MAYOR WRITES COMMUNICATION TO ELECTORS

Mass Meeting Will Be Held Tomorrow Evening At City Hall

Tawas City will vote next Tuesday on the proposal to bond for the purpose of building a water works system for the entire city.

A water works system has been the dream of many citizens of this city for years. A portion of the city was canvassed Tuesday by the Board of Commerce and more than 200

Mass Meeting

A mass meeting will be held at eight o'clock Saturday evening at the city hall. It was called for the purpose of discussing the proposed bond issues and water works system project which will be voted on next Tuesday. Michael Coyle will be chairman of the meeting and there will be a program of short talks by a number of the city's taxpayers. George Francis of the Francis Engineering company will be present. Questions relative to the bonds and water works system will be answered at this meeting.

taxpayers and electors signed a statement that they approved the proposed bond issues and were heartily in favor of building a water works system. The limited time did not allow a complete canvass, but it was found that the sentiment for the project was city-wide and only a few objectors were encountered.

The following communication was received from Mayor John Brugger:

Tawas City, Michigan
October 3, 1935

The election to take place next Tuesday relative to the water works system for Tawas City is of grave interest to every qualified voter of this city. Tuesday's election will decide once and for all whether this city will have a municipally owned water works system. Undoubtedly the proposition to be voted upon Tuesday will never again be offered to the people of Tawas City.

The proposition as offered by the government to the city is simply this: That if the city of Tawas City will issue its full faith and credit bonds in the sum of $15,000.00; and in addition thereto to issue its special obligation bonds in the sum of $17,500.00 (these bonds being a lien on the water works system only), the balance of the cost of the system will be defrayed by the Federal government at no cost to the city.

The bonds mentioned in the foregoing paragraph are to be paid over a period of 25 years. The special obligation bonds are a lien on the water works system and no taxes can be spread on property to pay them. They must be paid from the income from the water works system. Under no condition will the city at large be responsible for any greater sum of money than shall be represented by the $15,000.00 general obligation bonds. These also can be paid out of the income from the water works system.

The total cost of the water works system will be $59,090.00, and the taxpayers of the city will be obligated to guarantee that only $15,000.00 of that sum is paid.

J. A. Brugger, Mayor.

Edgewater Pavilion Prepared For Winter

Jas. McCamley has prepared the Edgewater Pavilion, East Tawas, for winter dancing. During the past two weeks the interior has been covered with insulation board and heating equipment installed. ### Both Ballots Must Be Voted On

The two ballots which the electors of Tawas City will be called upon to vote on next Tuesday at the special election have caused some confusion. Many have inquired as to whether the voter must vote on one or both of them.

The answer to that question is that both ballots must be voted upon and if either fails to carry the necessary two-thirds majority then the whole proposition is lost.

The reason for the two ballots is explained by the fact that there are two different kinds of bonds to be used in financing the water works project, and the law does not provide for the placing of two such issues on the same ballot.

The Two Ballots

The following is the text of the two ballots which will be used next Tuesday in the special water works election:

BALLOT NO. 1

For the issuance of full faith and credit bonds of the City of Tawas City for complete water works system.

Shall the City of Tawas City be authorized and empowered to borrow the sum of $15,000.00 and pledge the full faith and credit of the City of Tawas City therefor, and issue its full faith and credit bonds to mature on September first, in years and amounts as follows: $500.00 1936 to 1945, inclusive; $1000.00 1946 to 1955, inclusive; $1000.00 with interest at a rate not exceeding four per centum per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of March and the first days of September in each year, for the water works system? [ ] Yes [ ] No

BALLOT NO. 2

For the issuance of Special Obligation Water Bonds of the City of Tawas City for a complete water works system.

Shall the City of Tawas City be authorized and empowered to borrow the sum of $17,500.00 on Revenue Bonds payable, as to both principal and interest, from a gross revenue (Turn to No. 2, Back Page)

Women's Democratic Club To Meet Monday Evening At Oscoda

The Iosco Women's Democratic club will hold its regular meeting Monday evening, October 7, at the Community Building in Oscoda. This is a joint meeting and the officers of the club hope to have a large attendance of both men and women.

Tawas Ball Club Wins League Championship

BENTLEY TEAM AGAIN DOWNED BY LOCALS, 6-5

Big Rally In Ninth Clinches Game and Ends 1935 Pennant Chase

After one of the most heated races in the history of the Northeastern Michigan league, the Tawas ball club has undisputed possession of the championship for the 1935 season. The issue was settled last Sunday when the home lads hung up their second victory in a row over Bentley in a title play-off series, 6 to 5.

The local boys are "tops" now without question after a long drawn-out battle. At the end of the regular season Tawas and Twining were tied for first place in the standings and a three-game series was then arranged between these teams to decide the league leadership. Only two conflicts with the Twining squad were necessary, however, for the local crew to dispose of that team, the scores being 6-5 and 11-3. Later, when Au Gres refused to replay a protested game with Bentley and forfeited the contest to the Bay county team, Bentley had the same standing for the season as did Tawas and Twining.

The league directors then ordered a title play-off series between Tawas and Bentley. The local boys again showed their supremacy by hurling this final obstruction in their way to a pennant by 5-3 and 6-5 scores. The fact that neither Twining nor Bentley could force Tawas into the third game of the series is a credit to the local boys and leaves no doubt as to their being real champions.

In the past several weeks the Tawas aggregation acquired a reputation for pulling games "out of the fire" with late-inning rallies. Out of (Turn to No. 3, Back Page)

YOUNG DEMOCRATS ELECT OFFICERS

Last Monday evening the Iosco county chapter of the Young Democrats met at Tawas City for their annual fall election of officers and delegates to the state convention. About 35 were present.

The following young men were elected to the offices as named below:

T. George Sternberg, president; R. G. Killmaster, vice-president; A. E. Bigelow, secretary-treasurer. Later elections will be held in the various townships of the county to determine the executive board of officers. One board member will be chosen from each township. The men elected to serve as delegates at the state convention held in Flint this week Thursday and Friday, October 3-4, are: T. George Sternberg, East Tawas; Bernard Sargent, East Tawas; R. G. Killmaster, Oscoda; Archie Graham, Whittemore.

Wednesday, October 2, at 7:30 in the city hall at Tawas City will mark the first of the regular meetings which are to be held monthly. The delegates to the state convention will then make their report. It is hoped that all county members will be at this meeting.

$15,000 COLLECTED HERE IN TAX DRIVE

County Treasurer Grace Miller states that $15,074.54 was received in her office through the state and county drive to collect delinquent taxes during August. The money received was in payment of 1932 and prior taxes.

"Pay your 1933 and 1934 taxes before November 1," says Mrs. Miller, "and avoid interest and tax sale expense. The 1933 and prior taxes will be sold May 1, 1936. The 1932 and prior taxes can still be paid on the ten year plan."

FIRST WPA PROJECT STARTS IN COUNTY

The first WPA project in the county was started Thursday afternoon. It is the job of resurfacing the AuSable river road with gravel. Sixty men have been called on this project. Ten miles of road will be resurfaced.

LEITZ WILL ENFORCE FEDERAL GAME LAWS

Conservation Officer A. G. Leitz this week was appointed United States Deputy Game Warden. This appointment extends his duties to enforcing the Federal migratory bird and water fowl regulations.

Will Rogers Has Fine Role In Comedy Film

Laughter and tears, comedy and near-tragedy follow each other in quick succession and bring drama and suspense to Will Rogers' rousing picture of Mississippi steamboat life, "Steamboat Round the Bend," which comes Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, October 6, 7 and 8, to the Family Theatre, East Tawas.

Two unusual entertainment elements combine to make the great and moving story of "Steamboat Round the Bend"—One is the laugh-filled rivalry of Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb, America's two greatest humorists, as the crusty captains of competing boats; the other is the wistful and tender romance of Anne Shirley and John McGuire.

In the supporting cast are Stepin Fetchit, Eugene Pallette and Bertie Churchill, assisting Rogers in comedy characterizations.

League of Nations Council, Still Hoping for Peace, Moves to Curb Italy—American Legion Condemns All Un-American Isms.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

ITALY having rejected the peace plan proposed by the League of Nations committee of five, and Ethiopia having accepted it, the committee reported to the league council that its efforts to solve the problem were futile. The council thereupon held a public meeting and adopted unanimously the recommendation of its president, Enrique Ruiz Guinazu of Argentina, that it proceed under article 15 of the covenant, drafting a report and recommendations for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian embroglio.

As they did once before, the Italian delegates walked out of the meeting, and a spokesman explained that this was because they "would not sit at the same table with Ethiopia." With other prominent Fascists, the Italian representatives repaired to the lobby bar, ordered drinks and rather ostentatiously consumed them and marched out.

In a secret session the council drafted its report and framed its recommendations; but it also asked the committee of five to reconstitute itself so it would be ready to take advantage of any opportunity for mediation that offered in the near future.

