John N. Brugger, Jr., spent Wednesday and Thursday in Bay City.

Jas. Leslie, Wallace Leslie and Roy DePotty were business visitors in Saginaw on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Smith of Saginaw spent Sunday with Mrs. L. B. Smith.

The Tawas City park is being prepared for the approaching tourist season. Street Commissioner Frank Mueller has repaired the buildings, board walks and tables, and cleaned up the grounds.

Grand opening of the Edgewater Beach Dance Pavilion, Saturday, June 22. Music by Commodores of Saginaw.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gates and son, Larry, and Miss Helen Gates of Royal Oak were week end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gates.

The senior and junior classes and teachers of Tawas City high school were entertained at the Leslie cottage at Sand Lake Monday evening at a wiener roast by Mrs. Jas. F. Mark, Mrs. Ray Tuttle, Mrs. Ira Horton, and Mrs. Jas. H. Leslie. The young people report a splendid time.

The Zion church softball team will play the Tawas City Merchants team at 6:30 Friday evening (today).

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hatton attended the Babcock-Hatton wedding at Detroit on Monday.

H. Read Smith spent the week end in Detroit with relatives.

Announcement of the marriage of Dr. Martin Patmos of Kalamazoo to Alice Eleanor, daughter of the Rev. Roy Brown, of Ann Arbor, was received this week. Dr. Patmos was formerly a teacher in the Tawas City school.

Charles Gates of Ferndale is spending a couple of weeks at the home of his parents.

The Tawas City high school alumni association will hold its annual banquet and dance at the Masonic Temple on Saturday evening, June 15, at 6:30 o'clock. Alumni dues are 25c each, and 40c will be charged for the banquet. A splendid program is being prepared and everyone plans for a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles Main of Harrisville spent a couple of days in the city this week.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brown and family of Alabaster left Sunday for Harbor Beach where they will spend the summer.

Martin W. McCormick drew No. 1 slip which designated the 40-acre tract of land on which he and his family will settle in the Mantanuska Valley, Alaska. The "pioneers" are living in tents while log cabins are being constructed on their allotted farms.

See the Baer-Braddock fight in moving pictures Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Family Theatre, East Tawas. The fight took place last night. It is noted that the Family Theatre is showing this picture the first in the state.

Lutherans To Hold Open-Air Service and Picnic

The Zion and Emanuel Lutheran churches will hold a joint open-air service Sunday morning, June 16, near the entrance to the Tawas City cemetery. Services will begin at 10:00 o'clock, with German and English sermons delivered by the local pastors.

A basket lunch and picnic will follow the services. Games and contests have been arranged for both children and adults. Refreshments will be served on the grounds, and coffee may be obtained free of charge.

In case of inclement weather, the service and picnic will be postponed one week.

Fishing Licenses May Now Be Obtained At Office Of County Clerk

In order to make the office of the County Clerk of greater service to the people of the county, we are now equipped to furnish you with fishing and hunting licenses, both small game and deer, in their respective seasons.

When in Tawas City drop in and see us for this or any other type of service you wish. We will be glad to be of service to you.

R. H. McKenzie, County Clerk
Iosco County

Zion Lutheran Church
Congregation unites with Emanuel congregation in open air services on grounds at entrance to Tawas City cemetery. Services at ten o'clock in the morning. Picnic to follow services.

Better Housing Show Starts This Afternoon

The Iosco County Resort and Better Housing Show will open at the Community Building in East Tawas on Friday, June 14th. The show will be on Friday, Saturday and Monday, June 14, 15 and 17. It is being held under the auspices of the Iosco County Better Housing committee. It is intended to emphasize the resort facilities as well as boosting better housing. It is intended to show the facilities and activities of this resort country.

Mayor W. A. Evans of East Tawas will officially open the show Friday evening, June 14, at 7:00 o'clock. The official opening will be preceded by a parade of the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps from the American Legion hall in East Tawas to the Community Building.

The Consumers Power Company will hold a cooking demonstration during the show on every afternoon. The first demonstration will take place Friday afternoon, June 14, from 2:00 o'clock to 4:00 o'clock. The committee is also planning to have moving pictures from the State Department of Conservation to be shown on the opening evening of the show.

Saturday, June 15, is National Better Housing Day and will be observed at the show by a special program starting at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon. The Ford Motor Company will present the "Mountaineers" at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8:00 o'clock in the evening. After the entertainment by the "Mountaineers" which will start at 2:00 o'clock, the Consumers Power Company will present a cooking demonstration lasting for two hours. At 3:00 o'clock the United States Forestry Service will conduct a scenic tour of the county to points of interest. This tour will be especially interesting and it is expected that a large caravan of automobiles will take part in it. Bill Schill's German band will play at the show at 9:00 o'clock in the evening. It is also planned to have the moving pictures of the State Department of Conservation shown on the evening of Saturday, June 15.

Monday, June 17, is designated as "Oscoda Night" with band music furnished by the Oscoda high school band and other special features planned by the Community Better Housing Committee and Chamber of Commerce of Oscoda.

Among exhibits by dealers in the county will be every type of exhibit of interest to home owners and to resorters and sportsmen. The Silver Creek C. C. camp is planning on having an exhibit and also presenting tableaux at the show. The tableaux including one of the Lumbermen's Memorial monument will be shown on Friday evening and Saturday evening. The Forestry Service of the Huron National Forest will present an exhibit at the show which recently was shown in Detroit. This is an exhibit which has attracted attention far and wide.

The Consumers Power Company will present a cooking demonstration on Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. There will be no charge for admission to the show. Everyone is urged to attend. This is the first show of its kind ever presented in the county and it promises to be an event long to be remembered.

Tawas City Plans Perch Festival For Next Season

At the regular meeting of the Tawas City Board of Commerce held Monday evening it was decided that a perch festival should be sponsored next year.

Perch fishing is a favorite sport of a large number of people throughout the state. Hundreds visit this locality to fish in the bay and river each spring and it was decided to make of this a real event. Plans and a program for the festival will be arranged early and the necessary details worked out to make it a success.

Clark Kerr Is Appointed Recreation Director For Western Part Of County

The boys' and girls' recreation activities will be taken care of by Clark Kerr, newly appointed recreation director, and formerly principal of the Taft school, for the western part of the county during the summer months. These activities will include playground games, contests at the Hale, Whittemore and Sand Lake playgrounds, and swimming supervision at Sand Lake and Bass Lake. The tentative schedule is as follows:

Monday—1:30, playground at Whittemore; 7:30, playground at Sand Lake.

Tuesday—1:30, Hale playground; 7:30, Sand Lake (Swimming and Camp Fire Club).

Wednesday—10:30, Sand Lake playground; 4:00, swimming, Sand Lake.

Thursday—2:00, swimming at Bass Lake.

Friday—10:30, Sand Lake playground; 3:00, swimming, Sand Lake.

County Road Commission Makes Payment To Iosco Cities Under Horton Act

Checks were recently mailed to Tawas City, East Tawas and Whittemore in the amounts of $413.97, $580.68, and $144.21, respectively. This is the estimated amount due the cities for their portion of the 1935 weight tax under the Horton Act.

The exact amount due will not be known until the end of 1935 when all funds have been received. At that time adjustments will be made in the above estimates.

START DRIVE TO COMPLETE SHORE ROAD

"We, the undersigned, citizens and voters of Northeastern Michigan, hereby petition the immediate completion of the Huron Shore Highway now partially paved with concrete. We particularly urge that the uncompleted portions of said highway also be paved with concrete."

This petition, addressed separately to Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, Congressman Prentiss M. Brown and State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagener, is now being circulated in Iosco county under the sponsorship of the Huron Shore Highway Clubs. It is the hope of the club members that by urging immediate action, a portion of Michigan's highway allotment under the $5,000,000 federal relief appropriation may be obtained to finance the project.

Completion of the Huron Shore road will open more than 100 miles of beautiful Huron lake shore and it is estimated that it will attract 300,000 more tourists to this section of Michigan annually.

Along with the Shore road, a road of equal importance to Iosco county is M65 running from U. S. 23 through Twining, Whittemore and Hale. The state highway department indicated several years ago that it would be hard surfaced in the very near future—that work on it would go "hand-in-hand" with the Shore road. Some preliminary work was done, but the hard surfacing has not materialized.

This road leads to some of Iosco county's finest inland lakes and a large area of the AuSable river country. It would open up for improvement many miles of lake frontage and attract many people to Iosco county who desire summer homes on inland lakes.

Mrs. Fedorah Misener

Mrs. Fedorah Misener, 82 years old, passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. L. Bonney, in East Tawas Monday morning after an illness of a week due to old age.

The deceased was born in Canada. She had been a resident of East Tawas since 1880. Her husband, Henry Misener, died about two years ago.

