. Leonardo da Vinci was left-handed.

"Natural left-handedness is merely a transference of power from one side to the other, and acquired ambidexterity means the special training of certain groups of muscles and their springs in the brain for certain movements. It is all a matter of cerebral organiza-

We have right and left-handedness everywhere. In the human subject it is well to accept it as it is, and make the best of it without attempting any futile, perhaps hazardous, transforma-

Atoms of Faith LEONARD A. BARRETT

The atom is at the present time being seriously studied by the physicists.

They are endeavoring to split the atom, which, if accomplished, will effect important changes in our material and economic values. The other effort is to harness or control the power latent in the atom. We are credibly informed that in a single atom there is resident sufficient power, which, if released, could run all the dynamos of any large city. The power is there, but how to release it, is another question :- a problem about as interesting and baffling as the effort to extract electric current out of the sunlight.

The theory is not without its sugges-tive values. We are told that long ago the greatest of all teachers said, "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, nothing shall be impossible unto

Rising Star

Margaret Osborne, sixteen years old, junior tennis player of San Francisco, is declared by Howard Kinsey, California Tennis club professional, to be destined for a place in the national championship ranks. Margaret is strong and aggressive and has a serve like a man's, says Kinsey, and what she needs now is experience.

you." Since the day of that utterance, experience has demonstrated its truth. The mustard seed was the smallest possible thing with which faith could be compared-an atom of faith. There is great creative and enduring power resident in the so-called atom of faith. No race is ever won without the runner having sufficient faith in himself to win. No great achievement is ever accomplished, or problem solved, without the exercise of faith. Faith creates the ideal, fires the imagination, and furnishes motive power for all heroic efforts. The overcoming of obstacles is largely attributable to the exercise of faith. Faith is the basic element in friendship. Remove faith from business and we have bankruptcy. When one country has faith in another country, we shall have international peace. Our country is sorely lacking in something. What that something is, no two persons seem to agree. Upon one answer all could agree; and that is, the restoration of confidence is essential to our social, political and business life. There is sufficient reconstructive power, locked up in an atom of faith, which, if released, could work wonders in restoring our country to its normal economic and social life. @ Western Newspaper Union.

Paint When Dry

Be sure to allow time after a rain for outdoor woodwork to dry before painting, says an experienced paint man. This is especially important if the woodwork is new. Don't hurry your painter if he thinks it best to wait a day longer before starting a job or putting on another coat. Start your painting as early as you can in the spring, so that the painter can adjust his work to the weather.

giving, not of new things, but of an accumulation of unwanted articles. Spring is the greatest season for this with autumn as a good second. With the house-cleaning orgy in process or recently over, the homemaker realizes that during the previous months many articles have accumulated; clothing, furniture, dishes, utensils of various etc., and some must go to permit space for another period of accumulation. With new frocks, what is to be done with the old? With new equipments discarded ones are in the way. With replenished linens, etc., the others may prove only a care to save. It is because of such circumstances that spring and fall become seasons of dispensing. There are few persons who do not find a certain pleasure in giving, and this is a not unworthy enjoyment. But it has to be done with tact when the things belong in the personally unwanted group. Yet these same things, unwanted by present owners, may be just the things wanted by someone else. When the giver can find the right person for the right thing she is fortunate. It is not easy. Every one realizes the truth of this Oftentimes there are articles the owner appreciates are really worthwhile, but can be dispensed with, and she tries to find someone she knows who would like them. Hesitation.

Then comes the hesitation lest offense be taken by an offer of them. Often those in most need are the most difficult to help. There is the reluctance of equals to accept from equals. An interchange would be different.

If the person who wishes to present the articles will put herself in the place of the receiver, she can get some idea of the reluctance mentioned. Also she may be able to find an acceptable way to give. How would she like to be approached with the gift if the other wanted to give the thing to her, knowing the means were less. The pinch comes with the realization of the last clause, the question of difference in pocket books. However a kind heart will find a way.

For most of the things, there are avenues of dispensing, such as through the church, or benevolent societies. These know of needs, but the articles will scarcely go where you so wish them to. So it is worthwhile to puzzle the matter out and give what you want to give, where you want it to go, if possible. It is by so doing that giving becomes more than dispensing. It takes on a human interest.

nearest the wall being hung a trifle higher than the one farthest out.