A feature of the council's session was an address by Capt. Anthony Eden, British minister for league affairs. Conversations in Rome between British Ambassador Sir Eric Drummond and Premier Mussolini had led some to think Great Britain was weakening, but Eden announced his government was "steadfastly determined to abide by its policy" as previously declared. He said in part:

"In addressing my colleagues at the council on September 4 I expressed the view that it was our duty to use the machinery of the league that lay to our hands.

"Such is still my view. I therefore support without qualification the proposal of the president of the council, since we are now working under article XV, that the council should draw up a report of the recommendations provided for in paragraph IV of that article.

"So long as the council is engaged in drawing up a report of the recommendation the work of conciliation can continue and it is clear that no opportunity for such conciliation within the terms of the covenant should be missed."

Eden's attitude was supported by Peter Munch of Denmark and Maxim Litvinov of Russia.

On the whole, prospects for settlement of the African affair were very dim. It was reported that Mussolini had said to Count Charles de Chamberlain, French ambassador to Rome: "I will invade Ethiopia on the date I fixed a month ago."

Emperor Haile Selassie wired the league requesting that in view of the "increasingly provocative attitude of Italy" neutral observers be dispatched to Ethiopia to establish responsibility in case a clash occurs.

Great Britain informed Italy that her tremendous naval concentration in the Mediterranean was not ordered with any aggressive motive but because of the violent anti-English campaign carried on by the Fascist press of Italy. The massing of the British warships at Gibraltar, Malta, Alexandria and the Suez canal continued, and Italy responded by rearranging her naval dispositions.

One result of the supposedly improved relations between England and Italy was the cancellation of the sailing of 10,000 more Italian troops to Libya, which colony borders on Egypt.

PREPARING for the imminent probability of war between Italy and Ethiopia, Secretary of State Cordell Hull established an office of arms and munitions control to carry out the provisions of the neutrality act and direct federal control of the munitions traffic.

The office is under the direction of R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state. Joseph C. Green is chief of the office and has as his assistant Charles W. Yost.

On recommendation of the board President Roosevelt proclaimed that hereafter manufacturers, importers and exporters of six categories of war implements must obtain licenses for exports and imports. The articles named comprise only weapons and other articles used in actual combat such as guns, war vessels, military aircraft and poison gas.

Secretary Roper told reporters that the munitions control board is studying the question of whether certain raw materials should also be classed with munitions.

AMERICAN Legionnaires in convention in St. Louis adopted with shouts of approval a resolution for active opposition to "nazi-ism, fascism, communism and other isms contrary to the principles enunciated in the Constitution." Still cheering, the delegates followed that up by asking the withdrawal of United States recognition of soviet Russia.

The veterans commended recent legislation for national defense and called for a larger army, continuation of the officers' training camps, the C. M. T. C. and R. O. T. C. in schools, and for a navy equal to any in the world. They asked all nations to work for world peace, and approved the neutrality resolution of the last congress.

Cleveland, Ohio, was awarded the 1936 annual convention after four ballots. The national American Legion band championship was won by the Chicago Board of Trade post musicians. Franklin post was second, Omaha third, and Mineral Springs, Texas, fourth.

At their final session the veterans elected J. Ray Murphy of Ida Grove, Iowa, national commander, and passed a resolution demanding immediate cash payment of the soldiers' bonus. Vice commanders chosen were: Raymond A. Gales of Virginia, W. E. Whitlock of South Carolina, Whitney Godwin of Florida, Oscar Worthwine of Idaho, Lou Probst of Wyoming.

Mrs. Melville Muckelstone of Chicago was elected president of the American Legion auxiliary.

SOFT coal miners were victorious in the negotiations for a new wage agreement, and resumption of work in the mines was promised for October 1. The men were out on strike for eight days. Operators yielded to the union demands when they learned that relief officials would aid the strikers.

AUBREY WILLIAMS, first assistant to Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins, said in an interview that the unemployment problem will not be solved by a business pick-up unless industry "shares increased business with the workers." He asserted that the present gain in business has put few more people to work, and explained this fact by attributing it primarily to increased efficiency which permits employers to produce more goods than before with fewer employees.

Williams said there had been a drop in the number of people on relief, but he attributed this largely to a "hard-boiled" policy under which the rolls were combed of ineligible.

"As fast as they go from relief to jobs, we get as many new ones on relief who have exhausted their savings," he asserted. "We have become pretty darned hard-boiled on relief."

"Even the National Industrial Conference board says there is more unemployment now than a year ago," he continued. "Business absorbs new business without increasing employment. They get a dividend out of it, but no new jobs are given. We are not feeling any benefit as far as most of our clients are concerned."

By executive order the President added $800,000,000 to the sum which Harry Hopkins has to spend as PWA administrator, making the total at his command $1,375,000,000.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT cleaned up most of the official business on his desk and started on his vacation trip to San Diego, whence he will return through the Panama canal. Mrs. Roosevelt and a large party of officials accompanied him on the special train to the coast. At the last minute the President decided to speak to the mid-west farmers, and this address was delivered Saturday at Fremont, Neb. The program called for a set speech at Boulder dam, another in the Hollywood bowl at Los Angeles, and one at San Diego. In addition the Chief Executive talked to the gathered crowds at many of the operating stops made by the train.

REPUBLICAN national committee-men met in Washington and began the serious preparation of the Presidential campaign. It was decided unanimously that the party efforts in the western states should be most vigorous and should begin immediately. Headquarters will soon be opened in Chicago with National Committeeman Harrison Spengler of Iowa in charge, and funds were allocated for its expenses.

The committee did not discuss candidates or the selection of a convention city. The latter will not be chosen until the winter meeting. At present Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City are the leading contenders, with the last named in good position because of its new air conditioned convention hall.

Rumors that the Republicans would attempt to hold their convention after the Democratic convention next summer were discounted for the reason that the Democratic gathering will be merely a ratification meeting for the renomination of President Roosevelt, which can be held any time next summer or fall, whereas the Republicans wish to get their campaign under way early next summer.

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON will soon be out of a job again, for on October 15 he retires from the position of works progress administrator for New York city. This is in accordance with a previous agreement with President Roosevelt. He is to be succeeded by Victor F. Ridder, publisher of the German language newspaper New Yorker Staats-Zeitung und Herold and the New York Journal of Commerce.

THOUSANDS of Catholics, from high prelates to lowly laymen, gathered in Cleveland for the seventh national Eucharistic congress. The most spectacular event of the week was the midnight pontifical low mass celebrated in the stadium by the light of a myriad of tapers. Nearly 150,000 devout men and women knelt silently in the dimness as Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, performed the rite. Later the stadium was again filled for the reception of the benediction of Pope Pius XI, which was broadcast from Castel Gondolfo, Italy.

NORTH CHINA is due for another dose of Japanese medicine, according to a statement by Maj. Gen. Hayao Tada, commander of the Japanese forces there. He said the Japanese army aims to "extend relief at and to promote the welfare and happiness of the Chinese masses," and declared the army's policy is based on these points:

First—A thorough removal of anti-Manchukuo and anti-Japanese elements from north China is necessary.

Second—In order to extend relief to the masses in north China, the finances of this area must be removed from the control of the Nanking government.

Third—Sovietization must be prevented.

REICHSBISHOP LUDWIG MUELLER and his Christian church administration in Germany are about to be abandoned by Hitler and the government, a new church directorate will be established and a new national synod will be summoned. In this way the reichsfuehrer hopes to settle the bitter quarrel that has been raging among the Protestants of Germany. The plan was announced by Hans Kerrl, minister for church affairs, through his commissar, Doctor Stahn, to the Prussian confessional synod meeting in Berlin. Probably Bishop Mueller's successor will be Rev. Friedrich von Bodelschwingh, who was elected reichsbishop by the orthodox protestant clergy two years ago and forced to resign by the government.

MEN and women from all ranks of life assembled in the Yankee stadium in New York, paying nearly $1,000,000 for their seats, and saw Joe Louis, Detroit negro, knock out Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, in the fourth round. The chocolate colored boxer was invincible, and Max was terribly outclassed. Louis plans to spend the winter and spring fighting in South America and Europe, after which he hopes to have a chance to show what he can do against the present titleholder, Jim Braddock. Judging by his past performances, he can do plenty.

LIEUT. FELIX WAITKUS, young Chicago and Wisconsin aviator, made a gallant effort to fly solo and nonstop from New York to Kaunas, Lithuania, and failed, though he did get safely across the Atlantic ocean. Lost in fog and tired out, he made a forced landing on a rough field near Ballinrobe, Ireland. The machine was badly damaged but Waitkus was uninjured.

"I had been flying blind for a long time," he asserted. "I had bad visibility all over the Atlantic and when I reached the coast I ran into storms and fogs."