She is survived by four sons, Oren, Joseph, Alva and Wyatt Misener, all of East Tawas; two sisters, Mrs. C. L. Bonney of East Tawas and Mrs. Matilda Boomer of Tawas City; 14 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the home of her son, Wyatt Misener. Burial was in Greenwood cemetery.

AUGRES TEAM DEFEATED BY TAWAS, 9 TO 3

Locals Continue Their Hard Hitting As Lixey Yields Only Five Safeties

Tawas continued to hit the ball hard last Sunday and pounded out a 9 to 3 victory at the expense of Augres at the athletic field here. By winning this game the locals maintained a perfect record in the league standings with two victories and no defeats.

The first inning of the contest was uneventful but in the second Augres took advantage of a couple Tawas errors, a wild pitch and a single to score two runs and go into the lead. The locals cut down this lead in their half of the same frame by tallying one run when Noel was safe on an error and successive singles by Anderson and Manager Laidlaw drove him home.

Tawas went into the lead in the fourth inning with a three-run scoring spree. After Moeller flied to right field, Anderson singled and stole second, Laidlaw was safe on an error and stole second, and M. Lixey fanned. Davis then singled, driving Anderson across the plate and sending Laidlaw to third, and also stole second. Quick, playing his first game with the locals, slapped out a single to score Laidlaw and Davis, and J. Lixey fanned to end the inning.

The locals counted another run in the fifth to strengthen their lead. Cunningham beat out an infield hit.

White-Robinson Builds New Service Station

The White-Robinson Oil company is constructing a handsome new service station on Lake street, East Tawas. The masonry work is by Leslie Nash. When completed it will be one of the finest appearing stations in northern Michigan.

It will consist of an office constructed of white porcelain brick, trimmed with blue porcelain brick, and main building of cement blocks covered with white stucco.

All new equipment will be installed, including automatic price computing meter pumps.

Gates-Pavelock

At St. Joseph's church, East Tawas, on Saturday morning, June 8, at eight o'clock occurred the wedding of Miss Gladys Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gates of this city, to John Pavelock, Rev. E. A. Kirchoff officiated.

The bride was gowned in a white organza creation, with white accessories, and carried a bouquet of snapdragons and lilies of the valley. Her attendant, Miss Helen Gates, wore a gown of yellow organza with white accessories and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Matthias Pavelock acted as best man.

After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents for the immediate families.

The bride is a graduate of St. Joseph's high school, class of 1926, and of the Iosco County Normal, class of 1927, and for the past eight years has been teaching in Iosco county.

'Marrying Widows' Reaches Riotous Comedy Heights

A happy mixture of gripping melodrama and hilarious comedy makes "Marrying Widows," the picture showing at the Family Theatre, East Tawas, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 18-19-20, a swell entertainment and stamps it definitely as one of the pictures of the new season that you had better not miss. The story is an unusual one, replete with dramatic surprises, and Minna Gombell and Lucien Littlefield, two expert laugh-makers, will keep you roaring at their hilarious comedy.

The cast was well chosen. Littlefield, as the small-town roue, a new role for him, vies with Minna Gombell for the leading honors. Judith Allen, young and lovely, is splendid in the role of Ann, and Johnny Mack Brown brings life to the role of Tom Sanger, who can't quite decide whether his romance or business comes first in his young life.

School's Out

John North, Jr.

John North, Jr., passed away suddenly last Thursday, June 6. He had been confined to his home for about two weeks. Mr. North was elected city treasurer of East Tawas a year ago and held that office at the time of his death.

President Suggests Amendment of Constitution but Asks Stop-Gap Legislation to Permit Continuance of the New Deal Program.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has created a major issue for the campaign of 1936 and stirred up widespread debate and controversy over a question that the nation had thought was settled in its early days. Furthermore, it is likely he has started the movement for a complete re-alignment of political forces into what will be virtually two new parties. Briefly, he proposes that the Constitution be changed to take from the states and give to the federal government power over the chief social and economic questions so that the New Deal may be saved from the doom pronounced upon it by the Supreme court.

In the course of a two hour talk with the Washington correspondents the President sent up a trial balloon on the plan he had conceived for remodeling the government to fit his program, declaring that he favored curtailing the sovereignty of the states and giving the central government full control over agriculture, industry, commerce and all other occupations and enterprises. He said this question of amending or re-writing the Constitution must be settled by a vote of the people. In some ways, he said, the Supreme court decision was the best thing that could have happened to the country because it clarified the issue as he presented it. The issue must be met by moving one way or the other, he said, back to the 13 states or forward to the modern interpretation.

We are the only country in the world which has not solved this problem, Mr. Roosevelt said. We thought we were solving it, but now it is thrown right back in our faces. We are relegated to the "horse and buggy" interpretation of the interstate commerce clause.

That many prominent Democrats will be alienated from their support of Mr. Roosevelt by this pronouncement is certain. Already there has been launched a movement for those of the party who seek "a return to constitutional government" to unite with the Republicans who are of like mind. Its leaders are Bainbridge Colby, who was secretary of state in President Wilson's cabinet, and Chief Justice William R. Patterson of the Massachusetts Supreme court.

Mr. Colby has written to a number of Democratic leaders of national repute proposing they meet in a southern city, preferably Richmond, "to consider some form of political action that is for our country and above party."

In a letter to a friend in Washington it was revealed that Chief Justice Patterson had decided to resign in order to join with other Jeffersonian Democrats to bring about a coalition with Republicans and the restoration of "constitutional government" to replace the New Deal.

HAVING startled the country by his proposition for changing the basic law, Mr. Roosevelt turned his attention to speedy legislation that might salvage part of the NRA, considering, it was authoritatively said, that amendment of the Constitution was not a matter of the immediate future. He asked congress to pass the Clark resolution in modified form extending the NRA until April 1, 1936, with the understanding that it would be a skeleton organization to collect and classify data but without power to enforce wages, hours or fair trade practices upon industry, except in the case of work done for the government. This was agreeable to both the senate and the house majorities. The President said there would be no attempt to circumvent the Supreme court decision or to persuade business men to enter into voluntary code agreements.

Attorney General Cummings, Solicitor General Reed, Felix Frankfurter and others were studying numerous proposals for substitutes for the NRA, but Secretary Early of the White House staff said none of the suggestions had met the requirements. Secretary of Labor Perkins had a plan for using the government's taxing powers as a means toward interstate regulation. Senators Nye and King introduced in the senate a bill to expand the powers of the federal trade commission. And there were many other propositions, but none of them seemed adequate.

CONGRESS, it now appears, will be in session until September, for the President handed to the leaders a "must" program of legislation that will keep the law makers busy for a long time. Here is the list:

1. Social security bill.
2. Omnibus banking bill.
3. Holding company bill.
4. Wagner labor relations bill, and Guffey coal regulations bill.
5. Tennessee valley bill.
6. Bankhead cotton act extension.
7. AAA amendments.
8. Tax extension bill.
9. Temporary NRA extension.
10. NRA government contract requirements.

11. Federal alcohol control legislation.
12. Federal oil control legislation.
13. Central statistical board set up.
14. Electrical farm and home authority set up.

The holding company measure has been resisted firmly in committee by two Democrats, Pettigill of Indiana and Huddleston of Alabama. In a senate debate it was vigorously attacked by Dieterich of Illinois, Democrat, and Hastings of Delaware, Republican, as an unconstitutional scheme to destroy the government's competitors in the power business. Mr. Dieterich said it was his honest conviction that the measure would destroy all private ownership of public utilities in the country, together with the millions upon millions of dollars invested in them by private citizens.

This measure was naturally the chief topic of discussion at the annual convention of the Edison Electric Institute at Atlantic City. President Thomas N. McCarter told the assembly that the privately owned power industry must fight for its life against the administration's "most devastating and destructive attack." He told of presenting "in person" to the President "a dignified memorial" setting forth "facts that seemed to the trustees to threaten the existence of this industry and appealed to the government for a get-together policy for the elimination of whatever abuses and wrongs might be found to exist," but said he got nowhere.

TEMPORARILY the work-relief program was halted when the officials found that the projects were too costly, and they set about hunting up projects that would provide maximum work at minimum cost, so that the promise to employ 3,500,000 persons can be carried out. Meanwhile approval of all applications was held up.

They have an average of $1,100 per man to spend. Yet the $1,000,000,000 in projects already planned will cost approximately $2,000 for every person taken off relief rolls and kept on government pay rolls until July 1, 1936.

To reduce the average, Mr. Roosevelt instructed Progress Director Harry L. Hopkins to search the country for local, quick work where material costs will be low with almost all the money going for labor and wages.

The plan of enlarging the Civilian Conservation corps from 300,000 to 600,000 was in process of revision because it was believed the additional men could not be enrolled if the present eighteen to twenty-five-year-old age limit were retained. The probability was the age limit would be raised to thirty years.