When screwing these or any protruding suspension rods into walls, enough space must be left between them to permit arms of coat hangers to swing free of each other when garments are on them. Many homemakers prefer several of these, or other models of elongated hanger rods, in a closet to the long pole extending the whole width or length of the closet.

Copper, owing to its exceptional resistance to corrosion, is often found in its "native" state and was therefore probably one of the first metals used by man. Traces of copper working, dating back possibly as far as 6000 B. C., have been found in Palestine and Egypt, and the evidence suggests that the art of metallurgy probably originated in the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates, said to be the site of the earliest civilization. Copper objects have been discovered in Mesopotamia below the level of the clay deposit left behind by the Great Flood, which is believed to have occurred about 4000

It is probable that the first smelting of copper originated from the discovery of beads of metal which had issue from stones used for primitive camp fires. No doubt this process, discovered by accident, was soon developed deliberately, and there is evidence that the early smelters constructed their furnaces on the windward side of hills, with a trench to act as an air scoop, in order to get a good draught.

Very early Egyptian paintings show blowpipes in use, and, later, about 1500 B. C., they depict the use of bellows.

While elaborate copper utensils and ornaments were made by ancient Egyptian, Chinese, and Roman craftsmen, the ancient Britons were also experimenting. Crude copper implements which may date so far back at 2500 B. C. have been found in Ireland, while bronze objects as old as 1700 B.C. have been found in England. The Roman occupation undoubtedly led to a considerable increase in the production and use of copper in the British Isles, and the invaders mined copper extensively in several parts of the country, notably in Cumberland North Wales and Anglesey.

By the eleventh century bell founding had become an established industry in this country, and in the reign of Richard II the first copper cannons were cast. Henry VIII did a great deal towards the development of copper-mining in Britain, and in 1564 the first great British copper producing company was established Towards the end of the Seventeenth century, however, it was found that the monopoly held by this company had caused stagnation, and an act was passed giving anyone the right to mine copper. The industry passed through further vicissitudes, but by the end of the Eighteenth century Great Britain had become the largest producer in the world, supplying about 75 per cent of all the copper produced, while practically the whole of the world's copper smelting was done at Swansea.

Copper was intimately connected with the development of the steamengine and, later, with the discovery of electricity. It was by observing the curious behavior of some frogs' legs hung by means of a copper hook from an iron railing that Galvani was prompted to make his first experiments. These, in turn, led to the construction by Volta of the first electric battery, which consisted of discs of copper and zinc placed upon one another with a layer of wet cloth between each pair. Out of that experiment was born the telegraph.

Meanwhile, Faraday had made his first magneto-electric machine, consisting of a copper disc which was revolved by hand between the poles of a permanent magnet, and tric power and lighting.

When numerous housewives in one district in Detroit, Mich., complained that the cream was being stolen from the tops of their milk bottles after the morning porch deliveries, police instituted an investigation. SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the with-drawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis. With five other members of the party, an attractive girl, Trafford: middle-aged Giles an individual whom he instinctively dislikes, Martin Crack, he starts his journey. Barry's reticence, and her self-withdrawal, annoy him. To Kerrigan he takes at once.

Gradually Mrs. Pulsipher began to prattle about the household of her married daughter in Bridgeport, about places she and John had seen this trip and how they had liked them, about the reasons for sending certain postcards to certain friends back in L. A. Sister Anastasia maintained her sweet, receptive silence all the while; and Barry barely punctuated Mrs. Pulsipher's devious sequences with a soft, almost-husky "Yes" or "Did you?" or "No, I've never been there." Each time Hal looked at her in the mirror he felt she knew that he was looking; though she never glanced at him, her eyes seemed to go slowly on their conscious guard.

Hal had forgotten about the dog until it gave a quick whimper, and Barry an exclamation that made him look around. The dog's forelegs were in Sister Anastasia's lap, his head turned in reproach toward where Barry brushed a shower of little embers from the coat upon which he had been lying.

"Oh, the lining," Mrs. Pulsipher half wailed in sorrow. "Oh, is it ruined?" Then, with a grim pounce of her words at Hal: "His cigarette blew in the other window. Oh, what a shame, what "I am most awfully sorry," said Hal, sincerely contrite before the girl's disinterested look.

"The lining's ruined," said Mrs. Pulsipher with finality and triumph. "Ruined."

Barry's eyes-solemn, impersonal, confidently clear of resentment-looked down at the burn again. "It's not bad," she said to Mrs. Pulsipher. "It's easily patched. Really." She leaned to look beyond her knees. "Do you s'pose the rest of it's on the floor?"