"I tried at first to make Baldonnel airdrome near Dublin and then headed for the Ballinrobe drome, but I couldn't find it. I was delighted to see land, for I was feeling very tired and my stock of gasoline was getting a bit low."

GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, retiring chief of staff, in his final report recommended a five-year plan for making the American army into an instrument of speed, fighting ability and destructive power unsurpassed elsewhere. Quality rather than quantity, he said, was needed, and he proposed that all implements of war be modernized and that the technical training of the officers be intensified. He said:

"Beyond all doubt, Gen. MacArthur any major war of the future will see every belligerent nation highly organized for the single purpose of victory, the attainment of which will require integration and intensification of individual and collective effort.

"But it will be a nation at war rather than a nation in arms. Of this vast machine the fighting forces will be only the cutting edge; their mandatory characteristics will be speed in movement, power in fire and shock action, and the utmost in professional skill and leadership.

"Their armaments will necessarily be of the most efficient types obtainable and the transportation, supply and maintenance systems supporting them will be required to function perfectly and continuously. Economic and industrial resources will have to insure the adequacy of munitions supply and the sustenance of the whole civil population. In these latter fields the great proportion of the employable population will find its war duty."

LIGHTFOOT BECOMES UNCERTAIN

LIGHTFOOT the Deer traveled on through the Green Forest straight ahead in the direction from which the Merry Little Breezes were blowing. Every few steps he would raise his delicate nose and test all the scents that the Merry Little Breezes were bringing. As long as he kept the Merry Little Breezes blowing in his face he could be sure whether or not there was danger ahead of him. You see, the Merry Little Breezes delight in carrying all sorts of scents, and Lightfoot's nose is so wonderful that even though those scents be very, very faint he can catch them and tell just what they are.

Lightfoot uses his nose very much as you and I use our eyes. It tells him the things he wants to know. He knew that Reddy Fox had been along ahead of him although he didn't get so much as a glimpse of Reddy's red coat. Once he caught just the faintest of scents which caused him to stop abruptly and test the air more carefully than ever. It was the scent of Buster Bear. It was so very faint that Lightfoot knew Buster was not near, so he went ahead again, but even more carefully than before. After a little he couldn't smell Buster at all so he knew then that

BURNING LEAVES

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IT SEEMS as if the whole lost summer grieves When we are burning leaves, So melancholy is the smoky scent Of this fall sacrament. It was a few short weeks ago they hung

In lively green, and flung Their shade upon the heedless passers-by, And challenged the blue sky.

Now in a wooden basket, drab and brown, They are pulled down; They who in such high place were shimmering Since early spring. There is in burning leaves a sense of loss, As in we toss The match, and watch them perish in a breath. . . . This, then, is Death!

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am a woman forty-three years of age and the only offer of marriage I have ever had was last night. I met a fellow at a party and he was drunk. He proposed marriage to me. He seems all right but I told him to sober up and then ask me to marry him. Did I do right?

Sincerely,
I. M. HOMELEY.

Answer: Yes and no. He may not want you when he's sober.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Some time ago I wrote you for an answer for the following example: "If coal is $10 a ton how many tons would I get for $50? Your answer said I would get four tons. Why did you say that, when it isn't right?"

Yours truly,
CON. SUE MER.

Answer: You asked me if coal was $10 a ton and you gave the coal man $50 how many tons would you get? I said you'd get four tons. I know it isn't right, BUT that's what you'd get.

Dear Mr. Wynn: Do chestnuts have legs?

Yours truly,
I. M. WORRIED.

Answer: No, my dear friend, chestnuts do not have legs. You must have swallowed a worm.

Dear Mr. Wynn: I am interested in the "Little Theatre Movement." I have interested some rich men and they are building a very odd theater. There will be no rows of seats, only boxes. In other words every person who comes to see our plays will be in a box. Can you suggest a fitting name for our odd theater?

Truly yours,
OPPER E. HOUSE.

Answer: As the "Little Theatre

Movement" is popular, and as you have no rows of seats, and as you will probably do a big business, and pack the boxes, why not call it "The Sardine"?

Dear Mr. Wynn: My wife fights with me all the time because I won't get my hair cut. I claim it looks good, but she says it is too long. Do you think I should have it cut short?

Yours truly,
BOB BURR.

Answer: The only trouble with a man having his hair cut short is that he is often mistaken for his wife.

MOTHER'S COOK BOOK

UNUSUAL DISHES

WE ALL like to serve occasionally something a bit different and out of the ordinary, but for the daily diet the common foods simply served we enjoy the best.

Golden Coconut Shortcake.
Allow two slices of sponge cake for each serving. Prepare orange sauce by using one cup of orange juice thickened with corn starch, adding a bit of sugar and butter. Cover each slice of the cake with the sauce in sandwich fashion, cover with thinly sliced oranges and top with freshly grated and sweetened coconut.

Maple Junket.
Dissolve one junket tablet in a tablespoon of cold water, add to a pint of lukewarm milk a little almond flavoring and a half cup of maple sirup. Serve with the top of the sherbet glasses sprinkled with grated maple sugar or sprinkle with finely shredded almonds.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.
Scoop out the centers of six ripe even sized tomatoes. Chop the centers and add one cup of cooked rice, four tablespoons of cheese grated, one hard cooked egg, two tablespoons of pimiento and one small onion, all minced; season with salt, a little lemon juice and any other desired seasoning. Fill the tomato cups and chill. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

Pot of Gold Dessert.
Mix one-half cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of cornstarch, add a bit of salt and a cupful of rich milk, one cup of orange juice and when cooked until smooth and thick in a double boiler add two tablespoons of butter and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Let cook until smooth. Serve molded in individual molds, with whipped cream.

Small slim pickles may be cut into very thin slices, without cutting way to the stem end of the pickle, then spread out the slices in the form of a fan and use as garnish for sandwiches or the sandwich plate.

First Copper House Is Completed

THIS copper house has just been erected at Bethesda, Md., by a subsidiary of one of the big copper corporations and is open to the public for inspection. The new dwelling is the first of its kind in this country. Hardwood floors are built over a fire-proof sub-floor, and inside walls are plastered on metal laths. The house is completely air-conditioned. The cost of these houses depends on size and design, with present designs ranging upwards from $4,500.

Stockman Raises Sheep for Fur, Not for Wool

Texas Rancher Makes Success of Karakul Species.

Dunder, Texas.—Raising sheep that bear fur, not wool, constitutes the hobby of Alex Albright, seventy-three-year-old Archer county stock breeder, who owns the only herd of karakul sheep of commercial consequence in the whole United States. And from that herd of Asiatic sheep he each year sends to Eastern markets thousands of dollars' worth of fine fur.

The history of this unusual industry dates back thousands of years. The karakul-fur bearer is an ancient member of the sheep family. History recounts that conquering tribes came into the independent kingdom of Bokhara, bordering on old Russia, thousands of years ago, bringing their sheep with them. Archeologists have dug up mummies buried for 3,000 years that were found to be wearing this lamb's fur—in perfect condition.

Regard Sheep as Sacred.
The breed takes its name from the little town of Karakul, not far from the Aral sea, in Turkestan, Asia. For centuries the fur of the sheep grown in this little primitive community was known to traders and furrers the world over as the finest to be obtained. The pure karakuls were found only on the ranches of the Bokharan noblemen. Mixed breeds are found throughout that part of Asia, the Afghans, the Astrachans and the Krimmers. The Mahometan tribes of Bokhara have a sacred regard for these full-blooded karakuls. They guard them zealously, and this fact, together with the knowledge that the karakul breed is rapidly becoming extinct in their domain, caused extraordinary difficulties when it was first proposed to transplant a flock of the sheep to America.

The flock which Dr. C. C. Young brought to Texas in 1908 was the first full-blooded karakul sheep ever taken out of the Province of Bokhara and out of Russia. That flock of 15 head was brought to Holliday, Texas, also in Archer county, not far from Mr. Albright's present ranch. Doctor Young's personal knowledge of the people with whom he was dealing went a great way toward his ultimate success in carrying out his plans.

Albright Takes Hold.
Dr. Young did not continue his experiment long and Mr. Albright took up the project of raising the fur-bearing sheep. It was 25 years ago that Alex Albright made his first effort to import karakul stock into the United States in order to bring new blood to his then small flock. He, too, found that he must overcome the import laws of his own country first, then break down the shyness of the herdsmen of Bokhara, who recoiled from the idea of allowing their sheep to be taken to foreign lands.

"When I say that raising karakul sheep is the most profitable industry the stockmen could enter I have only to state a few facts," Mr. Albright said. "Ordinary wool is now bringing around 20 cents a pound, and has not greatly varied from that figure in a year. As my invoice shows, last June 15, I sold on the New York market

Model Soviet Plane Makes 7-Mile Flight

Moscow.—What is claimed to be a world record for flights by model airplanes was established by Valya Kuprelchuk at a recent aviation show.