SOLELY on account of ill health, Ramsay MacDonald has retired as prime minister of Great Britain and gone to Lossiemouth, his home in Scotland, for a good rest. His successor as head of the national cabinet is Stanley Baldwin, the veteran leader of Conservatives who has been serving as lord president of the council and in reality has been a deputy prime minister since the national government was formed seven years ago. Mr. MacDonald exchanges places with him, thus remaining in the cabinet but without departmental duties. The date of his last cabinet meeting as prime minister was the sixth anniversary of his assumption of the office for the second time. With the exception of H. H. Asquith he has held the office continuously for the longest period in modern times.

Of the other changes in the cabinet the most important was the transfer of Sir John Simon from the foreign office to the home office. He is succeeded in the former by Sir Samuel Hoare, who has been chief secretary for India. Mr. MacDonald's son Malcolm, only thirty-four years old, was made colonial secretary.

BOUISSON'S French cabinet having fallen almost immediately, President Lebrun had great difficulty finding another premier. Pierre Laval, former foreign minister, finally undertook to form a new government and to "save the franc." He kept the foreign ministry post himself, and put Marcel Regnier in as minister of finance.

WITHOUT any special ceremony the Supreme court, at the end of its spring session, for the last time walked out of the old senate chamber which it has occupied as a courtroom since 1859. When the court reconvenes next October after its summer recess it will be housed in the magnificent new $10,000,000 marble building just east of the Capitol.

CHAIRMAN JESSE H. JONES announced that in the future the RFC will file with the interstate commission, if necessary, its own reorganization plans for railroads in financial difficulties and in which it holds a financial interest.

At the same time Mr. Jones announced a plan whereby the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad would be organized with the aid of a $24,000,000 government loan. A four-point program was worked out in conferences between Mr. Jones and H. A. Scandrett, president of the road, and will be filed for court approval.

Notice of the intention of the RFC to force reorganization plans has been given in letters to the Denver & Rio Grande Western, and the Western Pacific.

WITHOUT discussion and without a record vote the house passed the Wilcox bill calling for the construction of seven powerful army air bases at a total cost of $110,000,000. The measure specifies the locations as the Atlantic Northeast, the Atlantic Southeast and Caribbean areas, the southeastern states, the Pacific Northwest, Alaska, the Rocky mountain area, and "intermediate stations necessary for transcontinental movements in the maneuvers of the general headquarters air force."

ONE of the most prominent figures in the World war passed from the scene with the death in Essex, England, of Viscount Byng of Vimy. As a young officer of cavalry Byng distinguished himself in campaigns in the Sudan, in South Africa and in India. In the great war he won undying fame by his desperate defense of Ypres when it was attacked by overwhelmingly superior German forces which for the first time used poison gas and flame throwers. He was given a baronetcy for this and other gallant work, and after serving as governor-general of Canada from 1921 to 1926 he was made a viscount and later a field marshal. He was called from retirement in 1928 to become commissioner of London's police force, but ill health forced him to resign this post in 1931.

Another war commander who died was Gen. Alexander von Linsingen, who was at the head of the German southern army after having fought through the earlier campaigns in northern France.

JAPAN'S army, which appears to rule Japan's foreign policy, has decided that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, dictator of China, must retire. This was announced at Tientsin by Col. Takashi Sakai, chief of staff of the Japanese troops in North China. He said: "Chiang Kai-shek, using his financial and military power under the pretense of uniting China, is actually corrupting and disintegrating North China, which Chiang regards as a colony. Hence the Japanese army now feels that it is the wisest policy to uproot Chiang Kai-shek's influence, especially in North China."

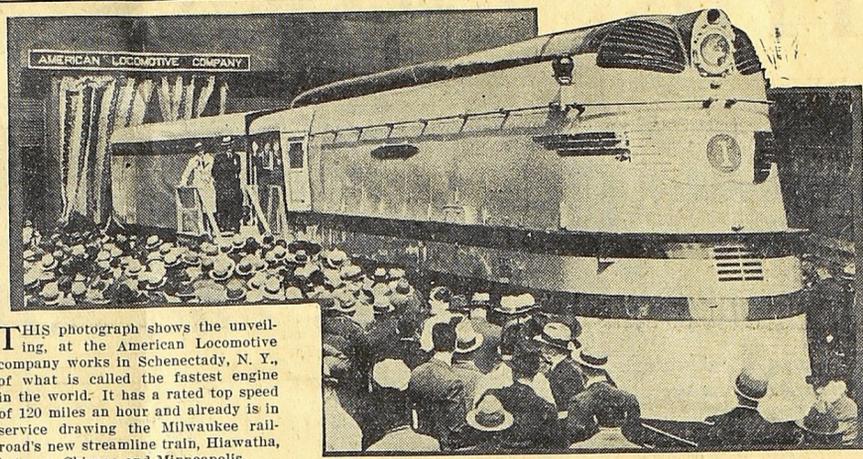

It is not the communists but Chiang Kai-shek who will put an end to the existence of China. The Japanese army intends to take the necessary measures to compel the Chinese government to abolish the Tientsin garrison corps, the Kuomintang political branches, the Blue Shirt secret police and patriotic societies encouraging the consumption of native goods. These societies have been responsible for anti-Japanese sentiment as well as disturbance of peace and order within Manchukuo.

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH'S active participation in the affairs of Transcontinental and Western Air has been terminated at least for the present. Henry B. Dupont, chairman of the board, in making the announcement, denied there had been any disagreement between the famous aviator and the company officials. "Colonel Lindbergh never has devoted 100 per cent of his time to TWA activities," Mr. Dupont said. "As advisor he drew a retainer for his technical advice. Sometimes he worked several days in succession, sometimes only two or three days a month. "He has devoted much time to the company, but now has decided to devote the next few months exclusively to his personal affairs, although he will continue to be available in emergencies for consultation. He still is TWA's technical adviser and he will be available if we need him. Probably when his personal affairs are straightened out he may be devoting a lot of time to our problems."

LITTLE George Weyerhaeuser, nine-year-old lumber fortune heir who was kidnapped from Tacoma, is safe at home, but the "snatchers" who held him captive for a week got away with $200,000 ransom money paid by the lad's family. They fled in a fast automobile, and at this writing are still at large, though pursued closely by an army of government agents and other officers.

FLOODS and tornadoes wrought havoc in Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, Texas and Kansas—a region that only recently was afflicted by drought and dust storms. It was thought as many as 250 lives were lost, and great numbers of families were rendered homeless. The worst flood area was in southern Nebraska, where the Republican river was swollen into a raging torrent.

"Fastest Engine in World" Put in Service

THIS photograph shows the unveiling, at the American Locomotive company works in Schenectady, N. Y., of what is called the fastest engine in the world: It has a rated top speed of 120 miles an hour and already is in service drawing the Milwaukee railroad's new streamline train, Hiawatha, between Chicago and Minneapolis.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

NANNY IS SURE DANNY IS DEAD

THE silvery light of sweet Mistress Moon flooded the Green Meadows and chased the Black Shadows clear back to the very edges of the Green Meadows. It was just such a night as a Meadow Mouse loves, and Nanny Meadow Mouse would have enjoyed it and rejoiced in it and been thoroughly happy but for one thing. The truth is, Danny Meadow Mouse had spoiled that beautiful night for Nanny Meadow Mouse. He didn't know he had, but he had. You see, Nanny was worried and her worry was all on account of Danny. The newest babies were quite safe in their snug nest, hidden—well, I won't tell you just where it was hidden. That was Danny's and Nanny's secret, so I guess I haven't any right to tell you just where that snug little nest was. If I did they might not trust me again.

Anyway, those newest babies were quite safe, because they were too young to crawl out even if they should waken, which they were not likely to do because their little stomachs were full.

He Certainly Must Be Dead; Nanny Was Sure of It.

Little Meadow Mice are like other babies in that when their stomachs are full they sleep and grow. So Nanny didn't worry about the babies.

The half-grown children had romped and played in the moonlight until they had become so tired that they were glad to curl up in their beds. They were dreaming the pleasantest of Meadow Mouse dreams. So Nanny didn't worry about them. But she did worry about Danny Meadow Mouse. Why didn't he come home? Never since she had known him had Danny been gone so long. Something must have happened to him. She was sure of it.

Had Reddy or Granny Fox caught him? She hadn't seen either of them on the Green Meadows that day, but one of them might have been there long enough to catch Danny without being seen by her. Or perhaps Black Puss the Cat from Farmer Brown's had surprised Danny. She had seen Redtail the Hawk sailing over the Green Meadows twice during the day and it might be that he had dined on Danny. It was a dreadful thought. She couldn't get rid of it. If something dreadful hadn't happened, Danny never would have stayed away like this. Nanny tried to be hopeful. She tried to take a nap, for she was very, very tired. But she couldn't sleep. She couldn't even keep still. She kept creeping out to look along the private little paths she and Danny had made through the grass, hoping each time to see him hurrying home along one of them.