Hal sew a coal glowing on the carpet and found enough cigarette behind it to pick up. The end was wet, brown, and flattened; he threw it quickly out. Barry's blue look-the blue of asters, flecked with small, clear crystals of live yellow-accused him of something then. "That wasn't your cigarette,"

Hal smiled a little. "It hardly matters," he said. "I'm so awfully sorry

"Please don't think of it," said Barry, "It's really nothing."

"You're being a sportsman."

"No," she said quietly, and her full lips came together again in composed defense, her eyes saying briefly, No, you don't; not that way.

Something made him stop his look on Crack as he turned back. Crack sat there as if the straight, sparsely padded seat were the top of comfort, as if the close, damp heat under the sunbaked roof were the first beguilement of a spring sun. A slight, confident smile held his lazy lips-lips that had a smooth curve of adolescence without being precisely youthful either. Hal watched him longer than he meant to, interested by something he couldn't see with his eyes. Crack's amiable smile broadened a little before he turned his head slowly, and Hal didn't look away until Crack's full face was toward him. What's the little guy thinking now? Hal wondered.

In the flimsily converted room where dark screens sealed in heat, flies, and the smell of frying hamburger and onions, two heavy and hot sisters clumped about on quick feet-cooking, waiting, finding things miraculously without collision. Miller put a toothpick into his grinning mouth and leaned sleepily on the counter. "Say," he said, as if he were a policeman, "is it a good gar-ridge in this burg?" "Is there something wrong with the car?" said Mrs. Pulsipher at once. Miller cocked the toothpick at her. "Yup," he said. "Couple stickin' valves. Might's well get 'em fixed up while you folks eat."

"Gad, sir, why didn't you get 'em fixed yesterday?" Kerrigan asked.

"Sleepin' yestiddy," said Miller and sucked sharply. "Come in from Chicago in thirty hours."

"Look here, speedball," said Kerrigan gravely, "we've been delayed enough already. If you crowded the heap this far, you can get through till supper time. We can sleep where we eat tonight and you'll have a lot more time than here."

Mrs. Pulsipher, nodding decisive approval, said: "Yes."

Miller looked sheepish. "Awrightsure," he said; "but I gotta get gas noil." "There's a pump outside," said one fat sister. Miller looked round at the window with slow suspicion, "Awright," he said.

The others moved upon the tables at the back of the room with apparent intent to have a meal. Hal stayed at the counter, moodily regarding the flyspecked thermometer that stood at eighty-nine. He heard Mrs. Pulsipher saying confidentially, ". . . and lots of onions over it, crisp. I'll tell you about my dessert later." "Bring some ham neggs," Miller said, as if life were too short and weary a thing to permit exercise of imagination. Hal ordered oatmeal cookies at three for a nickel from under a glass bell, and a bottle of oversharp but icy ginger ale. Then Crack came to the counter from nowhere in particular, and in his unsurely pitched voice told the girl, "I'll have the same as him."

Hal looked at him and found him smiling reticently, his eyes bemused and faintly speculative.

He wondered how much Barry had ordered.

"She's the only one isn't eating enough for a hired hand," said Crack. 'Her and that frog sister.'

Hal looked at him quickly, but there was nothing definable in the indolent amiability of Crack's light-blue eyes. "Who d'you mean by 'her'?" said Hal inhospitably -adding to himself, If this guy goes on reading my mind, I'll give it to him as a present; I won't ive with it.

"The babe they thought was with me -Trafford," said Crack.

Hal finished his ginger ale in a sting-y, refreshing gulp and put a dime on the counter. Then he turned for a look of frank curiosity at the faintly rosy, unaged face beside him. Even if the fella's standards were totally different from his own, what did it matter if Hal was rude to him? The lazy, mischievous curiosity of his eyes seemed to be partly ready for rebuffs. Hal nodded briefly and went out into the hazed, dust-smelling sunlight that was just as hot and caged-in as the screened room.

He went around the corner into what was technically shade and leaned against the wall to light a cigarette.