His miniature plane ascended to a height of 2,900 feet and was seen for 32 minutes. After this it was lost from view. The flier who took off to look for it found it two days later, undamaged, seven miles from the starting point.

fur pelts from 280 karakul sheep at $2,346.12 net to me. That alone clearly substantiates my claim that 100 good fur-producing ewes can show more profit than a thousand head of any other breed of sheep. Karakul lamb pelts for fur must be taken the first three or four days after birth."

Make Jabot Solve "Weighty" Problems

PATTERN 9339

Our stylist had leisure hours in mind when she designed this graceful afternoon frock for the woman of larger proportions. The soft jabot cascades down the bodice in graceful folds, concealing those extra pounds and curves! The bodice gathers in front to a double-pointed yoke, another slenderizing feature with its diagonal lines. Medium-length sleeves puff, then hug the forearm below the elbow. Crepe is a perfect medium for this pattern, but in satin you'd have an all-season "best dress." Do choose sparkling novel buttons and buckle.

Pattern 9339 may be ordered only in sizes, 16, 18, 20, 24, 30, 33, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4 yards 39 inch fabric. Complete diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 232 West Eighteenth St., New York, N. Y.

Germany's Latest Naval Weapon Is "Death Boat"

Kiel, Germany.—Germany's latest naval war weapon—the "death boat"—made its first public appearance here during the maneuvers of the Reich's fast-growing navy.

The "death boats," so named because they not only can deal death rapidly but also because their crews brave death with little chance of escape, are combination torpedo-speedboats recently perfected and reported capable of reaching a speed of more than 60 knots per hour.

Each of the small speedboats is equipped with a deadly torpedo and all are based on a "mother ship" filled with torpedoes and fuel. The naval strategy of the "death boats" in warfare is to rush right up to enemy warships, discharge their torpedoes point blank and then speed away—if they can—from under the guns of the attacked craft.

Planes Assist in War Upon Liquor Ships

Rum Runners Now Transfer Cargoes at Sea.

Washington.—Customs officials are mapping plans for a decisive campaign against the latest ruse of rum runners who have shifted their bases to the high seas.

Stripped of their former bases by co-operative moves of the United States, France, Newfoundland, British Honduras and Guatemala, smugglers are now chartering vessels to transport liquor cargoes from Europe for delivery to smaller ships at sea.

This was disclosed in reports from customs officials to executives of the Treasury department.

A large fleet of planes is operating from seven scattered coastal points, spotting doubtful vessels 50 miles out at sea. These planes are in constant touch with revenue cutters and land stations.

Tightened restrictions on Atlantic islands which previously had based large numbers of rum running boats, have driven the smugglers, to bold measures. Some in recent months have even run small liquor vessels into large American ports, on the chance they would slip by.

One by one, the choicest operating bases of the rum runners have vanished. Mariel, Cuba; Belize in British Honduras, Puerto Barrios in Guatemala, St. John's Island in Newfoundland and the French colony, St. Pierre et Miquelon, each has been closed under agreements with their governments.

Within the next two months, it was indicated, the drive against the chartered ships is expected to be felt. Though the campaign may later be extended to Pacific ports, rum smuggling on that coast does not appear so heavy.

Court's Job Is to Find Definition for Rubbish

Bucyrus, Ohio.—When is rubbish rubbish is the controversial question before the courts here.

For ten years there has been a pile of bricks and stones half a block off the main street in downtown Bucyrus. It belongs to Attorney Alfred S. Leuthold. The city council ordered him to move it or show cause why. Leuthold promised he would, and then changed his mind.

When the city fathers learned, they ordered city trucks to remove the pile. Leuthold stopped that with a temporary injunction, and now the court must decide when rubbish is rubbish.

Wornout Money Into Sewer

An average of $60,000,000 in Canadian money goes down the sewer annually from the parliament building in Ottawa, observes a writer in Capper's Weekly. This total represents Canadian paper money of all denominations taken out of circulation due to wear and tear. The average life of Canada's paper money bills is less than ten months. The wornout paper currency is boiled beyond recognition with the aid of chemicals to obliterate the print and coloring. The bills are then put through a beater and then dumped into the sewer pipe.

Miss Clara Latter, accompanied Miss Marion Witheright, of Detroit spent the week end here.

Charles Berry, the Raleigh man of South Branch, called on his patrons here last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Thompson and children of Prescott and Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson and children of Midland spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Thompson.

A family reunion was held at the Hiram Sheppard cottage on September 21st. Sixty-two relatives from Gladstone, Owosso, Flint, East Jordan and Saginaw were present. Mrs. Weddell, sister of Mr. Sheppard, also two other brothers had not met in 25 years. Needless to say, it was a happy day.

Mrs. Westervelt was called to Midland Friday night by the serious illness of her son, Cecil, who is in a hospital suffering from pneumonia. Cecil's many friends here wish him a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Louis Binder was called to Tawas by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Nelson Ulman.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Cox spent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Miller.

Miss Minnie Grabow spent the week end at her home in East Tawas.

Mrs. L. D. Watts was called to Flint by the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Jos. Erwin.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Youngs spent last Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Russell Binder.

We forgot to mention last week that Mrs. Thos. Scarlett accompanied Mrs. Jas. Chambers and son, Chelsea, to Detroit for the week end.

Mrs. John Put, who spent a week with her mother, Mrs. Amelia Bamberger, returned to her home in Detroit last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Pfahl called on his mother in Tawas last Thursday.

The Canada Goose

The Canada goose is the best known and most highly valued of the several species of wild geese that breed each summer in the far reaches of the Northwest territory. Nests of the Canada goose have been found as far north as Great Bear lake through which the Arctic circle passes.

Tawas Breezes

VOL. VIII OCTOBER 4, 1935 NUMBER 47

Stranger at cross-roads store: "Who's the close-mouthed fellow over there in the corner? He hasn't spoken a word for the last fifteen minutes."

Feeds We Carry in Stock: Corn, cracked corn, oats, ground oats, corn and oat chop, bran, scratch feed, middlings, barley, ground barley, wheat, and Blatchford's calf meal.

A Scotchman once helped a friend out with his income tax. Yeah. He came to live with him as a dependent.

An Irish golfer was visiting in a neighboring town, and noticing a wonderful golf course, inquired whether he would be permitted to play over it. Inquiry developed that it was a club composed entirely of Scotchmen, and on making application Pat was presented a visitor's card, good for one week's free play.

"Well," says Pat, "that's fine. I'm an undertaker, and to show my appreciation, I'll bury the first member of this club who dies, free of charge!"

Flour middlings, $1.75 per 100 lbs.; wheat bran, $1.50 per 100 lbs.

Visitors: "How's the new swimming pool?"
Supt. of Insane Asylum: "Fine! It's become so popular with the patients, especially those that can dive, that I am thinking of having it filled with water."

Scratch Feed—100 lb. sacks, $1.80; 25 lb. sacks, 45c.

College Guy: "I was out with a nurse, last night."

Coed: "Cheer up, maybe your mother will let you go out without her some time."

Just received a car of "Kazak" egg coal.

WHALE YIELDS NEW PRODUCT
 What may prove to be as valuable to Norway as whale oil itself, is a new kind of meat extract made from whales. Experiments described as highly successful have been carried on in the Antarctic aboard Norwegian whalers. The greater part of the world's supply of whale oil is delivered in Norway. Although the value of whale meat as food has long been recognized only the oil of the whale has been utilized, owing to the difficulty of transporting the meat from the Antarctic. Now, however, the meat is being made into a sort of meat flour aboard the whalers. The flour is taken back to Norway, where a meat extract of a very satisfactory character is being produced.

"Look here," said Kerrigan, sitting forward with a slight jounce of decision, "do you mind if I ask if you're making a fool of yourself?"

"No," said Hal, pretending coolness. "Not a bit. But you don't expect me to be an authority, do you? Or do you think I'm such a fool that I make one of myself consciously?"

"I s'pose you have to get red-headed," said Kerrigan evenly, "but I'm giving you credit for sense enough not to think your own ideas are the only ones worth anything."

"Thanks," said Hal without grace. "I don't like butting into other people's business," Kerrigan went on. "The curse of the world is people trying to run other people. And I'm not asking you this for fun, or because I like to hear myself talk."

Hal looked at Kerrigan's complete, quiet gravity and felt the disrespect of being stretched on the bed while his senior sat solicitously forward. He raised himself from the pillows and swung his feet to the floor. "I'm sorry, Colonel. I don't see why you should give a curse about my business. I'm thankful that you do." He'd tell Kerrigan all about it—everything. That might be good to do; perhaps, telling him, his blood and his brain would rouse out of their coma.

Kerrigan began soberly. "If you don't want to tell me what's happened, say so. But if you want to break it out, I want to hear it. And I said 'want to,' not 'willing to.'"