Sweet Mistress Moon climbed higher and higher in the sky and then began to go lower and lower, and the Black Shadows began once more to creep out across the Green Meadows. Soon jolly, round, red Mr. Sun would come up to chase them away altogether and a new day would begin. Still no Danny. He must be dead. Nanny was sure of it. © T. W. Burgess.—WNU Service.

QUESTION BOX by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have just taken a job as a waiter in a downtown restaurant. I don't get a big salary; so depend a lot on my tips. Today a man had his meal, and when I gave him his check he said he could not give me a tip, as he only had enough money to pay the check. I'll never make any money that way. What shall I do the next time a man says that to me? Yours truly, I. SERVWELL.

Answer: The next time a man says he only has enough to pay for his check just take the check back and add it up again.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I have a girl friend who has a nasty habit of always saying nasty things about all the other girls. Everybody knows that about her, yet last night a boy friend who knows her said she was something to adore. What do you make out of that? Sincerely, C. KRITS.

Answer: When he said she was something to adore he probably meant that she was a knocker.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I went to a school dance the other night and danced with the same girl twice. She let me take her home, and as I left her I told her I thought she was the sweetest girl in the whole world and now she won't go out with me any more. I wonder why? Truly yours, WHATT SRONG.

Answer: She doesn't want to disappoint you.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am a girl seven years old. My teacher in Sunday school asked me how many commandments there are. I said, "ten," then she said, "suppose I broke one?" and I couldn't answer her. Now she says I can't come back to Sunday school until I bring her an answer. Can you help me? Truly yours, MAY B. U. KNOE.

Answer: That's very simple, my little of the rind of each and a cupful of banana pulp. Peel and scrape bananas and put through a ricer or sieve. Beat the fruit mixture and sirup together, chill and stir in three cupfuls of whipped cream, or the whites of three eggs. Freeze to a soft mush.

Braised New Cabbage. Melt one-fourth of a cupful of sweet fat in a saucepan, add two green apples and two onions finely chopped; cook gently for three minutes, then add one shredded cabbage, three cloves, one-half cupful of vinegar, salt and pepper to season. Cover tightly and simmer until the cabbage is tender.

Tuna Fish Salad. Soak one-half envelope of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water, add three-fourths of a cupful of hot salad dressing and stir until well dissolved. Add one-half cupful of finely diced celery, one minced green pepper, one can of tuna that has been lightly flaked, salt and paprika to taste. Turn after blending well into individual molds, set away to harden. Serve on lettuce with a spring of parsley or water cress on top. Serve with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Summer Squash en Casserole. Take two and one-half cupfuls of cooked summer squash, add three-fourths of a cupful of thick tomatoes, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, one tablespoonful of grated onion, one-half cupful of seasoned chopped meat, fish or nuts, mix well, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until well browned. AUSTRALIA'S BEAR

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

IF AN imaginative child could be transported from a visit to an American toy shop to the midst of an Australian eucalyptus forest, and there shown for the first time the Australian native bear, or Koala, climbing among the branches and nibbling the leaves, he would be hard to convince that the teddy bears he had been inspecting had not been brought magically to life; for the Koala, with his round roly-poly body, short arms and pointed nose, is the living prototype of the jolly toy bear that helps make Christmas morning merry in many an American nursery.

Koalas are found in eastern and southeastern Australia, but do not occur on any of the neighboring islands or in the western half of the continent. They were probably once the most common animals in the Australian bush, but about 40 years ago a widespread epidemic overtook them and they died by thousands.

They also were hunted extensively for the sake of their warm, thick fur, and as a result are now extinct in New South Wales. A few hundred are still to be found in Victoria, in carefully protected localities, and a fair number remain in Queensland. Little is known of the nature of the disease that so nearly exterminated them, but study is being given the subject now, with a view to preserving the remnants of this formerly numerous species.

The Koala is one of the most interesting of Australian animals. He has a thick grayish-colored fur, a prominent black nose, and stands about two feet high. A good specimen weighs about 30 pounds. He is one of the most inoffensive animals imaginable, doing no harm or damage to anyone or anything.

He Lives in Trees.

Essentially an arboreal and mainly nocturnal animal, he spends his time in the branches of certain species of eucalyptus trees, where he feeds at night upon the tender young leaves. If approached, he will sit and stare at the intruder with a surprised expression, and only if danger threatens he will climb to the topmost branches. He is rather inactive, especially in summer, and often sits in the fork of a tree, sleeping the daylight hours away. The adult males are fond of perching themselves on a dead limb at the top of a tall tree, from which they appear to enjoy their survey of the surrounding landscape.

They have five toes on each foot, and each toe is armed with a curved, needle-sharp claw. The toes are in groups of twos and threes, the two claws being in the form of a double thumb. They are thus enabled to climb easily and also to grasp the branches of a tree and pull them down for the purpose of feeding on the leaves.

Even an iron telegraph post offers no obstacle to their climbing powers, and they have been seen sitting among the wires on top of one, although it is difficult to say what motive took them into such a position. A tall flagstaff seems to present an irresistible temptation, and even on the windiest of days they climb such posts to perch on the top.

The leaves of certain kinds of the Australian eucalyptus (gum trees) form their staple diet, although occasionally they feed on the bark of certain trees and on sphagnum moss, perhaps as a tonic or medicine. They never drink water in a state of nature, but are apparently able to obtain enough moisture from feeding on the juicy gum shoots from which the commercial eucalyptus oil is extracted.

Make Delightful Pets.

Koalas are such quaint and attractive little creatures that they are much in demand as household pets. They are very easily tamed, but as they grow older they are careless of the fact that their claws have a needle-like sharpness, which will easily penetrate the thickest and strongest cloth.

Although when living in the bush they take no liquid, in captivity they quickly acquire a taste for weak sweetened tea and starchy foods. This depravity is the cause of their undoing, for if given such things in mistaken kindness they soon begin to lose condition and in a few months die from indigestion. Even when fed only on eucalyptus leaves, they are difficult to keep alive in captivity.

Because of their unique interest and the difficulty of keeping them alive in confinement, and because of their now decreased numbers, the Victorian government strictly forbids their capture. But, in order that they may be seen under normal conditions, they are gradually being established in suitable places, where there is an abundance and variety of their natural foods.

It is now possible, within a two-hour run of Melbourne, with its more than a million inhabitants, to see the Koala in his native gum trees, and it is hoped, through the exercise of strict protective measures, to preserve this interesting little animal for posterity.

"Joey" Reared in Pouch

The Koala is a marsupial, having a pouch in which the single cub—"Joey," in the language of the bush—after birth in a very immature state, is sheltered and fed for some months. When about six inches in length, it gradually leaves the pouch and spends its time in its mother's arms, not clasped by the mother, because she needs all her toes for hanging onto the trees, but clinging to her thick fur by means of its own sharp little claws. This is the usual position of the young until it is big enough to look after itself; but if danger threatens, necessitating active climbing on the part of the mother, the youngster quickly clambers around upon her back, so as not to hamper her movements. There it hangs on securely while she climbs to safety.

Koalas are, as a rule, silent, but when frightened or annoyed will cry very much like a child. In some of their habits they closely resemble human beings. A mother bear has been seen to cuff her little one, probably for some transgression of bush law, until it cried as if broken-hearted. Contrary to what one might think, the bears are very unsociable among themselves. It is extremely rare to find more than one in a tree, unless it be a very large tree. Even where they are fairly abundant they seem to prefer a solitary life.

A few years ago a number were placed on an island for their better protection, and when visited later had scattered over the whole extent of the place, none being closer than 200 or 300 yards to another.

Yale College Gets Copy of Dan Emmett's "Dixie"

Probably no more stirring tune has been produced in this country than the inimitable "Dixie," says the New Orleans Times Picayune. It has a thrilling, soul-searching quality that puts it on a parity with the other great music of the world. When we were small we learned to sing it in school. As we grew older the words and rhythm came to have a deeper meaning. "Dixie" is as Southern as corn pone and molasses; as American as Old Glory.

Shortly after it had been written in 1859 by Daniel Decatur Emmett, "Dixie" became the song of the Confederacy. It was inseparably woven by events into the warp and woof of Southern history. To its martial cadences the men of the South marched through four years of bitter warfare on behalf of a cause they deemed just. During the trying days of reconstruction "Dixie" helped the people of Dixie to forget their burdens. Since then it has won national recognition, and while it must remain forever essentially Southern, it is now a part of the pattern of the Republic.

Thus the elation of Yale university over acquiring one of the three original manuscripts of the famous song is easily understandable. The manuscript, copied from the original score by the hand of its composer in 1902, just two years before his death, has been purchased for the library of Calhoun college by the associate fellows of that branch of the university. Well may Yale be proud of such a treasure.