The terrier, unleashed, trotted around the corner eager for smells, and then the Trafford girl came, watching him with a thoughtful smile, the conscious defense of her large eyes gratefully relaxed. The h-l with being a stick, Hal said to himself; one honest try, and if she turns it back at me, I can jolly-well be rude with comfort,

He watched her take a couple of her sure, deliberate steps. Her smile took away the traces of toughness Hal thought he'd noticed before-accented a smooth delicacy in the slight in-drawing of her cheeks under the high cheek bones. The faint pink there wasn't make-up either; and her frank lips wore no lipstick. They were frank lips. generous, full without being sensual under their two simple peaks. There was an air about her of reticent vitalty, sure and artless as the angle which gave her plain blue hat its chic.

Hal pushed his back from the wall and spoke a quiet "Hello."

Her look at him was startled, almost alarmed, but he met her eyes aggressively, smiling. It was an instant before her smile began, the parting of her lips delayed; her look was relieved, but without demonstration. "Hello," she said, as if to a pleasant little boy, and looked off to see where the dog was. "How're you?" he said.

"Fine," she said, her smooth voice just off huskiness. She appraised his smiling eyes thoughtfully another moment before she added, "Your clothes are English."

"They're my brother's," he said at once, wondering why the devil he'd said that when it was his own old suit and he had no brother anyway.

"You like England," she said, not as if he would deny it but as if he wouldn't volunteer it. "You probably went to college there once.'

"Yes," said Hal. "Why not?" "You like it better than this coun-

"I'm not sure I'd say that." "You're not sure you wouldn't, either, are you? Are you flattered when people take you for an Englishman?" "Used to be, when I was younger.

Why?" "How old are you now?"

"Twenty-six." Hal's eyes were laughing as he said to himself, Holy mackerel, what is this? Look to your balance here, Ireland, "How old are you?" "About twenty-three," she said, as if t were quite unimportant.

"You mean about twenty-three by count, but far older in-in experience." He kept the brightness in his eyes, his smile widening.

That seemed to please her; she gave a single laugh and looked down at his mouth, then back at his eyes and off to see where the dog was. But she said nothing.

"What's the pup's name?" he said. "Doctor Caligari," she said, and the dog looked around from an abandoned oil drum in bright inquiry.

"Which part do you call him?" "Doc," she said. "I don't suppose you ever saw that German movie a long time ago-'The Cabinet of Doctor Caligari'?"

"Three times," he said. "One of the five best pictures I ever saw." They both watched the dog for a moment of silence; it wasn't until afterward that Hal realized they must both have been thinking hard, that they shouldn't have been watching him. Then portly Kerrigan ambled around the corner, the smoke wisp from the cigarette in his wide mouth drifting up past one squinted eye. He sucked a damp breath between his lips and his closed teeth as he looked at Hal. "You a federal man?"

searched Kerrigan's face for a hint of humor. "No," he said; "are you?" "No," said Kerrigan. "I've tried a Dental Hygiene few things in a short life, but never Dental Hygiene "No," said Kerrigan. "I've tried a had time for that."

Hal bent over and snapped his fingers at Doc. The dog came at once, hopped his forefeet up on Hal's knee, and tried to repay Hal's deft massag-

Hal looked up and found Barry's eyes on him, solemn again and faintly hostile. "Yes," she said. Then, "Here, She snapped the lead to his collar, gave Kerrigan a friendly smile and said, "I think I'll sit in the car."

They watched her walk away, her arms swinging to the unstudied, inquiring grace of her long-legged steps. Kerrigan's brown eyes were pleased to themselves, almost genial, as he looked at Hal, "Hollywood, I guess," he said, in odd gentleness.

"Shouldn't wonder," said Hal. "Got everything," Kerrigan said, with a sort of wistful benevolence. "Ought to make the number-one spot if she screens like her looks."

"And if Miller doesn't kill us all,"

Kerrigan sucked a wet breath through narrowly parted lips. "He seems to lead easily in his sleep. I guess he's all right. Anything't happens comes under the head of experience anyway, and that's profit." "I suppose so."

The twinkle was more personal as Kerrigan watched him with amusement and care. "Only suppose?" he said. Hal smiled. "Well, I haven't had such a h-l of a lot-really." "If fifty years can say anything to you," said Kerrigan kindly, unurgently, "I recommend the collecting of experience. Cigar bands, postage stamps, porcelains, even dollars aren't in it." He stopped before Hal expected him Hal searched for some trace of madness in the brown, wise look, but he could see none. He laughed shortly, "I'll remember that," he said, "and

John was terribly embarrassed. "I-I-I-I don't know," he said, "I-I-I don't know."