"Colonel, I want to tell you," said Hal, a gentleness on his mind as well as on his voice. "I—I just wanted to wait, that was all. Here—if you'll listen—here's the whole thing: start to—to finish."

Hal told him a story so orderly and simple that he surprised himself—from the first hour in New York, when Larsen had been so sure Barry and Crack were together, from his first sense of something wrong that rode with them in the car through to watching Barry go up the walk to the hotel in Hollywood. And all the while he spoke, Barry sat in shining green satin, holding herself hard on that bed four hundred and more hot miles away, staring darkly into the shabby corner.

"That's it," said Hal in quiet conclusion. "And I can't tell you—can't tell myself—what it was when I saw Crack standing in her room and knew why he would be there. Since then it's been like coming out of fever: you know something's happened inside you but you don't know what. I loved her, I guess—must've. I don't hate her now—don't seem to be able to feel about her at all. I only hate him; and I'd hate him even if he'd done nothing to me, even if he didn't hate me, too."

"So what?" said Kerrigan.

Hal gave a single, flat laugh. "Nothing," he said; "except I'm going to keep my father out of the dirty mess if I have to—if it kills me."

Kerrigan sat down casually and said, "Out of what dirty mess?"

Hal looked at him sharply for a hint of the joke, but there was no joke in Kerrigan's gravely commanding eyes.

"I mean why is it suddenly dirty after Crack comes into it?" Kerrigan explained in a patient, scholastic manner. "You knew she was married. Who did you expect her husband to be?"

"I didn't expect him to be a stealthy, pale louse of a man, watching us, right there making his dirty plans while his—his girl got a prospect ready."

Kerrigan said, "Oh," lifting his head in slight, ironic comprehension. "She made you come to her room last night?"

"No," said Hal defensively.

"As a matter of fact, she asked you not to."

"Yes, but—"

"When that—that lazy spider came in and locked the door," said Hal; "when he stood there as if he owned her, as if he had me backed into the slimy corner where he wanted me, she never said a word, never made a sound. She went over and sat on the bed and stared into the corner, and I don't believe she even listened. And—G—d, Kerrigan, d'you think I wanted to believe it?"

"Believe what?" said Kerrigan, still gravely waiting. "Mind telling me what's this 'it' you didn't want to believe?"

Hal curbed his miserable exasperation. "I didn't want to believe what I had to believe—that she didn't mind her rotten little husband's catching me; I didn't want to believe that it meant more to her to keep her promise, her rotten bargain with Crack—much more—than to—to—"

"Hal," said Kerrigan in an unmoved patience of voice that left Hal's insistent anger dangling, "have you thought back? Have you thought of what you have a right to think? I tell you you sound as if you were talking just to hear a noise, sticking up for what you've done just because you did it."

"Stick up!" said Hal, leaning forward to look at Kerrigan from under drawn, incredulous brows. "What the devil d'you s'pose I've been doing for a day and half a night except thinking back? What—?" He jerked his head aside, a sound of exasperation breathed in his throat. Think back! As if he needed to, supposing he could. Coming back from Santa Barbara he'd think—and find his rightness twice as strong.

Kerrigan said, politely, "Will you listen to me a little longer?" and waited for Hal to answer.

"Certainly," said Hal, with an ironic inclination of his head.

"She made no secret of being married?"

"No," said Hal. "That wasn't so stupid, either."

"Did she ever want you to leave her alone, ask you to make up your mind to separating—here?"

"Yes," Hal agreed readily. "And of course it was to be expected I'd do it—right away—specially after she'd told me she cared about me."

"Mm," said Kerrigan. "Telling you she loved you made it harder for you; but your telling her shouldn't've amounted to—"

"The point is," Hal interrupted in listless quiet, "she never did care."

Kerrigan started into something vigorous, but he took palpable hold of himself before his breath was full-drawn. And his voice was leashed to some fragile stanchion of patience as he said: "All right, she didn't care. But it's not impossible to think of somebody in her place who would've. Take another girl then, with a built-in feeling about a promise to her before he beat down these swarming of fear.

The chill in Kerrigan's voice began to warm ominously now as he went on. "You come into Barry's life with enough sense—after a while—to know what she is: lovely as morning, brave as a bullet, honorable as a sword, chaste as water. You have the criminal luck to make her fall in love with you—the one thing that could happen to make her life about ten times harder to handle."

"What do you think about then? About the help you can give her? About the way you can bring her to her happiness, as well as yours? About the honor and conscience and courage that's in her even to try to fight a thing she'd go to hell to get? No! You think about how unfair she is to you. You think you ought to walk in and wipe out twenty years of her father in a week, with the honor of a last promise to boot. You think she ought to see that your happiness is all that counts, all that makes the world fit to grow little apples in."

"She puts up with that—for the only reason under God's sky there could be for putting up with it. And you drive ahead between your blinders till you drive on to the last edge of the one thing she hoped to keep you out of. And when that one thing happens too, what do you do? Like a shot. You leave her to stew. You let her kill her own heart so that you'll go on your way; and you go on it. Go on it with your head full of the most important thing in the world, a fundamental of all decency outraged, all good in everything ended—because you, you were made to look like a fool for a few days in another man's little mind. Ireland, you ought to lie down on that floor and die."

Hal's teeth were clenched terribly upon red anger, curling shame, panic; and he turned so that Kerrigan shouldn't see those things stinging into his eyes. For an instant he thought he could keep his voice unshaken—in a cool, ironic smoothness that would wither Kerrigan. "So she had it happen," he said; "she had Crack catch me there—so that I'd be free, so that I'd—"

The urgency of his despair came thick into his throat, and he broke off. Kerrigan's stillness filled the room—cruel, steady, incriminating; and Hal had to keep his scalding vision on him so that something shouldn't snap in his head, a signal for madness. The brown eyes watching him could never have been warm, never friendly, never merciful; frozen in accusation, personality was gone from them—even the personality of contempt. Dread braced itself hard in Hal as Kerrigan rose, a judge at Doomsday, with the extinct cigarette far from incongruous in the corner of his merciless lips.

"Vain," he said quietly: "Vain, stuck-up, self-indulgent, flabby, without faith except in the importance of money. Why did I think you weren't so cheap?"

The last word lashed Hal to his feet, and it took all his quivering strength to force definition upon the thick words that came of themselves: "Kerrigan, you're a liar. A G—d—d liar! And if you were young—"

Something was strangling him inside his throat. It was as if torture, finally released upon him, came to full impact upon the numb obstinacy of his faculties, with a tautly balanced rocking to show that something must plunge massively away in the next second. Hal found his desperate voice again, and in a quicker anger he cried at Kerrigan: "You're right. It's true—every rotten word of it's true."

He went to Kerrigan, took his big arms above the elbow, and sank his forehead awkwardly to the bulky shoulder. "Heaven forgive me," he said in the calm of an exhausted breath. "You, Colonel, you've got to forgive me, you—"

He rolled his head a little against the shoulder for want of any words, then let it rest there.

In a moment Kerrigan's hands came up under Hal's elbows and moved them gently. "I'm glad you didn't like it any better'n I did," he said, his voice low, triumphant—deeply comforting around an odd sort of humblity.

Like a divine intercession to spare them both an impasse of embarrassment, the telephone bell broke into startled clamor, and Hal went to it without looking at Kerrigan. It was Sister Anastasia—ready now to go.

"You'll call Barry up, Colonel," Hal said quickly. "To be sure she's there. You'll keep her there: do anything, tell her anything to keep her there safe till I can get to her, till—"

Hal's voice lowered to a pitch of bitter shame—"till I can kneel in dirt to her."

Kerrigan nodded, saying hurriedly, "Yes, but move: get back soon's you can."

"Six hours outside," said Hal, glancing at his watch. "Back by midnight sure. And, Colonel, look—do anything, anything to me, but don't ever talk to me like that again, will you?"

"D'you spec I could, even if I ever had to?" he said softly.

When Hal got to the place where Sister Anastasia was waiting, he felt he was somehow serving Barry in disciplining himself to the nun's service. Anastasia's eyes were reticently animated. She said:

"I did not know when I telephoned you: they've told me there is a train to Santa Barbara in twenty minutes; and they've given me money for my ticket, from my brother."

"Ah, but sister," said Hal in sincere reproof, "I was so happy to take you myself. I want to."

"I was 'appy, too," she said, keeping her eyes from him till she'd said it. Then, looking up at him with tranquil sureness: "But she is not 'appy—not at all. You can do something for'er—now, tonight—instead of taking me on this long journey."

Scene on the Severn River.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

TOWN after town, each with an interesting history, is threaded along the Severn river, which disposes with the Thames the title of England's longest stream.

The first town on the infant river is Llanidloes, and here one sees the first and one of the quaintest of the old market halls which will be encountered in a pilgrimage along the Severn, and one, moreover, which still treasures its curfew bell.