White Stationery for Mourning

White stationery of good quality is correct for the correspondence of persons in mourning. Stationery with a narrow border of black is also frequently used, but it is not as good taste as white stationery. Cards of acknowledgment may be sent to all friends and acquaintances who have sent condolences, but a personal note is much more appreciated.

TREMENDOUS TRIFLES

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

COW THAT STARTED A WAR

SHE was only a skinny, foot-sore old cow, abandoned by a party of emigrants on the Oregon trail. But she was found there by a Miniconjou Sioux Indian. He needed a piece of hide to patch his worn moccasins, so he saw no good reason why he shouldn't kill this forlorn beast to get it. When his act was reported at Fort Laramie, that cow suddenly became very valuable, so her owner declared. The Indians offered to pay him $10. He demanded $25 and the Indians refused to give it.

Then Lieutenant Grattan, young, inexperienced and hot-headed, obtained permission to go into the Miniconjou camp and arrest the Indian who had killed the cow. Taking 33 men with him, Grattan marched out to the Sioux camps. In vain, two friendly chiefs, Bear That Scatters, a Brule, and Man Afraid of His Horses, an Ogala, tried to settle the matter peaceably. Grattan remained obdurate.

Suddenly the soldiers opened fire and within a few minutes Grattan and all his men were dead—victims of their commander's obstinacy.

Soon afterwards, Col. W. S. Harney was sent with an army to "punish" the "hostiles." Harney surrounded the camp of a Brule chief, Little Thunder, and demanded that the slayers of Grattan be given up. Little Thunder could not comply with the demand for the very good reason that his people had had nothing to do with the tragedy.

So Harney attacked and there followed the so-called Battle of Ash Hollow, with its shameful record of 86 friendly Indians slaughtered, among them many women and children, five wounded and about 70 women and children captured. Small wonder that the Sioux learned to hate the white men and to fight them bitterly for the next 20 years. And an old worn-out cow was one of the causes of that war!

BOOMERANG

IN 1840 President Martin Van Buren was the Democratic candidate for re-election. The Whigs, passing by the great Henry Clay, nominated Gen. William Henry Harrison, whose principal claim to distinction was his career as a successful Indian fighter.

One of Clay's friends, hearing of "Old Tippecanoe's" nomination, grumpily declared, "Give him a barrel of hard cider, settle a pension of $2,000 a year on him and, my word for it, he will sit for the remainder of his days in his log cabin by the side of a sea-coal fire, studying moral philosophy." The editor of a Democratic paper in Baltimore thought it would be a good joke on the Whigs to publish that statement. But it turned out to be a fine joke on the Democrats!

Other Democratic papers reprinted it. Immediately the Whigs got busy. So General Harrison wasn't fit to be President because he was a poor man and a plain man, eh? Well, he was just as good a man as Martin Van Buren, living in luxury in the White House and spending the taxpayers' money foolishly, etc. etc.

In vain the Democrats tried to undo the mischief by protesting that they hadn't started this talk. A Whig, one of Mr. Clay's good friends, had done it. But it was no use. The "Log Cabin-Hard Cider" campaign of the "singing Whigs" was sweeping the country. They were singing the praises of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too," and they were shouting "Van, Van Is a Used-Up Man."

So Harrison went to the White House, sent there by a small item printed in a Democratic newspaper. It was a sneering item that turned out to be a boomerang against those who used it.

BARBS

FLATTENED out, they wouldn't measure much over an inch in length. They look unimportant and harmless enough, these little pieces of wire, sharpened at each end. But, take enough of them, bend them in loops and place them at regular intervals along two strands of wire woven together. Then . . . well, ask some World war veteran if he ever had to listen to the agonized cries of a wounded buddy caught in a tangle of barbed wire!

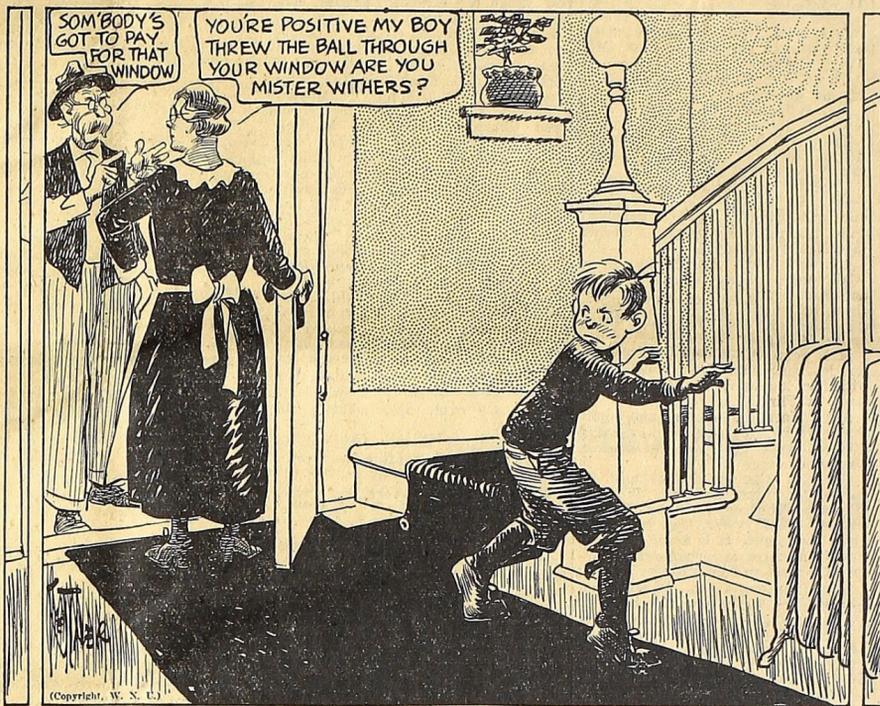

Who invented barbed wire? Many are the candidates for that honor. But whoever it was, he could not have foreseen how those little prongs would change the course of history on the Great Plains of the West. Time was when thousands and thousands of longhorn cattle ranged over hundreds of square miles of land and were trailed to roaring "cow towns" by reckless crews of daring horsemen. That was in the day of the "open range."

Then barbed wire crossed the Mississippi. The cattle trails were closed by mile after mile of wire—two strands nailed to posts. Next came the "nestler" to plow under the buffalo grass on which the longhorns had fed.

The barbs on the wire were the tremendous trifles which ended the cattle era of the old West and sent one of the most picturesque figures in American history, the cowboy, galloping down the trail to oblivion.

Smart Wardrobe in One Pattern

You can make yourself a mighty smart summer wardrobe right from this one pattern. Simplicity's the thing—shirtmaker frocks are "the top"—and here's a beautifully fitting model that may take many variations. Made in a tie silk or print it is perfect under coats now and on into summer—make it again as in the other sketch—with square neckline and loose sleeves, in a solid color. Then start all over and use a striped or checked silk or printed lawn. The material influences the frock to a great extent—and this is a perfect one for developing the lovely new fabrics.

Pattern 2197 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Sizes 16 takes 3 1/4 yards 39 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address, and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to the Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

Using Numerals for Dates
In using numerals for dates, the custom in the United States is to use the following order: Month, day, year. In some foreign countries, such as Great Britain, the order of day, month and year is followed.

The Penny Post
The Penny Post was an institution transplanted from London by Benjamin Franklin soon after he was appointed one of the two deputy postmasters for the Colonies in 1753. and, like its London counterpart, had grown up in the post office but, strictly speaking, was not a government function. The main difference between the two was that in London the profits from the local post were assigned to a court favorite, while in America they were the perquisites of the individual postmasters or the carriers whom the latter might appoint.

Right to "Rent the Sea"

The only country in the world which allows individuals to collect a private toll from deep-sea fishermen is Denmark. For many centuries it has held steadfast to a law which gives the owner of shore land the right to "rent the sea" in front of his property for eel fishing. In some years this total rent has amounted to as much as $250,000.—Collier's Weekly.

Lion-Fixing in South Africa

Lion-fixing was formerly a profitable occupation in South Africa. Natives would poison an antelope, kill it and place it in a likely spot. Lions eating the poisoned meat would become groggy, and white hunters, for a price, were then permitted to shoot the beast in the open without danger to themselves.

No Cows Brought by Pilgrims

No cows were brought by the Pilgrims to the United States in 1620. The first cows imported were in 1624, by Governor Winthrop, according to Albert S. Bolles in the Industrial History of the United States. These cows were raised primarily for hides, secondarily for meat, and only incidentally for milk.

Cornfields at Waterloo

The ground of the battlefield of Waterloo is today an intensively cultivated district of rich cornfields.

Wornout Money Into Sewer
An average of $60,000,000 in Canadian money goes down the sewer annually from the parliament building in Ottawa, observes a writer in Capper's Weekly. This total represents Canadian paper money of all denominations taken out of circulation due to wear and tear. The average life of Canada's paper money bills is less than ten months. The wornout paper currency is boiled beyond recognition with the aid of chemicals to obliterate the print and coloring. The bills are then put through a beater and then dumped into the sewer pipe.