In the mirror, Hal watched Barry's look at John's bewilderment-an indulgent look, with a hint of amused tenderness, as if John were another dog who might be friends with Doctor Caligari. Then her reflected look met his. The tenderness went from it, her eyes barely remembered him, shared nothing with him, remained on him for only a second of half-hostile disinterest before they returned to the moving road-

The Road to Health

By DR. R. ALLEN GRIFFITH

CHEW YOUR FOOD

WHAT are your teeth for? They are placed in the mouth as the first aids in digestion. Their loss throws an additional burden upon the balance of the alimentary apparatus, which is frequently unable to stand the strain.

The chain of events following insufficient mastication is so large that heavy doses of powders and pills and the payment of doctors' bills cannot remedy what might easily have been remedied by a little care in the beginning.

Thorough mastication can only be accomplished by proper and sufficient teeth. Modern man lives largely on a herbivorous diet. The more herbivorous an animal the greater the necessity for thorough chewing of the food. It has been proved by scientific experiments that those who bolt their food, those who have insufficient teeth or no teeth, lose 20 per cent of their vegetable food, three-fourths of their entire nourishment and 70 to 80 per cent of their food fill.

Food which is appetizing and pleasant to the palate is not completely nutritious unless thoroughly chewed. Mastication grinds and mixes the food with the saliva which starts the necessary chemical changes in the starches and sugars. It also excites the secretions of the gastric juice. Thoroughly chewed food reaches the stomach in which a sufficient amount of pepsin, rennin and hydrochloric acid awaits it. "Decent," said Kerrigan without ar- The transformation of food into nourishing body stuff begins here.

Most of us eat too much. This is due to haste, nervousness, bolting, the inability to chew food properly, and because many foods are prepared so they may be eaten without chewing.

This in turn causes a stagnation of the cells that produce the digestive fluids. Sufficient hydrochloric acid is not secreted to prevent fermentation. Fermentation manufactures gases. Micro-organisms, mixed with food under these conditions, produce ptomaine and other poisons. Food poisons, the result of incomplete or improper digestion, together with micro-organisms from dirty mouths, produce the symptoms covered by the term auto-intoxication.

The certain cure for eating too much food is careful and proper chewing. This can only be accomplished by an efficient masticating apparatus. Anyone may demonstrate the truth of this statement by a trial. * * *

These microorganisms usually have some small focus of existence and growth, and that point is usually where everything must enter the system, the mouth. These micro-organisms are found at the apex of a dead tooth, in pyorrhea, around unsanitary dental work.

There can be no doubt that these causes are responsible for more deaths and misery than war and whisky combined. The only reason we don't try to eliminate it is that it works silently, while war and whisky create a lot of noise and are more or less spectacular.

PROTECT YOUR LI AND THE LIVES OF OTHERS!

THERE are three questions you should ask yourself about the tires you buy: 1-"Will the non-skid tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

2-"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?" 3-"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

Answer No. 1-Harvey S. Firestone early realized the value of tire traction and safety and was the first to design an All Rubber Non-Skid Tire. Through the years Firestone has led the way in the design and development of tires with most effective non-skid treads.

Firestone does not depend solely on traction and non-skid tests made by its own engineers - it employs a leading University to make impartial tests for non-skid efficiency of its tires, and their most recent report shows that Firestone High Speed Tires stop the car 15% quicker than the best of all popular makes of tires.

Answer No. 2 - Blowout protection must be built into a tire. Friction and heat within the tire is the greatest cause of blowouts. Firestone protects its fires from friction and heat by a patented process which soaks every cord and insulates every strand with pure liquid rubber. This is an additional process known as Gum Dipping, by which every 100 pounds of cotton cords absorb eight pounds of rubber. This extra process costs more and is not used in any other make of tire.

Leading race drivers investigate the inbuilt qualities of the tires they use, because their very lives depend upon their tires, and they always select Firestone Tires for their daring speed runs. In fact, Firestone Tires have been on the winning cars in the gruelling Indianapolis 500-mile race for fifteen consecutive years, and they were on the 5000pound car that Ab Jenkins drove 3,000 miles in 231/2 hours on the hot salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, without tire trouble of any kind. These amazing performance records are proof of the greatest blowout protection ever known.

Answer No. 3-Thousands of car owners reporting mileage records of 40,000 to 75,000 miles, is proof of the long mileage and greater economy by equipping with Firestone High Speed Tires. Let these unequaled performance records be your buying guide.