Although the market hall is sadly in the way of modern traffic, making the approach from the upper Severn bridge to the main street narrow and dangerous, the adjacent streets are of ample width and pleasant with avenues of trees. On market days, no doubt, the traffic is congested enough, for Llanidloes cattle and sheep markets are still important local events.

Farther down the valley, on the outskirts of Newtown, a large wooden hall by the roadside attracts attention. It is too large for the needs of a town of some 5,000 inhabitants and too far from the center of the town for everyday use. There is only one notice board to be seen, and that says, "Choirs only this way." Obviously, for choral festivals.

Even a small town like this can hope for the honor of staging the national festival, the Eisteddfod. Sometimes, as in this instance, it means providing a hall capable of accommodating an audience larger than the entire population of the town which builds it; but it is done. The ceremony of the crowning of the bard takes place on an open hillside, for no building could accommodate the immense concourse of patriots who gather for that event.

Robert Owen Was Born in Newtown.

The most famous son of Newtown was Robert Owen, pioneer of co-operative stores. Born in 1771, he was also a pioneer, from the masters' side, of more humane factory legislation, at a time when the industrial revolution was at its most ruthless stage. He spent some time in the United States and worked to promote Anglo-American friendship. His birthplace has been pulled down, but the bank which now occupies the site provided compensation by forming a memorial museum and library, including a reproduction of the room in which Owen was born.

Newtown has also the most important woolen mills in North Wales. Yorkshire has captured the bulk of this trade, and most Welsh wool is now sent there in its raw state.

Montgomery, the capital of the county of the same name, through which the Severn flows in Wales, lies a short distance away from the river, almost forgotten by the rush of modern life, dreaming peacefully of its troubled history. Its neighbor, Welshpool, takes the busy current of the present-day traffic.

Not far from the bustle of Welshpool the Red Castle of Powis overlooks the town. Its grounds are peaceful and the tame deer gaze with mild curiosity at visitors. This castle was one of the storm centers of Wales for centuries, and Sir Walter Scott has a fine description of its banqueting hall in his novel, "The Betrothed."

Where Old Parr Lived.

On the hillside near Middleton is Old Parr's cottage, where Thomas Parr lived in the reign of ten kings and queens of England. At the age of 152 he was taken to London to be exhibited to the king, Charles I, but died a few months later. The doctors, after a post-mortem examination, attributed his untimely death to this removal, for they reported: "In short, his inward parts appeared so healthy that if he had not changed his diet and air, he might perhaps have lived a good while longer." He continued his work as a farmer till he was 130 years old. He was buried in Westminster Abbey.

A few coracles, of a type familiar since the days of the ancient Britons, are still used by local fishermen. These oval boats are very light to carry, but clumsy to handle in the water. They are composed of a frame of wicker-work covered with skins or, nowadays, with olivcloth.

The Severn still yields salmon to its fishermen, but not in such abundance as in days gone by, when an apprentice's indentures often contained a clause to prevent his master economizing by feeding him on fresh salmon more often than twice a week!

From Welshpool to Shrewsbury the country is very flat, so the Severn is here remarkable for nothing except its windings. Its first important tributary, the Wyrnwy, joins it as it enters England, in Shropshire. Near the junction is a village so subject to floods that it was called locally "Melverley, God help 'em."

Shrewsbury Is Very Ancient.

In one of the loops made by the Severn several miles farther down stands Shrewsbury, a town full of varied interest. There has been a settlement here at least since the sacking of the Roman city of Uriconum, six miles to the southeast in 584. Pengwern, as it was called, was for some time the capital of the kings of Powis, before the castle at Welshpool was built. The Saxons called the town Scrobbsbyrig, which time has mellowed into the present Shrewsbury.

When the Normans came they recognized what an ideal spot it was for defense, surrounded on all sides by the river except where a steep rock closed the gap. The Conqueror entrusted the building of the castle to his kinsman, Roger de Montgomery, and this building has been restored recently and presented to the town out of the profits made by Shrewsbury's famous flower show.

Shrewsbury, like Banbury, it also noted for its cakes, and one shop owes its fame to the mention of its name by a minor poet. In "The Ingoldsby Legends" the story is told of a local bluebeard. The heroine gets past the ferocious dog who guards the chamber of horrors by feeding him on the contents of her basket. "She has given him a Shrewsbury cake of Pailin's own make," and the successor of that worthy confectioner still finds that line his own best advertisement.

In the stirring days of border warfare, Shrewsbury held the responsible office of the northern warden of the marches, with Ludlow, on the tributary Teme, taking equal responsibility at the southern end.

Besides its border warfare, Shrewsbury witnessed one critical fight in English history, the battle which is familiar to all lovers from Shakespeare's description of it in "Henry IV." The turning point in this conflict was the death of Hotspur, which Falstaff himself claimed to have compassed after a duel lasting "a long hour by Shrewsbury clock."

Home of Two Famous Men.

Shrewsbury's most famous son, Darwin, began another kind of battle—a battle of ideas—with his theory of evolution; and, although the battle ground is changing, the fight he commenced still goes on. A statue to his memory stands in front of the old grammar school, now the public library.

Near the Old Market hall stands a statue to another famous son of Shropshire, Lord Clive, who helped to lay the foundations of British rule over India.

The old Roman road, Watling street, crossed the Severn a few miles lower down, near Wroxeter, and turned southward, toward South Wales, another branch running northward toward Chester. Just behind Wroxeter are the ruins of the important Roman city, Uriconum, or Viroconium. The excavations prove it to have been of considerable size, larger than Pompeii, though not as rich in treasures.

Although no coins later than the Fourth century have been found among the ruins, it is generally thought that it long survived the withdrawal of the Roman garrison and was only sacked and burned during the Saxon advance up the Severn, which commenced A. D. 577.

South and west of Wroxeter rises the long slope of Wenlock Edge, celebrated in song, with the delightful ruins of Wenlock Abbey nestling beneath it. To the east of Wroxeter, the Wrekin, 1,335 feet high, gains by its solitude a dignity to which its height alone would not entitle it. Remains of a British camp can be clearly traced on its summit, and the panorama it commands is a fine one.

On the west the Severn winds like a silver thread through the landscape, with Wenlock Edge and the Welsh mountains beyond. On the other side much of the fair county of Shropshire can be seen, marred in some places by the smoke from its coal and iron fields, but overlooking fine old mansions like Lilleshall hall.

Among the villages well worth a visit special mention should be made of Tong. Its church has been aptly called the "Village Westminster" on account of the variety and splendor of its monuments. It is also the village which Dickens admitted he had in mind when writing the closing scenes of "The Old Curiosity Shop," and in the churchyard is the grave of the original of Little Nell, so the townfolk say,

SPARROWS SAVE MAN'S LIFE

Sparrows have saved the life of a man who long befriended them at Galbrunn, Austria. Franze Oberhuber, seventy-five years old, a peasant and a bachelor, made it a habit every morning during 20 years to feed from his window the sparrows that came regularly in masses for their meal. One morning the window was closed and there was no food for them. The noise made by several thousand birds attracted the attention of neighbors, who entered the house and found the old man unconscious in his bed. He had fallen seriously ill during the night and had nobody to help him.

From Your Doctor if the "Pain" Remedy You Take Is Safe.

Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's Well-Being to Unknown Preparations

BEFORE you take any preparation you don't know all about, for the relief of headaches; or the pains of rheumatism, neuritis or neuralgia, ask your doctor what he thinks about it—in comparison with Genuine Bayer Aspirin.

We say this because, before the discovery of Bayer Aspirin, most so-called "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as being bad for the stomach; or, often, for the heart. And the discovery of Bayer Aspirin largely changed medical practice.

Countless thousands of people who have taken Bayer Aspirin year in and out without ill effect, have proved that the medical findings about its safety were correct.

Remember this: Genuine Bayer Aspirin is rated among the fastest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and all common pains... and safe for the average person to take regularly.

You can get real Bayer Aspirin at any drug store—simply by never asking for it by the name "aspirin" alone, but always saying BAYER ASPIRIN when you buy.

Quick, Complete Pleasant ELIMINATION

Let's be frank. There's only one way for your body to rid itself of the waste matters that cause acidity, gas, headaches, bloated feelings and a dozen other discomforts—your intestines must function. To make them move quickly, pleasantly, completely, without griping. Thousands of physicians recommend Milnesia Wafers. (Dentists recommend Milnesia wafers as an efficient remedy for mouth acidity).

These mint flavored candy-like wafers are pure milk of magnesia. Each wafer is approximately equal to a full adult dose of liquid milk of magnesia. Chewed thoroughly in accordance with the directions on the bottle or tin, then swallowed, they correct acidity, bad breath, flatulence, at their source and at the same time enable quick, complete, pleasant elimination.