Liberality Towards the Weak
The growing liberalty towards the weak in social life corresponds to that respect for the minority, in political life, which is the essence of freedom.

County Burns Road Bonds at Celebration

Pavement system outlives 1915 bond issue—"good for another 20 years" say local taxpayers

WAY back in 1915 Vermilion County, Illinois, floated a $1,500,000 bond issue to build a system of paved roads. Vermilion people wanted to get out of the mud—to connect towns—to speed produce to market—to bring schools closer. Naturally, they chose concrete.

And the wisdom of their choice was shown on June 5 when a great concourse of farmers and towns-people drove over the 18-year-old concrete roads to watch the burning of the paid-up bonds at a big celebration in Danville.

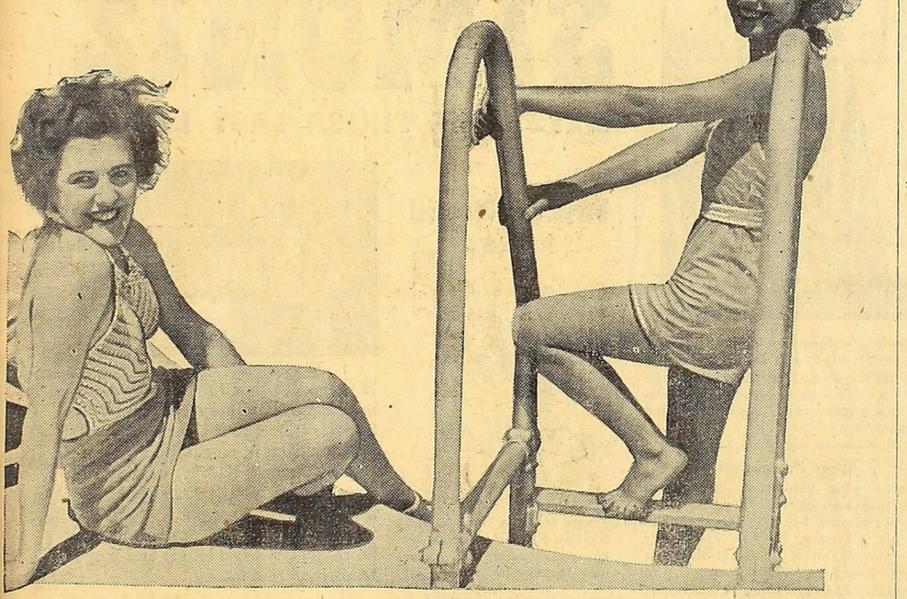

The original 145 miles of 10-foot concrete roads are still in service (50 miles of pavement since widened to 18 feet) and more have been added until this farsighted county has approximately 250 miles of pavement on farm-to-market routes.

The original concrete is in splendid condition after 18 years' hard use. That's typical of concrete. It is low in upkeep... cheapest in the long run... safe night or day, wet or dry... comfortable and economical to drive on.

Get in the Swim—in Michigan

WITH the passing of spring, every one begins to think about vacation; and as you plan yours, you demand at least two features: It must be spent amid the kind of surroundings you like best. Its cost must not exceed the amount you have fixed as a maximum.

No matter what sort of vacation you prefer, the ideal site for it lies right in the State of Michigan. You need not go farther—and your money will!

If your favorite sport is fishing, you have in Michigan's famed streams and myriad sparkling inland lakes the perfect angler's paradise. If you prefer golf, you can choose among hundreds of fine links throughout the State. If it is touring by automobile that appeals most to you, Michigan offers you alluring motor trails lined by an interesting variety of natural scenic beauties.

And if you are a lover of water sports, you will find your native State bountifully equipped to provide you with exactly the kind of vacation site you prefer. Here you can pick and choose among five thousand lakes, bodies of water ranging in size from a pond to a vast inland sea.

Spend your own vacation in Michigan. Call its unsurpassed facilities to the attention of your friends in neighboring states. By doing so, you will assure them of a pleasanter vacation. In addition, you will help to promote the popularity and prosperity of your native State.

It is for the purpose of doing our share in this promotion that this series of advertisements is being published by the Michigan Bell Telephone Company, an organization that prospers only as the citizens of Michigan prosper.

SYNOPSIS

Following his father's bitter criticism of his idle life, and the withdrawal of financial assistance, Hal Ireland, only son of a wealthy banker, finds himself practically without funds but with the promise of a situation in San Francisco, which city he must reach, from New York, within a definite time limit. He takes passage with a cross-country auto party on a "share expense" basis.

That faint visit of ominousness was finished now, with every one awake, cramped stretching and resetting. Or was it finished? Had it simply returned to its hiding, to wait again? A silly thought. What could there be ominous in this shabby car, except the way Miller drove?

The flat strap of concrete curved, dipped and ran on into Pennsylvania and found the steel-cities. Mrs. Pulsipher gave the impression of knowing it was a conspiracy—entered into by her husband, among others—that kept them from reaching Harrisburg while the visibility was good. John half-heartedly tried to get her to admit that the bridge lights, contained in glass stars, were beautiful; but she wouldn't. Her voice, as she asked Kerrigan what river this was, rang grim in familiarity with martyrdom. And her "Oh," when he told her it was the Susquehanna, implied she might tomorrow find out it had been the Tiber or the Yang-tze, and she robbed of the glamor.

Something was at work clearing the moody sluggishness from Hal's head. A drifting sense of loneliness, of melancholy that had seemed to belong with the broad river slowly mourning the sunset, ran away out of his spirit. He was, after all, a human being—with faculties compactly contained in a fit and useful body, and with rights to his own character. He was on his way to California, to a job, and to the confusion of his father.

Sullenness was nonsense, wasteful nonsense; premonition was nonsense. What could happen that he didn't want to have happen? Why make a whole fertile week blank by wanting nothing to happen, by ignoring his power to make things happen? His father had said Hal didn't know people, among other things—among almost all other things; well, he would arrive on the coast knowing at least seven and ready to dare the Old Man to believe any two of them.

He thought vividly of the Trafford girl behind him—her eyes, though he couldn't see them now, still solemnly absorbed in their own defensive contentment. Far, far worse luck there could have been than this of catching a car that carried anyone so well favored, so challenging in looks as well as in manner. He smiled at thought of the challenge—undesigned, perhaps, but still a challenge. Prouder manners than that had been altered, and with less incentive. Look out, you blue-and-gold vixen; it makes me mad to be made mad, and I shall keep books on you from now on.

But Kerrigan first—for himself, for the character disguised under that scholarly remoteness of his brown eyes; and for the Trafford girl's proprietorship in him, her air almost of implying that they knew each other already. Careful, Ireland; first thing you know you'll be glad you've come.

"Think nothing of it," said Kerrigan. "Pleasure." "If you can keep those eyes, or whatever they are, turned ahead, I might still be young when we get to the Coast." "S'pose he'd let you drive?" said Kerrigan. "Doubt it," said Hal. Pulsipher snapped his fingers as if he'd just remembered something. "Hu-hu-hungry," he said. "So'm I," said Mrs. Pulsipher. "We ought to stop for supper." "Let's say the next town," said Kerrigan. "Yes," said Mrs. Pulsipher. "Awful hungry," said John. So as they entered the next place, there were hopeful stirrings and estimates of the degree of civilization shown by the buildings.

"There, whirlwind," Kerrigan said to Miller. "A garage for princes. All white inside, and a mechanic in a white monkey-suit. You'll like it there and they'll like you." In another moment a spasm seized Pulsipher, shooting out his arm and making him cry, "Whoa! Eat, it says: look, that sign. Eat." "It looks clean," said Mrs. Pulsipher mistrustfully. "Clean's a horse-chestnut shell, ma'am," said Kerrigan. "Shall we try it?" "Yes yes yes," said Pulsipher quickly, so that no one could beat him with doubts.

They got out stiffly. The ladies and Pulsipher went in. Hal and Kerrigan stayed to hear the momentous plan in ferment behind Miller's bleary eyes, with Crack leaning quietly against the car to listen.

"Y'see," said Miller, "it's mountains on the road pretty soon and it'd be kinda nice to get them valves fixed 'fore we get to 'em."

"Good idea," said Kerrigan, "A kitty. And so?"

"Well," said Miller, chuckling at having figured it out by himself, "why don't I go back to that garriidge and kinda look around and see what it looks like while you folks start eatin'?" Then if I like the looks and the price is right, I'll leave her there and we can put up in this place."

He ground the gears portentously, and the car lumbered up on the opposite curb as he turned around. By tacit consent they watched him go slowly down the street. When he turned into the garage at the far end of it, they moved to the luncheon door.