Milnesia Wafers come in bottles of 20 and 48 wafers, at 35c and 60c respectively, or in convenient tins containing 12 at 20c. Each wafer is approximately an adult dose of milk of magnesia. All good drug stores carry them. Start using these delicious, effective wafers today. Professional samples sent free to registered physicians or dentists if request is made on professional letter head.

Storage Solves Problem of Surplus for Gardeners

Each year the average gardener has a surplus problem. His garden normally produces more vegetables during the summer than he and his family can consume.

This surplus—of little value in the winter—can be used during the winter in preparing a variety of tasty and wholesome dishes if the extra vegetables are properly stored in cellars, attics, or other suitable places. Storing of vegetables also lightens the annual canning work.

Beets, late cabbage, carrots, celery, onions, parsnips, potatoes, sweet potatoes, salsify, pumpkins, squash, and turnips may be stored in their natural condition. Beans of various kinds, including the limas, may be dried and stored.

A half-acre garden, according to horticulturists of the United States Department of Agriculture, will, if properly cared for, produce enough vegetables for year-around use by the average family.

Cellars containing a furnace usually are too warm and dry for storing root crops, but a room may be partitioned off in one corner or end of the cellar and temperature controlled by means of outside windows. Outdoor cellars may be built at a low cost.

Salmon River Area Will Be Explored

Gorge Surpasses Grand Canyon of the Colorado.

Washington, D. C.—The Salmon river canyon in Idaho, one of the largest primitive areas in the United States, with a gorge surpassing the Grand canyon of the Colorado in depth and steepness, will be explored and photographed soon by the Salmon river expedition of the National Geographic society, according to an announcement made by Vice President John Oliver La Gorce.

The expedition personnel includes Philip J. Shenoan and John C. Reed of the U. S. Geological survey; Maynard Owen Williams, staff representative of the National Geographic society; Robert Marshall, naturalist; D. Worth Clark, and two local boatmen.

Travel Upstream Impossible

"The Salmon river, which winds through rugged central Idaho, has been to withstand numerous collisions with truly designated the 'River of No Returns,'" the announcement continues. "The falls and roaring rapids of the swift stream, and the sheer cliffs and ruggedness of the canyon, make travel upstream impossible. Downstream navigation can be accomplished only in stout, flat-bottomed boats, reinforced boulders in the rapids and low falls. "The source of the river is in the rugged Sawtooth mountain range of southeastern Idaho. For many miles it flows north. About 20 miles below the town of Salmon it turns westward to enter the main gorge. The Salmon river expedition will begin its exploration at Salmon early in October, working down the river through the main gorge to the lower gorge. The latter begins at Whitebird and extends about 50 miles to the junction of the Salmon and Snake rivers.

"The wildly beautiful main gorge of the Salmon river is one of the loneliest regions in the country. For 150 miles along a deep, twisting canyon the only settlement is an occasional cabin. The rushing torrent has cut through several thousand feet of lava flows and deep into older formations beneath. The canyon's great depth, 6,000 feet in places, permits scientific study of formations more than a mile below the original surface of the main body of granite rock.

"The walls of the canyon itself are brilliantly colored. On Big Creek, in the canyon area, are extensive but little known prehistoric Indian picture writings that have not been studied.

"In addition, the forests and flowers of the region are expected to provide excellent subjects for the color camera. In the Salmon and the Clearwater mountains, bear, mountain goat, mountain sheep, deer, elk, and moose roam far from the usual haunts of man. In addition to salmon, there are several varieties of fish, including the rare red fish trout.

"The Salmon river area has an interesting historical background, beginning with the Lewis-Clark expedition to the Northwest in 1805. Stories of Indian warfare, picturesque early settlers and exciting gold rushes lend glamour to the region. Scenes of earlier gold rush days are again being re-enacted in this section of Idaho. The granite rock, known as Idaho batholith, through which the Salmon river cuts its way, is similar to that of the Coeur d'Alene region, source of most of the state's mineral wealth."

All Readers "Go Blind" on Every Line of Type

Minneapolis.—The eye "goes blind" at least three times while reading a line of type. Tests made with a camera developed by Dr. M. A. Tinker, of the University of Minnesota, showed that the average person's eye made about five little hops over each line and that the eye was blind for a fiftieth of a second between the hops. The best readers make three or four stops twelve times in covering a line of type.

Hippopotamus Under Water

A hippopotamus can stay under water only about five minutes, and a baby hippo only 20 seconds, tests show. It was previously claimed they could remain submerged for a half hour.

LIFE'S PUZZLES

By LEONARD A. BARRETT

Life is full of puzzles. Experiences occur which defy all rational explanations. Those who always have been unfortunate are convinced that "luck" controls destiny. Among these life puzzles is the seeming success of the wicked. Dishonest persons are successful while the honest are victims of misfortune and failure. Power, both economic and social, is in the hands of the unscrupulous. Virtue walks in rags and vice in silks. The brilliant lawyer gets his guilty client off-unpunished. A premium is placed on ignorance while culture and education toil at a discount. To one person ease and luxury comes with little or no effort, to another the morrow brings no happy prospects of progress. We frequently hear the remark, "that man was born under a lucky star," while of another, it is said, "he is a child of cruel fate!" It should be remembered, however, that these experiences are only "puzzles," which we can neither understand nor explain. Nature is a stern mother, and her laws are inviolable. She does not balance her accounts every day. Sometimes she waits a long time before calling for the final day of reckoning. Regardless of values

Lindbergh Baby?

This is the boy, known only as "Brother," adopted son of a couple at Flushing, L. I., mentioned by C. Lloyd Fisher, Bruno Richard Hauptmann's chief defense counsel, as the possible son of Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. Defense for Hauptmann may base their demand for a new trial for the German carpenter on evidence that this child is in truth Charles Lindbergh, Jr., and that the body of the child found in the Sourland mountains of New Jersey was not the son of the flyer.

the same law holds true, disobedience is slavery. No man ever escaped injury to himself in consequence of the wrong he did another. In our own experience we recall men who seemed to rise by depressing others, but later in life they themselves were the bankrupts. A crook invariably dies in poverty. A gambler ultimately loses all his ill-gotten gains. In the final crisis dishonesty leads to ruin. The pyramid of stolen wealth falls like the old tower of Babel.

The irrevocable decree of the moral and social order seems to be, what you give you receive. "Give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you." That nation which seeks to expand by the sword ultimately perishes by the same weapon. This most subtle of life's puzzles, "the seeming success of crime," is a very old problem. Job wrestled with it. Let us again remember that it is only a "seeming" success. The law of justice had not yet been vindicated. Life's inequalities express only the puzzles, not realities. Real life comes to those who are not depressed by these apparent inequalities but who live and work:

Each for the joy of the working,
And each to his separate star,
Shall draw the Thing as he sees it
For the God of Things as they are.

The Household

By Lydia Le Baron Walker

RAINBOW luncheon sets are a novelty. They are just the sort of table napery to have for summer-time cottages and camps, and for informal breakfast and luncheon sets in town or country homes. The six colors of the rainbow are used for the tablecloth, whatever the size, or one of the colors may be for a centerpiece. Each dolly is in one of the colors, as are the napkins also.

The material is cotton crepe, the flat Japanese kind. The edges of each piece in the set are fringed for one-half inch on all sides except the cloth which has three-fourths or one inch fringe. When the pieces are cut and raveled, the set is done, so if you want as suggested, the work is simplified and quickened, if edges of strips are basted to stiff wrapping paper cut to extend under each edge of the textile for at least one inch. The space left between edges of each two strips to be thus open-work stitched together equals the width of the row of stitches. It is important to have edges evenly spaced and approximately one-fourth inch or less apart.

In Line With Fashion.

These rainbow luncheon sets are smart novelties to accord with the latest fad in beverage sets in which each tumbler or glass, whatever its shape, is different from the others,

In the Luncheon Cloth All Six Colors Are United in Rainbow Sequence, of Red, Orange, Yellow, Green, Blue, Violet. Napkins Match Colors.

a set for your own use at this time, or for a church or club bazaar, or a bridge prize, just a little of your spare time and you have it.

Luncheon Cloth.

Whether the center table cover is small or in luncheon table size it is given chic by having the entire article composed of strips of the six colors, narrow or wide according to size wanted for completed article. The strips can be machine hemstitched together. Or each strip can be rolled along lengthwise edges and whipped, and then fagotted or herringbone stitched together with black crochet cotton. Or different colored crochet cottons may be used, matching colors of textiles. If this way is followed be sure to have threads of cotton used in the stitching in contrast with colored textiles joined. This is a good way to use up odds and ends of crochet cottons, provided they match colors in set. Outer edges are raveled as described.

When joining edges with hand sutuwhile all being of like design. Glass muddlers come in different colors or with white or clear glass bowls and colored hollow stems. Cocktail napkins come in the multi-color sets, and cups and saucers follow the like fashion. It will be seen that these rainbow luncheon sets are the last word in the ultra-modern style for table appointments.