The ladies had disappeared. Pulsipher stood at the cashier's desk choosing a cigar from the box the proprietor offered him. The proprietor, a decent little body with a wide grin, one misdirected eye, and a birdlike desire to please, nodded welcome as they came in.

"Come far today?" "Noo York city," said Pulsipher proudly.

"Noo York city," the man repeated with polite interest. "Touring folks, 'ey?" He looked pleasantly at Kerrigan.

"Traveling folks," said Kerrigan, his rich voice gentle and friendly. "Share-expense."

"Ohhhh," said the man, deeply impressed, even a little worried. "And you say your driver's outside? Ain't he going to eat?"

"He's gone down to that garage at the end of town to see about repairs," said Kerrigan. "Have you got a good hotel here—cheap?"

"Why, yes, yes—I guess so," said the proprietor. He looked at Pulsipher, around at the others, and back at Kerrigan. "Say," he went on diffidently. "I don't like to butt into you folks' business, but—has this feller got your grips an' all with him?"

"Yes," said Kerrigan. "Yes," said Crack, his indolence pierced by direct interest; "and our fares to California."

There was a moment of silence, and the proprietor's attention sharpened on Kerrigan. "Well," he said, "you folks are probably all right; but they was a party like you—what d'ye call it—share-expense? They was a party over Lewistown way got hung up by a feller! went to get some repairs. They never did see him again. An' the Chambera Commerce had to chip in to get a couple of 'em back t'Noo York."

Kerrigan looked round at Hal in grave inquiry. In the newly empty silence, Hal felt Barry's eyes on him and he turned to her, ready to mock any share she took in this apprehension. But she had no share in it. Her look, full at him, was warm and secure in scorn, without sympathy or appeal; and the faint, untaunting smile at her closed lips said fearlessly, "This will happen for all of you: your luggage and your money don't matter; and if yours don't, why should these other peoples'—to you? Without haste, her eyes confirmed his unimportance and turned away."

He swung around toward the door—the thing having happened so quickly that the silence of awe was still fresh on the others. "I'll go," he said to Kerrigan. And without the faintest notion of what he would do—only an angry urgency in him to do something—posted out by the screen door and helped it slam hard behind him. One way or another, you—whatever you are—you'll pay for all this.

Miller's mind was too much drugged with chronic sleepiness and stupidity to think of running out with car, luggage, and fares. But just suppose some habit of crookedness were channeled through his stupidity. Suppose—Hal looked more sharply at the glare of lights and his step brightened. D—n the girl. The scoring for today was surely on her side. Tomorrow was another day. Hal's gray eyes stirred with merriment. To find his way past those solemn defenses of hers would be a zestful job; to chasten that clear, willful cussedness amounted to a necessity now, a duty as well as a pleasure.

Hal was walking out with decision when he cleared the last building. And there in the white light of the yard stood the long-suffering car with its corded bale of luggage behind. Hal gave a laugh, half relief, half triumph. It would be fun to press that into her steady blue eyes when he got back.

Through the plate glass of the office he could see Miller talking to a man in a white monkey-suit. Something in Miller's attitude was different; not precisely an alertness, but the sleepy suggestion of interest, of purpose almost. If I go, Hal thought, she'll say my coming made him change his mind; if I just stand here watching, he can get away as clean as if I were back there eating the dinner for which my system decorously calls.

He stood another moment trying to define the change in Miller's listless posture. Then he walked carefully over gravel to the car, carefully opened the door—his eyes watchful of the office—and climbed into the tonneau. On the floor behind the jump-seat there was room in which to lie curled and hidden. It was faintly exciting—like a time Hal remembered when he had listened behind a curtain in the dining room while his governess told the butler how she would punish him for being late to his supper. And what a fine ass he'd look if Miller found him there.

There were voices soon, and the crunch of gravel under slow feet. "I kinda thought," Miller was saying, "it was some purty good hills over there, but I jus' didn't remember where they begun." He chuckled in sleepy cleverness.

"Well, good night," said another voice; and Miller said, "Sure." The car tipped creaking toward one running board, the door slammed, and Miller's short, contemplative breathing sounded close overhead. Hal steeled himself to be touched, but then there was the hard catch and churning of the starter. A lurch over the curb confused his judgment of the direction in which Miller turned. But quickly the car was in high, and running fast; it was the open road under them, and Hal's breath stood still for a suspended instant of dismay.

Then he was good and angry—anger flooding his joints and his purpose with warm lubricant. By G—d, their best clothes, probably, and their money—snatched from them by this animal, this drugged ape! As he raised himself from the floor, Hal had a savage wonder whether Kerrigan would like to fill the hole in his collection of experience by killing Miller.

His next act suggested itself as glibly as if he'd done this sort of thing often. He doubled his right forefinger and, kneeling on one of the jump seats, leaned forward and pushed the knuckle against Miller's ribs. Miller didn't start or tremble or look around, but the car began wearily to slow down.

"Pull up to the side," Hal said, disgust flattening out the anger in his voice.

Miller obeyed—gently, as if he had been chauffeur to old ladies. "Now," said Hal, "I want your wallet with all the money, your license, and your registration." Miller's futile fingers took out the fat, shabby wallet and spread its compartments to show everything. Hal put it into an inside pocket and took his knuckle from Miller's ribs.

"Slide into the other seat," said Hal. Miller obeyed, with a strange, sleepy air of gratitude. Hal stepped out of the tonneau and got into the front without looking at Miller's face.

"Ever been in jail?" Hal asked him as the car started.

"Yes," said Miller, very low.

"Want to go again?"

"No," said Miller. Hal ran past a farm road, backed the car into it, and swung out on the highway again toward the town. Miller parted his lips with a sticky sound and cleared his throat.

"I was jus' takin' her up the road to kinda try out an' see..." "Don't speak unless you're spoken to," said Hal quietly. "Get it?"

"Yes," Miller whispered. (TO BE CONTINUED)

Vulcanizing Rubber Soft rubber usually is vulcanized with 5 per cent or less of sulphur, whereas in hard rubber as much as 60 per cent sulphur may be used.

Finding New Uses for Products of the Farm

A conference between representatives of agriculture, industry and science held at Dearborn, Mich., was devoted to the possibility of producing crops for industrial purposes. The importance of chemistry in converting raw products into useful commodities was stressed.

Growing motor fuel on the farm was pictured as a $5,000,000,000-a-year income builder for future farmers. The land requirement for the production of 25,000,000 gallons of alcohol a year was estimated at 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 acres. There seems to be no unsolved technical problem standing in the way of utilizing alcohol as a fuel, though there doubtless will be improvements and refinements developed.

Motor fuel is a competitive product. Users of automobiles will continue to utilize the type which furnishes power at lowest cost and greatest convenience. Present supplies of gasoline and those immediately in prospect, together with the efficiency developed in distribution, give it a decided advantage over other fuels. If production should decline and prices increase materially, substitutes will be given greater consideration. With corn selling at $1 a bushel, discussion of its diversion into uses other than for feeding have largely subsided. Those who advocate its conversion into alcohol to be mixed with gasoline for fuel presuppose a decided reduction in prices.

Ethyl alcohol can be made from any farm crop. It is derived largely from carbohydrates. In Europe unmarketable potatoes are utilized largely for that purpose. Much of the molasses, a by-product of the sugar industry, is now converted into alcohol. There is, however, no indication that any crop is grown primarily for that purpose, but materials of low value, or in some instances waste products, are utilized. It probably will be many years before corn will be grown primarily as a fuel crop.

Soy bean oil is extensively used in paints and varnishes. Linseed oil has many industrial users. Tung oil trees are grown in the South in a limited way with prospects of greater expansion. Levulose, a form of sugar, can be made from artichokes or sunflowers. Cornstalks have been successfully converted into wall board, slash pine into paper pulp.

New uses for other farm products will be discovered, but the problems of getting production costs low enough, of factories located close to the source of supply to save labor and transportation costs, will have to be solved before commercial activity may be developed.

American agriculture has been conducted upon an export basis. As yet no workable plan of self-sufficiency has been developed. It is a wholesome thing for agriculture, industry and science to co-operate in an effort to develop the market for farm products as any success along this line will add to the standard of living in rural communities and make a wider market for industrial goods.

Meanwhile the farms need foreign markets.—Kansas City Times.

Argentina Growing The Argentina national statistical bureau has published a report estimating Argentina's population on December 31, 1932, at 11,946,653, an increase of 50 per cent since the 1914 census. The population of Buenos Aires is 2,214,702, an increase of 40 1/2 per cent.

WHEN LIVES ARE AT STAKE

You need the same protection that race drivers demand

KELLY PETILLO ON MAY 30, WON THE 500-Mile Indianapolis Race on Firestone Tires, breaking the track record and driving the entire distance at a rate of 106.24 miles per hour.

This record is an outstanding demonstration of tire efficiency. To go 500 miles in less than five hours on this rough and bumpy 26-year-old brick track, without tire trouble of any kind, demonstrates the strength and blowout protection that Firestone builds into their Gum-Dipped Tires.