YOUTH, FACED BY NEW PROBLEMS, NEEDS GUIDANCE

"Boys and girls of the present day are most emphatically all right. They are faced, however, with certain problems which did not perplex their fathers and mothers." It is to these problems and situations that Dr. Reginald Fitz turns his attention in "Young People and Their Parents," an article in Hygeia in which he makes some revealing comparisons and contrasts of conditions at the beginning of the century and at the present time.

Each generation at some time finds itself midway between old age and youth, irked on the one hand by the conservatism of its elders and on the other by the radicalism of its youngsters.

Of especial significance among the changes in attitude is the relation of the family doctor to young people. People naturally continue to be born, to grow sick and to die, but the medical problems of the average family are radically different from those of the early part of the century.

At times the physician must even play the part of schoolmaster. He conducts annual physical examinations on school children, examines their eyes, teeth and ears, and makes sure that they are properly fed. He does what he can to prevent the appearance of infectious diseases, keeps accurate records of physical development and sees to it that the program of the individual child who is growing too rapidly or too slowly or who is in any way abnormal is modified appropriately.

By virtue of his peculiar human relationships the family medical adviser feels at heart a strong sense of responsibility to the nation, which he can fulfill only by doing his best to direct the minds and bodies of young people in the proper direction.

Guard Against Fleas

Fleas will breed in carpets, cracks in the floor or any other suitable place where the eggs may drop. It takes only 17 days from the time an egg is laid to produce a flea in good biting condition. The insects are renowned in scientific circles as the carrier of many diseases. The dog flea sometimes carries eggs of a tapeworm, which when swallowed causes worms in dogs. Occasionally tapeworms in children are caused by dog fleas accidentally getting into the mouths of the children.

To guard against flea infestation of dwellings animal pets should be frequently dusted with any insect powder made from dried pyrethrum flowers. This is harmless to animals and human beings. If a house becomes infested the rugs, cracks in floor and other likely breeding places should be sprayed thoroughly with any of the liquid spray insecticides.

Fire menaced a large portion of East Tawas Saturday when the basement entrance at the Evans Furniture store was ignited by sparks from an outside incinerator at the rear of the building. The interior of the entrance way was soon a mass of flames. Quick work on the part of the fire department extinguished the fire although a heavy gale was blowing. Very little damage occurred except in the basement. Here a quantity of paint and some new stoves were damaged by smoke and water.

The last four games played previous to Sunday three were won by rallies in the eighth or ninth inning in which from three to five runs were scored. The final game at Bentley added another to those so annexed. Going into the ninth frame of this contest with the score 5 to 2 against them, the locals staged a spectacular four-run finish to take the game by a 6 to 5 score.

Bentley was first to score in the game, tallying one run in the opening stanza on K. Koelsch's single, two errors and Wilson's hit. Tawas took the lead in its half of the second, scoring two runs on Mallon's single, a base on balls to Laidlaw, Roach's sacrifice and an error, but was unable to hold it long as Bentley tied the count by scoring once in the third on a base on balls to K. Koelsch and an error. In the sixth Bentley took a 4-2 advantage by counting two markers on Riggs' single, an error, a passed ball and Wilson's single. Singles by Wilson, Zawski and Kozlow produced the fifth Bentley run in the eighth.

In the meantime the Tawas sluggers were having considerable difficulty solving the offerings of Wasalaski, Bentley moundsman. During the first eight innings he allowed only two runs and four hits and struck out 12 men. With the ninth frame coming on and only three more men to retire, the score 5-2 in favor of the Bay county squad, and Wasalaski mowing down the locals in great style, it looked like a sure victory for Bentley and that team's large group of followers came to the conclusion that the game was "in the bag." The ninth inning, however, saw the Tawas steam-roller get under motion and before the dust had settled four runs crossed the plate and swung the lead in favor of the locals, 6-5. Here is how it happened—

Roach, first up, sent a nice drive into left-center which went for two bases. Moeller, batting for Libka, was hit by a pitched ball. Kasischeke then slapped out a single, scoring Roach and sending Moeller to third. That was enough for Wasalaski and Wilson went to the mound for Bentley. Kasischeke stole second and scored the tying run behind Moeller when Quick laed a single to right-center. Quick took second on the throw-in and advanced to third on a passed ball. After Mark fanned, Harris Lixey poled a triple into deep right-center, scoring Quick with what proved to be the winning run. A quick retrieval of an overthrow at third caught Harris at the plate when he tried to score on the bad throw. Wilson then struck out M. Lixey to quell the uprising. It then remained for the local team to retire three men before it could claim victory. H. Koelsch, first up in the Bentley half of the ninth, received a base on balls. After Roach took care of K. Koelsch's fly to center, Riggs advanced H. Koelsch to second with a sacrifice. M. Lixey, Tawas hurler, then struck out Dixon to end the game.

Mervyn Lixey, who has been on the mound in nearly all of the Tawas games during the season, gave another fine performance in this contest. He yielded only eight hits, issued two passes and struck out seven men during the game. A pitcher who fields his position in an excellent manner, Lixey made several nice stops on hard grounders to help his own cause immensely.

A fielding performance worthy of special mention was turned in by Marvin Mallon, locals' shortstop. "Marv" handled several extremely difficult chances without a miscue and made them look easy. He also led the Tawas batting attack with two singles in four times up, being followed closely by H. Lixey with a triple and single in five trips to the plate. Libka handled twelve chances nicely while taking care of the first sack position for the home crew. With the Bay county team's battery accounting for about two-thirds of the Tawas put-outs, Bentley fielders had a comparatively easy day. The losers were led in hitting by Wilson, who had three singles in four times at bat.

And so a very successful season for the Tawas club has come to a close. The boys experienced their ups and downs along with the rest of the teams in the league, but had what it takes to come out on top. The squad had batting power, good fielding in most of the games, and excellent pitching. In addition they showed a splendid fighting spirit in all of their engagements. Manager Walter Laidlaw and his cohorts are to be congratulated upon the fine record of the team for the year.

Junior-Senior Party
The Seniors entertained the Juniors at a scavenger party last Friday evening. The program was prepared by Patricia Braddock, Jean Robinson, and Opal Gillespie. All members met in the basement of the school building at 7:30, and then were sent out by couples and trios in search of the following list of articles: Picture of Mickey Cochrane, a dead electric light bulb, a 1934 automobile license plate, a stalk of corn, a cancelled 1/2 cent stamp, empty can of Campbell's tomato soup, a cat tail, an old potato, the signature of one of the Cholger family, and a pumpkin apple.

George Tuttle and Junior Keiser were the first group to return, in spite of the handicap of first going after a can of kerosene. When the stern judge checked their list, however, it was ruled out on the technicality that the potato obtained was new rather than old. As a result, the group to obtain the prize for first arrival, and meeting all of the requirements, consisted of Ernest Ross, Robert Mark, and Laurine Frank.

The menu committee, consisting of America Bell, Robena McLean, and Willard Wright, put on a bountiful repast when all had returned to the building. There seemed to be plenty of all articles on the menu, and consequently the repast was a decided success. The party closed at about 10:30.

High School
Report cards were given out on Wednesday. The purpose of these reports is to give the pupils and parents information concerning the progress of the pupils in their school work. The cards should be carefully examined by the parent and promptly returned to the school.

All of the faculty have joined the Michigan Education Association and expect to attend the region meeting of the organization in Flint on Thursday and Friday, October 17 and 18.

We recently received a certificate from the University of Michigan certifying that the school is accredited until the thirtieth day of June, 1937.

At a recent class meeting held by the Seniors it was decided to discontinue the class photograph contract which had run for several years with the Camp Publishing Company of Ypsilanti and have the work done by Van's Studio of East Tawas.

We have begun preparation for our annual speech contest. The Sophomores have selected their declamations and the Junior and Seniors who are taking English have selected the topics for their orations.

Seventh and Eighth Grades
Myrtle Bowen, Arnold Rollin, and Elma Herman have been absent this week.

The following pupils are on the honor roll for September: Seventh grade—Norma Burtzloff and Marion Musolf; eighth grade—Dorothy Blust, Kathleen Davis, and Martha Herman.

Pupils of the seventh grade received three interesting letters from pupils in the Fyffe school, Sumner, Illinois. Our seventh grade pupils will answer these letters as a part of their language work.

Fifth and Sixth Grades
We were sorry to hear that Billy Brown has broken his arm. Alton Hill, Robert Rollin, and Frank Mark wrote the best papers in a sixth grade hygiene test.

Many people made very pretty designs for their penmanship books.

Primary Room
We are being weighed and measured this week.

Inez Ulman is absent this week with a cold.

On the honor roll for September are the following: First grade—Betty Lue Brown, Ruth Hill, Jean Lanski, and Leslie Smith; second grade—Beverly Bigelow, Charles Curry, Dorothy Hill, Duane Leslie, Neil Thornton and Willard Timreck.