AB JENKINS ALSO RECENTLY demonstrated the stamina, efficiency, and blowout protection built into Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires. He drove his 5000 pound car over the hot salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, 3000 miles in 23 1/2 hours. This was an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, and although temperatures were as high as 120°, he had no blowouts or tire trouble of any kind.

These records are made possible by special construction features built into Firestone Tires.

Take no chances—protect your life and the lives of others by letting us equip your car with Firestone Tires and give you the Safety and Blowout Protection that race drivers demand.

Before you buy new tires ask yourself these three questions

- 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"
2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"
3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

- ANSWER No. 1—Leading university tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop your car 15% quicker than the best of all popular makes of tires.
ANSWER No. 2—Unequaled performance records for sixteen consecutive years prove that Gum-Dipping gives you the greatest blowout protection ever known.
ANSWER No. 3—Thousands of car owners report unequalled mileage records—evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

advanced to third on two wild pitches and scored when Anderson knocked out his third successive single.

Selle, who had been working on the slab for the visitors, was relieved by Lawrence Gardner in the sixth. Gardner slipped through the sixth without any trouble but in the seventh the Tawas boys touched off some more fireworks. Singles by Quick, Cunningham and Moeller, coupled with three stolen bases and an error, resulted in a three-run increase in the locals' score.

AuGres added its final tally in the eighth when Engleman was safe on a wild pitch third strike and R. Warren doubled. The locals also counted their last run in the eighth on singles by Mark and Quick and a wild pitch.

M. Lixey's performance on the mound for Tawas was very commendable. Besides holding AuGres to five scattered blows, no two coming in the same inning, he struck out 11 men and gave but one base on balls. Selle, AuGres' starting hurler, yielded seven safeties in the five innings he faced the local batsmen and whiffed eight men, while his successor, Lawrence Gardner, fanned four batters and allowed five hits in three frames.

Don Anderson carried away batting honors for the day with three hits in four times up. He was followed closely by Quick with three bingles in five trips to the plate, and Cunningham with two hits in four attempts.

The Tawas attack has functioned very smoothly in the two league games played to date. Thirty hits and twenty-three runs have been made off the six pitchers who have faced the local sluggers in these two contests.

Next Sunday Tawas journeys to Bentley to take on the fast-traveling club from that place. Bentley is also enjoying a perfect record for the season and will put up a stiff battle to keep its slate clean.

Age of Captive Birds
Among captive birds the bigger the bird the longer it lives. The peacock and the goose have long lives. The hen is short-lived—sixteen years at the most. None of the small birds has a long life. Larks probably live longest. They have been known to reach seventeen years.

Junior-Senior Banquet
On the evening of June 7th occurred the annual Junior-Senior banquet which marked the beginning of commencement activities for 1935.

The lobby and dining room of the Masonic hall offered an attractive appearance in a setting of lilacs and other flowers of the season. The tables were beautiful with the class colors in evidence in the rosebud nut cups, the white tapers and the red American Beauty roses. Unique rosebud menu cards graced each cover. A splendid four-course dinner prepared by the Eastern Star ladies was served promptly and ably by a group of sophomore students.

The toastmaster, Richard King, proved himself a real toaster when he presented an "honest-to-goodness" electric toaster from which he served the following slices of toast relished by all: Music—"The Mountain Stream"—Mrs. Musolf; Class of '35—Patricia Braddock; Response—Marvin Mallon; Music—"Old Black Joe"—Mrs. Giddings; "Milestone"—Miss Worden; "Regrets"—Jean Robinson; Class Will—Mildred Quick; Auld Lang Syne—Assemblage.

Much credit is due the Junior class for the delightful entertainment which they provided for their honored guests; namely, Senior class of 1935, members of the board of education with their wives, and faculty.

Baccalaureate
On Sunday evening, June 9th, just between the dark and the daylight at the close of an ideal June day, the seniors of the class of '35 accompanied by their teachers assembled at Zion Lutheran church for their baccalaureate service. The twenty-one seniors attired in cap and gown presented a fine appearance as they marched to their places with a beautiful organ accompaniment played by Miss Viola Burtzloff.

The atmosphere of the church was indeed glorious and impressive pervaded by the abundance of floral offerings. The choir rendered a selection which was very much in keeping with the occasion.

Rev. Ross addressed the seniors with a forceful interpretation of the word "Farewell."
The very fine vocal solo sung by Mrs. Westcott was a most fitting close to a baccalaureate service as well as to a perfect day in June.

Wiener Roast
On Monday evening, June 10th, Mesdames Jas. Leslie, Ray Tuttle, Ira Horton and Jas. Mark were hostesses to a merry group including seniors, juniors and teachers of Tawas City high at the Leslie cottage, Sand Lake, for a wiener roast.

The young people reported "good cats," "fine crowd," lots of fun, "a swell time." We understand they enjoyed themselves to the degree that they were loathe to return.

The route of the scenic tour which will start at the Community Building Saturday, June 15, at 3:00 p. m., will take the party to the Beal Nursery where twenty million of seedlings of white, Norway, jack and Scotch pine and Norway spruce of various ages may be seen. The next stop will be ten miles within the boundary of the Huron National Forest in the middle of the earliest plantations established in this part of Michigan.

The party will then proceed to the Silver Creek Ranger Station where the fire truck and other equipment will be seen. The party will be permitted to visit the lookout tower at this point. Then the tour will continue to the Corsair trout rearing pond and camp grounds a short distance away in which 100,000 baby trout swim and are reared to a size where it is safe to release them in the numerous trout streams nearby. From this point the party will go to see the Silver Creek C. C. C. camp and from there will pass through the Kiwanis Forest where additional fine examples of early Huron Forest plantations will be seen. The next stop will be the Lumbermen's Memorial monument overlooking historic AuSable river. This monument was built of bronze by Robert Aitkens, famous sculptor, of New York, at a cost of $50,000. It faithfully and correctly reproduces the landlooker, lumberjack and riverman of bygone lumbering days. The party will next proceed in order to the High Banks of AuSable, the natural arboretum, and Iargo Springs. Next will be seen the Five Channels hydroelectric dam, the Loud dam, the Rollways Lookout Tower, and views of the AuSable river showing the back waters from Loud dam, and the party will then return to East Tawas passing Sand and Indian lakes on winding roads through beautiful scenery. This route will cover 50 miles and take approximately three hours to travel. It is to be conducted by the Forestry Service of the Huron National Forest. Every member of the party of the tour will receive a pamphlet of "Huron Facts" issued by the Huron National Forest, containing many interesting as well as educational facts about the United States Forestry Service particularly as to the work in the Huron National Forest in this area.

Theatre Parties
On Tuesday evening the members of the senior class were guests at the Rivoli Theatre, seeing the picture "Polies Bergere."
On Wednesday evening the Family Theatre offered to the members of the senior class the picture, "In Caliente."

These courtesies, extended the seniors of Tawas City high from the Rivoli and Family Theatres were greatly appreciated and will be remembered among the happy days of Commencement Week.

Solomon Islands
The discoverer of the Solomon Islands named them for King Solomon because it was believed that these islands supplied the gold for his temple. There is no proof of this, however. The natives eat lizards, crocodiles and missionaries. Tobacco is used as currency there.

He Weighed Half a Ton
The United States has its fair share of fat men and giants. Miles Darden was both. He was 7 feet 6 inches and weighed a little better than half a ton. He was born in 1798 and lived until 1857, was married, a father, worked all his life, and was a pretty normal individual in spite of his size.

The Check-up
YOU have your car inspected at regular intervals. It is of even greater importance to have a check-up of your automobile insurance made by an experienced insurance man. Let us give your automobile insurance the "once over" and make sure you enjoy the proper financial safeguards.

A New Deal in Farm Buildings

Here is something that will interest every farm owner. We regard it as one of the most important announcements we have ever made to our trade. We invite you to drop in at our yard and let us tell you about

A Service That Gives You Better Farm Buildings for Less Money.
We are now prepared to give you, without cost, authentic information concerning the planning and construction of any farm building you may need. This farm service is fully described in a booklet which is yours for the asking, without obligating you in any way.

Get a Copy of This Free Book
It tells you how you can be sure of getting farm buildings that are the last word in strength, rigidity, permanence, through tested construction principles, and do it for less money.

More Than 100 Farm Buildings
Each has received the stamp of approval of the agricultural engineers of 15 leading State Universities—the nation's best building authorities on farm construction. Think what that means to you!

Lumber That Gives You a Better Job At Lower Final Costs
We not only furnish FREE BLUE PRINTS of any of these buildings to our customers but we show how Weyerhaeuser 4-SQUARE lumber can be used to give better construction at lower final cost—the right lumber to use and how to use it. It will pay you to know all about this new service. We'll be glad to explain it fully.
